- 2<sup>o</sup> He began to build in the second month 3 of the fourth year of his reign. These are the foundations which Solomon laid for building the house of God: the length, according to the old standard of measurement, was sixty cubits and the breadth twenty. The vestibule in front of the house<sup>b</sup> was twenty cubits long, spanning the whole breadth of the house, and its height was twenty; on the inside he overlaid it with pure gold. He panelled the large chamber with pine, covered it with fine gold and carved on it palm-trees and chain-work. He adorned the house with precious stones for decoration, and the gold he used was from Parvaim. He covered the whole house with gold, its rafters and frames, its walls and doors; and he carved cherubim on the walls.
- 8 He made the Most Holy Place twenty cubits long, corresponding to the breadth of the house, and twenty cubits broad. He covered it all with six hundred talents of fine gold, and the weight of the nails was fifty shekels of gold. He also covered the upper chambers with gold.
- 10<sup>f</sup> In the Most Holy Place he carved two images of cherubim and overlaid them with gold. The total span of the wings of the cherubim was twenty cubits. A wing of the one cherub extended five cubits to reach the wall of the house, while its other wing reached out five cubits to meet a wing of the other cherub. Similarly, a wing of the second cherub extended five cubits to reach the other wall of the house, while its other wing met a wing of the first cherub. The wings of these cherubim extended twenty cubits; they stood with their feet on the ground, facing the outer chamber. He made the Veil of violet, purple, and crimson yarn, and fine linen, and embroidered cherubim on it.
- In front of the house he erected two pillars eighteen cubits high, with an architrave five cubits high on top of each. He made chainwork like a necklace<sup>k</sup> and set it round the tops of the pillars, and he carved a hundred pomegranates and set them in the chain-work. He erected the two pillars in front of the temple, one on the right and one on the left; the one on the right he named Jachin<sup>l</sup> and the one on the left Boaz.<sup>m</sup>
- He then made an altar of bronze, twenty cubits long, twenty cubits broad, and ten cubits high. He also made the Sea of cast metal; it was round in shape, the diameter from rim to rim being ten cubits; it stood five cubits high, and it took a line thirty cubits long to go round it. Under the Sea, on every side, completely surrounding the thirty cubits of its circumference, were what looked like gourds,<sup>p</sup> two rows of them, cast in one piece with the Sea itself. It was mounted on twelve oxen, three facing north, three west, three south, and three east, their hind quarters turned inwards; the Sea rested on top of them. Its thickness was a hand-

g Verses 2-4: cp. 1 Kgs. 6. 1-3.

h house: prob. rdg.; Heb. length.

i Verses 10-13: cp. 1 Kgs. 6. 23-28.

j Verses 15-17: cp. 1 Kgs. 7. 15-21.

k necklace: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.

l Or Jachun, meaning It shall stand.

m Or Booz, meaning In strength.

n Verses 2-5: cp. 1 Kgs. 7. 23-26.

o Prob. rdg.; Heb. ten.

p Prob. rdg., cp. 1 Kgs. 7. 24; Heb. oxen.

3.1-5.1: The construction of the Temple. The Chronicler greatly reduces from 1 Kgs. 6.1-7.22 the description of the basic structure of the Temple; he omits altogether the building of Solomon's palace (1 Kgs. 7.1-12). 1: Moriah: Rabbinic tradition uses the mention here of Moriah to identify it with Mount Zion; compare too Gen. 22.2. Possibly this rabbinic identification is as old as the age of the Chronicler. 4: Its height was twenty (see Tfn. h): note that the figure is taken from the Sept., but the MT reads "a hundred and twenty"; this latter is either an error or else an exaggeration characteristic of the Chronicler. The source, 1 Kgs. 6.2, reads "thirty." 5: Pine is given here instead of the cedar of 1 Kgs. 6.18. That all the wood was covered with fine gold (six hundred talents' worth, see v. 8) is an embroidered exaggeration. 14: The Veil is possibly the Chronicler's own contribution, reflecting the postexilic temple of his time; the source (1 Kgs. 6.2, 31) speaks of doors, though the Wilderness Tabernacle (Exod. 16.31) had a Veil (Exod. 36.35). See Mt. 27.51; Mk. 15.38; Lk. 23.45. 17: See Tfn. j. 4.1: The altar of bronze is not directly mentioned in 1 Kgs. ch. 7, but see 1 Kgs. 8.64 and n. there.

breadth; its rim was made like that of a cup, shaped like the calyx of a lily; when full it held three thousand 6 baths. He also made ten basins for washing, setting five on the left side and five on the right; in these they rinsed everything used for the whole-offering. The Sea was made for the priests to wash in.

7 He made ten golden lamp-stands in the prescribed manner and set them in the temple, five on the right side and 8 five on the left. He also made ten tables and placed them in the temple, five on the right and five on the left; and he made a hundred golden tossing-bowls.
9 He made the court of the priests and the great precinct and the doors for it, and overlaid the doors of both 10 with copper; he put the Sea at the right side, at the south-east corner of the temple.

11<sup>q</sup> Hiram made the pots, the shovels, and the tossing-bowls. So he finished the work which he had undertaken for King 12 Solomon on the house of God. The two pillars; the two bowl-shaped capitals<sup>r</sup> on the tops of the pillars; the two ornamental networks to cover the two 13 bowl-shaped capitals on the tops of the pillars; the four hundred pomegranates for the two networks, two rows of pomegranates for each network, to cover the two bowl-shaped 14 capitals on the two<sup>s</sup> pillars; the ten<sup>t</sup> trolleys and the ten<sup>t</sup> basins on the 15 trolleys; the one Sea and the twelve oxen which supported it; the pots, the 16 shovels, and the tossing-bowls<sup>u</sup>—all these<sup>v</sup> objects master Hiram made of bronze, burnished work for King Solomon for the house of the LORD.
17 In the Plain of the Jordan the king cast them, in the foundry between 18 Succoth and Zeredah. Solomon made great quantities of all these objects; the weight of the copper<sup>w</sup> used was beyond reckoning.

19 Solomon made also all the furnishings for the house of God: the golden altar, the tables upon which was set the 20 Bread of the Presence, the lamp-stands of red gold whose lamps burned before the inner shrine in the prescribed manner, the flowers and lamps and tongs of 21 solid gold, the snuffers, tossing-bowls, 22 saucers, and firepans of red gold, and, at the entrance to the house, the inner doors leading to the Most Holy Place and those leading to the sanctuary, of gold.

When all the work which Solomon 5 did for the house of the LORD was completed, he brought in the sacred treasures of his father David, the silver, the gold, and the vessels, and deposited them in the storehouses of the house of God.

THEN SOLOMON SUMMONED THE ELDERS 2<sup>x</sup> of Israel, and all the heads of the tribes who were chiefs of families in Israel, to assemble in Jerusalem, in order to bring up the Ark of the Covenant of the LORD from the City of David, which is called Zion. All the men of 3 Israel assembled in the king's presence at the pilgrim-feast in the seventh month. When the elders of Israel had 4 all come, the Levites took the Ark and carried it up with the Tent of the 5 Presence and all the sacred furnishings of the Tent: it was the priests and the Levites together who carried them up.
6 King Solomon and the whole congregation of Israel, assembled with him before the Ark, sacrificed sheep and oxen in numbers past counting or 7 reckoning. Then the priests brought in the Ark of the Covenant of the LORD to its place, the inner shrine of the house, the Most Holy Place, beneath 8 the wings of the cherubim. The cherubim spread their wings over the place of the Ark, and formed a covering above the Ark and its poles. The 9 poles projected, and their ends could q 4. 11—5. 1: cp. 1 Kgs. 7. 40–51.

r bowl-shaped capitals: prob. rdg., cp. 1 Kgs. 7. 41; Heb. the bowls and the capitals.

s two: prob. rdg., cp. 1 Kgs. 7. 42; Heb. surface of the t the ten: prob. rdg., cp. 1 Kgs. 7. 43; Heb. he made the u tossing-bowls: prob. rdg., cp. 1 Kgs. 7. 45; Heb. forks.

v Prob. rdg., cp. 1 Kgs. 7. 45; Heb. their.

w Or bronze.

x Verses 2–10: cp. 1 Kgs. 8. 1–9.

6: Basins: See 1 Kgs. 7. 38–39. That the Sea was used to wash in is the Chronicler's contribution. 5.2–7.22: The dedication and divine acceptance of the Temple. The source is 1 Kgs. 8.1–9.9. 2–14: The Ark is brought into the Temple. See 11–13 n. 3–4: The Chronicler omits Ethaniam (1 Kgs. 8.2), the Canaanite name of the seventh month September-October; he replaces priests be seen from the Holy Place immediately in front of the inner shrine, but from nowhere else outside; they are there to this day. There was nothing inside the Ark but the two tablets which Moses had put there at Horeb, the tablets of the covenant<sup>y</sup> which the LORD made with the Israelites when they left Egypt.

11 Now when the priests came out of the Holy Place (for all the priests who were present had hallowed themselves without keeping to their divisions), all the levitical singers, Asaph, Heman, and Jeduthun, their sons and their kinsmen, clothed in fine linen, stood with cymbals, lutes, and harps, to the east of the altar, together with a hundred and twenty priests who blew trumpets.

13 Now the trumpeters and the singers joined in unison to sound forth praise and thanksgiving to the LORD, and the song was raised with trumpets, cymbals, and musical instruments, in praise of the LORD, because 'that<sup>z</sup> is good, for his love endures for ever'; and the house was filled with the cloud of the glory of the LORD. The priests could not continue to minister because of the cloud, for the glory of the LORD filled the house of God. Then Solomon said:

O LORD who hast chosen to dwell
in thick darkness,

2 here have I built thee a lofty house, a habitation for thee to occupy for ever.

3 And as they stood waiting, the king turned round and blessed all the assembly of Israel in these words: 'Blessed be the LORD the God of Israel who spoke directly to my father David and has himself fulfilled his promise. For he said, "From the day when I brought my people out of Egypt, I chose no city out of all the tribes of Israel where I should build a house for my Name to be there, nor did I choose any man to be prince over my people Israel. But I chose Jerusalem for my Name to be there, and I chose David to be over my people Israel." My father David had in mind to build a house in honour of the name of the LORD the God of Israel, but the LORD said to him, "You purposed to build a house in honour of my name; and your purpose was good. Nevertheless, you shall not build it; but the son who is to be born to you, he shall build the house in honour of my name." The LORD has now fulfilled his promise: I have succeeded my father David and taken his place on the throne of Israel, as the LORD promised; and I have built the house in honour of the name of the LORD the God of Israel. I have installed there the Ark containing the covenant of the LORD which he made with Israel.'

Then Solomon, standing in front of the altar of the LORD, in the presence of the whole assembly of Israel, spread out his hands. He had made a bronze<sup>b</sup> platform, five cubits long, five cubits broad, and three cubits high, and had placed it in the centre of the precinct. He mounted it and knelt down in the presence of the assembly, and, spreading out his hands towards heaven, he said, 'O LORD God of Israel, there is no god like thee in heaven or on earth, keeping covenant with thy servants and showing them constant love while they continue faithful to thee in heart and soul. Thou hast kept thy promise to thy servant David my father; by thy deeds this day thou hast fulfilled what thou didst say to him in words. Now, therefore, O LORD God of Israel, keep this promise of thine to thy servant David my father: "You shall never want for a man appointed by me to sit on the throne of Israel, if only your sons look to their ways and conform to my law, as you have done in my sight." And now, O LORD God of Israel, <sup>y</sup> the tablets of the covenant: prob. rdg., cp. 1 Kgs. 8. 9; Heb. om.

<sup>z</sup> Or he.

<sup>a</sup> Verses 1-39: cp. 1 Kgs. 8. 12-50.

<sup>b</sup> Or copper.

(1 Kgs.8.3) with Levites as the bearers of the Ark; see 1 Chr.15.1-15. 11-13: The Chronicler adds the role of Levites and the musicians here as he did at David's bringing up of the Ark in 1 Chr.15.16-22; 16.4-6. 14: The cloud of the glory: see 1 Kgs.8.10-11 n. 6.1-42: The Chronicler makes few alterations in the benediction and prayer of Solomon as given in 1 Kgs.8.12-50. 13: The bronze platform, added by the Chronicler, is not mentioned in 1 Kgs.

let the word which thou didst speak to thy servant David be confirmed.

- 18 'But can God indeed dwell with man on the earth? Heaven itself, the highest heaven, cannot contain thee; how much 19 less this house that I have built! Yet attend to the prayer and the supplication of thy servant, O LORD my God; listen to the cry and the prayer which 20 thy servant utters before thee, that thine eyes may ever be upon this house day and night, this place of which thou didst say, "It shall receive my Name"; so mayest thou hear thy servant when he prays towards this place. Hear thou the supplications of thy servant and of thy people Israel when they pray towards this place. Hear from heaven thy dwelling and, when thou hearest, forgive.
22 'When a man wrongs his neighbour and he is adjured to take an oath, and the adjuration is made before thy altar in this house, then do thou hear from heaven and act: be thou thy servants' judge, requiting the guilty man and bringing his deeds upon his own head, acquitting the innocent and rewarding him as his innocence may deserve.
24 'When thy people Israel are defeated by an enemy because they have sinned against thee, and they turn back to thee, confessing thy name and making their prayer and supplication before thee in this house, do thou hear from heaven; forgive the sin of thy people Israel and restore them to the land which thou gavest to them and to their forefathers.
26 'When the heavens are shut up and there is no rain, because thy servant and thy people Israel have sinned against thee, and when they pray towards this place, confessing thy name and forsaking their sin when they feel thy punishment, do thou hear in heaven and forgive their sin; so mayest thou teach them the good way which they should follow, and grant rain to thy land which thou hast given to thy people as their own possession.
28 'If there is famine in the land, or pestilence, or black blight or red, or locusts new-sloughed or fully grown, or if their enemies besiege them in any<sup>c</sup> of their cities, or if plague or sickness befall them, then hear the prayer or 29 supplication of every man among thy people Israel, as each one, prompted by his own suffering and misery, spreads out his hands towards this house; hear 30 it from heaven thy dwelling and forgive. And, as thou knowest a man's heart, reward him according to his deeds, for thou alone knowest the hearts of all men; and so they will fear and obey 31 thee all their lives in the land thou gavest to our forefathers.

'The foreigner too, the man who does 32 not belong to thy people Israel, but has come from a distant land because of thy great fame and thy strong hand and arm outstretched, when he comes and prays towards this house, hear 33 from heaven thy dwelling and respond to the call which the foreigner makes to thee, so that like thy people Israel all peoples of the earth may know thy fame and fear thee, and learn that this house which I have built bears thy name.

'When thy people go to war with 34 their enemies, wherever thou dost send them, and they pray to thee, turning towards this city which thou hast chosen and towards this house which I have built in honour of thy name, do thou 35 from heaven hear their prayer and supplication, and grant them justice.

'Should they sin against thee (and 36 what man is free from sin?) and shouldst thou in thy anger give them over to an enemy, who carries them captive to a land far or near; if in the 37 land of their captivity they learn their lesson and turn back and make supplication to thee in that land and say, "We have sinned and acted perversely and wickedly", if they turn back to thee 38 with heart and soul in the land of their captivity to which they have been taken, and pray, turning towards their land which thou gavest to their forefathers and towards this city which thou didst choose and this house which I have built in honour of thy name; then 39 from heaven thy dwelling do thou hear their prayer and supplications and grant them justice. Forgive thy people their

c In any: prob. rdg.; Heb. in the land.

40 sins against thee. Now, O my God, let thy eyes be open and thy ears attentive to the prayer made in this place.
41 Arise now, O LORD God, and come to thy place of rest, thou and the Ark of thy might. Let thy priests, O LORD God, be clothed with salvation and thy 42 saints rejoice in prosperity. O LORD God, reject not thy anointed prince; remember thy servant David's loyal service.<sup>d</sup>

7 When Solomon had finished this prayer, fire came down from heaven and consumed the whole-offering and the sacrifices, while the glory of the 2 LORD filled the house. The priests were unable to enter the house of the LORD because the glory of the LORD 3 had filled it. All the Israelites were watching as the fire came down with the glory of the LORD on the house, and where they stood on the paved court they bowed low to the ground and worshipped and gave thanks to the LORD, because 'that<sup>e</sup> is good, for his love endures for ever.'

4 Then the king and all the people
5 offered sacrifice before the LORD. King Solomon offered a sacrifice of twenty-two thousand oxen and a hundred and twenty thousand sheep; in this way the king and all the people dedicated 6 the house of God. The priests stood at their appointed posts; so too the Levites with their musical instruments for the LORD's service, which King David had made for giving thanks to the LORD—'for his love endures for ever'—whenever he rendered praise with their help; opposite them, the priests sounded their trumpets; and all the Israelites were standing there.

7<sup>f</sup> Then Solomon consecrated the centre of the court which lay in front<sup>g</sup> of the house of the LORD; there he offered the whole-offerings and the fat portions of the shared-offerings, because the bronze altar which he had made could not take the whole-offering, the grain-offering, and the fat portions. So Solomon and all Israel 8 with him, a very great assembly from Lebo-hamath to the Torrent of Egypt, celebrated the pilgrim-feast at that time for seven days. On the eighth day 9 they held a closing ceremony; for they had celebrated the dedication of the altar for seven days; the pilgrim-feast lasted seven days. On the twenty-third 10 day of the seventh month he sent the people to their homes, happy and glad at heart for all the prosperity granted by the LORD to David and Solomon and to his people Israel.

When Solomon had finished the house 11 of the LORD and the royal palace and had successfully carried out all that he had planned for the house of the LORD and the palace, the LORD 12 appeared to him by night and said, 'I have heard your prayer and I have chosen this place to be my place of sacrifice. When I shut up the heavens 13 and there is no rain, or command the locusts to consume the land, or send a pestilence against my people, if my 14 people whom I have named my own submit and pray to me and seek me and turn back from their evil ways, I will hear from heaven and forgive their sins and heal their land. Now my eyes 15 will be open and my ears attentive to the prayers which are made in this place. I have chosen and consecrated 16 this house, that my Name may be there for all time and my eyes and my <sup>d</sup> thy servant . . . service: or thy constant love for David thy servant.

<sup>e</sup> Or he.

<sup>f</sup> Verses 7-22: cp. 1 Kgs. 8. 64-9. 9.

<sup>g</sup> Or to the east.

40-42: These verses follow not the Kgs. source, but Ps. 132.8-10. 41-42: These verses are added. V. 42 reverts to David; see 1 Chr. 28.1-29.30 n. Solomon is the anointed prince. 7.1-3: 1 Kgs. 8.54-66 has a second benediction instead of an immediate divine response to Solomon's prayer. The Chronicler gives a second divine sign, drawing on the tradition of fire from heaven to consecrate an altar; compare Lev. 9.24; 1 Kgs. 18.38; 1 Chr. 21.26. The glory sanctioned the house; the fire sanctioned the altar. 7-8: Compare 1 Kgs. 8.64-65. 9-10: The Chronicler is concerned to make clear the different sacred times involved; see 1 Kgs. 8.66. On his understand- ing, there were two seven-day periods, one to dedicate the altar (compare Ezek. 43.18-27) and one to observe the regular autumn festival of Tabernacles, which lasted from the fifteenth through the twenty-first day of the seventh month. The eighth day of the Tabernacles festival was to be specially consecrated (Lev. 23.36). Only on the twenty-third day of the month, therefore, were the people dismissed. 11-22: From 1 Kgs. 9.1-9; but vv. 13-15 are here added to furnish hope.

- 17 heart be fixed on it for ever. And if you, on your part, live in my sight as your father David lived, doing all I command you, and observing my statutes and my judgements, then I will establish your royal throne, as I promised by a covenant granted to your father David when I said, "You shall never want for a man to rule over Israel." But if you turn away and forsake my statutes and my commandments which I have set before you, and if you go and serve other gods and prostrate yourselves before them, then I will uproot you from my land which I gave you, I will reject this house which I have consecrated in honour of my name, and make it a byword and an object-lesson among all peoples.
- 21 And this house will become a ruin; every passer-by will be appalled at the sight of it, and they will ask, "Why has the LORD so treated this land and this house?" The answer will be, "Because they forsook the LORD the God of their fathers, who brought them out of Egypt, and clung to other gods, prostrating themselves before them and serving them; that is why the LORD has brought this great evil on them."
- 8<sup>h</sup> Solomon had taken twenty years to build the house of the LORD and his own palace, and he rebuilt the cities which Hiram had given him and settled Israelites in them. He went to Hamath-zobah and seized it, and rebuilt Tadmor in the wilderness and all the store-cities which he had built in Hamath. He also built Upper Beth-horon and Lower Beth-horon as fortified cities with walls and barred gates, and Baalath, as well as all his store-cities, and all the towns where he quartered his chariots and horses; and he carried out all his cherished plans for building in Jerusalem, in the Lebanon, and throughout his whole dominion. All the survivors of the Hittites, Amorites, Perizzites, Hivites, and Jebusites, who did not belong to
- Israel—that is their descendants who survived in the land, wherever the Israelites had been unable to exterminate them—were employed by Solomon on forced labour, as they still are. He put none of the Israelites to forced labour for his public works; they were his fighting men, his captains and lieutenants, and the commanders of his chariots and of his cavalry. These were King Solomon's officers, two hundred and fifty of them, in charge of the foremen who superintended the people.
- Solomon brought Pharaoh's daughter up from the City of David to the house he had built for her, for he said, 'No wife of mine shall live in the house of David king of Israel, because this place which the Ark of the LORD has entered is<sup>i</sup> holy.'
- Then Solomon offered whole-offerings to the LORD on the altar which he had built to the east of the vestibule, according to what was required for each day, making offerings according to the law of Moses for the sabbaths, the new moons, and the three annual appointed feasts—the pilgrim-feasts of Unleavened Bread, of Weeks, and of Tabernacles.<sup>j</sup> Following the practice of his father David, he drew up the roster of service for the priests and that for the Levites for leading the praise and for waiting upon the priests, as each day required, and that for the door-keepers at each gate; for such was the instruction which David the man of God had given. The instructions which David had given concerning the priests and the Levites and concerning the treasuries were not forgotten.
- By this time all Solomon's work was achieved, from the foundation of the house of the LORD to its completion; the house of the LORD was perfect. Then Solomon went to Ezion-geber

<sup>h</sup> Verses 1-18: cp. 1 Kgs. 9. 10-28.

<sup>i</sup> this place which . . . is: prob. rdg.; Heb. those which . . . are.

<sup>j</sup> Or Booths.

8.1-9.31: Solomon's works, wisdom, and wealth. The Chronicler makes only slight changes in his source. 1-28: Compare 1 Kgs. 9.10-28. 2-4: In 1 Kgs. 9.10-11 it was Solomon who gave cities to Hiram, not the reverse. The source did not mention the campaign to the north (vv. 3-4). 11: Compare 1 Kgs. 9.24. Solomon's comment is added by the Chronicler. 13: The Chronicler adds the occasions on which the sacrifices are to be offered according to Mosaic legislation; see Lev. ch. 23 and Num. chs. 28-29. 14-15: The priestly and Levitical organizations and to Eloth on the coast of Edom, 18 and Hiram sent ships under the command of his own officers and manned by crews of experienced seamen; and these, in company with Solomon's servants, went to Ophir and brought back four hundred and fifty talents of gold, which they delivered to King Solomon.

9:1<sup>k</sup> THE QUEEN OF SHEBA HEARD OF SOLOmon's fame and came to test him with hard questions. She arrived in Jerusalem with a very large retinue, camels laden with spices, gold in abundance, and precious stones. When she came to Solomon, she told him everything 2 she had in her mind, and Solomon answered all her questions; not one of them was too abstruse for him to 3 answer. When the queen of Sheba saw the wisdom of Solomon, the house 4 which he had built, the food on his table, the courtiers sitting round him, his attendants and his cupbearers in their livery standing behind, and the stairs by which he went up to the house 5 of the LORD, there was no more spirit left in her. Then she said to the king,
 'The report which I heard in my own country about you and your wisdom 6 was true, but I did not believe what they told me until I came and saw for myself. Indeed, I was not told half of the greatness of your wisdom; you surpass 7 the report which I had of you. Happy are your wives, happy these courtiers of yours who wait on you every day and 8 hear your wisdom! Blessed be the LORD your God who has delighted in you and has set you on his throne as his king; because in his love your God has elected Israel to make it endure for ever, he has made you king over it to maintain law and justice.' 9 Then she gave the king a hundred and twenty talents of gold, spices in great abundance, and precious stones. There had never been any spices to equal those which the queen of Sheba gave to King Solomon.

10 Besides all this, the servants of Hiram and of Solomon, who had brought gold from Ophir, brought also cargoes of alium wood and precious stones. The king used the wood to 11 make stands for the house of the LORD and for the royal palace, as well as harps and lutes for the singers. The like of them had never before been seen in the land of Judah.

King Solomon gave the queen of 12 Sheba all she desired, whatever she asked, besides his gifts in return for<sup>l</sup> what she had brought him. Then she departed and returned with her retinue to her own land.

Now the weight of gold which 13
 Solomon received yearly was six hundred and sixty-six talents, in addition 14 to the tolls levied on merchants and on traders who imported goods; all the kings of Arabia and the regional governors also<sup>m</sup> brought gold and silver to the king.

King Solomon made two hundred 15 shields of beaten gold, and six hundred shekels of gold went to the making of each one; he also made three hundred 16 bucklers of beaten gold, and three hundred shekels of gold went to the making of each buckler. The king put these into the House of the Forest of Lebanon.

The king also made a great throne of 17 ivory and overlaid it with pure gold.
 Six steps and a footstool for the throne 18 were all encased in gold. There were arms on each side of the seat, with a lion standing beside each of them, and 19 twelve lions stood on the six steps, one at either end of each step. Nothing like it had ever been made for any monarch. All Solomon's drinking vessels 20 were of gold, and all the plate in the House of the Forest of Lebanon was of red gold; silver was reckoned of no value in the days of Solomon. The 21 king had a fleet of ships plying to Tarshish with Hiram's men; once every three years this fleet of merchantmen came home, bringing gold and silver, ivory, apes, and monkeys.

Thus King Solomon outdid all the 22

<sup>k</sup> Verses 1-24: cp. 1 Kgs. 10. 1-25.

<sup>l</sup> his gifts . . . for: prob. rdg.; Heb. om.

<sup>m</sup> all . . . also: or and on all the kings of Arabia and the regional governors who . . .

ascribed to David in 1 Chr. chs. 23-26 are referred to. 9.1-28: These reports are taken over kings of the earth in wealth and wisdom, and all the kings of the earth courted him, to hear the wisdom which God had put in his heart. Each brought his gift with him, vessels of silver and gold, garments, perfumes and spices, horses and mules, so much year by year.

25<sup>n</sup> Solomon had standing for four thousand horses and chariots, and twelve thousand cavalry horses, and he stabled some in the chariot-towns and kept others at hand in Jerusalem. He ruled over all the kings from the Euphrates to the land of the Philistines and the border of Egypt. He made silver as common in Jerusalem as stones, and cedar as plentiful as sycamore-fig in the Shephelah. Horses were imported from Egypt and from all countries for Solomon.

29<sup>o</sup> The rest of the acts of Solomon's reign, from first to last, are recorded in the history of Nathan the prophet, in the prophecy of Ahijah of Shiloh, and in the visions of Iddo the seer concerning Jeroboam son of Nebat. Solomon ruled in Jerusalem over the whole of Israel for forty years. Then he rested with his forefathers and was buried in the city of David his father, and he was succeeded by his son Rehoboam.

The kings of Judah from Rehoboam to Ahaz

10<sup>1p</sup> REHOBAM WENT TO SHECHEM, FOR ALL Israel had gone there to make him king. When Jeroboam son of Nebat heard of it in Egypt, where he had taken refuge to escape Solomon, he returned from Egypt. They now recalled him, and he and all Israel came to Rehoboam and said, 'Your father laid a cruel yoke upon us; but if you will now lighten the cruel slavery he imposed on us and the heavy yoke he laid on us, we will serve you.' 'Give me three days,' he said, 'and come back again.' So the people went away. King Rehoboam then consulted the elders who had been in attendance on his father Solomon while he lived: 'What answer do you advise me to give to this people?' And they said, 'If you show yourself well-disposed to this people and gratify them by speaking kindly to them, they will be your servants ever after.' But he rejected the advice which the elders gave him. He next consulted those who had grown up with him, the young men in attendance, and asked them, 'What answer do you advise me to give to this people's request that I should lighten the yoke which my father laid on them?' The young men replied, 'Give this answer to the people who say that your father made their yoke heavy and ask you to lighten it; tell them: "My little finger is thicker than my father's loins. My father laid a heavy yoke on you; I will make it heavier. My father used the whip on you; but I will use the lash."' Jeroboam and the people all came back to Rehoboam on the third day, as the king had ordered. And the king gave them a harsh answer. He rejected the advice which the elders had given him and spoke to the people as the young men had advised: 'My father made your yoke heavy; I will make it heavier. My father used the whip on you; but I will use the lash.' So the king would not listen to the people; for the LORD had given this turn to the affair, in order that the word he had spoken by Ahijah of Shiloh to Jeroboam son of Nebat might be fulfilled.

When all Israel saw<sup>q</sup> that the king would not listen to them, they answered:

n Verses 25-28: cp. 1. 14-17; 1 Kgs. 10. 26-29.

o Verses 29-31: cp. 1 Kgs. 11. 41-43.

p Verses 1-19: cp. 1 Kgs. 12. 1-19.

q saw: prob. rdg., cp. 1 Kgs. 12. 16; Heb. om.

almost unchanged from 1 Kgs. 10.1-25. 29-31: The Chronicler omits the entire negative side of Solomon's reign as given in 1 Kgs. 11.1-40. He lists some prophetic sources, though none of these is mentioned in 1 Kgs. 11.41; see 1 Chr. 29.29 n. Ahijah of Shiloh is included even though the Chronicler omits the account of his prophecy; compare 1 Kgs. 11.29-39. Iddo the seer is also mentioned in 12.15 and 13.22, but is otherwise unknown.

10.1-28.27: The kings of Judah from Rehoboam to Ahaz. 10.1-11.4: The beginning of the reign of Rehoboam. The account here is taken over without change from 1 Kgs. 12.12-19, 21-24. In omitting 1 Kgs. 12.20 the Chronicler also omits the crowning of Jeroboam, an event distasteful to him.

What share have we in David?

We have no lot in the son of Jesse.

Away to your homes, O Israel;

now see to your own house, David.

17 So all Israel went to their homes, and Rehoboam ruled over those Israelites who lived in the cities of Judah.

18 Then King Rehoboam sent out Hadoram, the commander of the forced levies, but the Israelites stoned him to death; whereupon King Rehoboam mounted his chariot in haste and fled to Jerusalem. From that day to this, Israel has been in rebellion against the house of David.

11<sup>17</sup> When Rehoboam reached Jerusalem, he assembled the tribes of Judah and Benjamin, a hundred and eighty thousand chosen warriors, to fight against Israel and recover his kingdom. But the word of the LORD came to Shemaiah the man of God: 'Say to Rehoboam son of Solomon, king of Judah, and to all the Israelites in Judah and Benjamin, "This is the word of the LORD: You shall not go up to make war on your kinsmen. Return to your homes, for this is my will."' So they listened to the word of the LORD and abandoned their campaign against Jeroboam.

5 Rehoboam resided in Jerusalem and built up the defences of certain cities in Judah. The cities in Judah and Benjamin which he fortified were Beth-lehem, Etam, Tekoa, Beth-zur, Soco, Adullam, Gath, Mareshah, Ziph, Adoraim, Lachish, Azekah, Zorah, Aijalon, and Hebron. He strengthened the fortifications of these fortified cities, and put governors in them, as well as supplies of food, oil, and wine. Also he stored shields and spears in every one of the cities, and strengthened their fortifications. Thus he retained possession of Judah and Benjamin.

Now the priests and the Levites throughout the whole of Israel resorted to Rehoboam from all their territories; for the Levites had left all their common land and their own patrimony and had gone to Judah and Jerusalem, because Jeroboam and his successors rejected their services as priests of the LORD, and he appointed his own priests for the hill-shrines, for the demons,<sup>s</sup> and for the calves which he had made. Those, from all the tribes of Israel, who were resolved to seek the LORD the God of Israel followed the Levites to Jerusalem to sacrifice to the LORD the God of their fathers. So they strengthened the kingdom of Judah and for three years made Rehoboam son of Solomon secure, because he followed the example of David and Solomon during that time.

Rehoboam married Mahalath, whose father was Jerimoth son of David and whose mother was Abihail daughter of Eliab son of Jesse. His sons by her were: Jeush, Shemariah and Zaham. Next he married Maacah granddaughter of Absalom, who bore him Abijah, Attai, Ziza and Shelomith. Of all his wives and concubines, Rehoboam loved Maacah most; he had in all eighteen wives and sixty concubines and became the father of twenty-eight sons and sixty daughters. He appointed Abijah son of Maacah chief among his brothers, making him crown prince and planning to make him his successor on the throne. He showed discretion in detailing his sons to take charge of all the fortified cities throughout the whole territory of Judah and Benjamin; he also made generous provision for them and procured them<sup>t</sup> wives.

When the kingdom of Rehoboam

<sup>r</sup> Verses 1-4: cp. 1 Kgs. 12. 21-24. <sup>s</sup> Or satyrs.
<sup>t</sup> procured them: prob. rdg.: Heb. asked for a multitude of . . .

11.5-12.16: The rest of the reign of Rehoboam. The Chronicler proceeds (vv. 5-12) to use a source otherwise unknown but quite credible historically (with the exception, at times, of the numbers given). 13-16: The Chronicler portrays the faithfulness of the Levites; they abandon the apostate Northern Kingdom. Historically, circles of Levites remained in the Northern Kingdom until its fall in 722/21; after that they became important in reform movements in the surviving Southern Kingdom. 14: See 1 Kgs. 12.31. 17: Rehoboam was first faithful to the LORD in the manner of David and Solomon; afterward he was unfaithful and brought trouble upon himself. Thus is established a pattern also exemplified by other kings; see Asa, 16.7-10; Joash, 24.1-24; Amaziah, 25.14-24; and Uzziah, 26.16-21. 18-23: The source is unknown. The Chronicler gives here the abundance of Rehoboam's wives, but he has previously omitted Solomon's abundance, 1 Kgs. 11.3. 12.1-12: 1 Kgs. treated the invasion of Shishak as simply was on a firm footing and he became strong, he forsook the law of the LORD, he and all Israel with him. In the fifth year of Rehoboam's reign, because of this disloyalty to the LORD, Shishak king of Egypt attacked Jerusalem with twelve hundred chariots and sixty thousand horsemen, and brought with him from Egypt an innumerable following of Libyans, Sukkites, and Cushites.<sup>u</sup> He captured the fortified cities of Judah and reached Jerusalem. Then Shemaiah the prophet came to Rehoboam and the leading men of Judah, who had assembled in Jerusalem before the advance of Shishak, and said to them, 'This is the word of the LORD: You have abandoned me; therefore I now abandon you to Shishak.' The princes of Israel and the king submitted and said, 'The LORD is just.' When the LORD saw that they had submitted, there came from him this word to Shemaiah: 'Because they have submitted I will not destroy them, I will let them barely escape; my wrath shall not be poured out on Jerusalem by means of Shishak, but they shall become his servants; then they will know the difference between serving me and serving the rulers of other countries.' Shishak king of Egypt in his attack on Jerusalem removed the treasures of the house of the LORD and of the royal palace. He seized everything, including the shields of gold that Solomon had made. King Rehoboam replaced them with bronze shields and entrusted them to the officers of the escort who guarded the entrance of the royal palace. Whenever the king entered the house of the LORD, the escort entered, carrying the shields; afterwards they returned them to the guard-room. Because Rehoboam submitted, the LORD's wrath was averted from him, and he was not utterly destroyed; Judah enjoyed prosperity.

Thus King Rehoboam increased his power in Jerusalem. He was forty-one years old when he came to the throne, and he reigned for seventeen years in Jerusalem, the city which the LORD had chosen out of all the tribes of Israel as the place to receive his Name. Rehoboam's mother was a woman of Ammon called Naamah. He did what was wrong, he did not make a practice of seeking guidance of the LORD. The events of Rehoboam's reign, from first to last, are recorded in the histories of Shemaiah the prophet and Iddo the seer.<sup>v</sup> There was continual fighting between Rehoboam and Jeroboam. He rested with his forefathers and was buried in the city of David; and he was succeeded by his son Abijah.

IN THE EIGHTEENTH YEAR OF KING JEROBAM'S REIGN ABIJAH BECAME KING OF JUDAH. HE REIGNED IN JERUSALEM FOR THREE YEARS; HIS MOTHER WAS MAACAH DAUGHTER OF URIEL OF GIBEAH. THERE WAS FIGHTING BETWEEN ABIJAH AND JEROBOAM. ABIJAH DREW UP HIS ARMY OF FOUR HUNDRED THOUSAND PICKED TROOPS IN ORDER OF BATTLE, WHILE JEROBOAM FORMED UP AGAINST HIM WITH EIGHT HUNDRED THOUSAND PICKED TROOPS. ABIJAH TOOK UP POSITION ON THE SLOPES OF MOUNT ZEMARAIM IN THE HILL-COUNTRY OF EPHRAIM AND CALLED OUT, 'HEAR ME, JEROBOAM AND ALL ISRAEL: OUGHT YOU NOT an event of Rehoboam's reign; the Chronicler sees it as a punishment for some fault and explains that it is a result of Rehoboam's forsaking the LORD. 4-8: The repentance of the Judeans and the consequent limitation of the punishment are characteristic motifs of the Chronicler's history. 15: The Chronicler tends to cite sources written by prophets rather than court annals; contrast 1 Kgs. 14.29.

<sup>u</sup> Or Nubians. <sup>v</sup> Verses 9-11: cp. 1 Kgs. 14. 25-28.

<sup>w</sup> Verses 13-16: cp. 1 Kgs. 14. 29-31.

<sup>x</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds to be enrolled by genealogy.

13.1-14.1: The reign of Abijah. A longer account is given here than the brief mention in 1 Kgs. 15.1-8 (there Abijah's name is spelled Abijam). 2: Here Abijah's mother is a daughter of Uriel of Gibeah whereas in 1 Kgs. 15.2 she is the daughter (probably granddaughter) of Abishalom, who was probably David's rebellious son Absalom (2 Sam. chs. 13-18). The Chronicler may have wanted to avoid having Absalom an ancestor of later kings. The mother's name is given both as Micaiah and Maacah. In 15.16, she is called mother of Asa, with mother to be understood as grandmother. 3: The Chronicler shows interest in the numbers of Judean armies and the armies of their enemies, usually to glorify the Judean kings or their God. The numbers are unreliable. 5-12: The speech presents the two motifs of greatest concern to the Chronicler: the validity of the dynasty of David as the one proper kingship in Israel, and the

to know that the LORD the God of Israel gave the kingship over Israel to David and his descendants in perpetuity by a covenant of salt? Yet Jeroboam son of Nebat, the servant of Solomon son of David, rose in rebellion against his lord, and certain worthless scoundrels gathered round him, who stubbornly opposed Solomon's son Rehoboam when he was young and inexperienced, and he was no match for them. Now you propose to match yourselves against the kingdom of the LORD as ruled by David's sons, you and your mob of supporters and the golden calves which Jeroboam has made to be your gods. Have you not dismissed from office the Aaronites, priests of the LORD, and the Levites, and followed the practice of other lands in appointing priests? Now, if any man comes for consecration with an offering of a young bull and seven rams, you accept him as a priest to a god that is no god. But as for us, the LORD is our God and we have not forsaken him; we have Aaronites as priests ministering to the LORD with the Levites, duly discharging their office. Morning and evening, these burn whole-offerings and fragrant incense to the LORD and offer the Bread of the Presence arranged in rows on a table ritually clean; they also kindle the lamps on the golden lamp-stand every evening. Thus we do indeed keep the charge of the LORD our God, whereas you have forsaken him. God is with us at our head, and his priests stand there with trumpets to signal the battle-cry against you. Men of Israel, do not fight the LORD

the God of your fathers; you will have no success.'

Jeroboam sent a detachment of his troops to go round and lay an ambush in the rear, so that his main body faced Judah while the ambush lay behind them. The men of Judah turned to find that they were engaged front and rear. Then they cried to the LORD for help. The priests sounded their trumpets, and the men of Judah raised a shout, and when they did so, God put Jeroboam and all Israel to rout before Abijah and Judah. The Israelites fled before the men of Judah, and God delivered them into their power. So Abijah and his men defeated them with very heavy losses, and five hundred thousand picked Israelites fell in the battle. After this, the Israelites were reduced to submission, and Judah prevailed because they relied on the LORD the God of their fathers. Abijah followed up his victory over Jeroboam and captured from him the cities of Bethel, Jeshanah, and Ephron, with their villages. Jeroboam did not regain his power during the days of Abijah; finally the LORD struck him down and he died.

But Abijah established his position; he married fourteen wives and became the father of twenty-two sons and sixteen daughters. The other events of Abijah's reign, both what he said and what he did, are recorded in the story of the prophet Iddo. Abijah rested with his forefathers and was buried in the city of David; and he was succeeded on the throne by his son Asa. In his days the land was at peace for ten years.

Asa did what was good and right in 2

validity of the Aaronite priesthood and the service of the Levites at Jerusalem. Compare 1 Chr. 29.10-19. The Northern Kingdom, given more serious treatment in the Book of Kings, is dealt with negatively and only partially by the Chronicler. 5: A covenant of salt was an eternal agreement (Num.18.19) sealed by both parties eating of the same food. 8: The origin of the golden calves (1 Kgs.12.26-30) was deliberately omitted; the mention here is therefore strange. 11: The ritual service assumed here is that of the Mosaic Tabernacle; compare 2.4-6 and Exod.25.23-40; 29.38-42; 30.1-10. 13-20: This battle account expresses the Chronicler's view of battles; see also 20.22-27. The LORD throws the enemy army into panic or confusion, and the (smaller) army of the righteous is victorious because of divine intervention. The numbers involved are typical of the Chronicler's exaggerations. 20: Actually, Jeroboam survived Abijah (1 Kgs.15.8-9). 21: The statistics of Abijah's family are quite credible for a Judean king. 22: Iddo: see 9.29-31 n. 14.1: The ten years of peace refer to the first ten years of Asa's reign.

14.2-16.14: The reign of Asa. Two main occurrences were reported concerning Asa in 1 Kgs.: his religious reform (1 Kgs.15.9-15) and his successful war against Baasha of Israel (1 Kgs. 15.16-22). These lead the Chronicler to a lengthy account (chs. 14-16), absent from Kgs., of Asa's faithfulness to the LORD, including a divinely given military victory (14.2-15.19; see 13.13-20 n.), and a shorter period of warfare (16.1-14) in which his reliance on foreign alliances instead of the LORD brings him suffering from disease (16.12). 2-7: The Chronicler sees the

3 the eyes of the LORD his God. He suppressed the foreign altars and the hill-shrines, smashed the sacred pillars and hacked down the sacred poles, and ordered Judah to seek guidance of the LORD the God of their fathers and to keep the law and the commandments. He also suppressed the hill-shrines and the incense-altars in all the cities, and the kingdom was at peace under him. He built fortified cities in Judah, for the land was at peace. He had no war to fight during those years, because the LORD had given him security. He said to the men of Judah, 'Let us build these cities and fortify them, with walls round them, and towers and barred gates. The land still lies open before us. Because we have sought guidance of the LORD our God, he has sought us and given us security on every side.' So they built and prospered.

8 Asa had an army equipped with shields and spears; three hundred thousand men came from Judah, and two hundred and eighty thousand from Benjamin, shield-bearers and archers; all were valiant warriors. Zerah the Cushite came out against them with an army a million strong and three hundred chariots. When he reached Mareshah, Asa came out to meet him and they took up position in the valley of Zephathah at Mareshah. Asa called upon the LORD his God and said, 'There is none like thee, O LORD, to help men, whether strong or weak; help us, O LORD our God, for on thee we rely and in thy name we have come out against this horde. O LORD, thou art our God, how can man vie with thee?' So the LORD gave Asa and Judah victory over the Cushites and they fled, and Asa and his men pursued them as far as Gerar. The Cushites broke before the LORD and his army, and many of them fell mortally wounded; and Judah carried off great loads of spoil. They destroyed all the cities around Gerar, for the LORD had struck the people with panic; and they plundered the cities, finding rich spoil in them all. They also killed the herdsmen and seized many sheep and camels, and then they returned to Jerusalem.

The spirit of God came upon Azariah son of Oded, and he went out to meet Asa and said to him, 'Hear me, Asa and all Judah and Benjamin. The LORD is with you when you are with him; if you look for him, he will let himself be found; if you forsake him, he will forsake you. For a long time Israel was without the true God, without a priest to interpret the law and without law.<sup>y</sup> But when, in their distress, they turned to the LORD the God of Israel and sought him, he let himself be found by them. At those times there was no safety for people as they went about their business; the inhabitants of every land had their fill of trouble; there was ruin on every side, nation at odds with nation, city with city, for God harassed them with every kind of distress. But now you must be strong and not let your courage fail; for your work will be rewarded.' When Asa heard these words,<sup>z</sup> he resolutely suppressed the loathsome idols in all Judah and Benjamin and in the cities which he had captured in the hill-country of Ephraim; and he repaired the altar of the LORD which stood before the vestibule of the LORD's house.<sup>a</sup> Then he assembled all Judah and Benjamin and all who had come from Ephraim, Manasseh, and Simeon to reside among them; for great numbers had come over to him from Israel, when they saw that the LORD his God was with him. So they assembled at Jerusalem in the third month of the fifteenth year of Asa's reign, and that reform of religious practice as the cause of the period of peace. 5: Contrast 15.17, and its source (1 Kgs.15.14). 9: Zerah the Cushite: his identity is uncertain. Cush is sometimes Ethiopia, but also an Arabian tribe, as is probable here. This account is another example of the stylized combat in which the LORD intervenes for the victory of the righteous people; see 13.13–20 n.

<sup>y</sup> without law; or without the law.

<sup>z</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds and the prophecy, Oded the prophet.

<sup>a</sup> house: prob. rdg.; Heb. om.

15.1–19: Asa's religious reform. 1–7: One of the typical speeches developed within the Chronicler's circle; see Introduction to 2 Chr. 1: Azariah son of Oded is otherwise unknown. A prophet Oded is mentioned in 28.9. Notice v. 8 and Tfn. z. 10: The third month (Sivan) was day they sacrificed to the LORD seven hundred oxen and seven thousand sheep from the spoil which they had brought.

12 And they entered into a covenant to seek guidance of the LORD the God of their fathers with all their heart and soul; all who would not seek the LORD the God of Israel were to be put to death, young and old, men and women alike.

14 Then they bound themselves by an oath to the LORD, with loud shouts of acclamation while trumpets and horns sounded; and all Judah rejoiced at the oath, because they had bound themselves with all their heart and had sought him earnestly, and he had let himself be found by them. So the LORD

16<sup>b</sup> gave them security on every side. King Asa also deprived Maacah his grandmother of her rank as queen mother because she had an obscene object made for the worship of Asherah; Asa cut it down, ground it to powder and burnt it in the gorge of the Kidron.

17 Although the hill-shrines were allowed to remain in Israel, Asa himself remained faithful all his life. He brought into the house of God all his father's votive offerings and his own, gold and silver and sacred vessels. And there was no more war until the thirty-fifth year of Asa's reign.

16<sup>c</sup> In the thirty-sixth year of the reign of Asa, Baasha king of Israel invaded Judah and fortified Ramah to cut off all

2 access to Asa king of Judah. So Asa brought out silver and gold from the treasuries of the house of the LORD and the royal palace, and sent this request to Ben-hadad king of Aram, whose capital

3 was Damascus: 'There is an alliance between us, as there was between our fathers. I now send you herewith silver and gold; break off your alliance with Baasha king of Israel, so that he may abandon his campaign against me.'

4 Ben-hadad listened willingly to King Asa and ordered the commanders of his armies to move against the cities of Israel, and they attacked Iyyon, Dan, Abel-mayim, and all the store-cities of Naphtali. When Baasha heard of it, he

5 ceased fortifying Ramah and stopped all work on it. Then King Asa took

6 with him all the men of Judah and they carried away the stones of Ramah and the timbers with which Baasha had fortified it; and he used them to fortify Geba and Mizpah.

At that time the seer Hanani came to 7 Asa king of Judah and said to him, 'Because you relied on the king of Aram and not on the LORD your God, the army of the king of Israel has escaped. The

8 Cushites and the Libyans, were they not a great army with a vast number of chariots and horsemen? Yet, because you relied on the LORD, he delivered them into your power. The eyes of the 9 LORD range through the whole earth, to bring aid and comfort to those whose hearts are loyal to him. You have acted foolishly in this affair; you will have wars from now on.' Asa was 10 angry with the seer and put him in the stocks; for these words of his had made the king very indignant. At the same time he treated some of the people with great brutality.

The events of Asa's reign, from first

11<sup>d</sup> to last, are recorded in the annals of the kings of Judah and Israel. In the 12 thirty-ninth year of his reign Asa became gravely affected with gangrene in his feet; he did not seek guidance of the LORD but resorted to physicians. He rested with his forefathers, in the

13 forty-first year of his reign, and was buried in the tomb which he had bought<sup>e</sup>

14 for himself in the city of David, being laid on a bier<sup>f</sup> which had been heaped with all kinds of spices skilfully

b Verses 16-18: cp. 1 Kgs. 15. 13-15.

c Verses 1-6: cp. 1 Kgs. 15. 17-22.

d Verses 11-14: cp. 1 Kgs. 15. 23, 24.

e Or dug.

f Or in a niche.

June-July, the time of the grain harvest. The reference may be to the early summer pilgrim-feast, called Harvest, or Weeks (Exod.23.16; 34.22). The sacrificial sheep often have a ten-to-one ratio to the oxen.

16.1-14: War and apostasy. 1-6: There is little change from 1 Kgs.15.17-22. 7-10: The Chronicler adds a homily to his source material. It prepares for v. 12. Hanani figures only here; his son, the prophet Jehu, figures in 19.2; 20.34 and 1 Kgs.16.1,7; but Jehu's time was a half century earlier. The eyes . . . that range through the whole earth recall Zech.4.4-5. 11-14: The Chronicler adds here to 1 Kgs.15.23-24 the comments about physicians, the tomb, the bier, and the great fire. 14: An unusually full funeral description.

compounded; and they kindled a great fire in his honour.

17 ASA WAS SUCCEEDED BY HIS SON Jehoshaphat, who determined to resist
2 Israel by force. He posted troops in all the fortified cities of Judah and stationed officers<sup>g</sup> throughout Judah and in the cities of Ephraim which 3 his father Asa had captured. The LORD was with Jehoshaphat, for he followed the example his father had set in his early years and did not resort to the 4 Baalim; he sought guidance of the God of his father and obeyed his commandments and did not follow the 5 practices of Israel. So the LORD established the kingdom under his rule, and all Judah brought him gifts, and his wealth and fame<sup>h</sup> became very 6 great. He took pride in the service of the LORD; he also suppressed the hill-shrines and the sacred poles in Judah.

7 In the third year of his reign he sent his officers, Ben-hayil, Obadiah, Zechariah, Nethaneel, and Micaiah, to 8 teach in the cities of Judah, together with the Levites, Shemaiah, Nethaniah, Zebadiah, Asahel, Shemiramoth, Jehonathan, Adonijah, Tobiah, and Tobadonijah,<sup>i</sup> accompanied by the priests 9 Elishama and Jehoram. They taught in Judah, having with them the book of the law of the LORD; they went round the cities of Judah, teaching the people.

10 So the dread of the LORD fell upon all the rulers of the lands surrounding Judah, and they did not make war on Jehoshaphat. Certain Philistines brought a gift, a great quantity of silver, to Jehoshaphat; the Arabs too brought him seven thousand seven hundred rams and seven thousand 12 seven hundred he-goats. Jehoshaphat became ever more powerful and built fortresses and store-cities in Judah; and he had much work on hand in 13 the cities of Judah. He had regular, seasoned troops in Jerusalem, enrolled according to their clans in this 14 way: of Judah, the officers over units of a thousand: Adnah the commander, together with three hundred thousand seasoned troops; and next to him the 15 commander Johanan, with two hundred and eighty thousand; and next to 16 him Amasiah son of Zichri, who had volunteered for the service of the LORD, with two hundred thousand seasoned troops; and of Benjamin: an 17 experienced soldier Eliada, with two hundred thousand men armed with bows and shields; next to him Jehoza-18 bad, with a hundred and eighty thousand fully-armed men. These were 19 the men who served the king, apart from those whom the king had posted in the fortified cities throughout Judah.

When Jehoshaphat had become very 18 wealthy and famous,<sup>j</sup> he allied himself with Ahab by marriage. Some years
20 afterwards he went down to visit Ahab in Samaria, and Ahab slaughtered many sheep and oxen for him and his retinue, and incited him to attack Ramoth-gilead. What Ahab king of Israel said 21 to Jehoshaphat king of Judah was this: 'Will you join me in attacking Ramoth-gilead?' And he answered, 'What is mine is yours, myself and my 22 people; I will join with you in the war.' Then Jehoshaphat said to the king 23 of Israel, 'First let us seek counsel from the LORD.' The king of Israel assembled 24 the prophets, some four hundred of them, and asked them, 'Shall I attack Ramoth-gilead or shall I refrain?'

<sup>g</sup> Or garrisons. <sup>h</sup> Or riches.
<sup>i</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds the Levites.
<sup>j</sup> Or rich. <sup>k</sup> Verses 2-34: cp. 1 Kgs. 22. 2-35.

17.1-20.37: The reign of Jehoshaphat. The only incident of Jehoshaphat's reign related at any length in Kgs. is the battle in which Ahab was killed, presented here in ch. 18. Jehoshaphat was one of the great kings of Judah, however, and the Chronicler greatly expands the account of him.

17.1-19.11: Organizing the righteous kingdom. The account of Jehoshaphat's alliance with Ahab (ch. 18) is placed between descriptions of Jehoshaphat's good administration of the kingdom. 1b-6: This is not in Kgs. 6: Yet according to 20.33 the hill-shrines were not removed. Compare 1 Kgs. 15.24. 7-9: The king's instruction of the people here is an added element. 10-19: Again this is an added element. The troops attributed to Jehoshaphat add up to 1,160,000 men. The numbers reflect the exaggerations usual in the Chronicler's writing. 18.1-34: The affairs of the Northern Kingdom are usually neglected by the Chronicler, but the dramatic narrative of Ahab's death is here included for the sake of Jehoshaphat's part in it. Apart from vv. 1-2, the material is mostly from 1 Kgs. 22.1-35. 1: See 2 Kgs. 8.18, 25-27. 2: The verse expands

6 'Attack,' they answered; 'God will deliver it into your hands.' Jehoshaphat asked, 'Is there no other prophet of the LORD here through whom we may 7 seek guidance?' 'There is one more', the king of Israel answered, 'through whom we may seek guidance of the LORD, but I hate the man, because he never prophesies any good for me; never anything but evil. His name is Micaiah son of Imla.' Jehoshaphat
8 exclaimed, 'My lord king, let no such word pass your lips!' So the king of Israel called one of his eunuchs and told him to fetch Micaiah son of Imla with all speed.

9 The king of Israel and Jehoshaphat king of Judah were seated on their thrones, clothed in their royal robes and in shining armour, at the entrance to the gate of Samaria, and all the prophets were prophesying before 10 them. One of them, Zedekiah son of Kenaanah, made himself horns of iron and said, 'This is the word of the LORD: "With horns like these you shall 11 gore the Aramaeans and make an end of them."' In the same vein all the prophets prophesied, 'Attack Ramoth-gilead and win the day; the LORD will 12 deliver it into your hands.' The messenger sent to fetch Micaiah told him that the prophets had with one voice given the king a favourable answer. 'And mind you agree with them', he 13 added. 'As the LORD lives,' said Micaiah, 'I will say only what my God tells me to say.'

14 When Micaiah came into the king's presence, the king said to him, 'Micaiah, shall I attack Ramoth-gilead or shall I refrain?' 'Attack and win the day,' he said, 'and it will fall into 15 your hands.' 'How often must I adjure you', said the king, 'to tell me nothing but the truth in the name of the LORD?'
16 Then Micaiah said, 'I saw all Israel scattered on the mountains, like sheep without a shepherd; and I heard the LORD say, "They have no master; let them go home in peace."' The king of 17 Israel said to Jehoshaphat, 'Did I not tell you that he never prophesies good 18 for me, nothing but evil?' Micaiah went on, 'Listen now to the word of the LORD: I saw the LORD seated on his throne, with all the host of heaven in attendance on his right and on his left. The LORD said, "Who will entice 19 Ahab to attack and fall on' Ramoth-gilead?" One said one thing and one said another; then a spirit came forward and stood before the LORD and said, "I will entice him." "How?" said the LORD. "I will go out", he said, 20 "and be a lying spirit in the mouth of all his prophets." "You shall entice him," said the LORD, "and you shall succeed; go and do it." You see, then,

21 how the LORD has put a lying spirit in the mouth of all these prophets of yours, because he has decreed disaster for you.' Then Zedekiah son of Kenaanah 22 came up to Micaiah and struck him in the face: 'And how did the spirit of the LORD pass from me to speak to you?' he said. Micaiah answered, 'That you
23 will find out on the day when you run into an inner room to hide yourself.' Then the king of Israel ordered Micaiah 24 to be arrested and committed to the custody of Amon the governor of the city and Joash the king's son.<sup>m</sup> 'Lock this fellow up', he said, 'and give him
25 prison diet of bread and water until I come home in safety.' Micaiah retorted, 'If you do return in safety, the LORD has not spoken by me.'<sup>n</sup>

26 So the king of Israel and Jehoshaphat king of Judah marched on Ramoth-gilead, and the king of Israel said to 27 Jehoshaphat, 'I will disguise myself to go into battle, but you shall wear your royal robes.' So he went into battle in disguise. Now the king of Aram had 28 commanded the captains of his chariots not to engage all and sundry but the king of Israel alone. When the captains saw Jehoshaphat, they thought 29 he was the king of Israel and wheeled to attack him. But Jehoshaphat cried out, and the LORD came to his help; and God drew them away from him.
30 When the captains saw that he was not the king of Israel, they broke off the attack on him. But one man drew his
31 sword and struck Jehoshaphat in the thigh, and he fell to the ground. When the king of Israel saw that he was not the king of Israel, they broke off the attack on him. But one man drew his 32 sword and struck Jehoshaphat in the thigh, and he fell to the ground. When the king of Israel saw that he was not the king of Israel, they broke off the attack on him. But one man drew his 33 sword and struck Jehoshaphat in the thigh, and he fell to the ground.

<sup>l</sup> Or at. <sup>m</sup> son: or deputy.
<sup>n</sup> Prob. rdg.: Heb. adds and he said, 'Listen, peoples, all together.'

1 Kgs.22.2. 31: The LORD's overt intervention is the Chronicler's addition; see 1 Kgs.22.33.

bow at random and hit the king of Israel where the breastplate joins the plates of the armour. So he said to his driver, 'Wheel round and take me out of the line; I am wounded.' When the day's fighting reached its height, the king of Israel was facing the Aramaeans, propped up in his chariot; he remained so till evening, and at sunset he died.

19 As Jehoshaphat king of Judah returned in safety to his home in Jerusalem, Jehu son of Hanani, the seer, went out to meet him and said, 'Do you take delight in helping the wicked and befriending the enemies of the LORD? The LORD will make you suffer for this. Yet there is some good in you, for you have swept away the sacred poles from the land and have made a practice of seeking guidance of God.'

4 Jehoshaphat had his residence in Jerusalem, but he went out again among his people from Beersheba to the hill-country of Ephraim and brought them back to the LORD the God of their fathers. He appointed judges throughout the land, one in each of the fortified cities of Judah, and said to them, 'Be careful what you do; you are there as judges, to please not man but the LORD, who is with you when you pass sentence. Let the dread of the LORD be upon you, then; take care what you do, for the LORD our God will not tolerate injustice, partiality, or bribery.'

8 In Jerusalem Jehoshaphat appointed some of the Levites and priests and some heads of families by paternal descent in Israel to administer the law of the LORD and to arbitrate in lawsuits among the inhabitants<sup>o</sup> of the city, and he gave them these instructions: 'You must always act in the fear of the LORD, faithfully and with singleness of mind. In every suit which comes before you from your kinsmen, in whatever city they live, whether cases of bloodshed or offences against the law or the commandments, against statutes or regulations, you shall warn them to commit no offence against the LORD; otherwise you and your kinsmen will suffer for it. If you act thus, you will be free of all offence. Your authority in all matters which concern the LORD is Amariah the chief priest, and in those which concern the king it is Zebediah son of Ishmael, the prince of the house of Judah; the Levites are your officers. Be strong and resolute, and may the LORD be on the side of the good!'

It happened some time afterwards that the Moabites, the Ammonites, and some of the Meunites made war on Jehoshaphat. News was brought to him that a great horde of them was attacking him from beyond the Dead Sea, from Edom, and was already at Hazazontamar, which is En-gedi. Jehoshaphat in his alarm resolved to seek guidance of the LORD and proclaimed a fast for all Judah. Judah gathered together to ask counsel of the LORD; from every city of the land they came to consult him. Jehoshaphat stood up in the assembly of Judah and Jerusalem in the house of the LORD, in front of the New Court, and said, 'O LORD God of our fathers, art not thou God in heaven? Thou rulest over all the kingdoms of the nations; in thy hand are strength and power, and there is none who can withstand thee. Didst not thou, O God our God, dispossess the inhabitants of this land in favour of thy people Israel, and give it for ever to the descendants of Abraham thy friend? So they lived in it and have built a sanctuary in it in honour of thy name and said, "Should evil come upon us, war or flood,<sup>p</sup> pestilence or famine, we will stand

<sup>o</sup> in . . . inhabitants: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.
<sup>p</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. judgement.

19.1-3: Jehoshaphat is reprimanded in this expansion by a prophet, Jehu, for collaborating with the Northern Kingdom, as was his father Asa; see 16.7-10 n. 5-7: This is an expansion by the Chronicler. On instruction to the judges, compare Deut.1.16-17. 8-11: The Chronicler adds that supreme courts were appointed in Jerusalem with highest authority for both religious and civil cases. 8: Israel here is the entire people, not just the Northern Kingdom.

20.1-37: Jehoshaphat's great victory. This full narrative is typical of the Chronicler's expansions. They are, as usual, the religious speech (vv. 5-12,20) made by the king or else a prophet (vv. 15-17), and are ascribed to successive stages of the action. 1: Meunites were an Arab tribe. The Heb. reads "Ammonites," but is corrected, as in other modern translations, before this house and before thee, for in this house is thy Name, and we will cry to thee in our distress and thou wilt hear and save." Thou didst not allow Israel, when they came out of Egypt, to enter the land of the Ammonites, the Moabites, and the people of the hill-country of Seir, so they turned aside and left them alone and did not destroy them. Now see how these people repay us: they are coming to drive us out of thy possession which thou didst give to us. Judge them, O God our God, for we have no strength to face this great horde which is invading our land; we know not what we ought to do; we lift our eyes to thee.'

13 So all Judah stood there before the LORD, with their dependants, their wives and their children. Then, in the midst of the assembly, the spirit of the LORD came upon Jahaziel son of Zechariah, son of Benaiah, son of Jeiel, son of Mattaniah, a Levite of the line of Asaph, and he said, 'Attend, all Judah, all inhabitants of Jerusalem, and King Jehoshaphat; this is the word of the LORD to you: "Have no fear; do not be dismayed by this great horde, for the battle is in God's hands, not yours. Go down to meet them tomorrow; they will come up by the Ascent of Ziz. You will find them at the end of the valley, east of the wilderness of Jeruel. It is not you who will fight this battle; stand firm and wait, and you will see the deliverance worked by the LORD: he is on your side, O Judah and Jerusalem. Do not fear or be dismayed; go out tomorrow to face them; for the LORD is on your side.'" ' Jehoshaphat bowed his face to the ground, and all Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem fell down before the LORD to make obeisance to him. Then the Levites of the lines of Kohath and Korah stood up and praised the LORD the God of Israel with a mighty shout.

20 So they rose early in the morning and went out to the wilderness of Tekoa; and, as they were starting, Jehoshaphat took his stand and said, 'Hear me, O Judah and inhabitants of Jerusalem: hold firmly to your faith in the LORD your God and you will be upheld; have faith in his prophets and you will prosper.' After consulting with the people, he appointed men to sing to the LORD and praise the splendour of his holiness<sup>q</sup> as they went before the armed troops, and they sang:

Give thanks to the LORD,
for his love endures for ever.

As soon as their loud shouts of praise were heard, the LORD deluded the Ammonites and Moabites and the men of the hill-country of Seir, who were invading Judah, and they were defeated. It turned out that the Ammonites and Moabites had taken up a position against the men of the hill-country of Seir, and set themselves to annihilate and destroy them; and when they had exterminated the men of Seir, they savagely attacked one another. So when Judah came to the watch-tower in the wilderness and looked towards the enemy horde, there they were all lying dead upon the ground; none had escaped. When Jehoshaphat and his men came to collect the booty, they found a large number of cattle, goods, clothing, and precious things, which they plundered until they could carry away no more. They spent three days collecting the booty, there was so much of it. On the fourth day they assembled in the Valley of Berakah,<sup>r</sup> the name that it bears to this day because they blessed the LORD there. Then all the men of Judah and Jerusalem, with Jehoshaphat at their head, returned home to the city in triumph; for the LORD had given them cause to triumph over their enemies. They entered Jerusalem with lutes, harps, and trumpets playing, and went into the house of the LORD. So the dread of God fell upon the rulers of every country, when they heard that

<sup>q</sup> Or singers in sacred vestments to praise the LORD.
<sup>r</sup> That is Valley of Blessing.

from 26.7. 10: Compare Deut.2.1-19. Seir is the area from which the Meunites came; here it does not mean Edom, as elsewhere it does. 17: See 13.13-20 n. 22, 28: Note the music before and after the battle. 23: Some internal dissension seems to have arisen. The Meunites are slain the LORD had fought against the enemies of Israel; and the realm of Jehoshaphat was at peace, God giving him security on all sides.

31<sup>8</sup> Thus Jehoshaphat reigned over Judah. He was thirty-five years old when he came to the throne, and he reigned in Jerusalem for twenty-five years; his mother was Azubah daughter of Shilhi. He followed in the footsteps of Asa his father and did not swerve from them; he did what was right in the eyes of the LORD. But the hill-shrines were allowed to remain, and the people did not set their hearts upon the God of their fathers. The other events of Jehoshaphat's reign, from first to last, are recorded in the history of Jehu son of Hanani, which is included in the annals of the kings of Israel.

35 Later Jehoshaphat king of Judah allied himself with Ahaziah king of Israel; he did wrong in joining with him to build ships for trade with Tarshish; these were built in Ezion-geber. But Eliezer son of Dodavahu of Mareshah denounced Jehoshaphat with this prophecy: 'Because you have joined with Ahaziah, the LORD will bring your work to nothing.' So the ships were wrecked and could not make the voyage to Tarshish.

21 JEHOSEPHAT RESTED WITH HIS FOREFATHERS and was buried with them in the city of David. He was succeeded by his son Joram, whose brothers were Azariah, Jehiel, Zechariah, Azariah, Michael, and Shephatiah, sons of Jehoshaphat. All of them were sons of Jehoshaphat king of Judah, and their father gave them many gifts, silver and gold and other costly things, as well as fortified cities in Judah; but the kingship he gave to Joram because he was the eldest.

When Joram was firmly established on his father's throne, he put to the sword all his brothers and also some of the princes of Israel. He was thirty-two years old when he came to the throne, and he reigned in Jerusalem for eight years. He followed the practices of the kings of Israel as the house of Ahab had done, for he had married Ahab's daughter; and he did what was wrong in the eyes of the LORD. But for the sake of the covenant which he had made with David, the LORD was unwilling to destroy the house of David, since he had promised to give him and his sons a flame, to burn for all time.

During his reign Edom revolted against Judah and set up its own king. Joram, with his commanders and all his chariots, advanced into Edom. He and his chariot-commanders set out by night, but they were surrounded by the Edomites and defeated.<sup>u</sup> So Edom has remained independent of Judah to this day. Libnah revolted against him at the same time, because he had forsaken the LORD the God of his fathers, and because he had built hill-shrines in the hill-country of Judah and had seduced the inhabitants of Jerusalem into idolatrous practices and corrupted Judah.

A letter reached Joram from Elijah the prophet, which ran thus: 'This is the word of the LORD the God of David your father: "You have not

<sup>s</sup> Verses 31-33: cp. 1 Kgs. 22. 41-43.

<sup>t</sup> Verses 5-10: cp. 2 Kgs. 8. 17-22.

<sup>u</sup> and defeated: prob. rdg.; Heb. and he defeated them.

by their erstwhile allies. 31-35: The passage is rewritten from 1 Kgs. 22.41-49, Israel here strangely replacing Judah there. 35-37: Here the motif is added that Jehoshaphat's alliance with Ahaziah was evil, and caused the ships to be wrecked. Eliezer is mentioned only here. Ezion-geber (v. 36) is identified with Elath on the Gulf of Aqabah, which gave access to the Red Sea. Tarshish is often identified with Spain (possibly correctly; see Jonah 1.3), but Spain is hardly possible here, since it is on the Mediterranean.

21.1-24.27: A period of failures. The Chronicler now deals with a succession of four reigns disastrous to Judah. At points he greatly amplifies his source to increase the wickedness of the kings (2 Kgs. 8.16-11.20), but also omits an abundance of material. 1-20: Joram's reign. 2-4: Joram's killing of his brothers is not otherwise attested; it is hard to know whether the material is historical, or whether the Chronicler has increased Joram's misdeeds, and thereby his consequent punishment. 10-11: The reasons given for Libnah's revolt are the Chronicler's own contribution. 12-20: The letter from Elijah and the ensuing defeats were added by the Chronicler. Apparently the figure of Elijah, magnified in later legend, was already a commanding one.

followed in the footsteps of Jehoshaphat your father and of Asa king of Judah, but have followed the kings of Israel and have seduced Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, as the house of Ahab did; and you have put to death your own brothers, sons of your father's house, men better than yourself. Because of all this, the LORD is about to strike a heavy blow at your people, your children, your wives, and all your possessions, and you yourself will suffer from a chronic disease of the bowels, until they prolapse and become severely ulcerated." Then the LORD aroused against Joram the anger of the Philistines and of the Arabs who live near the Cushites, and they invaded Judah and made their way right through it, carrying off all the property which they found in the king's palace, as well as his sons and wives; not a son was left to him except the youngest, Jehoahaz. It was after all this that the LORD struck down the king with an incurable disease of the bowels. It continued for some time, and towards the end of the second year the disease caused his bowels to prolapse, and the painful ulceration brought on his death. But his people kindled no fire in his honour as they had done for his fathers. He was thirty-two years old when he became king, and he reigned in Jerusalem for eight years. His passing went unsung, and he was buried in the city of David, but not in the burial-place of the kings.

22:<sup>v</sup> Then the inhabitants of Jerusalem made Ahaziah, his youngest son, king in his place, for the raiders who had joined the Arabs in the campaign had killed all the elder sons. So Ahaziah son of Joram became king of Judah.

2 He was forty-two years old when he came to the throne, and he reigned in Jerusalem for one year; his mother was Athaliah granddaughter of Omri.

3 He too followed the practices of the house of Ahab, for his mother was his counsellor in wickedness. He did what was wrong in the eyes of the LORD like the house of Ahab, for they had been his counsellors after his father's death, to his undoing. He followed their counsel also in the alliance he made with Jehoram son of Ahab king of Israel, to fight against Hazael king of Aram at Ramoth-gilead. But Jehoram was wounded by the Aramaeans, and returned to Jezreel to recover from the wounds which were inflicted on him at Ramoth in battle with Hazael king of Aram.

Because of Jehoram's illness Ahaziah son of Joram king of Judah went down to Jezreel to visit him. It was God's will that the visit of Ahaziah to Jehoram should be the occasion of his downfall. During the visit he went out with Jehoram to meet Jehu son of Nimshi, whom the LORD had anointed to bring the house of Ahab to an end. So it came about that Jehu, who was then at variance with the house of Ahab, found the officers of Judah and the kinsmen of Ahaziah who were his attendants, and killed them. Then he searched out Ahaziah himself, and his men captured him in Samaria, where he had gone into hiding. They brought him to Jehu and put him to death; they gave him burial, for they said, 'He was a son of Jehoshaphat who sought the guidance of the LORD with his whole heart.' Then the house of Ahaziah had no one strong enough to rule.

As soon as Athaliah mother of Ahaziah saw that her son was dead, she set out to extirpate the royal line of the house of Judah. But Jehosheba daughter of King Joram took Ahaziah's son Joash and stole him away from among the princes who were being murdered; she put him and his nurse in a bed-chamber. Thus Jehosheba, daughter of King Joram and wife of Jehoiada the priest, because she was Ahaziah's sister, hid Joash from Athaliah so that she did not put him to death. He remained concealed with them in the house of God for six years, while Athaliah ruled the country.

<sup>v</sup> Verses 1-6: cp. 2 Kgs. 8. 25-29.
<sup>w</sup> 22. 10-23. 21: cp. 2 Kgs. 11. 1-20.

22.1-12: Ahaziah. 2: He was twenty-two (2 Kgs.8.26), not forty-two, at his accession. 7: The comment about God's will is the Chronicler's addition. The account of Jehu's revolution (2 Kgs.9.1-10.31) is here greatly compressed, with much of the material in Kgs. omitted.

23 In the seventh year Jehoiada felt himself strong enough to make an agreement with Azariah son of Jeroham, Ishmael son of Jehohanan, Azariah son of Obed, Maaseiah son of Adaiah, and Elishaphat son of Zichri, all captains of units of a hundred.

2 They went all through Judah and gathered to Jerusalem the Levites from the cities of Judah and the heads of clans in Israel, and they came to Jerusalem. All the assembly made a compact with the king in the house of God, and Jehoiada said to them, 'Here is the king's son! He shall be king, as the LORD promised that the sons of David should be. This is what you must do: a third of you, priests and Levites, as you come on duty on the sabbath, are to be on guard at the threshold gates, another third are to be in the royal palace, and another third are to be at the Foundation Gate, while all the people will be in the courts of the house of the LORD. Let no one enter the house of the LORD except the priests and the attendant Levites; they may enter, for they are holy, but all the people shall continue to keep the LORD's charge. The Levites shall mount guard round the king, each with his weapons at the ready; anyone who tries to enter the house is to be put to death. They shall stay with the king wherever he goes.'

8 The Levites and all Judah carried out the orders of Jehoiada the priest to the letter. Each captain took his men, both those who came on duty on the sabbath and those who came off, for Jehoiada the priest had not released the outgoing divisions. And Jehoiada the priest handed out to the captains King David's spears, shields, and bucklers, which were in the house of God; and he posted all the people, each man carrying his weapon at the ready, from corner to corner of the house to north and south,<sup>z</sup> surrounding the king. Then they brought out the king's son, put the crown on his head, handed him the warrant and proclaimed him king, and Jehoiada and his sons anointed him; and a shout went up: 'Long live the king.' When Athaliah heard the noise of the people as they ran about cheering for the king, she came into the house of the LORD where the people were and found the king standing on the dais<sup>y</sup> at the entrance, amidst outbursts of song and fanfares of trumpets in his honour; all the populace were rejoicing and blowing trumpets, and singers with musical instruments were leading the celebrations. Athaliah rent her clothes and cried, 'Treason! Treason!' Jehoiada the priest gave orders to<sup>z</sup> the captains in command of the troops: 'Bring her outside the precincts and let anyone in attendance on her be put to the sword'; for the priest said, 'Do not kill her in the house of the LORD.' So they laid hands on her and took her to the royal palace and killed her there at the passage to the Horse Gate.

Then Jehoiada made a covenant between the LORD<sup>a</sup> and the whole people and the king, that they should be the LORD's people. And all the people went into the temple of Baal and pulled it down; they smashed its altars and images, and they slew Mattan the priest of Baal before the altars. Then Jehoiada committed the supervision of the house of the LORD to the charge of the priests and the Levites whom David had allocated to the house of the LORD, to offer whole-offerings to the LORD as prescribed in the law of Moses, with the singing and rejoicing as handed down from David. He stationed the door-keepers at the gates of the house of the LORD, to prevent anyone entering who was in any way unclean. Then he took the captains of units of a hundred, the nobles, and the governors of the people, and all the people of the land, and they escorted the king from the house of the LORD through the Upper Gate to the royal palace, and seated him on the royal throne. The whole people rejoiced and

<sup>x</sup> Prob. rdg.: Heb. adds of the altar and the house.

<sup>y</sup> Prob. rdg., cp. 2 Kgs. 11. 14; Heb. by his pillar.

<sup>z</sup> gave orders to: prob. rdg., cp. 2 Kgs. 11. 15; Heb. brought out.

<sup>a</sup> the LORD: prob. rdg., cp. 2 Kgs. 11. 17; Heb. him.

23.1-21: Athaliah. 1-3: The Chronicler added proper names as well as all references to the Levites. 18-19: Some revision of, and addition to, the source, 2 Kgs. 11.1-16, brings the account into line with the Chronicler's view of Levites, singers, door-keepers, and the law of Moses.

the city was tranquil. That is how Athaliah was put to the sword.

24<sup>1b</sup> Joash was seven years old when he became king, and he reigned in Jerusalem for forty years; his mother was Zibiah of Beersheba. He did what was right in the eyes of the LORD as long as Jehoiada the priest was alive. Jehoiada chose him two wives, and he had a family of sons and daughters.

Some time after this, Joash decided to repair the house of the LORD. So he assembled the priests and the Levites and said to them, 'Go through the cities of Judah and collect the annual tax from all the Israelites for the restoration of the house of your God, and do it quickly.' But the Levites did not act quickly. The king then called for Jehoiada the chief priest and said to him, 'Why have you not required the Levites to bring in from Judah and Jerusalem the tax imposed by Moses the servant of the LORD and by the assembly of Israel for the Tent of the Tokens?' For the wicked Athaliah and her adherents had broken into the house of God and had devoted all its holy things to the service of the Baalim. So the king ordered them to make a chest and to put it outside the gate of the house of the LORD; and proclamation was made throughout Judah and Jerusalem that the people should bring to the LORD the tax imposed on Israel in the wilderness by Moses the servant of God. And all the leaders and all the people gladly brought their taxes and cast them into the chest until it was full. Whenever the chest was brought to the king's officers by the Levites and they saw that it was well filled, the king's secretary and the chief priest's officer would come to empty it, after which it was carried back to its place. This they did daily, and they collected a great sum of money. The king and Jehoiada gave it to those responsible for carrying out the work in the house of the LORD, and they hired masons and carpenters to do the repairs, as well as craftsmen in iron and copper<sup>c</sup> to restore the house. So the workmen proceeded with their task and the new work progressed under their hands; they restored the house of God according to its original design and strengthened it. When they had finished, they brought what was left of the money to the king and to Jehoiada, and it was made into vessels for the house of the LORD, both for service and for sacrificing, saucers and other vessels of gold and silver. While Jehoiada lived, whole-offerings were offered in the house of the LORD continually.

Jehoiada, now old and weighed down with years, died at the age of a hundred and thirty and was buried with the kings in the city of David, because he had done good in Israel and served God and his house.

After the death of Jehoiada the leading men of Judah came and made obeisance to the king. He listened to them, and they forsook the house of the LORD the God of their fathers and worshipped sacred poles and idols. And Judah and Jerusalem suffered for this wickedness. But the LORD sent prophets to bring them back to himself, prophets who denounced them and were not heeded. Then the spirit of God took possession of Zechariah son of Jehoiada the priest, and he stood looking down on the people and said to them, 'This is the word of God: "Why do you disobey the commands of the LORD and court disaster? Because you have forsaken the LORD, he has forsaken you."' But they made common cause against him, and on orders from the king they stoned him to death in the court of the house of the LORD. King Joash did not remember the loyalty of Zechariah's father Jehoiada but killed his son, who said as he was dying, 'May the LORD see this and exact the penalty.'

At the turn of the year an Aramaean army advanced against Joash; they invaded Judah and Jerusalem and massacred all the officers, so that the 24.1-27: Joash. The source is 2 Kgs. ch. 12. 15-22: This is entirely from the Chronicler. As elsewhere, a good king turns bad toward the end of his reign and receives punishment; compare 11.17 n. 23-24: This revision of 2 Kgs.12.17-18 (which see) adds the motif of punishment.

army ceased to exist, and sent all their 24 spoil to the king of Damascus. Although the Aramaeans had invaded with a small force, the LORD delivered a very great army into their hands, because the people had forsaken the LORD the God of their fathers; and Joash suffered just punishment.
 25<sup>d</sup> When the Aramaeans had withdrawn, leaving the king severely wounded, his servants conspired against him to avenge the death of the son of Jehoiada the priest; and they killed him on his bed. Thus he died and was buried in the city of David, but not in the burial-place of the 26 kings. The conspirators were Zabab son of Shimeath an Ammonite woman and Jehozabad son of Shimrith a 27 Moabite woman. His children, the many oracles about him, and his reconstruction of the house of God are all on record in the story given in the annals of the kings. He was succeeded by his son Amaziah.

25<sup>1e</sup> AMAZIAH WAS TWENTY-FIVE YEARS OLD when he came to the throne, and he reigned in Jerusalem for twenty-nine years; his mother was Jehoaddan of
 2 Jerusalem. He did what was right in the eyes of the LORD, but not wholeheartedly. When the royal power was firmly in his grasp, he put to death those of his servants who had murdered the 3 king his father; but he spared their children, in obedience to the LORD's command written in the law of Moses: 'Fathers shall not die for their children,
 4 nor children for their fathers; a man shall die only for his own sin.'
 5 Then Amaziah assembled the men of Judah and drew them up by families, all Judah and Benjamin as well, under officers over units of a thousand and a hundred. He mustered those of twenty years old and upwards and found their number to be three hundred thousand, all picked troops ready for service, able to handle spear and shield. He also 6 hired a hundred thousand seasoned troops from Israel for a hundred talents of silver. But a man of God came to 7 him and said, 'My lord king, do not let the Israelite army march with you; the LORD is not with Israel—all these 8 Ephraimites! For, if you make these people<sup>f</sup> your allies in the war, God will overthrow you in battle; he has power to help or to overthrow.' Then Amaziah 9 said to the man of God, 'What am I to do about the hundred talents which I have spent on the Israelite army?' The man of God answered, 'It is in the 10 LORD's power to give you much more than that.' So Amaziah detached the troops which had come to him from Ephraim and sent them home; that infuriated them against Judah and they went home in a rage.

Then Amaziah took heart and led 11 his men to the Valley of Salt and there killed ten thousand men of Seir. The 12 men of Judah captured another ten thousand men alive, brought them to the top of a cliff<sup>g</sup> and hurled them 13 over so that they were all dashed to pieces. Meanwhile the troops which 14 Amaziah had sent home without allowing them to take part in the battle raided the cities of Judah from Samaria to Beth-horon, massacred three thousand people in them and carried off quantities of booty.

After Amaziah had returned from the 14 defeat of the Edomites, he brought the gods of the people of Seir and, setting them up as his own gods, worshipped them and burnt sacrifices to them. The 15

<sup>d</sup> Verses 25-27: cp. 2 Kgs. 12, 20, 21.

<sup>e</sup> Verses 1-4: cp. 2 Kgs. 14, 1-6.

<sup>f</sup> these people: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.

<sup>g</sup> a cliff: or Sela.

26: That the two assassins were sons of an Ammonite woman and a Moabite woman is the Chronicler's own comment. For him, evil influence is likely to come from foreigners.

25.1-28.27: Four kings assessed concerning their faithfulness. The Chronicler continues his recasting of the source, 2 Kgs. 14.1-16.21, sometimes drastically adding incidents to show that only faithfulness to the LORD leads to welfare and peace. The first two kings, Amaziah and Uzziah, are faithful at first and then unfaithful; the third, Jotham, is faithful, the fourth, Ahaz, completely unfaithful.

25.1-28: Amaziah. The source is 2 Kgs. 14.1-20. The brief report of Amaziah's Edomite campaign in the source is here expanded by the Chronicler in four respects: the king's military force is listed (vv. 5-6); a prophet dissuades him from employing northern mercenaries (vv. 7-10); the military destruction is increased (vv. 11-13); and Amaziah's veneration of the LORD was angry with Amaziah for this and sent a prophet who said to him, 'Why have you resorted to gods who could not save their own people from you?' But while he was speaking, the king said to him, 'Have we appointed you counsellor to the king? Stop! Why risk your life?' The prophet did stop, but first he said, 'I know that God has determined to destroy you because you have done this and have not listened to my counsel.'

<sup>17</sup><sup>h</sup> Then Amaziah king of Judah, after consultation, sent messengers to Jehoash son of Jehoahaz, son of Jehu, king of Israel, to propose a meeting. <sup>18</sup> But Jehoash king of Israel sent this answer to Amaziah king of Judah: 'A thistle in Lebanon sent to a cedar in Lebanon to say, "Give your daughter in marriage to my son." But a wild beast in Lebanon, passing by, trampled on the thistle. You have defeated Edom, you say, but it has gone to your head. Enjoy your glory at home and stay there. Why should you involve yourself in disaster and bring yourself to the ground, and Judah with you?'

<sup>20</sup> But Amaziah would not listen; and this was God's doing in order to give Judah into the power of Jehoash, because they had resorted to the gods of Edom. So Jehoash king of Israel marched out, and he and Amaziah king of Judah met one another at Bethshemesh in Judah. The men of Judah were routed by Israel and fled to their homes. But Jehoash king of Israel captured Amaziah king of Judah, son of Joash, son of Jehoahaz, at Bethshemesh, and brought him to Jerusalem. There he broke down the city wall from the Gate of Ephraim to the Corner Gate, a distance of four hundred cubits; he also took<sup>t</sup> all the gold and silver and all the vessels found in the house of God, in the care of Obed-edom, and the treasures of the royal palace, as well as hostages, and returned to Samaria.

<sup>25</sup><sup>f</sup> Amaziah son of Joash, king of Judah, outlived Jehoash son of Jehoahaz, king of Israel, by fifteen years. The other <sup>26</sup> events of Amaziah's reign, from first to last, are recorded in the annals of the kings of Judah and Israel. From <sup>27</sup> the time when he turned away from the LORD, there was conspiracy against him in Jerusalem and he fled to Lachish; but they sent after him to Lachish and put him to death there. Then his body was conveyed on <sup>28</sup> horseback to Jerusalem, and there he was buried with his forefathers in the city of David.

All the people of Judah took Uzziah, <sup>26</sup> now sixteen years old, and made him king in succession to his father Amaziah. It was he who built Eloth and re- <sup>2</sup> stored it to Judah after the king rested with his forefathers.

Uzziah was sixteen years old when he <sup>3</sup><sup>k</sup> came to the throne, and he reigned in Jerusalem for fifty-two years; his mother was Jecoliah of Jerusalem. He <sup>4</sup> did what was right in the eyes of the LORD, as Amaziah his father had done. He set himself to seek the guidance of <sup>5</sup> God in the days of Zechariah, who instructed him in the fear of God; as long as he sought guidance of the LORD, God caused him to prosper.

He took the field against the Philistines and broke down the walls of Gath, Jabneh, and Ashdod; and he built cities in the territory of Ashdod and among the Philistines. God aided him <sup>7</sup> against them, against the Arabs who lived in Gur-baal, and against the Meunites. The Ammonites brought <sup>8</sup> gifts to Uzziah and his fame spread to the borders of Egypt, for he had become very powerful. Besides, he built <sup>9</sup> towers in Jerusalem at the Corner Gate, at the Valley Gate, and at the escarpment, and fortified them. He <sup>10</sup> built other towers in the wilderness and dug many cisterns, for he had large

h Verses 17-24: cp. 2 Kgs. 14, 8-14.

i he also took; prob. rdg., cp. 2 Kgs. 14, 14; Heb. om.

j 25, 25-26, 2: cp. 2 Kgs. 14, 17-22.

k Verses 3, 4: cp. 2 Kgs. 15, 2, 3.

captured Edomite idols becomes the occasion of divine disfavor (vv. 14-16). <sup>20</sup>: The Chronicler adds the comment that Amaziah's rashness was God's punishment for the apostasy referred to in vv. 14-16.

<sup>26.1-23</sup>: Uzziah. In 2 Kgs. 15.1-34 he is usually called Azariah; one name may be personal, the other a throne name. <sup>1</sup>: Eloth: Elath. <sup>6-15</sup>: The Chronicler expands here, following sources other than 2 Kgs. Those sources gave an accurate view, however, of Uzziah's historical im-

herds of cattle both in the Shephelah and in the plain. He also had farmers and vine-dressers in the hill-country and in the fertile lands, for he loved the soil.

11 Uzziah had an army of soldiers trained and ready for service, grouped according to the census made by Jeiel the adjutant-general and Maaseiah the clerk under the direction of Hananiah, 12 one of the king's commanders. The total number of heads of families which supplied seasoned warriors was two 13 thousand six hundred. Under their command was an army of three hundred and seven thousand five hundred, a powerful fighting force to aid 14 the king against his enemies. Uzziah prepared for the whole army shields, 15 and<sup>l</sup> sling-stones. In Jerusalem he had machines designed by engineers for use upon towers and bastions, made to discharge arrows and large stones. His fame spread far and wide, for he was so wonderfully gifted that he became very powerful.

16 But when he grew powerful his pride led to his own undoing:<sup>m</sup> he offended against the LORD his God by entering the temple of the LORD to burn incense 17 on the altar of incense. Azariah the priest and eighty others of the LORD's priests, courageous men, went in after 18 King Uzziah, confronted him and said, 'It is not for you, Uzziah, to burn incense to the LORD, but for the Aaronite priests who have been consecrated for that office. Leave the sanctuary; for you have offended, and that will certainly bring you no honour from 19 the LORD God.' The king, who had a censer in his hand ready to burn incense, was indignant; and because of his indignation at the priests, leprosy broke out on his forehead in the presence of the priests, there in the house of the LORD, beside the altar of 20 incense. When Azariah the chief priest and the other priests looked towards him, they saw that he had leprosy on his forehead and they hurried him out of the temple, and indeed he himself hastened to leave, because the LORD had struck him with the disease. And 21<sup>n</sup> King Uzziah remained a leper till the day of his death; he lived in his own house as a leper, relieved of all duties and excluded from the house of the LORD, while his son Jotham was controller of the household and regent. The other events of Uzziah's reign, 22 from first to last, are recorded by the prophet Isaiah son of Amoz. So he 23 rested with his forefathers and was buried in a burial-ground, but not that of the kings; for they said, 'He is a leper'; and he was succeeded by his son Jotham.

Jotham was twenty-five years old 271<sup>o</sup> when he came to the throne, and he reigned in Jerusalem for sixteen years; his mother was Jerushah daughter of Zadok. He did what was right in the 2 eyes of the LORD, as his father Uzziah had done, but unlike him he did not enter the temple of the LORD; the people, however, continued their corrupt practices. He constructed the 3 upper gate of the house of the LORD and built extensively on the wall at Ophel. He built cities in the hill- 4 country of Judah, and forts and towers on the wooded hills. He made war on 5 the king of the Ammonites and defeated him; and that year the Ammonites gave him a hundred talents of silver, ten thousand kor of wheat and ten thousand of barley. They paid him the same tribute in the second and third years. Jotham became very pow- 6 erful because he maintained a steady course of obedience to the LORD his God. The other events of Jotham's 7 reign, all that he did in war and in peace, are recorded in the annals of

<sup>l</sup> Prob. rdt.; Heb. adds for.

<sup>m</sup> his pride . . . undoing: or he became so proud that he acted corruptly.

<sup>n</sup> Verses 21-23: cp. 2 Kgs. 15. 5-7.

<sup>o</sup> Verses 1-3: cp. 2 Kgs. 15. 33-35.

portance. 12-13: This is one of the few instances in which the numbers given by the Chronicler are not artificial and schematic, for the Chronicler had older, written sources at his disposal. 16-23: The source simply reported Uzziah's leprosy; the Chronicler here explains it as a result of a cultic offense on Uzziah's part. 22: Isaiah: 2 Kgs. 15.6 speaks rather of the "annals of the kings of Judah." From first to last exaggerates the attention to Uzziah found in Isaiah.

27.1-28.27: Jotham and Ahaz. Jotham receives only favorable treatment (27.1-9); Ahaz (28.1-27) only unfavorable. 2: The king is portrayed as faithful; the infidelity is on the part

8 the kings of Israel and Judah. He was twenty-five years old when he came to the throne, and he reigned in 9 Jerusalem for sixteen years. He rested with his forefathers and was buried in the city of David; and he was succeeded by his son Ahaz.

28<sup>12</sup> AHAZ WAS TWENTY YEARS OLD WHEN he came to the throne, and he reigned in Jerusalem for sixteen years. He did not do what was right in the eyes of the 2 LORD like his forefather David, but followed in the footsteps of the kings of Israel, and cast metal images for the 3 Baalim. He also burnt sacrifices in the Valley of Ben-hinnom; he even burnt his sons in the fire according to the abominable practice of the nations whom the LORD had dispossessed in 4 favour of the Israelites. He slaughtered and burnt sacrifices at the hill-shrines and on the hill-tops and under every spreading tree.

5 The LORD his God let him suffer at the hands of the king of Aram, and the Aramaeans defeated him, took many captives and brought them to Damascus; he was also made to suffer at the hands of the king of Israel, who inflicted 6 a severe defeat on him. This was Pekah son of Remaliah, who killed in one day a hundred and twenty thousand men of Judah, seasoned troops, because they had forsaken the LORD the God of 7 their fathers. And Zichri, an Ephraimite hero, killed Maaseiah the king's son<sup>q</sup> and Azrikam the comptroller of the household and Elkanah the king's 8 chief minister. The Israelites took captive from their kinsmen two hundred thousand women and children; they also took a large amount of booty and brought it to Samaria.

9 A prophet of the LORD was there, Oded by name; he went out to meet the army as it returned to Samaria and said to them, 'It is because the LORD the God of your fathers is angry with Judah that he has given them into your power; and you have massacred them in a rage that has towered up to heaven. 10 Now you propose to force the people of Judah and Jerusalem, male and female, into slavery. Are not you also guilty men before the LORD your God? Now, listen to me. Send back those 11 you have taken captive from your kinsmen, for the anger of the LORD is roused against you.' Next, some 12 Ephraimite chiefs, Azariah son of Jehohanan, Berechiah son of Meshillemoth, Hezekiah<sup>r</sup> son of Shallum, and Amasa son of Hadlai, met those who were returning from the war and said 13 to them, 'You must not bring these captives into our country; what you are proposing would make us guilty before the LORD and add to our sins and transgressions. We are guilty enough already, and there is fierce anger against Israel.' So the armed men left 14 the captives and the spoil with the officers and the assembled people. The captives were put in charge of 15 men nominated for this duty, who found clothes from the spoil for all who were naked. They clothed them and shod them, gave them food and drink, and anointed them; those who were tottering from exhaustion they conveyed on the backs of asses, and so brought them to their kinsmen in Jericho, in the Vale of Palm Trees. Then they themselves returned to Samaria.

At that time King Ahaz sent to the 16 king of Assyria for help. The Edomites 17 had invaded again and defeated Judah and taken away prisoners; and the 18 Philistines had raided the cities of the Shephelah and of the Negeb of Judah and had captured Beth-shemesh, Aijalon, and Gederoth, as well as Socoth, Timnah, and Gimzo with their villages, and occupied them. The LORD had 19 reduced Judah to submission because of Ahaz king of Judah; for his actions in Judah had been unbridled and he had been grossly unfaithful to the LORD. 20 Then Tiglath-pileser king of Assyria marched against him and, so far from assisting him, pressed him hard. Ahaz 21 stripped the house of the LORD, the king's palace and the houses of his

<sup>p</sup> Verses 1-4: cp. 2 Kgs. 16. 2-4.

<sup>q</sup> son; or deputy.

<sup>r</sup> Or Jehizkiah.

of the people. This latter is added by the Chronicler. 28.6-15: This episode is the Chronicler's own contribution. 16-21: The Chronicler has eliminated the positive assistance the Assyrian king rendered Ahaz; compare 2 Kgs. 16. 5-9. He gives instead the viewpoint found in Isa. 7.1-17.

officers, and gave the plunder to the king of Assyria; but all to no purpose.

- 22 This King Ahaz, when hard pressed, became more and more unfaithful to the LORD; he sacrificed to the gods of Damascus who had defeated him and said, 'The gods of the kings of Aram helped them; I will sacrifice to them so that they may help me.' But in fact they caused his downfall and that of all 24 Israel. Then Ahaz gathered together the vessels of the house of God and broke them up, and shut the doors of the house of the LORD; he made himself 25 altars at every corner in Jerusalem, and at every single city of Judah he made hill-shrines to burn sacrifices to other gods and provoked the anger of the LORD the God of his fathers.
- 26<sup>s</sup> The other acts and all the events of his reign, from first to last, are recorded in the annals of the kings of Judah and 27 Israel. So Ahaz rested with his forefathers and was buried in the city of Jerusalem, but was not given burial with the kings of Judah. He was succeeded by his son Hezekiah.

The kings of Judah from Hezekiah to the exile

- 29<sup>t</sup> HEZEKIAH WAS TWENTY-FIVE YEARS OLD when he came to the throne, and he reigned in Jerusalem for twenty-nine years; his mother was Abijah daughter 2 of Zechariah. He did what was right in the eyes of the LORD, as David his forefather had done.
- 3 In the first year of his reign, in the first month, he opened the gates of the house of the LORD and repaired them.
- 4 He brought in the priests and the Levites and gathered them together in 5 the square on the east side, and said to them, 'Levites, listen to me. Hallow yourselves now, hallow the house of the LORD the God of your fathers, and remove the pollution from the sanctuary. For our forefathers were unfaithful and did what was wrong in the eyes of the LORD our God: they forsook him, they would have nothing to do with his dwelling-place, they turned their backs on it. They shut the doors 7 of the porch and extinguished the lamps, they ceased to burn incense and offer whole-offerings in the sanctuary to the God of Israel. Therefore the 8 anger of the LORD fell upon Judah and Jerusalem and he made them repugnant, an object of horror and derision, as you see for yourselves. Hence it is 9 that our fathers have fallen by the sword, our sons and daughters and our wives are in captivity. Now I intend 10 that we should pledge ourselves to the LORD the God of Israel, in order that his anger may be averted from us. So, 11 my sons, let no time be lost; for the LORD has chosen you to serve him and to minister to him, to be his ministers and to burn sacrifices.'

Then the Levites set to work— 12 Mahath son of Amasai and Joel son of Azariah of the family of Kohath; of the family of Merari, Kish son of Abdi and Azariah son of Jehalelel; of the family of Gershon, Joah son of Zimmah and Eden son of Joah; of the 13 family of Elizaphan, Shimri and Jeiel; of the family of Asaph, Zechariah and Mattaniah; of the family of Heman, 14 Jehiel and Shimei; and of the family of Jeduthun, Shemaiah and Uzziel. They 15 assembled their kinsmen and hallowed themselves, and then went in, as the king had instructed them at the LORD's command, to purify the house of the LORD. The priests went inside to purify 16 the house of the LORD; they removed all the pollution which they found in

<sup>s</sup> Verses 26, 27: cp. 2 Kgs. 16, 19, 20.
<sup>t</sup> Verses 1, 2: cp. 2 Kgs. 18, 1-3.

29.1-32.33: The reign of Hezekiah. Hezekiah is portrayed in Kgs. as one of the most faithful kings; the Chronicler greatly elaborates the account of his reign, with chs. 29-31 entirely his addition. Ch. 32, on the other hand, is an abbreviated version of 2 Kgs. 18.13-20.21. In the Chronicler's account, Hezekiah gave more attention to the Temple and its service than any king since Solomon; see 30.26.

29.1-36: Restoration of the Temple service. After the apostasy of Ahaz (28.24), Hezekiah's first act was to restore the proper Temple service. The Chronicler's special interest in the Levites and singers reappears (vv. 12-14, 25-26, 34). After sixteen days of renovating the Temple (vv. 3-19), the renewal of service consisted of sacrifices by the king and leaders (vv. 20-30) and then by all the assembled people (vv. 31-36).

the temple into the court of the house of the LORD, and the Levites took it from them and carried it outside to the gorge of the Kidron. They began the rites on the first day of the first month, and on the eighth day they reached the porch; then for eight days they consecrated the house of the LORD, and on the sixteenth day of the first month they finished. Then they went into the palace and said to King Hezekiah, 'We have purified the whole of the house of the LORD, the altar of whole-offering with all its vessels, and the table for the Bread of the Presence arranged in rows with all its vessels; and we have put in order and consecrated all the vessels which King Ahaz cast aside during his reign, when he was unfaithful. They are now in place before the altar of the LORD.'

Then King Hezekiah rose early, assembled the officers of the city and went up to the house of the LORD. They brought seven bulls, seven rams, and seven lambs for the whole-offering,<sup>u</sup> and seven he-goats as a sin-offering for the kingdom, for the sanctuary, and for Judah; these he commanded the priests of Aaron's line to offer on the altar of the LORD. So the bulls were slaughtered, and the priests took their blood and flung it against the altar; the rams were slaughtered, and their blood was flung against the altar; the lambs were slaughtered, and their blood was flung against the altar. Then the he-goats for the sin-offering were brought before the king and the assembly, who laid their hands on them; and the priests slaughtered them and used their blood as a sin-offering on the altar to make expiation for all Israel. For the king had commanded that the whole-offering and the sin-offering should be made for all Israel.

He posted the Levites in the house of the LORD with cymbals, lutes, and harps, according to the rule prescribed by David, by Gad the king's seer and Nathan the prophet; for this rule had come from the LORD through his prophets. The Levites stood ready with the instruments of David, and the priests with the trumpets. Hezekiah gave the order that the whole-offering should be offered on the altar. At the moment when the whole-offering began, the song to the LORD began too, with the trumpets, led by the instruments of David king of Israel. The whole assembly prostrated themselves, the singers sang and the trumpeters sounded; all this continued until the whole-offering was complete. When the offering was complete, the king and all his company bowed down and prostrated themselves. And King Hezekiah and his officers commanded the Levites to praise the LORD in the words of David and of Asaph the seer. So they praised him most joyfully and bowed down and prostrated themselves.

Then Hezekiah said, 'You have now given to the LORD with open hands; approach with your sacrifices and thank-offerings for the house of the LORD.' So the assembly brought sacrifices and thank-offerings; and every man of willing spirit brought whole-offerings. The number of whole-offerings which the assembly brought was seventy bulls, a hundred rams, and two hundred lambs; all these made a whole-offering to the LORD. And the consecrated offerings were six hundred bulls and three thousand sheep. But the priests were too few and could not flay all the whole-offerings; so their colleagues the Levites helped them until the work was completed and all the priests had hallowed themselves—for the Levites had been more scrupulous than the priests in hallowing themselves. There were indeed whole-offerings in abundance, besides the fat of the shared-offerings and the drink-offerings for the whole-offerings. In this way the service of the house of the LORD was restored; and Hezekiah and all the people rejoiced over what God had done for the people and because it had come about so suddenly.

Then Hezekiah sent word to all Israel and Judah, and also wrote letters to

<sup>u</sup> for the whole-offering: prob. rdg.: Heb. om.

30.1-27: Hezekiah's great Passover in Jerusalem. The Chronicler did not relate the fall of the Northern Kingdom (compare 2 Kgs.18.9-12); this chapter reflects Hezekiah's effort to unite the divided kingdoms into a single one centered in the Davidic monarchy and the Jerusalem

Ephraim and Manasseh, inviting them to come to the house of the LORD in Jerusalem to keep the Passover of the LORD the God of Israel. The king and his officers and all the assembly in Jerusalem had agreed to keep the Passover in the second month, but they had not been able to keep it at that time, because not enough priests had hallowed themselves and the people had not assembled in Jerusalem. The proposal was acceptable to the king and the whole assembly. So they resolved to make a proclamation throughout all Israel, from Beersheba to Dan, that the people should come to Jerusalem to keep the Passover of the LORD the God of Israel. Never before had so many kept it according to the prescribed form. Couriers went throughout all Israel and Judah with letters from the king and his officers, proclaiming the royal command: 'Turn back, men of Israel, to the LORD the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Israel, so that he may turn back to those of you who escaped capture by the kings of Assyria. Do not be like your forefathers and your kinsmen, who were unfaithful to the LORD the God of their fathers, so that he made them an object of horror, as you yourselves saw. Do not be stubborn as your forefathers were; submit yourselves to the LORD and enter his sanctuary which he has sanctified for ever, and worship the LORD your God, so that his anger may be averted from you. For when you turn back to the LORD, your kinsmen and your children will win compassion from their captors and return to this land. The LORD your God is gracious and compassionate, and he will not turn away from you if you turn back to him.'

So the couriers passed from city to city through the land of Ephraim and Manasseh and as far as Zebulun, but they were treated with scorn and ridicule. However, a few men of Asher, Manasseh, and Zebulun submitted and came to Jerusalem. Further, the hand of God moved the people in Judah with one accord to carry out what the king and his officers had ordered at the LORD's command.

Many people, a very great assembly, came together in Jerusalem to keep the pilgrim-feast of Unleavened Bread in the second month. They began by removing the altars in Jerusalem; they removed the altars for burning sacrifices and threw them into the gorge of the Kidron. They killed the passover lamb on the fourteenth day of the second month; and the priests and the Levites were bitterly ashamed. They hallowed themselves and brought whole-offerings to the house of the LORD. They took their accustomed places, according to the direction laid down for them in the law of Moses the man of God; the priests flung against the altar the blood which they received from the Levites. But many in the assembly had not hallowed themselves; therefore the Levites had to kill the passover lamb for every one who was unclean, in order to hallow him to the LORD. For a majority of the people, many from Ephraim, Manasseh, Issachar, and Zebulun, had not kept themselves ritually clean, and therefore kept the Passover irregularly. But Hezekiah prayed for them, saying, 'May the good LORD grant pardon to every one who makes a practice of seeking guidance of God, the LORD the God of his fathers, even if he has not observed the rules for the purification of the sanctuary.' The LORD heard Hezekiah and healed the people. And the Israelites who were present in Jerusalem kept the feast of Unleavened Bread for seven days with great rejoicing, and the Levites and the priests praised the LORD every day with unrestrained fervour.<sup>v</sup> Hezekiah spoke encouragingly to all the Levites who had shown true understanding in the service of the LORD. So they spent the seven days of the festival sacrificing

<sup>v</sup> with unrestrained fervour: prob. rdg.; Heb. with powerful instruments.

Temple; see his appeal in vv. 6-9. None of this material is in 2 Kgs. 2: A Passover in the second month: compare Num.9.1-14. The festival of Unleavened Bread (v. 13) was not normally held in the second month. 14: In the first month (ch. 29) the Temple was purified; now the city is cleansed. 15-20: Only the daytime Passover rituals are reported; the nocturnal meal (see Exod.12.1-14) is not relevant to the Chronicler's purpose.

shared-offerings and making confession to<sup>w</sup> the LORD the God of their fathers.

- 23 Then the whole assembly agreed to keep the feast for another seven days; so they kept it for another seven days 24 with general rejoicing. For Hezekiah king of Judah set aside for the assembly a thousand bulls and seven thousand sheep, and his officers set aside for the assembly a thousand bulls and ten thousand sheep; and priests hallowed 25 themselves in great numbers. So the whole assembly of Judah, including the priests and the Levites, rejoiced, together with all the assembly which came out of Israel, and the resident aliens from Israel and those who lived in 26 Judah. There was great rejoicing in Jerusalem, the like of which had not been known there since the days of Solomon son of David king of Israel.
27 Then the priests and the Levites stood to bless the people: the LORD listened to their cry, and their prayer came to God's holy dwelling-place in heaven.

- 31 When this was over, all the Israelites present went out to the cities of Judah and smashed the sacred pillars, hacked down the sacred poles and broke up the hill-shrines and the altars throughout Judah and Benjamin, Ephraim and Manasseh, until they had made an end of them. That done, the Israelites returned, each to his own patrimony in his own city.

- 2 Then Hezekiah installed the priests and the Levites in office, division by division, allotting to each priest or Levite his own particular duty, for whole-offerings or shared-offerings, to give thanks or to sing praise, or to serve in the gates of the several quarters in the LORD's house.

- 3 The king provided from his own resources, as the share due from him, the whole-offerings for both morning and evening, and for sabbaths, new moons, and appointed seasons, as prescribed in the law of the LORD. He 4 ordered the people living in Jerusalem to provide the share due from the priests and the Levites, so that they might devote themselves entirely to the law of the LORD. As soon as the king's 5 order was issued to the Israelites, they gave generously from the firstfruits of their corn and new wine, oil and honey, all the produce of their land; they brought a full tithe of everything. The 6 Israelites and the Judaeans living in the cities of Judah also brought a tithe of cattle and sheep, and a tithe of all produce as offerings dedicated to the LORD their God, and they stacked the produce in heaps. They began to 7 deposit the heaps in the third month and completed them in the seventh. When Hezekiah and his officers came 8 and saw the heaps, they blessed the LORD and his people Israel. Hezekiah 9 asked the priests and the Levites about these heaps, and Azariah the chief 10 priest, who was of the line of Zadok, answered, 'From the time when the people began to bring their contribution into the house of the LORD, they have had enough to eat, enough and to spare; indeed, the LORD has so greatly blessed them that they have this great store left over.'

Then Hezekiah ordered store-rooms
11 to be prepared in the house of the LORD, and this was done; and the people
12 honestly brought in their contributions, the tithe, and their dedicated gifts. The overseer in charge of them was Conaniah the Levite, with Shimei his brother as his deputy; Jehiel, Azaziah, 13 Nahath, Asahel, Jerimoth, Jozabad, Eliel, Ismachiah, Mahath, and Benaiah were appointed by King Hezekiah and Azariah, the chief overseer of the house of God, to assist Conaniah and Shimei his brother. And Kore son of Imnah 14 the Levite, keeper of the East Gate, was in charge of the freewill offerings to God, to apportion the contributions made to the LORD and the most sacred offerings. Eden, Miniamin, Jeshua, 15

<sup>w</sup> making confession to: or confessing.

31.1–21: The support of the Temple service. Hezekiah's first act had prepared the Temple (ch. 29) and his second, the city as the center for all Israel (ch. 30); here his third act prepares the land for the support of the proper service of the LORD. The land is first cleansed of offensive religious objects (v. 1), then its abundant produce is amassed for support of the Temple (vv. 2–10), and finally the king reorganizes the Temple personnel for a just distribution of that produce (vv. 11–19).

Shemaiah, Amariah, and Shecaniah in the priestly cities assisted him in the fair distribution of portions to their kinsmen, young and old<sup>x</sup> alike, by divisions. Irrespective of their registration, shares were distributed to all males three years of age and upwards who entered the house of the LORD to take their daily part in the service, according to their divisions, as their office demanded. The priests were registered by families, the Levites from twenty years of age and upwards by their offices in their divisions. They were registered with all their dependants, their wives, their sons, and their daughters, the whole company of them, because in virtue of their permanent standing they had to keep themselves duly hallowed. As for the priests of Aaron's line in the common lands attached to their cities, in every city men were nominated to distribute portions to every male among the priests and to every one who was registered with the Levites.

Such was the action taken by Hezekiah throughout Judah; he did what was good and right and loyal in the sight of the LORD his God. Whatever he undertook in the service of the house of God and in obedience to the law and the commandment to seek guidance of his God, he did with all his heart, and he prospered.

32:1<sup>y</sup> After these events and this example of loyal conduct, Sennacherib king of Assyria invaded Judah and encamped against the fortified cities, believing that he could attach them to himself. 2 When Hezekiah saw that he had come and was determined to attack Jerusalem, he consulted his civil and military officers about blocking up the springs outside the city; and they encouraged him. They gathered together a large number of people and blocked up all the springs and the stream which flowed through the land. 'Why,' they said, 'should Assyrian kings come here and find plenty of water?' Then the king acted boldly; he made good every breach in the city wall and erected towers on it; he built another wall outside it and strengthened the Millo of the city of David; he also collected a great quantity of weapons and shields. He appointed military commanders over the people and assembled them in the square by the city gate and spoke encouragingly to them in these words: 'Be strong; be brave. Do not let the king of Assyria or the rabble he has brought with him strike terror or panic into your hearts. We have more on our side than he has. He has human strength; but we have the LORD our God to help us and to fight our battles.' So spoke Hezekiah king of Judah, and the people were buoyed up by his words.

After this, Sennacherib king of Assyria, while he and his high command were at Lachish, sent envoys to Jerusalem to deliver this message to Hezekiah king of Judah and to all the Judaeans in Jerusalem: 'Sennacherib king of Assyria says, "What gives you confidence to stay in Jerusalem under siege? Hezekiah is misleading you into risking death by famine or thirst where you are, when he tells you that the LORD your God will save you from the grip of the Assyrian king. Was it not Hezekiah himself who suppressed the LORD's hill-shrines and altars and told the people of Judah and Jerusalem that they must prostrate themselves before one altar only and burn sacrifices there? You know very well what I and my forefathers have done to all the peoples of the lands. Were the gods of these nations able to save their lands from me? Not one of the gods of these nations, which my forefathers exterminated, was able to save his people from me. Much less will your god save you! How, then, can Hezekiah deceive you or mislead you like this? How can you believe him, for no god of any nation or kingdom has been able to save his people from me or my forefathers? Much less will your gods save you!"'

<sup>x</sup> Or high and low.

<sup>y</sup> Verses 1-19: cp. 2 Kgs. 18. 13-37; Isa. 36. 1-22.

32.1-33: Sennacherib's assault and Hezekiah's response. The Chronicler shortens the account in 2 Kgs. 18.13-20.19 but also adds comments of his own, e.g. vv. 3-8, 22-23, and 27-31.

16 The envoys of Sennacherib spoke still more against the LORD God and 17 against his servant Hezekiah. And the king himself wrote a letter to defy the LORD the God of Israel, in these terms: 'Just as the gods of other nations could not save their people from me, so the god of Hezekiah will not save his people from me.' Then they shouted in Hebrew at the top of their voices at the people of Jerusalem on the wall, to strike them with fear and terror, hoping thus to capture the city. They described the god<sup>d</sup> of Jerusalem as being like the gods of the other peoples of the earth—things made by the hands of men.

20<sup>a</sup> In this plight King Hezekiah and the prophet Isaiah son of Amoz cried to heaven in prayer. So the LORD sent an angel who cut down all the fighting men, as well as the leaders and the commanders, in the camp of the king of Assyria, so that he went home disgraced to his own land. When he entered the temple of his god, certain of his own sons struck him down with their swords.

22 Thus the LORD saved Hezekiah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem from Sennacherib king of Assyria and all their enemies; and he gave them respite on every side. Many people brought to Jerusalem offerings for the LORD and costly gifts for Hezekiah king of Judah. From then on he was held in high honour by all the nations.

24 About this time Hezekiah fell dangerously ill and prayed to the LORD; the LORD said, 'I will heal you',<sup>b</sup> and granted him a sign. But, being a proud man, he was not grateful for the good done to him, and Judah and Jerusalem suffered for it. Then, proud as he was, Hezekiah submitted, and the people of Jerusalem with him, and the LORD's anger did not fall on them again in Hezekiah's time.

27 Hezekiah enjoyed great wealth and fame.<sup>c</sup> He built for himself treasuries for silver and gold, precious stones and spices, shields and other costly things; and barns for the harvests of corn, 28 new wine, and oil; and stalls for every kind of cattle, as well as sheepfolds. He 29 amassed<sup>d</sup> a great many flocks and herds; God had indeed given him vast riches. It was this same Hezekiah who 30 blocked the upper outflow of the waters of Gihon and directed them downwards and westwards to the city of David. In fact, Hezekiah was successful in everything he attempted, even in the 31 affair of the envoys sent by the king<sup>e</sup> of Babylon—the envoys who came to inquire about the portent which had been seen in the land at the time when God left him to himself, to test him and to discover all that was in his heart.

The other events of Hezekiah's reign, 32 and his works of piety, are recorded in the vision of the prophet Isaiah son of Amoz and in the annals of the kings of Judah and Israel. So Hezekiah rested 33 with his forefathers and was buried in the uppermost of the graves of David's sons; all Judah and the people of Jerusalem paid him honour when he died, and he was succeeded by his son Manasseh.

MANASSEH WAS TWELVE YEARS OLD 33!<sup>f</sup> when he came to the throne, and he reigned in Jerusalem for fifty-five years. He did what was wrong in the eyes of 2 the LORD, in following the abominable practices of the nations which the LORD had dispossessed in favour of the Israelites. He rebuilt the hill-shrines 3 which his father Hezekiah had dismantled, he erected altars to the Baalim and made sacred poles, he prostrated himself before all the host of heaven and worshipped them. He built 4 altars in the house of the LORD, that house of which the LORD had said, 'In Jerusalem shall my Name be for

<sup>z</sup> Or gods.

<sup>a</sup> Verses 20–22; cp. 2 Kgs. 19. 1–37; Isa. 37. 1–38.

<sup>b</sup> I will heal you; prob. rdg., cp. 2 Kgs. 20. 5; Heb. om.

<sup>c</sup> Or riches. <sup>d</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds cities.

<sup>e</sup> Prob. rdg., cp. 2 Kgs. 20. 12; Heb. officers.

<sup>f</sup> Verses 1–9; cp. 2 Kgs. 21. 1–9.

24–26: The verses abridge 2 Kgs. 20. 1–9, to suggest that worthy Hezekiah was less than perfect; compare Isa. 38. 1–39. 8.

33. 1–25: Manasseh and Amon. In 2 Kgs. Manasseh is the worst king of the Davidic dynasty. It was during his reign that the LORD finally gave up on Jerusalem and Judah (2 Kgs. 21. 10–16). Here, however, Manasseh repents and is restored. This theme possibly arises from the very long reign of fifty-five years, which the Chronicler may have thought was due to some good on the

5 ever.' He built altars for all the host of 6 heaven in the two courts of the house of the LORD; he made his sons pass through the fire in the Valley of Benhinnom, he practised soothsaying, divination, and sorcery, and dealt with ghosts and spirits. He did much wrong in the eyes of the LORD and provoked 7 his anger; and the image that he had carved in relief he put in the house of God, the place of which God had said to David and Solomon his son, 'This house and Jerusalem, which I chose out of all the tribes of Israel, shall 8 receive my Name for all time. I will not again displace Israel from the land which I assigned to their forefathers, if only they will be careful to observe all that I commanded them through Moses, all the law, the statutes, and the 9 rules.' But Manasseh misled Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem into wickedness far worse than that of the nations which the LORD had exterminated in favour of the Israelites.

10 The LORD spoke to Manasseh and to 11 his people, but they paid no heed. So the LORD brought against them the commanders of the army of the king of Assyria; they captured Manasseh with spiked weapons, and bound him with fetters, and brought him to Babylon.
 12 In his distress he prayed to the LORD his God and sought to placate him, and made his humble submission before 13 the God of his fathers. He prayed, and God accepted his petition and heard his supplication. He brought him back to Jerusalem and restored him to the throne; and thus Manasseh learnt that the LORD was God.

14 After this he built an outer wall for the city of David, west of Gihon in the gorge, and extended it to the entrance by the Fish Gate, enclosing Ophel; and he raised it to a great height. He also put military commanders in all 15 the fortified cities of Judah. He removed the foreign gods and the carved image from the house of the LORD and all the altars which he had built on the temple mount and in Jerusalem, and threw them out of the city. Moreover, 16 he repaired the altar of the LORD and sacrificed at it shared-offerings and thank-offerings, and commanded Judah to serve the LORD the God of Israel.

 But the people still continued to sacrifi- 17 ce at the hill-shrines, though only to the LORD their God.

The rest of the acts of Manasseh, his 18 prayer to his God, and the discourses of the seers who spoke to him in the name of the LORD the God of Israel, are recorded in the chronicles of the kings of Israel. His prayer and the 19 answer he received to it, and all his sin and unfaithfulness, and the places where he built hill-shrines and set up sacred poles and carved idols, before he submitted, are recorded in the chron- 20 icles of the seers. So Manasseh rested with his forefathers and was buried in the garden-tomb of<sup>g</sup> his family; he was succeeded by his son Amon.

Amon was twenty-two years old 21<sup>b</sup> when he came to the throne, and he reigned in Jerusalem for two years. He 22 did what was wrong in the eyes of the LORD as his father Manasseh had done.
 He sacrificed to all the images that his father Manasseh had made, and wor- 23 shipped them. He was not submissive before the LORD like his father Manasseh; his guilt was much greater.
 His courtiers conspired against him 24 and murdered him in his house; but the 25 people of the land killed all the conspirators and made his son Josiah king in his place.

JOSIAH WAS EIGHT YEARS OLD WHEN HE 34<sup>i</sup> came to the throne, and he reigned in Jerusalem for thirty-one years. He did 2 what was right in the eyes of the LORD;
 he followed in the footsteps of his fore-father David, swerving neither right nor left. In the eighth year of his reign, 3

<sup>g</sup> the garden-tomb of: prob. rdg., cp. 2 Kgs. 21. 18; Heb. om.

<sup>h</sup> Verses 21-25: cp. 2 Kgs. 21. 19-24.

<sup>i</sup> Verses 1, 2. cp. 2 Kgs. 22, 1, 2.

king's part. 18: The Gr. translation adds the penitential prayer of Manasseh, found in the Apocrypha.

34.1-35.27: Josiah, the faithful king (2 Kgs. chs. 22-23). In 2 Kgs. Josiah's great religious reform was a concentrated event after the discovery of the book of the law; here his purge of pagan practices preceded that discovery (14-18) and, indeed, lasted six years (3-7). The

when he was still a boy, he began to seek guidance of the God of his forefather David; and in the twelfth year he began to purge Judah and Jerusalem of the hill-shrines and the sacred poles, and the carved idols and the images of metal. He saw to it that the altars for the Baalim were destroyed and he hacked down the incense-altars which stood above them; he broke in pieces the sacred poles and the carved and metal images, grinding them to powder and scattering it on the graves of those who had sacrificed to them. He also burnt the bones of the priests on their altars and purged Judah and Jerusalem. In the cities of Manasseh, Ephraim, and Simeon, and as far as Naphtali, he burnt down their houses wherever he found them; he destroyed the altars and the sacred poles, ground the idols to powder, and hacked down the incense-altars throughout the land of Israel. Then he returned to Jerusalem.

<sup>8</sup> In the eighteenth year of his reign, after he had purified the land and the house, he sent Shaphan son of Azaliah and Maaseiah the governor of the city and Joah son of Joahaz the secretary of state to repair the house of the LORD his God. They came to Hilkiah the high priest and gave him the silver that had been brought to the house of God, the silver which the Levites, on duty at the threshold, had gathered from Manasseh, Ephraim, and all the rest of Israel, as well as from Judah and Benjamin and the inhabitants of Jerusalem. It was then handed over to the foremen in charge of the work in the house of the LORD, and these men, working in the house, used it for repairing and strengthening the fabric; they gave it also to the carpenters and builders to buy hewn stone, and timber for rafters and beams, for the buildings which the kings of Judah had allowed to fall into ruin. The men did their work honestly under the direction of Jahath and Obadiah, Levites of the line of Merari, and Zechariah and Meshullam, members of the family of Kohath. These also had control of the porters and directed the workmen of every trade. The Levites were all skilled musicians, and some of them were secretaries, clerks, or door-keepers. When they fetched the silver which had been brought to the house of the LORD, the priest Hilkiah discovered the book of the law of the LORD which had been given through Moses. Then Hilkiah told Shaphan the adjutant-general, 'I have discovered the book of the law in the house of the LORD.' Hilkiah gave the book to Shaphan, and he brought it to the king and reported to him: 'Your servants are doing all that was entrusted to them. They have melted down the silver in the house of the LORD and have handed it over to the foremen and the workmen.' Shaphan the adjutant-general also told the king that the priest Hilkiah had given him a book; and he read it out in the king's presence. When the king heard what was in the book of the law, he rent his clothes, and ordered Hilkiah, Ahikam son of Shaphan, Abdon son of Micah, Shaphan the adjutant-general, and Asaiah the king's attendant, to go and seek guidance of the LORD, for himself and for all who still remained in Israel and Judah, about the contents of the book that had been discovered. 'Great is the wrath of the LORD,' he said, 'and it has been poured out upon us because our forefathers did not observe the command of the LORD and do all that is written in this book.'

So Hilkiah and those whom the king had instructed went to Huldah the prophetess, wife of Shallum son of Tikvah,<sup>k</sup> son of Hasrah, the keeper of the wardrobe, and consulted her at her home in the second quarter of Jerusalem. 'This is the word of the LORD the God of Israel,' she answered: 'Say to the man who sent you to me, "This is the word of the LORD: I am bringing disaster on this place and its inhabitants, fulfilling all the imprecations recorded in the book which was read in the presence of the king of Judah, <sup>j</sup> Verses 8-32: cp. 2 Kgs. 22. 3-23. 3.

<sup>k</sup> Prob. rdg., cp. 2 Kgs. 22. 14; Heb. Tokhath.

Chronicles's view is probably correct. 8-13: Greater attention is paid here to the Levites and Temple workers than in the source, 2 Kgs. 22.3-7. 9: The silver: see 24.4. 29-33: This is based 25 because they have forsaken me and burnt sacrifices to other gods, provoking my anger with all the idols they have made with their own hands; therefore my wrath is poured out upon this place and will not be quenched.”

26 This is what you shall say to the king of Judah who sent you to seek guidance of the LORD: “This is the word of the LORD the God of Israel: You have

27 listened to my words and shown a willing heart, you humbled yourself before God when you heard what I said about this place and its inhabitants; you humbled yourself and rent your clothes and wept before me. Because of all this,<sup>l</sup> I for my part have heard you. This is the very word of the LORD.

28 Therefore, I will gather you to your forefathers, and you will be gathered to your grave in peace; you will not live to see all the disaster which I am bringing upon this place and upon its inhabitants.”” So they brought back word to the king.

29 Then the king sent and called all the elders of Judah and Jerusalem together, and went up to the house of the LORD; he took with him all the men of Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, the priests and the Levites, the whole population, high and low. There he read them the whole book of the covenant discovered in the house of the

31 LORD; and then, standing on the dais, the king made a covenant before the LORD to obey him and keep his commandments, his testimonies, and his statutes, with all his heart and soul, and so fulfil the terms of the covenant

32 written in this book. Then he swore an oath with all who were present in Jerusalem to keep the covenant.<sup>m</sup> Thereafter the inhabitants of Jerusalem did obey the covenant of God, the God of their fathers. Josiah removed all abominable things from all the territories of the Israelites, so that everyone living in Israel might serve the LORD his God. As long as he lived they did not fail in their allegiance to the LORD the God of their fathers.

Josiah kept a Passover to the LORD 35 in Jerusalem, and the passover lamb was killed on the fourteenth day of the first month. He appointed the priests 2 to their offices and encouraged them to perform the service of the house of the LORD. He said to the Levites, the 3 teachers of Israel, who were dedicated to the LORD, ‘Put the holy Ark in the house which Solomon son of David king of Israel built; it is not to be carried about on your shoulders. Now is the time to serve the LORD your God and his people Israel: prepare 4 yourselves by families according to your divisions, following the written instructions of David king of Israel and those of Solomon his son; and 5 stand in the Holy Place as representatives of the family groups of the lay people, your brothers, one division of Levites to each family group. Kill the 6 passover lamb and hallow yourselves and prepare for your brothers to fulfil the word of the LORD given through Moses.’

Josiah contributed on behalf of all 7 the lay people present thirty thousand small cattle, that is young rams and goats, for the Passover, in addition to three thousand bulls; all these were from the king’s own resources. And 8 his officers contributed willingly for the people, the priests, and the Levites. Hilkiah, Zechariah, and Jehiel, the chief officers of the house of God, gave on behalf of the priests two thousand six hundred small cattle for the Passover, in addition to three hundred 9 bulls. And Conaniah, Shemaiah and Nethaneel his brothers, and Hashabiah, Jeiel, and Jozabab, the chiefs of the Levites, gave on behalf of the Levites for the Passover five thousand small cattle in addition to five hundred bulls.

<sup>l</sup> Because of all this: prob. rdg.; Heb. om.
<sup>m</sup> to keep the covenant: prob. rdg., cp. 2 Kgs. 23. 3; Heb. and Benjamin.

on 2 Kgs.23.1–20. 35.1–19: The Chronicler expands the brief report of a Passover observance in 2 Kgs.23.21–23. As usual, he emphasizes the part of the Levites and the singers. 3: The statement here seems to imply that the Ark had been regularly moved for religious ceremonies prior to Josiah’s time; contrast 1 Chr.13.15–16. The exact function of the Ark in the older Temple service is obscure; see Jer.3.16. 4: Written instructions of David: see 1 Chr. chs. 23–26. 7–9: Similar gifts are described in 1 Chr.29.6–9. 10–15: Characteristically, the Chronicler

10 When the service had been arranged, the priests stood in their places and the Levites in their divisions, according to the king's command. They killed the passover victim, and the priests flung the blood against the altar as the Levites flayed the animals. Then they removed the fat flesh,<sup>n</sup> which they allocated to the people by groups of families for them to offer to the LORD, as prescribed in the book of Moses; and so with the bulls. They cooked the passover victim over the fire according to custom, and boiled the holy offerings in pots, cauldrons, and pans, and served them quickly to all the people.

14 After that they made the necessary preparations for themselves and the priests, because the priests of Aaron's line were engaged till nightfall in offering whole-offerings and the fat portions; so the Levites made the necessary preparations for themselves and for the priests of Aaron's line.

15 The singers, the sons of Asaph, were in their places according to the rules laid down by David and by Asaph, Heman, and Jeduthun, the king's seers. The door-keepers stood, each at his gate; there was no need for them to leave their posts, because their kinsmen the Levites had made the preparations for them.

16 In this manner all the service of the LORD was arranged that day, to keep the Passover and to offer whole-offerings on the altar of the LORD, according to the command of King Josiah. The people of Israel who were present kept the Passover at that time and the pilgrim-feast of Unleavened Bread for seven days. No Passover like it had been kept in Israel since the days of the prophet Samuel; none of the kings of Israel had ever kept such a Passover as Josiah kept, with the priests and Levites and all Judah and Israel who were present and the inhabitants of Jerusalem. In the eighteenth year of Josiah's reign this Passover was kept.

After Josiah had thus organized all the service of the house, Necho king of Egypt marched out to attack Carchemish on the Euphrates; and Josiah went out to confront him. But Necho sent envoys to him, saying, 'What do you want with me, king of Judah? I have no quarrel with you today, only with those with whom I am at war. God has purposed to speed me on my way, and God is on my side; do not stand in his way, or he will destroy you.' Josiah would not be deflected from his purpose but insisted on fighting; he refused to listen to Necho's words spoken at God's command, and he sallied out to join battle in the vale of Megiddo. The archers shot at him; he was severely wounded and told his bodyguard to carry him off. They lifted him out of his chariot and carried him in his viceroy's chariot to Jerusalem. There he died and was buried among the tombs of his ancestors, and all Judah and Jerusalem mourned for him. Jeremiah also made a lament for Josiah; and to this day the minstrels, both men and women, commemorate Josiah in their lamentations. Such laments have become traditional in Israel, and they are found in the written collections.

The other events of Josiah's reign and his works of piety, all performed in accordance with what is laid down in the law of the LORD, and his acts, from first to last, are recorded in the annals of the kings of Israel and Judah.

THE PEOPLE OF THE LAND TOOK JOSIAH'S SON JEHOAHAZ and made him king in

<sup>n</sup> fat flesh; or whole-offering.
<sup>o</sup> Verses 1-4: cp. 2 Kgs. 23: 30-34.

reports the importance, absent from his source, of the Levites and other Temple workers. 16-19: Based on 2 Kgs. 23: 22-23. 18: Since the days of the prophet Samuel: the meaning is, since the beginning of the monarchy; compare 2 Kgs. 23: 22. This unique Passover expressed the unity of all Israel, otherwise lacking throughout the monarchic period. 21-22: Historically, Josiah's policy of resistance to Necho arose from his collaboration with the Babylonians; see 2 Kgs. 23: 29-30 n. Here that collaboration is viewed as a violation of God's will, expressed by the foreign king himself. This addition, by the Chronicler, explains how the otherwise righteous Josiah fell in battle. 25: Jeremiah goes unmentioned in Kgs. Compare Jer. 22: 10-11, 15.

36.1-23: The end of the Judean monarchy. The Chronicler condenses the account in 2 Kgs. 23: 30-24: 15, yet also adds to it, for example, v. 14. 1-4: The account of Jehoahaz is much

- 2 place of his father in Jerusalem. He was twenty-three years old when he came to the throne, and he reigned in Jerusalem for three months. Then Necho king of Egypt deposed him and fined the country a hundred talents of silver and one talent of gold, and made his brother Eliakim king over Judah and Jerusalem in his place, changing his name to Jehoiakim; he also carried away his brother Jehoahaz to Egypt. Jehoiakim was twenty-five years old when he came to the throne, and he reigned in Jerusalem for eleven years. He did what was wrong in the eyes of the LORD his God. So Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon marched against him and put him in fetters and took him to Babylon. He also removed to Babylon some of the vessels of the house of the LORD and put them into his own palace there. The other events of Jehoiakim's reign, including the abominations he committed, and everything of which he was held guilty, are recorded in the annals of the kings of Israel and Judah. He was succeeded by his son Jehoiachin.
- 9<sup>p</sup> Jehoiachin was eight years old when he came to the throne, and he reigned in Jerusalem for three months and ten days. He did what was wrong in the eyes of the LORD. At the turn of the year King Nebuchadnezzar sent and brought him to Babylon, together with the choicest vessels of the house of the LORD, and made his father's brother Zedekiah king over Judah and Jerusalem.
- 11 Zedekiah was twenty-one years old when he came to the throne, and he reigned in Jerusalem for eleven years. He did what was wrong in the eyes of the LORD his God; he did not defer to the guidance of the prophet Jeremiah, the spokesman of the LORD. He also
- rebelled against King Nebuchadnezzar, who had laid on him a solemn oath of allegiance. He was obstinate and stubborn and refused to return to the LORD the God of Israel. All the chiefs of Judah and the priests and the people became more and more unfaithful, following all the abominable practices of the other nations; and they defiled the house of the LORD which he had hallowed in Jerusalem. The LORD God of their fathers had warned them betimes through his messengers, for he took pity on his people and on his dwelling-place; but they never ceased to deride his messengers, scorn his words and scoff at his prophets, until the anger of the LORD burst out against his people and could not be appeased. So he brought against them the king of the Chaldaeans, who put their young men to the sword in the sanctuary and spared neither young man nor maiden, neither the old nor the weak; God gave them all into his power. And he brought all the vessels of the house of God, great and small, and the treasures of the house of the LORD and of the king and his officers—all these he brought to Babylon. And they burnt down the house of God, razed the city wall of Jerusalem and burnt down all its stately mansions and all their precious possessions until everything was destroyed. Those who escaped the sword he took captive to Babylon, and they became slaves to him and his sons until the sovereignty passed to the Persians, while the land of Israel ran the full term of its sabbaths. All the time that it lay desolate it kept the sabbath rest, to complete seventy years in fulfilment of the word of the LORD by the prophet Jeremiah.

p Verses 9, 10: cp. 2 Kgs. 24. 8–17.

q Verses 17–20: cp. 2 Kgs. 25. 1–17.

condensed; see 2 Kgs.23.30–34. Jehoiakim: see 2 Kgs.23.36–24.6. 6: Jehoiakim actually died before the Babylonian king could capture and exile him; compare 2 Kgs.24.1–6. 7: This has been added by the Chronicler, see v. 10. 9–10: Jehoiachin: again condensation (of 2 Kgs. 24.8–17) is present. 9: Eight: The correct number is eighteen, as in 2 Kgs.24.8. 11–13: Zedekiah: This is much changed from 2 Kgs.24.18–20, with the names of his mother and grandfather omitted. 12: See 35.25 n. On the reference here to Jeremiah, see Jer.32.1–5; 37.1–10; 38.28. 14: In the source, the blame for the end of the monarchy was placed on the wicked kings, not, as here, on chiefs, priests, and the people. Note that the Levites go unmentioned here. 15–16: The ignoring of the prophets appears repeatedly, e.g. 12.5–8; 15.1–8; 19.1–3; and elsewhere. 17–21: The account of the fall of Jerusalem and the beginning of the Exile is greatly abridged from 2 Kgs.25.1–21. 21: On the sabbath rest, see Lev.26.33–45 and Jer.25.11–12.

22<sup>r</sup> Now in the first year of Cyrus king of Persia, so that the word of the LORD spoken through Jeremiah might be fulfilled, the LORD stirred up the heart of Cyrus king of Persia; and he issued a proclamation throughout his kingdom, both by word of mouth and in writing, to this effect:

Persia: The LORD the God of heaven has given me all the kingdoms of the earth, and he himself has charged me to build him a house at Jerusalem in Judah. To every man of his people now among you I say, the LORD his God be<sup>s</sup> with him, and let him go up.

23 This is the word of Cyrus king of

<sup>r</sup> Verses 22, 23: cp. Ezra 1. 1-3.
<sup>s</sup> be: prob. rdg., cp. Ezra 1. 3: Heb. om.

---

22-23: These verses appear also in Ezra 1.1-3, an indication that the single book, Ezra-Neh., was the continuation of Chr. Apparently the verses were first written, but later repeated and incorporated here to abstain from an ending so negative as v. 21. In the MT, 2 Chr. is the last book; it was characteristic of later rabbinic thought that even passages of doom must end in hope.

THE BOOK OF EZRA

The books of Chronicles, Ezra, and Nehemiah were originally a single unit which came to be separated (see Introduction to 1 Chronicles). The Book of Ezra deals with several episodes of the return to Zion by Judeans after the Babylonian Exile (587–539 B.C.); these episodes took place in both the sixth and the fifth centuries, and focus on Sheshbazzar, Zerubbabel, Ezra (who made two trips), and Nehemiah (who made two trips).

The book poses a number of historical and literary problems, the chief of which is that of sources and the sequence of materials. Two main sources used by the author, usually called the Chronicler, are the "Memoirs of Ezra" and the "Memoirs of Nehemiah" (narratives using first person forms). But some of the Nehemiah material appears in the Book of Ezra and some of the Ezra material is in the Book of Nehemiah, suggesting that materials were dislocated in the course of their transmission.

As a consequence, uncertainty attends the effort to determine whether Ezra and Nehemiah were contemporaries. If they were not, then problems arise as to whose career came first. In the order of the books in the Hebrew Bible, the Book of Ezra precedes the Book of Nehemiah, and the general impression suggests that priority belonged to Ezra. But serious doubts have been raised; for example, if Ezra came first, why does Nehemiah seem to ignore him? (See also 10.6 n.) Hence, a frequent view adopted here concludes that Nehemiah preceded Ezra. Accordingly, the king of 7.1 is likely Artaxerxes II (404–359 B.C.); the king at the time of Nehemiah was Artaxerxes I (464–424 B.C.).

On the date of composition, probably the fourth pre-Christian century is to be adopted; see Introduction to 1 Chronicles.

Chapters 1–6 are not about Ezra but deal with a return from Babylonia led by Sheshbazzar (about 538 B.C.), and with further events of the time of Zerubbabel (about 516 B.C.); some scholars term these early chapters "The Book of Zerubbabel."

The material on Ezra himself is in Ezra chs. 7–10 and Neh. chs. 8–9.

Despite the problems, the prevailing interest in the book is clear. The returned exiles represent to the author the remnant of Israel who must exhibit fullest fidelity to, and conformity with, the Law of Moses. Hence, the community needed to reconstruct Jerusalem and the Temple, and to maintain its sanctity in the midst of foreign peoples.

---

The return of the exiles to Jerusalem

1 NOW IN THE FIRST YEAR OF CYRUS king of Persia, so that the word of the LORD spoken through Jeremiah might be fulfilled, the LORD stirred up the heart of Cyrus king of Persia; and he issued a proclamation throughout his kingdom, both by word of mouth and in writing, to this effect:

2 This is the word of Cyrus king of Persia: The LORD the God of heaven has given me all the kingdoms of the earth, and he himself has charged me to build him a house at Jerusalem in Judah. To every man of his people<sup>3</sup> now among you I say, God be with him, and let him go up to Jerusalem in Judah, and rebuild the house of the LORD the God of Israel, the God<sup>4</sup> whose city is Jerusalem. And every remaining Jew, wherever he may be living, may claim aid from his neighbours in that place, silver and gold, goods<sup>a</sup> and cattle, in addition to the voluntary offerings for the house of God in Jerusalem.

a Or pack-animals.

---

1.1–11: The return of the exiles to Jerusalem under Sheshbazzar. 1–3: These verses duplicate 2 Chr. 36.22–23; see annotation there. 1: The first year of Cyrus was 538 B.C. Cyrus II's rule over Persia actually began in 557 B.C.; 538 is the date from the perspective of the Babylonians. The word of the Lord spoken through Jeremiah: what to the Persians was undoubtedly an act of political expediency was to the Jews the fulfillment of God's promise as taught by Jeremiah (see Jer. 25.11–14; 29.10; compare Isa. 44.28; 45.1). Notices in writing were posted in public places. 2–4: Compare the decree of Cyrus in vv. 2–4, which is in Heb., with the Aram. parallel in 6.3–5. The somewhat different versions both conform with what is known of the diplomatic policies of the early Persian Achaemenid kings (sixth-fourth centuries B.C.). 4: Remaining:

5 Thereupon the heads of families of Judah and Benjamin, and the priests and the Levites, answered the summons, all whom God had moved to go up to rebuild the house of the LORD in Jerusalem. Their neighbours all assisted them with gifts of every kind, silver<sup>b</sup> and gold, goods<sup>a</sup> and cattle and valuable gifts in abundance,<sup>c</sup> in addition to any voluntary service. Moreover, Cyrus king of Persia produced the vessels of the house of the LORD which Nebuchadnezzar had removed from Jerusalem and placed in the temple of his god; and he handed them over into the charge of Mithredath the treasurer, who made an inventory of them for Sheshbazzar the ruler of Judah. This was the list: thirty gold basins, a thousand silver basins, twenty-nine vessels of various kinds, thirty golden bowls, four hundred and ten silver bowls of various types, and a thousand other vessels. The vessels of gold and silver amounted in all to five thousand four hundred; and Sheshbazzar took them all up to Jerusalem, when the exiles were brought back from Babylon.

21<sup>d</sup> Of the captives whom Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon had taken into exile in Babylon, these were the people of the province who returned to Jerusalem and Judah, each to his own city, led by Zerubbabel, Jeshua,<sup>e</sup> Nehemiah, Seraiah, Reelaiah, Mordecai, Bilshan, Mispar, Bigvai, Rehum and Baanah.

The roll of the men of the people of Israel: the family of Parosh, two thousand one hundred and seventy-two; the family of Shephatiah, three hundred and seventy-two; the family of Arah, seven hundred and seventy-five; the family of Pahath-moab, namely the families of Jeshua and Joab, two thousand eight hundred and twelve; the family of Elam, one thousand two hundred and fifty-four;

the family of Zattu, nine hundred and forty-five; the family of Zaccai, seven hundred and sixty; the family of Bani, six hundred and forty-two; the family of Bebai, six hundred and twenty-three; the family of Azgad, one thousand two hundred and twenty-two; the family of Adonikam, six hundred and sixty-six; the family of Bigvai, two thousand and fifty-six; the family of Adin, four hundred and fifty-four; the family of Ater, namely that of Hezekiah, ninety-eight; the family of Bezai, three hundred and twenty-three; the family of Jorah, one hundred and twelve; the family of Hashum, two hundred and twenty-three; the family of Gibbar, ninety-five. The men<sup>g</sup> of Bethlehem, one hundred and twenty-three; the men of Netophah, fifty-six; the men of Anathoth, one hundred and twenty-eight; the men of Beth-azmoth,<sup>h</sup> forty-two; the men of Kiriath-jearim,<sup>i</sup> Kephirah, and Beeroth, seven hundred and forty-three; the men<sup>j</sup> of Ramah and Geba, six hundred and twenty-one; the men of Michmas, one hundred and twenty-two; the men of Bethel and Ai, two hundred and twenty-three; the men<sup>k</sup> of Nebo, fifty-two; the men of Magbish, one hundred and fifty-six; the men of the other Elam, one thousand two hundred and fifty-four; the men of Harim, three hundred and twenty; the men of Lod, Hadid, and Ono, seven hundred and twenty-five; the men of Jericho, three hundred and forty-five; the men of Senaah, three thousand six hundred and thirty.

Priests: the family of Jedaiah, of the

<sup>a</sup> Or pack-animals.

<sup>b</sup> with gifts . . . silver: prob. rdg., cp. 1 Esdras 2. 9; Heb. with vessels of silver.

<sup>c</sup> in abundance: prob. rdg., cp. 1 Esdras. 2. 9; Heb. apart.

<sup>d</sup> Verses 1-70: cp. Neh. 7. 6-73.

<sup>e</sup> Or Joshua (cp. Hag. 1. 1).

<sup>f</sup> and: prob. rdg., cp. Neh. 7. 11; Heb. om.

<sup>g</sup> Prob. rdg., cp. Neh. 7. 26; Heb. family.

<sup>h</sup> Prob. rdg., cp. Neh. 7. 28; Heb. the family of Azmoth.

<sup>i</sup> Prob. rdg., cp. Neh. 7. 29; Heb. the family of Kiriath-arim.

<sup>j</sup> Prob. rdg., cp. Neh. 7. 30; Heb. family.

<sup>k</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. family (also in verses 30-35).

surviving (2 Chr. 36. 20). 8: Mithredath: Cyrus' treasurer. Sheshbazzar may be identical with a son of Jeconiah whose name in 1 Chr. 3. 18 is given as Shenazzar and elsewhere as Shenabasar or Sheshbazzar. Ruler: leader. 11: In all: see 1 Esd. 2. 13-15.

2.1-70: The census of returnees, paralleled in Neh. 7. 6-73. 2: Possibly a composite list of men who at different times led groups of exiles home. 3-67: Enumeration of the heads of families of Israel (Judah and Benjamin, see 1.5), various Temple officials (vv. 36-63) and servants, and animals (vv. 64-67). Some returnees are listed according to the name of the father, others accord-line of Jeshua, nine hundred and 37 seventy-three; the family of Immer, 38 one thousand and fifty-two: the family of Pashhur, one thousand two hundred 39 and forty-seven; the family of Harim, one thousand and seventeen.

40 Levites: the families of Jeshua and Kadmiel, of the line of Hodaviah, 41 seventy-four. Singers: the family of Asaph, one hundred and twenty-eight.
 42 The guild of door-keepers: the family of Shallum, the family of Ater, the family of Talmon, the family of Akkub, the family of Hatita, and the family of Shobai, one hundred and thirty-nine in all.

43 Temple-servitors: the family of Ziha, the family of Hasupha, the family of 44 Tabbaoth, the family of Keros, the family of Siaha, the family of Padon, 45 the family of Lebanah, the family of Hagabah, the family of Akkub, the 46 family of Hagab, the family of Shamlai,<sup>l</sup> 47 the family of Hanan, the family of Giddel, the family of Gahar, the family 48 of Reaiah, the family of Rezin, the family of Nekoda, the family of 49 Gazzam, the family of Uzza, the family 50 of Paseah, the family of Besai, the family of Asnah, the family of the 51 Meunim,<sup>m</sup> the family of the Nephu-52 sim,<sup>n</sup> the family of Bakbuk, the family of Hakupha, the family of Harhur, the 53 family of Bazluth, the family of Mehida, the family of Harsha, the 54 family of Barkos, the family of Sisera, the family of Temah, the family of Neziah, and the family of Hatipha.

55 Descendants of Solomon's servants:
 the family of Sotai, the family of Hassophereth, the family of Peruda, 56 the family of Jaalah, the family of 57 Darkon, the family of Giddel, the family of Shephatiah, the family of Hattil, the family of Pochereth-hazzebaim, and the family of Ami.

58 The temple-servitors and the descendants of Solomon's servants amounted to three hundred and ninety-two in all.

The following were those who 59 returned from Tel-melah, Tel-harsha, Kerub, Addan, and Immer, but could not establish their father's family nor whether by descent they belonged to 60 Israel: the family of Delaiah, the family of Tobiah, and the family of Nekoda, six hundred and fifty-two.
 Also of the priests: the family of 61 Hobaiah, the family of Hakkoz, and the family of Barzillai who had married a daughter of Barzillai the Gileadite and went by his<sup>o</sup> name.
 These searched for their names among 62 those enrolled in the genealogies, but they could not be found; they were disqualified for the priesthood as unclean, and the governor forbade 63 them to partake of the most sacred food until there should be a priest able to consult the Urim and the Thummim.

The whole assembled people num-64 bered forty-two thousand three hundred and sixty, apart from their slaves, 65 male and female, of whom there were seven thousand three hundred and thirty-seven; and they had two hundred singers, men and women. Their horses 66 numbered seven hundred and thirty-six, their mules two hundred and forty-five, their camels four hundred and 67 thirty-five, and their asses six thousand seven hundred and twenty.

When they came to the house of the 68 LORD in Jerusalem, some of the heads of families volunteered to rebuild the house of God on its original site.
 According to their resources they gave 69 for the fabric fund a total of sixty-one thousand drachmas of gold, five thousand minas of silver, and one hundred priestly robes.

The priests, the Levites, and some 70 of the people lived in Jerusalem and its

<sup>l</sup> Or Shalmal (cp. Neh. 7. 48).

<sup>m</sup> Or Meunim.

<sup>n</sup> Or Nephisim.

<sup>o</sup> Prob. rdg., cp. 1 Esdras 5. 38; Heb. their.

ing to place of origin. 41-42: Singers and door-keepers: functionaries among the Levites. 43: Servitors: Heb. nethinim. 63: Governor: Sheshbazzar (1.8). The statement until there should be a priest able to consult the Urim and the Thummim (see 1 Sam.14.41) refers ostensibly to the future when the use of the sacred lot would be reinstated, but the author apparently knew that that ancient practice was never reintroduced, as is clear from later rabbinic sources. 64: The figure for the whole assembled people apparently included those from tribes not specified above. 65: The two hundred were not the Temple singers of v. 41, but entertainers (see 2 Sam.19.35 or 2 Chr.35.25), here morale boosters for the long journey. 69: Fabric fund: a reserve fund for building maintenance and repair. For contrast see Neh.7.70-71.

suburbs;<sup>p</sup> the singers, the door-keepers, and temple-servitors,<sup>q</sup> and all other Israelites, lived in their own towns.

Worship restored and the temple rebuilt

3 WHEN THE SEVENTH MONTH CAME, THE Israelites now being settled in their towns, the people assembled as one man in Jerusalem. Then Jeshua son of Jozadak and his fellow-priests, and Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel and his kinsmen, set to work and built the altar of the God of Israel, in order to offer upon it whole-offerings as prescribed in the law of Moses the man of God. 3 They put the altar in place first, because they lived in fear of the foreign population; and they offered upon it whole-offerings to the LORD, both morning and evening offerings. They kept the pilgrim-feast of Tabernacles<sup>r</sup> as ordained, and offered whole-offerings every day in the number prescribed for each day, and, in addition to these, the regular whole-offerings and the offerings for sabbaths,<sup>s</sup> for new moons and for all the sacred seasons appointed by the LORD, and all voluntary offerings brought to the LORD. The offering of whole-offerings began from the first day of the seventh month, although the foundation of the temple of the LORD had not yet been laid. They gave money for the masons and carpenters, and food and drink and oil for the Sidonians and the Tyrians to fetch cedar-wood from the Lebanon to the roadstead at Joppa, by licence from Cyrus king of Persia. 8 In the second year after their return to the house of God in Jerusalem, and in the second month, Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel and Jeshua son of Jozadak started work, aided by all their fellow-

Israelites, the priests and the Levites and all who had returned from captivity to Jerusalem. They appointed Levites from the age of twenty years and upwards to supervise the work of the house of the LORD. Jeshua with his sons and his kinsmen, Kadmiel, Binnui, and Hodaviah,<sup>t</sup> together assumed control of those responsible for the work on the house of God.<sup>u</sup>

When the builders had laid the foundation of the temple of the LORD, the priests in their robes took their places with their trumpets, and the Levites, the sons of Asaph, with their cymbals, to praise the LORD in the manner prescribed by David king of Israel; and they chanted praises and thanksgiving to the LORD, singing, 'It is good to give thanks to the LORD,<sup>v</sup> for his love towards Israel endures for ever.' All the people raised a great shout of praise to the LORD because the foundation of the house of the LORD had been laid. But many of the priests and Levites and heads of families, who were old enough to have seen the former house, wept and wailed aloud when they saw the foundation of this house laid, while many others shouted for joy at the top of their voice. The people could not distinguish the sound of the shout of joy from that of the weeping and wailing, so great was the shout which the people were raising, and the sound could be heard a long way off.

When the enemies of Judah and Benjamin heard that the returned exiles p in Jerusalem and its suburbs: prob. rdg., cp. 1 Esdras. 5. 46; Heb. om.

q Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds in their towns.

r Or Booths.

s for sabbaths: prob. rdg., cp. 1 Esdras 5. 52; Heb. om.

t Binnui, and Hodaviah: prob. rdg.; Heb. and his sons

the family of Judah.

u Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds the family of Henadad, their family and their kinsmen the Levites.

v to give thanks to the LORD: prob. rdg., cp. Ps. 106. 1; Heb. om.

3.1-13: Worship restored and the Temple rebuilt. 1: The seventh month: Tishri (September-October); the date is regarded by some as 538 B.C., the first year of Cyrus (see 1.1 n.), but by others as 520, the second year of Darius. 3: After they put the altar in place, the sacrifices for the sacred days could be offered (vv. 3-6). 7: Sidonians and Tyrians: Phoenicians. Compare the account of Solomon's building of the Temple in 2 Chr.2.1-16. 8: The second month: Iyyar (April-May). 11: Prescribed by David: see 2 Chr.29.25-30.

4.1-6.22: Opposition to the efforts to rebuild. 4.1-5 record opposition to rebuilding the temple, but vv. 6-23 to rebuilding the walls of Jerusalem. 4.1-5 reflect the reigns of Cyrus, Cambyses (not mentioned in the book), and Darius I (though only the beginning), that is, the period 538-520 B.C. 4.6-23, however, reflect the reign of Artaxerxes, namely, 464-424, and intrude into and interrupt the account in 4.1-6.22. 1: Enemies: the Samaritans. 2: See 2 Kgs.17.24-28 on were building a temple to the LORD 2 the God of Israel, they approached Zerubbabel and Jeshua<sup>w</sup> and the heads of families and said to them, 'Let us join you in building, for like you we seek your God, and we have been sacrificing to him ever since the days of Esarhaddon king of Assyria, who 3 brought us here.' But Zerubbabel and Jeshua and the rest of the heads of families in Israel said to them. 'The house which we are building for our God is no concern of yours. We alone will build it for the LORD the God of Israel, as his majesty Cyrus king of Persia commanded us.'

4 Then the people of the land caused the Jews to lose heart and made them 5 afraid to continue building; and in order to defeat their purpose they bribed officials at court to act against them. This continued throughout the reign of Cyrus and into the reign of Darius king of Persia.

6 At the beginning of the reign of Ahasuerus, the people of the land brought a charge in writing against the inhabitants of Judah and Jerusalem.

7 And in the days of Artaxerxes king of Persia, with the agreement of Mithredath, Tabeel and all his colleagues wrote to him; the letter was written in Aramaic and read aloud in Aramaic.

8<sup>z</sup> Rehum the high commissioner and Shimshai the secretary wrote a letter to King Artaxerxes concerning Jerusalem in the following terms:

9 From Rehum the high commissioner, Shimshai the secretary, and all their colleagues, the judges, the commissioners, the overseers, and chief officers, the men of Erech and Babylon, and the Elamites in Susa, 10 and the other peoples whom the great and renowned Asnappar<sup>y</sup> deported and settled in the city of Samaria and in the rest of the province of Beyond-Euphrates.

Here follows the text of their letter: 11

To King Artaxerxes from his servants, the men of the province of Beyond-Euphrates:

Be it known to Your Majesty that 12 the Jews who left you and came to these parts have reached Jerusalem and are rebuilding that wicked and rebellious city; they have surveyed<sup>z</sup> the foundations and are completing the walls. Be it known to Your 13 Majesty that, if their city is rebuilt and the walls are completed, they will pay neither general levy, nor poll-tax, nor land-tax, and in the end<sup>a</sup> they will harm the monarchy.
 Now, because we eat the king's salt 14 and it is not right that we should witness the king's dishonour, therefore we have sent to inform Your Majesty, in order that search may be 15 made in the annals of your predecessors. You will discover by searching through the annals that this has been a rebellious city, harmful to the monarchy and its provinces, and that sedition has long been rife within its walls, That is why the city was laid waste. We submit to Your 16 Majesty that, if it is rebuilt and its walls are completed, the result will be that you will have no more footing in the province of Beyond-Euphrates.

The king sent this answer: 17

<sup>w</sup> and Jeshua: prob. rdg., cp. 1 Esdras 5. 68; Heb. om.
<sup>x</sup> From 4. 8 to 6. 18 the text is in Aramaic.
<sup>y</sup> Or Osnappar.
<sup>z</sup> have surveyed: prob. rdg.; Aram. are surveying.
<sup>a</sup> in the end: or certainly.

the non-Jewish origin of the Samaritans. 6: Ahasuerus: Xerxes I (485–465). The verse, not part of vv. 7–23, seems out of place, but where it may belong is uncertain. 7–23: The section appears to be misplaced, but it is no longer possible to determine its proper location. 7: Mithredath: not to be confused with the man mentioned in 1.8. With the agreement of: Heb. bishlam, regarded by some as a proper name of a man to be associated with Mithredath and Tabeel. Written . . . and read aloud in Aramaic: probably the meaning is that the letter was both in the Aramaic language and also written in the Aramaic script (rather than in another alphabet). 9: The terms judges, commissioners, overseers, and chief officers translate words of uncertain meaning; they may be names of local peoples (such as Erech and Babylon) rather than official titles. 10: Asnappar: probably Ashurbanipal (668–627 B.C.). 11–22: The complaint (vv. 11–16) and the royal reply (vv. 17–22). 23: The cessation of building.

To Rehum the high commissioner, Shimshai the secretary, and all your colleagues resident in Samaria and in the rest of the province of Beyond-Euphrates, greeting. The letter which you sent to me has now been read clearly in my presence. I have given orders and search has been made, and it has been found that the city in question has a long history of revolt against the monarchy, and that rebellion and sedition have been rife in it. Powerful kings have ruled in Jerusalem, exercising authority over the whole province of Beyond-Euphrates, and general levy, poll-tax, and land-tax have been paid to them. Therefore, issue orders that these men must desist. This city is not to be rebuilt until a decree to that effect is issued by me. See that you do not neglect your duty in this matter, lest more damage and harm be done to the monarchy.

When the text of the letter from King Artaxerxes was read before Rehum the high commissioner, Shimshai the secretary, and their colleagues, they hurried to Jerusalem and forcibly compelled the Jews to stop work. From then onwards the work on the house of God in Jerusalem stopped; and it remained at a standstill till the second year of the reign of Darius king of Persia.

But the prophets Haggai<sup>b</sup> and Zechariah grandson of Iddo upbraided the Jews in Judah and Jerusalem, prophesying in the name of the God of Israel. Then Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel and Jeshua son of Jozadak at once began to rebuild the house of God in Jerusalem, and the prophets of God were with them and supported them. Tattenai, governor of the province of Beyond-Euphrates, Shethar-bozenai, and their colleagues promptly came to them and said, 'Who issued a decree permitting you to rebuild this house and complete its furnishings?' They also asked them for the names of the men engaged in the building. But the elders of the Jews were under God's watchful eye, and they were not prevented from continuing the work, until such time as a report should reach Darius and a royal letter should be received in answer.

Here follows the text of the letter sent by Tattenai, governor of the province of Beyond-Euphrates, Shethar-bozenai, and his colleagues, the inspectors in the province of Beyond-Euphrates, to King Darius. This is the written report that they sent:

To King Darius, all greetings. Be it known to Your Majesty that we went to the province of Judah and found the house of the great God being rebuilt by the Jewish elders,<sup>c</sup> with massive stones and timbers laid in the walls. The work was being done thoroughly and was making good progress under their direction. We asked these elders who had issued a decree for the rebuilding of this house and the completion of the furnishings. We also asked them for their names, so that we might make a list of the leaders for your information. This was their reply: 'We are the servants of the God of heaven and earth, and we are rebuilding the house originally built many years ago; a great king of Israel built it and completed it. But because our forefathers provoked the anger of the God of heaven, he put them into the power of Nebuchadnezzar the Chaldaean, king of Babylon, who pulled down this house and carried the people captive to Babylon. However, Cyrus king of Babylon in the first year of his reign issued a decree that this house of God should be rebuilt. Moreover, there were gold and silver vessels of the house of God, <sup>b</sup> Prob. rdg., cp. 1 Esdras 6, 1; Aram. adds the prophet.

<sup>c</sup> by . . . elders: prob. rdg., cp. 1 Esdras 6, 8; Aram. om.

4.24-5.17: The resumption of rebuilding. 24: See 4.1-6.22 n. 5.1: Haggai and Zechariah: prophets whose books are preserved in Scripture. 8-17: The report to the king seeks to ascertain whether proper channels have been consulted and proper authorization obtained. We are in the realm of bureaucracy, not hostility. 11: Great king: Solomon. 12-14: The conduct of the Chaldeans, who had destroyed the Temple, and the Persian Achaemenids, who allowed its rebuilding, is skillfully contrasted.

which Nebuchadnezzar had taken from the temple in Jerusalem and put in the temple in Babylon; and these King Cyrus took out of the temple in Babylon. He gave them to a man named Sheshbazzar whom he had appointed governor, and said to him, "Take these vessels; go and restore them to the temple in Jerusalem, and let the house of God there be rebuilt on its original site." Then this Sheshbazzar came and laid the foundation of the house of God in Jerusalem; and from that time until now the rebuilding has continued, but it is not yet finished.<sup>f</sup> Now, therefore, if it please Your Majesty, let search be made in the royal archives in Babylon, to discover whether a decree was issued by King Cyrus for the rebuilding of this house of God in Jerusalem. Then let the king send us his wishes in the matter.

6 Then King Darius issued an order, and search was made in the archives where the treasures were deposited in Babylon. But it was in Ecbatana, in the royal residence in the province of Media, that a scroll was found, on which was written the following memorandum:

3 In the first year of King Cyrus, the king issued this decree concerning the house of God in Jerusalem: Let the house be rebuilt as a place where sacrifices are offered and fire-offerings brought. Its height shall be sixty cubits and its breadth sixty cubits, with three courses of massive stones and one<sup>d</sup> course of timber, the cost to be defrayed from the royal treasury. Also the gold and silver vessels of the house of God, which Nebuchadnezzar took out of the temple in Jerusalem and brought to Babylon, shall be restored; they shall all be taken back to the temple in Jerusalem, and restored each to its place in the house of God.

6 Then King Darius issued this order:<sup>e</sup>

Now, Tattenai, governor of the province of Beyond-Euphrates, Shethar-bozenai, and your colleagues, the inspectors in the province of Beyond-Euphrates, you are to keep away from the place, and to leave the governor of the Jews and their elders free to rebuild this house of God; let them rebuild it on its original site. I also issue an order prescribing what you are to do for these elders of the Jews, so that the said house of God may be rebuilt. Their expenses are to be defrayed in full from the royal funds accruing from the taxes of the province of Beyond-Euphrates, so that the work may not be brought to a standstill. And let them have daily without fail whatever they want, young bulls, rams, or lambs as whole-offerings for the God of heaven, or wheat, salt, wine, or oil, as the priests in Jerusalem demand, so that they may offer soothing sacrifices to the God of heaven, and pray for the life of the king and his sons. Furthermore, I decree that, if any man tampers with this edict, a beam shall be pulled out of his house and he shall be fastened erect to it and flogged; and, in addition, his house shall be forfeit.<sup>f</sup> And may the God who made that place a dwelling for his Name overthrow any king or people that shall presume to tamper with this edict or to destroy this house of God in Jerusalem. I Darius have issued a decree; it is to be carried out to the letter.

Then Tattenai, governor of the province of Beyond-Euphrates, Shethar-bozenai, and their colleagues carried out to the letter the instructions which King Darius had sent them, and the elders of the Jews went on with the rebuilding. As a result of the prophecies <sup>d</sup> Prob. rdg., cp. 1 Esdras 6. 25; Aram. a new.

<sup>e</sup> Then . . . order: prob. rdg., cp. 1 Esdras 6. 27; Aram. om.

<sup>f</sup> Or made into a dunghill (mng. of Aram. word uncertain).

6.1–22: Completion of the Temple and celebration of Passover. 2: Ecbatana, modern Hamadan, was the summer residence of the Persian kings. 4: Stones . . . timber: such construction was usual. 7: Governor: possibly Zerubbabel (see Hag.2.21). 14: Artaxerxes (see Tfn. g) is mentioned in error, for he ruled after Darius I, and hence subsequent to the completion of

Ezra's mission to Jerusalem

of Haggai the prophet and Zechariah grandson of Iddo they had good success and finished the rebuilding as commanded by the God of Israel and according to the decrees of Cyrus and Darius;<sup>g</sup> and the house was completed on the twenty-third<sup>h</sup> day of the month Adar, in the sixth year of King Darius.

Then the people of Israel, the priests and the Levites and all the other exiles who had returned, celebrated the dedication of the house of God with great rejoicing. For its dedication they offered one hundred bulls, two hundred rams, and four hundred lambs, and as a sin-offering for all Israel twelve he-goats, corresponding to the number of the tribes of Israel. And they re-established the priests in their groups and the Levites in their divisions for the service of God in Jerusalem, as prescribed in the book of Moses.

On the fourteenth day of the first month the exiles who had returned kept the Passover. The priests and the Levites, one and all, had purified themselves; all of them were ritually clean, and they killed the passover lamb for all the exiles who had returned, for their fellow-priests and for themselves. It was eaten by the Israelites who had come back from exile and by all who had separated themselves from the peoples of the land and their uncleanness and sought the LORD the God of Israel. And they kept the pilgrim-feast of Unleavened Bread for seven days with rejoicing; for the LORD had given them cause for joy by changing the disposition of the king of Assyria towards them, so that he encouraged them in the work of the house of God, the God of Israel.

NOW AFTER THESE EVENTS, IN THE REIGN 7 of Artaxerxes king of Persia, there came up from Babylon one Ezra son of Seraiah, son of Azariah, son of Hilkiah, 2 son of Shallum, son of Zadok, son<sup>i</sup> of Ahitub, son of Amariah, son of 3 Azariah, son of Meraioth, son of 4 Zerariah, son of Uzzi, son of Bukki, son of Abishua, son of Phinehas, son 5 of Eleazar, son of Aaron the chief priest. He was a scribe<sup>j</sup> learned in the 6 law of Moses which the LORD the God of Israel had given them; and the king granted him all that he asked, for the hand of the LORD his God was upon him. In the seventh year of King 7 Artaxerxes, other Israelites, priests, Levites, singers, door-keepers, and temple-servitors went up with him to Jerusalem; and they reached Jerusalem 8 in the fifth month, in the seventh year of the king. On the first day of the first 9 month Ezra fixed the day for departure from Babylon, and on the first day of the fifth month he arrived at Jerusalem, for the gracious hand of his God was upon him. For Ezra had devoted him- 10 self to the study and observance of the law of the LORD and to teaching statute and ordinance in Israel.

This is a copy of the royal letter 11 which King Artaxerxes had given to Ezra the priest and scribe, a scribe versed in questions concerning the commandments and the statutes of the LORD laid upon Israel:

Artaxerxes, king of kings, to Ezra 12<sup>k</sup>

g Prob. rdg.: Aram. adds and Artaxerxes king of Persia.
h Prob. rdg., cp. 1 *Esdra*s 7: 5; Aram. third.
i Or grandson. j Or doctor of the law.
k The text of verses 12-26 is in Aramaic.

the Temple. 15: The date (see Tfn. h) corresponds to late March, 516 B.C. 16-18: Compare 1 Kgs. ch. 8. 18: No provision exists in the Pentateuch for the priests in their groups and Levites in their divisions. 19: First month: Nisan, corresponding to March-April. Passover (the fourteenth of Nisan) falls three weeks after the twenty-third of Adar mentioned in v. 15. 22: The end of "The Book of Zerubbabel"; see Introduction. King of Assyria is anachronistic, for Assyria had fallen in 612 B.C., about a hundred years earlier; but the phrase may simply mean a distant emperor ruling over what had been Assyria.

7.1-10.16: Ezra's mission to Jerusalem. "The Memoir of Ezra" seems extracted from the personal diaries of Ezra himself; see Introduction. The entire biblical book received its name from these chapters. It is likely that this section belongs chronologically after Neh. chs. 1-7; the "Memoir" continues (still in the first person) in Neh. chs. 8-10. 1: Artaxerxes: see Introduction. 6: Scribe: see Tfn. j. It means teacher, rather than copyist. 9: The first month was Nisan (March-April); the fifth month was Ab (July-August).

7.11-26: Artaxerxes' letter. Scholars disagree as to the precise nature and extent of Ezra's authority here granted, whether it was restricted to religious matters pertaining only to the the priest and scribe learned in the law of the God of heaven:

13 This is my decision. I hereby issue a decree that any of the people of Israel or of its priests or Levites in my kingdom who volunteer to go to 14 Jerusalem may go with you. You are sent by the king and his seven counsellors to find out how things stand in Judah and Jerusalem with regard to the law of your God with which 15 you are entrusted. You are also to convey the silver and gold which the king and his counsellors have freely offered to the God of Israel whose dwelling is in Jerusalem, together 16 with any silver and gold that you may find throughout the province of Babylon, and the voluntary offerings of the people and of the priests which they freely offer for the house of their
17 God in Jerusalem. In pursuance of this decree you shall use the money solely for the purchase of bulls, rams, and lambs, and the proper grain-offerings and drink-offerings, to be offered on the altar in the house of 18 your God in Jerusalem. Further, should any silver and gold be left over, you and your colleagues may use it at your discretion according to the will of your God. The vessels 19 which have been given you for the service of the house of your God you shall hand over to the God of Jerusalem; and if anything else should be required for the house of your God, which it may fall to you to provide, you may provide it out of the king's treasury.

21 And I, King Artaxerxes, issue an order to all treasurers in the province of Beyond-Euphrates that whatever is demanded of you by Ezra the priest, a scribe learned in the law of the God of heaven, is to be supplied exactly, up to a hundred talents of silver, a hundred kor of wheat, a hundred bath of wine, a hundred bath of oil, and salt without reckoning. Whatever is demanded by the 23 God of heaven, let it be diligently carried out for the house of the God of heaven; otherwise wrath may fall upon the realm of the king and his sons. We also make known to you 24 that you have no authority to impose general levy, poll-tax, or land-tax on any of the priests, Levites, musicians, door-keepers, temple-servitors, or other servants of this house of God.

And you, Ezra, in accordance with 25 the wisdom of your God with which you are entrusted, are to appoint arbitrators and judges to judge all your people in the province of Beyond-Euphrates, all who acknowledge the laws of your God,<sup>l</sup> and you and they are to instruct those who do not acknowledge them. Whoever will not obey the law of 26 your God and the law of the king, let judgement be rigorously executed upon him, be it death, banishment, confiscation of property, or imprisonment.

Then Ezra said,<sup>m</sup> 'Blessed be the 27 LORD the God of our fathers who has prompted the king thus to add glory to the house of the LORD in Jerusalem, and has made the king and his 28 counsellors and all his high officers well disposed towards me!'

So, knowing that the hand of the LORD my God was upon me, I took courage and assembled leading men out of Israel to go up with me.

These are the heads of families, as 8 registered, family by family, of those who went up with me from Babylon in the reign of King Artaxerxes: of the 2 family of Phinehas, Gershom; of the family of Ithamar, Daniel; of the family of David, Hattush son of<sup>n</sup>
3 Shecaniah; of the family of Parosh, Zechariah, and with him a hundred and fifty males in the register; of the 4 family of Pahath-moab, Elihoenai son

<sup>l</sup> to judge . . . your God: or all of them versed in the laws of your God, to judge all the people in the province of Beyond-Euphrates.

<sup>m</sup> Then Ezra said: prob. rdg., cp. 1 Esdras 8. 25; Heb. om.
<sup>n</sup> son of: prob. rdg.; Heb. of the family of.

returnees, or whether it included broad political powers over the entire province. 24: The tax exemption of Temple functionaries. 25: Laws of your God hearkens back to vv. 6 and 14.

7.27-28: Ezra's thanksgiving prayer.

8.1-14: A list of returnees is given here, just as one is also given in ch. 2 for earlier returnees.

of Zerariah, and with him two hundred 5 males; of the family of Zattu,<sup>o</sup> Sheca-niah son of Jahaziel, and with him 6 three hundred males; of the family of Adin, Ebed son of Jonathan, and with 7 him fifty males; of the family of Elam, Isaiah son of Athaliah, and with him 8 seventy males; of the family of She-phatiah, Zebadiah son of Michael, and 9 with him eighty males; of the family of Joab, Obadiah son of Jehiel, and with him two hundred and eighteen 10 males; of the family of Bani,<sup>p</sup> Shelomith son of Josiphiah, and with him a 11 hundred and sixty males; of the family of Bebai, Zechariah son of Bebai, and 12 with him twenty-eight males; of the family of Azgad, Johanan son of Hakkatan, and with him a hundred 13 and ten males. The last were the family of Adonikam, and these were their names: Eliphelet, Jeiel, and Shemaiah, 14 and with them sixty males; and the family of Bigvai, Uthai and Zabbud, and with them seventy males.
 15 I assembled them by the river which flows toward Ahava; and we encamped there three days. When I reviewed the people and the priests, I found no 16 Levite there. So I sent Eliezer, Ariel, Shemaiah, Elnathan, Jarib, Elnathan, Nathan, Zechariah, and Meshullam, prominent men, and Joiarib and 17 Elnathan, men of discretion, with instructions to go to Iddo, the chief man of the settlement at Casiphia; and I gave them a message for him and his kinsmen, the temple-servitors there, asking for servitors for the house of 18 our God to be sent to us. And, because the gracious hand of our God was upon us, they let us have Sherebiah, a man of discretion, of the family of Mahli son of Levi, son of Israel, together with his sons and kinsmen, 19 eighteen men; also Hashabiah, together with Isaiah of the family of Merari, his kinsmen and their sons, twenty men;

besides two hundred and twenty 20 temple-servitors (this was an order instituted by David and his officers to assist the Levites). These were all indicated by name.

Then I proclaimed a fast there by the 21 river Ahava, so that we might mortify ourselves before our God and ask from him a safe journey for ourselves, our dependants, and all our possessions.
 For I was ashamed to ask the king for 22 an escort of soldiers and horsemen to help us against enemies on the way, because we had said to the king, 'The hand of our God is upon all who seek him, working their good; but his fierce anger is on all who forsake him.' So 23 we fasted and asked our God for a safe journey, and he answered our prayer.

Then I separated twelve of the chiefs 24 of the priests, together with<sup>q</sup> Sherebiah and Hashabiah and ten of their kinsmen, and handed over to them the silver 25 and gold and the vessels which had been set aside by the king, his counsellors and his officers and all the Israelites who were present, as their contribution to the house of our God.
 I handed over to them six hundred and 26 fifty talents of silver, a hundred silver vessels weighing two talents, a hundred talents of gold, twenty golden bowls 27 worth a thousand drachmas, and two vessels of a fine red copper,<sup>r</sup> precious as gold. And I said to the men, 'You 28 are dedicated to the LORD, and the vessels too are sacred, the silver and gold are a voluntary offering to the LORD the God of your fathers. Watch 29 over them and guard them, until you hand them over in the presence of the chiefs of the priests and the Levites and the heads of families of Israel in Jerusalem, in the rooms of the house of
 the LORD.'

<sup>o</sup> of Zattu: prob. rdg., cp. 1 Esdras 8. 32; Heb. om.

<sup>p</sup> of Bani: prob. rdg., cp. 1 Esdras 8. 36; Heb. om.

<sup>q</sup> together with: prob. rdg., cp. 1 Esdras 8. 54; Heb. om.

<sup>r</sup> red copper: or orichalc.

8.15-20: Recruitment of Levites. The locations of the canal/river and Ahava cannot be ascertained. 15: No Levite: in the list of earlier returnees the Levites (2.40) appear to have been few. 16: There may be an erroneous duplication of the same names; Elnathan surprisingly occurs three times. 17: Casiphia: its location is unknown.

8.21-36: The preparation for leaving (vv. 21-30); the journey (31-32); the arrival in Jerusalem (33-36). 21-23: The fast and prayer were usual devotional preparations for a new venture. 22: Ashamed to ask: Ezra, a priest, believed that God would protect his people, without need of soldiers; Nehemiah, designated the governor (Neh.12.26), went to Jerusalem with an escort of army officers with cavalry (Neh.2.9). 26-27: The amounts here are regarded as exaggerated.

30 So the priests and Levites received the consignment of silver and gold and vessels, to be taken to the house of our 31 God in Jerusalem; and on the twelfth day of the first month we left the river Ahava bound for Jerusalem. The hand of our God was upon us, and he saved us from enemy attack and from 32 ambush on the way. When we arrived at Jerusalem, we rested for three days.
 33 And on the fourth day the silver and gold and the vessels were deposited in the house of our God in the charge of Meremoth son of Uriah the priest, who had with him Eleazar son of Phinehas, and they had with them the Levites Jozabad son of Jeshua and Noadiah son of Binnui. Everything 34 was checked as it was handed over, and at the same time a written record was made of the whole consignment.
 35 Then those who had come home from captivity, the exiles who had returned, offered as whole-offerings to the God of Israel twelve bulls for all Israel, ninety-six rams and seventy-two<sup>5</sup> lambs, with twelve he-goats as a sin-offering; all these were offered as a whole-offering 36 to the LORD. They also delivered the king's commission to the royal satraps and governors in the province of Beyond-Euphrates; and these gave support to the people and the house of God.

9 When all this had been done, some of the leaders approached me and said, 'The people of Israel, including priests and Levites, have not kept themselves apart from the foreign population and from the abominable practices of the Canaanites, the Hittites, the Perizzites, the Jebusites, the Ammonites, the Moabites, the Egyptians, and the
 2 Amorites. They have taken women of these nations as wives for themselves and their sons, so that the holy race has become mixed with the foreign population; and the leaders and magistrates have been the chief offenders.'

When I heard this news, I rent my robe and mantle, and tore my hair and my beard, and I sat dumbfounded; and all 4 who went in fear of the words of the God of Israel rallied to me because of the offence of these exiles. I sat there dumbfounded till the evening sacrifice.

Then, at the evening sacrifice, I rose
 5 from my humiliation and, in my rent robe and mantle, I knelt down and spread out my hands to the LORD my God and said, 'O my God, I am
 6 humiliated, I am ashamed to lift my face to thee, my God; for we are sunk in our iniquities, and our guilt is so great that it reaches high heaven. From 7 the days of our fathers down to this present day our guilt has been great. For our iniquities we, our kings, and our priests have been subject to death, captivity, pillage, and shameful humiliation at the hands of foreign kings, and such is our present plight. But now, for a brief
 8 moment, the LORD our God has been gracious to us, leaving us some survivors and giving us a foothold in his holy place. He has brought light to our eyes again and given us some chance to renew our lives in our slavery. For slaves we are; nevertheless, our 9 God has not forsaken us in our slavery, but has made the kings of Persia so well disposed towards us as to give us the means of renewal, so that we may repair the house of our God and rebuild its ruins, and to give us a wall of defence in<sup>6</sup> Judah and Jerusalem. Now, O our God, what are we to say
 10 after this? For we have neglected the commands which thou gavest through 11 thy servants the prophets, when thou saidst, "The land which you are entering and will possess is a polluted land, polluted by the foreign population with their abominable practices, which have made it unclean from end to end. Therefore, do not give your daughters 12

<sup>5</sup> Prob. rdg., cp. 1 Esdras 8. 65; Heb. seventy-seven.

<sup>6</sup> Or thereby giving us a wall of defence for . . .

31-32: See 7.9; the journey took four months. 36: The king's commission presumably spelled out to the local rulers the precise extent of Ezra's authority.

9.1-15: Mixed marriages. 2: Holy race: see v. 11-12.

9.10-15: Ezra's prayer for forgiveness. 11-12: When thou saidst: an exact quotation from Scripture is expected, but does not appear, as is the case too in Neh. 1.8-9; only an echo of general ideas (e.g. Lev. 18.24-30 or Deut. 7.1-3) is given. 11: The Heb. word for polluted is used in Lev. ch. 15 (and elsewhere) for sexual impurity, a result of the abominable practices indulged in by the natives.

in marriage to their sons, and do not marry your sons to their daughters, and never seek their welfare or prosperity. Thus you will be strong and enjoy the good things of the land, and pass it on to your children as an everlasting possession." Now, after all that we have suffered for our evil deeds and for our great guilt—although thou, our God, hast punished us less than our iniquities deserved and hast allowed us to survive as now we do—shall we again disobey thy commands and join in marriage with peoples who indulge in such abominable practices? Would not thy anger against us be unrelenting, until no remnant, no survivor was left? O LORD God of Israel, thou art righteous; now as before, we are only a remnant that has survived. Look upon us, guilty as we are in thy sight; for because of our guilt none of us can stand in thy presence.'

10 While Ezra was praying and making confession, prostrate in tears before the house of God, a very great crowd of Israelites assembled round him, men, women, and children, and they all wept bitterly. Then Shecaniah son of Jehiel, one of the family of Elam, spoke up and said to Ezra, 'We have committed an offence against our God in marrying foreign wives, daughters of the foreign population. But in spite of this, there is still hope for Israel. Now, therefore, let us pledge ourselves to our God to dismiss all these women and their brood, according to your advice, my lord, and the advice of those who go in fear of the command of our God; and let us act as the law prescribes. Up now, the task is yours, and we will support you. Take courage and act.'

5 Ezra stood up and made the chiefs of the priests, the Levites, and all the Israelites swear to do as had been said; and they took the oath. Then Ezra left his place in front of the house of God and went to the room of Jehohanan grandson of Eliashib and lodged<sup>u</sup> there; he neither ate bread nor drank water, for he was mourning for the offence committed by the exiles who had returned. Next, there was issued throughout Judah and Jerusalem a proclamation that all the exiles should assemble in Jerusalem, and that if anyone did not arrive within three days, it should be within the discretion of the chief officers and the elders to confiscate all his property and to exclude him from the community of the exiles. So all the men of Judah and Benjamin assembled in Jerusalem within the three days; and on the twentieth day of the ninth month the people all sat in the forecourt of the house of God, trembling with apprehension and shivering in the heavy rain. Ezra the priest stood up and said, 'You have committed an offence in marrying foreign wives and have added to Israel's guilt. Make your confession now to the LORD the God of your fathers and do his will, and separate yourselves from the foreign population and from your foreign wives.' Then all the assembled people shouted in reply, 'Yes; we must do what you say. But there is a great crowd of us here, and it is the rainy season; we cannot go on standing out here in the open. Besides, this business will not be finished in one day or even two, because we have committed so grave an offence in this matter. Let our leading men act for the whole assembly, and let all in our cities who have married foreign women present themselves at appointed times, each man with the elders and judges of his own city, until God's anger against us on this account is averted.' Only Jonathan son of Asahel and Jahzeiah son of Tikvah, supported by Meshullam and Shabbethai the Levite, opposed this. So the exiles acted as agreed, and

<sup>u</sup> Prob. rdg., cp. 1 Esdras 9. 2; Heb. went.

10.1–44: The divorce of Gentile wives. The drastic step was deemed necessary to preserve the Hebrew faith unadulterated (compare also 1 Kgs. 11.1–14). 3: The law prescribes: see Deut. 7.3. 6: The Heb. ben can mean grandson as well as son. Despite some uncertainties, it would seem from Neh. 13.28 that Jehohanan was the grandson of Eliashib and son of Jehoiaada. In Neh. 3.1, Eliashib is identified as contemporaneous with Nehemiah. Here the grandson is contemporaneous with Ezra. 9: The ninth month was Kislev (November–December), a rainy period. 15: These opponents (Jonathan, Jahzeiah, Meshullam, Shabbethai) are not otherwise identified.

- Ezra the priest selected<sup>v</sup> certain men, heads of households representing their families, all of them designated by name. They began their formal inquiry into the matter on the first day of the
- 17 tenth month, and by the first day of the first month they had finished their inquiry into all the marriages with foreign women.
- 18 Among the members of priestly families who had married foreign women were found Maaseiah, Eliezer, Jarib, and Gedaliah of the family of Jeshua son of Jozadak and his brothers.
- 19 They pledged themselves to dismiss their wives, and they brought a ram from the flock as a guilt-offering for their sins. Of the family of Immer:
- 20 Hanani and Zebadiah. Of the family of Harim: Maaseiah, Elijah, Shemaiah, Jehiel and Uziah. Of the family of Pashhur: Elioenai, Maaseiah, Ishmael, Nethaneel, Jozabad and Elasa.
- 23 Of the Levites: Jozabad, Shimei, Kelaiah (that is Kelita), Pethahiah, Judah and Eliezer. Of the singers: Eliashib. Of the door-keepers: Shallum, Telem and Uri.
- 25 And of Israel: of the family of Parosh: Ramiah, Izziah, Malchiah, Mijamin, Eleazar, Malchiah and Benaiah. Of the family of Elam: Mattaniah, Zechariah, Jehiel, Abdi,
- 27 Jeremoth and Elijah. Of the family of Zattu: Elioenai, Eliashib, Mattaniah, Jeremoth, Zabad and Aziza. Of the 28 family of Bebai: Jehohanan, Hananiah, Zabbai and Athlai. Of the family of 29 Bani: Meshullam, Malluch, Adaiah, Jashub, Sheal and Jeremoth. Of the 30 family of Pahath-moab: Adna, Kelal, Benaiah, Maaseiah, Mattaniah, Bezalel, Binnui and Manasseh. Of the 31 family of Harim: Eliezer, Isshijah, Malchiah, Shemaiah, Simeon, Benjamin, Malluch and Shemariah. Of the 32 family of Hashum: Mattenai, Mattattah, Zabad, Eliphelet, Jeremai, Manasseh and Shimei. Of the family of Bani: 34 Maadai, Amram and Uel, Benaiah, Bedeiah and Keluhi, Vaniah, Mere-moth, Eliashib, Mattaniah, Mattenai 37 and Jaasau. Of the family of<sup>w</sup> Binnui: Shimei, Shelemiah, Nathan and 39 Adaiah, Maknadebai, Shashai and Sharai, Azareel, Shelemiah and Shemariah, Shallum, Amariah and Joseph. 42 Of the family of Nebo: Jeiel, Mattithiah, Zabad, Zebina, Jaddai, Joel and Benaiah. All these had married foreign 44 women, and they dismissed them, together with their children.<sup>x</sup>

<sup>v</sup> and Ezra the priest selected: prob. rdg., cp. 1 Esdras 9.16; Heb. obscure.

<sup>w</sup> Of the family of: prob. rdg., cp. 1 Esdras 9.34; Heb. and Bani and.

<sup>x</sup> and they . . . children: prob. rdg., cp. 1 Esdras 9.36; Heb. and some of them were women; and they had borne sons.

16: Tenth month: Tebeth (December–January). 17: The first month was Nisan (March–April). 18–43: The list numbers over one hundred offenders, a fraction of the total populace. Perhaps only the names of the prominent persons are given, but others too were implicated. 19: A guilt-offering is not specifically prescribed in Scripture for marriage to a non-Israelite spouse; it could have been an ad hoc decision by the leaders of v. 16. 44: Children: see Tfn. x.

THE BOOK OF NEHEMIAH

The books of Ezra and Nehemiah are part of the same writing; the Introduction to Ezra treats literary and chronological problems of Nehemiah too.

The events described in the Book of Nehemiah (except chs. 8–9) took place during the reign of the Persian king, Artaxerxes I (464–424 B.C.). Nehemiah, who lived in Susa, the Persian capital, made two visits to Jerusalem. The first was in 445/444 B.C. (1.1; 2.1), and lasted for twelve years (until 433/432); see 5.14. The second visit was some time after this, but before the death of Artaxerxes I (13.6–7).

The material here, like that in Ezra, consists of several distinct genres. Nehemiah's memoirs provide personal reflections on the events of the day, a number of prayers, and accounts of his determination to ameliorate the position of the downtrodden Judeans. In addition, there are census lists, a psalm of confession and repentance, and a record of rededication to the service of God.

Nehemiah's commission

1 THE NARRATIVE OF NEHEMIAH SON OF HACHALIAH.

2 In the month Kislev in the twentieth year, when I was in Susa the capital city, it happened that one of my brothers, Hanani, arrived with some others from Judah; and I asked them about Jerusalem and about the Jews, the families still remaining of those who survived the captivity. They told me that those still remaining in the province who had survived the captivity were facing great trouble and reproach; the wall of Jerusalem was broken down and the gates had been destroyed by fire. When I heard this news, I sat down and wept; I mourned for some days, fasting and praying to the God of heaven. This was my prayer: 'O LORD God of heaven, O great and terrible God who faithfully keepest covenant with those who love thee and observe thy commandments, let thy ear be attentive and thine eyes open, to hear my humble prayer which I make to thee day and night on behalf of thy servants the sons of Israel. I confess the sins which we Israelites have all committed against thee, and of which I and my father's house are also guilty. We have wronged thee and have not observed the commandments, statutes, and rules which thou didst enjoin upon thy servant Moses. Remember what thou didst impress upon him in these words: "If you are unfaithful, I will disperse you among the nations; but if you return to me and observe my commandments and fulfil them, I will gather your children who have been scattered to the ends of the earth and will bring them home to the place which I have chosen as a dwelling for my Name." They are thy servants and thy people, whom thou hast redeemed with thy great might and thy strong hand. O Lord, let thy ear be attentive to my humble prayer, and to 1.1–2.10: Nehemiah's commission: Susa was the winter residence of the Persian kings after 521 B.C. Nehemiah, the royal cupbearer (2.1 here, but 1.11 in the MT), was an influential court figure. 1: Kislev: (November–December) the twentieth year alludes to the reign of Artaxerxes I (mentioned in 2.1) and would be 445/444 B.C. Nisan (March–April), is described as still "in the twentieth year" in 2.1, where we would expect the twenty-first, for the Babylonian year ran from spring to spring. But possibly the years here are reckoned from Tishri (September–October) and are regnal years, differing from ordinary calendar years. 2: While brothers can mean friends or colleagues, 7.2 suggests that Hanani was a real brother. The families still remaining had continued in Jerusalem when substantial parts of the population went into exile after 587 B.C. 3: Broken down . . . destroyed: this seems to allude to an obscure disaster after the time of Cyrus (538–529 B.C.); Nehemiah has had no prior knowledge of it. 5–11: The structure of Nehemiah's prayer is praise, supplication, confession, supplication. 8–9: An exact quotation from the Pentateuch is expected but does not appear; perhaps Deut.30.1–5 is being echoed. 11: Let thy ear be attentive is not a needless repetition of the same phrase in v. 6, but, rather, climaxes Nehemiah's prayer. This man's heart refers to Artaxerxes I. See 2.1.

bourhood of Jerusalem did the repairs.
 23 Next Benjamin and Hasshub did the repairs opposite their own house; and next Azariah son of Maaseiah, son of Ananiah, did the repairs beside his house.
 24 After him Binnui son of Henadad repaired a second section, from the house of Azariah as far as the escarpment and the corner. Palal son of Uzai worked opposite the escarpment and the upper tower which projects from the king's house and belongs to the court of the guard. After him Pedaiah son of Parosh<sup>f</sup> worked as far as a point on the east opposite the Water Gate and the projecting tower. Next the men of Tekoa repaired a second section, from a point opposite the great projecting tower as far as the wall of Ophel.

28 Above the Horse Gate the priests did the repairs opposite their own houses. After them Zadok son of Immer did the repairs opposite his own house; after him Shemaiah son of Shecaniah, the keeper of the East Gate, did the repairs. After him Hananiah son of Shelemiah and Hanun, sixth son of Zalaph, repaired a second section. After him Meshullam son of Berechiah did the repairs opposite his room.
 31 After him Malchiah, a goldsmith, did the repairs as far as the house of the temple-servitors and the merchants, opposite the Mustering Gate, as far as the roof-chamber at the corner. Between the roof-chamber at the corner and the Sheep Gate the goldsmiths and merchants did the repairs.

4 WHEN SANBALLAT HEARD THAT WE were rebuilding the wall, he was very indignant; in his anger he jeered at the Jews and said in front of his companions and of the garrison in Samaria, 'What do these feeble Jews think they are doing? Do they mean to reconstruct the place? Do they hope to offer sacrifice and finish the work in a day? Can they make stones again out of heaps of rubble, and burnt at that?' Tobiah the Ammonite, who was beside him, said, 'Whatever it is they are building, if a fox climbs up their stone walls, it will break them down.'

Hear us, our God, for they treat us with contempt. Turn back their reproach upon their own heads and let them become objects of contempt in a land of captivity. Do not condone their guilt or let their sin be struck off the record, for they have openly provoked the builders.

We built up the wall until it was continuous all round up to half its height; and the people worked with a will. But when Sanballat and Tobiah, the Arabs and Ammonites and Ashdodites, heard that the new work on the walls of Jerusalem had made progress and that the filling of the breaches had begun, they were very angry; and they all banded together to come and attack Jerusalem and to create confusion. So we prayed to our God, and posted a guard day and night against them.

But the men of Judah said, 'The labourers' strength has failed, and there is too much rubble; we shall never be able to rebuild the wall by ourselves.' And our adversaries said, 'Before they know it or see anything, we shall be upon them and kill them, and so put an end to the work.' When the Jews who lived among them came in to the city, they warned us many times that they would gather from every place where they lived to attack us, and that they would station themselves on the lowest levels below the wall, on patches of open ground. Accordingly I posted my people by families, armed with swords, spears, and bows. Then I surveyed the position and at once addressed the nobles, the magistrates, and all the people. 'Do not be afraid of them', I said. 'Remember the Lord, great and terrible, and fight for your brothers, your sons and daughters, your wives and your homes.' Our enemies heard that everything was known to us, and that God

<sup>f</sup> Prob. rdg.: Heb. adds and the temple-servitors lodged on Ophel (cp. 11. 21).

4.1-23: The attempts to impede. 4-5: The narrative is interrupted by a curse pronounced against the enemies. 10-15: Even some Jews join against the builders. 16-23: The protection had frustrated their plans; and we all returned to our work on the wall.

16 From that day forward half the men under me were engaged in the actual building, while the other half stood by holding their spears, shields, and bows, and wearing coats of mail; and officers supervised all the people of Judah 17 who were engaged on the wall. The porters carrying the loads had one hand on the load and a weapon in the 18 other. The builders had their swords attached to their belts as they built;
19 the trumpeter was beside me. I addressed the nobles, the magistrates, and all the people: 'The work is great and covers much ground', I said. 'We are isolated on the wall, each man at some distance from his neighbour.
20 Wherever the trumpet sounds, rally to us there, and our God will fight for us.' So we continued with the work, half the men holding the spears, from 22 daybreak until the stars came out. At the same time I had said to the people, 'Let every man and his servant pass the night in Jerusalem, to act as a guard for us by night and a working 23 party by day.' So neither I nor my kinsmen nor the men under me nor my bodyguard ever took off our clothes, each keeping his right hand on<sup>g</sup> his weapon.

5 THERE CAME A TIME WHEN THE COMMON people, both men and women, raised a great outcry against their fellow-Jews.
2 Some complained that they were giving their sons and daughters as pledges<sup>h</sup> for food to keep themselves alive;
3 others that they were mortgaging their fields, vineyards, and houses to buy
4 corn in the famine; others again that they were borrowing money on their fields and vineyards to pay the king's 5 tax. 'But', they said, 'our bodily needs are the same as other people's, our children are as good as theirs; yet here we are, forcing our sons and daughters to become slaves. Some of our daughters are already enslaved, and there is nothing we can do, because our fields and vineyards now belong to others.' I 6 was very angry when I heard their outcry and the story they told. I mastered my 7 feelings and reasoned with the nobles and the magistrates. I said to them, 'You are holding your fellow-Jews as pledges for debt.' I rebuked them

8 severely and said, 'As far as we have been able, we have bought back our fellow-Jews who had been sold to other nations; but you are now selling your own fellow-countrymen, and they will have to be bought back by us!' They were silent and had not a word to say.
9 I went on, 'What you are doing is wrong. You ought to live so much in the fear of God that you are above reproach in the eyes of the nations who are our enemies. Speaking for 10 myself, I and my kinsmen and the men under me are advancing them money and corn. Let us give up this taking 11 of persons as pledges for debt. Give back today to your debtors their fields and vineyards, their olive-groves and 12 houses, as well as the income<sup>i</sup> in money, and in corn, new wine, and oil.' 'We will give them back', they promised, 'and exact nothing more. We will do what you say.' So, summoning the priests, I put the offenders on oath 13 to do as they had promised. Then I shook out the fold of my robe and said, 'So may God shake out from his house and from his property every man who does not fulfil this promise. May he be shaken out like this and emptied!'
14 And all the assembled people said 'Amen' and praised the LORD. And they did as they had promised.

Moreover, from the time when I was appointed governor in the land of

<sup>g</sup> keeping his right hand on: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.
<sup>h</sup> that they . . . as pledges: prob. rdg.; Heb. that they, their sons and daughters were many.
<sup>i</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. hundredth.

of the workers. 18: The trumpeter was beside me: presumably others were also stationed around the wall to give the alarm from any quarter.

5.1-13: The plight of the poor. The chapter seems out of place and not directly connected with the building of the wall, which it interrupts. 1-5: The exploitation of the poor by the rich. 6-13: Nehemiah's response. 7-10: The charging of interest is prohibited in Deut.23.20. 13: Shook out: a symbolic gesture meant to reinforce the oath of the offenders.

5.14-19: Nehemiah defends his governorship. The section emphasizes his concern not to harass the poor through personal demands. The occasion for the apology is not known.

Judah, from the twentieth to the thirty-second year of King Artaxerxes, a period of twelve years, neither I nor my kinsmen drew the governor's allowance of food. Former governors had laid a heavy burden on the people, exacting from them a daily toll<sup>j</sup> of bread and wine to the value of forty shekels of silver. Further, the men under them had tyrannized over the people; but, for fear of God, I did not behave like this. I also put all my energy into the work on this wall, and I acquired no land; and all my men were gathered there for the work. Also I had as guests at my table a hundred and fifty Jews, including the magistrates, as well as men who came to us from the surrounding nations. The provision which had to be made each day was an ox and six prime sheep; fowls also were prepared for me, and every ten days skins of wine in abundance. Yet, in spite of all this, I did not draw the governor's allowance, because the people were so heavily burdened. Remember for my good, O God, all that I have done for this people.

6 When the news came to Sanballat, Tobiah, Geshem the Arab, and the rest of our enemies, that I had rebuilt the wall and that not a single breach remained in it, although I had not yet set up the doors in the gates, Sanballat and Geshem sent me an invitation to come and confer with them at Hakkephirim in the plain of Ono; this was a ruse on their part to do me harm. So I sent messengers to them with this reply: 'I have important work on my hands at the moment; I cannot come down. Why should the work be brought to a standstill while I leave it and come down to you?' They sent me a similar invitation four times, and each time I gave them the same answer. On a fifth occasion Sanballat made a similar approach, but this time his messenger came with an open letter. It ran as follows: 'It is reported among the nations—and Gashmu<sup>k</sup> confirms it—that you and the Jews are plotting rebellion, and it is for this reason that you are rebuilding the wall, and—so the report goes—that you yourself want to be king. You are also said to have put up prophets to proclaim in Jerusalem that Judah has a king, meaning yourself. The king will certainly hear of this. So come at once and let us talk the matter over.' Here is the reply I sent: 'No such thing as you allege has taken place; you have made up the whole story.' They were all trying to intimidate us, in the hope that we should then relax our efforts and that the work would never be finished. So I applied myself to it with greater energy.

One day I went to the house of Shemaiah son of Delaiah, son of Mehetabel, for he was confined to his house. He said, 'Let us meet in the house of God, within the sanctuary, and let us shut the doors, for they are coming to kill you—they are coming to kill you by night.' But I said, 'Should a man like me run away? And can a man like me go into the sanctuary and survive?<sup>l</sup> I will not go in.' Then it dawned on me: God had not sent him. His prophecy aimed at harming me, and Tobiah and Sanballat had bribed him to utter it. He had been bribed to frighten me into compliance and into committing sin; then they could give me a bad name and discredit me. Remember Tobiah and Sanballat, O God, for what they have done, and also the prophetess Noadiah and all the other prophets who have tried to intimidate me.

On the twenty-fifth day of the month Elul the wall was finished; it had taken fifty-two days. When our enemies heard of it, and all the surrounding

<sup>j</sup> a daily toll: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.

<sup>k</sup> Geshem in 2. 19 and 6. 1, 2.

<sup>l</sup> and survive: or to save his life.

6.1–19: The plots of the enemy. 2: Hakkephirim is an unknown village; the plain of Ono is located near the seacoast, some distance from Jerusalem. 5–9: Accusation of rebellion. 5: The open letter, if recorded on a clay tablet, had no clay envelope; if on papyrus or parchment, it was not folded or sealed. In either case, the senders obviously intended no secrecy. Compare Jer.32.14. 10–14: Shemaiah plots against Nehemiah. 11: A man like me: a political leader must neither show cowardice nor commit sacrilege (see Num.3.10; 18.7). 15–19: Completion of the wall. 15: Elul: August-September, 444 B.C. 16: The verse reflects understandable exaggeration.

nations saw it,<sup>m</sup> they thought it a very wonderful achievement,<sup>n</sup> and they recognized that this work had been accomplished by the help of our God.

17 All this time the nobles in Judah were sending many letters to Tobiah, and receiving replies from him. For many in Judah were in league with him, because he was a son-in-law of Shecaniah son of Arah, and his son Jehohanan had married a daughter of Meshullam son of Berechiah. They were always praising<sup>o</sup> him in my presence and repeating to him what I said. Tobiah also wrote to me to intimidate me.

7 NOW WHEN THE WALL HAD BEEN rebuilt, and I had set the doors in place and the gate-keepers<sup>p</sup> had been appointed, I gave the charge of Jerusalem to my brother Hanani, and to Hananiah, the governor of the citadel, for he was trustworthy and God-fearing above other men. And I said to them, 'The entrances to Jerusalem are not to be left open during the heat of the day; the gates must be kept shut and barred while the gate-keepers are standing at ease. Appoint guards from among the inhabitants of Jerusalem, some on sentry-duty and others posted in front of their own homes.'

4 The city was large and spacious; there were few people in it and no houses had yet been rebuilt. Then God prompted me to assemble the nobles, the magistrates, and the people, to be enrolled family by family. And I found the book of the genealogies of those who had been the first to come back.

6<sup>q</sup> This is what I found written in it: Of the captives whom Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon had taken into exile, these are the people of the province who have returned to Jerusalem and

7 Judah, each to his own town, led by Zerubbabel, Jeshua,<sup>r</sup> Nehemiah, Azariah, Raamiah, Nahamani, Mordecai, Bilshan, Mispereth, Bigvai, Nehum and Baanah.

The roll of the men of the people of Israel: the family of Parosh, two thousand one hundred and seventy-two; the family of Shephatiah, three hundred and seventy-two; the family of Arah, six hundred and fifty-two; the family of Pahath-moab, namely the families of Jeshua and Joab, two thousand eight hundred and eighteen; the family of Elam, one thousand two hundred and fifty-four; the family of Zattu, eight hundred and forty-five; the family of Zaccai, seven hundred and sixty; the family of Binnui, six hundred and forty-eight; the family of Bebai, six hundred and twenty-eight; the family of Azgad, two thousand three hundred and twenty-two; the family of Adonikam, six hundred and sixty-seven; the family of Bigvai, two thousand and sixty-seven; the family of Adin, six hundred and fifty-five; the family of Ater, namely that of Hezekiah, ninety-eight; the family of Hashum, three hundred and twenty-eight; the family of Bezai, three hundred and twenty-four; the family of Harif, one hundred and twelve; the family of Gibeon, ninety-five. The men of Bethlehem and Netophah, one hundred and eighty-eight; the men of Anathoth, one hundred and twenty-eight; the men of Beth-azmoth, forty-two; the men of Kiriath-jearim, Kephirah, and Beeroth, seven hundred and forty-three; the men of Ramah and Geba, six hundred and twenty-one; the men of Michmas, one hundred and twenty-two; the men of Bethel and Ai, one hundred and twenty-three; the men of<sup>s</sup> Nebo, fifty-two; the men<sup>t</sup> of the other Elam, one thousand two hundred and fifty-four; the men of Harim, three hundred and twenty; the men of Jericho, three hundred and forty-five; the men of Lod, Hadid and Ono, seven hundred

m Or were afraid.

n they thought . . . achievement: prob. rdg.: Heb. they fell very much in their own eyes.

o Or repeating rumours about . . .

p Prob. rdg.: Heb. adds the singers and the Levites.

q Verses 6-73: cp. Ezra 2. 1-70.

r Or Joshua (cp. Hag. 1. 1).

s Prob. rdg., cp. Ezra 2. 29; Heb. adds the other.

t Prob. rdg.: Heb. family (also in verses 35-38).

17-19: For further data on Tobiah and his Jewish connections—his chamber in the temple—see 13.4-9.

7.1-73a: Guards and patrols. 2: Hanani: see 1.2 n. Citadel: mentioned in 2.8, 4-5: The taking of a census. 6-73a: This list of returning Judeans duplicates, with slight variations, that of Ezra 2.1-70.

38 and twenty-one; the men of Senaah, three thousand nine hundred and thirty.

39 Priests: the family of Jedaiah, of the line of Jeshua, nine hundred and 62
40 seventy-three; the family of Immer, 63
41 one thousand and fifty-two; the family of Pashhur, one thousand two hundred 42 and forty-seven; the family of Harim, one thousand and seventeen.

43 Levites: the families of Jeshua and<sup>u</sup> Kadmiel, of the line of Hodvah, 64
44 seventy-four. Singers: the family of Asaph, one hundred and forty-eight.
45 Door-keepers: the family of Shallum, the family of Ater, the family of Talmon, the family of Akkub, the family of Hatita, and the family of Shobai, one hundred and thirty-eight in all.

46 Temple-servitors: the family of Ziha, 66
47 the family of Hasupha, the family of Tabbaoth, the family of Keros, the 67
48 family of Sia, the family of Padon, the family of Lebanah, the family of 68
49 Hagabah, the family of Shalmai, the family of Hanan, the family of Giddel, 69
50 the family of Gahar, the family of Reaiah, the family of Rezin, the family of Nekoda, the family of Gazzam, the family of Uzza, the family of Paseah, 70
52 the family of Besai, the family of the Meunim, the family of the Nephishesim,<sup>v</sup> the family of Bakbuk, the family of Hakhupha, the family of Harhur, 71
54 the family of Bazlith,<sup>w</sup> the family of Mehida, the family of Harsha, the 72
55 family of Barkos, the family of Sisera, the family of Temah, the family of Nezhiah, and the family of Hatipha.

57 Descendants of Solomons' servants: 73
58 the family of Sotai, the family of Sophereth, the family of Perida, the 74
59 family of Jaalah, the family of Darkon, the family of Giddel, the family of Shephatiah, the family of Hattil, the family of Pochereth-hazzebaim, and the family of Amon.

60 The temple-servitors and the descendants of Solomon's servants amounted to three hundred and ninety-two in all.

61 The following were those who returned from Tel-melah, Tel-harsha, Kerub, Addon, and Immer, but could not establish their father's family nor whether by descent they belonged to Israel: the family of Delaiah, the 62 family of Tobiah, the family of Nekoda, 63 six hundred and forty-two. Also of the 64 priests: the family of Hobaiah, the family of Hakkoz, and the family of Barzillai who had married a daughter of Barzillai the Gileadite and went by his<sup>x</sup> name. These searched for their 65 names among those enrolled in the genealogies, but they could not be found; they were disqualified for the priesthood as unclean, and the gover- 66 nor forbade them to partake of the most sacred food until there should be a priest able to consult the Urim and the Thummim.

The whole assembled people num- 66
bered forty-two thousand three hundred and sixty, apart from their slaves, 67 male and female, of whom there were seven thousand three hundred and thirty-seven; and they had two hundred and forty-five singers, men and women. Their horses numbered seven hundred 68 and thirty-six, their mules two hundred and forty-five, their camels four hundred 69 and thirty-five, and their asses six thousand seven hundred and twenty.

Some of the heads of families gave 70 contributions for the work. The governor gave to the treasury a thousand drachmas of gold, fifty tossing-bowls, and five hundred and thirty priestly robes. Some of the heads of families 71 gave for the fabric fund twenty thousand drachmas of gold and two thousand two hundred minas of silver. What 72 the rest of the people gave was twenty thousand drachmas of gold, two thousand minas of silver, and sixty-seven priestly robes.

The priests, the Levites, and some of 73
the people lived in Jerusalem and its suburbs;<sup>y</sup> the door-keepers, the singers, the temple-servitors, and all other Israelites, lived in their own towns.

<sup>u</sup> and: prob. rdg.; cp. Ezra 2. 40; Heb. to.

<sup>v</sup> Or Nephushesim.

<sup>w</sup> Or Bazluth (cp. Ezra 2. 52).

<sup>x</sup> Prob. rdg., cp. 1 Esdras 5. 38; Heb. their.

<sup>y</sup> in Jerusalem and its suburbs: prob. rdg., cp. 1 Esdras 5. 46; Heb. om.

7.73b-8.12: The law read by Ezra and the covenant renewed. The section 7.73b-9.37 is misplaced (see Introduction to Ezra); it is about Ezra. Perhaps it should follow directly after

The law read by Ezra and the covenant renewed

8 WHEN THE SEVENTH MONTH CAME, AND the Israelites were now settled in their towns, the people assembled as one man in the square in front of the Water Gate, and Ezra the scribe<sup>z</sup> was asked to bring the book of the law of Moses, which the LORD had enjoined upon 2 Israel. On the first day of the seventh month, Ezra the priest brought the law before the assembly, every man and woman, and all who were capable of understanding what they heard.<sup>a</sup> He read from it, facing the square in front of the Water Gate, from early morning till noon, in the presence of the men and the women, and those who could understand;<sup>b</sup> all the people listened attentively to the book of the law. 4 Ezra the scribe stood on a wooden platform made for the purpose,<sup>c</sup> and beside him stood Mattithiah, Shema, Anaiah, Uriah, Hilkiah, and Maaseiah on his right hand; and on his left Pedaiah, Mishael, Malchiah, Hashum, Hashbaddanah, Zechariah and Meshullam. Ezra opened the book in the sight of all the people, for he was standing above them; and when he 6 opened it, they all stood. Ezra blessed the LORD, the great God, and all the people raised their hands and answered, 'Amen, Amen'; and they bowed their heads and prostrated themselves humbly before the LORD. Jeshua, Bani, Sherebiah, Jamin, Akkub, Shabbethai, Hodiah, Maaseiah, Kelita, Azariah, Jozabab, Hanan, Pelaiah, the Levites,<sup>d</sup> expounded the law to the people while 8 they remained in their places. They read from the book of the law of God clearly, made its sense plain and gave instruction in what was read. 9 Then Nehemiah the governor and Ezra the priest and scribe, and the Levites who instructed the people, said to them all, 'This day is holy to the LORD your God; do not mourn or weep.' For all the people had been weeping while they listened to the words of the law. Then he said to them, 'You may go now; refresh yourselves with rich food and sweet drinks, and send a share to all who cannot provide for themselves; for this day is holy to our Lord. Let there be no sadness, for joy in the LORD is your strength.' The 11 Levites silenced the people, saying, 'Be quiet, for this day is holy; let there be no sadness.' So all the people went 12 away to eat and to drink, to send shares to others and to celebrate the day with great rejoicing, because they had understood what had been explained to them.

On the second day the heads of 13 families of the whole people, with the priests and the Levites, assembled before Ezra the scribe to study the law. And they found written in the law that 14 the LORD had given commandment through Moses that the Israelites should live in arbours<sup>e</sup> during the feast of the seventh month, and that 15 they should make proclamation throughout all their cities and in Jerusalem: 'Go out into the hills and fetch branches of olive and wild olive, myrtle and palm, and other leafy boughs to make arbours, as prescribed.' So the people went out and fetched 16 them and made arbours for themselves, each on his own roof, and in their courts and in the courts of the house of God, and in the square at the Water Gate and the square at the Ephraim Gate. And the whole community of 17 those who had returned from the captivity made arbours and lived in

<sup>z</sup> Or doctor of the law.

<sup>a</sup> were capable . . . heard: or would teach them to understand.

<sup>b</sup> could understand: or were to instruct.

<sup>c</sup> Or for the address. <sup>d</sup> Prob. rdg.: Heb. and the Levites.

<sup>e</sup> Or tabernacles or booths.

Ezra chs. 9-10. 8.1: The book of the law of Moses: not the entire Pentateuch as we now know it, but selections from it. 2: The first day of the seventh month: Tishri (September-October); compare Lev.23.24 and Num.29.1. The first day of Tishri is observed by Jews as the new year day, a term rare in the OT. 7-8: The law was in Heb.; the language of the Judeans after the sixth century B.C. was Aram. Hence the Levites, after reading in Heb., expounded in the Aram., giving instruction in what was read.

8.13-18: Renewal of the celebration of the Festival of Booths. 14: Arbour: see Tfn. e; compare Lev.23.33-43. 15: Five species of plants are prescribed here; Lev.23.40 prescribes four species; only two species are common; the differences seem due to varying practices concerning this pilgrim feast. Both family and community booths seem described.

them, a thing that the Israelites had not done from the days of Joshua son of Nun to that day; and there was very 18 great rejoicing. And day by day, from the first day to the last, the book of the law of God was read. They kept the feast for seven days, and on the eighth day there was a closing ceremony, according to the rule.

9 ON THE TWENTY-FOURTH DAY OF THIS month the Israelites assembled for a fast, clothed in sackcloth and with
 2 earth on their heads. Those who were of Israelite descent separated themselves from all the foreigners; they took their places and confessed their sins and the iniquities of their forefathers.
 3 Then they stood up in their places, and the book of the law of the LORD their God was read for one fourth of the day, and for another fourth they confessed and did obeisance to the LORD their 4 God. Upon the steps assigned to the Levites stood Jeshua, Bani, Kadmiel, Shebaniah, Bunni, Sherebiah, Bani, and Kenani, and they cried aloud to 5 the LORD their God. Then the Levites, Jeshua, Kadmiel, Bani, Hashabniah, Sherebiah, Hodiah, Shebaniah, and Pethahiah, said, 'Stand up and bless the LORD your God, saying: From everlasting to everlasting thy glorious name is blessed<sup>f</sup> and exalted above all
 6 blessing and praise. Thou alone art the LORD; thou hast made heaven, the highest heaven with all its host, the earth and all that is on it, the seas and all that is in them. Thou preservest all
 7 of them, and the host of heaven worships thee. Thou art the LORD, the God who chose Abram and brought him out of Ur of the Chaldees and named 8 him Abraham. Thou didst find him faithful to thee and didst make a covenant with him to give to him and to his descendants the land of the Canaanites, the Hittites, the Amorites, the Perizzites, the Jebusites, and the Girgashites; and thou didst fulfil thy promise, for thou art just.

'And thou didst see the misery of 9 our forefathers in Egypt and didst hear their cry for help at the Red Sea,<sup>g</sup> and 10 didst work signs and portents against Pharaoh, all his courtiers and all the people of his land, knowing how arrogantly they treated our forefathers, and thou didst win for thyself a name that lives on to this day. Thou didst 11 tear the sea apart before them so that they went through the middle of it on dry ground; but thou didst cast their pursuers into the depths, like a stone 12 cast into turbulent waters. Thou didst guide them by a pillar of cloud in the day-time and by a pillar of fire at night to give them light on the road by which they travelled. Thou didst descend upon 13 Mount Sinai and speak with them from heaven, and give them right judgements and true laws, and statutes and commandments which were good, and thou 14 didst make known to them thy holy sabbath and give them commandments, statutes, and laws through thy servant Moses. Thou gavest them bread from 15 heaven to stay their hunger and thou broughtest water out from a rock for them to quench their thirst, and thou didst bid them enter and take possession of the land which thou hadst solemnly sworn to give them. But they, our fore- 16 fathers, were arrogant and stubborn, and disobeyed thy commandments. They refused to obey and did not 17 remember the miracles which thou didst accomplish among them; they remained stubborn, and they appointed a man to lead them back to slavery in Egypt. But thou art a forgiving god, gracious and compassionate, long- 18 suffering and ever constant, and thou didst not forsake them. Even when they made the image of a bull-calf in metal and said, "This is your god who

<sup>f</sup> thy glorious name is blessed: prob. rdg.; Heb. and let them bless thy glorious name.
<sup>g</sup> Or the Sea of Reeds.

9.1-5: A day of fasting. This cannot be the Day of Atonement, which fell on the tenth day of the seventh month (Lev.23.26-32; Num.29.7-9). Indeed, the Day of Atonement is not mentioned; some speculate that its introduction came at a later time.

9.6-37: The confession and prayer, a skillfully designed tapestry of historical reminiscence, an acknowledgment of backsliding, and an appeal to God's compassion, was probably once an independent psalm. 6: The Gk. has the words, "And Ezra said," before the opening line of the prayer, Thou . . . the LORD.

brought you up from Egypt", and were 19 guilty of great blasphemies, thou in thy great compassion didst not forsake them in the wilderness. The pillar of cloud did not fail to guide them on their journey by day nor the pillar of fire by night to give them light on 20 the road by which they travelled. Thou gavest thy good spirit to instruct them; thy manna thou didst not withhold from them, and thou gavest them water 21 to quench their thirst. Forty years long thou didst sustain them in the wilderness, and they lacked nothing; their clothes did not wear out and their feet were not swollen.

22 'Thou gavest them kingdoms and peoples, allotting these to them as spoils of war. Thus they took possession of the land of Sihon king of Heshbon and the land of Og king of Bashan.

23 Thou didst multiply their descendants so that they became countless as the stars in the sky, bringing them into the land which thou didst promise to give to their forefathers as their possession.

24 When their descendants entered the land and took possession of it, thou didst subdue before them the Canaanites who inhabited it and gavest these, kings and peoples alike, into their hands to do with them whatever they 25 wished. They captured fortified cities and a fertile land and took possession of houses full of all good things, rockhewn cisterns, vineyards, olive-trees, and fruit-trees in abundance; so they ate and were satisfied and grew fat and found delight in thy great goodness.

26 But they were defiant and rebelled against thee; they turned their backs on thy law and killed thy prophets, who solemnly warned them to return to thee, and they were guilty of great

27 blasphemies. Because of this thou didst hand them over to their enemies who oppressed them. But when in the time of their oppression, they cried to thee for help, thou heardest them from heaven and in thy great compassion didst send them saviours to save them

28 from their enemies. But when they had had a respite, they once more did what was wrong in thine eyes; and thou didst abandon them to their enemies who held them in subjection. But again they cried to thee for help, and many times over thou heardest them from heaven and in thy compassion didst save them.

 Thou didst solemnly warn them to 29 return to thy law, but they grew arrogant and did not heed thy commandments; they sinned against thy ordinances, which bring life to him who keeps them. Stubbornly they turned away in mulish obstinacy and would not obey. Many years thou wast 30 patient with them and didst warn them by thy spirit through thy prophets; but they would not listen. Therefore thou didst hand them over to foreign peoples. Yet in thy great compassion 31 thou didst not make an end of them nor forsake them; for thou art a gracious and compassionate god.

'Now therefore, our God, thou great 32 and mighty and terrible God, who faithfully keepest covenant, do not make light of the hardships that have befallen us—our kings, our princes, our priests, our prophets, our forefathers, and all thy people—from the days of the kings of Assyria to this day.
 In all that has befallen us thou hast been 33 just, thou hast kept faith, but we have done wrong. Our kings, our princes, 34 our priests, and our forefathers did not keep thy law nor heed thy commandments and the warnings which thou gavest them. Even under their own 35 kings, while they were enjoying the great prosperity which thou gavest them and the broad and fertile land which thou didst bestow upon them, they did not serve thee; they did not abandon their evil ways. Today we are 36 slaves, slaves here in the land which thou gavest to our forefathers so that they might eat its fruits and enjoy its good things. All its produce now goes 37 to the kings whom thou hast set over us because of our sins. They have power over our bodies, and they do as they please with our beasts, while we are in dire distress.

'Because of all this we make a 38

9.38–10.39: Renewal of the covenant, and its obligations. The structure resembles that of similar stipulations of loyalty found in clay tablets: writing and sealing, list of witnesses, oath, and enumeration of particulars. The stress against intermarriage in this "covenant renewal" binding declaration in writing, and our princes, our Levites, and our priests witness the sealing.

10 'Those who witness the sealing are Nehemiah the governor, son of Hachaliah, Zedekiah, Seraiah, Azariah, Jeremiah, Pashhur, Amariah, Malchiah, 2 Hattush, Shebaniah, Malluch, Harim, 3,4,5 Meremoth, Obadiah, Daniel, Ginnethon, Baruch, Meshullam, Abiah, Mijamin, Maaziah, Bilgai, Shemaiah; 6 these are the priests. The Levites: 7 Jeshua<sup>h</sup> son of Azaniah, Binnui of the 8 family of Henadad, Kadmiel; and their 9 brethren, Shebaniah, Hodiah,<sup>i</sup> Kelita, 10 Pelaiiah, Hanan, Mica, Rehob, Hashabiah, Zaccur, Sherebiah, Shebaniah, 11,12 Hodiah, Bani, Beninu. The chiefs of 13,14 the people: Parosh, Pahath-moab, 15 Elam, Zattu, Bani, Bunni, Azgad, Bebai, 16,17 Adonijah, Bigvai, Adin, Ater, Hezekiah, Azzur, Hodiah, Hashum, Bezai, 18 Hariph, Anathoth, Nebai,<sup>j</sup> Magpiash, 19,20 Meshullam, Hezir, Meshezabel, Zadok, 21 Jaddua, Pelatiah, Hanan, Anaiiah, Hoshea, Hananiah, Hasshub, Hallohesh, 22,23 Pilha, Shobek, Rehum, Hashabnah, 24 Maaseiah, Ahiah, Hanan, Anan, Mal- 25,26,27 luch, Harim, Baanah.

28 'The rest of the people, the priests, the Levites, the door-keepers, the singers, the temple-servitors, with their wives, their sons, and their daughters, all who are capable of understanding, all who for the sake of the law of God have kept themselves apart from the 29 foreign population, join with the leading brethren,<sup>k</sup> when the oath is put to them, in swearing to obey God's law given by Moses the servant of God, and to observe and fulfil all the commandments of the LORD our Lord, his rules and his statutes.

30 'We will not give our daughters in marriage to the foreign population or 31 take their daughters for our sons. If on the sabbath these people bring in merchandise, especially corn, for sale, we will not buy from them on the sabbath or on any holy day. We will forgo the crops of the seventh year and release every person still held as a pledge for debt.

'We hereby undertake the duty of 32 giving yearly the third of a shekel for the service of the house of our God, for the Bread of the Presence, the regular grain-offering and whole- 33 offering, the sabbaths, the new moons, the appointed seasons, the holy-gifts, and the sin-offerings to make expiation on behalf of Israel, and for all else that has to be done in the house of our God. We, the priests, the Levites, and the 34 people, have cast lots for the wood-offering, so that it may be brought into the house of our God by each family in turn, at appointed times, year by year, to burn upon the altar of the LORD our God, as prescribed in the law. We 35 undertake to bring the firstfruits of our land and the firstfruits of every fruit-tree, year by year, to the house of the LORD; also to bring to the house of 36 our God, to the priests who minister in the house of our God, the first-born of our sons and of our cattle, as prescribed in the law, and the first-born of 37 our herds and of our flocks; and to bring to the priests the first kneading of our dough, and the first of the fruit of every tree, of the new wine and of the oil, to the store-rooms in the house of our God; and to bring to the Levites the tithes from our land, for it is the Levites who collect the tithes in all our farming villages. The Aaronite priest 38 shall be with the Levites when they collect the tithes; and the Levites shall bring up one tenth of the tithes to the house of our God, to the appropriate rooms in the storehouse. For the 39 Israelites and the Levites shall bring

<sup>h</sup> Prob. rdg.: Heb. and Jeshua.

<sup>i</sup> Or, with Ezra 2. 40, Hodaviah.

<sup>j</sup> Or Nobai.

<sup>k</sup> the leading brethren: prob. rdg.: Heb. their brethren, their leading men.

(it is mentioned first) should be seen against the background of the surrounding nations and the pressing security needs of the small Jerusalem community. Later ages introduced proselytizing. 10.30-31: For the prohibition of intermarriage, see Deut.7.3; of work on the Sabbath day, see Exod.20.8-11; of planting during the release year, see Exod.23.10-11; for the release of pledges, Deut.15.2. 32: The offering of the third of a shekel for the Temple seems voluntary; the legislation of Exod.30.13 stipulated a compulsory half shekel, to which the voluntary was added. 34: On wood for the altar, see Lev.6.13, which does not mention the casting of lots found here. 35-37: Firstfruits: see Exod.23.19. First-born: see Exod.13.13. Tithes, see Lev.27.30-33 and Num.18.25-32.

the contribution of corn, new wine, and oil to the rooms where the vessels of the sanctuary are kept, and where the ministering priests, the door-keepers, and the singers are lodged. We will not neglect the house of our God.'

- 11 THE LEADERS OF THE PEOPLE SETTLED IN Jerusalem; and the rest of the people cast lots to bring one in every ten to live in Jerusalem, the holy city, while the remaining nine lived in other towns. And the people were grateful to all those who volunteered to live in Jerusalem.
- 2 These are the chiefs of the province who lived in Jerusalem; but, in the towns of Judah, other Israelites, priests, Levites, temple-servitors, and descendants of Solomon's servants lived on their own property, in their own towns.
- 3 Some members of the tribes of Judah and Benjamin lived in Jerusalem. Of Judah: Athaiah son of Uzziah, son of Zechariah, son of Amariah, son of Shephatiah, son of Mahalalel of the family of Perez, all of whose family, to the number of four hundred and sixty-eight men of substance, lived in Jerusalem; and Maaseiah son of Baruch, son of Col-hozeh, son of Hazaiah, son of Adajiah, son of Joiarib, son of Zechariah of the Shelanite family.
- 4 These were the Benjamites: Sallu son of Meshullam, son of Joed, son of Pedaiah, son of Kolaiah, son of Maaseiah, son of Ithiel, son of Isaiah, and his kinsmen Gabbai and Sallai, nine hundred and twenty-eight in all.
- 5 Joel son of Zichri was their overseer, and Judah son of Hassenuah was second over the city.<sup>l</sup>
- 6 Of the priests: Jedaiah son of Joiarib, son of<sup>m</sup> Seraiah, son of Hilkiah, son of Meshullam, son of Zadok, son of Meraioth, son of Ahitub, supervisor of the house of God, and his<sup>n</sup> brethren responsible for the work in the temple, eight hundred and twenty-two in all; and Adajiah son of Jeroham, son of Pelaliah, son of Amzi, son of Zechariah, son of Pashhur, son of Malchiah, and his brethren, heads of fathers' houses, two hundred and forty-two in all; and Amasai<sup>o</sup> son of Azarel, son of Ahzai, son of Meshillemoth, son of Immer, and his brethren, men of substance, a hundred and twenty-eight in all; their overseer was Zabdiel son of Haggedolim.

And of the Levites: Shemaiah son of Hasshub, son of Azrikam, son of Hashabiah, son of Bunni; and Shabbe-thai and Jozabad of the chiefs of the Levites, who had charge of the external business of the house of God; and Mattaniah son of Micah, son of Zabdi, son of Asaph, who as precentor led the prayer of thanksgiving, and Bakkukiah who held the second place among his brethren; and Abda son of Shammua, son of Galal, son of Jeduthun. The number of Levites in the holy city was two hundred and eighty-four in all.

The gate-keepers who kept guard at the gates were Akkub, Talmon, and their brethren, a hundred and seventy-two. The rest of the Israelites<sup>p</sup> were in all the towns of Judah, each man on his own inherited property. But the temple-servitors lodged on Ophel, and Ziha and Gishpa were in charge of them.

The overseer of the Levites in Jerusalem was Uzzi son of Bani, son of Hashabiah, son of Mattaniah, son of Mica, of the family of Asaph the singers, for the supervision of the business of the house of God. For they were under the king's orders, and there was obligatory duty for the singers every day. Pethahiah son of Meshezabel, of the family of Zerah son of Judah, was the king's adviser on all matters affecting the people.

As for the hamlets with their surrounding fields: some of the men of Judah lived in Kiriath-arba and its

<sup>l</sup> second over the city: or over the second quarter of the city.

<sup>m</sup> son of: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.

<sup>n</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. their.

<sup>o</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. Amashsai.

<sup>p</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds the levitical priests.

11.1-24: Repopulation of Jerusalem. A parallel list, 1 Chr. ch. 9, provides a similar order: chiefs, priests, Levites, and people with other functions. Some scholars connect this chapter with Neh. 7.5a as continuing the "Memoirs of Nehemiah."

11.25-36: Population of the surrounding Judean area. The borders of Judea extend to Beersheba in the south, and Lachish and Ziklag, towns closer to the coast in the southwest.

villages, in Dibon and its villages, and 26 in Jekabzeel and its hamlets, in Jeshua, 27 Moladah, and Bethpelet, in Hazarshual, and in Beersheba and its villages, 28 in Ziklag and in Meconah and its 29 villages, in Enrimmon, Zorah, and 30 Jarmuth, in Zanoah, Adullam, and their hamlets, in Lachish and its fields and Azekah and its villages. Thus they occupied the country from Beersheba to the Valley of Hinnom.

31 The men of Benjamin lived in<sup>q</sup> Geba, Michmash, Aiah, and Bethel with its 32 villages, in Anathoth, Nob, and Ana-33 niah, in Hazor, Ramah, and Gittaim, 34,35 in Hadid, Zeboim, and Neballat, in 36 Lod, Ono, and<sup>r</sup> Ge-harashim.<sup>s</sup> And certain divisions of the Levites in Judah were attached to Benjamin.

12 These are the priests and the Levites who came back with Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel, and Jeshua:<sup>t</sup> Seraiah, 2 Jeremiah, Ezra, Amariah, Malluch, 3 Hattush, Shecaniah, Rehum, Mere-4,5 moth, Iddo, Ginnethon, Abiah, Mi-jamin, Maadiah, Bilgah, Shemaiah, 7 Joiarib, Jedaiah, Sallu, Amok, Hilkiah, Jedaiah. These were the chiefs of the priests and of their brethren in the days of Jeshua.

8 And the Levites: Jeshua, Binnui, Kadmiel, Sherebiah, Judah, and Matta-niah, who with his brethren was in charge of the songs of thanksgiving.

9 And Bakbukiah and Unni their brethren stood opposite them in the service.

10 And Jeshua was the father of Joiakim, Joiakim the father of Eliashib, Eliashib 11 of Joiada, Joiada the father of Jonathan, and Jonathan the father of 12 Jaddua. And in the days of Joiakim the priests who were heads of families were:

 of Seraiah, Meraiah; of Jeremiah, Han-13 aniah; of Ezra, Meshullam; of Ama-14 riah, Jehohanan; of Malluch,<sup>u</sup> Jon-15 athan; of Shebaniah, Joseph; of Harim, 16 Adna; of Meraioth, Helkai; of Iddo, Zechariah; of Ginnethon, Meshullam;

17 of Abiah, Zichri; of Miniamin<sup>v</sup>; of Moaddiah, Piltai; of Bilgah, Shammua; 18 of Shemaiah, Jehonathan; of Joiarib, 19 Mattenai; of Jedaiah, Uzzi; of Sallu,<sup>w</sup> 20 Kallai; of Amok, Eber; of Hilkiah, 21

 Hashabiah; of Jedaiah, Nethaneel.

<sup>x</sup>The heads of the priestly families<sup>y</sup> 22
 in the days of Eliashib, Joiada, Johanan, and Jaddua were recorded down to the reign of Darius the Persian.
 The heads of the levitical families were 23 recorded in the annals only down to the days of Johanan the grandson of Eliashib. And the chiefs of the Levites: 24 Hashabiah, Sherebiah, Jeshua, Binnui,<sup>z</sup> Kadmiel, with their brethren in the other turn of duty, to praise and to give thanks, according to the commandment of David the man of God, turn by turn. Mattaniah, Bakbukiah, 25 Obadiah, Meshullam, Talmon, and Akkub were gate-keepers standing guard at the gatehouses. This was the 26 arrangement in the days of Joiakim son of Jeshua, son of Jozadak, and in the days of Nehemiah the governor and of Ezra the priest and scribe.

At the dedication of the wall of 27 Jerusalem they sought out the Levites in all their settlements, and brought them to Jerusalem to celebrate the dedication with<sup>a</sup> rejoicing, with thanksgiving and song, to the accompaniment of cymbals, lutes, and harps. And the 28 Levites,<sup>b</sup> the singers, were assembled from the district round Jerusalem and from the hamlets of the Netophathites; also from Beth-gilgal and from the 29 region of Geba and Beth-azmoth;<sup>c</sup> for the singers had built themselves hamlets in the neighbourhood of Jerusalem.

q Prob. rdg.; Heb. from. r and; prob. rdg.; Heb. om.
 s Or and the Valley of Woods or and the Valley of Craftsmen.

t Or Joshua.

u Prob. rdg.; Heb. Malluchi, or Melichu.

v A name is missing here.

w Prob. rdg., cp. verse 7; Heb. Sallai.

x Prob. rdg.; Heb. prefixes The Levites.

y heads . . . families; prob. rdg.; Heb. heads of the families and the priests.

z Jeshua, Binnui; prob. rdg.; Heb. and Jeshua son of.

a Prob. rdg.; Heb. and.

b the Levites; prob. rdg.; Heb. the sons of.

c Beth-azmoth; prob. rdg., cp. 7. 28; Heb. Azmoth.

11.31-36: The towns of Benjamin. These are located north and west of Jerusalem; the farthest of these (Ono) was about thirty miles away.

12.1-26: List of priests and Levites. A later hand has appended this additional list. 10-11: The genealogy of high priests. Jonathan is often regarded as an error for Jehohanan; see Ezra 10.6 n. 22: The historian Josephus tells that Jaddua was high priest in 332, in the time of the conquest by Alexander the Great. Darius may be Darius III who ruled 335-331 B.C.

12.27-43: Dedication of the walls. 33: The mentions of Ezra here and in v. 36 are regarded as interpolations; see Introduction to Ezra on dislocations of materials.

30 The priests and the Levites purified themselves; and they purified the 31 people, the gates, and the wall. Then I brought the leading men of Judah up on to the city wall, and appointed two great choirs to give thanks. One went in procession<sup>d</sup> to the right, going along the wall to the Dung Gate; and after it went Hoshaiah with half the leading 32 men of Judah, and Azariah, Ezra, Meshullam, Judah, Benjamin, She-33 maiah, and Jeremiah; and certain of the priests with trumpets: Zechariah son of Jonathan, son of Shemaiah, son of Mattaniah, son of Micaiah, son of 34 Zaccur, son of Asaph, and his kinsmen, Shemaiah, Azarel, Milalai, Gilalai, Maai, Nethaneel, Judah, and Hanani, with the musical instruments of David led them. They went past the Fountain 35 Gate and thence straight forward by the steps up to the City of David, by the ascent to the city wall, past the house of David, and on to the Water Gate on 36 the east. The other thanksgiving choir went to the left,<sup>e</sup> and I followed it with half the leading men of<sup>f</sup> the people, continuing along the wall, past the Tower of the Ovens<sup>g</sup> to the Broad Wall, 37 and past the Ephraim Gate, and over the Jeshanah Gate,<sup>h</sup> and over the Fish Gate, taking in the Tower of Hananel and the Tower of the Hundred, as far as the Sheep Gate; and they halted at 38 the Gate of the Guardhouse. So the two thanksgiving choirs took their place in the house of God, and I and half the magistrates with me; and the 39 priests Eliakim, Maaseiah, Miniamin, Micaiah, Elioenai, Zechariah, and 40 Hananiah, with trumpets; and Maaseiah, Shemaiah, Eleazar, Uzzi, Jehohanan, Malchiah, Elam, and Ezer. The singers, led by Izrahiah, raised their 41 voices. A great sacrifice was celebrated that day, and they all rejoiced because God had given them great cause for 42 rejoicing; the women and children rejoiced with them. And the rejoicing in Jerusalem was heard a long way off.

On that day men were appointed to 43 take charge of the store-rooms for the contributions, the firstfruits, and the tithes, to gather in the portions required by the law for the priests and Levites according to the extent of the farmlands round the towns; for all Judah was full of rejoicing at the ministry of the priests and Levites. And they performed the service of their
 44 God and the service of purification, as did the singers and the door-keepers, according to the rules laid down by David and his son Solomon. For it was 45 in the days of David that Asaph took the lead as chief of the singers and director<sup>i</sup> of praise and thanksgiving to God. And in the days of Zerubbabel 46 and of Nehemiah all Israel gave the portions for the singers and the door-keepers as each day required; and they set apart the portion for the Levites, and the Levites set apart the portion for the Aaronites.

Nehemiah's reforms

ON THAT DAY AT THE PUBLIC READING 13 from the book of Moses, it was found to be laid down that no Ammonite or Moabite should ever enter the assembly of God, because they did not meet the 2 Israelites with food and water but hired Balaam to curse them, though our God turned the curse into a blessing. When the people heard the law, they 3 separated from Israel all who were of mixed blood.

But before this, Eliashib the priest, 4 who was appointed over the store-rooms of the house of our God, and who was connected by marriage with Tobiah, had provided for his use a 5 large room where formerly they had

<sup>d</sup> One . . . procession: prob. rdg.; Heb. Processions.

<sup>e</sup> to the left: prob. rdg.; Heb. to the front.

<sup>f</sup> the leading men of: prob. rdg.; Heb. om.

<sup>g</sup> Or Furnaces.

<sup>h</sup> the Jeshanah Gate: or the gate of the Old City.

<sup>i</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. song.

12.44-47: The admirable functioning of the cult. 45: See also 2 Chr.8.14, dependent on 1 Chr. chs. 23-26. 47: The mention of Zerubbabel instead of Ezra has influenced scholars to conclude that Ezra was not contemporaneous with Nehemiah. See Introduction to Ezra.

13.1-31: Nehemiah's reforms. 1-3: These verses connect the chapter with 8.18. 1: See Deut.23.3-5. 2: Balaam: see Num. chs. 22-24. 4-9: The expulsion of Tobiah the Ammonite (2.10) is important to the author, so that the community could maintain an unadulterated kept the grain-offering, the incense, the temple vessels, the tithes of corn, new wine, and oil prescribed for the Levites, singers, and door-keepers, and the contributions for the priests. All this time I was not in Jerusalem because, in the thirty-second year of Artaxerxes king of Babylon, I had gone to the king. Some time later, I asked permission from him and returned to Jerusalem. There I discovered the wicked thing that Eliashib had done for Tobiah's sake in providing him with a room in the courts of the house of God. I was greatly displeased and threw all Tobiah's belongings out of the room. Then I gave orders that the room should be purified, and that the vessels of the house of God, with the grain-offering and incense, should be put back into it. I also learnt that the Levites had not been given their portions; both they and the singers, who were responsible for their respective duties, had made off to their farms. So I remonstrated with the magistrates and said, 'Why is the house of God deserted?' And I recalled the men and restored them to their places. Then all Judah brought the tithes of corn, new wine, and oil into the storehouses; and I put in charge of them Shelemiah the priest, Zadok the accountant, and Pedaiah a Levite, with Hanan son of Zaccur, son of Mattaniah, as their assistant, for they were considered trustworthy men; their duty was the distribution of their shares to their brethren. Remember this, O God, to my credit, and do not wipe out of thy memory the devotion which I have shown in the house of my God and in his service. In those days I saw men in Judah treading winepresses on the sabbath, collecting quantities of produce and piling it on asses—wine, grapes, figs, and every kind of load, which they brought into Jerusalem on the sabbath; and I protested to them about selling food on that day. Tyrians living in

Jerusalem also brought in fish and all kinds of merchandise and sold them on the sabbath to the people of Judah, even in Jerusalem. Then I complained to the nobles of Judah and said to them, 'How dare you profane the sabbath in this wicked way? Is not this just what your fathers did, so that our God has brought all this evil on us and on this city? Now you are bringing more wrath upon Israel by profaning the sabbath.' When the entrances to Jerusalem had been cleared in preparation for the sabbath, I gave orders that the gates should be shut and not opened until after the sabbath. And I appointed some of the men under me to have charge of the gates so that no load might enter on the sabbath. Then on one or two occasions the merchants and all kinds of traders camped just outside Jerusalem, but I cautioned them. 'Why are you camping in front of the city wall?' I asked. 'If you do it again, I will take action against you.' After that they did not come on the sabbath again. And I commanded the Levites who were to purify themselves and take up duty as guards at the gates, to ensure that the sabbath was kept holy. Remember this also to my credit, O God, and spare me in thy great love. In those days also I saw that some Jews had married women from Ashdod, Ammon, and Moab. Half their children spoke the language of Ashdod or of the other peoples and could not speak the language of the Jews. I argued with them and reviled them, I beat them and tore out their hair; and I made them swear in the name of God: 'We will not marry our daughters to their sons, or take any of their daughters in marriage for our sons or for ourselves.' 'Was it not for such women', I said, 'that King Solomon of Israel sinned? Among all the nations there was no king like him; he was loved by his God, and God made him king over all Israel; nevertheless even he was led by foreign women into sin.

worship of God. 6: Some time later: Nehemiah was in Susa from 433 to 424. The king is Artaxerxes I, 464-424/3. 10-14: The tithes: contrast 12.47, where tithes seem given freely. 15-22: The sabbath: disregard for the Sabbath law was considered to be the cause for exile and enslavement to foreign kings. Compare Jer.17.19-27, possibly hearkened back to in v. 18. 23-29: On mixed marriages, see 10.30 and Ezra 9.1-5; 10.2. 26: Solomon: see 1 Kgs.11.1-8.

- 27 Are we then to follow your example and commit this grave offence, breaking faith with our God by marrying foreign women?"
- 28 Now one of the sons of Joiada son of Eliashib the high priest had married a daughter of Sanballat the Horonite; therefore I drove him out of my presence. Remember, O God, to their shame that they have defiled the
- priesthood and the covenant of the priests<sup>j</sup> and the Levites.
- Thus I purified them from every-<sup>30</sup> thing foreign, and I made the Levites and the priests resume the duties of their office; I also made provision for<sup>31</sup> the wood-offering, at appointed times, and for the firstfruits. Remember me for my good, O God.
- j Or* priesthood.

---

28: Sanballat was a personal foe; see 2.10; 4.1-2,7-8; 6.1-14. 30-31: Closing verses and prayer.

ESTHER

This book tells how Esther, a young Jewish girl, delivers the Jews in Persia when they are threatened with extermination by Haman, the chief minister of the Persian king. Esther, who has become queen, acts on the advice of her cousin, Mordecai, the principal object of Haman's anger. A complete reversal of positions results; Haman is hanged, Mordecai assumes his office, and the Jews massacre their enemies. To commemorate this victory, the annual feast of Purim is instituted.

Esther is often considered to have been written in the Persian period (538–333 B.C.), though some view it as much later, perhaps even in the Maccabean period. Although Persian customs are familiar to the author and details about the city of Susa and the palace are confirmed by archaeology, it is impossible to find historical confirmation of the events recounted. However, an official at Susa under King Xerxes I is named Marduka, which is close to Mordecai. In the Hebrew Bible, Esther is the last of the five Megilloth, or Scrolls, for reading at the great festivals; it is read on Purim.

Although God's name is not mentioned, there is an obvious implicit trust in his guidance, as 4.13–17 makes clear. Because religious themes are not explicitly stressed, some ancient rabbis opposed the book's reception into Scripture. In the Greek some additions are found which modify the secular tone of the Hebrew; see "The Rest of the Chapters of the Book of Esther" in the Apocrypha.

---

*Esther chosen as queen
by the Persian king*

1 THE EVENTS HERE RELATED HAPPENED IN THE DAYS OF AHASUERUS, THE AHASUERUS WHO RULED FROM INDIA TO ETHIOPIA, A HUNDRED AND 2 TWENTY-SEVEN PROVINCES. AT THIS TIME HE SAT ON HIS ROYAL THRONE IN SUSA THE 3 CAPITAL CITY. IN THE THIRD YEAR OF HIS REIGN HE GAVE A BANQUET FOR ALL HIS OFFICERS AND HIS COURTIERS; AND WHEN HIS ARMY OF PERSIAN AND MEDES, WITH HIS NOBLES AND PROVINCIAL GOVERNORS, WERE 4 IN ATTENDANCE, HE DISPLAYED THE WEALTH OF HIS KINGDOM AND THE POMP AND SPLENDOR OF HIS MAJESTY FOR MANY DAYS, 5 A HUNDRED AND EIGHTY IN ALL. WHEN THESE DAYS WERE OVER, THE KING GAVE A BANQUET FOR ALL THE PEOPLE PRESENT IN SUSA THE CAPITAL CITY, BOTH HIGH AND LOW; IT WAS HELD IN THE GARDEN COURT OF THE ROYAL PAVILION AND LASTED SEVEN DAYS. 6 THERE WERE WHITE CURTAINS AND VIOLET HANGINGS FASTENED TO SILVER RINGS WITH BANDS OF FINE LINEN AND PURPLE;<sup>a</sup> THERE WERE ALABASTER PILLARS AND COUCHES OF GOLD AND SILVER SET ON A MOSAIC PAVEment of malachite and alabaster, of mother-of-pearl and turquoise. Wine 7 was served in golden cups of various patterns: the king's wine flowed freely 8 as befitted a king, and the law of the drinking was that there should be no 9 compulsion, for the king had laid it down that all the stewards of his palace should respect each man's wishes. In 10 addition, Queen Vashti gave a banquet for the women in the royal apartments of King Ahasuerus.

On the seventh day, when he was 11 merry with wine, the king ordered Mehuman, Biztha, Harbona, Bigtha, Abagtha, Zethar, and Carcas, the seven eunuchs who were in attendance 12 on the king's person, to bring Queen Vashti before him wearing her royal crown, in order to display her beauty to the people and the officers; for she was indeed a beautiful woman. But 13 Queen Vashti refused to come in answer to the royal command conveyed by the eunuchs. This greatly incensed the king, and he grew hot with anger.

Then the king conferred with his wise 13

<sup>a</sup> bands . . . purple: or white and purple cords.

---

1.1–9: Ahasuerus' banquet. 1: Ahasuerus (see Ezra 4.6; Dan.9.1) seems to be Xerxes I (485–464 B.C.), whose empire extended from India to Ethiopia, and included some twenty satrapies, subdivided into provinces. 2: Susa, in Elam, was the king's winter residence; Persepolis was the capital of Persia. 3: Greek authors mention the great banquets given by Persian kings. 5: Archaeologists have uncovered such a court at Susa. 9: Xerxes' queen was Amestris; Vashti was perhaps a royal concubine. No mention of Vashti or Esther is to be found outside this book.

1.10–2.4: Vashti deposed. 13: The wise men are possibly his seven counselors (Ezra 7.14).

men versed in misdemeanours;<sup>b</sup> for it was his royal custom to consult all who were versed in law and religion, those closest to him being Carshena, Shethar, Admatha, Tarshish, Meres, Marsena, and Memucan, the seven princes of Persia and Media who had access to the king and held first place in the kingdom. He asked them, "What does the law require to be done with Queen Vashti for disobeying the command of King Ahasuerus brought to her by the eunuchs?" Then Memucan made answer before the king and the princes: "Queen Vashti has done wrong, and not to the king alone, but also to all the officers and to all the peoples in all the provinces of King Ahasuerus. Every woman will come to know what the queen has done, and this will make them treat their husbands with contempt; they will say, "King Ahasuerus ordered Queen Vashti to be brought before him and she did not come." The great ladies of Persia and Media, who have heard of the queen's conduct, will tell all the king's officers about this day, and there will be endless disrespect and insolence! If it please your majesty, let a royal decree go out from you and let it be inscribed in the laws of the Persians and Medes, never to be revoked, that Vashti shall not again appear before King Ahasuerus; and let the king give her place as queen to another woman who is more worthy of it than she. Thus when this royal edict is heard through the length and breadth of the kingdom, all women will give honour to their husbands, high and low alike." Memucan's advice pleased the king and the princes, and the king did as he had proposed. Letters were sent to all the royal provinces, to every province in its own script and to every people in their own language, in order that each man might be master in his own house and control all his own womenfolk.<sup>c</sup>

Later, when the anger of King 2 Ahasuerus had died down, he remembered Vashti and what she had done and what had been decreed against her. So the king's attendants 2 said, 'Let beautiful young virgins be sought out for your majesty; and let 3 your majesty appoint commissioners in all the provinces of your kingdom to bring all these beautiful young virgins into the women's quarters in Susa the capital city. Let them be committed to the care of Hegai, the king's eunuch in charge of the women, and let cosmetics be provided for them; and let the one who is most acceptable 4 to the king become queen in place of Vashti.' This idea pleased the king and he acted on it.

Now there was in Susa the capital 5 city a Jew named Mordecai son of Jair, son of Shimei, son of Kish, a Benjamite; he had been carried into exile 6 from Jerusalem among those whom Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon had carried away with Jeconiah king of Judah. He had a foster-child Hadassah, 7 that is Esther, his uncle's daughter, who had neither father nor mother. She was a beautiful and charming girl, and after the death of her father and mother Mordecai had adopted her as his own daughter. When the king's 8 order and his edict were published, and many girls were brought to Susa the capital city to be committed to the care of Hegai, Esther too was taken to the king's palace to be entrusted to Hegai, who had charge of the women. She attracted his notice and received 9 his special favour: he readily provided her with her cosmetics and her allow-

<sup>b</sup> Or times.

<sup>c</sup> and control . . . womenfolk: prob. rdg.; Heb. and speak in his own language.

19: Reference to laws never to be revoked is also made in 8.8 and in Dan.6.8,12,15. There may be some irony in the allusion that in both Esther and Dan, the irrevocable decrees against the Jews are ineffective. 22: The verse seems to be a humorous exaggeration.

2.5-23: The selection of Esther. Mordecai and Esther have names derived from the Babylonian deities Marduk and Ishtar, who also were cousins. That Mordecai, like Saul, was a Benjamite is stressed to foreshadow the enmity of Haman, an Amalekite of the Agag family, Saul's enemy, 1 Sam.15.1-9. 5: On these remote ancestors see 2 Sam.16.5-8, Shimei; and 1 Sam.9.1-2, Kish, the father of Saul. 6: Jeconiah is also known as Jehoiachin (2 Kgs.24.6). Modern critics regard the author as unconcerned with precise chronology, for Mordecai's age here would appear to be at least one hundred and fifteen years. 7: Hadassah is a Heb. word meaning ance of food, and also with seven picked maids from the king's palace, and he gave her and her maids privileges in the women's quarters.

- 10 Esther had not disclosed her race or her family, because Mordecai had forbidden her to do so. Every day 11 Mordecai passed along by the forecourt of the women's quarters to learn how Esther was faring and what was happening to her.

- 12 The full period of preparation prescribed for the women was twelve months, six months with oil and myrrh and six months with perfumes and cosmetics. When the period was complete, each girl's turn came to go to 13 King Ahasuerus, and she was allowed to take with her whatever she asked, when she went from the women's 14 quarters to the king's palace. She went into the palace in the evening and returned in the morning to another part of the women's quarters, to be under the care of Shaashgaz, the king's eunuch in charge of the concubines. She did not again go to the king unless he expressed a wish for her; then she was summoned by name.

- 15 When the turn came for Esther, daughter of Abihail the uncle of Mordecai her adoptive father, to go to the king, she asked for nothing to take with her except what was advised by Hegai, the king's eunuch in charge of the women; and Esther charmed all 16 who saw her. When she was taken to King Ahasuerus in the royal palace, in the seventh year of his reign, in the tenth month, that is the month Tebeth, the king loved her more than any of his other women and treated her with greater favour and kindness than the rest of the virgins. He put a royal crown on her head and made her queen in 17 place of Vashti. Then the king gave a great banquet for all his officers and courtiers, a banquet in honour of Esther. He also proclaimed a holiday<sup>d</sup> throughout the provinces and distributed gifts worthy of a king.

Mordecai was in attendance at court; on his instructions Esther had not disclosed her family or her race, she had done what Mordecai told her, as she did when she was his ward. One day when Mordecai was in attendance at court, Bigthan and Teresh, two of the king's eunuchs, keepers of the threshold, who were disaffected, were plotting to lay hands on King Ahasuerus. This became known to Mordecai, who told Queen Esther; and she told the king, mentioning Mordecai by name. The affair was investigated and the report confirmed; the two men were hanged on the gallows. All this was recorded in the royal chronicle in the presence of the king.

Haman's plot against the Jews

AFTER THIS, KING AHASUERUS PROMOTED Haman son of Hammedatha the Agagite, advancing him and giving him precedence above all his fellow-officers. So the king's attendants at court all bowed down to Haman and did obeisance, for so the king had commanded; but Mordecai did not bow down to him or do obeisance. Then the attendants at court said to Mordecai, "Why do you flout his majesty's command?" Day by day they challenged him, but he refused to listen to them; so they informed Haman, in order to discover if Mordecai's refusal would be tolerated, for he had told them that he was a Jew. When Haman saw that Mordecai was not bowing down to him or doing obeisance, he was infuriated. On learning who Mordecai's people were, he scorned to lay hands on him alone, and looked for a way to destroy all the Jews throughout the whole kingdom of Ahasuerus, Mordecai and all his race.

d Or an amnesty.

"myrtle." 10: The requirement of the plot in ch. 6 is the likely reason why Esther had not disclosed her race or her family. 11: We are not told precisely how Mordecai received information. See also vv. 19-23. 16: Tebeth (December-January) is a Babylonian month name. 18: A holiday: see Tfn. d. 21: The keepers of the threshold guarded the king's private apartment. Xerxes died by assassination in just such a plot. 23: The delay in a reward for Mordecai foreshadows 6.1-13. Royal chronicle: see 10.2.

3.1-5.14: Haman's plot against the Jews. 3.1: The identification of Haman as an Agagite

7 In the twelfth year of King Ahasuerus, in the first month, Nisan, they cast lots, Pur as it is called, in the presence of Haman, taking day by day and month by month, and the lot fell on the thirteenth day of the twelfth month,<sup>e</sup> the month Adar. Then Haman said to King Ahasuerus, 'There is a certain people, dispersed among the many peoples in all the provinces of your kingdom, who keep themselves apart. Their laws are different from those of every other people; they do not keep your majesty's laws. It does not befit your majesty to tolerate them.

9 If it please your majesty, let an order be made in writing for their destruction; and I will pay ten thousand talents of silver to your majesty's officials, to be deposited in the royal treasury.' So the king took the signet-ring from his hand and gave it to Haman son of Hammedatha the Agagite, the enemy of the Jews; and he said to him, 'The money and the people are yours; deal with them as you wish.'

12 On the thirteenth day of the first month the king's secretaries were summoned and, in accordance with Haman's instructions, a writ was issued to the king's satraps and the governor of every province, and to the officers over each separate people: for each province in its own script and for each people in their own language. It was drawn up in the name of King Ahasuerus and sealed with the king's signet.

13 Thus letters were sent by courier to all the king's provinces with orders to destroy, slay, and exterminate all Jews, young and old, women and children, in one day, the thirteenth day of the twelfth month, the month Adar, and to plunder their possessions. A copy of the writ was to be issued as a decree in every province and to be published to all the peoples, so that they might be ready for that day. The couriers were dispatched post-haste at the king's command, and the decree was issued in Susa the capital city. The king and Haman sat down to drink; but the city of Susa was thrown into confusion.

When Mordecai learnt all that had been done, he rent his clothes, put on sackcloth and ashes, and went through the city crying loudly and bitterly. He came within sight of the palace gate, because no one clothed with sackcloth was allowed to pass through the gate. In every province reached by the royal command and decree there was great mourning among the Jews, with fasting and weeping and beating of the breast. Most of them made their beds of sackcloth and ashes. When Queen Esther's maids and eunuchs came and told her, she was distraught, and sent garments for Mordecai, so that they might take off the sackcloth and clothe him with them; but he would not accept them. Then Esther summoned Hathach, one of the king's eunuchs who had been appointed to wait upon her, and ordered him to find out from Mordecai what the trouble was and what it meant. Hathach went to Mordecai in the city square in front of the palace gate, and Mordecai told him all that had happened to him and how much money Haman had offered to pay into the royal treasury for the destruction of the Jews. He also gave him a copy of the writ for their destruction issued in Susa, so that he might show it to Esther and tell her about it, bidding her go to the king to plead for his favour and entreat him for her people. Hathach went and told Esther what Mordecai had said, and she sent him back with this message: 'All the king's courtiers and the people of the provinces are aware that if any person, man or woman, enters the king's presence in the inner court unbidden, there is one law only: that person shall be put to

<sup>e</sup> and the lot. . . (twelfth month): prob. rdg., cp. verse 13: Heb. the twelfth.

(see 2.5–23 n.) subtly emphasizes the hostility between Mordecai and Haman. 7: Pur is a Babylonian word meaning lot. The lot was to determine the best day for the pogrom. Adar is in March–April. 9: Experts think that the amount of silver here would represent almost two-thirds of the annual income of the Persian Empire. 10: The signet-ring sealed official documents; it gave Haman unlimited power. 11: The king apparently accepts the bribe. 12: The writ was issued on the thirteenth of Nisan, the day before Passover. 15: The couriers belonged to the famous Persian post service; see 8.10 n.

4.1–17: Mordecai appeals to Esther. 11: Prohibition to enter without a summons was possibly

ance of food, and also with seven picked maids from the king's palace, and he gave her and her maids privileges in the women's quarters.

10 Esther had not disclosed her race or her family, because Mordecai had forbidden her to do so. Every day 11 Mordecai passed along by the forecourt of the women's quarters to learn how Esther was faring and what was happening to her.

12 The full period of preparation prescribed for the women was twelve months, six months with oil and myrrh and six months with perfumes and cosmetics. When the period was complete, each girl's turn came to go to 13 King Ahasuerus, and she was allowed to take with her whatever she asked, when she went from the women's 14 quarters to the king's palace. She went into the palace in the evening and returned in the morning to another part of the women's quarters, to be under the care of Shaashgaz, the king's eunuch in charge of the concubines. She did not again go to the king unless he expressed a wish for her; then she was summoned by name.

15 When the turn came for Esther, daughter of Abihail the uncle of Mordecai her adoptive father, to go to the king, she asked for nothing to take with her except what was advised by Hegai, the king's eunuch in charge of the women; and Esther charmed all 16 who saw her. When she was taken to King Ahasuerus in the royal palace, in the seventh year of his reign, in the tenth month, that is the month Tebeth, 17 the king loved her more than any of his other women and treated her with greater favour and kindness than the rest of the virgins. He put a royal crown on her head and made her queen in 18 place of Vashti. Then the king gave a great banquet for all his officers and courtiers, a banquet in honour of Esther. He also proclaimed a holiday<sup>d</sup>

throughout the provinces and distributed gifts worthy of a king.

Mordecai was in attendance at court; on his instructions Esther had not 19 disclosed her family or her race, she had done what Mordecai told her, as she did when she was his ward. One 21 day when Mordecai was in attendance at court, Bigthan and Teresh, two of the king's eunuchs, keepers of the threshold, who were disaffected, were plotting to lay hands on King Ahasuerus. This 22 became known to Mordecai, who told Queen Esther; and she told the king, mentioning Mordecai by name. The 23 affair was investigated and the report confirmed; the two men were hanged on the gallows. All this was recorded in the royal chronicle in the presence of the king.

Haman's plot against the Jews

AFTER THIS, KING AHASUERUS PROMOTED 3 Haman son of Hammedatha the Agagite, advancing him and giving him precedence above all his fellow-officers. So the king's attendants at 2 court all bowed down to Haman and did obeisance, for so the king had commanded; but Mordecai did not bow down to him or do obeisance. Then the 3 attendants at court said to Mordecai, "Why do you flout his majesty's command?" Day by day they challenged 4 him, but he refused to listen to them; so they informed Haman, in order to discover if Mordecai's refusal would be tolerated, for he had told them that he was a Jew. When Haman saw that 5 Mordecai was not bowing down to him or doing obeisance, he was infuriated. On learning who Mordecai's 6 people were, he scorned to lay hands on him alone, and looked for a way to destroy all the Jews throughout the whole kingdom of Ahasuerus, Mordecai and all his race.

<sup>d</sup> Or an amnesty.

"myrtle." 10: The requirement of the plot in ch. 6 is the likely reason why Esther had not disclosed her race or her family. 11: We are not told precisely how Mordecai received information. See also vv. 19-23. 16: Tebeth (December-January) is a Babylonian month name. 18: A holiday: see Tfn. d. 21: The keepers of the threshold guarded the king's private apartment. Xerxes died by assassination in just such a plot. 23: The delay in a reward for Mordecai foreshadows 6.1-13. Royal chronicle: see 10.2.

3.1-5.14: Haman's plot against the Jews. 3.1: The identification of Haman as an Agagite

7 In the twelfth year of King Ahasuerus, in the first month, Nisan, they cast lots, Pur as it is called, in the presence of Haman, taking day by day and month by month, and the lot fell on the thirteenth day of the twelfth month,<sup>e</sup> the month Adar. Then Haman said to King Ahasuerus, 'There is a certain people, dispersed among the many peoples in all the provinces of your kingdom, who keep themselves apart. Their laws are different from those of every other people; they do not keep your majesty's laws. It does not befit your majesty to tolerate them.

9 If it please your majesty, let an order be made in writing for their destruction; and I will pay ten thousand talents of silver to your majesty's officials, to be deposited in the royal treasury.' So the king took the signet-ring from his hand and gave it to Haman son of Hammedatha the Agagite, the enemy of the Jews; and he said to him, 'The money and the people are yours; deal with them as you wish.'

12 On the thirteenth day of the first month the king's secretaries were summoned and, in accordance with Haman's instructions, a writ was issued to the king's satraps and the governor of every province, and to the officers over each separate people: for each province in its own script and for each people in their own language. It was drawn up in the name of King Ahasuerus and sealed with the king's signet.

13 Thus letters were sent by courier to all the king's provinces with orders to destroy, slay, and exterminate all Jews, young and old, women and children, in one day, the thirteenth day of the twelfth month, the month Adar, and to plunder their possessions. A copy of the writ was to be issued as a decree in every province and to be published to all the peoples, so that they might be ready for that day. The couriers were dispatched post-haste at the king's command, and the decree was issued in Susa the capital city. The king and Haman sat down to drink; but the city of Susa was thrown into confusion.

When Mordecai learnt all that had been done, he rent his clothes, put on sackcloth and ashes, and went through the city crying loudly and bitterly. He came within sight of the palace gate, because no one clothed with sackcloth was allowed to pass through the gate. In every province reached by the royal command and decree there was great mourning among the Jews, with fasting and weeping and beating of the breast. Most of them made their beds of sackcloth and ashes. When Queen Esther's maids and eunuchs came and told her, she was distraught, and sent garments for Mordecai, so that they might take off the sackcloth and clothe him with them; but he would not accept them. Then Esther summoned Hathach, one of the king's eunuchs who had been appointed to wait upon her, and ordered him to find out from Mordecai what the trouble was and what it meant. Hathach went to Mordecai in the city square in front of the palace gate, and Mordecai told him all that had happened to him and how much money Haman had offered to pay into the royal treasury for the destruction of the Jews. He also gave him a copy of the writ for their destruction issued in Susa, so that he might show it to Esther and tell her about it, bidding her go to the king to plead for his favour and entreat him for her people. Hathach went and told Esther what Mordecai had said, and she sent him back with this message: 'All the king's courtiers and the people of the provinces are aware that if any person, man or woman, enters the king's presence in the inner court unbidden, there is one law only: that person shall be put to death, unless the king stretches out to him the golden sceptre; then and then only shall he live. It is now thirty days since I myself was called to go to the king.' But when they told Mordecai what Esther had said, he bade them go back to her and say, 'Do not imagine that you alone of all the Jews will escape because you are in the royal palace. If you remain silent at such a time as this, relief and deliverance for the Jews will appear from another quarter, but you and your father's family will perish. Who knows whether it is not for such a time as this that you have come to royal estate?' Esther gave them this answer to take back to Mordecai: 'Go and assemble all the Jews to be found in Susa and fast for me; take neither food nor drink for three days, night or day, and I and my maids will fast as you do. After that I will go to the king, although it is against the law; and if I perish, I perish.' So Mordecai went away and did exactly as Esther had bidden him.

<sup>e</sup> and the lot. . . twelfth month: prob. rdg., cp. verse 13; Heb. the twelfth.

(see 2.5–23 n.) subtly emphasizes the hostility between Mordecai and Haman. 7: Pur is a Babylonian word meaning lot. The lot was to determine the best day for the pogrom. Adar is in March–April. 9: Experts think that the amount of silver here would represent almost two-thirds of the annual income of the Persian Empire. 10: The signet-ring sealed official documents; it gave Haman unlimited power. 11: The king apparently accepts the bribe. 12: The writ was issued on the thirteenth of Nisan, the day before Passover. 15: The couriers belonged to the famous Persian post service; see 8.10 n.

4.1–17: Mordecai appeals to Esther. 11: Prohibition to enter without a summons was possibly

5 On the third day Esther put on her royal robes and stood in the inner court of the king's palace, facing the palace itself; the king was seated on his royal throne in the palace, facing the entrance. When the king caught sight of Queen Esther standing in the court, she won his favour and he stretched out to her the golden sceptre which he was holding. Thereupon Esther approached and touched the head of the sceptre. 3 Then the king said to her, 'What is it, Queen Esther? Whatever you ask of me, up to half my kingdom, shall be given to you.' 'If it please your majesty,' said Esther, 'will you come today, sire, and Haman with you, to a banquet which I have made ready for you?' 5 The king gave orders that Haman should be fetched quickly, so that Esther's wish might be fulfilled; and the king and Haman went to the banquet which she had prepared. Over the wine the king said to Esther, 'Whatever you ask of me shall be given to you. Whatever you request of me, up to half my kingdom, it shall be done.' Esther said in answer, 'What I ask and request of you is this. If I have won your majesty's favour, and if it please you, sire, to give me what I ask and to grant my request, will your majesty and Haman come tomorrow to the banquet which I shall prepare for you both? Tomorrow I will do as your majesty has said.'

So Haman went away that day in good spirits and well pleased with himself. But when he saw Mordecai in attendance at court and how he did not rise nor defer to him, he was filled with rage; but he kept control of himself and went home. Then he sent for his friends and his wife Zeresh and held forth to them about the splendour of his wealth and his many sons, and how the king had promoted him and advanced him above the other officers and courtiers. 'That is not all,' said Haman; 'Queen Esther invited no one but myself to accompany the king to the banquet which she had prepared; and she has invited me again tomorrow with the king. Yet all this means nothing to me so long as I see that Jew Mordecai in attendance at court.' Then his wife Zeresh and all his friends said to him, 'Let a gallows seventy-five feet high be set up, and recommend to the king in the morning to have Mordecai hanged upon it. Then go with the king to the banquet in good spirits.' Haman thought this an excellent plan, and he set up the gallows.

---

for security reasons. 14: Another quarter seems to be a veiled allusion to God. The question "Who knows whether . . . ?" implies that Esther's position is providential. See The Rest of the Chapters of the Book of Esther in the Apocrypha. 16: To fast has long been regarded as a pious act which wins divine favor.

5.1-8: Esther before the king. 2: The gesture of stretching out to her the golden sceptre is explained in 4.11. 3: Up to half my kingdom is gross exaggeration. 4-8: The early banquets with Haman the only guest, and Esther passing up two opportunities to intercede for her people, are literary devices necessary for working out the plot of the story. 8: For additional details, see 6.14; 7.3; 8.5.

5.9-14: Haman's gallows. 14: The height of the gallows seems exaggerated, unless it was on a high building or hill for all to see. Haman . . . set up the gallows, all the while gleefully thinking it was intended for Mordecai.

Haman's downfall and Mordecai's triumph

6 THAT NIGHT SLEEP ELUDED THE KING, so he ordered the chronicle of daily events to be brought; and it was read to him. Therein was recorded that Mordecai had given information about Bigthana and Teresh, the two royal eunuchs among the keepers of the threshold who had plotted to lay hands on King Ahasuerus. Whereupon the king said, 'What honour or dignity has been conferred on Mordecai for this?' The king's courtiers who were in attendance told him that nothing had been done for Mordecai. The king asked, 'Who is that in the court?' Now Haman had just entered the outer court of the palace to recommend to the king that Mordecai should be hanged on the gallows which he had prepared for him. The king's servants answered, 'It is Haman standing there'; and the king bade him enter. He came in, and the king said to him, 'What should be done for the man whom the king wishes to honour?' Haman said to himself, 'Whom would the king wish to honour more than me?' And he said to the king, 'For the man whom the king wishes to honour, let there be brought royal robes which the king himself wears, and a horse which the king rides, with a royal crown upon its head. And let the robes and the horse be delivered to one of the king's most honourable officers, and let him attire the man whom the king wishes to honour and lead him mounted on the horse through the city square, calling out as he goes: "See what is done for the man whom the king wishes to honour."' Then the king said to Haman, 'Fetch the robes and the horse at once, as you have said, and do all this for Mordecai the Jew who is in attendance at court. Leave nothing undone of all that you have said.' So

Haman took the robes and the horse, attired Mordecai, and led him mounted through the city square, calling out as he went: 'See what is done for the man whom the king wishes to honour.'

Then Mordecai returned to court and Haman hurried off home mourning, with head uncovered. He told his wife Zeresh and all his friends everything that had happened to him. And this was the reply of his friends and his wife Zeresh: 'If Mordecai, in face of whom your fortunes begin to fall, belongs to the Jewish race, you will not get the better of him; he will see your utter downfall.'

While they were still talking with Haman, the king's eunuchs arrived and hurried him away to the banquet which Esther had prepared.

So the king and Haman went to dine with Queen Esther. Again on that second day, over the wine, the king said, 'Whatever you ask of me will be given to you, Queen Esther. Whatever you request of me, up to half my kingdom, it shall be done.' Queen Esther answered, 'If I have found favour with your majesty, and if it please your majesty, my request and petition is that my own life and the lives of my people may be spared. For we have been sold, I and my people, to be destroyed, slain, and exterminated. If it had been a matter of selling us, men and women alike, into slavery, I should have kept silence; for then our plight would not be such as to injure the king's interests.' Then King Ahasuerus said to Queen Esther, 'Who is he, and where is he, who has presumed to do such a thing as this?' 'An adversary and an enemy,' said Esther, 'this wicked Haman.' At that Haman was dumb-founded in the presence of the king and the queen. The king rose from the banquet in a rage and went to the garden of the pavilion, while Haman remained where he was, to plead for his life with Queen Esther; for he saw that in the king's mind his fate was determined. When the king returned from the garden to the banqueting hall, Haman had flung himself across the couch on which Esther was reclining. The king exclaimed, 'Will he even assault the queen here in my presence?' No sooner had the words left the king's mouth than Haman hid his face in despair.<sup>f</sup> Then Harbona, one of the eunuchs in attendance on the king, said, 'At Haman's house stands the gallows, seventy-five feet high, which he himself has prepared for Mordecai, who once served the king well.' 'Hang Haman on it', said the king. So they hanged him on the gallows that he himself had prepared for Mordecai. After that the king's rage abated.

6.1-14: Haman's downfall and Mordecai's triumph. 1: The insomnia of kings, a common theme in eastern literature, is here treated comically. 5: That Haman was standing there (during the night!) is a necessity of the plot. 8: The bestowal of royal robes was common in ancient times; see Gen.41.42. Horses wearing royal crowns are pictured on Persian monuments. 13: The reply to Haman here is another reference to Providence; see 4.14 n. 14: It was Oriental custom for the guests to be escorted.

7.1-10: Haman's end. 4: Sold: a reference to the bribe (3.9-10); Esther could tolerate slavery

On that day King Ahasuerus gave Queen Esther the house of Haman, enemy of the Jews; and Mordecai came into the king's presence, for Esther had told him how he was related to her. Then the king took off his signet-ring, which he had taken back from Haman, and gave it to Mordecai. And Esther put Mordecai in charge of Haman's house.

Once again Esther spoke before the king, falling at his feet in tears and pleading with him to avert the calamity planned by Haman the Agagite and to frustrate his plot against the Jews. The king stretched out the golden sceptre to Esther, and she rose and stood before the king, and said, 'May it please your majesty: if I have found favour with you, and if the proposal seems right to your majesty and I have won your approval, let a writ be issued to recall the letters which Haman son of Hammedatha the Agagite wrote in pursuance of his plan to destroy the Jews in all the royal provinces. For how can I bear to see the calamity which is coming upon my race? Or how can I bear to see the destruction of my family?' Then King Ahasuerus said to Queen Esther and to Mordecai the Jew, 'I have given Haman's house to Esther, and he has been hanged on the gallows, because he threatened the lives of the Jews. Now you shall issue a writ concerning the Jews in my name, in whatever terms you think fit, and seal it with the royal signet; for an order written in the name of the king and sealed with the royal signet cannot be revoked.'

And so, on the twenty-third day of the third month, the month Sivan, the king's secretaries were summoned; and a writ was issued to the Jews, exactly as Mordecai directed, and to the satraps, the governors, and the officers in the provinces from India to Ethiopia, a hundred and twenty-seven provinces, for each province in its own script and for each people in their own language, and also for the Jews in their own script and language. The writ was drawn up in the name of King Ahasuerus and sealed with the royal signet, and letters were sent by mounted couriers riding on horses from the royal stables. By these letters the king granted permission to the Jews in every city to unite and defend themselves, and to destroy, slay, and exterminate the whole strength of any people or province which might attack them, women and children too, and to plunder their possessions, throughout all the provinces of King Ahasuerus, in one day, the thirteenth day of the twelfth month, the month Adar. A copy of the writ was to be issued as a decree in every province and published to all peoples, and the Jews were to be ready for that day, the day of vengeance on their enemies. So the couriers, occasioned by the bribe, but to be destroyed, slain, and exterminated was intolerable. 9: Mordecai, who once served the king well: Haman has tried to kill a benefactor of the king, and hence all the more merits hanging.

<sup>f</sup> Haman . . . despair: prob. rdg.; Heb. they covered Haman's face.

8.1-17: The calamity averted. 2: The transfer of the signet-ring gives Mordecai the same powers as Haman had; see 3.10 n. 5: Esther emphasizes that the edict against the Jews was from Haman, not the king. 8-17: Note the general similarity of this passage to 3.9-4.3. The wording in 9-14 is very similar to 3.12-15; the main difference is that it is aimed at the enemies of the Jews. A Persian king would hardly have allowed such a slaughter of his people; this section is not history but theology, legend, emphasizing retributive justice. 9: Sivan is May-June. 10: Greek writers mention the horses of the Persian postal system. 12: The date is given precisely mounted on their royal horses, were dispatched post-haste at the king's urgent command; and the decree was issued also in Susa the capital city.

15 Mordecai left the king's presence in royal robes of violet and white, wearing a great golden crown and a cloak of fine linen and purple, and all the city
16 of Susa shouted for joy. For the Jews there was light and joy, gladness and 17 honour. In every province and every city reached by the royal command and decree, there was joy and gladness for the Jews, feasting and holiday. And many of the peoples of the land professed themselves Jews, because fear of the Jews had seized them.

9 ON THE THIRTEENTH DAY OF THE twelfth month, the month Adar, the time came for the king's command and his edict to be carried out. The very day on which the enemies of the Jews had hoped to gain the upper hand over them was to become the day when the Jews should gain the upper hand over those who hated them. On that day the Jews united in their cities in all the provinces of King Ahasuerus to fall upon those who had planned their ruin. No one could resist them, because fear
3 of them had seized all peoples. All the officers of the provinces, the satraps and the governors, and all the royal officials, aided the Jews, because fear
4 of Mordecai had seized them. Mordecai had become a great personage in the royal palace; his fame had spread throughout all the provinces as the power of the man grew steadily greater.
5 So the Jews put their enemies to the sword, with great slaughter and destruction; they worked their will on 6 those who hated them. In Susa, the capital city, the Jews killed five hundred 7 men and destroyed them; and they killed also Parshandatha, Dalphon and Aspatha, Poratha, Adalia and Ari-datha, Parmashta, Arisai, Aridai and 9 Vaizatha, the ten sons of Haman son of Hammedatha, the enemy of the Jews; but they did not touch the plunder.

That day when the number of those 11 killed in Susa the capital city came to the notice of the king, he said to Queen 12 Esther, 'In Susa, the capital city, the Jews have killed and destroyed five hundred men and the ten sons of Haman. What have they done in the rest of the king's provinces? Whatever you ask further will be given to you; whatever more you seek shall be done.' Esther answered him, 'If it please your 13 majesty, let tomorrow be granted to the Jews in Susa to do according to the edict for today; and let the bodies of Haman's ten sons be hung up on the gallows.' The king gave orders for this
14 to be done; the edict was issued in Susa and Haman's ten sons were hung up on the gallows. The Jews in Susa 15 united again on the fourteenth day of the month Adar and killed three hundred men in Susa; but they did not touch the plunder.

The rest of the Jews in the king's 16 provinces had united to defend themselves; they took vengeance on<sup>g</sup> their enemies by killing seventy-five thousand of those who hated them; but they did not touch the plunder. This was on the 17 thirteenth day of the month Adar, and they rested on the fourteenth day and made that a day of feasting and joy. The Jews in Susa had united on 18 the thirteenth and fourteenth days of the month, and rested on the fifteenth day and made that a day of feasting and joy. This is why isolated Jews who 19 live in remote villages keep the fourteenth day of the month Adar in joy and feasting, as a holiday on which they send presents of food to one another.

<sup>g</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. got respite from.

since it helps date the Purim festival. 15: The crown is the turban of the vizier. 17: Some interpret the verse to mean conversion to Judaism; some think not conversion, but only association with the Jews took place; see 9.27. Still others regard the verse as just a literary enhancement of the story.

9.1-32: The inauguration of the feast of Purim. 7: In MT manuscripts the names of Haman's sons are written in a column one under the other, a peculiar arrangement (similar to Josh. 12.9-23); the reason is unknown, but may reflect triumphalism. 10: The emphasis here and in vv. 15-16 that they did not touch the plunder, despite the permission of 8.11, seems to be a deliberate echo of, and dissent from, 1 Sam.15.9-35, the Agag story, in which Israel took plunder, to their harm. 15-19: These verses explain different customs in the observance of 20 Then Mordecai set these things on record and sent letters to all the Jews in all the provinces of King Ahasuerus, far and near, binding them to keep the fourteenth and fifteenth days of the month Adar, year by year, as the days on which the Jews obtained relief from their enemies and as the month which was changed for them from sorrow into joy, from a time of mourning to a holiday. They were to keep them as days of feasting and joy, days for sending presents of food to one another and gifts to the poor.

23 So the Jews undertook to continue the practice that they had begun in accordance with Mordecai's letter. 24 This they did because Haman son of Hammedatha the Agagite, the enemy of all the Jews, had plotted to destroy the Jews and had cast lots, Pur as it is called, with intent to crush and destroy them. But when the matter came before the king, he issued written orders that the wicked plot which Haman had devised against the Jews should recoil on his own head, and that he and his sons should be hanged on the gallows. 26 Therefore, these days were named Purim after the word Pur. Accordingly, because of all that was written in this letter, because of all they had seen and 27 experienced in this affair, the Jews resolved and undertook, on behalf of themselves, their descendants, and all who should join them, that they would without fail keep these two days as a yearly festival in the prescribed manner and at the appointed time; that these days should be remembered and kept, generation after generation, in every family, province, and city, that the days of Purim should always be observed among the Jews, and that the memory of them should never cease among their descendants.

Queen Esther daughter of Abihail 29 gave full authority in writing to<sup>h</sup> Mordecai the Jew, to confirm this second letter about Purim. Letters 30 wishing peace and security were sent to all the Jews in the hundred and twenty-seven provinces of King Ahasuerus, making the observance of these 31 days of Purim at their appointed time binding on them, as Mordecai the Jew<sup>i</sup> had prescribed. In the same way they had prescribed regulations for fasts and lamentations for themselves and their descendants. The command of Esther 32 confirmed these regulations for Purim, and the record is preserved in writing.

King Ahasuerus imposed forced 10 labour on the land and the coasts and islands. All the king's acts of authority 2 and power, and the dignities which he conferred on Mordecai, are written in the annals of the kings of Media and Persia. For Mordecai the Jew was 3 second only to King Ahasuerus; he was a great man among the Jews and was popular with the mass of his countrymen, for he sought the good of his people and promoted the welfare of all their descendants.<sup>j</sup>

<sup>h</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. and.

<sup>i</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds and Queen Esther.

<sup>j</sup> Or and was in friendly relations with all his race.

Purim, city Jews having a two-day celebration but village Jews only one day. 20-32: This summary of how Purim became part of the Jewish religious calendar seems to be an addition to the book. It is comprised of Mordecai's letter (vv. 20-22), the deliberate resolve of the Jews (vv. 23-28), and the confirmatory letter of Esther and Mordecai (vv. 29-32). 31: Fasts: the date is not specified here, but the thirteenth of Adar, set by Haman for the pogrom (3.13), naturally suggests itself; this date is known in the Jewish calendar as "the fast of Esther."

10.1-3: Conclusion. These verses, also an addition (see 9.20-32 n.), exalt the power of Xerxes and his high elevation of Mordecai.

THE BOOK OF JOB

In the Book of Job, a gifted poet and theologian examines the problem of a just God allowing the innocent to suffer. While the literary form may be modeled after the Babylonian "discussion literature"—rather than after Greek tragedy, as is sometimes suggested—the story itself possibly derives from an ancient Edomite folktale. External similarities to the Mesopotamian literary works, "The Babylonian Theodicy," "I Will Praise the Lord of Wisdom," and "Man and His God," are worthy of notice, but Job surpasses them in theological depth, human insight, and literary skill.

The structure of the book is as follows: (1) Introduction: a mythological presentation of a meeting in the heavenly court between God and the angels, among whom is Satan (chs. 1–2); (2) Poetic dialogue: the central poem containing three cycles of speeches (chs. 3–31). Into this core have been inserted later additions, namely a hymn on the inaccessibility of Wisdom (ch. 28) and speeches by an extraneous character, Elihu, a spokesman for a later orthodoxy that found the arguments of Job blasphemous (chs. 32–37); (3) Divine resolution (chs. 38–42), including an epilogue (ch. 42).

The poet boldly challenges the Deuteronomist theology that the good man is rewarded with material prosperity and the wicked man punished with temporal suffering. While the merit of this position is acknowledged, the poet creates a dialogue in which Job maintains that man's integrity in the face of disaster must not be sacrificed to social convention, nor even to its established concepts of the deity as upheld by his friends. In the end, Job discovers that his own God as well as that of his friends is too small. Nevertheless, because of his integrity, Job is exonerated and stands before God as intercessor for his friends. And perhaps the key to the book is the view that the suffering righteous man stands in the presence of God.

The date of the writing is most uncertain. The core dialogue (chs. 3.1–31.40; 38.1–42.6) was possibly recorded from older material in the sixth or fifth century B.C. The Elihu material (32.1–37.24) is often viewed as a later addition, and the present prologue (chs. 1–2) regarded as recorded even later.

---

Prologue

1 THERE LIVED IN THE LAND OF UZ A man of blameless and upright life named Job, who feared God and

2 set his face against wrongdoing. He had seven sons and three daughters;

3 and he owned seven thousand sheep and three thousand camels, five hundred yoke of oxen and five hundred asses, with a large number of slaves. Thus Job was the greatest man in all the East.

4 Now his sons used to foregather and give, each in turn, a feast in his own house; and they used to send and invite their three sisters to eat and drink with them. Then, when a round of feasts

5 was finished, Job sent for his children and sanctified them, rising early in the morning and sacrificing a whole-offering for each of them; for he thought that they might somehow have sinned against God and committed blasphemy in their hearts. This he always did.

The day came when the members of 6 the court of heaven took their places

---

1.1–2.13: The prologue. Job, a devout and prosperous man, is tested for his integrity by calamity and disaster. 1: Uz probably means Edom, although northern Transjordan is possible (see Gen.36.28 and Jer.25.20 for the former and Gen.10.23; 22.21, and 1 Chr.1.17 for the latter). Blameless: lit. whole; the import is not sinless perfection. The etymology of the name Job can be "inveterate foe" or else the "penitent one," thus indicating the role of Job and the content of the book. 2: A family consisting of seven sons and three daughters (see Ruth 4.15) was deemed ideal. 3: The wealth described is that of a seminomadic sheikh (note the absence of such items as precious stones or metal). 4: The feast is possibly to be understood as an annual festival celebration. 5: Sanctified: ceremonial removal of ritual uncleanness in preparation for worship; see Exod.19.15; Lev.11.39–47; Num.11.18. 6: For the ancients, human events were decided in divine councils; see 1 Kgs.22.19–22; Isa.6.8. Satan, lit. "adversary," or "accuser," is apparently a legal term (Ps.109.6), and not yet the proper name for an evil being it was to become later. This title and function possibly derive from the Persian secret police and his duties would compare to those of a district attorney in the United States. He is in the presence of the LORD, and 7 Satan<sup>a</sup> was there among them. The LORD asked him where he had been.

 'Ranging over the earth', he said, 'from 8 end to end.' Then the LORD asked
 Satan, 'Have you considered my servant
 Job? You will find no one like him on earth, a man of blameless and upright
 life, who fears God and sets his face 9 against wrongdoing.' Satan answered the LORD, 'Has not Job good reason 10 to be God-fearing? Have you not hedged him round on every side with your protection, him and his family and all his possessions? Whatever he does you have blessed, and his herds 11 have increased beyond measure. But stretch out your hand and touch all that he has, and then he will curse you 12 to your face.' Then the LORD said to Satan, 'So be it. All that he has is in your hands; only Job himself you must not touch.' And Satan left the LORD's presence.

13 When the day came that Job's sons and daughters were eating and drinking 14 in the eldest brother's house, a messenger came running to Job and said,
 'The oxen were ploughing and the 15 asses were grazing near them, when the Sabaeans swooped down and carried them off, after putting the herdsmen to the sword; and I am the only one to 16 escape and tell the tale.' While he was still speaking, another messenger arrived and said, 'God's fire flashed from heaven. It struck the sheep and the shepherds and burnt them up; and I am the only one to escape and tell 17 the tale.' While he was still speaking, another arrived and said, 'The Chal-daeans, three bands of them, have made a raid on the camels and carried them off, after putting the drivers to the sword; and I am the only one to escape 18 and tell the tale.' While this man was speaking, yet another arrived and said,
 'Your sons and daughters were eating and drinking in the eldest brother's house, when suddenly a whirlwind 19 swept across from the desert and struck the four corners of the house, and it fell on the young people and killed them; and I am the only one to escape and tell the tale.' At this Job stood up 20 and rent his cloak; then he shaved his head and fell prostrate on the ground, saying: 21

Naked I came from the womb, naked I shall return whence I came.
 The LORD gives and the LORD takes
 away;
 blessed be the name of the LORD.

Throughout all this Job did not sin; 22
 he did not charge God with unreason.

Once again the day came when the 2 members of the court of heaven took their places in the presence of the LORD, and Satan was there among them. The 2 LORD asked him where he had been.
 'Ranging over the earth', he said, 'from
 end to end.' Then the LORD asked 3
 Satan, 'Have you considered my servant
 Job? You will find no one like him on earth, a man of blameless and upright
 life, who fears God and sets his face against wrongdoing. You incited me to ruin him without a cause, but his integrity is still unshaken.' Satan 4 answered the LORD, 'Skin for skin!
 There is nothing the man will grudge to save himself. But stretch out your 5 hand and touch his bone and his flesh, and see if he will not curse you to your face.'

Then the LORD said to Satan, 'So be 6
 it. He is in your hands; but spare his life.' And Satan left the LORD's 7 presence, and he smote Job with running sores from head to foot, so that 8 he took a piece of a broken pot to scratch himself as he sat among the ashes. Then his wife said to him, 'Are 9

<sup>a</sup> Or the adversary.

---

the enemy of man, not of God. 10: Hedged him round: the barrier of thorns would keep adversity away from Job's territory (see Hos.2.6 for the figure). 15: Sabaeans: nomads from Arabia. 16: The author makes skillful use of a refrain, "I am the only one . . ." here and in the following verses. God's fire: lightning. 17: Chaldaeans: the biblical word for Babylonians. The import here is wandering marauders, not invaders. 19: Whirlwind: a wind much more violent than the sirocco (hamsin). 21: The womb is likened to mother earth. 2.4: Skin for skin: a proverbial expression meaning "value for value." 7: It is impossible to determine the illness; some sort of skin boil is suggested. 9: Death was not an immediate result of cursing God: the

- you still unshaken in your integrity? Cursed be it by those whose magic binds even the monster of the deep, who are ready to tame Leviathan himself with spells. May no star shine out in its twilight; may it wait for a dawn that never comes, nor ever see the eyelids of the morning, because it did not shut the doors of the womb that bore me and keep trouble away from my sight. Why was I not still-born, why did I not die when I came out of the womb? Why was I ever laid on my mother's knees or put to suck at her breasts? Why was I not hidden like an untimely birth, like an infant that has not lived to see the light? For then I should be lying in the quiet grave, asleep in death, at rest, with kings and their ministers who built themselves palaces, with princes rich in gold who filled their houses with silver. There the wicked man chafes no more, there the tired labourer rests; the captive too finds peace there and hears no taskmaster's voice; high and low are there, even the slave, free from his master. Why should the sufferer be born to see the light? Why is life given to men who find it so bitter? They wait for death but it does not come,

Job's complaint to God

- 3<sup>1-2</sup> After this Job broke silence and cursed the day of his birth:
- 3 Perish the day when I was born and the night which said, 'A man is conceived'!
- 4 May that day turn to darkness; may God above not look for it, nor light of dawn shine on it.
- 5 May blackness sully it, and murk and gloom, cloud smother that day, swift darkness eclipse its sun.
- 6 Blind darkness swallow up that night; count it not among the days of the year, reckon it not in the cycle of the months.
- 7 That night, may it be barren for ever, no cry of joy be heard in it.

b Verse 16 transposed to follow verse 12.

hope here is that death may soon follow. 11: Teman: see Jer.49.7 n. Shuah: perhaps Edom or Arabia (see Gen.25.2; 1 Chr.1.32). Naamah: an unknown place (but see Josh.15.41).

3.1-26: Job's complaint to God. Two subtle links unite the poetry with the folk narrative, namely the curse (which is against Job's day of birth rather than God) and an ironic reference to God's hedging in of Job on all sides (1.10), now no longer a sign of favor (v. 23). 1: Compare Jer.20.14-18. 8: Astrologers and magicians were reputed to have dominance, by means of incantations, over the dragon of chaos, Leviathan; the mythological monster, mentioned frequently in Canaanite literature, plays a prominent role in Israelite poetry as the embodiment of disorder (Job 7.12; 9.13 n.; 26.13; Pss.74.13-14; 104.26; Isa.27.1, etc.). In the Babylonian creation story, the god Marduk slays the monster. 12: The repeated why (vv. 12,16,20,23) shows Job confused over the meaning of his suffering but not questioning the justice of God. His friends raise that issue (4.7-9). 13: The positive attitude toward Sheol (see 7.9 n.) as pro-they seek it more eagerly than<sup>c</sup> hidden treasure.

 22 They are glad when they reach the tomb,
 and when they come to the grave they exult.
 23 Why should a man be born to wander blindly,
 hedged in by God on every side?
 24 My sighing is all my food, and groans pour from me in a torrent.
 25 Every terror that haunted me has caught up with me,
 and all that I feared has come upon
 me.
 26 There is no peace of mind nor quiet
 for me;
 I chafe in torment and have no rest.

First cycle of speeches

4 Then Eliphaz the Temanite began:

2 If one ventures to speak with you, will you lose patience?
 For who could hold his tongue any longer?
 3 Think how once you encouraged those who faltered,
 how you braced feeble arms, 4 how a word from you upheld the stumblers
 and put strength into weak knees.
 5 But now that adversity comes upon you, you lose patience;
 it touches you, and you are unmanned.
 6 Is your religion no comfort to you?
 Does your blameless life give you no hope?
 7 For consider, what innocent man has ever perished?

Where have you seen the upright destroyed?
 This I know, that those who plough 8 mischief and sow trouble reap as they have sown;
 they perish at the blast of God 9 and are shrivelled by the breath of his nostrils.
 The roar of the lion, the whimpering 10
 of his cubs, fall silent;
 the teeth of the young lions are broken;
 the lion perishes for lack of prey 11 and the whelps of the lioness are abandoned.
 A word stole into my ears, 12
 and they caught the whisper of it; in the anxious visions of the night, 13
 when a man sinks into deepest sleep, terror seized me and shuddering; 14
 the trembling of my body frightened
 me.
 A wind brushed my face 15 and made the hairs bristle on my flesh;
 and a figure stood there whose shape 16
 I could not discern,
 an apparition loomed before me, and I heard the sound of a low voice:
 'Can mortal man be more righteous 17
 than God,
 or the creature purer than his Maker?
 If God mistrusts his own servants 18 and finds his messengers at fault, how much more those that dwell in 19 houses whose walls are clay, whose foundations are dust, which can be crushed like a bird's nest

c Or seek it among . . .

viding anticipated rest is in contrast to the Semite's usual fear of the underworld and underlines Job's present misery. 23: Hedged in: see 3.1–26 n.

4.1–14.22: First cycle of speeches.

4.1–5.27: Eliphaz's first speech. Gently Eliphaz broaches the central ideas that will recur throughout the friends' speeches: man cannot be more righteous than God, and even celestial beings have no claim to purity in God's sight. 2: Note the courtesy here. "The Babylonian Theodicy," a somewhat similar work, is replete with politeness, even while the argument is vehement. Eliphaz is not above harsh innuendo (vv. 5–7) and even open attack (vv. 8–9). 7: The view expressed that the righteous do not suffer is an implied slur, a vicious one, and Job is later (12.4) portrayed responding to it. (See the similar formulations in Ps.37.25, Prov. 12.22, Eccles.2.10, etc.) 12–21: The appeal to subjective visions of the night is a subtle admission that the Wisdom tradition which drew its conclusions from empirical evidence had no cogent answer to suffering. The visions are in the tradition of professional prophecy which was at this time in disrepute. See Ezek.13.6–16. 18: Messengers: angels. 19: Houses: the human body. In later literature, e.g. Wis.9.15, there is development of the idea in this verse, there influenced by

20	or torn down between dawn and dark, how much more shall such men perish outright and unheeded,	In the daylight they run into darkness, and grope at midday as though it were night.	14
21	<sup>d</sup> die, without ever finding wisdom?	He saves the destitute from their greed, and the needy from the grip of the strong;	15
5	Call if you will; is there any to answer you? To which of the holy ones will you turn?	so the poor hope again, and the unjust are sickened.	16
2	The fool is destroyed by his own angry passions, and the end of childish resentment is death.	Happy the man whom God rebukes! therefore do not reject the discipline of the Almighty.	17
3	I have seen it for myself: a fool uprooted, his home in sudden ruin about him, <sup>e</sup>	For, though he wounds, he will bind up; the hands that smite will heal.	18
4	his children past help, browbeaten in court with none to save them.	You may meet disaster six times, and he will save you;	19
5	<sup>f</sup> Their rich possessions are snatched from them; what they have harvested others hungrily devour;	seven times, and no harm shall touch you. In time of famine he will save you from death,	20
6	the stronger man seizes it from the panniers, panting, thirsting for their wealth.	in battle from the sword. You will be shielded from the lash of slander, <sup>h</sup>	21
6	Mischief does not grow out of the soil nor trouble spring from the earth;	and when violence comes you need not fear.	22
7	man is born to trouble, as surely as birds fly <sup>g</sup> upwards.	You will laugh at violence and starvation and have no need to fear wild beasts;	23
8	For my part, I would make my petition to God and lay my cause before him, who does great and unsearchable things, marvels without number.	for you have a covenant with the stones to spare your fields, and the weeds have been constrained to leave you at peace.	24
10	He gives rain to the earth and sends water on the fields;	You will know that all is well with your household, you will look round your home and find nothing amiss;	25
11	he raises the lowly to the heights, the mourners are uplifted by victory;	you will know, too, that your descendants will be many and your offspring like grass, thick upon the earth.	26
12	he frustrates the plots of the crafty, and they win no success,	You will come in sturdy old age to the grave	26
13	he traps the cunning in their craftiness, and the schemers' plans are thrown into confusion.

<sup>d</sup> Prob. rds.: transposing Their rich possessions are snatched from them to follow 5. 4.

<sup>e</sup> ruin about him: prob. rds.; Heb. obscure.

<sup>f</sup> Line transposed from 4. 21. g Or as sparks shoot.

<sup>h</sup> from . . . slander: or when slander is rife.

strands of Greek thought in which anything material was devalued. 5.1: Holy ones: members of the heavenly court; see 1.6 n. 2: This verse quotes or paraphrases a proverb like 29.11. 4: The word translated court means "gates"; justice was administered at the gates of the city. 17: Divine discipline of man, musar in Heb., is emphasized by Elihu in 33.14–30; 36.7–15. 18: The theme of discipline as a means of education and correction is frequent in Wisdom literature; see Ecclus.4.17; 32.14. The Almighty himself will heal Job if he does not reject his suffering as a correction for his evil-doing. 19: Six . . . seven: a frequent numerical device meaning "totality." It originates from the pattern of poetic parallelism. 23: Job's acceptance of correction will insure a covenant, i.e. harmony, with the stones and weeds since they too obey God. Stones as sheaves come in due season to the threshing-floor.	Is my strength the strength of stone, or is my flesh bronze? Oh how shall I find help within myself?	12 13

27	We have inquired into all this, and so it is; this we have heard, and you may know it for the truth.	The power to aid myself is put out of my reach.
6	Then Job answered:	Devotion is due from his friends to one who despairs and loses faith in the Almighty;	14
2	O that the grounds for my resentment might be weighed, and my misfortunes set with them on the scales!	but my brothers have been treacherous as a mountain stream, like the channels of streams that run dry,	15
3	For they would outweigh the sands of the sea: what wonder if my words are wild? <sup>i</sup>	which turn dark with ice or are hidden with piled-up snow; or they vanish the moment they are in spate,	16 17
4	The arrows of the Almighty find their mark in me, and their poison soaks into my spirit; God's onslaughts wear me away.	dwindle in the heat and are gone. Then the caravans, winding hither and thither,	18
5	Does the wild ass bray when he has grass or the ox low when he has fodder?	go up into the wilderness and perish; <sup>k</sup>
6	Can a man eat tasteless food unseasoned with salt, or find any flavour in the juice of mallows?	the caravans of Tema look for their waters, travelling merchants of Sheba hope for them;	19
7	Food that should nourish me sticks in my throat, and my bowels rumble with an echoing sound.	but they are disappointed, for all their confidence, they reach them only to be balked. So treacherous have you now been to me: <sup>l</sup>	20 21
8	O that I might have my request, that God would grant what I hope for:	you felt dismay and were afraid. Did I ever say, 'Give me this or that; open your purses to save my life; rescue me from my enemy;	22 23
9	that he would be pleased to crush me, to snatch me away with his hand and cut me off!	ransom me out of the hands of ruthless men'?
10	For that would bring me relief, and in the face of unsparing anguish I would leap for joy. <sup>j</sup>	Tell me plainly, and I will listen in silence;	24
11	Have I the strength to wait? What end have I to expect, that I should be patient?

<sup>i</sup> what . . . wild?: or therefore words fail me.

<sup>j</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds I have not denied the words of the Holy One.

<sup>k</sup> Or and are lost.

<sup>l</sup> So . . . to me: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.

are the bane of the Palestinian fields whose soil is very shallow. 27: Eliphaz here reinforces his earlier mention of God's way and discipline (12–17) by an appeal to what he has learned from experience.

6.1–7.21: Job's answer. His distress has come from God, unjustly. He will not abstain from expressing his bitterness. 3–12: Job's wild words are as involuntary and physical as the lowing of an ox when hungry, for his flesh is not bronze. 4: While fire arrows were used in the Ancient Near East, there is no OT evidence of poison arrows outside this verse. The metaphor of God as an archer occurs frequently (Deut.32.23; Ezek.5.16; Ps.7.13). 15–20: Streams in Palestine rush into the plain filled with water from mountain rain and snow but quickly lose themselves as they run dry in the heat and sand of the desert. One who follows their banks in security suddenly finds himself without water. 22–23: Job does not ask his friend to take any risks to show me where I have erred.	Thou wilt behold me no more with a	8

25	How harsh are the words of the upright man!	seeing eye;
	What do the arguments of wise men <sup>m</sup> prove?	under thy very eyes I shall disappear.
		As clouds break up and disperse,	9
26	Do you mean to argue about words or to sift the utterance of a man past hope?	so he that goes down to Sheol never comes back;
		he never returns home again,	10 and his place will know him no more. <sup>r</sup> 27	Would you assail an orphan <sup>n</sup> ? Would you hurl yourselves on a friend?	But I will not hold my peace;	11
		I will speak out in the distress of my mind
28	So now, I beg you, turn and look at me:	and complain in the bitterness of my soul.
	am I likely to lie to your faces?	Am I the monster of the deep, am I	12
29	Think again, let me have no more injustice;	the sea-serpent, think again, for my integrity is in question.	that thou settest a watch over me?
		When I think that my bed will	13
30	Do I ever give voice to injustice? Does my sense not warn me when my words are wild?	comfort me, that sleep will relieve my complaining, thou dost terrify me with dreams	14
7	Has not man hard service on earth, and are not his days like those of a hired labourer,	and affright me with visions.
	2 like those of a slave longing for the shade	I would rather be choked outright;	15 or a servant kept waiting for his wages?	I would prefer death to all my sufferings.
		I am in despair, I would not go on	16
3	So months of futility are my portion, troubled nights are my lot.	living;
		leave me alone, for my life is but a vapour.
4	When I lie down, I think, 'When will it be day that I may rise?'	What is man that thou makest much	17
	When the evening grows long and I lie down,	of him
	I do nothing but toss till morning twilight.	and turnest thy thoughts towards him, only to punish him morning by	18
5	My body is infested with worms, and scabs cover my skin. <sup>o</sup>	morning or to test him every hour of the day?
6	My days are swifter than a shuttle <sup>p</sup> and come to an end as the thread runs out. <sup>q</sup>	Wilt thou not look away from me for	19 an instant?
		Wilt thou not let me be while I swallow my spittle?
		If I have sinned, how do I injure	20
		thee,
7	Remember, my life is but a breath of wind;
	I shall never again see good days.

m wise men: prob. rdg.; Heb. unintelligible.

n Or a blameless man.

o Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds it is cracked and discharging.

p Or a fleeting odour. q as . . . out: or without hope.

r Or and he will not be noticed any more in his place.

save his life, he asks only for compassion. 26–27: Job accuses his friends of being heartless with a man in despair and of a power play against an orphan, a helpless friend. 7.1–6: Job universalizes his experience. 1: Service: the image seems to derive from military duty. 6: As a shuttle runs out of thread, so Job's life is being emptied of hope. 9: Sheol: the netherworld. 12: Job, here addressing God, in effect is saying: "Am I a threat to divine order like the chaos monster (see 3.8 n) who requires constant surveillance?" 17–18: The traditional sublime celebration of God's concern for man (see Ps.8) here becomes a parody, for Job wishes God to abstain from taking thought of him; beneficent providence has been replaced by divine harassment. 19–21: Job finds even God's gaze oppressive. He declares that it is unworthy of God to punish a fragile being like man, even though he be guilty, since he does not injure God. 20: Watcher of the hearts of men is meant as a rebuke, not as adoration.

	thou watcher of the hearts of men? Why hast thou made me thy butt, and why have I become thy target?	While they are still in flower and not ready to cut, <sup>s</sup> they wither earlier than <sup>t</sup> any green plant.	12
21	Why dost thou not pardon my offence and take away my guilt? But now I shall lie down in the grave; seek me, and I shall not be.	Such is the fate of all who forget God; the godless man's life-thread breaks off; his confidence is gossamer, and the ground of his trust a spider's web.	13
8	Then Bildad the Shuhite began:	He leans against his house but it does not stand; he clutches at it but it does not hold firm.	14
2	How long will you say such things, the long-winded ramblings of an old man?	His is the lush growth of a plant in the sun, pushing out shoots over the garden; but its roots become entangled in a stony patch	15
3	Does God pervert judgement? Does the Almighty pervert justice?	and run against a bed of rock.	16
4	Your sons sinned against him, so he left them to be victims of their own iniquity.	Then someone uproots it from its place, which <sup>u</sup> disowns it and says, 'I have never known you.'	17
5	If only you will seek God betimes and plead for the favour of the Almighty,	That is how its life withers away, and other plants spring up from the earth.	18
6	if you are innocent and upright, then indeed will he watch over you and see your just intent fulfilled.		19
7	Then, though your beginnings were humble, your end will be great.	Be sure, God will not spurn the blameless man, nor will he grasp the hand of the wrongdoer.	20
8	Inquire now of older generations and consider the experience of their fathers;	He will yet fill your mouth with laughter, and shouts of joy will be on your lips;	21
9	for we ourselves are of yesterday and are transient; our days on earth are a shadow.	your enemies shall be wrapped in confusion, and the tents of the wicked shall vanish away.	22
10	Will not they speak to you and teach you and pour out the wisdom of their hearts?
11	Can rushes grow where there is no marsh? Can reeds flourish without water?

<sup>s</sup> and . . . cut: or they are surely cut.

<sup>t</sup> Or wither like . . .

<sup>u</sup> Or and.

8.1-22: Bildad's first speech, an appeal not to his own experience, but to that of the race of man. 4: Compare the accusation against Job's children with their innocence in 1.4-5. 5-7: Picking up Job's mention of God's watchfulness (7.19), Bildad assures Job that innocence coupled with repentance will lead to restoration. 8-10: Lessons, distilled from experience, that have stood the test of time and the scrutiny of the ancients are more worthy to be considered wisdom than the subjective experience that is still in flux like a shadow. 8-9: See 8.1-22 n. Lessons derived from experience are preserved by the wise. 11-13: The law of retribution is as certain as the order of nature. 14-19: Neither the root nor the fruit, i.e. house, of a wicked man's life has sufficient substance to give security. 17: The metaphor of plants growing in stony ground is also used in Mk.4.3-9. 20: To grasp the hand is a symbol of divine election to a favored position and of support in it; see Isa.42.6; 51.18. 21-22: God will fill your mouth with laughter . . . and the tents of the wicked shall vanish away. Thus, after his earlier harsh criticism of Job, Bildad softens his tone and assures him that God will be just after all if he, Job, will change his attitude.

- 9 Then Job answered:
- 2 Indeed this I know for the truth, that no man can win his case against
God.
- 3 If a man chooses to argue with him,
God will not answer one question in a thousand.<sup>v</sup>
- 4 He is wise, he is powerful;
what man has stubbornly resisted him and survived?
- 5 It is God who moves mountains, giving them no rest,
turning them over in his wrath;
6 who makes the earth start from its place
so that its pillars are convulsed; 7 who commands the sun's orb not to rise
and shuts up the stars under his seal; 8 who by himself spread out the heavens
and trod on the sea-monster's back;<sup>w</sup> 9 who made Aldebaran and Orion, the Pleiades and the circle of the southern stars;
10 who does great and unsearchable things,
marvels without number.
- 11 He passes by me, and I do not see him;<sup>x</sup>
he moves on his way undiscerned by
me;
12 if he hurries on, who can bring him back?
Who will ask him what he does?
13 God does not turn back his wrath;
the partisans of Rahab lie prostrate at his feet.
- 14 How much less can I answer him or find words to dispute with him?
Though I am right, I get no answer, 15 though I plead with my accuser for mercy.
If I summoned him to court and he 16 responded,
I do not believe that he would listen to my plea—
for he bears hard upon me for a 17 trifle
and rains blows on me without
cause;
he leaves me no respite to recover 18
my breath
but fills me with bitter thoughts.
If the appeal is to force, see how 19 strong he is;
if to justice, who can compel him to give me a hearing?
Though I am right, he condemns me 20
out of my own mouth;
though I am blameless, he twists my words.
Blameless, I say; of myself 21
I reckon nothing, I hold my life cheap.
But it is all one; therefore I say, 22
'He destroys blameless and wicked alike.'
When a sudden flood brings death, 23
he mocks the plight of the innocent.
The land is given over to the power 24
of the wicked,
and the eyes of its judges are blindfold.<sup>x</sup>
- My days have been swifter than a 25
runner,

<sup>v</sup> If a man . . . thousand: or If God is pleased to argue with him, man cannot answer one question in a thousand.

<sup>w</sup> Or on the crests of the waves.

<sup>x</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds if not he, then who?

9.1–10.22: Job's response. The praise of God's majesty (5–10) gives way (9.11–10.22) to an accusation of divine malice of intent; Job feels the necessity (9.33–35) of calling in an arbitrator between himself and God. 3: The phrase "one in a thousand" is a hyperbole; see also Eccles. 7.28. 5–10: The so-called "doxologies" in Amos 4.13; 5.8–9; 9.5–6 are strikingly similar to this hymn. 5: Move mountains: earthquake. These are often described as accompanying a theophany, e.g. Judg.5.4. 6: Pillars: the seven columns supporting the cosmic house (see Prov.9.1). 7: The sun's orb does not rise and the stars are under a seal at God's command in an overcast sky. 8: Note Tfn. w, "crests of the waves." 9: The precise identity of these constellations is uncertain. 10: See 5.9. Job's praise of God's grandeur here seems to surpass that of Eliphaz in a similar hymn in 5.9–16. 11–12: God cannot be accosted or called into question in any way. 13: Rahab: in folklore the mythological ocean-chaos monster, elsewhere called Leviathan or Tannin, slain by the deity (compare 26.12; Isa.51.9; Ps.89.10). In Isa.30.7 and Ps.87.4 Rahab and Egypt are identified. 14–20: An imaginary courtroom, with God pictured as judge and prosecuting attorney. 15: Right: innocent. That is, even when the verdict of innocence is pronounced, Job must beg for mercy. 19: Here the crucial point is made that God is a law unto himself (Jer.12.1). 20–24: These bitter verses indict God's governing of the universe as callous indifference, if not malevolence. Job here abandons the basic premise of all ancient wisdom, namely, an order sustained by the Creator. 20: Job, despite his innocence, they have slipped away and seen no prosperity;	or dost thou see as mortal man sees?

26	they have raced by like reed-built skiffs,	Are thy days as those of a mortal	5
	swift as vultures swooping on carrion.	or thy years as the life of a man,
27	If I think, 'I will forget my griefs,	that thou lookest for guilt in me	6
	I will show a cheerful face and smile',	and dost seek in me for sin,
28	I tremble in every nerve; <sup>y</sup>	though thou knowest that I am	7
	I know that thou wilt not hold me innocent.	guiltless
29	If I am to be accounted guilty,	and have none to save me from thee?
	why do I labour in vain?	'Thy hands gave me shape and made	8
30	Though I wash myself with soap	me;
	or cleanse my hands with lye,	and dost thou at once turn and 31	thou wilt thrust me into the mud	destroy me?
	and my clothes will make me loathsome.	Remember that thou didst knead me	9
		like clay;
		and wouldst thou turn me back into dust?
32	He is not a man as I am, that I can answer him	Didst thou not pour me out like milk	10 or that we can confront one another in court.	and curdle me like cheese, clothe me with skin and flesh	11
		and knit me together with bones and sinews?
33	If only there were one to arbitrate between us	Thou hast given me life and	12 and impose his authority on us both,	continuing favour,
34	so that God might take his rod from my back,	and thy providence has watched over my spirit.
	and terror of him might not come on me suddenly.	Yet this was the secret purpose of	13
35	I would then speak without fear of him;	thy heart, for I know I am not what I am thought to be.	and I know that this was thy intent:
		that, if I sinned, thou wouldst be	14 watching me
		and wouldst not acquit me of my guilt.
		If I indeed am wicked, the worse for	15
10	I am sickened of life;	me!
	I will give free rein to my griefs,	If I am righteous, even so I may lift
	I will speak out in bitterness of soul.	up my head; <sup>z</sup>
2	I will say to God, 'Do not condemn me,	if I am proud as a lion, thou dost	16
	but tell me the ground of thy complaint against me.	hunt me down
3	Dost thou find any advantage in oppression,	and dost confront me again with in spurning the fruit of all thy labour	marvellous power;
	and smiling on the policy of wicked men?	thou dost renew thy onslaught upon	17
4	Hast thou eyes of flesh	me, and with mounting anger against me bringest fresh forces to the attack.

<sup>y</sup> Or I am afraid of all that I must suffer.

<sup>z</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds filled with shame and steeped in my affliction.

has no defense against God's power. 30–31: The image of sin as filth is frequent, e.g. Zech.3.3–5. 32–35: Job pleads that he be allowed to present his case as a man without being compared to God and without having to deal with his awesome might and holiness which he acknowledges. An arbitrator could bring this about and Job will call for him again; see 16.21. 34: The divine rod is here no comfort; contrast Ps.23.4. 10.2: Complaint: that is, a lawsuit. This figure of speech is common, especially in prophetic literature. 4–7: For God to hunt for sin in Job is to act like another man who sees only the externals without understanding the depths of human life. God should try to understand man's limitations and predicaments. 13–22: God, in granting man life, constantly scrutinizes him for his guilt or innocence. So relentlessly does he punish man that it seems better for man not to have been born—unless he has some respite.

- |    |   |   |          |
|----|---|---|----------|
| 18 | Why didst thou bring me out of the womb?O that I had ended there and no eye had seen me,  | Its measure is longer than the earth and broader than the sea.If he passes by, he may keep secret his passing;  | 910  |
| 19 | that I had been carried from the womb to the graveand were as though I had not been born.   | if he proclaims it, who can turn him back?He surely knows which men are false, and when he sees iniquity, does he not take note of it? <sup>c</sup>                                 | 11       |
| 20 | Is not my life short and fleeting?Let me be, that I may be happy for a moment,  | Can a fool grow wise?can a wild ass's foal be born a man?   | 12       |
| 21 | before I depart to a land of gloom,a land of deep darkness, never to return,  | If only you had directed your heart rightlyand spread out your hands to pray to him!  | 13       |
| 22 | a land of gathering shadows, of deepening darkness,lit by no ray of light, <sup>a</sup> dark <sup>b</sup> upon dark.'   | If you have wrongdoing in hand,thrust it away;let no iniquity make its home with you.   | 14       |
| 11 | Then Zophar the Naamathite began:   | Then you could hold up your head without fault,a man of iron, knowing no fear.Then you will forget your trouble;you will remember it only as flood-waters that have passed; | 1516 |
| 2  | Should this spate of words not be answered?Must a man of ready tongue be always right?  | life will be lasting, bright as noonday,and darkness will be turned to morning.   | 17       |
| 3  | Is your endless talk to reduce men to silence?Are you to talk nonsense and no one rebuke you?   | You will be confident, because there is hope;sure of protection, you will lie down in confidence; <sup>d</sup>  | 18       |
| 4  | You claim that your opinions are sound;you say to God, 'I am spotless in thy sight.'  | great men will seek your favour.Blindness will fall on the wicked;the ways of escape are closed to them,and their hope is despair.  | 1920 |
| 5  | But if only he would speakand open his lips to talk with you,and expound to you the secrets of wisdom,for wonderful are its effects![Know then that God exacts from you less than your sin deserves.] | Then Job answered:  | 12       |
| 7  | Can you fathom the mystery of God,can you fathom the perfection of the Almighty?  | No doubt you are perfect men <sup>e</sup>and absolute wisdom is yours!But I have sense as well as you;in nothing do I fall short of you;                                    | 23   |
| 8  | It is higher than heaven; you can do nothing.It is deeper than Sheol; you can know nothing.   |   |          |

<sup>a</sup> lit. . . light; or a place of disorder.

<sup>b</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.

<sup>c</sup> does . . . of it? or he does not stand aloof.

<sup>d</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds and you will lie down unafraid.

<sup>e</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. No doubt you are people.

11.1-20: Zophar's first speech. He rebukes Job for presuming to understand God's unfathomable character, and exhorts Job to repent. 11: In Exod.32.32 and Mal.3.16-18 the mention of divine record keeping is quite explicit. Late Judaism embellished this idea. 12: Apparently a popular proverb. Some scholars suggest a change of MT, altering born a man to "come to learn." 13-20: The rewards for repentance are great; hence, Job should repent for his sins.

12.1-14.22: Job's response. He is no less wise than his friends, for even dumb animals understand shallow matters. To lie on behalf of God is wrong, and will be punished no less. Let God directly confront Job and let Job speak. Man is frail and has only one life to live; why, then, is God so severe? 2: Perfect men and absolute wisdom: the words are sarcastic. See also 13.2.

	what gifts indeed have you that others have not?	He makes counsellors behave like idiots	17
4	Yet I am a laughing-stock to my friend—	and drives judges mad;
	a laughing-stock, though I am innocent and blameless, one that called upon God, and he answered. <sup>f</sup>	he looses the bonds imposed by kings	18
		and removes the girdle of office from their waists; 5	Prosperity and ease look down on misfortune,	he makes priests behave like idiots and overthrows men long in office;	19
	on the blow that fells the man who is already reeling,	those who are trusted he strikes dumb,	20
6	while the marauders' tents are left undisturbed	he takes away the judgement of old men;
	and those who provoke God live safe and sound. <sup>g</sup>	he heaps scorn on princes	21
		and abates the arrogance of nobles.
		He leads peoples astray and destroys them,	23 <sup>f</sup>
7	Go and ask the cattle,	he lays them low, and there they lie.
	ask the birds of the air to inform you,	He takes away their wisdom from the rulers of the nations	24
8	or tell the creatures that crawl to teach you,	and leaves them wandering in a pathless wilderness;
	and the fishes of the sea to give you instruction.	they grope in the darkness without light	25
9	Who cannot learn from all these that the LORD's own hand has done this?	and are left to wander like a drunkard.
11 <sup>h</sup>	(Does not the ear test what is spoken	He uncovers mysteries deep in obscurity	22
	as the palate savours food?	and into thick darkness he brings light.
12	There is wisdom, remember, in age, and long life brings understanding.)
10	In God's hand are the souls of all that live,	All this I have seen with my own eyes, with my own ears I have heard it, and understood it.	13
	the spirits of all human kind.	What you know, I also know;	2
13	Wisdom and might are his, with him are firmness and understanding.	in nothing do I fall short of you.
14	If he pulls down, there is no rebuilding;	But for my part I would speak with the Almighty	3
	if he imprisons, there is no release.	and am ready to argue with God, 15	If he holds up the waters, there is drought;	while you like fools are smearing truth with your falsehoods,	4
	if he lets them go, they turn the land upside down.	stitching a patchwork of lies, one and all.
16	Strength and success belong to him, deceived and deceiver are his to use.	Ah, if you would only be silent and let silence be your wisdom!	5

<sup>f</sup> Or and he afflicted me.

<sup>g</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds He brings it in full measure to whom he will (cp. 21. 17).

<sup>h</sup> Verse 10 transposed to follow verse 12.

<sup>i</sup> Verse 22 transposed to follow verse 25.

4-6: As in society everywhere it is much easier to make a scapegoat of a helpless person for some trivial fault than to confront a powerful person for a serious wrong, 7-9: Job observes that such profound knowledge as his visitors have shown is known to the lowest creatures. 9: LORD: Nowhere else in Job (except at 28.28) does the poetry use the divine name Yahweh, whereas the prose prologue and epilogue employ it regularly. Hand has done this: compare Isa.41.20. 12: Some interpreters regard this not as a statement but as an ironic question: "Is there wisdom in old age, and does long life bring understanding?" 10,13-25: The fate which God decrees for man or nations is not subject to alteration, and his causality is all-pervasive. 13.5: In Egyptian

- 6 Now listen to my arguments and attend while I put my case.
- 7 Is it on God's behalf that you speak
so wickedly,
or in his defence that you allege what is false?
- 8 Must you take God's part,
or put his case for him?
- 9 Will all be well when he examines
you?
Will you quibble with him as you quibble with a man?
- 10 He will most surely expose you if you take his part by falsely accusing
me.
- 11 Will not God's majesty strike you
with dread,
and terror of him overwhelm you?
Your pompous talk is dust and ashes, your defences will crumble like clay.
- 13 Be silent, leave me to speak my mind, and let what may come upon me!
I will put my neck in the noose and take my life in my hands.
- 15 If he would slay me, I should not hesitate;
I should still argue my cause to his
face.
- 16 This at least assures my success, that no godless man may appear before him.
- 17 Listen then, listen to my words, and give a hearing to my exposition.
- 18 Be sure of this: once I have stated my case
I know that I shall be acquitted.
- 19 Who is there that can argue so forcibly with me that he could reduce me straightway to silence and death?
- 20 Grant me these two conditions only,
and then I will not hide myself out of thy sight:
- 21 take thy heavy hand clean away
from me
and let not the fear of thee strike me
with dread.
- 22 Then summon me, and I will answer;
or I will speak first, and do thou answer me.
- How many iniquities and sins are laid to my charge?
let me know my offences and my sin.
Why dost thou hide thy face and treat me as thy enemy?
Wilt thou chase a driven leaf, wilt thou pursue dry chaff, prescribing punishment for me and making me heir to the iniquities of my youth,
putting my feet in the stocks<sup>j</sup> and setting a slave-mark on the arches of my feet?<sup>k</sup>
- Man born of woman is short-lived 14
and full of disquiet.
He blossoms like a flower and then 2
he withers;
he slips away like a shadow and does not stay;
<sup>l</sup>he is like a wine-skin that perishes or a garment that moths have eaten.
Dost thou fix thine eyes on such a 3 creature,
and wilt thou bring him into court to confront thee?<sup>m</sup>
The days of his life are determined, 5 and the number of his months is known to thee;
thou hast laid down a limit, which he cannot pass.
Look away from him therefore and 6
leave him alone
counting the hours day by day like a hired labourer.
- If a tree is cut down, 7
there is hope that it will sprout again and fresh shoots will not fail.
Though its roots grow old in the 8
earth.
and its stump is dying in the ground,

<sup>j</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds keeping a close watch on all I do.

<sup>k</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds verse 28, he is like . . . have eaten, now transposed to follow 14: 2.

<sup>l</sup> he is like . . . have eaten: 13: 28 transposed here.

<sup>m</sup> So one Heb. MS.; others add (4) Who can produce pure out of unclean? No one.

Wisdom literature "the silent one" is an epithet for the sage, as over against "the passionate one." 7-12: Job's friends are accused of defending God with lies. 10: Job here argues on the basis of a just God, an idea he has previously rejected. 15: An older (and traditional) translation incorrectly renders the verse as expressive of unflagging trust in God: "Though he slay me, I shall wait for him." 15-16: Some interpreters view this passage as the key to the book, namely, confidence that no sinner can stand before God; since God later appears to him, Job is vindicated. 27: For purposes of tracking a runaway slave, marks were cut on the bottoms of his feet. 14.1-22: Man's

- 9 if it scents water it may break into bud
and make new growth like a young plant.
10 But a man dies, and he disappears;<sup>n</sup> man comes to his end, and where is he?
11 As the waters of a lake dwindle, or as a river shrinks and runs dry, 12 so mortal man lies down, never to rise
until the very sky splits open.
If a man dies, can he live again?<sup>o</sup>
He shall never be roused from his sleep.

- 13 If only thou wouldst hide me in Sheol
and conceal me till thy anger turns aside,
if thou wouldst fix a limit for my time
there, and then remember me!
14 <sup>n</sup>Then I would not lose hope, however long my service,
waiting for my relief to come.
15 Thou wouldst summon me, and I would answer thee;
thou wouldst long to see the creature thou hast made.
16 But now thou dost count every step I take,
watching all my course.
17 Every offence of mine is stored in thy bag;
thou dost keep my iniquity under seal.
18 Yet as a falling mountain-side is swept away,
and a rock is dislodged from its
place,
19 as water wears away stones, and a rain-storm scours the soil from
the land,

- so thou hast wiped out the hope of frail man;
thou dost overpower him finally, and 20
he is gone;
his face is changed, and he is banished from thy sight.
His flesh upon him becomes black, 22<sup>q</sup> and his life-blood dries up within him.<sup>r</sup>
His sons rise to honour, and he sees 21 nothing of it;
they sink into obscurity, and he knows it not.

Second cycle of speeches

- Then Eliphaz the Temanite answered: 15
- Would a man of sense give vent to 2 such foolish notions and answer with a bellyful of wind?
Would he bandy useless words 3 and arguments so unprofitable?
Why! you even banish the fear of 4
God from your mind, usurping the sole right to speak in
his presence;
your iniquity dictates what you say, 5 and deceit is the language of your choice.
You are condemned out of your own 6 mouth, not by me;
your own lips give evidence against
you.
Were you born first of mankind? 7 were you brought forth before the hills?

<sup>n</sup> Or and is powerless.

<sup>o</sup> Line transposed from beginning of verse 14.

<sup>p</sup> See note on verse 12. <sup>q</sup> Verses 21 and 22 transposed.

<sup>r</sup> His flesh . . . within him: or His own kin, maybe, regret him, and his slaves mourn his loss.

life is limited and his death is his end. 12: Until the sky splits open is here a symbol of the hopelessness of a person ever returning from Sheol. It is not an apocalyptic symbol for the end of the world and the resurrection from the dead. 13: Job sees his plight as a temporary anger on God's part which would abate if he could but escape God's sight. Since in Israelite belief God was absent from Sheol, Job asks to be hidden there for a fixed time, rather than in death from which he can never be roused. 15: Job recognizes that God could love him since he could long to see him, his creature; therefore the underlying principle of the relationship to God is not justice but love. 17: Bag: tiny stones may have been used for counting sheep; the bag, then, connotes tabulation and recording (see 11.11 n.). 20: A person's face is changed either in anger, fear, or consternation; compare Dan.5.6,9,10. 22: Flesh turned black is a sign of catastrophe and great mourning; see 30.30; Lam.5.10.

15.1-21.34: Second cycle of speeches.

15.1-35: Eliphaz's second speech. Offended by Job's contentions, Eliphaz asserts that the apparent prosperity of the wicked is only temporary, and then disaster strikes them. Job is accused of despising the three basic institutions of Israel's religious life: wisdom (vv. 2-3), piety (vv. 4-5), and prophecy (v. 11). 4: There is no Heb. term for "religion." Fear of God

8	Do you listen in God's secret council or usurp all wisdom for yourself alone?	he cannot hope to escape from dark death;	22
9	What do you know that we do not know? What insight have you that we do not share?	he is marked down for the sword; he is flung out as food for vultures; such a man knows that his destruction is certain.	23
10	We have age and white hairs in our company, men older than your father.	Suddenly a black day comes upon him,	24
11	Does not the consolation of God suffice you, a word whispered quietly in your ear?	distress and anxiety overwhelm him [like a king ready for battle]; for he has lifted his hand against God and is pitting himself against the Almighty,	25
12	What makes you so bold at heart, and why do your eyes flash,	charging him head down, with the full weight of his bossed shield.	26
13	that you vent your anger on God and pour out such a torrent of words?
14	What is frail man that he should be innocent, or any child of woman that he should be justified?	Heavy though his jowl is and gross, and though his sides bulge with fat, the city where he lives will lie in ruins,	27
15	If God puts no trust in his holy ones, and the heavens are not innocent in his sight,	his house will be deserted; it will soon become a heap of rubble. He will no longer be rich, his wealth will not last,	28
16	how much less so is man, who is loathsome and rotten and laps up evil like water!	and he will strike no root in the earth; <sup>s</sup> scorching heat will shrivel his shoots, and his blossom will be shaken off by the wind.	29
17	I will tell you, if only you will listen, and I will describe what I have seen	He deceives himself, trusting in his high rank,	30
18	[what has been handed down by wise men and was not concealed from them by their fathers;	for all his dealings will come to nothing.	31
19	to them alone the land was given, and no foreigner settled among them];	His palm-trees will wither unseasonably,	32
20	the wicked are racked with anxiety all their days, the ruthless man for all the years in store for him.	and his branches will not spread; he will be like a vine that sheds its unripe grapes,	33
21	The noise of the hunter's scare rings in his ears, and in time of peace the raider falls on him;	like an olive-tree that drops its blossom. For the goddess, one and all, are barren, and their homes, enriched by bribery, are destroyed by fire;	34

<sup>s</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds he will not escape from darkness.

is a near equivalent. 8: Council: see 1.6 n. 10: Job is apparently younger than his visitors; he has not reached the age of a grandfather. 11: Suffering is seen as an occasion for a mystical experience of a message from God, bringing its own consolation. 14: This verse is not directly related to the later doctrine of original sin but maintains that man is already subject to sin at birth. 16: Perhaps this is a proverb describing man's evil propensity. 18: In the Egyptian book "Instructions" also much is made of the necessity of handing down the teachings of the wise from one generation to another. 20-24: Pangs of conscience and fear of dark death were considered to be the hidden punishments of the wicked who seemed to prosper. 29-34: The traditional teaching held that the wicked who seemed to prosper would strike no root in the earth either by being barren or through losing their children by sudden death, like blossoms shaken off by the wind; see Ps.109.12-13.

- 35 they conceive mischief and give birth to trouble,
and the child of their womb is deceit.
- 16 Then Job answered:
- 2 I have heard such things often before,
you who make trouble, all of you,
with every breath,
saying, 'Will this windbag never have done?'
3 What makes him so stubborn in argument?
4 If you and I were to change places,
I could talk like you;
how I could harangue you
and wag my head at you!
5 But no, I would speak words of encouragement,
and then my condolences would flow in streams.
6 If I speak, my pain is not eased;
if I am silent, it does not leave me.
7 Meanwhile, my friend wearies me with false sympathy;
8 they tear me to pieces, he and his<sup>t</sup> fellows.
He has come forward to give evidence against me;
the liar testifies against me to my
face,
9 in his wrath he wears me down, his hatred is plain to see;
he grinds his teeth at me.
- My enemies look daggers at me, 10 they bare their teeth to rend me, they slash my cheeks with knives;
they are all in league against me.
11 God has left me at the mercy of malefactors
and cast me into the clutches of wicked men.
12 I was at ease, but he set upon me and mauled me,
seized me by the neck and worried me.
He set me up as his target; 13 his arrows rained upon me from every side;
- pitiless, he cut deep into my vitals,
he spilt my gall on the ground.
He made breach after breach in my defences;
he fell upon me like a fighting man.
- I stitched sackcloth together to cover my body
and I buried my forelock in the dust;
my cheeks were flushed with weeping and dark shadows were round my eyes,
yet my hands were free from violence and my prayer was sincere.
- O earth, cover not my blood and let my cry for justice find no rest!
For look! my witness is in heaven;
there is one on high ready to answer
for me.
My appeal will come before God, while my eyes turn again and again
to him.
If only there were one to arbitrate between man and God,
as between a man and his neighbour!
For there are but few years to come before I take the road from which I shall not return.
- My mind is distraught, my days are numbered,
and the grave is waiting for me.
Wherever I turn, men taunt me, and my day is darkened by their sneers.
Be thou my surety with thyself, for who else can pledge himself for
me?
Thou wilt not let those men triumph, whose minds thou hast sunk in ignorance;
if such a man denounces his friends
to their ruin,
his sons' eyes shall grow dim.
- I am held up as a byword in every
land,

<sup>t</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. my.

16.1-17.16: Job's answer laments the lack of sympathy and understanding in his friends and repeats that his disaster has come from God. 4: To wag the head was a sign of gloating over the misfortune of another; see Mt.27.39-40. 9: Grinds his teeth: a sign of scornful hatred and hostility; see Lam.2.16; Pss.35.16; 37.12. 15: Sackcloth . . . and dust: signs of grief and mourning; see Ezek.27.30-31. 18: According to Gen.4.10-11 spilled blood of an innocent victim cries out to the Lord of Justice (see also Jonah 1.14). 17.3: This is a key sentence in which Job shows

- a portent for all to see;
 7 my eyes are dim with grief,
 my limbs wasted to a shadow.
 8 Honest men are bewildered at this,
 and the innocent are indignant at my plight.
 9 In spite of all, the righteous man maintains his course,
 and he whose hands are clean grows strong again.
 10 But come on, one and all, try again!
 I shall not find a wise man among
 you.
 11 My days die away like an echo;
 my heart-strings<sup>u</sup> are snapped.
 12 Day is turned into night, and morning<sup>v</sup> light is darkened
 before me.
 13 If I measure Sheol for my house,
 if I spread my couch in the darkness, 14 if I call the grave my father and the worm my mother or my sister, 15 where, then, will my hope be,
 and who will take account of my piety?
 16 I cannot take them down to Sheol
 with me,
 nor can they descend with me into
 the earth.
18 Then Bildad the Shuhite answered: 2 How soon will you bridle<sup>w</sup> your tongue?
 Do but think, and then we will talk.
 3 What do you mean by treating us as cattle?
 Are we nothing but brute beasts to
 you?<sup>x</sup>
 4 Is the earth to be deserted to prove you right,
 or the rocks to be moved from their
 place?
 No, it is the wicked whose light is 5 extinguished,
 from whose fire no flame will rekindle; 6
 the light fades in his tent, and his lamp dies down and fails him. 7
 In his iniquity his steps totter, and his disobedience trips him up; 8 he rushes headlong into a net and steps through the hurdle that covers a pit;
 his heel is caught in a snare, 9
 the noose grips him tight;
 a cord lies hidden in the ground for 10
 him
 and a trap in the path.
 The terrors of death suddenly beset 11
 him
 and make him piss over his feet.
 For all his vigour he is paralysed 12
 with fear;
 strong as he is, disaster awaits him.
 Disease eats away his skin, Death's eldest child devours his 13 limbs.
 He is torn from the safety of his 14
 home,
 and Death's terrors escort him to their king.<sup>y</sup> Magic herbs lie strewn about his tent, 15 and his home is sprinkled with sulphur to protect it.
 His roots beneath dry up, 16
 and above, his branches wither.
 His memory vanishes from the face 17
 of the earth
 and he leaves no name in the world.
 He is driven from light into darkness 18 and banished from the land of the living.

u Prob. rdg.; Heb. the desires of my heart.

v morning: prob. rdg.; Heb. near.

w bridle: prob. rdg.; Heb. unintelligible.

x Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds rending himself in his anger.

y Or and you conduct him to the king of terrors.

his faith by asking God to be Job's pledge with the deity, as he had stated in 16.19–20. 9: Some interpreters view this verse as a later pious addition, others as a sarcastic quotation of his friends' view. 15–16: A bitter comment that both hope and piety disappear at a man's death.

18.1–21: Bildad's second speech. The sinner, dying horribly, leaves neither positive memory nor progeny. 2: The you is plural in the MT, as if the author is addressing the wicked in general. 4: The allegation is that Job seeks an alteration in the order of nature just to vindicate him. 5–6: Light here is a figure for the life-force in man (see also Prov. 13.9; 20.20; 24.20). 13–14: Far from being a place of rest and even solace, Sheol can be a constant terror; see 26.5–6. Death's eldest child: this seems to reflect mythology and to allude to Mot, the Canaanite god of death. Perhaps, though, eldest child is a fatal illness, or the fear of dying. 15: Such practices, to cure diseases, or restore ritual purity, are familiar from Canaanite and Mesopotamian texts. The verse seems to harken back to v. 13.

- 19 He leaves no issue or offspring
among his people,
no survivor in his earthly home; 20 in the west men hear of his doom and are appalled;
in the east they shudder with horror.
21 Such is the fate of the dwellings of
evildoers,
and of the homes of those who care nothing for God.
- 19 Then Job answered:
- 2 How long will you exhaust me and pulverize me with words?
3 Time and time again you have insulted me
and shamelessly done me wrong.
4 If in fact I had erred,
the error would still be mine.
5 But if indeed you lord it over me and try to justify the reproaches levelled at me,
6 I tell you, God himself has put me in the wrong,
he has drawn the net round me.
7 If I cry 'Murder!' no one answers;
if I appeal for help, I get no justice.
8 He has walled in my path so that I cannot break away,
and he has hedged in the road before
me.
9 He has stripped me of all honour and has taken the crown from my head.
10 On every side he beats me down and I am gone;
he has pulled up my tent-rope<sup>z</sup> like
a tree.
11 His anger is hot against me and he counts me his enemy.
12 His raiders gather in force<sup>a</sup> and encamp about my tent.
13 My brothers hold aloof from me, my friends are utterly estranged from
me;
- my kinsmen and intimates fall away, 14-15
my retainers have forgotten me;
my slave-girls treat me as a stranger,
I have become an alien in their eyes.
I summon my slave, but he does not 16
answer,
though I entreat him as a favour.
My breath is noisome to my wife, 17 and I stink in the nostrils of my own family.
Mere children despise me 18 and, when I rise, turn their backs on
me;
my intimate companions loathe me, 19 and those whom I love have turned against me.
My bones stick out through my 20 skin,<sup>b</sup>
and I gnaw my under-lip with my teeth.
Pity me, pity me, you that are my 21 friends;
for the hand of God has touched me.
Why do you pursue me as God 22 pursues me?
Have you not had your teeth in me long enough?
O that my words might be inscribed, 23 O that they might be engraved in an inscription,
cut with an iron tool and filled with 24 lead
to be a witness<sup>c</sup> in hard rock!
But in my heart I know that my 25 vindicator lives
and that he will rise last to speak in court;
and I shall discern my witness 26 standing at my side<sup>d</sup> and see my defending counsel, even God himself,
whom I shall see with my own eyes, 27
I myself and no other.

<sup>z</sup> Or he has uprooted my hope.

<sup>a</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds they raise an earthwork against me.

<sup>b</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds and my flesh.

<sup>c</sup> to . . . witness: or for ever.

<sup>d</sup> my witness . . . side: prob. rdg.; Heb. unintelligible.

19.1-29: Job's reply. He describes eloquently the wrongs done him by God (1-23), yet a vindicator will emerge to defend him: God himself. 3: Time and time: "ten times" in Heb. 17: The allusion to family, if taken literally, stands in tension with the earlier passage (1.18-19) reporting the death of his children. 23-24: Job wants his words to be engraved on a rock so that his case may be judged by others who are more honest than his friends. For inscription filled with lead, compare Behistun stone. 25: In ancient court trials the witness for the defense stood at the accused person's right side and the accuser stood at his left; compare Ps.109.31. The rendering here, in court, is an interpretation of the MT "on the dust." 26-27: These verses are so poorly preserved that it is impossible to discern the exact meaning. It is

28 My heart failed me when you said, 'What a train of disaster he has brought on himself! The root of the trouble lies in him.' 29 Beware of the sword that points at you, the sword that sweeps away all iniquity; then you will know that there is a judge.<sup>e</sup> 20 Then Zophar the Naamathite an- swered: 2 My distress of mind forces me to reply, and this is why<sup>f</sup> I hasten to speak: 3 I have heard arguments that are a reproach to me, a spirit beyond my understanding gives me the answers. 4 Surely you know that this has been so since time began, since man was first set on the earth: 5 the triumph of the wicked is short- lived, the glee of the godless lasts but a moment? 6 Though he stands high as heaven, and his head touches the clouds, 7 he will be swept utterly away like his own dung, and all that saw him will say, 'Where is he?' 8 He will fly away like a dream and be lost, driven off like a vision of the night; 9 the eye which glimpsed him shall do so no more and shall never again see him in his place. 11<sup>g</sup> The youth and strength which filled his bones shall lie with him in the dust. 10 His sons will pay court to the poor, and their<sup>h</sup> hands will give back his wealth.	Though evil tastes sweet in his mouth, and he savours it, rolling it round his tongue, though he lingers over it and will not let it go, and holds it back on his palate, yet his food turns in his stomach, changing to asps' venom within him. He gulps down wealth, then vomits it up, or God makes him discharge it. He sucks the poison of asps, and the tongue of the viper kills him. Not for him to swill down rivers of cream<sup>i</sup> or torrents of honey and curds; he must give back his gains without swallowing them, and spew up his profit undigested; for he has hounded and harassed the poor, he has seized houses which he did not build. Because his appetite gave him no rest, and he cannot escape his own desires, nothing is left for him to eat, and so his well-being does not last; with every need satisfied his troubles begin, and the full force of hardship strikes him. God vents his anger upon him and rains on him cruel blows. He is wounded by weapons of iron and pierced by a bronze-tipped arrow; out at his back the point comes, the gleaming tip from his gall-bladder. Darkness unrelieved awaits him, a fire that needs no fanning will consume him. [Woe betide any survivor in his tent!] The heavens will lay bare his guilt,	12 13 14 15 16 17 18 19 20 21 22 23 24 25 26 27
---	---	---

<sup>e</sup> Or judgement.

<sup>f</sup> this is why: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.

<sup>g</sup> Verses 10 and 11 transposed.

<sup>h</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. his.

<sup>i</sup> rivers of cream: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.

clear, however, that Job expresses his certainty that somehow and somewhere he will be shown to have been innocent. 28-29: His friends will in time be punished for their false accusations. See 42.7.

20.1-29: Zophar's second speech. The bad fate of the wicked is certain, with short-lived triumph giving way to extreme punishment. 2-3: Beyond my understanding: not human experience or that of the race (5.27 and 8.8-10), but a supernatural spirit is said to guide his words. 16: Poison: a figure of speech. 26: For a similar threat on darkness, see 18.18. On a punishing fire, see Pss.21.9 and 140.10. 27: Compare Deut.31.28.

and earth will rise up to condemn
him.
28 A flood will sweep away his house, rushing waters on the day of wrath.
29 Such is God's reward for the wicked man
and the lot appointed for the rebel<sup>j</sup> by God.

21 Then Job answered:

2 Listen to me, do but listen, and let that be the comfort you offer
me.
3 Bear with me while I have my say;
when I have finished, you may mock.
4 May not I too voice<sup>k</sup> my thoughts?
Have not I as good cause to be impatient?
5 Look at my plight, and be aghast;
clap your hand to your mouth.
6 When I stop to think, I am filled with horror,
and my whole body is convulsed.
7 Why do the wicked enjoy long life, hale in old age, and great and powerful?
8 They live to see their children settled, their kinsfolk and descendants flourishing;
9 their families are secure and safe;
the rod of God's justice does not reach them.
10 Their bull mounts and fails not of its purpose;
their cow calves and does not miscarry.
11 Their children like lambs run out to play,
and their little ones skip and dance; 12 they rejoice with tambourine and harp
and make merry to the sound of the flute.
13 Their lives close in prosperity, and they go down to Sheol in peace.
14 To God they say, 'Leave us alone;
we do not want to know your ways.

What is the Almighty that we should 15 worship him,
or what should we gain by seeking his favour?'

Is not the prosperity of the wicked 16
in their own hands?
Are not their purposes very different from God's<sup>l</sup>?

How often is the lamp of the wicked 17 snuffed out,
and how often does their ruin come upon them?

How often does God in his anger deal out suffering, bringing it in full measure to whom he will?<sup>m</sup>

How often is that man like a wisp of 18
straw before the wind,
like chaff which the storm-wind whirls away?

You say, 'The trouble he has earned, 19
God will keep for his sons'; no, let him be paid for it in full and be punished.

Let his own eyes see damnation come 20
upon him,
and the wrath of the Almighty be the cup he drinks.

What joy shall he have in his 21 children after him,
if his very months and days are numbered?

Can any man teach God, 22
God who judges even those in heaven above?

One man, I tell you, dies crowned 23 with success,
lapped in security and comfort, his loins full of vigour 24

and the marrow juicy in his bones; another dies in bitterness of soul 25
and never tastes prosperity;
side by side they are laid in earth, 26 and worms are the shroud of both.

j the rebel: prob. rdg.; Heb. his word.

k May . . . voice: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.

l God's: prob. rdg.; Heb. mine.

m Line transposed from 12. 6.

21.1–34: Job's answer. Against his friends' arguments, Job asserts that the wicked do prosper, and only rarely undergo misfortune. 14–15: The wicked presume to scorn God. 16: Job appears to quote his friends' words (e.g. 18.5–21) only to refute them. 19–20: Against Zophar's argument (20.10, echoing Exod.34.7) that the punishment of the wicked is visited on his sons, Job demands a justice in which the wicked drinks the cup of his own punishment; see Jer.31.29; Ezek.18.2–4. 22: Perhaps this verse is a gloss, or else irony. It could, however, be an expression of despair

27	I know well what you are thinking and the arguments you are marshalling against me;	No: it is because you are a very wicked man, and your depravity passes all bounds.	5
28	I know you will ask, 'Where is the great man's home now, what has become of the home of the wicked?'	Without due cause you take a brother in pledge, you strip men of their clothes and leave them naked.	6
29	Have you never questioned travellers? Can you not learn from the signs they offer,	When a man is weary, you give him no water to drink and you refuse bread to the hungry.	7
30	that the wicked is spared when disaster comes and conveyed to safety before the day of wrath?	Is the earth, then, the preserve of the strong and a domain for the favoured few?	8
31	No one denounces his conduct to his face, no one requites him for what he has done.	Widows you have sent away empty- handed, orphans you have struck defenceless. No wonder that there are pitfalls in your path,	9 10
32-33	When he is carried to the grave, all the world escorts him, before and behind; the dust of earth is sweet to him, and thousands keep watch at his tomb.	that scares are set to fill you with sudden fear. The light is turned into darkness, and you cannot see; the flood-waters cover you.	11
34	How futile, then, is the comfort you offer me! How false your answers ring!	Surely God is at the zenith of the heavens and looks down on all the stars, high as they are. But you say, 'What does God know? Can he see through thick darkness to judge? His eyes cannot pierce the curtain of the clouds as he walks to and fro on the vault of heaven.'	12 13
Third cycle of speeches
22	Then Eliphaz the Temanite answered:	Consider the course of the wicked man, the path the miscreant treads: see how they are carried off before their time, their very foundation flowing away like a river;	14 15 16
2	Can man be any benefit to God? Can even a wise man benefit him?
3	Is it an asset to the Almighty if you are righteous? Does he gain if your conduct is perfect?
4	Do not think that he reproves you because you are pious, that on this count he brings you to trial.

over the necessity to instruct God in elementary human justice. 27-34: Arguments: their syllogism is that God is pleased with goodness; he favors the good man; therefore, the good man fares well. The broadest human experience refutes such arguments, so that their comfort of him (v. 34) is futile. 28: See 2.21; 8.22. 30: Contrast 20.28; Prov.16.4; Rom.2.5.

22.1-27.23: Third cycle of speeches.

22.1-30: Eliphaz's third speech. He insists that Job has definitely trespassed, perhaps in mistreating widows and orphans (vv. 5-7) and has thought that a thick cloud shielded him from God's eyes (12-14). Hence Job must repent (21-30). 2-3: God has no need of any man, even the wise or the righteous (see 35.7), and hence can have no ulterior motive for punishing Job. 6: Clothes: a poor man's outer garment taken in pledge had to be returned by nightfall, since it was his protection from the cold (Exod.22.26; Deut.24.10-13). 9: Widows and orphans are frequently linked together in the OT; their cause is also championed in the Hammurabi code, Canaanite texts, Egyptian wisdom literature (Amen-em-ope). 14: The vault of heaven was

17	these men said to God, 'Leave us alone; what can the Almighty do to us?'	Then Job answered:	23
18	Yet it was he that filled their houses with good things, although their purposes and his were very different.	My thoughts today are resentful, for God's hand is heavy on me in my trouble.	2
19	The righteous see their fate and exult, the innocent make game of them;	If only I knew how to find him, how to enter his court, I would state my case before him and set out my arguments in full;	3 4
20	for their riches are swept away, and the profusion of their wealth is destroyed by fire.	then I should learn what answer he would give and find out what he had to say. Would he exert his great power to browbeat me?	5 6
21	Come to terms with God and you will prosper; that is the way to mend your fortune.	No; God himself would never bring a charge against me.	7
22	Take instruction from his mouth and store his words in your heart.	There the upright are vindicated before him, and I shall win from my judge an absolute discharge.	7
23	If you come back to the Almighty in true sincerity, if you banish wrongdoing from your home,	If I go forward, <sup>r</sup> he is not there; if backward, <sup>s</sup> I cannot find him; when I turn <sup>t</sup> left, <sup>u</sup> I do not descry him;	8 9
24	if you treat your precious metal as dust <sup>n</sup> and the gold of Ophir as stones from the river-bed,	I face right, <sup>v</sup> but I see him not. But he knows me in action or at rest; when he tests me, I prove to be gold. My feet have kept to the path he has set me,	10 11
25	then the Almighty himself will be your precious metal; he will be your silver in double measure.	I have followed his way and not turned from it.	12
26	Then, with sure trust in <sup>o</sup> the Almighty, you will raise your face to God;	I do not ignore the commands that come from his lips, I have stored in my heart what he says.	12
27	you will pray to him, and he will hear you, and you will have cause to fulfil your vows.	He decides, <sup>w</sup> and who can turn him from his purpose? He does what his own heart desires. What he determines, that he carries out;	13 14
28	In all your designs you will succeed, and light will shine on your path;	his mind is full of plans like these. Therefore I am fearful of meeting him;	15
29	but God brings down the pride of the haughty <sup>p</sup> and keeps safe the man of modest looks.
30	He will deliver the innocent, <sup>q</sup> and you will be delivered, because your hands are clean.

n Prob. rdg.; Heb. if you put your precious metal on dust.

o with . . . in: or delighting in.

p but . . . haughty: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.

q Prob. rdg.; Heb. the not innocent.

r Or east. s Or west.

t Prob. rdg.; Heb. he turns.

u Or north. e Or south.

w He decides: prob. rdg.; Heb. He in one.

regarded as if it were solid; see Ezek.1.22 n.; Gen.1.6. 21: Come to terms: be reconciled. 24: Ophir: the proverbial source of gold, identified differently as India, south Arabia, or South Africa.

23.1-24.25: Job's answer. If only it were possible to encounter God in a court of law, Job would emerge vindicated by God himself, for he is innocent; in a true court of law, the wicked are convicted. 2: God's hand was thought heavy when a person was struck with disease or other tragedy; see 1 Sam.5.6-7; Ps.32.3-4. 3-6: The view that God is hidden or is hiding is a frequent

- when I think about him,<sup>x</sup> I am afraid; 16 it is God who makes me faint-hearted and the Almighty who fills me with fear, 17 yet I am not reduced to silence by
 the darkness
 nor<sup>y</sup> by the mystery which hides him.
- 24 <sup>z</sup>The day of reckoning is no secret to
 the Almighty,
 though those who know him have no hint of its date.
 2 Wicked men move boundary-stones and carry away flocks and their shepherds.
 6<sup>a</sup> In the field they reap what is not theirs,
 and filch the late grapes from the rich<sup>b</sup> man's vineyard.
 3 They drive off the orphan's ass and lead away the widow's ox with a rope.
 9 They snatch the fatherless infant from the breast and take the poor man's child in pledge.
 4 They jostle the poor out of the way;
 the destitute huddle together, hiding
 from them.
 5 The poor rise early like the wild ass, when it scours the wilderness for
 food;
 but though they work till nightfall,<sup>c</sup> their children go hungry.<sup>d</sup> 7 Naked and bare they pass the night; in the cold they have nothing to cover
 them.
 8 They are drenched by rain-storms from the hills
 and hug the rock, their only shelter.
 10 Naked and bare they go about their work,
 and hungry they carry the sheaves; 11 they press the oil in the shade where two walls meet,
 they tread the winepress but themselves go thirsty.
 12 Far from the city, they groan like dying men,
 and like wounded men they cry out;
- but God pays no heed to their prayer.
 Some there are who rebel against the 13 light of day,
 who know nothing of its ways and do not linger in the paths of light.
 The murderer rises before daylight 14 to kill some miserable wretch.<sup>e</sup>
 The seducer watches eagerly for 15
 twilight,
 thinking, 'No eye will catch sight of
 me.'
 The thief prowls<sup>f</sup> by night,<sup>g</sup> his face covered with a mask, and in the darkness breaks into 16 houses
 which he has marked down in the day.
 One and all,<sup>h</sup> they are strangers to the daylight,
 but dark night is morning to them; 17 and in the welter of night they are at
 home.
 Such men are scum on the surface of 18
 the water;
 their fields have a bad name
 throughout the land, and no labourer will go near their vineyards.
 As drought and heat make away with 19
 snow,
 so the waters of Sheol<sup>i</sup> make away with the sinner.
 The womb forgets him, the worm 20
 sucks him dry;
 he will not be remembered ever after.<sup>j</sup>
 He may have wronged the barren 21 childless woman
 and been no help to the widow;

x when . . . him: or I stand aloof.

y yet I am not . . . nor: or indeed I am . . . and . . .

z Prob. rdg.; Heb. prefixes Why.

a Verses 3-9 re-arranged to restore the natural order.

b Or wicked.

c Prob. rdg.; Heb. Arabah.

d go hungry; prob. rdg.; Heb. to it food.

e See note on verse 15.

f The thief prowls: prob. rdg.; Heb. Let him be like a thief.

g Line transposed from end of verse 14.

h One and all: transposed from after but in next verse.

i snow . . . Sheol: prob. rdg.; Heb. snow-water, Sheol.

j Prob. rdg.; Heb. here adds iniquity is snapped like a stick (see note on verse 24).

theme in the OT; see, e.g. Isa.6.11-64.2 and Ps.22.1-2. 17: Mystery: lit. thick darkness. 24.1-17: The misdeeds of the wicked. 24.1: Only God knows when the day of reckoning, that is, the death, of each individual is to come. 13: Light of day is a sign of uprightness having a real connection with it; see Ps.97.11; Prov.4.18-19. 18-25: Some interpreters believe these verses belong with 27.11-23; see 27.11-23 n. The third cycle of speeches is apparently preserved in great disorder. 21: Barren, childless: see the similar repetition intoned in Isa.54.1, this to

- 22 yet God in his strength carries off even the mighty;
they may rise, but they have no firm hope of life.
- 23 He lulls them into security and confidence;
but his eyes are fixed on their ways.
- 24 For a moment they rise to the heights, but are soon gone;
iniquity is snapped like a stick.<sup>k</sup>
They are laid low and wilt like a mallow-flower;
they droop like an ear of corn on the stalk.
- 25 If this is not so, who will prove me wrong
and make nonsense of my argument?
- 25 Then Bildad the Shuhite answered:
- 2 Authority and awe rest with him who has established peace in his realm on high.
- 3 His squadrons are without number;
at whom will they not spring from ambush?
- 4 How then can a man be justified in God's sight,
or one born of woman be innocent?
- 5 If the circling moon is found wanting, and the stars are not innocent in his
eyes,
- 6 much more so man who is but a maggot,
mortal man who is only a worm.
- 26 Then Job answered:
- 2 What help you have given to the man without resource,
what deliverance you have brought to the powerless!
- 3 What counsel you offer to a man at his wit's end,
- what sound advice to the foolish!
Who has prompted you to say such
things,
and whose spirit is expressed in your speech?
- In the underworld the shades writhe
in fear,
the waters and all that live in them are struck with terror.<sup>l</sup> Sheol is laid bare,
and Abaddon uncovered before
him.
- God spreads the canopy of the sky over chaos
and suspends earth in the void.
He keeps the waters penned in dense cloud-masses,
and the clouds do not burst open under their weight.
He covers the face of the full moon,<sup>m</sup>
unrolling his clouds across it.
He has fixed the horizon on the surface of the waters
at the farthest limit of light and darkness.
- The pillars of heaven quake and are aghast at his rebuke.
With his strong arm he cleft the sea-monster,
and struck down the Rahab by his skill.
- At his breath the skies are clear,
and his hand breaks the twisting<sup>n</sup>
sea-serpent.
- These are but the fringe of his power;
and how faint the whisper that we hear of him!
[Who could fathom the thunder of his might?]

<sup>k</sup> Line transposed from end of verse 20.

<sup>l</sup> are struck with terror: prob. rdg.; Heb. om.

<sup>m</sup> Or He overlays the surface of his throne.

<sup>n</sup> Or primeval.

intensify the poetic effect of the passage. 23: God is often pictured as seducing men into mistaken confidence in themselves (compare Jer.20.7; Isa.6.9–10), especially through false prophets (Ezek.14.9).

25.1–6: Bildad's third speech. So brief is this speech, and so little new is in it, that some interpreters believe that a part of it has been lost, or that 26.5–14 continues it. 3: Squadrons: of angels.

26.1–27.10: Job's reply. Anger moves Job to wish upon his friends the fate of the wicked; again he reminds them that a sinner would never challenge God to a trial. 2–4: The irony here is remarkably bitter. 5–14: Perhaps Bildad's speech. See 25.1–6 n. 6: Abaddon: another name for Sheol, meaning place of "destruction" (see Prov.15.11). 7: Canopy: lit. zaphon, i.e. the north, the mythological dwelling of heavenly beings, especially those hostile to Israel; compare

27 Then Job resumed his discourse:

2 I swear by God, who has denied me justice, and by the Almighty, who has filled me with bitterness:
3 so long as there is any life left in me and God's breath is in my nostrils,
4 no untrue word shall pass my lips and my tongue shall utter no falsehood.
5 God forbid that I should allow you to be right;
till death, I will not abandon my claim to innocence.
6 I will maintain the rightness of my cause, I will never give up;
so long as I live, I will not change.
7 May my enemy meet the fate of the wicked, and my antagonist the doom of the wrongdoer!
8 What hope has a godless man, when he is cut off,<sup>o</sup> when God takes away his life?
9 Will God listen to his cry when trouble overtakes him?
10 Will he trust himself to the Almighty and call upon God at all times?

11 I will teach you what is in God's power,
I will not conceal the purpose of the Almighty.
12 If all of you have seen these things, why then do you talk such empty nonsense?
13 This is the lot prescribed by God for the wicked, and the ruthless man's reward from the Almighty.
14 He may have many sons, but they will fall by the sword, and his offspring will go hungry;

the survivors will be brought to the grave by pestilence,
and no widows will weep for them.
He may heap up silver like dirt and get himself piles of clothes;
he may get them, but the righteous will wear them,
and his silver will be shared among the innocent.
The house he builds is flimsy as a bird's nest or a shelter put up by a watchman.
He may lie down rich one day, but never again;
he opens his eyes and all is gone.
Disaster overtakes him like a flood,
and a storm snatches him away in the night;
the east wind lifts him up and he is gone;
it whirls him far from home;
it flings itself on him without mercy,
and he is battered and buffeted by its force;
it snaps its fingers at him and whistles over him wherever he may be.

God's unfathomable wisdom

There are mines for silver and places where men refine gold;
where iron is won from the earth and copper smelted from the ore;
the end of the seam lies in darkness, and it is followed to its farthest limit.<sup>p</sup> Strangers cut the galleries;<sup>q</sup> they are forgotten as they drive forward far from men.<sup>r</sup>

<sup>o</sup> Or What is a godless man's thread of life when it is cut . . .
<sup>p</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds stones of darkness and deep darkness.
<sup>q</sup> Strangers . . . galleries; prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.
<sup>r</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds languishing without foothold.

Isa.14.13; Ezek.39.2. 27.1: Resumed: only here is a speech interrupted. Perhaps this verse is a consequence of the disorder in the third cycle of speeches and is a copyist's note identifying what ensues as a continuation of 26.1-14. 2: Despite his accusations, Job swears by the accused deity.

27.11-23: The lot of the wicked. Some interpreters believe that this is part, or all of Zophar's third speech; if not, then strangely there is no third speech by Zophar. Note that ch. 28 is almost universally regarded as an interpolation into the book, indicative of disorder in the text. The description of the fate of the wicked comes very close to Job's own situation. 20: Flood (Heb. kamayim): a slight change in the Heb. would substitute yōmān, "by day," yielding a better parallel for in the night.

28.1-28: God's unfathomable wisdom. This poem is probably a later addition; it marvels at man's ingenuity in extracting precious ore hidden in the heart of the earth but his inability

5 While corn is springing from the earth above, what lies beneath is raked over like a fire, 6 and out of its rocks comes lapis lazuli, dusted with flecks of gold. 7 No bird of prey knows the way there, and the falcon's keen eye cannot descry it; 8 proud beasts do not set foot on it, and no serpent comes that way. 9 Man sets his hand to the granite rock and lays bare the roots of the mountains; 10 he cuts galleries in the rocks, and gems of every kind meet his eye; 11 he dams up the sources of the streams and brings the hidden riches of the earth to light. 12 But where can wisdom be found? And where is the source of understanding? 13 No man knows the way to it; it is not found in the land of living men. 14 The depths of ocean say, 'It is not in us', and the sea says, 'It is not with me.' 15 Red gold cannot buy it, nor can its price be weighed out in silver; 16 it cannot be set in the scales against gold of Ophir, against precious cornelian or lapis lazuli; 17 gold and crystal are not to be matched with it, no work in fine gold can be bartered for it; 18 black coral and alabaster are not worth mention, and a parcel of wisdom fetches more than red coral; 19 topaz<sup>s</sup> from Ethiopia is not to be matched with it, it cannot be set in the scales against pure gold. 20 Where then does wisdom come from,	and where is the source of understanding? No creature on earth can see it, 21 and it is hidden from the birds of the air. Destruction and death say, 22 'We know of it only by report.' But God understands the way to it, 23 he alone knows its source; for he can see to the ends of the earth 24 and he surveys everything under heaven. When he made a counterpoise for the wind 25 and measured out the waters in proportion, when he laid down a limit for the rain 26 and a path for the thunderstorm, even then he saw wisdom and took 27 stock of it, he considered it and fathomed its very depths. And he said to man: 28 The fear of the Lord is wisdom, and to turn from evil is understanding.
	Job's final survey of his case Then Job resumed his discourse: 29 If I could only go back to the old 2 days, to the time when God was watching over me, when his lamp shone above my head, 3 and by its light I walked through the darkness! If I could be as in the days of my 4 prime, when God protected my home, while the Almighty was still there at 5 my side, and my servants stood round me, while my path flowed with milk, 6 and the rocks streamed oil! to find even a trace of wisdom. 12: This refrain recurs in v. 20 in slightly different form. 28: The verse is a sort of motto; compare Prov.1.7. It probably postdates the poem itself. LORD: Heb., adonai, not Yahweh; only here is this form used in Job.

<sup>s</sup> Or chrysolite.

29.1-31.40: Job's final survey of his case. Remembering his gratifying life before God's blow fell (ch. 29), Job describes the contrast of his decline and the attendant scorn (30.1-19). Piteously he pleads with God (30.20-31; 31.2-4) and sets forth his past ethical conduct (31.5,1,6-37). 4: Prime: lit. "autumn days." The meaning is clearly the prime period of fruitful harvest, not

- 7 If I went through the gate out of the town
to take my seat in the public square, 8 young men saw me and kept out of sight;
old men rose to their feet, 9 men in authority broke off their talk and put their hands to their lips; 10 the voices of the nobles died away,
and every man held his tongue.
21<sup>f</sup> They listened to me expectantly and waited in silence for my opinion.
22 When I had spoken, no one spoke again;
my words fell gently on them;
23 they waited for them as for rain and drank them in like showers in spring.
24 When I smiled on them, they took
heart;
when my face lit up, they lost their gloomy looks.
25 I presided over them, planning their course,
like a king encamped with his troops.<sup>u</sup>
- 11 Whoever heard of me spoke in my
favour,
and those who saw me bore witness to my merit, 12 how I saved the poor man when he called for help
and the orphan who had no protector.
13 The man threatened with ruin blessed
me,
and I made the widow's heart sing for
joy.
14 I put on righteousness as a garment and it clothed me;
justice, like a cloak or a turban, wrapped me round.
15 I was eyes to the blind and feet to the lame;
16 I was a father to the needy, and I took up the stranger's cause.
17 I broke the fangs of the miscreant and rescued the prey from his teeth.
18 I thought, 'I shall die with my powers unimpaired
and my days uncounted as the grains of sand,<sup>v</sup>
- with my roots spreading out to the 19
water
and the dew lying on my branches, with the bow always new in my grasp 20 and the arrow ever ready to my hand.'<sup>w</sup>
- But now I am laughed to scorn 30
by men of a younger generation, men whose fathers I would have disdained
to put with the dogs who kept my flock.
What use were their strong arms to 2
me,
since their sturdy vigour had wasted
away?
They gnawed roots<sup>x</sup> in the desert, 3 gaunt with want and hunger,<sup>y</sup> they plucked saltwort and 4 wormwood
and root of broom<sup>z</sup> for their food.
Driven out from the society of men,<sup>a</sup> 5 pursued like thieves with hue and cry, they lived in gullies and ravines, 6 holes in the earth and rocky clefts; they howled like beasts among the 7 bushes,
huddled together beneath the scrub, vile base-born wretches, 8 hounded from the haunts of men.
Now I have become the target of 9 their taunts,
my name is a byword among them.
They loathe me, they shrink from me, 10
they dare to spit in my face.
They run wild and savage<sup>b</sup> me; 11 at sight of me they throw off all restraint.
On my right flank they attack in a 12 mob;<sup>c</sup>
they raise their siege-ramps against
me,

<sup>f</sup> Verses 21–25 transposed to this point.

<sup>u</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds as when one comforts mourners.

<sup>v</sup> Or as those of the phoenix.

<sup>w</sup> Verses 21–25 transposed to follow verse 10.

<sup>x</sup> roots: prob. rdg.; Heb. om.

<sup>y</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds yesterday waste and derelict land.

<sup>z</sup> root of broom: probably fungus on broom root.

<sup>a</sup> the society of men: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.

<sup>b</sup> They run . . . savage: prob. rdg.; Heb. He runs . . . savages.

<sup>c</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds they let loose my feet.

man's fading years. 7–10, 21–25, 11–20: The erstwhile prestige of Job described here surpasses that of the prologue, 1.1–3. The translators' rearrangement should be noted. 11–17: The good deeds Job claims here contradict the accusations made by Eliphaz in 22.5–9. 18: The fabled phoenix (see Tfn. <sup>v</sup>) arose to new life from the ashes of its funeral pyre. 20: The bow and arrow

13	they tear down my crumbling defences to my undoing, and scramble up against me unhindered;	Evil has come though I expected good;	26
14	they burst in through the gaping breach;	I looked for light but there came darkness.
	at the moment of the crash they come rolling in.	My bowels are in ferment and know no peace;	27
15	Terror upon terror overwhelms me, it sweeps away my resolution like the wind,	days of misery stretch out before me.
	and my hope of victory vanishes like a cloud.	I go about dejected and friendless;	28
16	So now my soul is in turmoil within me,	I rise in the assembly, only to appeal for help.
	and misery has me daily in its grip.	The wolf is now my brother,	29
17	By night pain pierces my very bones, and there is ceaseless throbbing in my veins;	the owls of the desert have become my companions.
18	my garments are all bespattered with my phlegm,	My blackened skin peels off,	30 which chokes me like the collar of a shirt.	and my body is scorched by the heat.
19	God himself <sup>d</sup> has flung me down in the mud,	My harp has been tuned for a dirge,	31
	no better than dust or ashes.	my flute to the voice of those who weep.
20	I call for thy help, but thou dost not answer;	What is the lot prescribed by God above,	31 <sup>d</sup>
	I stand up to plead, but thou sittest aloof;	the reward from the Almighty on high?
21	thou hast turned cruelly against me and with thy strong hand pursuest me in hatred;	Is not ruin prescribed for the miscreant	3
22	thou dost snatch me up and set me astride the wind,	and calamity for the wrongdoer?
	and the tempest <sup>e</sup> tosses me up and down.	Yet does not God himself see my ways	4
23	I know that thou wilt hand me over to death,	and count my every step?
	to the place appointed for all mortal men.	I swear I have had no dealings with falsehood	5
24	Yet no beggar held out his hand but was relieved <sup>f</sup> by me in his distress.	and have not embarked on a course of deceit.
25	Did I not weep for the man whose life was hard?	I have come to terms with my eyes, never to take notice of a girl.	1
	Did not my heart grieve for the poor?	Let God weigh me in the scales of justice,	6 and he will know that I am innocent!
		If my steps have wandered from the way,	7
		if my heart has followed my eyes, or any dirt stuck to my hands, may another eat what I sow,	8
		and may my crops be pulled up by the roots!

d God himself: prob. rdg.: Heb. om. e the tempest: prob. rdg.: Heb. unintelligible.
f was relieved: prob. rdg.: Heb. unintelligible.
g Verse 1 transposed to follow verse 5.

may here and in Ecclus.26.12 have overtones of sexual potency. 30.22: Irony is intended, Job being punished by being put astride the wind, a role elsewhere deemed the great prerogative of the LORD (see Ps.18.9-10) and also of the Canaanite Baal. 24-28: Job's claim is that no needy person was ever refused help by him, yet now no one, not even God, listens to his appeal for help; thereby God is less compassionate than Job. Compare 32.2-3. 31.1-37: Job's record of ethical conduct. 1: See also Ecclus.9.5. It might be useful to compare Mt.5.27-28 to note that the NT is not the sole repository of interior ethics, as is sometimes claimed. 7: Dirt:

- 9 If my heart has been enticed by a woman or I have lain in wait at my neighbour's door, 10 may my wife be another man's slave, and may other men enjoy her.
11 [But that is a wicked act, an offence
before the law;
12 it would be a consuming and destructive fire, raging<sup>b</sup> among my crops.] 13 If I have ever rejected the plea of my slave or of my slave-girl, when they brought their complaint to me,
14 what shall I do if God appears?
What shall I answer if he intervenes?
15 Did not he who made me in the womb make them?
Did not the same God create us in the belly?
16 If I have withheld their needs from the poor or let the widow's eye grow dim with tears, 17 if I have eaten my crust alone, and the orphan has not shared it with me—18 the orphan who from boyhood honoured me like a father, whom I guided from the day of his<sup>d</sup> birth—19 if I have seen anyone perish for lack of clothing, or a poor man with nothing to cover him, 20 if his body had no cause to bless me, because he was not kept warm with a fleece from my flock, 21 if I have raised<sup>j</sup> my hand against the innocent,<sup>k</sup> knowing that men would side with me in court, 22 then may my shoulder-blade be torn from my shoulder, my arm be wrenched out of its socket!
23 But the terror of God was heavy upon me,<sup>l</sup> and for fear of his majesty I could do none of these things.
24 If I have put my faith in gold and my trust in the gold of Nubia, 25 if I have rejoiced in my great wealth
- and in the increase of riches;
if I ever looked on the sun in splendour or the moon moving in her glory, and was led astray in my secret heart and raised my hand in homage;
this would have been an offence
before the law,
for I should have been unfaithful to God on high.
If my land has cried out in reproach
at me,
and its furrows have joined in weeping, if I have eaten its produce without payment and have disappointed my creditors, may thistles spring up instead of wheat, and weeds instead of barley!
- Have I rejoiced at the ruin of the man that hated me
or been filled with malice when trouble overtook him, even though I did not allow my tongue to sin by demanding his life with a curse?
Have the men of my household never
said,
'Let none of us speak ill of him!
No stranger has spent the night in the street?'
For I have kept open house for the traveller.
Have I ever concealed my misdeeds as men do,
keeping my guilt to myself,
because I feared the gossip of the town or dreaded the scorn of my fellow-citizens?
Let me but call a witness in my defence!
Let the Almighty state his case against me!
If my accuser had written out his indictment,
I would not keep silence and remain indoors.<sup>n</sup>

<sup>h</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. uprooting. <sup>i</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. my.
<sup>j</sup> Or waved. <sup>k</sup> Or orphan.

<sup>l</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. A fear towards me is a disaster from God.

<sup>m</sup> Verses 38-40 transposed (but see note p, page 558).

<sup>n</sup> Line transposed from verse 34.

perhaps an allusion to land-grabbing practices (see Amos 2.7). 11-12: The verses are probably a gloss to reject the content of vv. 9-10. 18: See Tfn. i. 24: Nubia: Ethiopia. 38: Land has cried out: see Gen.4.10.

36 No! I would flaunt it on my shoulder and wear it like a crown on my head; 37 I would plead the whole record of my life
and present that in court as my defence.<sup>o</sup>

Job's speeches are finished.<sup>p</sup>

Speeches of Elihu

32 So these three men gave up answering Job; for he continued to think himself 2 righteous. Then Elihu son of Barakel the Buzite, of the family of Ram, grew angry; angry because Job had made himself out more righteous than God,<sup>q</sup> 3 and angry with the three friends because they had found no answer to Job and 4 had let God appear wrong.<sup>r</sup> Now Elihu had hung back while they were talking with Job because they were 5 older than he; but, when he saw that the three had no answer, he could no longer 6 contain his anger. So Elihu son of Barakel the Buzite began to speak:

I am young in years,
and you are old;
that is why I held back and shrank from displaying my knowledge in front of you.

7 I said to myself, 'Let age speak, and length of years expound wisdom.' 8 But the spirit of God himself is in man, and the breath of the Almighty gives him understanding;
9 it is not only the old who are wise or the aged who understand what is right.
10 Therefore I say: Listen to me;

I too will display my knowledge.
Look, I have been waiting upon your 11
words,
listening for the conclusions of your thoughts,
while you sought for phrases;
I have been giving thought to your 12 conclusions,
but not one of you refutes Job or answers his arguments.
Take care then not to claim that you 13
have found wisdom;
God will rebut him, not man.
I will not string<sup>s</sup> words together like 14 you<sup>t</sup>
or answer him as you have done.

If these men are confounded and no 15 longer answer,
if words fail them,
am I to wait because they do not 16
speak,
because they stand there and no longer answer?
I, too, have a furrow to plough; 17
I will express my opinion;
for I am bursting with words, 18 a bellyful of wind gripes me.
My stomach is distended as if with 19
wine,
bulging like a blacksmith's bellows;
I must speak to find relief,
20 I must open my mouth and answer;
I will show no favour to anyone, 21 I will flatter no one, God or man;<sup>u</sup> for I cannot use flattering titles, 22

o Verses 38–40 transposed to follow verse 28 (but see note p). p The last line of verse 40 retained here.

q Or had justified himself with God.

r Prob. original rdg., altered in Heb. to and had not proved Job wrong.

s Prob. rdg.; Heb. He has not strung.

t Prob. rdg.; Heb. towards me.

u Prob. rdg.; Heb. I will not flatter man.

32.1–37.24: The speeches of Elihu. These chapters interrupt the context, introduce a new character unmentioned elsewhere, and repeat many of the friends' arguments, while addressing themselves more directly to Job's objections. Probably a later addition to the poetic text, they emphasize the disciplinary nature of suffering and life as divine gift.

32.1–6a: Prose introduction. 1: The three had earlier been called "friends," but here men, suggesting a different author. 2: Elihu means "he is my God." Barakel means "God has blessed," a frequent name in Akkadian texts, possibly indicating some connection with Babylonian literature. Buzite: perhaps a clan living on the Persian gulf (Gen.22.21). Ram: see Ruth 4.19; 1 Chr.2.9,25,27. It is usual in OT narrative patterns to record the father's name and that of the clan. 3: God: see Tfn. q. The substitution of Job for God in the MT is one of the eighteen recorded alterations by ancient Jewish scribes.

32.6b–37.24: The poems of Elihu. 6b–22: Elihu feels that he must speak in order to make up for the ineffectiveness of the friends. The tone here appears to be comic. 10: The imperative listen is in the singular as if addressed to Job alone as in 33.1, but the friends are addressed in the plural in your words and in not one of you in v. 12 and other instances. 22: "The Babylonian Theodicy" makes generous use of flattering titles, though it has sharp verbal retorts.

	or my Maker would soon do away with me.	and his correction strikes them with terror.
33	Come now, Job, listen to my words and attend carefully to everything I say.	To turn a man from reckless conduct, <sup>17</sup> to check the pride <sup>w</sup> of mortal man, at the edge of the pit he holds him back alive
2	Look, I am ready to answer; the words are on the tip of my tongue.	and stops him from crossing the river of death.
3	My heart assures me that I speak with knowledge, and that my lips speak with sincerity.	Or again, man learns his lesson on a bed of pain, <sup>19</sup> tormented by a ceaseless ague in his bones;
4	For the spirit of God made me, and the breath of the Almighty gave me life.	he turns from his food with loathing and has no relish for the choicest meats; <sup>20</sup>
5	Answer me if you can, marshal your arguments and confront me.	his flesh hangs loose upon him, his bones are loosened and out of joint,
6	In God's sight <sup>v</sup> I am just what you are; I too am only a handful of clay.	his soul draws near to the pit, his life to the ministers of death.
7	Fear of me need not abash you, nor any pressure from me overawe you.	Yet if an angel, one of thousands, stands by him, <sup>23</sup> a mediator between him and God, to expound what he has done right and to secure mortal man his due; <sup>z</sup>
8	You have said your say and I heard you; I have listened to the sound of your words:	if he speaks in the man's favour and says, 'Reprieve him, <sup>24</sup> let him not go down to the pit, I have the price of his release';
9	'I am innocent', you said, 'and free from offence, blameless and without guilt.	then that man will grow sturdier <sup>y</sup> than he was in youth, <sup>25</sup> he will return to the days of his prime.
10	Yet God finds occasions to put me in the wrong and counts me his enemy;	If he entreats God to show him favour, <sup>26</sup> to let him see his face and shout for joy; <sup>z</sup>
11	he puts my feet in the stocks and keeps a close watch on all I do.'	if he declares before all men, 'I have sinned, turned right into wrong and thought nothing of it';
12	Well, this is my answer: You are wrong. God is greater than man;	then he saves himself from going down to the pit, he lives and sees the light.
13	why then plead your case with him? for no one can answer his arguments.	All these things God may do to a man, <sup>29</sup>
14	Indeed, once God has spoken he does not speak a second time to confirm it.
15	In dreams, in visions of the night, when deepest sleep falls upon men, while they sleep on their beds, God makes them listen, 16

v In God's sight; or In strength.
w the pride: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.
x Line transposed from verse 26.
y will grow sturdier; prob. rdg.; Heb. unintelligible.
z See note on verse 23.

33.1–35.16: A reply to Job. The passage cites Job's assertions (vv. 9–11) in a context of refuting him. 1: The three friends never addressed Job by name as Elihu does here and in v. 31. 7: Pointedly, Elihu asserts that, unlike God, he cannot overawe Job. 12: Elihu's argument is: "If you admit that God is greater than man (which Job has admitted, 9.1–12; 12.13–25), then how can you bring a law case against him." 15: This verse cites the words of Eliphaz in 4.13; Elihu often quotes portions of earlier speeches. 22–28: Angels as ministers of death appear early in Israelite literature; see 2 Sam.24.16. Angels as mediators who expound God's will and intercede also

30	again and yet again, bringing him back from the pit to enjoy the full light of life.	14
31	Listen, Job, and attend to me; be silent, and I myself will speak.	15
32	If you have any arguments, answer me; speak, and I would gladly find you proved right;	16
33	but if you have none, listen to me: keep silence, and I will teach you wisdom.	17
34	Then Elihu went on to say;	18
2	Mark my words, you wise men; you men of long experience, listen to me;	19
3	for the ear tests what is spoken as the palate savours food.	20
4	Let us then examine for ourselves what is right; let us together establish the true good.	21
5	Job has said, 'I am innocent, but God has deprived me of justice, he has falsified my case; my state is desperate, yet I have done no wrong.'	22
6	Was there ever a man like Job with his thirst for irreverent talk, choosing bad company to share his journeys, a fellow-traveller with wicked men?	23
7	For he says that it brings a man no profit to find favour with God.	24
8	But listen to me, you men of good sense. Far be it from God to do evil or the Almighty to play false!	25
9	For he pays a man according to his work and sees that he gets what his conduct deserves.	26 <sup>a</sup>
10	The truth is, God does no wrong, the Almighty does not pervert justice.	27
11	Who committed the earth to his keeping? Who but he established the whole world?	28
12		14
13		15
14		16
15		17
16		18
17		19
18		20
19		21
20		22
21		23
22		24
23		25
24		26 <sup>a</sup>
25		27
26		28

<sup>a</sup> Verse 25 transposed to follow verse 22.

<sup>b</sup> he strikes them down: prob. rdg.; Heb. om.

<sup>c</sup> Or and chastises them where people see.

appear; see Josh.5.13–14; Dan.8.15–17. 34.1–37: Job is wrong in imputing injustice to God. 3: Repeats 12.11 almost verbatim. 5–6: These verses echo 27.2 and 33.9. 21: See 24.23 and 31.4. 23–25: Since God observes everything under the sun, he does not need to go through a legal process such as Job demands, i.e. inquiry or appointed days . . . for judgement in court, but his

29-30 and he hears the cry of the distressed. [Even if he is silent, who can condemn him? If he looks away, who can find fault? What though he makes a godless man king over a stubborn nation and all its people?] 31 But suppose you were to say to God, 'I have overstepped the mark; I will do no more<sup>d</sup> mischief. 32 Vile wretch that I am, be thou my guide; whatever wrong I have done, I will do wrong no more.' 33 Will he, at these words, condone your rejection of him? It is for you to decide, not me: but what can you answer? 34 Men of good sense will say, any intelligent hearer will tell me, 35 'Job talks with no knowledge, and there is no sense in what he says. 36 If only Job could be put to the test once and for all for answers that are meant to make mischief! 37 He is a sinner and a rebel as well<sup>e</sup> with his endless ranting against God.' 35 Then Elihu went on to say: 2 Do you think that this is a sound plea or maintain that you are in the right against God?— 3 if you say, 'What would be the advantage to me? how much should I gain from sinning?' 4 I will bring arguments myself against you, you and your three friends. 5 Look up at the sky and then consider, observe the rain-clouds towering above you. 6 How does it touch him if you have sinned? However many your misdeeds, what	does it mean to him? If you do right, what good do you bring him, or what does he gain from you? Your wickedness touches only men, such as you are; the right that you do affects none but mortal man. Men will cry out beneath the burdens of oppression and call for help against the power of the great; but none of them asks, 'Where is God my Maker who gives protection by night, who grants us more knowledge than the beasts of the earth and makes us wiser than the birds of the air?' So, when they cry out, he does not answer, because they are self-willed and proud. All to no purpose! God does not listen, the Almighty does not see. The worse for you when you say, 'He does not see me!' Humble yourself<sup>f</sup> in his presence and wait for his word. But now, because God does not grow angry and punish and because he lets folly pass unheeded, Job gives vent to windy nonsense and makes a parade of empty words. Then Elihu went on to say: Be patient a little longer, and let me enlighten you; there is still something more to be said on God's side. I will search far and wide to support my conclusions, as I defend the justice of my Maker.	7 8 9 10 11 12 13 14 15 16 36 2 3
--	---	--

<sup>d</sup> more: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.
<sup>e</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds between us it is enough.
<sup>f</sup> Humble yourself: prob. rdg.; Heb. Judge.

sentence is sudden, out of the night. 31-37: Elihu states that Job's violent language is a ranting rejection of God that will merit further punishment even if he were now to repent of it. Job will repent (42.6) but the punishment does not follow, which may be a key to the whole story. 35.4: Elihu attacks the three friends not because they agree with Job, but because their arguments against him are so feeble. 9-16: This passage replies to Job's contention that God does not reply to Job's challenge to come to a trial (13.20-24; 30.20-21). In due time God responds to man.

36.1-19,21: God does not allow the wicked to prosper forever. Those who learn from suffering

4	There are no flaws in my reasoning; before you stands one whose conclusions are sound.	Will that wealth of yours, however great, avail you, or all the resources of your high position?	19
5	God, <sup>g</sup> I say, repudiates the high and <sup>h</sup> mighty	Take care not to turn to mischief; for that is why you are tried by affliction.	21 <sup>n</sup>
6	and does not let the wicked prosper, but allows the just claims of the poor and suffering;	Have no fear if in the breathless terrors of the night	20
7	he does not deprive the sufferer of his due. <sup>i</sup> Look at kings on their thrones: when God gives them sovereign power, they grow arrogant.	you see nations vanish where they stand. God towers in majesty above us; who wields such sovereign power as he?	22
8	Next you may see them loaded with fetters, held fast in captives' chains:	Who has prescribed his course for him?	23
9	he denounces their conduct to them, showing how insolence and tyranny was their offence;	Who has said to him, 'Thou hast done wrong'?	24
10	his warnings sound in their ears and summon them to turn back from their evil courses.	Remember then to sing the praises of his work, as men have always sung them.	25
11	If they listen to him, they spend <sup>j</sup> their days in prosperity and their years in comfort.	All men stand back from <sup>o</sup> him; the race of mortals look on from afar. Consider; God is so great that we cannot know him;	26
12	But, if they do not listen, they die, their lesson unlearned, and cross the river of death.	the number of his years is beyond reckoning.	27
13	Proud men rage against him and do not cry to him for help when caught in his toils;	He draws up drops of water from the sea <sup>p</sup> and distils rain from the mist he has made;	28
14	so they die in their prime, like male prostitutes, <sup>k</sup> worn out. <sup>l</sup>	the rain-clouds pour down in torrents, <sup>q</sup> they descend in showers on mankind; thus he sustains the nations and gives them food in plenty.	29
15	Those who suffer he rescues through suffering and teaches them by the discipline of affliction.	Can any man read the secret of the sailing clouds, spread like a carpet under <sup>r</sup> his pavilion?	30
16	Beware, if you are tempted to exchange hardship for comfort, <sup>m</sup> for unlimited plenty spread before you, and a generous table;	See how he unrolls the mist across the waters, and its streamers <sup>s</sup> cover the sea.	31
17	if you eat your fill of a rich man's fare when you are occupied with the business of the law,
18	do not be led astray by lavish gifts of wine and do not let bribery warp your judgement.

g Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds a mighty one and not.

h and: prob. rdg.; Heb. om.

i deprive . . . due: or withdraw his gaze from the righteous.

j Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds they end. k Cp. Deut. 23. 17.

l worn out: prob. rdg.; Heb. unintelligible.

m for comfort: prob. rdg.; Heb. om.

n Verses 20 and 21 transposed. o Or gaze at.

p from the sea: prob. rdg.; Heb. om.

q in torrents: prob. rdg.; Heb. which.

r spread . . . under: prob. rdg.; Heb. crashing noises.

s its streamers: prob. rdg.; Heb. the roots of.

attain contentment. 14: Male prostitutes had a role in the fertility rites of pagan temples. In times of religious decline they were attached to the Israelite temple and shrines; see Tin. k and l; also 2 Kgs. 23.7. The orgiastic excesses of male prostitutes led to an early death.

36.20,22–37.24: God's power over nature is such that mere man cannot truly understand him;

32<sup>t</sup> He charges the thunderbolts with flame and launches them straight<sup>u</sup> at the mark; 33 in his anger he calls up the tempest, and the thunder is the herald of its coming.<sup>v</sup> 37 This too makes my heart beat wildly and start from its place. 2 Listen, listen to the thunder of God's voice and the rumbling of his utterance. 3 Under the vault of heaven he lets it roll, and his lightning reaches the ends of the earth; 4 there follows a sound of roaring as he thunders with the voice of majesty.<sup>w</sup> 5 God's voice is marvellous in its working;<sup>x</sup> he does great deeds that pass our knowledge. 6 For he says to the snow, 'Fall to earth', and to the rainstorms, 'Be fierce.' And when his voice is heard, the floods of rain pour down unchecked.<sup>y</sup> 7 He shuts every man fast indoors,<sup>z</sup> and all men whom he has made must stand idle; 8 the beasts withdraw into their lairs and take refuge in their dens. 9 The hurricane bursts from its prison, and the rain-winds bring bitter cold; 10 at the breath of God the ice-sheet is formed, and the wide waters are frozen hard as iron. 11 He gives the dense clouds their load of moisture, and the clouds spread his mist abroad, 12 as they travel round in their courses, steered by his guiding hand to do his bidding all over the habitable world.<sup>a</sup> 14 Listen, Job, to this argument; stand still, and consider God's wonderful works.	Do you know how God assigns them 15 their tasks, how he sends light flashing from his clouds? Do you know why the clouds hang 16 poised overhead, a wonderful work of his consummate skill, sweating there in your stifling 17 clothes, when the earth lies sultry under the south wind? Can you beat out the vault of the 18 skies, as he does, hard as a mirror of cast metal? Teach us then what to say to him; 19 for all is dark, and we cannot marshal our thoughts. Can any man dictate to God when 20 he is<sup>b</sup> to speak? or command him to make proclamation? At one moment the light is not seen, 21 it is overcast with clouds and rain; then the wind passes by and clears them away, and a golden glow comes from the 22 north.<sup>c</sup> But the Almighty we cannot find; 23 his power is beyond our ken, and his righteousness not slow to do justice. Therefore mortal men pay him 24 reverence, and all who are wise look to him.
--	---

God's answer and Job's submission

Then the LORD answered Job out of 38
the tempest:

t Verse 31 transposed to follow verse 28.
u and . . . straight: prob. rdg.; Heb. and gives orders concerning it.
v in his anger . . . coming: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.
w See note on verse 6.
x Prob. rdg.; Heb. thundering.
y And when . . . unchecked: prob. rdg.; some words in these lines transposed from verse 4.
z indoors: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.
a Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds (13) whether he makes him attain the rod, or his earth, or constant love.
b Prob. rdg.; Heb. I am.
c Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds this refers to God, terrible in majesty.

man can only marvel at God's greatness. (Note transposition of vv. 20 and 21.) 37.22: North: Heb., zaphon, the mountain habitation of the gods (see 26.7 n.).

38.1–40.2: God's answer and Job's submission.

38.1–40.2: God's answer from the whirlwind. God's argument seems to be that in the beauty, majesty, power, and wonder of the world, Job's situation cannot be the one thing out of joint. Surely Job cannot deny that his condition must fit into the mysteries of the universe which Job

- 2 Who is this whose ignorant words cloud my design in darkness?
- 3 Brace yourself and stand up like a
man;
I will ask questions, and you shall
answer.
- 4 Where were you when I laid the earth's foundations?
Tell me, if you know and understand.
- 5 Who settled its dimensions? Surely you should know.
Who stretched his measuring-line over
it?
- 6 On what do its supporting pillars
rest?
Who set its corner-stone in place, 7 when the morning stars sang
together
and all the sons of God shouted aloud?
- 8 Who watched over the birth of the sea,<sup>d</sup>
when it burst in flood from the womb?—
- 9 when I wrapped it in a blanket of cloud
and cradled it in fog,
10 when I established its bounds, fixing its doors and bars in place, 11 and said, 'Thus far shall you come and no farther,
and here your surging waves shall halt.'<sup>e</sup>
- 12 In all your life have you ever called up the dawn
or shown the morning its place?
- 13 Have you taught it to grasp the fringes of the earth and shake the Dog-star from its
place;
- 14 to bring up the horizon in relief as clay under a seal,
until all things stand out like the folds of a cloak,
- 15 when the light of the Dog-star is dimmed
- and the stars of the Navigator's Line go out one by one?
- Have you descended to the springs of 16
the sea
or walked in the unfathomable deep?
Have the gates of death been revealed 17
to you?
Have you ever seen the door-keepers of the place of darkness?
Have you comprehended the vast 18 expanse of the world?
Come, tell me all this, if you know.
Which is the way to the home of 19
light
and where does darkness dwell?
And can you then take each to its 20 appointed bound
and escort it on its homeward path?
Doubtless you know all this; for you 21 were born already,
so long is the span of your life!
- Have you visited the storehouse of 22
the snow
or seen the arsenal where hail is stored,
which I have kept ready for the day 23
of calamity,
for war and for the hour of battle?
By what paths is the heat spread 24 abroad
or the east wind carried far and wide over the earth?
- Who has cut channels for the 25 downpour
and cleared a passage for the thunderstorm,
for rain to fall on land where no man 26 lives
and on the deserted wilderness, clothing lands waste and derelict with 27 green

<sup>d</sup> Who . . . sea: prob. rdg.; Heb. And he held back the sea with two doors.

<sup>e</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. here one shall set on your surging waves.

cannot penetrate and yet cannot blame God for making them incomprehensible. The form of the passage is derived from nature wisdom, encyclopedic data under the care of the sages (in Egypt especially). The passage ignores the accusations made against God, and focuses on Job's inevitable, human ignorance. 1: Whereas the tempest had brought Job's calamity in the beginning (1.19, whirlwind), it is now the occasion for his vindication. The passage ensues directly on 31.37, abstaining from comment on the Elihu speeches (see 32.1–37.24 n.). 3: Brace: the word means to prepare for warfare, and may derive from belt wrestling. 7: Light is a symbol of rejoicing; compare Ps.97.11–12. Because of their brilliance in the surrounding darkness, the heavenly bodies are often personified as rejoicing and praising God; see Pss.18.1–6; 148.3–4. 21: Further irony: Job may be comparing himself to Wisdom, which existed in the beginning with God (see Prov.8.22 n.). 22–23: Hail: compare Josh.10.11 and Ecclus.46.6. 30: Expanse of

	and making grass grow on thirsty ground <sup>f</sup> ?	and bring their offspring to the birth, 28	Has the rain a father?	when the fawns grow and thrive in the open forest,	4
	Whose womb gave birth to the ice, and who was the mother of the frost from heaven,	and go forth and do not return? Who has let the wild ass of Syria range at will	5
30	which lays a stony cover over the waters and freezes the expanse of ocean?	and given the wild ass of Arabia its freedom?—
31	Can you bind the cluster of the Pleiades or loose Orion's belt?	whose home I have made in the wilderness	6
32	Can you bring out the signs of the zodiac in their season or guide Aldebaran and its train?	and its lair in the saltings; it disdains the noise of the city and is deaf to the driver's shouting; it roams the hills as its pasture and searches for anything green.	7 8
33	Did you proclaim the rules that govern the heavens, or determine the laws of nature on earth?	Does the wild ox consent to serve you, does it spend the night in your stall? Can you harness its strength <sup>l</sup> with ropes,	9 10
34	Can you command the dense clouds to cover you with their weight of waters?	or will it harrow the furrows <sup>i</sup> after you?
35	If you bid lightning speed on its way, will it say to you, 'I am ready'?	Can you depend on it, strong as it is, or leave your labour to it? Do you trust it to come back	11 12
36	Who put wisdom in depths of darkness and veiled understanding in secrecy <sup>g</sup> ?	and bring home your grain to the threshing-floor?
37	Who is wise enough to marshal the rain-clouds and empty the cisterns of heaven, when the dusty soil sets hard as iron,	The wings of the ostrich are stunted; <sup>j</sup> her pinions and plumage are so scanty <sup>l</sup>	13
38	and the clods of earth cling together?	that she abandons her eggs to the ground,	14
39	Do you hunt her prey for the lioness and satisfy the hunger of young lions, as they crouch in the lair or lie in wait in the covert?	letting them be kept warm by the sand. She forgets that a foot may crush them,	15
40	Who provides the raven with its quarry when its fledglings croak <sup>h</sup> for lack of food?	or a wild beast trample on them; she treats her chicks heartlessly as if they were not hers,	16
39	Do you know when the mountain-goats are born or attend the wild doe when she is in labour?	not caring if her labour is wasted (for God has denied her wisdom and left her without sense), while like a cock she struts over the uplands,	17 18
2	Do you count the months that they carry their young or know the time of their delivery,	scorning both horse and rider.
3	when they crouch down to open their wombs

f thirsty ground: prob. rdg.; Heb. source.
g secrecy: prob. rdg.; Heb. word unknown.
h Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds they cry to God.
i Prob. rdg.; Heb. transposes strength and furrows.
j are stunted: prob. rdg.; Heb. unintelligible.
k Prob. rdg.; Heb. prefixes if.
l Prob. rdg.; Heb. godly or stork.

ocean: lit. the surface of the deep, i.e. any deep body of water such as the Sea of Galilee. 32: This verse seems to allude to the Great Bear and Little Bear. 36: The text is disturbed here. Perhaps the meaning is that even darkness of which the Israelite was afraid had a purpose. 39.13–18: Perhaps this means that God could be no less compassionate to Job than to the 19	Did you give the horse his strength? Did you clothe his neck with a mane?	or keep it on a string like a song- bird for your maidens?

20	Do you make him quiver like a locust's wings, when his shrill neighing strikes terror?	Do trading-partners haggle over it or merchants share it out?	6
21	He shows his mettle as he paws and prances; he charges the armoured line with all his might.	Then the LORD said to Job:	40
22	He scorns alarms and knows no dismay; he does not flinch before the sword.	Is it for a man who disputes with the Almighty to be stubborn? Should he that argues with God answer back?	2
23	The quiver rattles at his side, the spear and sabre flash.	And Job answered the LORD:	3
24	Trembling with eagerness, he devours the ground and cannot be held in when he hears the horn;	What reply can I give thee, I who carry no weight? I put my finger to my lips. I have spoken once and now will not answer again:	4 5
25	at the blast of the horn he cries 'Aha!' and from afar he scents the battle. <sup>m</sup>	twice have I spoken, and I will do so no more.
26	Does your skill teach the hawk to use its pinions and spread its wings towards the south?	Then the LORD answered Job out of the tempest:	6
27	Do you instruct the vulture to fly high and build its nest aloft?	Brace yourself and stand up like a man; I will ask questions, and you shall answer.	7
28	It dwells among the rocks and there it lodges; its station is a crevice in the rock;	Dare you deny that I am just or put me in the wrong that you may be right?	8
29	from there it searches for food, keenly scanning the distance,	Have you an arm like God's arm, can you thunder with a voice like his?	9
30	that its brood may be gorged with blood; and where the slain are, there the vulture is.	Deck yourself out, if you can, in pride and dignity, array yourself in pomp and splendour; unleash the fury of your wrath, look upon the proud man and humble him;	10 11
41 <sup>n</sup>	Can you pull out the whale <sup>o</sup> with a gaff or can you slip a noose round its tongue?	look upon every proud man and bring him low,	12
2	Can you pass a cord through its nose or put a hook through its jaw?
3	Will it plead with you for mercy or beg its life with soft words?
4	Will it enter into an agreement with you to become your slave for life?
5	Will you toy with it as with a bird

<sup>m</sup> Prob. rdg.: Heb. adds the thunder of the captains and the shouting.
<sup>n</sup> 41. 1-6 (in Heb. 40. 25-30) transposed to this point.
<sup>o</sup> Or Leviathan.

ostrich. 19-25: The horse was considered extremely valuable in warfare, as Canaanite texts indicate. 40.2: Two interpretations of the text are possible, namely, (a) that for Job to answer back would be further impudence; or (b) an invitation to Job to answer God if he can.

40.3-5: Job's reply is that he is moved to silence.

40.6-41.34: God's second speech. In addition to man's ignorance, man is unable to humble the proud man or to master the crocodile and whale as God has done. The subdued animal is to be understood both literally and as recalling the primeval sea monster of mythology (3.8 and 26.12-13; compare Ps.74.14). 6: See 38.1. 7: See 38.1 n. and 38.3 n. 15: In Tfn. p. Behemoth in

	throw down the wicked where they stand;	I will not pass over in silence his limbs,	12
13	hide them in the dust together, and shroud them in an unknown grave.	his prowess and the grace of his proportions.
14	Then I in my turn will acknowledge that your own right hand can save you.	Who has ever undone his outer garment	13
15	Consider the chief of the beasts, the crocodile, <sup>p</sup> who devours cattle as if they were grass: <sup>q</sup>	or penetrated his doublet of hide? Who has ever opened the portals of his face?	14
16	what strength is in his loins! what power in the muscles of his belly!	for there is terror in his arching teeth. His back <sup>r</sup> is row upon row of shields, enclosed in a wall <sup>s</sup> of flints; one presses so close on the other that air cannot pass between them, each so firmly clamped to its neighbour	15
17	His tail is rigid as <sup>r</sup> a cedar, the sinews of his flanks are closely knit,	that they hold and cannot spring apart. His sneezing sends out sprays of light,	17
18	his bones are tubes of bronze, and his limbs like bars of iron.	and his eyes gleam like the shimmer of dawn.	18
19	He is the chief of God's works, made to be a tyrant over his peers; <sup>s</sup>	Firebrands shoot from his mouth, and sparks come streaming out;	19
20	for he takes <sup>t</sup> the cattle of the hills for his prey and in his jaws he crunches all wild beasts.	like a cauldron on a fire blown to full heat.	20
21	There under the thorny lotus he lies, hidden in the reeds and the marsh;	His breath sets burning coals ablaze, and flames flash from his mouth.	21
22	the lotus conceals him in its shadow, the poplars of the stream surround him.	Strength is lodged in his neck, and untiring energy dances ahead of him.	22
23	If the river is in spate, he is not scared, he sprawls at his ease though the stream is in flood.	Close knit is his underbelly, no pressure will make it yield. His heart is firm as a rock, firm as the nether millstone.	23
24	Can a man blind <sup>u</sup> his eyes and take him or pierce his nose with the teeth of a trap?	When he raises himself, strong men <sup>a</sup> take fright,	25
41 <sup>v</sup>	Can you fill his skin with harpoons or his head with fish-hooks?	bewildered at the lashings of his tail. Sword or spear, dagger or javelin, if they touch him, they have no effect.	26
8	If ever you lift your hand against him, think of the struggle that awaits you, and let be.	Iron he counts as straw, and bronze as rotting wood. No arrow can pierce him, and for him sling-stones are turned into chaff;	27
9	No, such a man is in desperate case, hurled headlong at the very sight of him.		28
10	How fierce he is when he is roused! Who is there to stand up to him?
11	Who has ever attacked him <sup>w</sup> unscathed? Not a man <sup>x</sup> under the wide heaven.

p chief . . . crocodile: prob. rdg.; Heb. beasts (behe-moth) which I have made with you.
q cattle . . . grass: prob. rdg.; Heb. grass like cattle.
r Or He bends his tail like . . .
s Prob. rdg.; Heb. his sword.
t Prob. rdg.; Heb. they take.
u Can a man blind: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.
v Verses 1-6 transposed to follow 39, 30.
w Prob. rdg.; Heb. me. x Prob. rdg.; Heb. He is mine.
y Prob. rdg.; Heb. pride. z Prob. rdg.; Heb. seal.
a strong men: or leaders or gods.

Heb. is an intensive plural for majesty, but denotes a singular, as in older translations. 17: The reference to his tail suggests a crocodile, rather than the hippopotamus found in some older commentaries.

- 29 to him a club is a mere reed, and he laughs at the swish of the sabre.
- 30 Armoured beneath with jagged sherds, he sprawls on the mud like a threshing-sledge.
- 31 He makes the deep water boil like a cauldron,
he whips up the lake like ointment in a mixing-bowl.
- 32 He leaves a shining trail behind him, and the great river is like white hair in his wake.
- 33 He has no equal on earth;
for he is made quite without fear.
- 34 He looks down on all creatures, even the highest;
he is king over all proud beasts.

42 Then Job answered the LORD:

- 2 I know that thou canst do all things and that no purpose is beyond thee.
- 3 But I have spoken of great things which I have not understood, things too wonderful for me to know.<sup>b</sup>
- 5 I knew of thee then only by report but now I see thee with my own eyes.
- 6 Therefore I melted away;<sup>c</sup>
I repent in dust and ashes.

Epilogue

- 7 When the LORD had finished speaking to Job, he said to Eliphaz the Temanite,
'I am angry with you and your two friends, because you have not spoken as you ought about me, as my servant 8 Job has done. So now take seven bulls and seven rams, go to my servant Job and offer a whole-offering for yourselves, and he will intercede for you;

I will surely show him favour by not being harsh with you because you have not spoken as you ought about me, as he has done.' Then Eliphaz the Temanite <sup>9</sup> and Bildad the Shuhite and Zophar the Naamathite went and carried out the LORD's command, and the LORD showed favour to Job when he had interceded for his friends. So the LORD <sup>10</sup> restored Job's fortunes and doubled all his possessions.

Then all Job's brothers and sisters <sup>11</sup> and his former acquaintance came and feasted with him in his home, and they consoled and comforted him for all the misfortunes which the LORD had brought on him; and each of them gave him a sheep<sup>d</sup> and a gold ring.
Furthermore, the LORD blessed the end <sup>12</sup> of Job's life more than the beginning; and he had fourteen thousand head of small cattle and six thousand camels, a thousand yoke of oxen and as many she-asses. He had seven<sup>e</sup> sons and three <sup>13</sup> daughters; and he named his eldest <sup>14</sup> daughter Jemimah, the second Keziah and the third Keren-happuch. There <sup>15</sup> were no women in all the world so beautiful as Job's daughters; and their father gave them an inheritance with their brothers.

Thereafter Job lived another hundred <sup>16</sup> and forty years, he saw his sons and his grandsons to four generations, and <sup>17</sup> died at a very great age.

b Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds (4) O listen, and let me speak;

c I will ask questions, and you shall answer.

d Or despise myself.

e Or piece of money.

f Or fourteen.

42.1-6: Job's repentance. Job's silence (40.3-5) now gives way to the immediacy of God's presence and brings him to repentance. 3-4: See Tfn. b. Job quotes from God's initial speech (38.2-3) to admit the validity of the divine charge. 5-6: Job's knowledge of God was a conceptual one acquired from tradition by report; now he has a vivid personal encounter. As a consequence he recognizes not only his limitations in understanding but comes to acknowledge that God's actions in ordering the universe go beyond a system of justice as men know it. Job experienced God as bounty (38.41-39.12), beauty (38.12-15), freedom (38.5-6), and grace (41.9-31).

42.7-17: Epilogue. Job is restored to his former glory. The epilogue, like the prologue (chs. 1-2), is in prose. 9: The suffering righteous man stands before God as intercessor. 11: The gold ring was for the ear or the nose. 13: More than three daughters would have been a liability. See Ecclus.26.10-12; 42.9-11. Several manuscripts read fourteen sons (Tfn. e), in line with the doubling of his property. 14: Jemimah: dove (S. of S.2.14). Keziah: cinnamon (Prov.7.17). Keren-happuch: horn of eye cosmetics. 15: The specific mention of daughters receiving an inheritance is unique in the OT, but see Num.26.33; 27.1-8; 36.1-12. 16-17: Job's life span becomes double the usual expectation (Ps.90.10). Four generations: compare Ps.128.6. The language here is reminiscent of descriptions of the patriarchs in Gen.25.8; 35.29; 50.23.

PSALMS

In the psalms there are many voices, from various times and places, from Joshua to Ezra, and from Jerusalem to Babylon. Gathered by unknown men, often called "the sages of Israel," the psalms were used in ancient worship as they have continued to live in both synagogue and church.

When Israel came to Canaan she encountered and absorbed a living poetic tradition; hence many psalms reveal much that Israel had in common with her predecessors and neighbors. At times, however, some of Israel's poets skillfully shaped the language with intuitive insight greater even than the very language itself; these are the occasions which are always exciting for the student who is interested in the singular thrust of Israel's creative literary achievement. But the historian must also recognize that the less striking aspects, the common elements themselves, could be of great significance too in the late biblical age.

Some of the poetic voices seem muffled by our own world view, yet others break through such barriers, for in many passages the Hebrew poets sang of a reality which is only on the horizon of our comprehension.

The Book of Psalms is divided into five books. In the Hebrew Masoretic Text, there is a superscription or heading for many psalms. In the present translation, as is noted in the Introduction to the Old Testament (p. xxi), "The headings of the Psalms . . . have been omitted; they are almost certainly not original." In the annotations it has at times been useful to refer to these omitted superscriptions. Two recurrent words, "Selah" and "Amen," have also been omitted (e.g. from 3.2,4). These words appear to be instructions inserted when the psalms were used liturgically. Perhaps Selah, whose meaning is unclear, was a signal for an instrumental interlude. Amen (e.g. 41.13), likewise uncertain in its original use, seems to instruct the participants in the liturgy to assent to the passage read to them.

The classification of each psalm is to be regarded as summary, and meant to be useful rather than complete. Thus, the "Laments" are not here classified into subcategories such as "individual" and "group" Laments. The procedure in the notes is to designate the following types: Lament, Thanksgiving, Hymn, Enthronement Hymn, Royal Psalm, Wisdom Psalm, Prophetic Judgment, Vow, Liturgy, and Benediction. Some psalms are really only fragments of known types and others are impossible to classify at all.

A Lament, the most abundant type, was sung in time of great trouble. It usually contains a statement of the poet's distress, a word of trust, an appeal to God, a declaration about the poet's obedience, and his vow to sing a Thanksgiving (see Pss. 22 and 26; also compare 56.8,12; 107.22). A Thanksgiving Psalm thanks God for what he had done in specific historical circumstances to save an individual or the nation. A Hymn praises God for what he is accustomed to do in nature or history for the welfare of mankind. An Enthronement Hymn was used to celebrate the kingship of God. Royal Psalms dealt with the human king; many were used at the time of his coronation and one is a Wedding Song. The Wisdom Psalms reflect the teaching of the sages of Israel. Other types are rather rare, and are explained in the notes.

Tradition ascribes the book of Psalms to David (2 Sam.23.1); about half are so ascribed in the superscriptions. Modern scholarship rejects a view held three generations ago which supposed that no psalms were as early as David; indeed, some were written even before his time. The Psalter is a collection, indeed, probably a collection of collections, of poems from all periods of Israel's history. It has, with justice, been called "The Prayer Book of the Second Temple," for in that later period (after 520 B.C.) the psalms were used in the liturgy.

---

BOOK 1

1

1 Happy is the man
who does not take the wicked for his guide

nor walk the road that sinners tread nor take his seat among the scornful; the law of the LORD is his delight, 2
the law his meditation night and day.
He is like a tree 3
planted beside a watercourse, which yields its fruit in season and its leaf never withers:

---

Ps. 1: The LORD watches over the way of the righteous. This Wisdom Psalm (see Introduction) contrasts the two ways open to man—good and evil—and their consequences—happiness and misery. Thus, it is a summary of the moral teaching of the Psalter; hence, its place at the beginning of the Psalms. 1–3: Happy is the man: a common Wisdom phrase; see Ps.41.1 and the

in all that he does he prospers.
 4 Wicked men are not like this;
 they are like chaff driven by the wind.
 5 So when judgement comes the wicked shall not stand firm, nor shall sinners stand in the assembly of the righteous.
 6 The LORD watches over the way of the righteous,
 but the way of the wicked is doomed.

2

1 Why are the nations in turmoil?
 Why do the peoples hatch their futile plots?
 2 The kings of the earth stand ready,
 and the rulers conspire together against the LORD and his anointed
 king.
 3 'Let us break their fetters,' they cry,
 'let us throw off their chains!'
 4 The Lord who sits enthroned in heaven
 laughs them to scorn;
 5 then he rebukes them in anger,
 he threatens them in his wrath.
 6 Of me he says, 'I have enthroned my king
 on Zion my holy mountain.' 7 I will repeat the LORD's decree:
 'You are my son,' he said;
 'this day I become your father.'
 8 Ask of me what you will:

I will give you nations as your inheritance,
 the ends of the earth as your possession.
 You shall break them with a rod of iron,
 you shall shatter them like a clay pot.'
 Be mindful then, you kings;
 learn your lesson, rulers of the
 earth:
 worship the LORD with reverence;
 tremble, and kiss the king,<sup>a</sup> lest the LORD be angry and you are struck down in mid course;
 for his anger flares up in a moment.
 Happy are all who find refuge in
 him.

3

LORD, how my enemies have multiplied!
 Many rise up against me,
 many there are who say of me,
 'God will not bring him victory.'
 But thou, LORD, art a shield to cover me:
 thou art my glory, and thou dost raise my head high.
 I cry aloud to the LORD,
 and he answers me from his holy mountain.
 I lie down and sleep,

<sup>a</sup> tremble . . . king: prob. rdg.; lit. tremble and kiss the mighty one; Heb. obscure.

beatitudes of Jesus (Mt.5.1-12). See also Jer.17.7-8. A tree . . . beside a watercourse is a symbol of the fullness of life in arid Palestine where trees are generally dwarfed for lack of moisture; compare Ezek.47.1-12; Ecclus.24.14-31. 6: The confident assertion that the LORD watches over the way of the righteous is found in many psalms, especially Wisdom Psalms. Even though in the Laments the psalmist recognizes the paradox of the just man suffering, he trusts that deliverance always comes; see Ps.22.

Ps. 2: I have enthroned my king on Zion. A Royal Psalm used at the time of coronation. For comparable psalms see Pss.72, 101, 110, and 132. 1-2: The accession of a new emperor was the time usually picked by subject kings to revolt. Because the emperor-king was considered chosen by God, for subjects to conspire against him was to conspire against the LORD. The word king is not found here in the Heb. The Heb. word for anointed is messiah. This word, in later Jewish tradition, came to stand for the ideal king who would accomplish God's purposes and Israel's destiny. Perhaps because of this connotation this psalm is placed here at the head of the Psalter. The passage is cited in Acts 4.25-29. 7: You are my son: a formula apparently used at the time of the coronation (see 2 Sam.7.14; Ps.89.26-27). For Christian interpretation, see Lk.3.22 and, more explicitly, Acts 13.33.

Ps. 3: I cry aloud to the LORD. A Lament, this psalm has characteristics usually found in all psalms of this category: (a) a cry to God (v. 1); (b) narration of his trouble (vv.1-2); (c) expression of trust in God (vv. 3-6); (d) a plea for God's help (vv. 7-8). The superscription (see Introduction) ascribes this psalm to David when he fled from his rebellious son Absalom (2 Sam.15.13-15). Pss.3-41 are all ascribed to, or are about, David. 4: Holy mountain: Mount Zion, the place of the Temple, symbolic of God's heavenly abode.

- and I wake again, for the LORD upholds me.
- 6 I will not fear the nations in their myriads
who set on me from all sides.
- 7 Rise up, LORD; save me, O my God.
Thou dost strike all my foes across the face
and breakest the teeth of the wicked.
- 8 Thine is the victory, O LORD, and may<sup>b</sup> thy blessing rest upon thy people.
- 4
- 1 Answer me when I call, O God, maintainer of my right,
I was hard pressed, and thou didst set me at large;
be gracious to me now and hear my prayer.
- 2 Mortal men, how long will you pay me not honour but dishonour, or set your heart on trifles and run after lies?
- 3 Know that the LORD has shown me<sup>c</sup>
his marvellous love;
the LORD hears when I call to him.
- 4 However angry your hearts, do not do wrong;
though you lie abed resentful,<sup>d</sup> do not break silence:
- 5 pay your due of sacrifice, and trust in
the LORD.
- 6 There are many who say, 'If only we might be prosperous again!
But the light of thy presence has fled from us, O LORD.'
- 7 Yet in my heart thou hast put more happiness than they enjoyed when there was corn and wine in plenty.
- Now I will lie down in peace, and 8
sleep;
for thou alone, O LORD, makest me live unafraid.
- 5
- Listen to my words, O LORD, 1 consider my inmost thoughts; heed my cry for help, my king and 2
my God.
In the morning, when I say my 3 prayers,
thou wilt hear me.
I set out my morning sacrifice<sup>e</sup> and watch for thee, O LORD.
For thou art not a God who 4 welcomes wickedness;
evil can be no guest of thine.<sup>f</sup>
There is no place for arrogance 5
before thee;
thou hatest evildoers,
thou makest an end of all liars. 6
- The LORD detests traitors and men of blood.
But I, through thy great love, may 7
come into thy house, and bow low toward thy holy temple in awe of thee.
Lead me, LORD, in thy 8
righteousness,
because my enemies are on the watch;
give me a straight path to follow.
There is no trusting what they say, 9
they are nothing but wind.
Their throats are an open<sup>g</sup> sepulchre;
smooth talk runs off their tongues.

<sup>b</sup> Thine . . . and may: or O LORD of salvation, may . . .

<sup>c</sup> Prob. rdg.: Heb. him.

<sup>d</sup> lie abed resentful: prob. rdg.: Heb. say on your beds.

<sup>e</sup> Or plea.

<sup>f</sup> who welcomes . . . thine: or who protects a wicked man; an evil man cannot be thy guest.

<sup>g</sup> Or inscribed.

Ps. 4: Answer me when I call, O God. Partly a Lament, and partly exultation on delivery from distress. 4-5: The virtue of obedience. Note the mention of sacrifices; the obedience advised is ritual as well as ethical. 6: Presence: lit. "face," an idiom, originally royal, often applied to God. A king could show pleasure by allowing his subjects to "seek his face," or by making his face shine on someone; as used of God see Pss.31.16; 67.1 and Num.6.25.

Ps. 5: Listen to my words, O LORD. A Lament. 1-2: In asking God to consider his inmost thoughts the poet acknowledges his guilt (which is amplified in vv. 4-6) and asks God's help for uprightness in the future (see v. 8 for elaboration). 3: A sacrifice was prescribed for various sins (see Lev.3.1-17; 4.27-6.7), here possibly after a vigil in the Temple. To watch for . . . LORD meant to look for signs of God's forgiveness and approval in the events of life. 7: The psalmist acknowledges that he does not meet the conditions to enter the house of the LORD, the Temple;

10	Bring ruin on them, O God; let them fall by their own devices. Cast them out, after all their rebellions, for they have defied thee.	The LORD has heard my entreaty; the LORD will accept my prayer. All my enemies shall be confounded and dismayed; they shall turn away in sudden confusion.	9 10
----	--	---	---------

11	But let all who take refuge in thee rejoice, let them for ever break into shouts of joy; shelter those who love thy name, that they may exult in thee.
12	For thou, O LORD, wilt bless the righteous; thou wilt hedge him round with favour as with a shield.

7

6

1	O LORD, do not condemn me in thy anger, do not punish me in thy fury.
2	Be merciful to me, O LORD, for I am weak; heal me, my very bones are shaken; my soul quivers in dismay.
3	And thou, O LORD—how long?
4	Come back, O LORD; set my soul free, deliver me for thy love's sake.
5	None talk of thee among the dead; who praises thee in Sheol?
6	I am wearied with groaning; all night long my pillow is wet with tears, I soak my bed with weeping.
7	Grief dims my eyes; they are worn out with all my woes.
8	Away from me, all you evildoers, for the LORD has heard the sound of my weeping.

O LORD my God, in thee I find refuge; save me, rescue me from my pursuers, before they tear at my throat like a lion and carry me off beyond hope of rescue.	1 2
O LORD my God, if I have done any of these things— if I have stained my hands with guilt, if I have repaid a friend evil for good or set free an enemy who attacked me without cause, may my adversary come after me and overtake me, trample my life to the ground and lay my honour in the dust!	3 4 5
Arise, O LORD, in thy anger, rouse thyself in wrath against my foes. Awake, my God who hast ordered that justice be done; let the peoples assemble around thee, and take thou thy seat on high above them.	6 7
O LORD, thou who dost pass sentence on the nations,	8

see Ps.15 for conditions. God's love experienced as an awe of the holy and therefore a forgiveness, makes such entry possible; compare Isa.6.5-7. 11-12: Transition from cries of sorrow to shouts of joy is a sign of God's love and favour.

Ps. 6: Be merciful to me, O LORD. A Lament (see Introduction), seemingly to be uttered in the time of a severe illness (vv. 2-7). 1-3: Bones are shaken . . . soul quivers: probably chills and shivering resulting from a fever. Illness was considered a sign of God's anger and a punishment for sin; compare Jn.9.2-3. 4: Soul is the Heb. nephesh, meaning the totality of life which is enslaved by illness. 5: The motive for God's healing is that death would mean the end of praising God, for there is no worship of God in Sheol, the place of the dead. 9-10: The psalm ends with a usual note of confidence. The enemies may be sickness, rather than men.

Ps. 7: Rescue me from my pursuers. A Lament (see Introduction). The background seems that of a prisoner awaiting trial, or of an innocent man pleading with God for justice. 5: The crime of which the psalmist is accused seems to demand payment with life. Lay honour in the dust: to die in dishonor; compare Isa.53.9-12. 6-9: This section has the flavor of the Book of Job. 6: Compare 44.23 n. In the face of manifest injustice, God is seen as one who needs to awake from sleep. 7-8: God here is asked to vindicate the psalmist's innocence before the peoples.

- O LORD, judge me as my righteousness deserves, for I am clearly innocent.
- 9 Let wicked men do no more harm, establish the reign of righteousness,<sup>h</sup> thou who examinest both heart and
mind,
thou righteous God.
- 10 God, the High God, is my shield who saves men of honest heart.
- 11 God is a just judge, every day he requites the raging enemy.
- 12 He sharpens his sword, strings his bow and makes it ready.
- 13 He has prepared his deadly shafts and tipped his arrows with fire.
- 14 But the enemy is in labour with iniquity;
he conceives mischief, and his brood is lies.
- 15 He has made a pit and dug it deep,
and he himself shall fall into the hole that he has made.
- 16 His mischief shall recoil upon himself,
and his violence fall on his own
head.
- 17 I will praise the LORD for his
righteousness
and sing a psalm to the name of the LORD Most High.

8

- 1 O LORD our sovereign,
how glorious is thy name in all the
earth!
Thy majesty is praised high as the heavens.
- 2 Out of the mouths of babes, of

- infants at the breast,
thou hast rebuked<sup>i</sup> the mighty, silencing enmity and vengeance to teach thy foes a lesson.
- When I look up at thy heavens, the 3 work of thy fingers,
the moon and the stars set in their place by thee,
what is man that thou shouldst 4 remember him,
mortal man that thou shouldst care for him?
Yet thou hast made him little less 5
than a god,
crowning him with glory and
honour.
- Thou makest him master over all 6
thy creatures;
thou hast put everything under his
feet:
all sheep and oxen, all the wild 7
beasts,
the birds in the air and the fish 8
in the sea,
and all that moves along the paths of ocean.
- O LORD our sovereign, 9
how glorious is thy name in all the
earth!

9-10

- I will praise thee, O LORD, with all 1
my heart,
I will tell the story of thy marvellous acts.
- I will rejoice and exult in thee, 2
I will praise thy name in psalms, O thou Most High,
- when my enemies turn back, 3 when they fall headlong and perish at thy appearing;
- <sup>h</sup> the reign of righteousness: or the cause of the right-<sup>eous.</sup>
<sup>i</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. founded.

15: The theme of a wicked man falling into the pit he has dug is frequent in Wisdom literature. 17: Many Laments end with a vow to praise or thank the LORD for what he will surely do.

Ps. 8: How glorious is thy name in all the earth. This Hymn, drawing its inspiration from the beauties of the night, glorifies God's majesty and power (v. 3). 1: God's name is glorious when his power is manifest and acknowledged. 4-5: The poet is here affirmative about man; elsewhere (144.3-4) the mood is one of discouragement about man and his estate; compare Job 7.17-19. 6-8: The verses echo the idea in Gen.1.26-29. 9: The repetition of v. 1 is the literary device known as "Inclusion," designed to extend the idea of God's glory to all that is between the two statements.

Pss. 9-10: Have pity on me, O LORD. A Lament (see Introduction). Most scholars take these two psalms as a single poem, as in the Sept. It is an alphabetic acrostic, though not perfectly so preserved; see Ps.111 n. The nations (9.5,15-19; 10.16) are possibly best interpreted as personal enemies. The vow (9.1-2) and expression of confidence (vv. 3-12), normally in the midst of

4	for thou hast upheld my right and my cause, seated on thy throne, thou righteous judge.	Now the LORD makes himself known. Justice is done: the wicked man is trapped in his own devices.	16
5	Thou hast rebuked the nations and overwhelmed the ungodly, thou hast blotted out their name for all time.	They rush blindly down to Sheol, the wicked, all the nations who are heedless of God.	17
6	The strongholds of the enemy are thrown down for evermore; thou hast laid their cities in ruins, all memory of them is lost.	But the poor shall not always be unheeded nor the hope of the destitute be always vain.	18
7	The LORD thunders, <sup>j</sup> he sits enthroned for ever: he has set up his throne, his judgement-seat.	Arise, LORD, give man no chance to boast his strength; summon the nations before thee for judgement.	19
8	He it is who will judge the world with justice and try the cause of the peoples fairly.	Strike them with fear, O LORD, let the nations know that they are but men.	20
9	So may the LORD be a tower of strength for the oppressed, a tower of strength in time of need,	Why stand so far off, LORD, hiding thyself in time of need? The wicked man in his pride hunts down the poor:	10 2
10	that those who acknowledge thy name may trust in thee; for thou, LORD, dost not forsake those who seek thee.	may his crafty schemes be his own undoing!	3
11	Sing psalms to the LORD who dwells in Zion, proclaim his deeds among the nations.	The wicked man is obsessed with his own desires, and in his greed gives wickedness his blessing;	4
12	For the Avenger of blood has remembered men's desire, and has not forgotten the cry of the poor.	arrogant as he is, he scorns the LORD and leaves no place for God in all his schemes.	5
13	Have pity on me, O LORD; look upon my affliction, thou who hast lifted me up <sup>k</sup> and caught me back from the gates of death,	His ways are always devious; thy judgements are beyond his grasp, <sup>l</sup> and he scoffs at all restraint.	6
14	that I may repeat all thy praise and exult at this deliverance in the gates of Zion's city.	He says to himself, 'I shall never be shaken; no misfortune can check my course.' <sup>m</sup>	7
15	The nations have plunged into a pit of their own making; their own feet are entangled in the net which they hid.	His mouth is full of lies and violence; mischief and trouble lurk under his tongue. He lies in ambush in the villages	8

<sup>j</sup> thunders: prob. rdg.; Heb. unintelligible.

<sup>k</sup> thou . . . me up: prob. rdg.; Heb. from those who hate me.

<sup>l</sup> beyond his grasp: prob. rdg.; Heb. on high before him.

<sup>m</sup> my course: prob. rdg.; Heb. which.

Laments, are here at the beginning. 4: The LORD's kingship is stressed in 9.7 and 10.16; in 9.11 "dwells" means enthroned. 7-9: God is enthroned to vindicate the rights of the oppressed. 12: The duty of avenging a murdered or wronged person fell upon the nearest relative. God is the Avenger of the blood . . . of the poor; compare Gen.4.10; Num.35.23-29. 13: Gates of death: Sheol, the place of the dead, under the image of a fortified city; compare Mt.16.18. 15-16: See 7.15. 10.2-6: The meaning of life is totally beyond the grasp of the wicked. 4: Place for God: not atheists, but those who deny all moral force or scrutiny. See v. 13; 14.1 n.

and murders innocent men by stealth.
 He is watching<sup>n</sup> intently for some poor wretch;
 9 he seizes him and drags him away
 in his net;
 he crouches stealthily, like a lion in its lair
 crouching to seize its victim; 10 the good man<sup>o</sup> is struck down and sinks to the ground,
 and poor wretches fall into his toils.
 11 He says to himself, 'God has forgotten;
 he has hidden his face and has seen
 nothing.'
 12 Arise, LORD, set<sup>p</sup> thy hand to the task;
 do not forget the poor, O God.
 13 Why, O God, has the wicked man rejected thee
 and said to himself that thou dost not care?
 14 Thou seest that mischief and trouble are his companions,
 thou takest the matter into thy own hands.
 The poor victim commits himself to
 thee;
 fatherless, he finds in thee his helper.
 15 Break the power of wickedness and
 wrong;
 hunt out all wickedness until thou canst find no more.
 16 The LORD is king for ever and ever; the nations have vanished from his
 land.
 17 Thou hast heard the lament of the humble, O LORD,
 and art attentive to their heart's desire,
 18 bringing justice to the orphan and the downtrodden
 that fear may never drive men from their homes again.

11

In the LORD I have found my 1 refuge; why do you say to me,
 'Flee to the mountains like a bird;
 see how the wicked string their bows 2 and fit the arrow to the string, to shoot down honest men out of
 the darkness?'
 When foundations are undermined, 3
 what can the good man do?
 The LORD is in his holy temple, 4
 the LORD's throne is in heaven.
 His eye is upon mankind, he takes their measure at a glance.
 The LORD weighs just and unjust 5 and hates with all his soul the lover of violence.
 He shall rain down red-hot coals 6
 upon the wicked;
 brimstone and scorching winds shall be the cup they drink.
 For the LORD is just and loves just 7 dealing;
 his face is turned towards the upright man.

12

Help, LORD, for loyalty is no more; 1 good faith between man and man is over.
 One man lies to another: 2 they talk with smooth lip and double heart.
 May the LORD make an end of 3 such smooth lips
 and the tongue that talks so boastfully!
 They said, 'Our tongue can win 4
 the day.
 Words are our ally; who can master
 us?'

n Prob. rdg.; Heb. storing up.
o the good man: prob. rdg.; Heb. om.
p Or who setteth.

11: Here the face of God is hidden in order not to see; see 4.6 n. and 11.7 for another meaning.

Ps. 11: The LORD is just. Some scholars classify this poem as a Song of Trust; it is kindred to the statement of confidence contained in most Laments (see Introduction). 1: The mountains are often considered a place of refuge in calamity; see Gen.19.17; Mk.13.14. 4: In his holy temple . . . throne in heaven: not a contradiction to the psalmist. That God is in Zion (9.11), the site of the Jerusalem Temple, does not exclude his domain in heaven from whence he can look upon mankind. 6: Scorching winds brought death from the desert, considered a punishment from God; see Hos.13.15. Cup is a figure for destiny, generally unpleasant; compare Jer.25.15.

Ps. 12: Help, LORD, for man is unreliable. A Lament (see Introduction). This psalm may have been spoken in drama form in the Temple liturgy. 1-3: Possibly spoken by a chorus. 2: Double heart: two-faced. 4: They said: possibly a cue, to bring on another group of voices.

5 'For the ruin of the poor, for the groans of the needy, now I will arise,' says the LORD, 'I will place him in the safety for which he longs.'

My heart shall rejoice, for thou hast set me free.
I will sing to the LORD, who has granted all my desire.

6 The words of the LORD are pure words:
silver refined in a crucible, gold<sup>q</sup> seven times purified.
7 Do thou, LORD, protect us and guard us from a profligate and evil generation.<sup>r</sup>
8 The wicked flaunt themselves on every side, while profligacy stands high among mankind.

14

The impious fool says in his heart, 'There is no God.'
How vile men are, how depraved and loathsome;
not one does anything good!
The LORD looks down from heaven on all mankind to see if any act wisely, if any seek out God.
But all are disloyal, all are rotten to the core;
not one does anything good, no, not even one.

13

1 How long, O LORD, wilt thou quite forget me?
How long wilt thou hide thy face from me?
2 How long must I suffer anguish in my soul, grief in my heart, day and night? How long shall my enemy lord it over me?
3 Look now and answer me, O LORD my God.
Give light to my eyes lest I sleep the sleep of death,
4 lest my adversary say, 'I have overthrown him', and my enemies rejoice at my downfall.
5 But for my part I trust in thy true love.

Shall they not rue it, all evildoers who devour my people as men devour bread, and never call upon the LORD? There they were in dire alarm; for God was in the brotherhood of the godly.
The resistance of their victim was too much for them, because the LORD was his refuge.
If only Israel's deliverance might come out of Zion!
When the LORD restores his people's fortunes, let Jacob rejoice, let Israel be glad.

<sup>q</sup> gold: prob. rdg.; Heb. to the earth.

<sup>r</sup> a profligate and evil generation: prob. rdg.; Heb. the generation which is for ever.

<sup>s</sup> Verses 1-7: cp. Ps. 53. 1-6.

5: I will arise: this expression, and others like it, is found repeatedly to depict the action of the LORD, as in Num.10.35; see Ps.44.23 n. Says the LORD: could be spoken by a priest. 6-8: Another chorus, indicated by the word us. 6: Pure words: in contrast to man's smooth lip (v. 2).

Ps. 13: How long, O LORD? A very typical Lament (see Introduction) with distress (vv. 1-2), request (vv. 3-4), trust (v. 5), and vow (v. 6). Note the force of the repetition of How long. 1: Hide thy face: compare 10.11 n.

Ps. 14: If only deliverance might come from God. This Lament (see Introduction) is almost identical with Ps.53. The poet says in despair (v. 13) that all men are vile; yet he speaks in v. 5 of the brotherhood of the godly. 1: Impious fool: a single word in Heb. In biblical language the fool is the sinner. Says in his heart: decides in his conscience to act as if there is no God; he is not an atheist. See 10.4 n. 2-6: God's help enables the godly man to resist the wicked. 2: To seek God is to act wisely: a theme of Wisdom literature; see Wis.1.1. 4: Devour my people: to exploit them; see Ezek.34.9-10. Call upon the LORD: worship God. 7: Zion: Mount Zion, the location of the Temple; hence it means deliverance from God. Jacob . . . Israel: the two names of the ancestor of the Jews are each applied to the nation; see Gen.32.27-28.

Ps. 15: Who may dwell on thy holy mountain? This psalm, difficult to classify (see Introduction), is best considered a Wisdom poem on purity as a requirement for participating in the Temple worship. 1: Who . . . who: possibly this was connected with the liturgy of entrance into the Temple, the questions being asked by pilgrims and the answer given by a priest. Lodge . . .

15

		the lines fall for me in pleasant places,	6
1	O LORD, who may lodge in thy tabernacle?	indeed I am well content with my inheritance.
	Who may dwell on thy holy mountain?	I will bless the LORD who has given me counsel:	7
2	The man of blameless life, who does what is right and speaks the truth from his heart;	in the night-time wisdom comes to me in my inward parts.
3	who has no malice on his tongue, who never wrongs a friend and tells no tales against his neighbour;	I have set the LORD continually before me:	8
4	the man who shows his scorn for the worthless and honours all who fear the LORD; who swears to his own hurt and does not retract;	with him <sup>v</sup> at my right hand I cannot be shaken.
5	who does not put his money out to usury and takes no bribe against an innocent man.	Therefore my heart exults and my spirit rejoices, my body too rests unafraid;	9
	He who does these things shall never be brought low.	for thou wilt not abandon me to Sheol nor suffer thy faithful servant to see the pit.	10
		Thou wilt show me the path of life;	11
		in thy presence is the fullness of joy, in thy right hand pleasures for evermore.

16

1	Keep me, O God, for in thee have I found refuge.
2	I have said to the LORD, 'Thou, Lord, art my felicity.'
3	The gods whom earth holds sacred are all worthless, and cursed are all who make them their delight; <sup>t</sup>
4	those who run after them <sup>u</sup> find trouble without end. I will not offer them libations of blood nor take their names upon my lips.
5	Thou, LORD, my allotted portion, thou my cup, thou dost enlarge my boundaries:

17

	Hear, LORD, my plea for justice, give my cry a hearing, listen to my prayer, for it is innocent of all deceit.	1
	Let judgement in my cause issue from thy lips, let thine eyes be fixed on justice.	2
	Thou hast tested my heart and watched me all night long; thou hast assayed me and found in me no mind to evil.	3
	I will not speak of the deeds of men; I have taken good note of all thy sayings.	4

t are all worthless . . . delight: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.
u after them: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.
v with him: prob. rdg.; Heb. om.

dwell: the words are to be taken as hyperbole, not literally. 2-5: The descriptive statements number ten; hence, they are often regarded as related in some way to the Ten Commandments.

Ps. 16: Keep me, O God. This psalm is difficult to classify (see Introduction). 3-4: A curse on idolators. 4: Blood of animals was poured upon the altar as part of sacrificial ritual. To take the name of a god on the lips meant to call on him in worship; see Gen. 13.4. 5: My cup: destiny, here in an infrequent pleasant sense. Enlarge my boundaries: a figure of speech for abundant blessings. 6-11: The blessedness of the faithful. 6: Lines: a surveyor's measure. 7: Inward parts: lit. the loins, considered the center of emotions and feelings. 8: In a trial the defendants of an accused person stood at his right hand; here it is God. Cannot be shaken: the Heb. is the same as 15.5, there rendered "be brought low." 10: Sheol and pit are synonymous; they refer to the place of the dead.

Ps. 17: Listen to my prayer. A Lament (see Introduction). 1-5: In courtroom language the

- 5 I have not strayed from the course of duty;
I have followed thy path and never stumbled.
- 6 I call upon thee, O God, for thou wilt answer me.
Bend down thy ear to me, listen to my words.
- 7 Show me how marvellous thy true love can be,
who with thy hand dost save all who seek sanctuary from their enemies.
- 8 Keep me like the apple of thine eye;
hide me in the shadow of thy wings
- 9 from the wicked who obstruct me, from deadly foes who throng round
me.
- 10 They have stifled all compassion;
their mouths are full of pride;
- 11 they press me hard,<sup>w</sup> now they hem me in,
on the watch to bring me to the ground.
- 12 The enemy is like a lion eager for prey,
like a young lion crouching in
ambush.
- 13 Arise, LORD, meet him face to face and bring him down.
Save my life from the wicked;
- 14 make an end of them<sup>x</sup> with thy sword.
With thy hand, O LORD, make an end of them;<sup>x</sup> thrust them out of this world in the prime of their life, gorged as they are with thy good
things,
blest with many sons
and leaving their children wealth in plenty.
- 15 But my plea is just: I shall see thy
face,
- and be blest with a vision of thee
when I awake.
- 18
- I love thee, O LORD my strength. 1
The LORD is my stronghold, my 2<sup>y</sup> fortress and my champion, my God, my rock where I find safety, my shield, my mountain refuge, my strong tower.
- I will call on the LORD to whom all 3 praise is due,
and I shall be delivered from my enemies.
- When the bonds of death held me 4
fast,
destructive torrents overtook me, the bonds of Sheol tightened round 5
me,
the snares of death were set to catch me;
then in anguish of heart I cried to 6
the LORD,
I called for help to my God;
he heard me from his temple,
and my cry reached his ears.
The earth heaved and quaked, 7 the foundations of the mountains shook;
they heaved, because he was angry.
Smoke rose from his nostrils, 8 devouring fire came out of his mouth,
glowing coals and searing heat.
He swept the skies aside as he 9 descended,
thick darkness lay under his feet.
He rode on a cherub, he flew 10 through the air;
he swooped on the wings of the
wind.

<sup>w</sup> they press me hard: prob. rdg.; Heb. our footsteps.
<sup>x</sup> make an end of them: prob. rdg.; Heb. unintelligible.
<sup>y</sup> Verses 2–50: cp. 2 Sam. 22, 2–51.

psalmist proclaims his innocence in calling on the LORD for justice and help. 8: Apple: lit. the pupil, the most essential part of the eye. Shadow of thy wings: the image is of an eagle hovering over its young, with a reference to God's protection of Israel in the Exodus; compare Deut. 32.10–11. 15: Darkness is viewed as a time of trial, when evil is on the loose and God is absent; the dawn brings a new vision of God and his presence.

Ps. 18: The LORD keeps faith with his king. A Thanksgiving. This psalm is also found in 2 Sam. ch. 22. There, and in the superscription (see Introduction), it is said that David sang this psalm when the LORD delivered him from all his enemies and from Saul. 1–3: The poem begins by praising the LORD. 4–6: Next, as in such psalms, the poet refers to troubles which were his. 4: Bonds of death is a synonymous parallelism for bonds of Sheol, i.e. some mortal danger. 7–19: God appears in response. The description of the appearance of the Deity reflects words and terms of Canaanite mythological language. 9–14: The LORD is viewed as the storm god; see also Ps. 29. 10: He rode on a cherub: compare 68.4 n. and 104.3, where God rides on the

- 11 He made darkness around him his hiding-place
and dense<sup>z</sup> vapour his canopy.<sup>a</sup>
- 12 Thick clouds came out of the radiance before him, hailstones and glowing coals.
- 13 The LORD thundered from the heavens
and the voice of the Most High spoke out.<sup>b</sup>
- 14 He loosed his arrows, he sped them
far and wide,
he shot forth lightning shafts and sent them echoing.
- 15 The channels of the sea-bed were revealed,
the foundations of earth laid bare
at the LORD's rebuke, at the blast of the breath of his<sup>c</sup> nostrils.
- 16 He reached down from the height and took me,
he drew me out of mighty waters, 17 he rescued me from my enemies, strong as they were,
from my foes when they grew too powerful for me.
- 18 They confronted me in the hour of my peril,
but the LORD was my buttress.
- 19 He brought me out into an open
place,
he rescued me because he delighted
in me.
- 20 The LORD rewarded me as my righteousness deserved;
my hands were clean, and he requited
me.
- 21 For I have followed the ways of the LORD
and have not turned wickedly from
my God;
22 all his laws are before my eyes,
I have not failed to follow his decrees.
- 23 In his sight I was blameless and kept myself from wilful sin; 24 the LORD requited me as my righteousness deserved
and the purity of my life in his eyes.
- 25 With the loyal thou showest thyself loyal
- and with the blameless man blameless.
- With the savage man thou showest 26
thyself savage,
and<sup>d</sup> tortuous with the perverse.
Thou deliverest humble folk, 27 and bringest proud looks down to
earth.
- Thou, LORD, dost make my lamp 28 burn bright,
and my God will lighten my darkness.
With thy help I leap over a bank, 29
by God's aid I spring over a wall.
- The way of God is perfect, 30
the LORD's word has stood the test; he is the shield of all who take refuge in him.
- What god is there but the LORD? 31
What rock but our God?—
the God who girds me with strength 32 and makes my way blameless, who makes me swift as a hind 33 and sets me secure on the mountains;
who trains my hands for battle, 34 and my arms aim an arrow tipped with bronze.
- Thou hast given me the shield of thy 35
salvation,
thy hand sustains me, thy providence makes me great.
- Thou givest me room for my steps, 36
my feet have not faltered.
I pursue my enemies and overtake 37
them,
I do not return until I have made an end of them.
- I strike them down and they will 38
never rise again;
they fall beneath my feet.
- Thou dost arm me with strength for 39
the battle
and dost subdue my foes before me.
Thou settest my foot on my enemies' 40 necks,

z Prob. rdg., cp. 2 Sam. 22. 12; Heb. dark.

a Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds thick clouds.

b Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds hailstones and glowing coals.

c Prob. rdg.; Heb. thy.

d With the savage . . . savage, and; or With the pure thou showest thyself pure, but . . .

clouds. 13–19: In mythology thunder and lightning are the symbols of the storm god's power over the forces of chaos which he subdues when he becomes the Creator-King. Israelite poets borrowed such motifs (see Introduction). The LORD defeats the powers of chaos, delivering the man in distress. 20–29: The deliverance was merited because God is just. 30–45: God is and I bring to nothing those that hate me.	One day speaks to another, night with night shares its knowledge, and this without speech or language or sound of any voice.	2

41	They cry out and there is no one to help them, they cry to the LORD and he does not answer.	Their music goes out through all the earth, their words reach to the end of the world.	3
42	I will pound them fine as dust before the wind, like mud in the streets will I trample them. <sup>e</sup>	In them a tent is fixed for the sun, who comes out like a bridegroom from his wedding canopy, rejoicing like a strong man to run his race.	4
43	Thou dost deliver me from the clamour of the people, and makest me master of the nations. A people I never knew shall be my subjects;	His rising is at one end of the heavens, his circuit touches their farthest ends; and nothing is hidden from his heat.	5
44	as soon as they hear tell of me, they shall obey me, and foreigners shall come cringing to me.		6
45	Foreigners shall be brought captive to me, and emerge from their strongholds.	The law of the LORD is perfect and revives the soul. The LORD's instruction never fails, and makes the simple wise.	7
46	The LORD lives, blessed is my rock, high above all is God who saves me.	The precepts of the LORD are right and rejoice the heart.	8
47	O God, who grantest me vengeance, who layest nations prostrate at my feet,	The commandment of the LORD shines clear and gives light to the eyes.
48	who dost rescue me from my foes and set me over my enemies, thou dost deliver me from violent men.	The fear of the LORD is pure and abides for ever.	9
49	Therefore, LORD, I will praise thee among the nations and sing psalms to thy name,	The LORD's decrees are true and righteous every one, more to be desired than gold, pure gold in plenty, sweeter than syrup or honey from the comb.	10
50	to one who gives his king great victories and in all his acts keeps faith with his anointed king, with David and his descendants for ever.	It is these that give thy servant warning, and he who keeps them wins a great reward.	11
		Who is aware of his unwitting sins? Cleanse me of any secret fault. Hold back thy servant also from	12
1	The heavens tell out the glory of God, the vault of heaven reveals his handiwork.		13

<sup>e</sup> Prob. rdg., cp. 2 Sam. 22. 43; Heb. will I empty them out.

invincible in battle. 46-50: This is an additional praise and vow. 50: His anointed king is David.

Ps. 19: The glory of God. A Hymn. All creation reveals God's handiwork. Indeed, nature, law, history, and the personal problems of the individual must be combined in terms of God's kingdom. 4: In Wisdom literature the sun is a symbol of justice and of wisdom itself; see Wis.5.6; 7.29. 7-11: The law is wisdom itself; and these give (v. 11) a more important light (v. 8) than the sun. 12-14: Man, even when inspired and guided, may still sin. Hence, the worshiper asks forgiveness of God.

sins of self-will,
lest they get the better of me.
Then I shall be blameless and innocent of any great transgression.

- 14 May all that I say and think be acceptable to thee,
O LORD, my rock and my redeemer!

20

- 1 May the LORD answer you in the hour of trouble!
The name of Jacob's God be your
tower of strength,
2 give you help from the sanctuary and send you support from Zion!
3 May he remember all your offerings
and look with favour on your rich sacrifices,
4 give you your heart's desire and grant success to all your plans!
5 Let us sing aloud in praise of your victory,
let us do homage to the name of
our God!
The LORD grant all you ask!
- 6 Now I know that the LORD has given victory to his anointed king;
he will answer him from his holy
heaven
with the victorious might of his right hand.
- 7 Some boast of chariots and some of horses,
but our boast is the name of the LORD our God.
- 8 They totter and fall, but we rise up and are full of courage.
- 9 O LORD, save the king, and answer us in the hour of our calling.

21

- The king rejoices in thy might, O LORD:
1 well may he exult in thy victory, for thou hast given him his heart's 2 desire
and hast not refused him what he asked.
Thou dost welcome him with 3 blessings and prosperity and set a crown of fine gold upon his head.
He asked of thee life, and thou didst 4 give it him,
length of days for ever and ever.
Thy salvation has brought him 5 great glory;
thou dost invest him with majesty and honour,
6 for thou bestowest blessings on him for evermore
and dost make him glad with joy in thy presence.
The king puts his trust in the LORD;
7 the loving care of the Most High holds him unshaken.
- Your hand shall reach all your 8 enemies:
your right hand shall reach those who hate you;
9 at your coming you shall plunge them into a fiery furnace;
the LORD in his anger will strike
them down,
and fire shall consume them.
It will exterminate their offspring 10 from the earth
and rid mankind of their posterity.
For they have aimed wicked blows 11 at you,
they have plotted mischief but could not prevail;
but you will catch them round the 12 shoulders
and will aim with your bow-strings at their faces.

Ps. 20: O LORD, save the king. A psalm, possibly Royal, of public supplication used in the Temple liturgy before a battle. 1-5: A prayer for God's support of the king. 2: The sanctuary and Zion are synonymous. 5: Choral response to the petitions. 6: Possibly an oracle pronounced by a priest or cult prophet. 7-9: Choral response.

Ps. 21: The LORD gives life. A Royal Psalm of thanksgiving, as if in gratitude for the victory prayed for in Ps.20. It is very similar in structure and content to Ps.18, though much briefer. 1-7: Motives for thanksgiving. 8-12: Perhaps an oracle by a priest or a cultic prophet.

13 Be exalted, O LORD, in thy might;
we will sing a psalm of praise to thy power.

22

1 My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me
and art so far from saving me, from heeding my groans?
2 O my God, I cry in the day-time but thou dost not answer, in the night I cry but get no respite.
3 And yet thou art enthroned in holiness,
thou art he whose praises Israel sings.
4 In thee our fathers put their trust;
they trusted, and thou didst rescue them.
5 Unto thee they cried and were delivered;
in thee they trusted and were not put to shame.
6 But I am a worm, not a man, abused by all men, scorned by the people.
7 All who see me jeer at me, make mouths at me and wag their heads:
8 'He threw himself on the LORD for rescue;
let the LORD deliver him, for he holds him dear!'
9 But thou art he who drew me from the womb,
who laid me at my mother's breast.
10 Upon thee was I cast at birth; from my mother's womb thou hast been my God.
11 Be not far from me,
for trouble is near, and I have no helper.
12 A herd of bulls surrounds me, great bulls of Bashan beset me.

Ravening and roaring lions 13 open their mouths wide against me.
My strength drains away like 14
water
and all my bones are loose.
My heart has turned to wax and melts within me.
My mouth<sup>f</sup> is dry as a potsherd, 15
and my tongue sticks to my jaw;
I am laid<sup>g</sup> low in the dust of death.
The huntsmen are all about me; 16
a band of ruffians rings me round, and they have hacked off<sup>h</sup> my hands and my feet.
I tell my tale of misery, 17
while they look on and gloat.
They share out my garments among 18
them
and cast lots for my clothes.
But do not remain so far away, O 19
LORD;
O my help, hasten to my aid.
Deliver my very self from the sword, 20
my precious life from the axe.
Save me from the lion's mouth, 21 my poor body<sup>i</sup> from the horns of the wild ox.
I will declare thy fame to my 22 brethren;
I will praise thee in the midst of the assembly.
Praise him, you who fear the 23
LORD;
all you sons of Jacob, do him
honour;
stand in awe of him, all sons of Israel.
For he has not scorned the 24
downtrodden,

<sup>f</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. My strength.

<sup>g</sup> I am laid; prob. rdg.; Heb. thou wilt lay me.

<sup>h</sup> and they have hacked off; prob. rdg.; Heb. like a lion.

<sup>i</sup> my poor body; prob. rdg.; Heb. thou hast answered me.

13: Antiphonal acclamation by the bystanders. For such recurring expressions, see Ps.57.5,11. Ps. 22: My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me? The classic example of a Lament. 1: Introduction: invocation of the divine name; see Mk.15.34. 2-19: Motives for deliverance, apparently from serious illness: (a) God's deliverance of ancestors (vv. 2-5); (b) the poet's present abject and helpless state. 3: God was considered enthroned above the Ark of the Covenant in the Temple; see Isa.6.1-3. 7: Wag their heads: sign of derision. 8: The poet's enemies deride his call for God's help since illness was considered a punishment from God for sin. 12: Bashan: grazing area south of Damascus noted for its large cattle. 14-15: Symptoms of an illness accompanied by a severe fever are evident. 18: Assured of his death, the poet's enemies divide his possessions. 22-27: A hymn of praise anticipating the healing and the fulfillment of a vow (v. 25). 29: See 6.5 n.

- nor shrunk in loathing from his plight,
nor hidden his face from him, but gave heed to him when he cried
out.
- 25 Thou dost inspire my praise in the full assembly;
and I will pay my vows before all who fear thee.
- 26 Let the humble eat and be satisfied.
Let those who seek the LORD praise him
and be in good heart for ever.
- 27 Let all the ends of the earth remember and turn again to the LORD; let all the families of the nations bow down before him.
- 28 For kingly power belongs to the LORD,
and dominion over the nations
is his.
- 29 How can those buried in the earth
do him homage,
how can those who go down to the grave bow before him?
But I shall live for his sake,
my posterity<sup>j</sup> shall serve him.
- 30 This shall be told of the Lord to future generations;
and they shall justify him, declaring to a people yet unborn that this was his doing.
- 23
- 1 The LORD is my shepherd; I shall want nothing.
- 2 He makes me lie down in green pastures,
and leads me beside the waters of
peace;
- he renews life within me, 3
and for his name's sake guides me in the right path.
- Even though I walk through a 4 valley dark as death
I fear no evil, for thou art with me, thy staff and thy crook are my comfort.
- Thou spreadest a table for me in the 5 sight of my enemies;
thou hast richly bathed my head
with oil,
and my cup runs over.
- Goodness and love unfailing, these 6 will follow me
all the days of my life, and I shall dwell in the house of
the LORD
my whole life long.
- 24
- The earth is the LORD's and all 1
that is in it,
the world and those who dwell therein.
- For it was he who founded it upon 2
the seas
and planted it firm upon the waters beneath.
- Who may go up the mountain of 3
the LORD?
And who may stand in his holy
place?
He who has clean hands and a 4 pure heart,
who has not set his mind on falsehood,

j But I . . . posterity: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.

Ps. 23: The LORD is my shepherd and host. A Hymn, or possibly psalm of pilgrimage to the Temple. 1: God is often considered a shepherd; see Ezek. ch. 34. Want: lack. 2: Green pastures are scarce in Palestine. Waters of peace: pools of calm water fed by a spring and not the dangerous, turbulent streams formed by a downpour of rain. 3: Name's sake: the "name" gives the nature of a person or a god. 4: Dark reflects deep ravines of Judean hills. A Palestinian shepherd sometimes has a staff, a cudgel, to ward off wild animals, as well as a crook for guiding sheep. 5: The table was probably where a sacrifice was eaten in the Temple in the sight of . . . enemies. Cup runs over: abundant blessing and joy. The head of an honored guest was anointed with oil in the Near East; see Lk.7.46. 6: The joy and goodness experienced in the Temple will carry over into daily life. The poet will continue to dwell in the Temple in desire and in worship.

Ps. 24: The LORD is Creator-King. A Liturgy used in the Temple worship. 1-2: As the pilgrims go through the countryside they observe that the LORD is the possessor and creator of the earth. Myth in the Ancient Near East viewed God as defeating the sea, or chaos, in order to build the earth on the sea. Waters beneath: underground reservoir of water from which springs arise; compare Gen.7.11. 3: As pilgrims approach the Temple they ask who is worthy to stand in the holy place. 4: Conditions for entry are moral rather than ritual cleanliness.

- and has not committed perjury.
 5 He shall receive a blessing from
     the LORD,
     and justice from God his saviour.
 6 Such is the fortune of those who seek him,
     who seek the face of the God of Jacob.
- 7 Lift up your heads, you gates, lift yourselves up, you everlasting doors,
     that the king of glory may come in.
 8 Who is the king of glory?
     The LORD strong and mighty,
     the LORD mighty in battle.
 9 Lift up your heads, you gates, lift them up, you everlasting
     doors,
     that the king of glory may come in.
 10 Who then is the king of glory?
     The king of glory is the LORD of Hosts.

25

- 1 Unto thee, O LORD my God, I lift up my heart.
 2 In thee I trust: do not put me to
     shame,
     let not my enemies exult over me.
 3 No man who hopes in thee is put
     to shame;
     but shame comes to all who break faith without cause.
 4 Make thy paths known to me,
     O LORD;
     teach me thy ways.
 5 Lead me in thy truth and teach me;
     thou art God my saviour.
     For thee I have waited all the day long,
     for the coming of thy goodness,
     LORD.<sup>k</sup>
- Remember, LORD, thy tender care 6
     and thy love unfailing, shown from ages past.
 Do not remember the sins and 7 offences of my youth, but remember me in thy unfailing
     love.
 The LORD is good and upright; 8 therefore he teaches sinners the way they should go.
 He guides the humble man in doing 9
     right,
     he teaches the humble his ways.
 All the ways of the LORD are loving 10 and sure to men who keep his covenant and his charge.
 For the honour of thy name, 11
     O LORD,
     forgive my wickedness, great as it is.
 If there is any man who fears the 12
     LORD,
     he shall be shown the path that he should choose;
     he shall enjoy lasting prosperity, 13 and his children after him shall inherit the land.
 The LORD confides his purposes 14
     to those who fear him,
     and his covenant is theirs to know.
 My eyes are ever on the LORD, 15 who alone can free my feet from the net.
- Turn to me and show me thy favour, 16 for I am lonely and oppressed.
 Relieve the sorrows of my heart 17 and bring me out of my distress.
 Look at my misery and my trouble 18 and forgive me every sin.
 Look at my enemies, see how many 19 they are
     and how violent their hatred for
     me.

<sup>k</sup> for the coming . . . LORD: transposed from end of verse 7.

5: Seek the face of . . . God: visit the Temple. 7–10: This seems to reflect a processional liturgy with the Ark of the Covenant, in which antiphonal singing takes place. 7: The procession with the Ark stops in front of the closed doors of the Temple; hence the dramatic request, Lift. 8a: This question comes from within. 8b–9: The answer comes from those bearing the Ark. 10: Question and answer repeated.

Ps. 25: Defend me and deliver me. A Lament (see Introduction); an alphabetical acrostic, each verse beginning with a successive letter of the Heb. alphabet (see Ps. 111 n.). 1–3: The poet's distress. 4–14: He prays for God's guidance and help as in the past (4–9) for those faithful to his covenant (10–14). 13–14: To inherit the land was a sign of God's blessing, especially after the return from the Babylonian Exile of 587, and was a reward for keeping the covenant. 15–22: He pleads for deliverance from his sorrows.

- 20 Defend me and deliver me, do not put me to shame when I take refuge in thee.
- 21 Let integrity and uprightness protect me,
for I have waited for thee, O
LORD.
- 22 O God, redeem Israel from all his sorrows.

26

- 1 Give me justice, O LORD, for I have lived my life without reproach,
and put unfaltering trust in the
LORD.
- 2 Test me, O LORD, and try me; put my heart and mind to the proof.
- 3 For thy constant love is before my
eyes,
and I live in thy truth.
- 4 I have not sat among worthless
men,
nor do I mix with hypocrites;
- 5 I hate the company of evildoers and will not sit among the ungodly.
- 6 I wash my hands in innocence to join in procession round thy altar, O LORD,
- 7 singing of thy marvellous acts, recounting them all with thankful
voice.
- 8 O LORD, I love the beauty of thy
house,
the place where thy glory dwells.
- 9 Do not sweep me away with sinners, nor cast me out with men who thirst for blood,
whose fingers are active in
mischief,
and their hands are full of bribes.
- 11 But I live my life without reproach; redeem me, O LORD, and show me thy favour.

- When once my feet are planted on 12 firm ground,
I will bless the LORD in the full assembly.

27

- The LORD is my light and my 1
salvation;
whom should I fear?
The LORD is the refuge of my life;
of whom then should I go in dread?
- When evildoers close in on me to 2 devour me,
it is my enemies, my assailants,
who stumble and fall.
- If an army should encamp against 3
me,
my heart would feel no fear;
if armed men should fall upon me,
even then I should be undismayed.
- One thing I ask of the LORD, 4 one thing I seek:
that I may be constant in the house of the LORD
all the days of my life,
to gaze upon the beauty of the
LORD
and to seek him<sup>1</sup> in his temple.
- For he will keep me safe beneath 5 his roof
in the day of misfortune;
he will hide me under the cover of his tent;
he will raise me beyond reach of
distress.
- Now I can raise my head high 6 above the enemy all about me;
so will I acclaim him with sacrifice before his tent
and sing a psalm of praise to the
LORD.
- Hear, O LORD, when I call aloud; 7 show me favour and answer me.

<sup>1</sup> Or and to pay my morning worship.

Ps. 26: Redeem me, O LORD. A Lament (see Introduction). 1-3: A cry for justice. 4-7: A protestation of innocence. 5: To sit among the ungodly: to be identified with their values. 6-7: To wash the hands was a dramatic protestation of innocence, possibly a condition for joining a Temple procession; compare Deut.21.6. 9: Thy glory: the sense of God's majesty. 12: The usual vow.

Ps. 27: Hear, O LORD, when I call aloud. The classification of this psalm is difficult; perhaps it is a Lament or Hymn (see Introduction). 1-6: Such a statement of trust could be a part of either a Lament or a Thanksgiving. 5: Tent: poetic word for Temple alluding to the Tabernacle used for worship in the desert; see Lam.2.6; also v. 6. 7-14: A plea to God. The tone is more

8 'Come,' my heart has said, 'seek his face.'<sup>m</sup>
 I will seek thy face, O LORD; 9 do not hide it from me, nor in thy anger turn away thy servant,
 whose help thou hast been;
 do not cast me off or forsake me,
 O God my saviour.
 10 Though my father and my mother forsake me,
 the LORD will take me into his
 care.
 11-12 Teach me thy way, O LORD; do not give me up to the greed of
 my enemies;
 lead me by a level path
 to escape my watchful foes;
 liars stand up to give evidence
 against me,
 breathing malice.
 13 Well I know that I shall see the goodness of the LORD
 in the land of the living.
 14 Wait for the LORD; be strong, take courage,
 and wait for the LORD.

28

1 To thee, O LORD, I call;
 O my Rock, be not deaf to my cry, lest, if thou answer me with
 silence,
 I become like those who go down to the abyss.
 2 Hear my cry for mercy
 when I call to thee for help, when I lift my hands to thy holy shrine.
 3 Do not drag me away with the ungodly, with evildoers, who speak civilly to neighbours,
 with malice in their hearts.

Reward them for their works, their 4 evil deeds;
 reward them for what their hands have done;
 give them their deserts.
 Because they pay no heed to the 5 works of the LORD
 or to what his hands have done, may he tear them down and never build them up!
 Blessed be the LORD, 6
 for he has heard my cry for mercy.
 The LORD is my strength, my shield, 7
 in him my heart trusts;
 so I am sustained, and my heart leaps for joy,
 and I praise him with my whole body.<sup>n</sup>
 The LORD is strength to his people, 8
 a safe refuge for his anointed king.
 O save thy people and bless thy own, 9 shepherd them, carry them for ever.

29

Ascribe to the LORD, you gods, 1 ascribe to the LORD glory and might.
 Ascribe to the LORD the glory due 2
 to his name;
 bow down to the LORD in the splendour of holiness.<sup>o</sup>
 The God of glory thunders: 3 the voice of the LORD echoes over the waters,
 the LORD is over the mighty waters.
 The voice of the LORD is power. 4
 The voice of the LORD is majesty.
 The voice of the LORD breaks the 5
 cedars,

m seek his face: prob. rdg.; Heb. seek ye my face.
n with my whole body: prob. rdg.; Heb. from my song.
o the splendour of holiness: or holy vestments.

typical of the Lament than of the Hymn. 8: To seek the LORD's face originally meant to consult him by means of an oracle; see 2 Sam.21.1. Later it meant to seek him by faithful service and hence to seek his favor. See 4.6 n.

Ps. 28: Hear my cry for mercy. A Lament (see Introduction), including Thanksgiving to be sung when the LORD has heard the cry of the psalmist. 1-3: The appeal to God. 4-5: Let God punish the wicked. 6-9: The Thanksgiving.

Ps. 29: The God of glory thunders. This hymn describes an awesome storm as it rises over the Mediterranean, crosses the Lebanon mountains in Phoenicia, the Anti-Lebanon in Syria, and spends itself in the desert. This poem is often viewed by modern students as an ancient Canaanite poem written originally to the storm god, Baal, and adapted by Israel with the necessary change in the divine name and other alterations. 3: Mighty waters: Mediterranean Sea. 4: Voice of

- the LORD splinters the cedars of Lebanon.
- 6 He makes Lebanon skip like a calf, Sirion like a young wild ox.
- 7 The voice of the LORD makes flames of fire burst forth,
- 8 the voice of the LORD makes the wilderness writhe in travail;
the LORD makes the wilderness of Kadesh writhe.
- 9 The voice of the LORD makes the
hinds calve
and brings kids early to birth;
and in his temple all cry, 'Glory!'
- 10 The LORD is king above<sup>p</sup> the flood, the LORD has taken his royal seat as king for ever.
- 11 The LORD will give strength to his
people;
the LORD will bless his people with
peace.
- my mountain refuge;
thou didst hide thy face, and I was struck with dismay.
I called unto thee, O LORD,
and I pleaded with thee, Lord,
for mercy:
'What profit in my death if I go down into the pit?
Can the dust confess thee or proclaim thy truth?
Hear, O LORD, and be gracious
to me;
LORD, be my helper.'
Thou hast turned my laments into dancing;
thou hast stripped off my sackcloth
and clothed me with joy, that my spirit may sing psalms to thee and never cease.
I will confess thee for ever, O LORD
my God.

30

- 1 I will exalt thee, O LORD;
thou hast lifted me up and hast not let my enemies make merry over me.
- 2 O LORD my God, I cried to thee and thou didst heal me.
- 3 O LORD, thou hast brought me up from Sheol
and saved my life as I was sinking into the abyss.<sup>q</sup>
- 4 Sing a psalm to the LORD, all you his loyal servants,
and give thanks to his holy name.
- 5 In his anger is disquiet, in his favour there is life.
Tears may linger at nightfall,
but joy comes in the morning.
- 6 Carefree as I was, I had said,
'I can never be shaken.'
- 7 But, LORD, it was thy will to shake

31

- With thee, O LORD, I have sought shelter,
let me never be put to shame.
Deliver me in thy righteousness;
bow down and hear me,
come quickly to my rescue;
be thou my rock of refuge,
a stronghold to keep me safe.
Thou art to me both rock and stronghold;
lead me and guide me for the
honour of thy name.
Set me free from the net men have hidden for me;
thou art my refuge,
into thy keeping I commit my spirit.
Thou hast redeemed me, O LORD thou God of truth.

<sup>p</sup> Or since.

<sup>q</sup> and saved . . . abyss: or and rescued me alive from among those who go down to the abyss.

the LORD: thunder. 6: Sirion: Mount Hermon in Syria. Skip like a calf: reverberation of the thunder. 8: Kadesh: the desert east of the Syrian city of Kadesh. 9: The hinds calve prematurely from fright. 10: Above the flood: the reservoir of waters above the vault of heaven from which, according to Semitic thought, the rains came; see Gen.1.6-7; 7.12.

Ps. 30: Thou hast turned my laments into dancing. A Thanksgiving, or a "declarative" Hymn of praise. Perhaps it reflects recovery from serious illness. 3: The entrance to Sheol was viewed as an opening to a well into which the poet was already falling when pulled out by God. 11: The transition from sickness to health is expressed in a change from sackcloth, the clothing of penance and grief, to festive garments of joy.

Ps. 31: Be gracious to me, O LORD. A Lament, or, indeed, two separate Laments, the one vv. 1-8, and the other vv. 9-24. Each Lament (see Introduction) contains Thanksgivings to ensue after God has delivered the distressed man (vv. 5-8 and 21-24). 2: Solid rock is the only secure foothold on the shallow and pebbly or sandy soil of Palestine; compare Mt.7.24.

6 Thou hatest all who worship useless idols, but I put my trust in the LORD. 7 I will rejoice and be glad in thy unfailing love; for thou hast seen my affliction and hast cared for me in my distress. 8 Thou hast not abandoned me to the power of the enemy but hast set me free to range at will. 9 Be gracious to me, O LORD, for I am in distress, and my eyes are dimmed with grief.<sup>r</sup> 10 My life is worn away with sorrow and my years with sighing; strong as I am, I stumble under my load of misery; there is disease in all my bones. 11 I have such enemies that all men scorn me;<sup>s</sup> my neighbours find me a burden, my friends shudder at me; when they see me in the street they turn quickly away. 12 I am forgotten, like a dead man out of mind; I have come to be like something lost. 13 For I hear many men whispering threats from every side, in league against me as they are and plotting to take my life. 14 But, LORD, I put my trust in thee; I say, 'Thou art my God.' 15 My fortunes are in thy hand; rescue me from my enemies and those who persecute me. 16 Make thy face shine upon thy servant; save me in thy unfailing love. 17 O LORD, do not put me to shame when I call upon thee; let the wicked be ashamed, let them sink into Sheol. 18 Strike dumb the lying lips which speak with contempt against	the righteous in pride and arrogance. How great is thy goodness, 19 stored up for those who fear thee, made manifest before the eyes of men for all who turn to thee for shelter. Thou wilt hide them under the 20 cover of thy presence from men in league together; thou keepest them beneath thy roof, safe from contentious men. Blessed be the LORD, 21 who worked a miracle of unfailing love for me when I was in sore straits.<sup>t</sup> In sudden alarm I said, 22 'I am shut out from thy sight.' But thou didst hear my cry for mercy when I called to thee for help. Love the LORD, all you his loyal 23 servants. The LORD protects the faithful but pays the arrogant in full. Be strong and take courage, 24 all you whose hope is in the LORD. 32
14 But, LORD, I put my trust in thee; I say, 'Thou art my God.' 15 My fortunes are in thy hand; rescue me from my enemies and those who persecute me. 16 Make thy face shine upon thy servant; save me in thy unfailing love. 17 O LORD, do not put me to shame when I call upon thee; let the wicked be ashamed, let them sink into Sheol. 18 Strike dumb the lying lips which speak with contempt against	Happy the man whose 1 disobedience is forgiven, whose sin is put away! Happy is a man when the LORD lays 2 no guilt to his account, and in his spirit there is no deceit. While I refused to speak, my body 3 wasted away with moaning all day long.
<sup>r</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds my soul and my body. <sup>s</sup> I have . . . scorn me: or I am scorned by all my enemies. <sup>t</sup> when . . . straits: prob. rdg.; Heb. like a city besieged.

7: Unfailing love: a single word, hesed, in Heb. Hesed is a key word in the OT. At times translated as "steadfast love" or "loving kindness," it has the connotation of a love arising out of a covenant or a bond, and manifested in concrete action; see also vv. 16 and 21. 9-13: Compare with this passage Job 30.1-15. The distress is the loneliness of a man fallen from heights to a low estate, and fearful of plots against his life. The latter possibly is to be taken figuratively, but compare Jer.20.10. 16: Make thy face shine: see 4.6 n. 20: Compare 27.5.

Ps. 32: Happy is a man who is forgiven. A Thanksgiving Psalm, probably used as a Wisdom Psalm (see Introduction). An ancient idea that sickness was a consequence of sin is clearly implied (vv. 3-5). The poem proceeds (vv. 6-11) to commend to others the poet's experience of forgiveness and recovery from illness. 3: Refused to speak: a refusal to acknowledge or confess

4	For day and night thy hand was heavy upon me, the sap in me dried up as in summer drought.	Give thanks to the LORD on the harp; sing him psalms to the ten-stringed lute.	2
5	Then I declared my sin, I did not conceal my guilt. I said, 'With sorrow I will confess my disobedience to the LORD'; then thou didst remit the penalty of my sin.	Sing to him a new song; strike up with all your art and shout in triumph. The word of the LORD holds true, and all his work endures.	3
6	So every faithful heart shall pray to thee in the hour of anxiety, <sup>u</sup> when great floods threaten. Thou art a refuge for me from distress so that it cannot touch me; <sup>v</sup>	The LORD loves righteousness and justice, his love unailing fills the earth. The LORD's word made the heavens, all the host of heaven was made at his command.	5
7	thou dost guard me <sup>w</sup> and enfold me in salvation beyond all reach of harm, <sup>x</sup>	He gathered the sea like water in a goatskin; he laid up the deep in his store- chambers.	7
8	I will teach you, and guide you in the way you should go. I will keep you under my eye.	Let the whole world fear the LORD and all men on earth stand in awe of him. For he spoke, and it was; he commanded, and it stood firm.	8
9	Do not behave like horse or mule, unreasoning creatures, whose course must be checked with bit and bridle.	The LORD brings the plans of nations to nothing; he frustrates the counsel of the peoples.	10
10	Many are the torments of the ungodly; but unailing love enfolds him who trusts in the LORD.	But the LORD's own plans shall stand for ever, and his counsel endure for all generations.	11
11	Rejoice in the LORD and be glad, you righteous men, and sing aloud, all men of upright heart.	Happy is the nation whose God is the LORD, the people he has chosen for his own possession. The LORD looks out from heaven, he sees the whole race of men; he surveys from his dwelling-place all the inhabitants of earth.	12
33
1	Shout for joy before the LORD, you who are righteous; praise comes well from the upright.		14

<sup>u</sup> of anxiety: prob. rdg.: Heb. unintelligible.

<sup>v</sup> Prob. rdg.: Heb. him.

<sup>w</sup> Prob. rdg.: Heb. adds an unintelligible word.

<sup>x</sup> beyond . . . harm: transposed from end of verse 9.

sin, a condition for healing in traditional Israelite theology; see Prov.28.13. 4: The hand of God is heavy, especially with calamity, when he touches someone's life. 8-11: Possibly an oracle spoken by a priest in the Temple. 10: Love: see 31.7 n.

Ps. 33: Shout for joy. A Hymn (see Introduction), in praise and description of God. The praise (vv. 1-3) turns into praise of God as creator and ruler (4-11). 3: Shout in triumph: one word in Heb., the battle cry of an attacking army (Josh.6.5); later it meant a liturgical acclamation of God as king of Israel and of the nations (as here; compare Num.23.21), and as savior (compare Isa.44.23). 4-5: The four terms, holds true (i.e. is faithful), righteousness, justice, and love unailing, are used most consistently in the OT to describe God and his activities; compare Hos.2.19. 6: His command: lit. "the wind of his mouth"; compare the "mighty wind" of Gen.1.2. 7: Water was often carried in a whole goatskin of which the orifices were tied, the skins being lighter and more convenient than earthenware. Out of chaos (the combat in which God defeats the sea), there comes order. 8: Fear: that is, religion, for which creation is the basis. 10-19: God's universal rule. 10: Counsel of the peoples: human wisdom and diplomacy. 12: Israel in the context of many nations. In virtue of the mighty deeds at the Exodus by which

15	It is he who fashions the hearts of all men alike, who discerns all that they do.	he heard him and saved him from all his troubles.
16	A king is not saved by a great army, nor a warrior delivered by great strength.	The angel of the LORD is on guard	7
17	A man cannot trust his horse to save him, nor can it deliver him for all its strength.	round those who fear him, and rescues them.
18	The LORD's eyes are turned towards those who fear him, towards those who hope for his unfailing love	Taste, then, and see that the LORD is good.	8
19	to deliver them from death, to keep them alive in famine.	Happy the man who finds refuge in him!
20	We have waited eagerly for the LORD; he is our help and our shield.	Fear the LORD, all you his holy people;	9
21	For in him our hearts are glad, because we have trusted in his holy name.	for those who fear him lack nothing. Unbelievers suffer want and go hungry,	10
22	Let thy unfailing love, O LORD, rest upon us, as we have put our hope in thee.	but those who seek the LORD lack no good thing. Come, my children, listen to me: I will teach you the fear of the LORD.	11
		Which of you delights in life and desires a long life to enjoy all good things?	12
		Then keep your tongue from evil and your lips from uttering lies;	13
		turn from evil and do good, seek peace and pursue it.	14

34

1	I will bless the LORD continually; his praise shall be always on my lips.	The eyes of the LORD are upon the righteous, and his ears are open to their cries.
2	In the LORD I will glory; the humble shall hear and be glad.	The LORD sets his face against evildoers	16
3	O glorify the LORD with me, and let us exalt his name together.	to blot out their memory from the earth.
4	I sought the LORD's help and he answered me;	When men cry for help, the LORD hears them	17
5	he set me free from all my terrors.	and sets them free from all their troubles.
6	Look towards him and shine with joy; no longer hang your heads in shame.	The LORD is close to those whose courage is broken and he saves those whose spirit is crushed.	18
7	Here was a poor wretch who cried to the LORD;	The good man's misfortunes may be many,	19

God redeemed her from Egypt, Israel is his possession. 20-22: God alone is the hope of Israel. Ps. 34: The LORD ransoms the lives of his servants. A Thanksgiving, and an alphabetic acrostic (see Ps.25 n.). Both this psalm and Ps.25, also an acrostic, provide, after the alphabet is complete, an extra verse which begins with the Heb. word for "ransom" or "redeem." Such acrostic psalms were useful in instruction, and were connected to the experiences of Israel's kings. Thus, the superscription (see Introduction) connects it with the time when David feigned madness (1 Sam.21.11-16). 1-3: The praise of God. 4-8: God's deliverance. 7: An angel to guard it was promised to Israel at the Exodus; see Exod.23.20,23. The theme was developed extensively during the persecution of the Maccabean period; compare Tob.5.6-27; 2 Macc.11.6-8. 8: To taste is to surrender to God's care and to distinguish true good from the apparent; compare Job 34.3-6; Ps.37.4-6. 9-22: The way of God with the righteous. 10: Unbelievers: older versions abstain from a minor correction of the Heb., adopted here, and hence read instead, "young lions." Lack no good thing: compare 23.1.

- the LORD delivers him out of them all.
- 20 He guards every bone of his body,
and not one of them is broken.
- 21 Their own misdeeds are death to the
wicked,
and those who hate the righteous
are brought to ruin.
- 22 The LORD ransoms the lives of his
servants,
and none who seek refuge in him
are brought to ruin.
- 35
- 1 Strive, O LORD, with those who strive against me;
fight against those who fight me.
- 2 Grasp shield and buckler, and rise up to help me.
- 3 Uncover the spear and bar the way against my pursuers.
Let me hear thee declare,
'I am your salvation.'
- 4 Shame and disgrace be on those who seek my life;
and may those who plan to hurt me retreat in dismay!
- 5 May they be like chaff before the
wind,
driven by the angel of the LORD!
- 6 Let their way be dark and slippery as the angel of the LORD pursues
them!
- 7 For unprovoked they have hidden a net<sup>y</sup> for me, unprovoked they have dug a pit to trap me.
- 8 May destruction unforeseen come
on him;
may the net which he hid catch him;
may he crash headlong into it!
- 9 Then I shall rejoice in the LORD and delight in his salvation.
- 10 My very bones cry out,
'LORD, who is like thee?— thou saviour of the poor from those
- too strong for them,
the poor and wretched from those who prey on them.'
- Malicious witnesses step forward; 11 they question me on matters of which I know nothing.
- They return me evil for good, 12 lying in wait<sup>z</sup> to take my life.
- And yet when they were sick, I put 13
on sackcloth,
I mortified myself with fasting.
When my prayer came back unanswered,
I walked with head bowed in grief 14
as if for a brother;
as one in sorrow for his mother I lay prostrate in mourning.
- But when I stumbled, they crowded 15 round rejoicing,
they crowded about me;
nameless ruffians<sup>a</sup> jeered at me and nothing would stop them.
- When I slipped, brutes who would 16 mock even a hunchback ground their teeth at me.
- O Lord, how long wilt thou look on 17 at those who hate me for no reason<sup>b</sup>?
- Rescue me out of their cruel grasp, save my precious life from the unbelievers.
- Then I will praise thee before a 18 great assembly,
I will extol thee where many people meet.
- Let no treacherous enemy gloat 19
over me
nor leer at me in triumph.<sup>c</sup>
- No friendly greeting do they give 20 to peaceable folk.
- They invent lie upon lie, they open their mouths at me: 21
'Hurrah!' they shout in their joy, feasting their eyes on me.
- Thou hast seen all this, O LORD, 22
do not keep silence;

<sup>y</sup> Prob. rdg., transposing a pit from this line to follow have dug.

<sup>z</sup> lying in wait: prob. rdg.; Heb. bereavement.

<sup>a</sup> nameless ruffians: or ruffians who give me no rest.

<sup>b</sup> Line transposed from verse 19. <sup>c</sup> See note on verse 17.

Ps. 35: O LORD, be not far from me. A Lament (see Introduction). Some would see three Laments in this psalm (vv. 1–10, 11–18, 19–28), yet the structure of the Lament was never so firm as to bar the variations found here. Rather, the whole psalm seems to be a single Lament, but with a three-fold vow. The first part (vv. 1–8) contains a cry for deliverance and vengeance, plus the first vow (9–10); the second (vv. 11–17), a cry of innocence and a plea for help, plus the second vow (v. 18); and the third (vv. 19–27), a complaint and a cry for justice, plus the third vow (v. 28). 5: Angel of the LORD: see Ps. 34.7 n. 13: Sackcloth: sign of grief; fasting: expression of supplication; compare Joel 1.13–14. 16: Ground their teeth: sign of hatred and malicious

- O Lord, be not far from me.
 23 Awake, bestir thyself, to do me
     justice,
     to plead my cause, my Lord and
     my God.
 24 Judge me, O LORD my God, as thou art true;
     do not let them gloat over me.
 25 Do not let them say to themselves, ‘Hurrah!
     We have swallowed him up at one gulp.’
 26 Let them all be disgraced and dismayed
     who rejoice at my fall;
     let them be covered with shame and dishonour
     who glory over me.
 27 But let all who would see me righted shout for joy,
     let them cry continually,
     ‘All glory to the LORD
     who would see his servant thrive!’ 28 So shall I talk of thy justice and of thy praise all the day long.

36

- 1 Deep in his heart, sin whispers to the wicked man who cherishes no fear of God.
 2 For he flatters himself in his own opinion
     and, when he is found out, he does not mend his ways.<sup>d</sup> 3 All that he says is mischievous and false;
     he has turned his back on wisdom;
 4 in his bed he plots how best to do
     mischief.
     So set is he on his wrong courses that he rejects nothing evil.
 5 But thy unfailing love, O LORD, reaches to heaven,

- thy faithfulness to the skies.
 Thy righteousness is like the lofty 6
     mountains,
 thy judgements are like the great abyss;
 O LORD, who savest man and beast, how precious is thy unfailing 7
     love!
 Gods and men seek refuge in the shadow of thy wings.
 They are filled with the rich 8 plenty of thy house,
     and thou givest them water from the flowing stream of thy delights;
     for with thee is the fountain of 9
     life,
     and in thy light we are bathed with light.
 Maintain thy love unfailing over 10
     those who know thee,
     and thy justice toward men of honest heart.
 Let not the foot of pride come 11 near me,
     no wicked hand disturb me.
 There they lie, the evildoers, 12 they are hurled down and cannot rise.

37

- Do not strive to outdo the 1
     evildoers
     or emulate those who do wrong.
 For like grass they soon wither, 2 and fade like the green of spring.
 Trust in the LORD and do good; 3 settle in the land and find safe pasture.
 Depend upon the LORD, 4
     and he will grant you your heart’s desire.

d he does . . . ways: prob. rdg.; Heb. unintelligible.

aggressiveness; compare Lam.2.16; Acts 7.54. 23-24: Justice . . . Judge . . . true: qualities of God by which he saves the oppressed.

Ps. 36: Maintain thy love unfailing. Perhaps a Lament, though a common element, the vow, is missing (see Introduction); it might be classified as a Wisdom Psalm, depicting the two ways, the lonely way of evil and the union with God, the way of the good. 1: Fear of God is the beginning of Wisdom, according to the sages, and the sinner is a fool; see Prov.13.6. 5-6: God’s faithfulness, righteousness, judgements are qualities by which he saves both man and beast. 8-9: A fountain of water in arid Palestine is a symbol of God’s life-giving qualities; compare Jer.2.13; Ezek.47.1-12.

Ps. 37: The righteous shall possess the land. A Wisdom Psalm, in acrostic form (see Ps.111 n.). V. 40 has the idea, but not the identical words, found in 25.22 and 34.22, that the LORD will save. Just as some Laments can be related to the challenging speeches of Job, so a psalm such as this

- 5 Commit your life to the LORD;
trust in him and he will act.
- 6 He will make your righteousness shine clear as the day and the justice of your cause like the sun at noon.
- 7 Wait quietly for the LORD, be patient till he comes;
do not strive to outdo the successful
nor envy him who gains his ends.
- 8 Be angry no more, have done with wrath;
strive not to outdo in evildoing.
- 9 For evildoers will be destroyed, but they who hope in the LORD shall possess the land.
- 10 A little while, and the wicked will be no more;
look well, and you will find their place is empty.
- 11 But the humble shall possess the
land
and enjoy untold prosperity.
- 12 The wicked mutter against the righteous man
and grind their teeth at the sight of
him;
- 13 the Lord shall laugh at them,
for he sees that their time is coming.
- 14 The wicked have drawn their swords and strung their bows to bring low the poor and needy and to slaughter honest men.
- 15 Their swords shall pierce their own hearts
and their bows be broken.
- 16 Better is the little which the righteous has than the great wealth of the wicked.
- 17 For the strong arm of the wicked shall be broken,
but the LORD upholds the righteous.
- 18 The LORD knows each day of the good man's life,
and his inheritance shall last for
ever.
- 19 When times are bad, he shall not be distressed,
and in days of famine he shall have enough.
- But the wicked shall perish, and their children shall beg their bread.<sup>e</sup>
The enemies of the LORD, like fuel in a furnace,<sup>f</sup> are consumed in smoke.
The wicked man borrows and does not pay back,
but the righteous is a generous giver.
All whom the LORD has blessed shall possess the land,
and all who are cursed by him shall be destroyed.
It is the LORD who directs a man's steps,
he holds him firm and watches over his path.
Though he may fall, he will not go headlong,
for the LORD grasps him by the hand.
I have been young and am now grown old,
and never have I seen a righteous man forsaken.<sup>g</sup> Day in, day out, he lends generously,
and his children become a blessing.
Turn from evil and do good,
and live at peace for ever;
for the LORD is a lover of justice and will not forsake his loyal servants.
The lawless are banished for ever and the children of the wicked
destroyed.
The righteous shall possess the land and shall live there at peace for ever.
The righteous man utters words of wisdom
and justice is always on his lips.
The law of his God is in his
heart,
his steps do not falter.
The wicked watch for the righteous
man
and seek to take his life;

<sup>e</sup> Line transposed from verse 25.

<sup>f</sup> like . . . furnace: prob. rdg.; Heb. like the worth of rams.

<sup>g</sup> See note on verse 20.

can be related to the "orthodox" view of Job's "friends," that the righteous will be rewarded but the wicked perish (compare vv. 20 and 25). Because the psalm is an acrostic, it presents a variety of views, rather than a single, well-developed view. 11: Compare Mt.5.5. 12: Grind teeth: see 35.16 n. 18: Knows each day: is in control of it. 22: For the significance of a curse see

- 33 but the LORD will not leave him in their power
nor let him be condemned before his judges.
- 34 Wait for the LORD and hold to his
way;
he will keep you<sup>b</sup> safe from wicked men<sup>i</sup> and will raise you to be master of
the land.
When the wicked are destroyed, you shall be there to see.
- 35 I have watched a wicked man at his work,
rank as a spreading tree in its native soil.
- 36 I passed by one day, and he was gone;
I searched for him, but he could not be found.
- 37 Now look at the good man, watch him who is honest,
for the man of peace leaves
descendants;
- 38 but transgressors are wiped out one
and all,
and the descendants of the wicked are destroyed.
- 39 Deliverance for the righteous comes from the LORD,
their refuge in time of trouble.
- 40 The LORD will help them and deliver them;<sup>j</sup> he will save them because they seek shelter with him.
- there is no health in my whole frame because of my sin.
For my iniquities have poured over 4
my head;
they are a load heavier than I can bear.
My wounds fester and stink because 5
of my folly.
I am bowed down and utterly 6 prostrate.
All day long I go about as if in
mourning,
for my loins burn with fever, 7 and there is no wholesome flesh
in me.
All battered and benumbed, 8
I groan aloud in my heart's longing.
O Lord, all my lament lies open 9
before thee
and my sighing is no secret to thee.
My heart beats fast, my strength has 10
ebbed away,
and the light has gone out of my
eyes.
My friends and my companions 11
shun me in my sickness, and my kinsfolk keep far away.
Those who wish me dead defame 12
me,
those who mean to injure me spread cruel gossip
and mutter slanders all day long.
But I am deaf, I do not listen; 13
I am like a dumb man who cannot open his mouth.
I behave like a man who cannot 14
hear
and whose tongue offers no defence.
On thee, O LORD, I fix my hope; 15 thou wilt answer, O Lord my God.
I said, 'Let them never rejoice over 16
me
who exult when my foot slips.'

38

- 1 O LORD, do not rebuke me in thy
anger,
nor punish me in thy wrath.
- 2 For thou hast aimed thy arrows<sup>k</sup>
at me,
and thy hand weighs heavy
upon me.
- 3 Thy indignation has left no part of my body unscarred;
- <sup>h</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. them.
<sup>i</sup> he will . . . wicked men: transposed from verse 40.
<sup>j</sup> See note on verse 34.
<sup>k</sup> thou . . . arrows: prob. rdg.; Heb. thy arrows have come down.

Num.22.6. 36-38: In a number of biblical books, the view occurs that the scandal of seeing a wicked man prospering would be removed by the sudden death of the wicked or the extermination of his descendants.

Ps. 38: Lord, do not thou forsake me. A Lament (see Introduction). The psalmist asserts that his sickness (v. 3) is the result of sin and folly. 2: God's hand is heavy upon a person when he visits him with affliction and trial; compare 32.4 and see n. 3: The poet attributes loss of health to his sin and to God's consequent indignation. 10: Heart beats fast, etc.: symptoms of the illness. 12: Spread . . . slanders: possibly conjectures as to the sin that is causing the illness.

- 17 I am indeed prone to stumble, and suffering is never far away.
- 18 I make no secret of my iniquity and am anxious at the thought of my sin.
- 19 But many are my enemies, all without cause,<sup>1</sup> and many those who hate me wrongfully.
- 20 Those who repay good with evil oppose me because my purpose is good.
- 21 But, LORD, do not thou forsake
me;
keep not far from me, my God.
- 22 Hasten to my help, O Lord my salvation.

39

- 1 I said: I will keep close watch over myself
that all I say may be free from sin.
I will keep a muzzle on my mouth, so long as wicked men confront
me.
- 2 In dumb silence I held my peace.
So my agony was quickened,
- 3 and my heart burned within me.
My mind wandered as the fever grew,
and I began to speak:
- 4 LORD, let me know my end and the number of my days;
tell me how short my life must be.
- 5 I know thou hast made my days a mere span long,
and my whole life is nothing in thy sight.
Man, though he stands upright, is but a puff of wind, 6 he moves like a phantom;
the riches<sup>m</sup> he piles up are no more than vapour,

40

- I waited, waited for the LORD, 1 he bent down to me and heard my cry.
He brought me up out of the muddy 2 pit,
out of the mire and the clay;
he set my feet on a rock and gave me a firm footing;
and on my lips he put a new song,
3 a song of praise to our God.
Many when they see will be filled with awe

<sup>1</sup> all . . . cause: prob. rdg.; Heb. living.
<sup>m</sup> the riches: prob. rdg.; Heb. they murmur.

18: In traditional theology restoration to health required the confession of sin. Compare 32.3-5.

Ps. 39: Plague me no more. A Lament (see Introduction), but a rather strange one, for it begins by asserting that the poet had earlier stifled his complaint (vv. 1-3). Indeed, this silence increased his agony. Aware that life is short (span is a measurement, about three inches, v. 5) and riches unyielding (v. 6), he prays for healing from his sickness, even if he may receive only a brief respite (vv. 7-13). 12-13: It was the duty of a host, here God, to defend his guest against any avenger and even to hold back his own vengeance, if it were deserved, until the guest went away.

Ps. 40: My desire is to do thy will, O LORD. A Thanksgiving, though ending with a Lament (vv. 12-17); see Introduction. Vv. 13-17 are almost identical with Ps.70. Like other psalms at the end of Book 1 (see Introduction), this psalm echoes Wisdom poems, as in v. 4, happy is the man. 2: The psalmist viewed himself as already sinking into the pit, i.e. Sheol, when God drew and will learn to trust in the

LORD:
4 happy is the man
who makes the LORD his trust, and does not look to brutal and treacherous men.
5 Great things thou hast done,
O LORD my God;
thy wonderful purposes are all for our good;
none can compare with thee;
I would proclaim them and speak of them,
but they are more than I can tell.
6 If thou hadst desired sacrifice and offering
thou wouldst have given me ears to hear.
If thou hadst asked for whole-offering and sin-offering 7 I would have said, 'Here I am.'<sup>n</sup> 8 My desire is to do thy will, O God, and thy law is in my heart.
9 In the great assembly I have proclaimed what is right, I do not hold back my words,
as thou knowest, O LORD.
10 I have not kept thy goodness hidden in my heart;
I have proclaimed thy faithfulness and saving power,
and not concealed thy unfailing love and truth
from the great assembly.
11 Thou, O LORD, dost not withhold thy tender care from me;
thy unfailing love and truth for ever guard me.
12 For misfortunes beyond counting press on me from all sides;
my iniquities have overtaken me,
and my sight fails;
they are more than the hairs of my
head,
and my courage forsakes me.
13<sup>o</sup> Show me favour, O LORD, and save me;
hasten to help me, O LORD.
14 Let those who seek to take my life

be put to shame and dismayed one
and all;
let all who love to hurt me shrink
back disgraced;
let those who cry 'Hurrah!' at my downfall
be horrified at their reward of
shame.
But let all those who seek thee
be jubilant and rejoice in thee; 16 and let those who long for thy saving help ever cry,
'All glory to the LORD!'
But I am poor and needy;
17 O Lord, think of me.<sup>p</sup>
Thou art my help and my salvation;
O my God, make no delay.

41

Happy the man who has a concern 1 for the helpless!
The LORD will save him in time of
trouble.
The LORD protects him and gives 2 him life,
making him secure in the land;
the LORD never leaves him<sup>q</sup> to the greed of his enemies.
He nurses him on his sick-bed;
3 he turns his bed when he is ill.
But I said, 'LORD, be gracious to me; 4 heal me, for I have sinned against
thee.'
'His case is desperate,' my enemies 5 say;
'when will he die, and his line become extinct?'
All who visit me speak from an 6 empty heart,
alert to gather bad news;
then they go out to spread it abroad.

<sup>n</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds in a scroll of a book it is prescribed for me.

<sup>o</sup> Verses 13-17: cp. Ps. 70, 1-5.

<sup>p</sup> O Lord . . . me: prob. rdg.; Heb. may the Lord think of me.

<sup>q</sup> never leaves him: prob. rdg.; Heb. do thou not give him up . . .

him out and set him on a rock. 6-8: The righteous man esteems God's will above ritual sacrifice. This passage is quoted in Heb. 10.5-7. On Tfn. n, see 56.8 and Exod. 32.33.

Ps. 41: Thou keepest me for ever in thy sight. A mixture of Thanksgiving and Lament; see Introduction. Possibly the psalm has been reworked as a conclusion to Book 1 (see Introduction). It begins in the same way as Ps. 1: Happy is the man. 4-9: The Lament, possibly of some king,

- 7 All who hate me whisper together about me
and love to make the worst of everything:
- 8 'An evil spell is cast upon him;
he is laid on his bed, and will rise no more.'
- 9 Even the friend whom I trusted, who ate at my table,<sup>r</sup> exults over my misfortune.
- 10 O LORD, be gracious and restore me, that I may pay them out to the full.<sup>s</sup>
- 11 Then I shall know that thou delightest in me
and that my enemy will not triumph
over me.
- 12 But I am upheld by thee because of my innocence;
thou keepest me for ever in thy
sight.
- 13 Blessed be the LORD, the God of Israel,
from everlasting to everlasting.

Amen, Amen.

BOOK 2

42-43

- 1 As a hind longs for the running streams,
so do I long for thee, O God.
- 2 With my whole being I thirst for God, the living God.
When shall I come to God and appear in his presence?
- 3 Day and night, tears are my food;

- 'Where is your God?' they ask me all day long.
- As I pour out my soul in distress, 4
I call to mind
how I marched in the ranks of the great to the house of God, among exultant shouts of praise, the clamour of the pilgrims.
- How deep I am sunk in misery, 5
groaning in my distress:
yet I will wait for God;
I will praise him continually,
my deliverer, my God.
- I am sunk in misery, therefore will I 6 remember thee,
though from the Hermons and the springs of Jordan,
and from the hill of Mizar, deep calls to deep in the roar of thy 7 cataracts,
and all thy waves, all thy breakers,
pass over me.
- The LORD makes his unfailing love 8 shine forth<sup>t</sup> alike by day and night;
his praise on my lips is a prayer to the God of my life.
- I will say to God my rock, 'Why 9 hast thou forgotten me?'
- Why must I go like a mourner because my foes oppress me?
- My enemies taunt me, jeering<sup>u</sup> at 10
my misfortunes;
- 'Where is your God?' they ask me all day long.
- How deep I am sunk in misery, 11
groaning in my distress:
yet I will wait for God;

<sup>r</sup> who . . . table: or slanders me.

<sup>s</sup> to the full: transposed from end of verse 9.

<sup>t</sup> makes . . . forth: or entrusts me to his unfailing love.

<sup>u</sup> jeering: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.

often interpreted as David; the friend (v. 9) has been traditionally seen as Ahithophel (2 Sam.15.30-31). 5: The extinction of his line was the greatest tragedy and punishment from God that could befall a person. 9: Ate at my table: the height in betrayal; see Jn.13.18. 13: This verse, not truly a part of the psalm, marks the end of Book 1. Compare 72.18-20; 89.52; 106.48, which end, respectively, Books 2, 3, and 4.

Pss. 42-43: Send forth thy light. These two psalms make up a single Lament which has three parts. (Note the repeated refrain, vv. 5,11; 43.5. Compare the three-part structure of Ps.35.) The psalmist lives in the far north, near the sources of the Jordan (42.6); sick, he cannot join the pilgrims on their way to Jerusalem but hopes to do so in the future (43.3-4). The poems in Book 2 (see Introduction) emphasize the importance of Jerusalem and the Temple, and hence this psalm is an appropriate beginning. 2: God's presence was considered especially realized above the Ark of the Covenant in the Temple; see 1 Chr.13.6. 3: Where is your God?: the rhetorical question is intended as a reproach to a man in distress, as with the implication that God has deserted him if sin caused his illness. See the repetition in v. 10. See Job 35.10. 6: Hermons: A mountain in northern Palestine, usually written Hermon, but here in the plural because of its three peaks. Mizar: a hill probably near Hermon, its exact location is unknown.

	I will praise him continually, my deliverer, my God.	By thy help we will throw back our enemies,	5
43	Plead my cause and give me judgement against an impious race; save me from malignant men and liars, O God.	in thy name we will trample down our adversaries.
		I will not trust in my bow, nor will my sword win me the victory;	6
2	Thou, O God, art my refuge; why hast thou rejected me? Why must I go like a mourner because my foes oppress me?	for thou dost deliver us from our foes and put all our enemies to shame.	7
3	Send forth thy light and thy truth to be my guide and lead me to thy holy hill, to thy tabernacle,	In God have we gloried all day long, and we will praise thy name for ever.	8
4	then shall I come to the altar of God, the God of my joy, and praise thee on the harp, O God, thou God of my delight.	But now thou hast rejected and humbled us and dost no longer lead our armies into battle.	9
5	How deep I am sunk in misery, groaning in my distress: yet I will wait for God; I will praise him continually, my deliverer, my God.	Thou hast hurled us back before the enemy, and our foes plunder us as they will.	10
		Thou hast given us up to be butchered like sheep and hast scattered us among the nations.	11
		Thou hast sold thy people for next to nothing and had no profit from the sale.	12
		Thou hast exposed us to the taunts of our neighbours, to the mockery and contempt of all around.	13
		Thou hast made us a byword among the nations, and the peoples shake their heads at us;	14
		so my disgrace confronts me all day long, and I am covered with shame at the shouts of those who taunt and abuse me	15
		as the enemy takes his revenge.	16
		All this has befallen us, but we do not forget thee	17 and have not betrayed thy covenant; we have not gone back on our purpose,	18 nor have our feet strayed from thy path.

44

1	O God, we have heard for ourselves, our fathers have told us all the deeds which thou didst in their days,
2	all the work of thy hand in days of old. Thou didst plant them in the land and drive the nations out, thou didst make them strike root, breaking up the peoples;
3	it was not our fathers' swords won them the land, nor their arm that gave them the victory, but thy right hand and thy arm and the light of thy presence; such was thy favour to them.
4	Thou art my king and my God; at thy bidding Jacob is victorious.

43.3: Holy hill: this is the site of the Temple, where the psalmist prays to be sent.

Ps. 44: Arise and come to our help. A collective Lament, after a bitter military defeat suffered by the nation. 2: Compare Exod.15.17. 3: That God fought and won the victory for Israel at the time of the Exodus is a frequent theme; compare Josh.24.6-11. 9: Perhaps this is a reference to the time when the Ark of the Covenant was taken by armies into battle; compare 1 Sam.4.1-11. The Ark was lost during the destruction of Jerusalem in 587 B.C. 10-16: The conditions described here fit the period after the destruction of Jerusalem when Israel was scattered among the nations; see Ezek.36.1-8. 12: God received no profit from handing over Israel into captivity because the nations gave credit for it to their gods, not to him. See Isa.52.3. 17-22: The conditions described here fit the Maccabean period (about 165 B.C.) when Israel was persecuted

- 19 Yet thou hast crushed us as the sea-serpent was crushed and covered us with the darkness of death.
- 20 If we had forgotten the name of our God and spread our hands in prayer to any other,
- 21 would not God find this out, for he knows the secrets of the heart?
- 22 Because of thee we are done to death all day long, and are treated as sheep for slaughter.
- 23 Bestir thyself, Lord; why dost thou sleep? Awake, do not reject us for ever.
- 24 Why dost thou hide thy face, heedless of our misery and our sufferings?
- 25 For we sink down to the dust and lie prone on the earth.
- 26 Arise and come to our help; for thy love's sake set us free.
- Your right hand shall show you a scene of terror:
your sharp arrows flying, nations beneath your feet, the courage of the king's foes melting away!<sup>w</sup>
- Your throne is like God's throne, eternal, your royal sceptre a sceptre of righteousness.
- You have loved right and hated wrong;
so God, your God, has anointed you above your fellows with oil, the token of joy.
- Your robes are all fragrant with myrrh and powder of aloes, and the music of strings greets you from a palace panelled with ivory.
- A princess takes her place among the noblest of your women, a royal lady at your side in gold of Ophir.

45

- 1 My heart is stirred by a noble theme, in a king's honour I utter the song I have made, and my tongue runs like the pen of an expert scribe.
- 2 You surpass all mankind in beauty, your lips are moulded in grace, so you are blessed by God for ever.
- 3 With your sword ready at your side, warrior king,
- 4 your limbs resplendent<sup>v</sup> in their royal armour, ride on to execute true sentence and just judgement.
- I listen, my daughter, hear my words and consider them:
forget your own people and your father's house;
and, when the king desires your beauty, remember that he is your lord.
Do him obeisance, daughter of Tyre, and the richest in the land will court you with gifts.
- In the palace honour awaits her;<sup>x</sup> she is a king's daughter, arrayed in cloth-of-gold richly embroidered.

<sup>v</sup> your limbs resplendent: prob. rdg.; Heb. and in your pomp prosper.

<sup>w</sup> the courage . . . away: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.

<sup>x</sup> honour awaits her: prob. rdg.; Heb. all honoured.

because of her loyalty to the Covenant; see 1 Macc.1.25–64. 19: With the Babylonian Exile Israel ceased to exist as a nation and was lost in the darkness of death; compare Lam.3.6; Ezek.37.1–14. 23: The poet believed so strongly in the justice of Israel's cause and in God's power to deliver it that no other reason suited the human emotions except that the Lord was in sleep even though only alien gods were considered to slumber; see 7.6; 35.23; Isa.51.9. Contrast Ps.121.4. 24: Hide thy face: see 10.11 n.

Ps. 45: Blessed by God forever. A Royal Psalm, a wedding song for a king and his bride. It is a unique psalm. It consists of an introduction (v. 1), words about the king (vv. 2–9), words about the queen (vv.10–15), and the conclusion (vv. 16–17). 2–9: This section may have been used before the wedding at a feast for the king and his friends (see Gen.29.22). 6: It was the king's duty to establish the righteousness of God; see 1 Sam.10.1. 8: The palaces of the kings of the Northern Kingdom are described as ivory either because they abounded in ivory utensils or because the stone of which they were made resembled ivory. 10–15: This passage may have traditionally been read to the bride and her friends before she was brought to the king (see Gen.29.23).

Virgins shall follow her into the presence of the king; her companions shall be brought to her, 15 escorted with the noise of revels and rejoicing as they enter the king's palace. 16 You shall have sons, O king, in place of your forefathers and will make them rulers over all the land.<sup>y</sup> 17 I will declare your fame to all generations; therefore the nations will praise you for ever and ever.	The LORD of Hosts is with us, the God of Jacob our high stronghold. Come and see what the LORD has done, the devastation he has brought upon earth, from end to end of the earth he stamps out war: he breaks the bow, he snaps the spear and burns the shield in the fire. Let be then: learn that I am God, high over the nations, high above earth. The LORD of Hosts is with us, the God of Jacob our high stronghold.	7 8 9 10 11
--	--	--

46

1 God is our shelter and our refuge, a timely help in trouble; 2 so we are not afraid when the earth heaves and the mountains are hurled into the sea, 3 when its waters seethe in tumult and the mountains quake before his majesty. 4 There is a river whose streams gladden the city of God,<sup>z</sup> which the Most High has made his holy dwelling; 5 God is in that city; she will not be overthrown, and he will help her at the break of day. 6 Nations are in tumult, kingdoms hurled down; when he thunders, the earth surges like the sea.
--

47

Clap your hands, all you nations; acclaim our God with shouts of joy. How fearful is the LORD Most High, great sovereign over all the earth! He lays the nations prostrate beneath us, he lays peoples under our feet; he chose our patrimony for us, the pride of Jacob whom he loved. God has gone up with shouts of acclamation, the LORD has gone up with a fanfare of trumpets. Praise God,<sup>a</sup> praise him with psalms;	1 2 3 4 5 6
---	---

<sup>y</sup> over all the land: or in all the earth.
<sup>z</sup> the city of God: or a wondrous city.
<sup>a</sup> Praise God: or Praise, you gods.

Ps. 46: The LORD of Hosts is with us. A Hymn, probably glorifying God's power as it will be manifested in the final judgment over the world. The vision of the future is based on the mythology of creation borrowed from non-Israelite sources. The centrality of Jerusalem in the poem (vv. 4-5) has prompted a phrase, "songs of Zion," from 137.3, to allude to this and other psalms emphasizing Jerusalem. 1-3: God will abide in the upheavals to take place at the end of time. 1: This verse inspired Luther's hymn, "A Mighty Fortress." 4-5: That city: Jerusalem. Here it is apparently under siege, but God will deliver it as the climax to history. 4: A river: that is, the place of the divine throne. In the mythology of Ancient Near East, God, after defeating chaos, sits upon the sea or water (see 29.10). Also, a river or some kind of water is often mentioned in connection with his throne or temple (see Ezek.47.1-12; Zech.14.8-9; or Rev.22.1-2). 8-11: A vision of universal peace, after the punishing upheavals.

Ps. 47: God is King of all the earth. An Enthronement Hymn, celebrating the kingship of God. Enthronement Hymns are believed to have been sung on a festival, probably Booths. Other such hymns are Pss.93,96-99. A view, often disputed, supposes that behind such hymns lies the folklore of a dying and resurrected god, with the Enthronement in reality the reascension of the throne by the resurrected deity. 5-9: The passage has a liturgical ring. 5-7: The Ark of the Covenant was carried in liturgical procession with shouts, psalms, clapping of hands (v. 1) and praise our king, praise him with psalms.

 7 God is king of all the earth;
 sing psalms with all your art.
 8 God reigns over the nations,
 God is seated on his holy throne.
 9 The princes of the nations assemble
 with the families of Abraham's line;<sup>b</sup>
 for the mighty ones of earth belong to God,
 and he is raised above them all.

48

1 The LORD is great and worthy of our praise
 in the city of our God, upon his holy hill.
 2 Fair and lofty, the joy of the whole
 earth
 is Zion's hill, like the farthest reaches of the north,<sup>c</sup>
 the hill of the great King's city.
 3 In her palaces God is known for a tower of strength.
 4 See how the kings all gather round
 her,
 marching on in company.
 5 They are struck with amazement when they see her,
 they are filled with alarm and panic;
 6 they are seized with trembling, they toss in pain like a woman
 in labour,
 7 like the ships of Tarshish when an east wind wrecks them.
 8 All we had heard we saw with our own eyes
 in the city of the LORD of Hosts, in the city of our God,
 the city which God plants firm for evermore.

O God, we re-enact the story of thy 9 true love
 within thy temple;
 the praise thy name deserves, O God, 10 is heard at earth's farthest bounds.
 Thy hand is charged with justice, and the hill of Zion rejoices, 11 Judah's daughter-cities exult in thy judgements.

Make the round of Zion in 12 procession,
 count the number of her towers, take good note of her ramparts, 13
 pass her palaces in review, that you may tell generations yet to come:
 Such is God, 14
 our God for ever and ever;
 he shall be our guide eternally.

49

Hear this, all you nations; 1 listen, all who inhabit this world, all mankind, every living man, 2 rich and poor alike;
 for the words that I speak are wise, 3 my thoughtful heart is full of understanding.

I will set my ear to catch the moral 4 of the story
 and tell on the harp how I read the riddle;
 why should I be afraid in evil times, 5 beset by the wickedness of treacherous foes,
 who trust in their riches 6
 and boast of their great wealth?
 Alas! no man can ever ransom 7
 himself

b the families of Abraham's line; prob. rdg.; Heb.
 the God of Abraham.
c Or of Zaphon.

fanfare of trumpets; see 2 Sam.6.12-19. 9: God is the true King, and hence the King of kings. Ps. 48: The joy of the whole earth is Zion's hill. A Hymn, a "Song of Zion" (see Ps.46 n.). The psalm exultantly expresses confidence in the formidable power of Jerusalem as a fortress city. 2: North: lit. Zaphon (Tfn. c), to be identified with Mount Casius, north of the ancient city of Ugarit, site of a temple of Baal, where the Canaanite pantheon dwelled. To Zion are ascribed the majestic qualities which mythology ascribed to Zaphon. 7: The ships of Tarshish were used for the transport of metals from the western Mediterranean to Phoenicia (1 Kgs.10.22). Tarshish is often supposed to have been in southern Spain. East wind: a violent wind arising in the desert.

Ps. 49: No man can ever ransom himself. A Wisdom Psalm. Quite beyond the usual Wisdom theme of the merits of the righteous, this meditation asserts that not only is life short but also nor pay God the price of that release;

8 his ransom would cost too much,
for ever beyond his power to pay, 9 the ransom that would let him live on always
and never see the pit of death.

For men are like oxen whose life 20
cannot last,
they are like cattle whose time is short.

50

10 But remember this:<sup>d</sup> wise men must die;
stupid men, brutish men, all perish.<sup>e</sup> 11 The grave is their eternal home, their dwelling for all time to come;
they may give their own names to estates,
but they must leave their riches to others.<sup>f</sup> 12 For men are like oxen whose life
cannot last,
they are like cattle whose time is
short.
13 Such is the fate of foolish men and of all who seek to please them; 14 like sheep they run headlong into Sheol, the land of Death;
he is their shepherd and urges them on;
their flesh must rot away<sup>g</sup>
and their bodies be wasted by Sheol, stripped of all honour.
15 But God will ransom my life, he will take me from the power of Sheol.
16 Do not envy a man when he grows rich,
when the wealth of his family increases;
17 for he will take nothing when he dies,
and his wealth will not go with him.
18 Though in his lifetime he counts himself happy
and men praise him in his<sup>h</sup> prosperity,
19 he<sup>i</sup> will go to join the company of his forefathers
who will never again see the light.

God, the LORD God, has spoken 1 and summoned the world from the rising to the setting sun.
God shines out from Zion, perfect 2
in beauty.
Our God is coming and will not 3
keep silence:
consuming fire runs before him and wreathes him closely round.<sup>j</sup> He summons heaven on high and 4
earth
to the judgement of his people:
'Gather to me my loyal servants, all who by sacrifice have made a 5 covenant with me.'
The heavens proclaim his justice, 6 for God himself is the judge.
Listen, my people, and I will speak; 7
I will bear witness against you, O
Israel:
I am God, your God, shall I not<sup>k</sup> find fault with your 8 sacrifices,
though<sup>l</sup> your offerings are before me always?
I need take no young bull from 9
your house,
no he-goat from your folds;
for all the beasts of the forest are 10 mine

<sup>d</sup> But remember this: prob. rdg.; Heb. But he will remember this.

<sup>e</sup> Line transposed from here to follow verse 11.

<sup>f</sup> Line transposed from verse 10.

<sup>g</sup> and urges . . . rot away: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.

<sup>h</sup> him . . . his: prob. rdg.; Heb. you . . . your.

<sup>i</sup> he: prob. rdg.; Heb. you.

<sup>j</sup> and wreathes him closely round: or and rages round

him.

<sup>k</sup> Or I will not.

<sup>l</sup> Or for.

no one can buy salvation. A man need not fear the rich, for they too die. A refrain occurs twice (vv. 12,20). 11: The giving of names to estates was a common practice. 15: Take me from the power of Sheol: most scholars hold that this passage speaks only about deliverance from present trouble. Sheol is the place of the dead; hence, to some interpreters it seems quite possible that the psalmist here speaks of an afterlife with God. But compare v. 19.

Ps. 50: God has summoned the world. A prophetic judgment. The prophets often used the figure of the courtroom. Here, God, the judge, will summon the world to the courtroom and there present his case against his people, indicting them on two counts: (a) formalism in worship (vv. 8-15); and (b) transgression of the moral law (vv. 16-22). 1: God, the LORD God: lit. God of gods is the LORD (compare Josh.22.22 and Ps.136.1-3). 8: Shall I not: there is some uncertainty whether the passage is a question, or a statement (see Tfn. k). Regardless of this

- and the cattle in thousands on my hills.
- 11 I know every bird on those hills, the teeming life of the fields is my care.
- 12 If I were hungry, I would not tell you, for the world and all that is in it are mine.
- 13 Shall I eat the flesh of your bulls or drink the blood of he-goats?
- 14 Offer to God the sacrifice of thanksgiving and pay your vows to the Most High.
- 15 If you call upon me in time of trouble, I will come to your rescue, and you shall honour me.
- 16 God's word to the wicked man is this:
What right have you to recite my laws and make so free with the words of my covenant, 17 you who hate correction and turn your back when I am speaking?
- 18 If you meet a thief, you choose him as your friend;
you make common cause with adulterers;
19 you charge your mouth with wickedness and harness your tongue to slander.
- 20 You are for ever talking against your brother, stabbing your own mother's son in the back.
- 21 All this you have done, and shall I keep silence?
You thought that I was another like yourself, but point by point I will rebuke you
- to your face.
Think well on this, you who forget God, or I will tear you in pieces and no one shall save you.
He who offers a sacrifice of thanksgiving 23 does me due honour, and to him who follows my way<sup>m</sup> I will show the salvation of God.
- 51
- Be gracious to me, O God, in thy true love;
in the fullness of thy mercy blot out my misdeeds.
- Wash away all my guilt and cleanse me from my sin.
For well I know my misdeeds,
3 and my sins confront me all the day long.
- Against thee, thee only, I have sinned 4 and done what displeases thee, so that thou mayest be proved right in thy charge and just in passing sentence.
- In iniquity I was brought to birth 5 and my mother conceived me in sin; yet, though thou hast hidden the 6 truth in darkness, through this mystery thou dost teach me wisdom.
- Take hyssop<sup>n</sup> and sprinkle me, that 7 I may be clean;
wash me, that I may become whiter than snow;

<sup>m</sup> him who follows my way: prob. rdg.; Heb. him who puts a way.
<sup>n</sup> Or marjoram.

problem, sacrifices in general are not deemed important. 12: Animal sacrifices satisfied no need of God, such as hunger, as was thought in pagan sacrifices. 14,23: Sacrifice of thanksgiving: it is possible that Thanksgiving Psalms were used in accompaniment of thanksgiving sacrifices at the Temple. 16: While the indictment for ritualism applied to the whole nation, what follows is addressed only to the wicked. 21: God, in effect, keeps silence if he leaves evil unpunished.

Ps. 51: Be gracious to me, O God. A Lament, in confession of sin. The superscription (see Introduction) gives the occasion for the psalm as the time when Nathan came to David after his affair with Bathsheba (2 Sam.12.1-10). Illness ("broken bones," v. 8) was a token of sin, confessed to in a general way in vv. 1-9, followed by a plea for forgiveness and restoration (10-12) in terms of genuine contrition (13-17); an addition (vv. 18-19) validates worthy sacrifices seemingly deemed worthless in v. 16. 5: Man is already a sinner at conception and surrounded by iniquity at birth, a condition which the poet puts forth as a motive of forgiveness. 7: Hyssop: leaves of an aromatic plant, used in ceremonies for purging guilt; see Exod.12.22; Lev.14.49-53.

8	let me hear the sounds of joy and gladness, let the bones dance which thou hast broken.	52	Why make your wickedness your boast, you man of might, forging wild lies all day against God's loyal servant? Your slanderous tongue is sharp as a razor. You love evil and not good, falsehood, not speaking the truth; cruel gossip you love and slanderous talk.	1-2
9	Turn away thy face from my sins and blot out all my guilt.		So may God <sup>a</sup> pull you down to the ground, sweep you away, leave you ruined and homeless, uprooted from the land of the living.	3
10	Create a pure heart in me, O God, and give me a new and steadfast spirit;		The righteous will look on, awestruck, and laugh at his plight: 'This is the man', they say, 'who does not make God his refuge, but trusts in his great wealth and takes refuge in wild lies.'	4
11	do not drive me from thy presence		But I am like a spreading olive-tree in God's house;	5
12	or take thy holy spirit from me; revive in me the joy of thy deliverance and grant me a willing spirit to uphold me.		for I trust in God's true love for ever and ever. I will praise thee for ever for what thou hast done, and glorify thy name among thy loyal servants; for that is good.	6
13	I will teach transgressors the ways that lead to thee, and sinners shall return to thee again.			7
14	O LORD God, my deliverer, save me from bloodshed, <sup>o</sup> and I will sing the praises of thy justice.			8
15	Open my lips, O Lord, that my mouth may proclaim thy praise.			9
16	Thou hast no delight in sacrifice; if I brought thee an offering, thou wouldst not accept it.
17	My sacrifice, O God, is a broken spirit; a wounded heart, O God, thou wilt not despise.
18	Let it be thy pleasure to do good to Zion, to build anew the walls of Jerusalem.	53	The impious fool says in his heart, 'There is no God.'	17
19	Then only shalt thou delight in the appointed sacrifices; <sup>p</sup> then shall young bulls be offered on thy altar.

<sup>o</sup> Or from punishment by death.

<sup>p</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds a whole-offering and one wholly consumed.

<sup>q</sup> Or So God will.

<sup>r</sup> Verses 1-6: cp. Ps. 14. 1-7.

Here the request is that God figuratively purge the sinner. 8: The bones . . . broken seems to refer to a physical illness which will give way to dance, the transition from guilt to forgiveness. 10: Creation of a pure heart and a new . . . spirit meant a total transformation of man which could be accomplished only by God; compare Ezek.36.25-27. 16: Thou hast no delight in sacrifice: the statement is sweeping, and is modified in the last verses. 17: Broken spirit: afflicted and humbled. 18-19: This modification of v. 16 is probably an addition. 18: Build anew the walls: see Neh. chs. 1-3, which rebuilding is possibly alluded to here.

Ps. 52: I am like a spreading olive-tree. A psalm difficult to classify (see Introduction) and a Lament only in that a righteous man is denouncing a wicked one, and it ends in the typical vow (v. 9). The tone is righteous, even vindictive (vv. 5-6). Man of might (vv. 1 and 7) is unclear, but is surely someone highly placed and wealthy, accused of slander and falsehood (vv. 3-4).

Ps. 53: If only Israel's deliverance might come out of Zion. A Lament, with the usual vow (v. 6). See Ps.14, with which this psalm is almost identical. They differ in that the use here is of Elohim (God), and in Ps.14 it is Yahweh (LORD).

How vile men are, how depraved and loathsome;
not one does anything good!
2 God looks down from heaven on all mankind
to see if any act wisely,
if any seek out God.
3 But all are unfaithful, all are rotten to the core;
not one does anything good,
no, not even one.
4 Shall they not rue it, these evildoers who devour my
people
as men devour bread,
and never call upon God?
5 There they were in dire alarm
when God scattered them.
The crimes of the godless were frustrated;<sup>s</sup>
for God had rejected them.
6 If only Israel's deliverance might come out of Zion!
When God restores his people's fortunes,
let Jacob rejoice, let Israel be glad.

54

1 Save me, O God, by the power of thy name,
and vindicate me through thy might.
2 O God, hear my prayer, listen to my supplication.
3 Insolent men rise to attack me, ruthless men seek my life;
they give no thought to God.
4 But God is my helper,
the Lord the mainstay of my life.
5 May their own malice recoil on my watchful foes;
silence them by thy truth, O LORD.
6 I will offer thee a willing sacrifice and praise thy name, for that is
good;

God has rescued me from every 7
trouble,
and I look on my enemies' downfall with delight.

55

Listen, O God, to my pleading, 1 do not hide thyself when I pray.
Hear me and answer, 2
for my cares give me no peace.
I am panic-stricken at the shouts of 3
my enemies,
at the shrill clamour of the wicked;
for they heap trouble on me and they revile me in their anger.
My heart is torn with anguish 4 and the terrors of death come upon
me.
Fear and trembling overwhelm me 5
and I shudder from head to foot.
'Oh that I had the wings of a dove 6 to fly away and be at rest!
I should escape far away 7 and find a refuge in the wilderness;
soon I should find myself a 8
sanctuary
from wind and storm,
from the blasts of calumny, O Lord, 9 from my enemies' contentious tongues.
I have seen violence and strife in the city;
day and night they encircle it, 10
all along its walls;
it is filled with trouble and mischief, alive with rumour and scandal, 11 and its public square is never free from violence and spite.
It was no enemy that taunted me, 12 or I should have avoided him; no adversary that treated me with scorn,
or I should have kept out of his
way.

<sup>s</sup> The crimes . . . frustrated: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.
<sup>t</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. prefixes And I said.

Ps. 54: O God, hear my prayer. A Lament (see Introduction), possibly the prayer of a king as in Ps.20. 1-2: A plea for help. 3-4: The distress caused by evildoers. 5: Against the foe. 6-7: The vow usual in a Lament. 6: A willing sacrifice: see Num.15.3. 7: The conclusion is straightforward in its vindictiveness.

Ps. 55: Hear me and answer. A Lament (see Introduction), with a vindictive tone. 1-2: A plea for God's response. 3-15: The poet's distress. 3-9a: The impulse to flee. 7: A refuge in the wilderness: see Jer.9.2. 9b-11: The vice in the city. 12-15a: On such betrayal, compare 41.9 n.

- 13 It was you, a man of my own sort,
my comrade, my own dear friend, 14-15 with whom I kept pleasant company in the house of God.
- May death strike them,
and may they<sup>u</sup> perish in confusion,
may they go down alive into Sheol;
for their homes are haunts of evil!
- 16 But I will call upon God;
the LORD will save me.
17 Evening and morning and at noon
I nurse my woes, and groan.
18 He has heard my cry, he rescued me and gave me back my peace, when they beset me like archers,<sup>v</sup> massing against me, 19 like Ishmael and the desert tribes and those who dwell in the East, who have no respect for an oath
nor any fear of God.
20 Such men do violence to those at peace with them
and break their promised word; 21 their speech is smoother than butter
but their thoughts are of war;
their words are slippery as oil but sharp as drawn swords.
- 22 Commit your fortunes to the LORD,
and he will sustain you;
he will never let the righteous be shaken.
23 Cast them, O God, into the pit of destruction;
bloodthirsty and treacherous, they shall not live out half their
days;
but I will put my trust in thee.
- All the day long my watchful foes 2 persecute me;
countless are those who assail me.
Appear on high<sup>w</sup> in my day of fear; 3
I put my trust in thee.
With God to help me I will shout 4
defiance,
in God I trust and shall not be afraid;
what can mortal men do to me?
All day long abuse of me is their 5 only theme,
all their thoughts are hostile.
In malice they are on the look-out, 6 and watch for me,
they dog my footsteps;
but, while they lie in wait for me, it is they who will not<sup>x</sup> escape. 7 O God, in thy anger bring ruin on
the nations.
- Enter my lament in thy book,<sup>y</sup> 8 store every tear in thy flask.<sup>z</sup> Then my enemies will turn back 9 on the day when I call upon thee;<sup>a</sup>
for this I know, that God is on my
side,
with God to help me I will shout 10
defiance.<sup>b</sup>
In God I trust and shall not be 11
afraid;
what can man do to me?
I have bound myself with vows to 12 thee, O God,
and will redeem them with due thank-offerings;
for thou hast rescued me from 13 death<sup>c</sup>
to walk in thy presence, in the light of life.

u Prob. rdg.; Heb. we.
v when . . . archers: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.
w Appear on high: prob. rdg.; Heb. Height.
x it is . . . not: prob. rdg.; Heb. for iniquity.
y Enter . . . book: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.
z Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds is it not in thy book?
a Enter . . . thee: or Thou hast entered my lament in thy book, my tears are put in thy flask. Then my enemies turned back, when I called upon thee.
b Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds With the LORD to help me I will shout defiance.
c Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds is it not my feet from stumbling (cp. Ps. 116. 8).

56

- 1 Be gracious to me, O God, for the enemy persecute me,
my assailants harass me all day long.

15b: A curse. Sheol: the netherworld. 16-21: God's deliverance. 19: Ishmael: compare Gen. 16:11-12. The translation rests on the frequently corrected Heb. text. 22-23: The word of trust.
Ps. 56: Be gracious to me, O God. A Lament (see Introduction), similar to the others (Pss. 51-61), but somewhat less plaintive. The distress is in vv. 1-2 and 5-6, the expression of trust in vv. 3-4, and the vow in v. 12. The latter part of v. 7 is a plea for vengeance. 8: On a heavenly record book, see Exod. 32.33. 12: Thank-offerings: see Ps. 50.14, 23 n. 13: God's presence is the light that gives meaning and value to life, just as darkness is death because devoid of worthwhile activity; compare Isa. 5.9-10.

57

- 1 Be gracious to me, O God, be
gracious;
for I have made thee my refuge.
I will take refuge in the shadow of thy wings
until the storms are past.
- 2 I will call upon God Most High, on God who fulfils his purpose for
me.
- 3 He will send his truth and his love that never fails,
he will send from heaven and save
me.
God himself will frustrate my
persecutors;
- 4 for I lie down among lions, man-
eaters,
whose teeth are spears and arrows and whose tongues are sharp swords.
- 5 Show thyself, O God, high above
the heavens;
let thy glory shine over all the
earth.
- 6 Men have prepared a net to catch me as I walk,
but I bow my head to escape
from it;
they have dug a pit in my path
but have fallen into it themselves.
- 7<sup>d</sup> My heart is steadfast, O God,
my heart is steadfast.
I will sing and raise a psalm;
awake, my spirit,
awake, lute and harp,
I will awake at dawn of day.<sup>e</sup>
- 9 I will confess thee, O Lord, among
the peoples,
among the nations I will raise a
psalm to thee,

for thy unfailing love is wide as the 10
heavens
and thy truth reaches to the skies.
Show thyself, O God, high above 11
the heavens;
let thy glory shine over all the
earth.

58

- Answer, you rulers:<sup>f</sup> are your 1 judgements just?
Do you decide impartially between man and man?
Never! Your hearts devise all kinds 2 of wickedness
and survey the violence that you have done on earth.
- Wicked men, from birth they have 3 taken to devious ways;
liars, no sooner born than they go
astray,
venomous with the venom of 4 serpents,
of the deaf asp which stops its ears and will not listen to the sound of 5
the charmer,
however skilful his spells may be.
- O God, break the teeth in their 6 mouths.
Break, O LORD, the jaws of the unbelievers.<sup>g</sup>
- May they melt, may they vanish 7 like water,
may they wither like trodden grass,<sup>h</sup> like an abortive birth which melts 8
away

<sup>d</sup> Verses 7-11: cp. Ps. 108. 1-5.

<sup>e</sup> at dawn of day; or the dawn.

<sup>f</sup> Or you gods.

<sup>g</sup> the jaws of the unbelievers; or the lions' fangs.

<sup>h</sup> like trodden grass: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.

Ps. 57: Be gracious to me, O God. A Lament (see Introduction), the poet's plea to God and his trust in him. 1-6: The poet's distress. 1: The figure of an eagle protecting its young under its wings to represent God giving refuge to the innocent goes back to the trials of the Exodus from Egypt; see Exod.19.4; Deut.32.10-11. 3-4: The poet's tribulation is that he was attacked by slanderous tongues and he asks God's truth to ward off the evil. Teeth biting flesh is the symbol of slander; compare Job 19.22. 5: A refrain. 6: One could escape a trap made of a net by keeping the head low to the ground, i.e. by being humble. 7-11: A combined vow and utterance of thanks, virtually identical with Ps.108.1-5. 7: Raise a psalm: see Ps.50.14, 23 n. 8: The poet's confidence in God is so great that he anticipates his restoration by a thanksgiving on lute and harp at the earliest opportunity, i.e. dawn. 11: A refrain.

Ps. 58: O God, break the teeth in their mouths. A Lament (see Introduction), violent in its outburst of wrath. The curse uttered in v. 6 is often viewed as responsive to a curse that enemies have put on the poet, alluded to in the word "charmer" in v. 5. It is uncertain, however, just who the enemies are in vv. 1-5, which allude to them. The curse (vv. 6-9) is followed by an assurance of vengeance (vv. 10-11). 1: Rulers: gods (Tfn. f); in either case the translation rests

- or a still-born child which never sees<sup>l</sup> the sun!
- 9 All unawares, may they be rooted up like<sup>j</sup> a thorn-bush, like weeds which a man angrily<sup>k</sup> clears away!
- 10 The righteous shall rejoice that he has seen vengeance done and shall wash his feet in the blood of the wicked,
- 11 and men shall say,
'There is after all a reward for the
righteous;
after all, there is a God that judges
on earth.'
- 59
- 1 Rescue me from my enemies, O my
God,
be my tower of strength against all who assail me,
- 2 rescue me from these evildoers, deliver me from men of blood.
- 3 Savage men lie in wait for me, they lie in ambush ready to attack
me;
for no fault or guilt of mine, O
LORD,
- 4-5 innocent as I am, they run to take post against me.
But thou, LORD God of Hosts, Israel's God,
do thou bestir thyself at my call,
and look:
awake, and punish all the nations.
Have no mercy on villains and traitors,
- 6 who run wild at nightfall like dogs,
snarling and prowling round the
city,
- 15<sup>l</sup> wandering to and fro in search of
food,
and howling if they are not satisfied.
- From their mouths comes a stream 7 of nonsense;
'But who will hear?' they murmur.
But thou, O LORD, dost laugh at 8
them,
and deride all the nations.
O my strength,<sup>m</sup> to thee I turn in 9
the night-watches;
for thou, O God, art my strong
tower.
My God, in his true love, shall be 10
my champion;
with God's help, I shall gloat over my watchful foes.
Wilt thou not kill them, lest my 11 people forget?
Scatter them by thy might and bring them to ruin.
Deliver them,<sup>n</sup> O Lord, to be 12
destroyed
by their own sinful words; let what they have spoken entrap them in their pride.
Let them be cut off for their cursing and falsehood;
bring them to an end in thy 13
wrath,
and they will be no more;
then they will know that God is ruler in Jacob,
even to earth's farthest limits.<sup>o p</sup>
But I will sing of thy strength, 16 and celebrate thy love when morning comes;
for thou hast been my strong tower and a sure retreat in days of trouble.
O thou my strength, I will raise a 17
psalm to thee;
for thou, O God, art my strong
tower.

i sees: prob. rdg.; Heb. they see.

j may they be rooted up like: prob. rdg.; Heb. your pois

k angrily: prob. rdg.; Heb. like anger.

l Verse transposed

m Or refuge.

n Deliver them: prob. rdg.; Heb. Our shield.

o Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds (14) who run wild at nightfall like dogs, snarling and prowling round the city (cp.
verse 6.)

p Verse 15 transposed to follow verse 6.

on a usual correction of the Heb. 10: Wash his feet in the blood of the wicked: the Canaanite goddess Anat is described after a battle with her enemies, in a text from Ugarit, as follows: "She washes her hands of the blood of warriors, her fingers of the gore of troops."

Ps. 59: Rescue me from my enemies, O my God. A Lament, which seems to veer from the personal (vv. 1-4a) to the national (4b-7), unless "nations" is a figure of speech for personal enemies. The usual trust is in vv. 8-10, the plea for vengeance in 11-13, and the vow in 16-17. Note that v. 15 has been moved and v. 14 put into Tfn. o. 4-5: Bestir thyself. . . awake: compare Ps.44.23 n. 8: Laugh: compare Ps.2.4. 9: The parts of the city walls that were the weakest, e.g. gates, were furnished with strong towers from which defenders could repel the attackers; see v. 17. 12: Cut off: brought to a sudden death.

60

1 O God, thou hast cast us off and broken us;
thou hast been angry and rebuked us cruelly.

2 Thou hast made the land quake and torn it open;
it gives way and crumbles into pieces.

3 Thou hast made thy people drunk with a bitter draught, thou hast given us wine that makes us stagger.

4 But thou hast given a warning to those who fear thee,
to make their escape before the sentence falls.

5<sup>a</sup> Deliver those that are dear to thee;
save them with thy right hand, and
answer.

6 God has spoken from his sanctuary:<sup>r</sup>
'I will go up now and measure out
Shechem;
I will divide the valley of Succoth
into plots;

7 Gilead and Manasseh are mine; Ephraim is my helmet, Judah my
sceptre;

8 Moab is my wash-bowl, I fling my
shoes at Edom;
Philistia is the target of my anger.'

9 Who can bring me to the fortified
city,
who can guide me to Edom, 10 since thou, O God, hast abandoned
us
and goest not forth with our armies?

Grant us help against the enemy, 11
for deliverance by man is a vain
hope.

With God's help we shall do 12
valiantly,
and God himself will tread our enemies under foot.

61

Hear my cry, O God, listen to my 1
prayer.

From the end of the earth I call to 2 thee with fainting heart;
lift me up and set me upon a rock.

For thou hast been my shelter, 3 a tower for refuge from the enemy.

In thy tent will I make my home 4
for ever
and find my shelter under the cover of thy wings.

For thou, O God, hast heard my 5 vows
and granted the wish<sup>s</sup> of all who revere thy name.

To the king's life add length of days, 6 year upon year for many generations;
may he dwell in God's presence for 7
ever,
may true and constant love preserve
him.

So will I ever sing psalms in 8
honour of thy name
as I fulfil my vows day after day.

q Verses 5-12: cp. Ps. 108. 6-13.
r from his sanctuary: or in his holiness.
s Prob. rdg.; Heb. the inheritance.

Ps. 60: Deliver those that are dear to thee. A Lament, after a national humiliation. 1a: The Lament begins, as usual, with an invocation of the divine name. 1b-3: The national tribulation, a military humiliation, is depicted in the apocalyptic imagery of a cosmic catastrophe; compare Isa.24.19-20. 4: A warning: compare Amos 5.6. 5: The supplication for deliverance asks for an answer in the form of an oracle. 6-8: In the oracle, spoken probably by a priest, assurance is given that even though the lands of Shechem, Succoth, Gilead and Manasseh are in the hands of foreigners, they belong to God and he will measure them out again as an inheritance to his people; compare Jer.32.42-44. The cause of Ephraim and Judah is God's cause for they are his instruments of judgment and warfare, helmet and sceptre. Moab, Edom and Philistia, which now oppress the land, are objects of scorn and anger. The conditions fit the period after the destruction of Jerusalem in 587 B.C.; compare Ezek.25.8-17. 9: Me: probably the king is meant. 10: Perhaps an allusion to the fact that the Ark of the Covenant was lost after 587 B.C. and no longer taken to battle as in early days; see 1 Sam.4.3-11.

Ps. 61: Hear my cry, O God. A Lament (see Introduction) by someone far from Judea, who yearns for the Temple in Jerusalem, possibly a Levite or a priest who had been attached to the Temple. 2: End of the earth: outside the Holy Land. 4: Tent: an ancient word for tabernacle or temple; see 27.6. Cover of thy wings: see Ps.57.1 n. 6-7: The prayer for the king appears to be an interpolation; it recalls Nathan's prophecy in 2 Sam.7.16.

62

- 1 Truly my heart waits silently for
God;
my deliverance comes from him.
- 2 In truth he is my rock of deliverance,
my tower of strength, so that I stand unshaken.
- 3 How long will you assail a man with your threats,
all battering on a leaning wall?
- 4 In truth men plan to topple him from his height,
and stamp on the fallen stones.<sup>t</sup>
With their lips they bless him, the hypocrites,
but revile him in their hearts.
- 5 Truly my heart waits silently for
God;
my hope of deliverance comes
from him.
- 6 In truth he is my rock of deliverance,
my tower of strength, so that I am unshaken.
- 7 My deliverance and my honour depend upon God,
God who is my rock of refuge and my shelter.
- 8 Trust always in God, my people, pour out your hearts before him;
God is our shelter.
- 9 In very truth men are a puff of
wind,
all men are faithless;
put them in the balance and they can only rise,
all of them lighter than wind.
- 10 Put no trust in extortion,
do not be proud of stolen goods;
though wealth breeds wealth, set not your heart on it.
- 11 One thing God has spoken,
two things I have learnt:

'Power belongs to God'
and 'True love, O Lord, is thine';<sup>12</sup> thou dost requite a man for his deeds.

63

O God, thou art my God, I seek thee 1 early
with a heart that thirsts for thee and a body wasted with longing for
thee,
like a dry and thirsty land that has no water.

So longing, I come before thee in 2
the sanctuary
to look upon thy power and glory.
Thy true love is better than life; 3 therefore I will sing thy praises.
And so I bless thee all my life 4 and in thy name lift my hands in prayer.

I am satisfied as with a rich and 5 sumptuous feast
and wake the echoes with thy praise.
When I call thee to mind upon my 6 bed
and think on thee in the watches of the night,
remembering how thou hast been 7
my help
and that I am safe in the shadow of thy wings,
then I humbly follow thee with all 8
my heart,
and thy right hand is my support.

Those who seek my life, bent on evil, 9 shall sink into the depths of the
earth;
they shall be given over to the 10
sword;
they shall be carrion for jackals.

<sup>t</sup> the fallen stones: transposed from end of verse 3.

Ps. 62: Power belongs to God. A poem of trust, kindred to a Wisdom Psalm, though echoing the Lament. Its theme is that not men and wealth, but only God can help. The distress of the poet (vv. 3-4) comes in between two assertions of trust in God (1-2 and 5-7), followed by the counsel to others also to trust in God (8-12). 10: Wisdom literature often warns against setting the heart on riches. 11: One thing . . . two things: compare Prov.6.16; 30.15-31. This numerical progression is common in Wisdom literature.

Ps. 63: I seek thee, O God. A Wisdom Psalm emphasizing the poet's longing for God. 1: A thirst for God and for Wisdom is a frequent theme in Wisdom literature. See Ecclus.24.23-34; Isa.55.1. 5: Wisdom, as a quality of God, is presented as a sumptuous feast; see Prov.9.1-5. 6: Watches of the night were divided into three shifts. 7: Shadow of thy wings: see Ps.57.1 n. 9-10: The sinner bent on evil is a fool, for his life ends in the earth. 11: Especially in need of Wisdom is the king; see Wis.1.1.

11 The king shall rejoice in God, and whoever swears by God's name shall exult;
the voice of falsehood shall be silenced.

64

1 Hear me, O God, hear my lament; keep me safe from the threats of the enemy.
2 Hide me from the factions of the
wicked,
from the turbulent mob of
evildoers,
3 who sharpen their tongues like swords
and wing their cruel words like arrows,<sup>u</sup> 4 to shoot down the innocent from cover,
shooting suddenly, themselves
unseen.
5 They boldly<sup>v</sup> hide their snares, sure that none will see them;
6 they hatch their secret plans<sup>w</sup> with skill and cunning,
with evil<sup>x</sup> purpose and deep design.
7 But God with his arrow shoots
them down,
and sudden is their overthrow.
8 They may repeat their wicked tales,<sup>y</sup> but their mischievous tongues<sup>z</sup> are their undoing.
All who see their fate take fright
at it, 9 every man is afraid;
'This is God's work', they declare;
they learn their lesson from what he has done.
10 The righteous rejoice and seek refuge in the LORD
and all the upright exult.

65

We owe thee praise, O God, in Zion; 1-2 thou hearest prayer, vows shall be paid to thee.
All men shall lay their guilt before 3
thee:
our sins are too heavy for us;
only thou canst blot them out.
Happy is the man of thy choice, 4 whom thou dost bring to dwell in thy courts;
let us enjoy the blessing of thy
house,
thy holy temple.
By deeds of terror answer us with 5
victory,
O God of our deliverance, in whom men trust from the ends
of the earth
and far-off seas;
thou art girded with strength, 6 and by thy might dost fix the mountains in their place, dost calm the rage of the seas and 7 their raging waves.<sup>a</sup>
The dwellers at the ends of the 8
earth
hold thy signs in awe;
thou makest morning and evening
sing aloud in triumph.
Thou dost visit the earth and give 9
it abundance,
as often as thou dost enrich it with the waters of heaven, brimming in their channels,
providing rain<sup>b</sup> for men.

<sup>u</sup> and wing . . . arrows: prob. rdg.; Heb. they tread their arrow a cruel word.

<sup>v</sup> See first note on verse 8.

<sup>w</sup> their secret plans: prob. rdg.; Heb. unintelligible.

<sup>x</sup> evil: prob. rdg.; Heb. man.

<sup>y</sup> They . . . tales: transposed from after boldly in verse 5.

<sup>z</sup> their mischievous tongues: prob. rdg.; Heb. against them their tongues.

<sup>a</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adls and tumult of people.

<sup>b</sup> Or corn.

Ps. 64: Hear me, O God, hear my plea. A Lament on the evil of the wicked. A plea (vv. 1-2) is followed by a description of the wicked (5-6), whom God overthrows (7-9), to the gratification of the righteous (10). 3: Cruel words: either slander, or else curses believed to have magical force. 6: The poet is the object of backbiting and calumny.

Ps. 65: We owe thee praise, O God. A Thanksgiving Hymn because it praises God for what he always does for man (vv. 6-10). It was recited in the context of a pilgrimage to the Temple (v. 4) which probably took place at the Feast of Weeks; see Deut.16.9-12. Hence, it can also be classified as a pilgrimage psalm. 4: Dwell: visit. 6-8: One of frequent allusions to God the warrior who at creation defeated chaos; compare 24.1-2 n. 7: The rage of the seas: compare Ps.74.12-14. 8: Morning and evening sing aloud: the psalmist joins the chorus of all creation in praise of the creator. 9: Waters of heaven: water falling from the reservoir above the vault of heaven; see Gen.1.6-7. The much needed rain is a blessing to the crops. See Pss.68.9,10; 104.14.

10 For this is thy provision for it, watering its furrows, levelling its ridges,
 softening it with showers and blessing its growth.
 11 Thou dost crown the year with thy good palms
 and the palm-trees drip with sweet juice; 12 the pastures in the wild are rich with blessing
 and the hills wreathed in happiness, 13 the meadows are clothed with sheep
 and the valleys mantled in corn, so that they shout, they break into song.

66

1 Acclaim our God, all men on earth; 2 let psalms declare the glory of his name,
 make glorious his praise.
 3 Say unto God, 'How fearful are thy works!
 Thy foes cower before the greatness of thy strength.
 4 All men on earth fall prostrate in
 thy presence,
 and sing to thee, sing psalms in
 honour of thy name.'
 5 Come and see all that God has
 done,
 tremendous in his dealings with mankind.
 6 He turned the waters into dry land so that his people passed through the sea on foot;
 there did we rejoice in him.<sup>c</sup> 7 He rules for ever by his power, his eye rests on the nations;
 let no rebel rise in defiance.

Bless our God, all nations; 8 let his praise be heard far and near.
 He set us in the land of the living; 9
 he keeps our feet from stumbling.
 For thou, O God, hast put us to 10
 the proof
 and refined us like silver.
 Thou hast caught us in a net, 11 thou hast bound our bodies fast; thou hast let men ride over our 12
 heads.
 We went through fire and water, but thou hast brought us out into liberty.

I will bring sacrifices into thy 13
 temple
 and fulfil my vows to thee, vows which I made with my own 14 lips
 and swore with my own mouth when in distress.
 I will offer thee fat beasts as 15 sacrifices
 and burn rams as a savoury offering;
 I will make ready oxen and he-goats.

Come, listen, all who fear God, 16 and I will tell you all that he has done for me;
 I lifted up my voice in prayer, 17
 his high praise was on my lips.
 If I had cherished evil thoughts, 18 the Lord would not have heard
 me;
 but in truth God has heard 19
 and given heed to my prayer.
 Blessed is God 20
 who has not withdrawn his love and care from me.

<sup>c</sup> there . . . him: or where we see this, we will rejoice in him.

11-13: As the pilgrims go through the fields teeming with life just before the harvest, they are overwhelmed with joy and a feeling of thanksgiving.

Ps. 66: Let psalms declare the glory of his name. Verses 1-12 are a corporate Thanksgiving Hymn (see vv. 1-4), vv. 13-20 a personal, private one. The two portions are fused together, both beginning with the invitation "come" (5,16). 1: The invitation to all men to acclaim God is the typical beginning of a Hymn. 6: This verse recalls the Exodus from Egypt and the entry into the land of Canaan. 10-12: Perhaps these verses echo either the Babylonian Exile, or the bitter experiences of the Maccabean revolt. 13-15: The large numbers of sacrifices referred to such as would be offered by a prince or a ruler; see Ezek.46.4-7. 16-20: The verses seem to hearken back to vv. 1-2. 16: Fear: the word reflects not fright but dutiful worship. To fear God or to love God are synonymous in the Heb. Bible. 18: The prayers of even the devout will not be answered if evil thoughts are cherished.

67

- 1 God be gracious to us and bless us,
God make his face shine upon us, 2 that his ways may be known on
earth
and his saving power among all
the nations.
3 Let the peoples praise thee, O God;
let all peoples praise thee.
4 Let all nations rejoice and shout in triumph;
for thou dost judge the peoples with justice
and guidest the nations of the earth.
5 Let the peoples praise thee, O God;
let all peoples praise thee.
6 The earth has given its increase and God, our God, will bless us.
7 God grant us his blessing, that all the ends of the earth may fear him.

68

- 1 God arises and his enemies are scattered;
those who hate him flee before him, 2 driven away like smoke in the
wind;
like wax melting at the fire,
the wicked perish at the presence of God.
3 But the righteous are joyful, they exult before God,
they are jubilant and shout for
joy.
4 Sing the praises of God, raise a psalm to his name,
extol him who rides over the desert plains.<sup>d</sup>

- Be joyful<sup>e</sup> and exult before him, father of the fatherless, the widow's champion—
God in his holy dwelling-place.
God gives the friendless a home and brings out the prisoner safe and sound;
but rebels must live in the scorching desert.
O God, when thou didst go forth before thy people,
marching across the wilderness, earth trembled, the very heavens quaked
before God the lord of Sinai, before God the God of Israel.
Of thy bounty, O God, thou dost refresh with rain
thy own land in its weariness, the land which thou thyself didst provide,
where thy own people made their
home,
which thou, O God, in thy goodness providest for the poor.

- The Lord proclaims good news:<sup>f</sup>
'Kings with their armies have fled headlong.'
O mighty host, will you linger among the sheepfolds
while the women in your tents divide the spoil—
an image of a dove, its wings sheathed in silver and its pinions in yellow gold—while the Almighty scatters kings
far and wide
like snowflakes falling on Zalmon?

<sup>d</sup> over the desert plains: or on the plains.

<sup>e</sup> Be joyful: prob. rdg.; Heb. In the LORD is his name.

<sup>f</sup> proclaims good news: or gives the word, women bearing good news.

Ps. 67: Let all the people praise thee. A Hymn of Praise, kindred to a blessing (compare Num.6.24–27 which is here echoed). 1: Make his face shine: compare Ps.4.6 n. 6–7: The occasion seems to be a rich harvest; compare Ps.65.11–13.

Ps. 68: Sing the praises of God. The psalm is a Hymn in which God is praised for his deeds in the liberation of Israel from Egypt, her establishment in the Land, and victories over attackers in later history. Since different historical events are alluded to in poetic form, the impression is given of disconnected fragments which some scholars see collected here. 1–3: Narrative of what God is accustomed to do in behalf of the righteous. 4–10: Allusion to the Exodus and the conquest of the Land. 4: A slight correction of the Heb., proposed by some scholars, would yield “clouds” rather than desert plains. “Rider of the clouds” is a phrase used also of the Canaanite god Baal; see v. 33. On the other hand, desert plains would be an allusion to God’s traveling with Israel to Sinai, and then to Canaan (Judg.5.4). 5: Israel saw herself as a fatherless girl abandoned in the desert and found by God; see Ezek.16.1–6. 7–8: Heavens quaked: Exod.19.16–25. 11–14: The allusion is to the victory over the Canaanite kings after

- 15 The hill of Bashan is a hill of God indeed,
a hill of many peaks is Bashan's hill.
- 16 But, O hill of many peaks, why gaze in envy
at the hill where the LORD delights to dwell,
where the LORD himself will live
for ever?
- 17 Twice ten thousand were God's chariots, thousands upon thousands,
when the Lord came in holiness from Sinai.<sup>g</sup>
- 18 Thou didst go up to thy lofty home with captives in thy train, having received tribute from men;
in the presence of the LORD God no rebel could live.
- 19 Blessed is the Lord:
he carries us day by day,
God our salvation.
- 20 Our God is a God who saves us, in the LORD God's hand lies escape from death.<sup>h</sup>
- 21 God himself will smite<sup>i</sup> the head of
his enemies,
those proud sinners with their flowing locks.
- 22 The Lord says, 'I will return from the Dragon,<sup>j</sup> I will return from the depths of
the sea,
23 that you may dabble your feet in blood,
while the tongues of your dogs are eager<sup>k</sup> for it.'
- 24 Thy procession, O God, comes into view,
- the procession of my God and King into the sanctuary:
at its head the singers, next come 25
minstrels,
girls among them playing on tambourines.
In the great concourse they bless 26
God,
all Israel assembled<sup>l</sup> bless the LORD.
There is the little tribe of Benjamin 27 leading them,
there the company of Judah's princes,
the princes of Zebulun and of Naphtali.
- O God, in virtue of thy power<sup>m</sup>— 28 that godlike power which has acted
for us—
command kings to bring gifts to thee 29 for the honour of thy temple in Jerusalem.
Rebuke those wild beasts of the 30
reeds, that herd of bulls, the bull-calf warriors of the nations;<sup>n</sup> scatter these nations which revel in war;
make them bring tribute from 31
Egypt,
precious stones and silver from Pathros;<sup>o</sup> let Nubia stretch out<sup>p</sup> her hands to God.

g came . . . from Sinai: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.

h in the LORD God's hand . . . death: or death is expelled by the LORD God.

i will smite: or smites.

j the Dragon: or Bashan.

k are eager: prob. rdg.; Heb. from enemies.

l assembled: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.

m O God . . . power: prob. rdg.; Heb. Your God your power.

n See first note on verse 31.

o precious . . . Pathros: prob. rdg., transposed from verse 30 and slightly altered.

p stretch out: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.

much hesitation on the part of some tribes to leave their sheepfolds; see Judg.5.16–20. 15–18: The allusion seems to be to the victory over the Ammonites either by Jephthah (Judg.11.4–33), or by Saul (1 Sam.11.1–11), or by David (2 Sam.10.1–12.31). 15: The Syrians from the territory of Bashan joined the Ammonites in the fight against David; see 2 Sam.10.6. Mount Hermon with its three peaks personifies the Syrian rulers. Because of its height and majesty it was considered the hill of God, vying with Mount Zion for glory. 21: The desert warriors left their hair flowing loose when they went to battle; see Judg.5.1 and Tfn. j there. 22: See Tfn. j. God comes back victorious from the Dragon (Bashan) and from the depths of the Red Sea where he conquered Egypt. 23: Compare 58.10 and see n. 24–35: A liturgical celebration in which the victories of God are reenacted in a Temple procession, possibly with the Ark of the Covenant at its head. 27: Men of Benjamin are first in the procession, either because of their role in the victory over the Canaanites (Judg.5.14) or because Saul of Benjamin was victorious over the Ammonites (1 Sam.11.1–11). David of Judah defeated the Ammonites; see vv.15–18 n. Zebulun and Naphtali were the leading tribes in the victory over the Canaanites; see Judg.4.6–7. 30: Beasts of the reeds: Egyptians. Herd of bulls: warriors (Syrians) from Bashan, a place known for its cattle. 31: Pathos and Nubia adjoined Egypt. 32–35: A Hymn of praise; compare Ps.29. 33: See v. 4 n.

32 All you kingdoms of the world, sing praises to God,
sing psalms to the Lord, 33 to him who rides on the heavens,
the ancient heavens.
Hark! he speaks in the mighty thunder.
34 Ascribe all might to God, Israel's High God,
Israel's pride and might throned in the skies.
35 Terrible is God as he comes from his sanctuary;
he is Israel's own God, who gives to his people might and abundant power.

Blessed be God.

69

1 Save me, O God;
for the waters have risen up to my
neck.
2 I sink in muddy depths and have no foothold;
I am swept into deep water, and the flood carries me away.
3 I am wearied with crying out, my throat is sore,
my eyes grow dim as I wait for God
to help me.
4 Those who hate me without reason are more than the hairs of my head; they outnumber my hairs, those who accuse me falsely.
How can I give back what I have not stolen?
5 O God, thou knowest how foolish
I am,
and my guilty deeds are not hidden from thee.
6 Let none of those who look to thee be shamed on my account,
O Lord God of Hosts;
let none who seek thee be humbled
through my fault,
O God of Israel.
7 For in thy service I have suffered
reproach;

I dare not show my face for shame.
I have become a stranger to my brothers,
an alien to my own mother's sons;
bitter enemies of thy temple tear me in pieces;<sup>q</sup> those who reproach thee reproach
me.
I have broken my spirit with fasting, only to lay myself open to many reproaches.
I have made sackcloth my clothing and have become a byword among
them.
Those who sit by the town gate talk about me;
drunkards sing songs about me in their cups.
But I lift up this prayer to thee,
O LORD:
accept me<sup>r</sup> now in thy great love,
answer me with thy sure deliverance,
O God.
Rescue me from the mire, do not let me sink;
let me be rescued from the muddy depths,<sup>s</sup>
so that no flood may carry me
away,
no abyss swallow me up,
no deep close over me.
Answer me, O LORD, in the goodness of thy unfailing love, turn towards me in thy great affection.
I am thy servant, do not hide thy face from me.
Make haste to answer me, for I am in distress.
Come near to me and redeem me;
ransom me, for I have many
enemies.
Thou knowest what reproaches I
bear,
all my anguish is seen by thee.
Reproach has broken my heart,

<sup>q</sup> bitter . . . pieces; or zeal for thy temple has eaten me up (cp. John 2. 17).

<sup>r</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. acceptance.

<sup>s</sup> from . . . depths; prob. rdg.; Heb. from my haters and from the depths.

Ps. 69: Save me, O God. A Lament, probably written by an exile (in Babylon) in the sixth century B.C., as suggested by v. 35. The figure of a man sunken into the mire is most vivid. 1-6: The poet's distress. The mire (vv. 1-3) is figurative; it is repeated in vv. 14-15. 7-21: His experience of humiliation. 9: The allusion is uncertain, but see Ezra 4.4-5, 23-24; 5.2-3. The use may be noted in Jn. 2.17. 13-18: An intervening prayer. 17: Hide thy face: compare 10.11 and 27.9.

my shame and my dishonour<sup>t</sup> are past hope;
 I looked for consolation and received none,
 for comfort and did not find any.
 21 They put poison in my food and gave me vinegar when I was thirsty.
 22 May their own table be a snare to
 them
 and their sacred feasts lure them to their ruin;
 23 may their eyes be darkened so that they do not see,
 let a continual ague shake their loins.
 24 Pour out thine indignation upon
 them
 and let thy burning anger overtake them.
 25 May their settlements be desolate, and no one living in their tents; 26 for they pursue him whom thou hast struck down and multiply the torments of those whom thou hast wounded.
 27 Give them the punishment their sin deserves;<sup>u</sup> exclude them from thy righteous
 mercy;
 28 let them be blotted out from the book of life
 and not be enrolled among the
 righteous.
 29 But by thy saving power, O God, lift me high
 above my pain and my distress, 30 then I will praise God's name in song
 and glorify him with thanksgiving; 31 that will please the LORD more than the offering of a bull, a young bull with horn and cloven hoof.
 32 See and rejoice, you humble folk, take heart, you seekers after God; 33 for the LORD listens to the poor and does not despise those bound to his service.

 Let sky and earth praise him, 34
 the seas and all that move in them, for God will deliver Zion 35-36 and rebuild the cities of Judah.
 His servants' children shall inherit
 them;
 they shall dwell there in their own
 possession
 and all who love his name shall live in them.

70

Show me favour,<sup>v</sup> O God, and save 1<sup>w</sup>
 me;
 hasten to help me, O LORD.
 Let all who seek my life be brought 2 to shame and dismay,
 let all who love to hurt me shrink
 back disgraced;
 let those who cry 'Hurrah!' at my 3
 downfall
 turn back at the shame they incur, but let all who seek thee 4
 be jubilant and rejoice in thee,
 and let those who long for thy saving help ever cry,
 'All glory to God!'
 But I am poor and needy; 5
 O God, hasten to my aid.
 Thou art my help, my salvation;
 O LORD, make no delay.

71

In thee, O LORD, I have taken 1
 refuge;
 never let me be put to shame.
 As thou art righteous rescue me 2 and save my life;
 hear me and set me free,
 be a rock of refuge for me, 3

t my shame and my dishonour: transposed from after reproaches in verse 19.
u Give them . . . deserves: or Add punishment to punishment.
v Show me favour: prob. rdg., cp. Ps. 40. 13; Heb. om.
w Verses 1-5: cp. Ps. 40. 13-17.

21: Compare Mt.27.34,48; Mk.15.36; Lk.23.36; Jn.19.29. 22-28: A curse. 25: See Acts 1.20. 28: The book of life: compare 56.8 n.; 109.15. 29-31: A prayer and vow. Normally the vow is favorable to animal sacrifice. 32-36: The psalmist's trust in God. 35: An allusion to the situation after the Babylonian conquest (597 B.C.) and the Exile (587-520).
 Ps. 70: O God, hasten to my aid. A Lament (see Introduction) almost identical to Ps.40.13-17.
 Ps. 71: Forsake me not, O God. A Lament (see Introduction), apparently of an old man in where I may ever find safety at thy call; for thou art my towering crag and stronghold.		I will begin with a tale of great deeds, O Lord GOD, and sing of thy righteousness, thine alone.	16

4	O God, keep my life safe from the wicked, from the clutches of unjust and cruel men.		O God, thou hast taught me from boyhood, all my life I have proclaimed thy marvellous works; and now that I am old and my hairs	17
5	Thou art my hope, O Lord, my trust, O LORD, since boyhood.		are grey, forsake me not, O God, when I extol thy mighty arm to future generations,	18
6	From birth I have leaned upon thee, my protector since I left <sup>x</sup> my mother's womb. <sup>y</sup>		thy power and righteousness, O God,	19
7	To many I seem a solemn warning; but I have thee for my strong refuge.		to highest heaven; for thou hast done great things. Who is like thee, O God?
8	My mouth shall be full of thy praises, I shall tell of thy splendour all day long.		Thou hast made me pass through	20
9	Do not cast me off when old age comes, nor forsake me when my strength fails,		bitter and deep distress, yet dost revive me once again and lift me again from earth's watery depths.
10	when my enemies' rancour bursts upon me <sup>z</sup> and those who watch me whisper together,		Restore me to honour, turn and comfort me,	21
11	saying, 'God has forsaken him; after him! seize him; no one will rescue him.'		then I will praise thee on the lute for thy faithfulness, O God; I will sing psalms to thee with the harp,	22
12	O God, do not stand aloof from me; O my God, hasten to my help.		thou Holy One of Israel; songs of joy shall be on my lips;	23
13	Let all my traducers be shamed and dishonoured, let all who seek my hurt be covered with scorn.		I will sing thee psalms, because thou hast redeemed me.
14	But I will wait in continual hope, I will praise thee again and yet again;		All day long my tongue shall tell of thy righteousness;	24
15	all day long thy righteousness, thy saving acts, shall be upon my lips. Thou shalt ever be the theme of my praise, <sup>a</sup> although I have not the skill of a poet.		shame and disgrace await those who seek my hurt.
			72
			O God, endow the king with thy own justice, and give thy righteousness to a king's son,	1

<sup>x</sup> my . . . left: or who didst bring me out from.

<sup>y</sup> See note on verse 15.

<sup>z</sup> enemies' . . . me: prob. rlq.; Heb. enemies say of me.

<sup>a</sup> Line transposed from verse 6.

serious trouble who reminds God of his past faithfulness. 7-11: The general belief of the OT, that troubles were due to a rejection by God because of some sin, made the psalmist's troubled life (v. 20) seem a solemn warning to would-be sinners. 14-24: The vow here to praise as a motive for God's favorable action is longer than usual. 20: The earth's watery depths are the underground place of the dead into which the man seems already sunk. 22: Though not a poet (v. 15), the psalmist offers this musical praise as the content of his vow.

Ps. 72: May the king live long. A Royal Psalm. The superscription (see Introduction) describes this as a psalm of Solomon. Vv. 18-20 are an editorial addition to close Book 2 (see Ps.41.13 n. for other closings). Royal or Wisdom psalms are common at the beginnings and at the ends

2 that he may judge thy people rightly and deal out justice to the poor and suffering. 3 May hills and mountains afford thy people peace and prosperity in righteousness. 4 He shall give judgement for the suffering and help those of the people that are needy; he shall crush the oppressor. 5 He shall live as long as the sun endures, long as the moon, age after age. 6 He shall be like rain falling on early crops, like showers watering<sup>b</sup> the earth. 7 In his days righteousness shall flourish, prosperity abound until the moon is no more. 8 May he hold sway from sea to sea, from the River to the ends of the earth. 9 Ethiopians shall crouch low before him; his enemies shall lick the dust. 10 The kings of Tarshish and the islands shall bring gifts, the kings of Sheba and Seba shall present their tribute, 11 and all kings shall pay him homage, all nations shall serve him. 12 For he shall rescue the needy from their rich oppressors, the distressed who have no protector. 13 May he have pity on the needy and the poor, deliver the poor from death; 14 may he redeem them from oppression and violence	and may their blood be precious in his eyes. May the king live long and receive gifts of gold<sup>c</sup> from Sheba; prayer be made for him continually, blessings be his all the day long. 16 May there be abundance of corn in the land, growing in plenty to the tops of the hills; may the crops flourish like Lebanon, and the sheaves<sup>d</sup> be numberless as blades of grass. 17 Long may the king's name endure, may it live for ever like the sun; so shall all peoples pray to be blessed as he was, all nations tell of his happiness. Blessed be the LORD God, the God of Israel, who alone does marvellous things; blessed be his glorious name for ever, 19 and may his glory fill all the earth. Amen, Amen. Here end the prayers of David son of Jesse.	15 16 17 18 19 20
---	--	---

BOOK 3

73

How good God is to the upright!<sup>e</sup> 1
How good to those who are pure in heart!

b like showers watering: prob. rdg.; Heb. unintelligible.
c Or frankincense.
d the sheaves: prob. rdg.; Heb. from a city.
e How . . . upright: prob. rdg.; Heb. How good it is to Israel!

of the five books (see Pss.1,2,41,73,89,90,91). This psalm could have been used at a coronation or at its annual celebration. 1-2: To judge meant to vindicate the rights of the poor and to relieve suffering. Thus, the king was also a judge, and therefore needed to be just. 6-7: Early crops were those that matured before the drought of summer came and hence needed much rain. In Near Eastern ideas of the king, even the fertility of the land depended on him. 8-11: The desired territory for the Israelite king. 8: River: the Euphrates (1 Kgs.4.21). 9: Ethiopians, elsewhere called also Cushites, were considered fierce warriors; see Jer.46.9. To lick dust was a symbol of utter defeat. 10: Tarshish: probably in Spain. Sheba and Seba: in South Arabia. 12-14: The king, like God (v. 1), was to redeem people from oppression. The absolute kings of the Near East tended to shed the blood of the weak with little remorse; see Ezek.24.1-13. 15-17: A prayer on behalf of the king. 17: Many kings in the Ancient Near East were called "the Sun" and still more were compared to the sun. 18-19: A prayer, not part of the original psalm, but added by an editor to close (v. 20) the second collection of psalms.

Ps. 73: How good God is to the upright. A Wisdom Psalm, used as the introduction to Book 3

2	My feet had almost slipped, my foothold had all but given way,	but I found it too hard for me, until I went into God's sacred	17
3	because the boasts of sinners roused my envy when I saw how they prosper.	courts; there I saw clearly what their end would be.
4	No pain, no suffering is theirs; they are sleek and sound in limb;	How often thou dost set them on slippery ground	18
5	they are not plunged in trouble as other men are, nor do they suffer the torments of mortal men.	and drive them headlong into ruin!
6	Therefore pride is their collar of jewels and violence the robe that wraps them round.	Then in a moment how dreadful their end, cut off root and branch by death with all its terrors,	19
7	Their eyes gleam through folds of fat; while vain fancies pass through their minds.	like a dream when a man rouses himself, O Lord, like images in sleep which are dismissed on waking!	20
8	Their talk is all sneers and malice; scornfully they spread their calumnies.	When my heart was embittered I felt the pangs of envy,	21
9	Their slanders reach up to heaven, while their tongues ply to and fro on earth.	I would not understand, so brutish was I,	22
10	And so my people follow their lead <sup>f</sup> and find nothing to blame in them, <sup>g</sup>	I was a mere beast in thy sight, O God.	23
11	even though they say, 'What does God know? The Most High neither knows nor cares.'	Yet I am always with thee, thou holdest my right hand; thou dost guide me by thy counsel and afterwards wilt receive me with glory.	24
12	So wicked men talk, yet still they prosper, and rogues <sup>h</sup> amass great wealth.	Whom have I in heaven but thee? And having thee, <sup>i</sup> I desire nothing else on earth.	25
13	So it was all in vain that I kept my heart pure and washed my hands in innocence.	Though heart and body fail, yet God is my possession for ever.	26
14	For all day long I suffer torment and am punished every morning.	They who are far from thee are lost; thou dost destroy all who wantonly forsake thee.	27
15	Yet had I let myself talk on in this fashion, I should have betrayed the family of God.	But my chief good is to be near thee, O God;	28
16	So I set myself to think this out	I have chosen thee, Lord GOD, to be my refuge. <sup>j</sup>

<sup>f</sup> their lead: prob. rdg.; Heb. hither.

<sup>g</sup> and find . . . in them: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.

<sup>h</sup> yet . . . rogues: prob. rdg.; Heb. those at ease for ever.

<sup>i</sup> Or And compared with thee.

<sup>j</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds to tell all thy works.

(see Introduction). The psalm falls into two major divisions. The first (vv. 2–15) asks why the wicked prosper and the righteous suffer; the second (vv. 16–28) asserts that after a visit to the Temple, the psalmist learned that the prosperity of the wicked is only temporary and that the righteous enjoy the constant guidance of God. 6–7: Fat connotes an insensitive heart which indulges in violence. 11: The assertion of the wicked, that God is indifferent to man and his behavior, is a practical “atheism”; the theoretical denial of God’s existence does not occur in the Bible. 13–15: The claim that a pure heart, i.e. upright life, is in vain and useless, is to attack the foundation of Israel’s existence and so a betrayal of her hopes; see Deut. 6.1–3. 17: God’s courts: the Temple. 22–23: A brutish man is moved only by physical force in pain and is insensitive to God’s touch in leading him by the hand; compare Ps. 32.8–10. 24–27: The final reward of the just man is to be in dialogue with God and to receive his counsel; compare Job 38.1–42.6; Pss. 27.4; 32.8; 63.1–11.

74

- 1 Why hast thou cast us off, O God?
Is it for ever?
Why art thou so stern, so angry with the sheep of thy flock?
- 2 Remember the assembly of thy
people,
taken long since for thy own,<sup>k</sup> and Mount Zion, which was thy
home.
- 3 Now at last<sup>l</sup> restore what was ruined beyond repair, the wreck that the foe has made of thy sanctuary.
- 4 The shouts of thy enemies filled the holy place,<sup>m</sup> they planted their standards there as tokens of victory.
- 5 They brought it crashing down,<sup>n</sup> like woodmen plying their axes in the forest;
- 6 they ripped the carvings clean out, they smashed them with hatchet and pick.
- 7 They set fire to thy sanctuary, tore down and polluted the shrine sacred to thy name.
- 8 They said to themselves, 'We will sweep them away',
and all over the land they burnt God's holy places.<sup>o</sup>
- 9 We cannot see what lies before us,<sup>p</sup>
we have no prophet now;
we have no one who knows how long this is to last.
- 10 How long, O God, will the enemy taunt thee?
Will the adversary pour scorn on thy name for ever?
- 11 Why dost thou hold back thy hand, why keep thy right hand within thy bosom?
- But thou, O God, thou king from 12
of old,
thou mighty conqueror all the world over,
by thy power thou didst cleave the 13 sea-monster in two and break the sea-serpent's heads above the waters;
thou didst crush Leviathan's many 14
heads
and throw him to the sharks<sup>q</sup> for
food.
Thou didst open channels for spring 15
and torrent;
thou didst dry up rivers never known to fail.
The day is thine, and the night is 16
thine also,
thou didst ordain the light of moon
and sun;
thou hast fixed all the regions of 17
the earth;
summer and winter, thou didst create them both.
- Remember, O LORD, the taunts of 18
the enemy,
the scorn a savage nation pours on
thy name.
Cast not to the beasts the soul that 19
confesses thee;
forget not for ever the sufferings of thy servants.
Look upon thy creatures:<sup>r</sup> they are 20 filled with hatred,
and earth is the haunt of violence.
Let not the oppressed be shamed 21
and turned away;

k Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds thou didst redeem the tribe of thy possession.

l Now at last: prob. rdg.; Heb. Thy steps.

m the holy place: or thy meeting place.

n They . . . down: prob. rdg.; Heb. unintelligible.

o holy places: or meeting places.

p what . . . us: prob. rdg.; Heb. our signs.

q to the sharks: prob. rdg.; Heb. to a people, desert-dwellers.

r thy creatures: prob. rdg.; Heb. the covenant, because.

Ps. 74: Forget not forever the sufferings of the servants. A Lament over the destruction of the Temple by a foreign invader whom some scholars identify as the Babylonians under Nebuchadnezzar in 587 B.C. and others as the Greeks under Antiochus Epiphanes in 167 B.C. (1 Macc.4.38). 9: The lack of a prophet seems to indicate Maccabean times as the period of composition, since prophets did continue their activity after the Babylonian destruction; see 1 Macc.9.27. 11: Hold back thy hand: refrain from acting in behalf of Israel. 12-17: God's power in restoring dispersed Israel is often compared to the creation of the universe and described in the mythological imagery of the Ancient Near East; compare Isa.51.9-16. God is here a great warrior who defeats primitive chaos identified as the sea-monster, sea-serpent, Leviathan, so that he may bring about a benevolent order of day and night, etc. 18-23: A prayer for deliverance, the motive being to end the taunts of the enemy against God. The vow usual in a Lament is absent, perhaps because it involved a sacrifice which was impossible because the Temple was in ruins.

let the poor and the downtrodden praise thy name.

- 22 Rise up, O God, maintain thy own
cause;
remember how brutal men taunt thee all day long.
- 23 Ignore no longer the cries of thy assailants,
the mounting clamour of those who defy thee.

75

- 1 We give thee thanks, O God, we give thee thanks;
thy name is brought very near to us in the story of thy wonderful deeds.
- 2 I seize the appointed time and then I judge mankind with justice.
- 3 When the earth rocks, with all who live on it,
I make its pillars firm.
- 4 To the boastful I say, 'Boast no
more',
and to the wicked, 'Do not toss your proud horns:
5 toss not your horns against high heaven
nor speak arrogantly against your Creator.'
- 6 No power from the east nor from
the west,
no power from the wilderness, can raise a man up.
- 7 For God is judge;
he puts one man down and raises up another.
- 8 The LORD holds a cup in his hand, and the wine foams in it, hot with spice;
he offers it to every man for drink, and all the wicked on earth must drain it to the dregs.
- 9 But I will glorify him for ever;

I will sing praises to the God of Jacob.

I will break off the horns of the
wicked,
but the horns of the righteous shall be lifted high.

76

In Judah God is known, 1
his name is great in Israel;
his tent is pitched in Salem, 2 in Zion his battle-quarters are set up.<sup>8</sup>
He has broken the flashing arrows, 3 shield and sword and weapons of war.

Thou art terrible, O Lord, and 4 mighty:
men that lust for plunder stand 5
aghast,
the boldest swoon away,
and the strongest cannot lift a hand.
At thy rebuke, O God of Jacob, 6 rider and horse fall senseless.
Terrible art thou, O Lord; 7 who can stand in thy presence when thou art angry?
Thou didst give sentence out of 8
heaven;
the earth was afraid and kept
silence.
O God, at thy rising<sup>t</sup> in judgement 9 to deliver all humble men on the
earth,
for all her fury Edom shall confess 10
thee,
and the remnant left in Hamath shall dance in worship.

Make vows to the LORD your God, 11 and pay them duly;

<sup>s</sup> are set up: prob. rdg.; Heb. thither (at beginning of verse 3).

<sup>t</sup> O God . . . rising: prob. rdg.; Heb. When God rises.

Ps. 75: We give thee thanks, O God. This is classified by some as a Thanksgiving but by others as a Wisdom Psalm of exhortation. 1: Gratitude due God. 2-5, 10: God is the speaker. 4: Horns: a symbol of power. 6-9: God alone is the true judge, and his judgment is sure to come. 8: On the cup of judgment, compare Isa.51.22-23; Jer.25.15; Lk.22.42.

Ps. 76: Terrible art thou, O Lord. A Hymn, after a military victory (v. 3). The introduction (vv. 1-3) is followed by allusions to an unknown battle (vv. 6-10), and ended by an exhortation to thank God (vv. 11-12). This is one of the songs of Zion (see Ps.46 n.). 2: Salem: mentioned in Gen.14.18; tradition, as here, identifies it with Jerusalem. 4: Terrible: the translation is based on a correction of the Heb.; "terrible" means able to elicit terror. 10: Edom to the south-east and Hamath to the north. This translation is based on minor corrections of the MT. 11: Vows: in Laments, the poet usually vows to express his gratitude through offering a sacrifice.

let the peoples all around him bring their tribute;<sup>u</sup> 12 for he breaks the spirit of princes, he is the terror of the kings on
earth.

77

1 I cried aloud to God,
I cried to God, and he heard me.
2 In the day of my distress I sought
the Lord,
and by night I lifted<sup>v</sup> my outspread hands in prayer.
I lay sweating and nothing would cool me;
I refused all comfort.
3 When I called God to mind, I groaned;
as I lay thinking, darkness came over my spirit.
4 My eyelids were tightly closed;
I was dazed and I could not speak.
5 My thoughts went back to times
long past,
I remembered forgotten years;
6 all night long I was in deep distress, as I lay thinking, my spirit was sunk in despair.
7 Will the Lord reject us for evermore and never again show favour?
8 Has his unailing love now failed us utterly,
must his promise time and again be unfulfilled?
9 Has God forgotten to be gracious, has he in anger withheld his mercies?
10 'Has his right hand', I said, 'lost its grasp?
Does it hang powerless,<sup>w</sup> the arm of the Most High?'
11 But then, O LORD, I call to mind thy deeds;<sup>x</sup>

I recall thy wonderful acts in times gone by.
I meditate upon thy works and muse on all that thou hast done.
O God, thy way is holy;
what god is so great as our God?
Thou art the God who workest miracles;
thou hast shown the nations thy
power.
With thy strong arm thou didst redeem thy people,
the sons of Jacob and Joseph.
The waters saw thee, O God, they saw thee and writhed in anguish;
the ocean was troubled to its depths.
The clouds poured water, the skies thundered,
thy arrows flashed hither and thither.
The sound of thy thunder was in the whirlwind,<sup>y</sup> thy lightnings lit up the world, earth shook and quaked.
Thy path was through the sea, thy way through mighty waters, and no man marked thy footsteps.
Thou didst guide thy people like a flock of sheep,
under the hand of Moses and Aaron.

78

Mark my teaching, O my people, listen to the words I am to speak. 1

<sup>u</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds for the terror (cp. verse 12).
<sup>v</sup> I lifted; prob. rdg.; Heb. om.
<sup>w</sup> lost . . . powerless; prob. rdg.; Heb. unintelligible.
<sup>x</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. then I call to mind the deeds of the LORD, for.
<sup>y</sup> Or in the chariot-wheels.

Ps. 77: I cried aloud to God but then I recalled his wonderful acts. A Lament that has a hymn of praise (vv. 11-20), in place of the usual vow, as a motive in eliciting God's saving action. 2-4: Sweating and a dazed condition indicate either the fever of a physical illness or great anxiety of spirit; compare Lk.22.44. 9-10: Two questions about God arise in the face of human suffering: (a) Is God gracious, i.e. good and concerned enough about man to want to help him? (b) Is he able or is he powerless to help? 11-15: A Hymn, extolling God's way as holy in redeeming his people in the past, affirms his goodness. 16-19: An ancient Hymn describing creation in mythological images—the sea serpent writhes in anguish—affirms God's power to help. See 74.13-14. 20: Since God's goodness and power were manifested to the people in the Exodus, they need to be displayed again now.

Ps. 78: From Moses to David. A historical psalm (see also Pss.105,106,135,136). Israel's

2	I will tell you a story with a meaning, I will expound the riddle of things past, 3 things that we have heard and know, and our fathers have repeated to us. 4 From their sons we will not hide the praises of the LORD and his might nor the wonderful acts he has performed; then they shall repeat them to the next generation. 5 He laid on Jacob a solemn charge and established a law in Israel, which he commanded our fathers to teach their sons, 6 that it might be known to a future generation, to children yet unborn, and these would repeat it to their sons in turn. 7 He charged them to put their trust in God, to hold his great acts ever in mind and to keep all his commandments; 8 not to do as their fathers did, a disobedient and rebellious race, a generation with no firm purpose, with hearts not fixed steadfastly on God. 9 The men of Ephraim, bowmen all and marksmen, turned and ran in the hour of battle. 10 They had not kept God's covenant and had refused to live by his law; 11 they forgot all that he had done and the wonderful acts which he had shown them. 12 He did wonders in their fathers' sight	in the land of Egypt, the country of Zoan: he divided the sea and took them through it, making the water stand up like banks on either side. He led them with a cloud by day and all night long with a glowing fire. He cleft the rock in the wilderness and gave them water to drink, abundant as the sea; he brought streams out of the cliff and made water run down like rivers. But they sinned against him yet again: in the desert they defied the Most High, they tried God's patience wilfully, demanding food to satisfy their hunger. They vented their grievance against God and said, 'Can God spread a table in the wilderness?' When he struck a rock, water gushed out until the gullies overflowed; they said, 'Can he give bread as well, can he provide meat for his people?' When he heard this, the LORD was filled with fury: fire raged against Jacob, anger blazed up against Israel, because they put no trust in God and had no faith in his power to save. Then he gave orders to the skies above and threw open heaven's doors, he rained down manna for them to eat and gave them the grain of heaven. So men ate the bread of angels;	13 14 15 16 17 18 19 20 21 22 23 24 25
---	---	--	--

story was undoubtedly told again and again by her poets and for various reasons. An emphasis here is the condemnation of Ephraim (9–11,67), the leading tribe of the Northern Kingdom. The historical allusions are quite clear, especially in the light of information in the Pentateuch. Perhaps the psalm was used on a festival day; perhaps, too, vv.1–9,67 are an addition. 1–4: This introduction is kindred to Wisdom writings (see 49.1–4); the teaching is offered so that the present generation will perpetuate its legacy. 2: This verse is paraphrased in Mt.13.35. 5–8: The Sinai episode, Exod. chs. 19–24. 6: Compare Deut.6.7. 9–11: The allusion to in the hour of battle is obscure. The major denunciation, though, is in 10–11. 12–53: A review of the Exodus and the Wilderness experience emphasizes God's wondrous deeds related in Exod. and Num. The usual trespasses of Israel (17–20 and 32–40) balanced God's great deeds with men's deficiencies. 12: Zoan: called Rameses in Exod.1.11. 15–16: See Exod.17.6 and Num.20.10–13. 17–25: See Exod.15.23–16.8. 17: See Deut.9.22; Heb.3.16. 18: See Num.20.11. 24: See Jn.6.31.

	he sent them food to their heart's desire.		and did not rouse his anger to its height.
26	He let loose the east wind from heaven and drove the south wind by his power;		He remembered that they were only mortal men, who pass by like a wind and never return.	39
27	he rained meat like a dust-storm upon them, flying birds like the sand of the sea-shore,		How often they rebelled against him in the wilderness and grieved him in the desert!	40
28	which he made settle all over the camp round the tents where they lived.		Again and again they tried God's patience and provoked the Holy One of Israel.	41
29	So the people ate and were well filled, for he had given them what they craved.		They did not remember his prowess on the day when he saved them from the enemy, how he set his signs in Egypt,	42
30	Yet they did not abandon their complaints <sup>z</sup> even while the food was in their mouths.		his portents in the land of Zoan. He turned their streams into blood, and they could not drink the running water.	43 44
31	Then the anger of God blazed up against them; he spread death among their stoutest men and brought the young men of Israel to the ground.		He sent swarms of flies which devoured them, and frogs which brought devastation; he gave their harvest over to locusts and their produce to the grubs; he killed their vines with hailstones and their figs with torrents of rain;	45 46 47
32	In spite of all, they persisted in their sin and had no faith in his wonderful acts.		he abandoned their cattle to the plague and their beasts to the arrows of pestilence.	48
33	So in one moment he snuffed out their lives and ended their years in calamity.		He loosed upon them the violence of his anger, wrath and enmity and rage, launching those messengers of evil to open a way for his fury.	49
34	When he struck them, they began to seek him, they would turn and look eagerly for God;		He struck down all the first-born in Egypt, the flower of their manhood in the tents of Ham, not shielding their lives from death but abandoning their bodies to the plague.	50-51
35	they remembered that God was their Creator, that God Most High was their deliverer.		But he led out his own people like sheep and guided them like a flock in the wilderness.	52
36	But still they beguiled him with words and deceived him with fine speeches;		He led them in safety and they were not afraid, and the sea closed over their enemies.	53
37	they were not loyal to him in their hearts nor were they faithful to his covenant.
38	Yet he wiped out their guilt and did not smother his own <sup>a</sup> natural affection; often he restrained his wrath

<sup>z</sup> Or craving.
<sup>a</sup> his own: prob. rdg.; Heb. om.

27.39: Num.11.31-34. 42-53: The sequence of the plagues differs from that of Exod. chs. 7-12.

- 54 He brought them to his holy mountain, the hill which his right hand had won; 55 he drove out nations before them, he allotted their lands to Israel as a possession and settled his tribes in their dwellings.
56 Yet they tried God's patience and rebelled against him;
they did not keep the commands of the Most High; 57 they were renegades, traitors like their fathers, they changed, they went slack like a bow.
58 They provoked him to anger with their hill-shrines and roused his jealousy with their carved images.
59 When God heard this, he put them out of mind and utterly rejected Israel.
60 He forsook his home at Shiloh, the tabernacle in which he dwelt among men; 61 he surrendered the symbol of his strength into captivity and his pride into enemy hands; 62 he gave his people over to the sword and put his own possession out of mind.
63 Fire devoured his young men, and his maidens could raise no lament for them; 64 his priests fell by the sword, and his widows could not weep.
65 Then the Lord awoke as a sleeper awakes, like a warrior heated with wine; 66 he struck his foes in the back parts and brought perpetual shame upon them.
67 He despised the clan of Joseph
- and did not choose the tribe of Ephraim;
he chose the tribe of Judah and Mount Zion which he loved; 68 he built his sanctuary high as the heavens,
69 founded like the earth to last for ever.
He chose David to be his servant and took him from the sheepfolds; 70 he brought him from minding the ewes
71 to be the shepherd of his people Jacob;<sup>b</sup>
and he shepherded them in 72 singleness of heart and guided them with skilful hand.
- 79
- O God, the heathen have set foot in thy domain, 1 defiled thy holy temple and laid Jerusalem in ruins.
They have thrown out the dead 2 bodies of thy servants to feed the birds of the air; they have made thy loyal servants carrion for wild beasts.
Their blood is spilled all round 3 Jerusalem like water, and there they lie unburied.
We suffer the contempt of our 4 neighbours,
the gibes and mockery of all around us.
5
How long, O LORD, wilt thou be roused to such fury?
Must thy jealousy rage like a fire?
6 Pour out thy wrath over nations which do not know thee
and over kingdoms which do not invoke thee by name;

<sup>b</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds and Israel his possession.

54-64: These vv. deal with the conquest of the land of Canaan and the age of the Judges. God gave Israel the land, but infidelity did not cease. 54: Holy mountain: Zion. 55: Josh. chs. 13-17. 60: Shiloh: See Josh.18.1; Judg.18.31; 1 Sam. chs. 1-4. On its abandonment, see Jer.7.12-14; 26.6. 61: The symbol of his strength: the Ark of the Covenant, captured by the Philistines; see 1 Sam.4.1-7.1. 65-72: Perhaps this section refers to the destruction of the Northern Kingdom in 721 B.C., 2 Kgs.17.3-6; perhaps, as some suggest, it reflects the Samaritan schism of the age of Ezra and Nehemiah. 65: The Lord awoke: compare 44.23 n. and 59.5. 66: Back parts: see 1 Sam.5.6-12. 68: Judah: the tribe to which David belonged. 69: 1 Kgs. chs. 6-8. 70-71: 1 Sam.16.1-16.

Ps. 79: How long, O Lord. A national Lament after invaders have defiled the Temple and devastated Jerusalem. For the occasion see Ps.74 n. 3: An unburied corpse was a great indignity to the dead person (Tob.1.17-19) and made the whole place unclean; see Num.19.11-16. 5: Israel aroused God to jealousy by her acceptance of other gods and religious practices;

- 7 see how they have devoured Jacob and laid waste his homesteads.
- 8 Do not remember against us the guilt of past generations but let thy compassion come swiftly to meet us,
we have been brought so low.
- 9 Help us, O God our saviour, for the
honour of thy name;
for thy name's sake deliver us and wipe out our sins.
- 10 Why should the nations ask, 'Where is their God?'
Let thy vengeance for the bloody slaughter of thy servants fall on those nations before our very eyes.
- 11 Let the groaning of the captives reach thy presence and in thy great might set free death's prisoners.
- 12 As for the contempt our neighbours pour on thee, O Lord, turn it back sevenfold on their own
heads.
- 13 Then we thy people, the flock which thou dost shepherd, will give thee thanks for ever and repeat thy praise to every generation.
- 80
- 1 Hear us, O shepherd of Israel, who ledest Joseph like a flock of sheep.
Show thyself, thou that art throned
on the cherubim,
- 2 to Ephraim and to Benjamin.
Rouse thy victorious might from slumber,<sup>c</sup>
come to our rescue.
- Restore us, O God,
and make thy face shine upon us that we may be saved.
- O LORD God of Hosts,
how long wilt thou resist thy people's prayer?
Thou hast made sorrow their daily bread
and tears of threefold grief their drink.
Thou hast humbled us before our
neighbours,
and our enemies mock us to their hearts' content.
O God of Hosts, restore us; make thy face shine upon us that we may be saved.
- Thou didst bring a vine out of Egypt, thou didst drive out nations and plant it;
thou didst clear the ground before
it,
so that it made good roots and filled
the land.
The mountains were covered with its shade,
and its branches were like those of mighty cedars.
It put out boughs all the way to the Sea
and its shoots as far as the River.
Why hast thou broken down the wall round it
so that every passer-by can pluck its fruit?
- The wild boar from the thickets gnaws it,
and swarming insects from the fields feed on it.
O God of Hosts, once more look
down from heaven,
take thought for this vine and tend it,

c from slumber: prob. rdg.; Heb. and Manasseh.

see Deut.4.23–24; 5.9. 7: Jacob, the father of the twelve patriarchs, is the ancestor of the Israelites and here a symbol for the nation. 8: Solidarity in guilt between parents and children was a belief of the OT and carried over into the NT; see Deut.5.9; Jn.9.2.

Ps. 80: Hear us, O shepherd of Israel. A group Lament, probably composed in the Northern Kingdom as suggested by the tribes named (vv. 2–3). The time may have been shortly after the fall of the Northern Kingdom in 721 B.C. The parts are indicated by the refrain found three times (vv. 3,7,19); see Ps.4.6 n. for this phrase. 1: For God to show himself to someone is to bring life and joy to that person. Cherubim: see 1 Sam.4.4. 2: Ephraim and Manasseh were the sons of Joseph who gave their names to the two principal tribes of the Northern Kingdom. The tribe of Benjamin, Joseph's younger brother, was often associated with them. 8–16: Israel is the vine, a frequent figure; see Hos.10.1 and compare Isa.5.1–7. 11: The Sea: the Mediterranean. The River: the Euphrates. 12: The wall round it serves as God's protection.

- 15 this stock that thy right hand has planted.<sup>d</sup> 16<sup>f</sup> 16 Let them that set fire to it or cut it down
perish before thy angry face.
17 Let thy hand rest upon the man at thy right side,
the man whom thou hast made strong for thy service.
18 We have not turned back from thee, so grant us new life, and we will invoke thee by name.
19 LORD God of Hosts, restore us; make thy face shine upon us that we may be saved. 12

81

- 1 Sing out in praise of God our refuge,<sup>e</sup>
acclaim the God of Jacob.
2 Take pipe and tabor,
take tuneful harp and lute.
3 Blow the horn for the new month, for the full moon on the day of our pilgrim-feast.
4 This is a law for Israel, an ordinance of the God of Jacob, 5 laid as a solemn charge on Joseph when he came out of Egypt.<sup>f</sup> 15

- 6 When I lifted the load from his
shoulders,
his hands let go the builder's basket.
7 When you cried to me in distress, I rescued you;
unseen, I answered you in
thunder.
I tested you at the waters of Meribah,
where I opened your mouths and filled them.<sup>g</sup>

- If my people would but listen to
me,
if Israel would only conform to
my ways,
I would soon bring their enemies 14
to their knees
and lay a heavy hand upon their persecutors.
Let those who hate them<sup>k</sup> come 15
cringing to them,
and meet with everlasting troubles.<sup>l</sup>

82

- God takes his stand in the court 1
of heaven
to deliver judgement among the gods themselves.

d Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds and on the son whom thou hast made strong for thy service (cp. verse 17).

e Or strength.

f Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds I hear an unfamiliar language.

g Line transposed from end of verse 10.

h I fed Israel: prob. rdg.; Heb. He fed him.

i Verse transposed. j See note on verse 7.

k those . . . them: prob. rdg.; Heb. those who hate the LORD.

l Verse 16 transposed to follow verse 7.

17: This may be a prayer for the king, or else the man a figure for Israel. 18: The vow usual in a Lament is here a promise to invoke God's name. It is overshadowed by the refrain in v. 19.

Ps. 81: Acclaim the God of Jacob. A Didactic Psalm used for a festival (possibly Passover or Booths), consisting of ritual prescriptions (vv. 1-5) and prophetic exhortation (vv. 6-15). 3: It is not clear which pilgrim-feast is meant of the three ordained in the Pentateuch: Passover, Booths, or Weeks (Deut.16.16). The first two fit the full moon prescription. 6-12: The divine words were possibly spoken as an exhortation by a cultic prophet in a liturgical recitation. This latter may begin with the words of v. 5 found in Tfn. f which would mean that God begins by saying that he met Israel as strangers (they were speaking the Egyptian language). 7: When you cried to me: see Exod.3.7. Thunder: i.e. at Sinai. Meribah: see Exod.17.7 and Ps.95.8. 9-10: No strange god: the first of the Ten Commandments; Exod.20.2-3. 13-15: God's benefits to Israel are conditional on Israel's obedience and fidelity; compare 95.7-11.

Ps. 82: Arise, O God and judge the earth. A Lament, or a Wisdom Psalm, possibly in a liturgical setting, in which a prophetic judgment against the unjust rulers of the world is given. 1: Court of heaven as an assembly of gods (Heb. elohim), superhuman beings lesser than God,

2 How long will you judge unjustly and show favour to the wicked?
3 You ought to give judgement for the weak and the orphan, and see right done to the destitute and downtrodden,
4 you ought to rescue the weak and
the poor,
and save them from the clutches of wicked men.
5 But you know nothing, you understand nothing,
you walk in the dark while earth's foundations are giving way.
6 This is my sentence: Gods you may be,
sons all of you of a high god,<sup>m</sup> 7 yet you shall die as men die;<sup>n</sup> princes fall, every one of them, and so shall you.
8 Arise, O God, and judge the earth;
for thou dost pass all nations through thy sieve.

83

1 Rest not, O God;
O God, be neither silent nor still,
2 for thy enemies are making a tumult,
and those that hate thee carry their heads high.
3 They devise cunning schemes against thy people and conspire against those thou hast made thy treasure:
4 'Come, away with them,' they cry,
'let them be a nation no longer,

let Israel's name be remembered no
more.'
With one mind they have agreed 5
together
to make a league against thee:
the families of Edom, the 6 Ishmaelites,
Moabites and Hagarenes,
Gebal, Ammon and Amalek, 7
Philistia and the citizens of Tyre, Asshur too their ally, 8
all of them lending aid to the descendants of Lot.
Deal with them as with Sisera, 9 as with Jabin by the torrent of Kishon,
who fell vanquished as Midian<sup>o</sup> fell 10
at En-harod,<sup>p</sup> and were spread on the battlefield like dung.
Make their princes like Oreb and 11
Zeeb,
make all their nobles like Zebah and Zalmunna;
for they said, 'We will seize for 12 ourselves
all the pastures of God's people.' Scatter them, O God, like 13 thistledown,
like chaff before the wind.
Like fire raging through the forest 14 or flames which blaze across the
hills,
hunt them down with thy tempest, 15 and dismay them with thy storm-
wind.
Heap shame upon their heads, O 16
LORD,

m Or of the Most High.
n Or as Adam died.
o as Midian: transposed from previous verse.
p En-harod: prob. rdg., cp. Judg. 7. 1; Heb. Endor.

is found also in 89.5-7; Job 1.6 and elsewhere. Some scholars interpret "gods" (here and in v. 6) literally as a mythological motif taken over from Canaanite literature. Others see it as a reference to human judges, as in Jn.10.34. 2-7: One explanation of evil in the world was that heavenly beings abused the power over the world given them by God; compare Col.2.6-15. The divine words, possibly spoken by a prophet in a temple ceremony, contain a condemnation of these beings by God; this takes the place of the lamentation and the vow usual in a Lament.

Ps. 83: Rest not, O God. A Lament calling for vengeance on the nations which intended to destroy Israel. The exact historic situation is unclear; a loose connection with Ps.79 is possible. A call for help (v. 1) arises from the aggressive plans of the nations (vv. 2-8); a plea follows for their destruction (vv. 9-18) as other foes were once destroyed (vv. 9-11). 6-7: The enemies are neighboring nations, often mentioned in Scripture, except for the unclear Hagarenes. Since the Ishmaelites were descended from Hagar (Gen.16.15), the name may be a synonym for Ishmaelites, a desert people. Gebal probably means the Phoenician city Byblos. An interesting variant from Masada reads "the gods of Edom" instead of the families of Edom. 8: Asshur is clearly Assyria, but the allusion is not clear. Lot's descendants were Ammon and Moab (Gen.19.30-38). 9: Sisera and Jabin: see Judg. chs. 4-5. 10: Midian: compare Judg. chs. 6-8. 11: Oreb . . . Zeeb: Judg.7.25. Zebah and Zalmunna: Judg.8.21. 12-19: A characteristic curse.

- until they confess the greatness of thy name.
- 17 Let them be abashed, and live in perpetual dismay;
let them feel their shame and perish.
- 18 So let them learn that thou alone
art LORD,
God Most High over all the earth.

84

- 1 How dear is thy dwelling-place, thou LORD of Hosts!
- 2 I pine, I faint with longing for the courts of the LORD's
temple;
my whole being cries out with joy to the living God.
- 3 Even the sparrow finds a home,
and the swallow has her nest, where she rears her brood beside thy altars,
O LORD of Hosts, my King and
my God.
- 4 Happy are those who dwell in thy
house;
they never cease from praising
thee.
- 5 Happy the men whose refuge is in
thee,
whose hearts are set on the pilgrim ways!<sup>1</sup>
- 6 As they pass through the thirsty valley
they find water from a spring;
and the LORD provides even men who lose their way
with pools to quench their thirst.<sup>2</sup>
- 7 So they pass on from outer wall to inner,
and the God of gods shows himself in Zion.
- 8 O LORD God of Hosts, hear my
prayer;
listen, O God of Jacob.
- 9 O God, look upon our lord the king and accept thy anointed prince with favour.

- Better one day in thy courts 10
than a thousand days at home; better to linger by the threshold of God's house than to live in the dwellings of the wicked.
- The LORD God is a battlement and 11
a shield;
grace and honour are his to give.
The LORD will hold back no good thing
from those whose life is blameless.

O LORD of Hosts, 12
happy the man who trusts in thee!

85

- LORD, thou hast been gracious to 1 thy land and turned the tide of Jacob's fortunes.
- Thou hast forgiven the guilt of 2
thy people
and put away all their sins.
Thou hast taken back all thy 3
anger
and turned from thy bitter wrath.
- Turn back to us, O God our 4 saviour,
and cancel thy displeasure.
Wilt thou be angry with us for ever? 5 Must thy wrath last for all generations?
- Wilt thou not give us new life 6 that thy people may rejoice in thee?
O LORD, show us thy true love 7 and grant us thy deliverance.

Let me hear the words of the LORD: 8 are they not<sup>3</sup> words of peace,

<sup>1</sup> are set . . . ways: or high praises fill.
<sup>2</sup> they find . . . thirst: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.
<sup>3</sup> of the LORD: are they not: prob. rdg.; Heb. of God
the LORD.

Ps. 84: Happy are those who dwell in thy house. A Hymn, probably sung by a pilgrim at the Temple on a festival. A prayer for the king (vv. 8-9) may be an addition. The praise of the Temple (vv. 1-4) is followed by an allusion to the pilgrim's journey (vv. 5-7), and an exaltation of the Temple (vv. 10-12) closes the psalm. 6: Thirsty: older translations interpreted the Heb. to mean "valley of weeping."

Ps. 85: Wilt thou not give us new life? A national Lament (see Introduction), possibly composed during the difficult times following the return from the Exile, as seems indicated by v. 12;

- peace to his people and his loyal servants and to all who turn and trust in him?
- 9 Deliverance is near to those who worship him, so that glory may dwell in our land.
- 10 Love and fidelity have come together;
justice and peace join hands.
- 11 Fidelity springs up from earth and justice looks down from heaven.
- 12 The LORD will add prosperity, and our land shall yield its harvest.
- 13 Justice shall go in front of him and the path before his feet shall be peace.<sup>t</sup>
- 86
- 1 Turn to me, LORD, and answer;
I am downtrodden and poor.
- 2 Guard me, for I am constant and true;
save thy servant who puts his trust in thee.
- 3 O Lord my God,<sup>u</sup> show me thy favour;
I call to thee all day long.
- 4 Fill thy servant's heart with joy,
O Lord,
for I lift up my heart to thee.
- 5 Thou, O Lord, art kind and forgiving, full of true love for all who cry to thee.
- 6 Listen, O LORD, to my prayer and hear my pleading.
- 7 In the day of my distress I call on thee;
for thou wilt answer me.
- 8 Among the gods not one is like thee, O Lord, no deeds are like thine.
- 9 All the nations thou hast made,
O Lord, will come,
- will bow down before thee and honour thy name;
for thou art great, thy works are wonderful, thou alone art God.
- Guide me, O LORD,
that I may be true to thee and follow thy path;
let me be one in heart with those who revere thy name.
- I will praise thee, O Lord my God, with all my heart
and honour thy name for ever.
- For thy true love stands high above me;
thou hast rescued my soul from the depths of Sheol.
- O God, proud men attack me;
a mob of ruffians seek my life and give no thought to thee.
- Thou, Lord, art God, compassionate and gracious, forbearing, ever constant and true.
- Turn towards me and show me thy favour;
grant thy slave protection and rescue thy slave-girl's son.
- Give me proof of thy kindness;
let those who hate thee see to their shame that thou, O LORD, hast been my help and comfort.
- 87<sup>v</sup>
- The LORD loves the gates of Zion more than all the dwellings of Jacob;
her<sup>w</sup> foundations are laid upon holy hills, and he has made her his home.<sup>x</sup>

<sup>t</sup> and the path . . . peace: prob. rdg.; Heb. so that he may put his feet to the way.

<sup>u</sup> my God: transposed from previous verse.

<sup>v</sup> The text of this psalm is disordered, and several verses have been re-arranged.

<sup>w</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. his.

<sup>x</sup> his home: prob. rdg.; Heb. most high.

see Neh.5.1-5. 9: Glory may refer to the presence of God in the Temple. His presence left Jerusalem at the Exile and returned with the captives; see Ezek.11.23-24; 43.1-2. 10-11: God's love and Israel's fidelity are seen as a dialogue between heaven and earth.

Ps. 86: Listen, O Lord, to my prayer. A Lament. 1: Downtrodden: perhaps to be taken literally, but more likely the usual language of self-abasement. 13: Rescued my soul from Sheol: saved my life from death. 16: Thy slave-girl's son is the psalmist.

Ps. 87: O city of God. A Hymn. It has long been recognized as transmitted defectively; see Tfn. v. Zion, the city of God, is the mother of the faithful of all the world. 4: Egypt: Heb.

I will count Egypt and Babylon among my friends;
Philistine, Tyrian and Nubian shall be<sup>y</sup> there;
and Zion shall be called a mother in whom men of every race are born.
6 The LORD shall write against each in the roll of nations:
'This one was born in her.'
7 Singers and dancers alike all chant<sup>z</sup> your praises,
3 proclaiming glorious things of you,
O city of God.

and spread out my hands in prayer to thee.

Dost thou work wonders for the 10
dead?
Shall their company rise up and praise thee?
Will they speak of thy faithful love 11
in the grave,
of thy sure help in the place of Destruction?
Will thy wonders be known in the 12
dark,
thy victories in the land of oblivion?

88

1 O LORD, my God, by day I call for help,<sup>a</sup>
by night I cry aloud in thy presence.
2 Let my prayer come before thee, hear my loud lament;
3 for I have had my fill of woes, and they have brought me to the threshold of Sheol.
4 I am numbered with those who go down to the abyss
and have become like a man
beyond help,
5 like a man who lies dead<sup>b</sup> or the slain who sleep in the grave,
whom thou rememberest no more because they are cut off from thy care.
6 Thou hast plunged me into the lowest abyss,
in dark places, in the depths.
7 Thy wrath rises against me, thou hast turned on me the full force of thy anger.<sup>c</sup> 8 Thou hast taken all my friends far
from me,
and made me loathsome to them.
I am in prison and cannot escape; 9 my eyes are failing and dim with anguish.
I have called upon thee, O LORD,
every day

But, LORD, I cry to thee, 13 my prayer comes before thee in the morning.
Why hast thou cast me off, O LORD, 14 why dost thou hide thy face from
me?
I have suffered from boyhood and 15
come near to death;
I have borne thy terrors, I cower beneath thy blows.
Thy burning fury has swept over me, 16 thy onslaughts have put me to
silence;
all the day long they surge round 17
me like a flood,
they engulf me in a moment.
Thou hast taken lover and friend 18 far from me,
and parted me from my companions.

89

I will sing the story of thy love, O 1
LORD, for ever;
I will proclaim thy faithfulness to all
generations.

<sup>y</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds this one was born (cp. verse 6).
<sup>z</sup> all chant: prob. rdg.; Heb. all my springs.
<sup>a</sup> I call for help: prob. rdg.; Heb. my deliverance.
<sup>b</sup> who lies dead: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.
<sup>c</sup> anger: or waves.

Rahab, the sea dragon, a frequent figure for Egypt. 6: Against each: respecting each. Born in her: her citizens.

Ps. 88: Hear my loud lament. An extremely bitter Lament of a man desperately ill, perhaps from a life-long sickness (v. 15). 3-5: He considers himself all but dead, Sheol and abyss being the place of the dead. 10-12: A classic description of Sheol. The motive for securing God's healing is that no one can praise God in the grave. 13: The usual vow is the promise of prayer.

Ps. 89: How long must thy wrath blaze like fire? A Lament with a complicated structure, including a hymn and a royal prayer for a lasting line (v. 36). 1-8: A hymn of praise to the Creator-King.

- 2 Thy true love is firm as the ancient earth,<sup>d</sup>
thy faithfulness fixed as the heavens.
- 5<sup>e</sup> The heavens praise thy wonders,
O LORD,
and the council of the holy ones exalts thy faithfulness.
- 6 In the skies who is there like the
LORD,
who like the LORD in the court of
heaven,
7 like God who is dreaded among the assembled holy ones, great and terrible above all who stand about him?
- 8 O LORD God of Hosts, who is like
thee?
Thy strength<sup>f</sup> and faithfulness, O LORD, surround thee.
- 9 Thou rulest the surging sea, calming the turmoil<sup>g</sup> of its waves.
- 10 Thou didst crush the monster Rahab with a mortal blow and scatter thy enemies with thy strong arm.
- 11 Thine are the heavens, the earth is
thine also;
the world with all that is in it is of thy foundation.
- 12 Thou didst create Zaphon and Amanus;<sup>h</sup>
Tabor and Hermon echo thy name.
- 13 Strength of arm and valour are thine;
thy hand is mighty, thy right hand lifted high; 14 thy throne is built upon righteousness and justice,
true love and faithfulness herald thy coming.
- 15 Happy the people who have learnt to acclaim thee, who walk, O LORD, in the light of
thy presence!
- 16 In thy name they shall rejoice all
day long;
thy righteousness shall lift them up.
- 17 Thou art thyself the strength in which they glory;
through thy favour we hold our
heads high.
- The LORD, he is our shield;
the Holy One of Israel, he is our
king.
- Then didst thou announce in a vision
and declare to thy faithful servants:
I have made a covenant with him
I have chosen,
I have sworn to my servant
David;
'I will establish your posterity for
ever,
I will make your throne endure for
all generations.'
- I have endowed a warrior with princely gifts,
so that the youth I have chosen towers over his people.
- I have discovered David my servant;
I have anointed him with my holy oil.
- My hand shall be ready to help him and my arm to give him strength.
- No enemy shall strike at him and no rebel bring him low;
- I will shatter his foes before him and vanquish those who hate him.
- My faithfulness and true love shall be with him
and through my name he shall hold his head high.
- I will extend his rule over the Sea and his dominion as far as the River.
- He will say to me, 'Thou art my father,
my God, my rock and my safe
refuge.'
- And I will name him my first-born, highest among the kings of the
earth.

<sup>d</sup> Thy . . . earth: prob. rdg.; Heb. Thou hast said for ever true love shall be made firm.

<sup>e</sup> Verses 3 and 4 transposed to follow servants in verse 19.

<sup>f</sup> Thy strength: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.

<sup>g</sup> turmoil: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.

<sup>h</sup> Amanus: prob. rdg.; Heb. right hand or south.

5-7: See 82.1 n. Terrible: inspires terror. 9-10: On the mythical language of creation see 74.12-17 n.; Isa. 51.9-10. 12: The four mountains, Zaphon (48.2 n.), Amanus in southern Turkey, Tabor in northern Israel, and Hermon in Syria, near Damascus, were considered sacred in ancient myths as residences of the gods. 14: Righteousness, justice, true love, and faithfulness are the most characteristic attributes of God in his covenant dealings with Israel. 18: Shield: protector. 19-37: God's words which proclaimed an eternal dynasty for David and his descendants, even should the latter fall into disobedience (v. 32). 26-27: First-born: the position of highest favor.

- 28 I will maintain my love for him for ever and be faithful in my covenant with him.
- 29 I will establish his posterity for ever and his throne as long as the heavens endure.
- 30 If his sons forsake my law and do not conform to my judgements, 31 if they renounce my statutes and do not observe my commands, 32 I will punish their disobedience with the rod
and their iniquity with lashes.
- 33 Yet I will not deprive him of my true love nor let my faithfulness prove false; 34 I will not renounce my covenant nor change my promised purpose.
- 35 I have sworn by my holiness once and for all,
I will not break my word to David:
36 his posterity shall continue for ever,
his throne before me like the sun; 37 it shall be sure for ever as the moon's return, faithful so long as the skies remain.<sup>3</sup>
- 38 Yet thou hast rejected thy anointed king, thou hast spurned him and raged against him,<sup>1</sup> 39 thou hast denounced the covenant with thy servant,
defiled his crown and flung it to the ground.
- 40 Thou hast breached his walls and laid his fortresses in ruin; 41 all who pass by plunder him, and he suffers the taunts of his neighbours.
- 42 Thou hast increased the power of his enemies and brought joy to all his foes; 43 thou hast let his sharp sword be driven back and left him without help in the battle.
- Thou hast put an end to his glorious rule<sup>k</sup> and hurled his throne to the ground; thou hast cut short the days of his youth and vigour and covered him with shame.
- How long, O LORD, wilt thou hide thyself from sight?
How long must thy wrath blaze like fire?
Remember that I shall not live for ever;<sup>l</sup> hast thou created man in vain?
What man shall live and not see death or save himself from the power of Sheol?
Where are those former acts of thy love, O Lord, those faithful promises given to David?
Remember, O Lord, the taunts hurled at thy servant, how I have borne in my heart the calumnies of the nations;<sup>m</sup> so have thy enemies taunted us, O LORD,
taunted the successors of thy anointed king.
- Blessed is the LORD for ever.
- Amen, Amen.

BOOK 4

90

- Lord, thou hast been our refuge 1
from generation to generation.
Before the mountains were brought forth, or earth and world were born in travail, 2

i so long . . . remain: prob. rdg.; Heb. a witness in the skies.

j raged against him: or put him out of mind.

k his glorious rule: prob. rdg.; Heb. from his purity.

l live for ever: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.

m the calumnies . . . nations: prob. rdg.; Heb. all of many peoples.

38–45: A military defeat seems to have ended the king's glorious rule and nullified the covenant. 46: God's wrath blazes when he hides himself from man's sight, i.e. experience. 47–51: The fragility of man and God's faithfulness to his promises are motives for deliverance.

Ps. 90: Teach us to order our days. A Lament of the community in which the description of from age to age everlasting thou art

God.
3 Thou turnest man back into dust;
'Turn back,' thou sayest, 'you sons of men';
4 for in thy sight a thousand years are as yesterday;
5 a night-watch passes, and thou hast cut them off;
they are like a dream at daybreak, 6 they fade like grass which springs up<sup>n</sup> with the morning but when evening comes is parched and withered.
7 So we are brought to an end by thy
anger
and silenced by thy wrath.
8 Thou dost lay bare our iniquities
before thee
and our lusts in the full light of
thy presence.
9 All our days go by under the shadow of thy wrath;
our years die away like a murmur.
10 Seventy years is the span of our
life,
eighty if our strength holds;<sup>o</sup> the hurrying years are labour and sorrow,
so quickly they pass and are
forgotten.
11 Who feels the power of thy anger, who feels thy wrath like those that fear thee?
12 Teach us to order our days rightly, that we may enter the gate of
wisdom.
13 How long, O LORD?
Relent, and take pity on thy
servants.
14 Satisfy us with thy love when morning breaks,
that we may sing for joy and be glad all our days.
15 Repay us days of gladness for our days of suffering,
for the years thou hast humbled us.
16 Show thy servants thy deeds and their children thy majesty.

May all delightful things be ours, O 17
Lord our God;
establish firmly all we do.

91

You that live in the shelter of 1
the Most High
and lodge under the shadow of
the Almighty,
who say, 'The LORD is my safe 2 retreat,
my God the fastness in which I trust';
he himself will snatch you away 3 from fowler's snare or raging tempest.
He will cover you with his pinions, 4 and you shall find safety beneath his wings;
you shall not fear the hunters' trap 5
by night
or the arrow that flies by day, the pestilence that stalks in darkness 6 or the plague raging at noonday.
A thousand may fall at your side, 7 ten thousand close at hand,
but you it shall not touch;
his truth<sup>p</sup> will be your shield and your rampart.<sup>q</sup> With your own eyes you shall see 8 all this;
you shall watch the punishment
of the wicked.
For you, the LORD is a<sup>r</sup> safe retreat; 9 you have made the Most High your refuge.
No disaster shall befall you, 10 no calamity shall come upon your
home.
For he has charged his angels 11 to guard you wherever you go, to lift you on their hands 12 for fear you should strike your foot against a stone.

n Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds and passes away.

o Or eighty at the most. p Or his arm.

q his truth . . . rampart: transposed from end of verse 4.

r Prob. rdg.; Heb. my.

the grievance is a wisdomlike reflection on the transient condition of human life (vv. 3-12). This psalm, standing at the beginning of Book 4, resembles in form and content Pss. 42-43, which begin Book 2. 13-17: The petition for deliverance has as its motive the prolonged suffering of the past.

Ps. 91: I will satisfy him with long life. A psalm of trust in the Wisdom tradition. 1: Most High, Almighty, LORD, God represent different Heb. names for God. To know the name of a person indicates a deep knowledge of, and special power over, the person; see v. 14. 6: Pestilence and plague: considered demonic powers in Israelite belief. 11-12: Used in Mt.4.6; Lk.4.10-11.

- 13 You shall step on asp and cobra, you shall tread safely on snake and serpent. 7
- 14 Because his love is set on me, I will deliver him;
I will lift him beyond danger, for he knows me by my name. 8
- 15 When he calls upon me, I will
answer;
I will be with him in time of
trouble;
I will rescue him and bring him to honour. 9
- 16 I will satisfy him with long life to enjoy the fullness of my salvation. 10
- I lift my head high, like a wild ox tossing its horn;
I am anointed richly with oil.
I gloat over all who speak ill of me,
I listen for the downfall of my cruel foes. 11
- The righteous flourish like a palm-
tree,
they grow tall as a cedar on Lebanon;
planted as they are in the house
of the LORD,
they flourish in the courts of our
God,
vigorous in old age like trees full of sap,
luxuriant, wide-spreading, eager to declare that the LORD is just, 14
- the LORD my rock,<sup>s</sup> in whom there is no unrighteousness. 15
- 92
- 1 O LORD, it is good to give thee
thanks,
to sing psalms to thy name, O
Most High,
2 to declare thy love in the morning and thy constancy every night, 3 to the music of a ten-stringed lute, to the sounding chords of the harp.
- 4 Thy acts, O LORD, fill me with
exultation;
I shout in triumph at thy mighty
deeds.
- 5 How great are thy deeds, O LORD!
How fathomless thy thoughts!
- 6 He who does not know this is a brute,
a fool is he who does not understand this:
- 93
- The LORD is king; he is clothed in
majesty;
the LORD clothes himself with might and fastens on his belt of wrath. 1

<sup>s</sup> Or creator.

14-16: The words are God's, perhaps in an oracle spoken by a priest in the Temple; they reflect the Wisdom teaching that God tests the virtuous by their suffering, but in the end will deliver them.

Ps. 92: It is good to give thanks. A Thanksgiving Psalm which has a hymn of praise for introduction (vv. 1-5) and a Wisdom-tradition description of the "two ways of human life," good rewarded and evil punished. 8-9: God, Creator-King, reigns forever because he has defeated the cosmic powers. This is one of several echoes in Psalms of a common ancient myth. The MT equivalent to v. 9 has three portions instead of the usual two: (1) For lo, thy enemies, O LORD, (2) for lo thy enemies will surely perish, (3) all evildoers will be scattered. Many scholars view the MT version as a parallel to a "tricolon" found in a Ugaritic text (68.8-9) describing Baal's defeat of the Sea: "Lo, your enemies, O Baal, Lo your enemies you will smite, Lo, you will vanquish your foes." 10: Ox tossing its horn: symbol of strength; anointed with oil: symbol of well-being and prosperity. 13: Other passages (e.g. 52.8; Exod.15.17) speak of righteous people as planted in God's house.

Ps. 93: The LORD is King. An Enthronement Hymn, as are also Pss. 95-99 and 47; see 47 n. The theme of enthronement (vv. 1-2) moves (3-4) to a recollection of the cosmic warfare (symbolized by the control of the sea); see 74.12-17; 104.7-9; Job 38.8-11. 1: The belt is that of the warrior, as if to say that God is valiant in warfare; compare Exod.15.3; Isa 42.13. "King," "warrior," and "creator" are many times synonymous, and all are implied in this

Thou hast fixed the earth immovable and firm, 2 thy throne firm from of old;
 from all eternity thou art God.
 3 O LORD, the ocean lifts up, the ocean lifts up its clamour;
 the ocean lifts up<sup>t</sup> its pounding waves.
 4 The LORD on high is mightier far
 than the noise of great waters, mightier than the breakers of
 the sea.
 5 Thy law stands firm, and holiness is the beauty of thy temple, while time shall last, O LORD.

94

1 O LORD, thou God of vengeance, thou God of vengeance, show thyself.
 2 Rise up, judge of the earth;
 punish the arrogant as they deserve.
 3 How long shall the wicked, O LORD, how long shall the wicked exult?
 4 Evildoers are full of bluster, boasting and swaggering;
 5 they beat down thy people,
 O LORD,
 and oppress thy chosen nation;
 6 they murder the widow and the stranger
 and do the fatherless to death; 7 they say, 'The LORD does not see, the God of Jacob pays no heed.' 8 Pay heed yourselves, most brutish of the people;
 you fools, when will you be wise?
 9 Does he that planted the ear not
 hear,
 he that moulded the eye not see?
 10 Shall not he that instructs the nations correct them?
 The teacher of mankind, has he no<sup>u</sup> knowledge?

The LORD knows the thoughts of 11
 man,
 that they are but a puff of wind.
 Happy the man whom thou dost 12 instruct, O LORD,
 and teach out of thy law, giving him respite from adversity 13
 until a pit is dug for the wicked.
 The LORD will not abandon his 14
 people
 nor forsake his chosen nation;
 for righteousness still informs 15 his judgement,<sup>v</sup> and all upright men follow it.
 Who is on my side against these 16 sinful men?
 Who will stand up for me against these evildoers?
 If the LORD had not been my helper, 17
 I should soon have slept in the silent
 grave.
 When I felt that my foot was 18 slipping,
 thy love, O LORD, held me up.
 Anxious thoughts may fill my 19
 heart,
 but thy presence is my joy and my consolation.
 Shall sanctimonious calumny 20
 call thee partner,
 or he that contrives a mischief
 under cover of law?
 For they put the righteous on 21 trial<sup>w</sup> for his life and condemn to death innocent
 men.
 But the LORD has been my strong 22
 tower,
 and God my rock of refuge;
 our God requites the wicked for 23
 their injustice,

<sup>t</sup> the ocean lifts up: or let the ocean lift up.
<sup>u</sup> no: prob. rdg.; Heb. om.
<sup>v</sup> for . . . judgement: prob. rdg.; Heb. for judgement will return as far as righteousness.
<sup>w</sup> they put . . . trial: prob. rdg.; Heb. they cut the
 righteous.

Hymn. 2-4: God controls the sea, and hence secures order in all creation. 5: Holiness is the divine quality of being removed from and beyond the profane and human.

Ps. 94: Thy love, O LORD, held me up. It is difficult to say whether this psalm is a Thanksgiving in which former trials are described, or a Lament in which deliverance and thanksgiving are anticipated. There is an invocation of God to help (vv. 1-3); the description of the trials (if a Lament) is in the Wisdom motif of the "two ways"—the evil and their punishment (vv. 4-11) and the virtuous being tested and their reward (vv. 12-15). 20-21: Under pious pretense of carrying out God's law, the powerful oppress the innocent weak; see 1 Kgs. 21.1-14; Job 13.4-7.

the LORD puts them to silence for their misdeeds.

As I swore in my anger: 11
They shall never enter my rest.

95

96

- 1 Come! Let us raise a joyful song to
the LORD,
a shout of triumph to the Rock of our salvation.
- 2 Let us come into his presence with thanksgiving,
and sing him psalms of triumph.
- 3 For the LORD is a great God,
a great king over all gods;
- 4 the farthest places of the earth are
in his hands,
and the folds of the hills are his;
- 5 the sea is his, he made it;
the dry land fashioned by his hands
is his.
- 6 Come! Let us throw ourselves at his feet in homage,
let us kneel before the LORD who made us;
- 7 for he is our God,
we are his people, we the flock he
shepherds.
You shall know<sup>x</sup> his power today
if you will listen to his voice.
- 8 Do not grow stubborn, as you were at Meribah,<sup>y</sup> as at the time of Massah<sup>z</sup> in the
wilderness,
- 9 when your forefathers challenged
me,
tested me and saw for themselves
all that I did.
- 10 For forty years I was indignant with that generation, and I said: They are a people whose hearts are
astray,
and they will not discern my ways.

- Sing a new song to the LORD; 1<sup>a</sup> sing to the LORD, all men on earth.
Sing to the LORD and bless his name, 2 proclaim his triumph day by day.
Declare his glory among the nations, 3 his marvellous deeds among all peoples.
Great is the LORD and worthy of all 4 praise;
he is more to be feared than all gods.
For the gods of the nations are 5 idols every one;
but the LORD made the heavens.
Majesty and splendour attend him, 6 might and beauty are in his
sanctuary.
- Ascribe to the LORD, you families 7
of nations,
ascribe to the LORD glory and might;
ascribe to the LORD the glory due 8
to his name,
bring a gift and come into his courts.
- Bow down to the LORD in the 9 splendour of holiness,<sup>b</sup> and dance in his honour, all men
on earth.
- Declare among the nations, 'The 10
LORD is king.
He has fixed the earth firm,
immovable;
he will judge the peoples justly.'
Let the heavens rejoice and the earth 11
exult,

<sup>x</sup> You shall know: prob. rdg.; Heb. om.

<sup>y</sup> That is Dispute.

<sup>z</sup> That is Challenge.

<sup>a</sup> Verses 1-13: cp. 1 Chr. 16. 23-33.

<sup>b</sup> the splendour of holiness: or holy vestments.

Ps. 95: The LORD is a great God. An Enthronement Hymn (see Ps. 47 n.) with the motif of God as king, expressed in a liturgical ceremony. 1: God is the Rock of our salvation. This is either in reference to the rock which gave water in the desert (Exod.17.1-7) or the rock on which the Temple stood (2 Sam.24.18). 3-7: God is king in virtue of being the Creator. 3: Gods: see 82.1 n. 7: Know his power: experience his helping presence. Israel listened to God's voice speaking in nature and in the covenant. Vv. 7b-11 are quoted in Heb.3.7-11; 4.3-11. 8-9: For the event at Meribah see Exod.17.1-7; Num.20.1-13. 10: Forty years is usually symbolic of one generation; see Num.14.33. 11: My rest: land of Canaan; see Deut.3.20; 12.10.

Ps. 96: The LORD is King. An Enthronement Hymn; see Ps. 47 n. It is found also in 1 Chr.16.23-33 though the order of lines is different. There it appears as used on the occasion of the movement of the Ark of the Covenant to Jerusalem. 4-6: Than all gods: see 82.1 n.; 89.5-7. God as Creator is a usual motif in Enthronement psalms, as is his sanctuary. 10-13: A description of God as the divine king, Creator and judge.

	let the sea roar and all the creatures in it,	The LORD loves <sup>d</sup> those who hate evil;	10
12	let the fields exult and all that is in them;	he keeps his loyal servants safe and rescues them from the wicked.
	then let all the trees of the forest shout for joy	A harvest of light is sown for the righteous,	11
13	before the LORD when he comes to judge the earth.	and joy for all good men.
	He will judge the earth with righteousness	You that are righteous, rejoice in the LORD	12 and the peoples in good faith.	and praise his holy name.

97

98

1	The LORD is king, let the earth be glad,	Sing a new song to the LORD, for he has done marvellous deeds;	1
	let coasts and islands all rejoice.	his right hand and holy arm have won him victory.
2	Cloud and mist enfold him, righteousness and justice are the foundation of his throne.	The LORD has made his victory known;	2
3	Fire goes before him and burns up his enemies all around.	he has displayed his righteousness to all the nations.
4	The world is lit up beneath his lightning-flash; the earth sees it and writhes in pain.	He has remembered his constancy, his love for the house of Israel.	3
		All the ends of the earth have seen the victory of our God.
5	The mountains melt like wax as the LORD approaches, the Lord of all the earth.	Acclaim the LORD, all men on earth,	4
6	The heavens proclaim his righteousness, and all peoples see his glory.	break into songs of joy, sing psalms. Sing psalms in the LORD's honour	5
7	Let all who worship images, who vaunt their idols, be put to shame; bow down, all gods, <sup>e</sup> before him.	with the harp, with the harp and with the music of the psaltery.
		With trumpet and echoing horn acclaim the presence of the LORD our king.	6
8	Zion heard and rejoiced, the cities of Judah were glad	Let the sea roar and all its creatures, the world and those who dwell in it.	7
9	For thou, LORD, art most high over all the earth, far exalted above all gods.	Let the rivers clap their hands, let the hills sing aloud together	8

<sup>c</sup> bow . . . gods: or all gods bow down . . .
<sup>d</sup> The LORD loves: prob. rdg.; Heb. Lovers of the LORD.

Ps. 97: The LORD is King. An Enthronement Hymn with motifs of God's future final victory and rule over all peoples (vv. 1-7); see Ps.47 n. 2-6: The images employed here occur in other psalms; see 18.7-15; 50.1-3. 9: Above all gods: see 82.1 n.; 89.6-7.

Ps. 98: The LORD our King. An Enthronement Hymn (Ps.47 n.) with motifs of God's final judgment and establishment of "peoples in justice" (v. 9). The themes in this and other Enthronement psalms are frequent in Isa. chs. 40-55, e.g. 41.1-5. 1: God's right hand . . . won him victory, both initially and most decisively, over chaos at the time of creation. 2-3: God's creative power is continued by his characteristic qualities in dealing with Israel: righteousness, constancy, love, justice (v. 9). 5-6: A flourish of trumpets accompanies God's enthronement here as it did at the making of the covenant on Sinai (Exod.19.16), in the manner of the coronation of the kings of Israel; see 2 Sam.15.10; 1 Kgs.1.34. 7-9: Compare, e.g. 96.7-13 and Isa.14.23; 52.10.

- 9 before the LORD; for he comes to judge the earth.
He will judge the world with
righteousness
and the peoples in justice.

99

- 1 The LORD is king, the peoples are perturbed;
he is throned on the cherubim, earth
quivers.
2 The LORD is great in Zion;
he is exalted above all the peoples.
3 They extol his<sup>e</sup> name as great and terrible;
4 he is holy, he is mighty,
a king who loves justice.

Thou hast established justice and equity;
thou hast dealt righteously in Jacob.
5 Exalt the LORD our God, bow down before his footstool;
he is holy.

- 6 Moses and Aaron among his
priests,
and Samuel among those who
call on his name,
called to the LORD, and he answered.
7 He spoke to them in a pillar of
cloud;
they followed his teaching and kept the law he gave them.
8 Thou, O LORD our God, thou didst answer them;
thou wast a God who forgave all
their misdeeds
and held them innocent.
9 Exalt the LORD our God,
bow down towards his holy hill;
for the LORD our God is holy.

100

- Acclaim the LORD, all men on
earth,
worship the LORD in gladness; 2 enter his presence with songs of exultation.
3 Know that the LORD is God;
he has made us and we are his own,
his people, the flock which he shepherds.
4 Enter his gates with thanksgiving and his courts with praise.
5 Give thanks to him and bless his
name;
for the LORD is good and his love is everlasting,
his constancy endures to all generations.

101

- I sing of loyalty and justice;
1 I will raise a psalm to thee, O LORD.<sup>f</sup>
2 I will follow a wise and blameless
course,
whatever may befall me.<sup>g</sup>
I will go about my house in purity of heart.
3 I will set before myself no sordid aim;
I will hate disloyalty, I will have none of it.
4 I will reject all crooked thoughts;
I will have no dealings with evil.
5 I will silence those who spread tales behind men's backs,

<sup>e</sup> Prob. rdg.: Heb. thy.

<sup>f</sup> I sing . . . O LORD; or I will follow a course of justice and loyalty; I will hold thee in awe, O LORD.

<sup>g</sup> whatever may befall me; prob. rdg.: Heb. when comest thou to me?

Ps. 99: The LORD is King. An Enthronement Hymn; see 47 n. There is more emphasis than usual on God's distance from Israel because "he is holy," yet at the same time his closeness to Israel in historical events is presented. Note the refrain "he is holy" in vv. 4, 5, and 9. 1: Cherubim: see Exod. 25.18-22. 4: God is holy because he is beyond the reach of the mundane. 6-8: Moses (Exod. 32.30-35), Aaron (Num. 16.46-50), and Samuel (1 Sam. 7.8-9) interceded with God and were favorably answered. It is unusual for Moses to be included among the priests.

Ps. 100: The LORD is God. An Enthronement Hymn (see 47 n.), or a part of an incomplete one. Some regard it as a deliberate close of the collection of Enthronement hymns: Pss. 93, 95-99. It carries on the themes of these other, longer psalms.

Ps. 101: A wise and blameless course. A Royal Psalm. It may represent the king's vow at the time of the coronation; compare Ps. 45. In much biblical thought, the king is viewed as God's representative on earth. Hence, a proper king needed to display the qualities attributed to God himself. Here the king offers such assurance. 2: Purity of heart: sincerity and single-heartedness.

	I will not sit at table with proud, pompous men,	But thou, LORD, art enthroned for ever	12
6	I will choose the most loyal for my companions; my servants shall be men whose lives are blameless.	and thy fame shall be known to all generations.
7	No scandal-monger shall live in my household; no liar shall set himself up where I can see him.	Thou wilt arise and have mercy on Zion;	13
8	Morning after morning I will put all wicked men to silence and will rid the LORD's city of all evildoers.	for the time is come <sup>t</sup> to pity her. Her very stones are dear to thy servants, and even her dust moves them with pity.	14
		Then shall the nations revere thy name, O LORD; and all the kings of the earth thy glory,	15
		when the LORD builds up Zion again and shows himself in his glory.	16
		He turns to hear the prayer of the destitute	17
		and does not scorn them when they pray.
		This shall be written down for future generations, and a people yet unborn shall praise the LORD.	18
		The LORD looks down from his sanctuary on high,	19
		from heaven he surveys the earth to listen to the groaning of the prisoners	20 and set free men under sentence of death;
		so shall the LORD's name be on men's lips in Zion and his praise shall be told in Jerusalem,	21
		when peoples are assembled together, peoples and kingdoms, to serve the LORD.	22
		My strength is broken in mid course;	23
		the time allotted me is short.	24
		Snatch me not away before half my days are done,

<sup>h</sup> Wasted away; transposed from previous verse.
<sup>i</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds season.

8: The LORD's city: probably Jerusalem, but it can refer more restrictedly to the Temple and palace quarter.

Ps. 102: Let my cry for help reach thee. A Lament (see Introduction). The first section (vv. 1–11) contains an individual's cry for help from his sickness and loneliness; next (vv. 12–22) there is an appeal to God to have mercy on and rebuild Zion. Finally (vv. 23–28) there is another individual cry for help, as from an ill man; it contrasts the brevity of human life with the eternity of God in the manner of Wisdom literature (see Ecclus. ch. 17). 2: Hide not thy face: see 4.6 n. and 10.11. 14: Stones . . . dust: possibly an allusion to the Temple lying in ruins. 19: Sanctuary

- for thy years last through all generations.
- 25 Long ago thou didst lay the foundations of the earth, and the heavens were thy handiwork.
- 26 They shall pass away, but thou endurest; like clothes they shall all grow old; thou shalt cast them off like a cloak, and they shall vanish;
- 27 but thou art the same and thy years shall have no end;
- 28 thy servants' children shall continue, and their posterity shall be established in thy presence.
- long-suffering and for ever constant;
he will not always be the accuser or nurse his anger for all time.
He has not treated us as our sins deserve
or requited us for our misdeeds.
For as the heaven stands high above
the earth,
so his strong love stands high over all who fear him.
Far as east is from west,
so far has he put our offences away from us.
As a father has compassion on his children,
so has the LORD compassion on all
who fear him.
For he knows how we were made,
he knows full well that we are dust.

103

- 1 Bless the LORD, my soul;
my innermost heart, bless his holy name.
- 2 Bless the LORD, my soul,
and forget none of his benefits.
- 3 He pardons all my guilt and heals all my suffering.
- 4 He rescues me from the pit of death and surrounds me with constant love, with tender affection;
- 5 he contents me with all good in the prime of life,
and my youth is ever new like an eagle's.
- 6 The LORD is righteous in his acts;
he brings justice to all who have been wronged.
- 7 He taught Moses to know his way and showed the Israelites what he could do.
- 8 The LORD is compassionate and
gracious,
- Man's days are like the grass;
he blossoms like the flowers of the field:
a wind passes over them, and they cease to be,
and their place knows them no
more.
But the LORD's love never fails those
who fear him;
his righteousness never fails their sons and their grandsons who listen to his voice<sup>j</sup> and keep his covenant,
who remember his commandments and obey them.
- The LORD has established his throne
in heaven,
his kingly power over the whole world.
Bless the LORD, all his angels, creatures of might who do his bidding.

j who listen to his voice: transposed from end of verse 20.

on high: God's abode in heaven. 25–27: These verses are used in Heb.1.10–12. 27: The same: lit. "Thou art he." See Isa.43.10,13,25 for this expression. 28: Assurance, if not to a man, to his children.

Ps. 103: Bless the LORD, all created things. A Hymn in which the poet's thanksgiving for his own healing (vv. 3–5) overflows into a universal praise of God for all his goodness to Israel (vv. 6–10) and to all men (vv. 11–18). 1: Bless the LORD: praise and thank him. Soul . . . heart: totality of a person's life, nonrational as well as intellectual. 3: Guilt and suffering were linked together in a causal relationship. 5: An eagle's strength was thought to be renewed with molting. 6–8: These verses contain the heart of OT piety, for they show the characteristic qualities of God's dealing with Israel as revealed to Moses: righteous, compassionate, gracious, long-suffering, ever constant, bringing justice to the wronged; see Exod.34.6. 16: The hot wind from the desert wilts all vegetation in its path. 19: Throne in heaven: compare 102.19.

- 21 Bless the LORD, all his hosts, his ministers who serve his will.
22 Bless the LORD, all created things, in every place where he has dominion.

Bless the LORD, my soul.

104

- 1 Bless the LORD, my soul:
O LORD my God, thou art great
indeed,
clothed in majesty and splendour, 2 and wrapped in a robe of light.
Thou hast spread out the heavens like a tent
3 and on their waters laid the beams of thy pavilion;
who takest the clouds for thy chariot,
riding on the wings of the wind; 4 who makest the winds thy messengers
and flames of fire thy servants; 5 thou didst fix the earth on its foundation
so that it never can be shaken; 6 the deep overspread it like a cloak,
and the waters lay above the
mountains.
7 At thy rebuke they ran, at the sound of thy thunder they rushed away, 8 flowing over the hills, pouring down into the valleys to the place appointed for them.
9 Thou didst fix a boundary which they might not pass;
they shall not return to cover the
earth.
10 Thou dost make springs break out in the gullies,

so that their water runs between
the hills.
The wild beasts all drink from them, 11
the wild asses quench their thirst;
the birds of the air nest on their 12 banks
and sing among the leaves.

From thy high pavilion thou dost 13
water the hills;
the earth is enriched by thy provision.
Thou makest grass grow for the 14
cattle
and green things for those who toil for man,
bringing bread out of the earth and wine to gladden men's hearts, 15 oil to make their faces shine and bread to sustain their strength.
The trees of the LORD are green 16 and leafy,
the cedars of Lebanon which he planted;
the birds build their nests in them, 17
the stork makes her home in their tops.<sup>k</sup>
High hills are the haunt of the 18 mountain-goat,
and boulders a refuge for the rock-badger.
Thou hast made the moon to 19 measure the year
and taught the sun where to set.
When thou makest darkness and it 20
is night,
all the beasts of the forest come forth;
the young lions roar for prey, 21 seeking their food from God.
When thou makest the sun rise, they 22 slink away
and go to rest in their lairs;
but man comes out to his work 23 and to his labours until evening.

<sup>k</sup> in their tops: prob. rdg.; Heb. the pine-trees.

Ps. 104: Thou hast made all by thy wisdom. A creation Hymn often compared to the Egyptian "Hymn to Aton" and to the Mesopotamian "Enuma Elish" since it uses similar mythological language. Ps.104 begins and closes in the same way as Ps.103. Perhaps Pss.104-105 were used together in the Temple liturgy, providing a sequence of movement from God's majesty in the universe (Ps.104) to his historic deeds on behalf of Israel (105.5-45); see vv. 31-35 n.

3: The beams of God's pavilion, i.e. his dwelling, were thought to rest above the reservoir of water contained in the vault of heaven (29.10), just as the earth is established on the waters below it; see Gen.1.6-8. 6-9: God controls the sea, having fixed a boundary for it, making Leviathan, the wild sea monster who symbolizes the unruly sea of the original chaos, into a "plaything" (v. 26); compare 74.12-17 n. 10-26: The order God brought out of chaos is 24 Countless are the things thou hast made, O LORD.

Thou hast made all by thy wisdom;
and the earth is full of thy creatures, 25 beasts great and small.

Here is the great immeasurable sea, in which move creatures beyond number.

26 Here ships sail to and fro, here is Leviathan whom thou hast made thy plaything.<sup>l</sup>

27 All of them look expectantly to
thee
to give them their food at the proper time;
28 what thou givest them they gather
up;
when thou openest thy hand, they eat their fill.
29 Then thou hidest thy face, and they are restless and troubled;
when thou takest away their breath,
they fail
[and they return to the dust from which they came];
30 but when thou breathest into them,
they recover;
thou givest new life to the earth.

31 May the glory of the LORD stand
for ever
and may he rejoice in his works!
32 When he looks at the earth, it
quakes;
when he touches the hills, they pour forth smoke.

33 I will sing to the LORD as long as I live,
all my life I will sing psalms to my
God.

34 May my meditation please the
LORD,
as I show my joy in him!

Away with all sinners from the
earth
and may the wicked be no more!

Bless the LORD, my soul.

O praise the LORD.

105

Give the LORD thanks and invoke
him by name,
make his deeds known in the world around.

Pay him honour with song and psalm and think upon all his wonders.

Exult in his hallowed name;
let those who seek the LORD be joyful in heart.

Turn to the LORD, your strength, seek his presence always.

Remember the wonders that he has wrought,
his portents and the judgements
he has given,

O offspring of Abraham his servant,
O chosen sons of Jacob.

He is the LORD our God;
his judgements fill the earth.

He called to mind his covenant from long ago,<sup>n</sup> the promise he extended to a thousand generations—
the covenant made with Abraham,
his oath given to Isaac,
the decree by which he bound himself for Jacob,
his everlasting covenant with Israel:
'I will give you the land of Canaan',
he said,
'to be your possession, your patrimony.'

<sup>l</sup> thy plaything: or that it may sport in it.
<sup>m</sup> Verses 1–15: cp. 1 Chr. 16. 8–22.
<sup>n</sup> from long ago: or for ever.

marvelous and benign. 27–30: God continued his creative presence to prevent a return to chaos. 29: God's breath, spirit, is the source of all life (v. 30); see Gen. 1.2 and Tfn. b there; 2.7. 31–35: A prayer that all may continue beneficently for the righteous. It ends with Bless the LORD, my soul, thus beginning and closing in the same way. The final phrase, O praise the LORD (in Heb. Hallelujah) may belong to Ps. 105 as its beginning.

Ps. 105: Remember the wonders that God has wrought. A Hymn celebrating God's action in Israel's history. It could have been used at any of the major festivals; vv. 1–15 are used in 1 Chr. 16.8–22 for the transfer of the Ark of the Covenant to Jerusalem. While nothing is mentioned specifically of the events at Sinai, the themes of covenant (v. 8) and of laws and statutes (v. 45) presuppose Sinai and form the framework of the historical recital. 5: Judgements: God's decisive actions in behalf of Israel, the sons of Jacob. 8–15: The roaming of Abraham, Isaac and

12	A small company it was, few in number, strangers in that land,	even their princes' inner chambers. At his command came swarms of flies	31
13	roaming from nation to nation, from one kingdom to another;	and maggots the whole land through.
14	but he let no one ill-treat them, for their sake he admonished kings:	He changed their rain into hail	32
15	'Touch not my anointed servants, do my prophets no harm.'	and flashed fire over their country. He blasted their vines and their fig-trees	33
16	He called down famine on the land and cut short their daily bread.	and splintered the trees throughout the land.
17	But he had sent on a man before them,	At his command came locusts, hoppers past all number,	34
18	Joseph, who was sold into slavery; he was kept a prisoner with fetters on his feet	they consumed every green thing in the land,	35
19	and an iron collar clamped on his neck.	consumed all the produce of the soil.
20	He was tested by the LORD's command	Then he struck down all the	36
21	until what he foretold came true.	first-born in Egypt,
22	Then the king sent and set him free, the ruler of nations released him;	the firstfruits of their manhood; he led Israel out, laden with silver and gold,	37
23	he made him master of his household	and among all their tribes no man fell.
24	and ruler over all his possessions, to correct his officers at will and teach his counsellors wisdom.	The Egyptians were glad when they went,	38
25	Then Israel too went down into Egypt	for fear of Israel had taken hold of them.
26	and Jacob came to live in the land of Ham.	He spread a cloud as a screen, and fire to light up the night.	39
27	There God made his people very fruitful,	They asked, and he sent them quails,	40
28	he made them stronger than their enemies,	he gave them bread from heaven in plenty.
29	whose hearts he turned to hatred of his people	He opened a rock and water gushed out,	41
30	and double-dealing with his servants.	a river flowing in a parched land; for he had remembered his solemn promise	42
31	He sent his servant Moses and Aaron whom he had chosen.	given to his servant Abraham.
32	They were his mouthpiece to announce his signs,	So he led out his people rejoicing, his chosen ones in triumph.	43
33	his portents in the land of Ham.	He gave them the lands of heathen nations	44
34	He sent darkness, and all was dark, but still they resisted his commands.	and they took possession where others had toiled,
35	He turned their waters into blood and killed all their fish.	so that they might keep his statutes	45
36	Their country swarmed with frogs,	and obey his laws.
		O praise the LORD.

Jacob from nation to nation is narrated in Gen.12.1–37.1. 15: The patriarchs are called anointed servants inasmuch as they were filled with the spirit of the LORD, like the prophets; compare Isa.61.1. 16–23: The story of Joseph; see Gen. chs. 37, 39–50. 24–43: The Exodus and God's guidance in the Wilderness; see Exod.1.1–17.6. 27: Ham: Egypt, as in 78.5; see Gen.10.6. 44–45: The gift of lands and the laws: an allusion to Joshua.

106

		and would not wait to hear his counsel;
1	O praise the LORD.	their greed was insatiable in the wilderness,	14
	It is good to give thanks to the LORD;	they tried God's patience in the desert.
	for his love endures for ever.	He gave them what they asked	15
2	Who will tell of the LORD's mighty acts	but sent a wasting sickness among them. <sup>q</sup>
	and make his praises heard?
3	Happy are they who act justly and do right at all times!	They were envious of Moses in the camp,	16
4	Remember me, LORD, when thou showest favour to thy people,	and of Aaron, who was consecrated to the LORD.
	look upon me when thou savest them,	The earth opened and swallowed Dathan,	17
5	that I may see the prosperity of thy chosen,	it closed over the company of Abiram;
	rejoice in thy nation's joy and exult with thy own people.	fire raged through their company, the wicked perished in flames.	18
6	We have sinned like our forefathers, we have erred and done wrong.	At Horeb they made a calf and bowed down to an image;	19
7	Our fathers in Egypt took no account of thy marvels,	they exchanged their Glory <sup>r</sup> for the image of a bull that feeds on grass.	20
	they did not remember thy many acts of faithful love,	They forgot God their deliverer, who had done great deeds in Egypt,	21
	but in spite of all <sup>o</sup> they rebelled by the Red Sea. <sup>p</sup>	marvels in the land of Ham, terrible things at the Red Sea.	22
8	Yet the LORD delivered them for his name's sake	So his purpose was to destroy them,	23
	and so made known his mighty power.	but Moses, the man he had chosen, threw himself into the breach to turn back his wrath lest it destroy them.
9	He rebuked the Red Sea and it dried up, he led his people through the deeps as through the wilderness.
10	So he delivered them from those who hated them,	They made light of the pleasant land,	24
	and claimed them back from the enemy's hand.	disbelieving his promise;
11	The waters closed over their adversaries,	they muttered treason in their tents	25
	not one of them survived.	and would not obey the LORD.
12	Then they believed his promises and sang praises to him.	So with uplifted hand he swore to strike them down in the wilderness,	26
13	But they quickly forgot all he had done

o in spite of all; prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.

p Or the Sea of Reeds.

q among them; or in their throats.

r their Glory; or the glory of God (cp. Jer. 2. 11; Romans 1. 23).

Ps. 106: Deliver us, O LORD our God. A Lament (see Introduction) of the community, in a liturgical setting, in which the recitation of the adversity is a national confession of sins which brought on various punishments, ending in the crowning adversity of being scattered among the nations in the Exile. The psalm closes Book 4. 1-5: The invitation to praise the LORD seems to be in the course of a worship. 6: To have sinned against God is the greatest calamity to have befallen Israel; this is the theme of the psalm. 7-12: Story of the Exodus; see 105.24-43 n. 13-15: Manna and the quail: Num.11.4-15,31-34. 16-18: Dathan and Abiram: Num. ch. 16. 19-23: Horeb: Sinai; for the golden calf incident, see Exod. ch. 32. 24-27: Refusal to enter

27	to scatter their descendants among the nations and disperse them throughout the world.	and loathed them, his own chosen nation; so he gave them into the hands of the nations,	41
28	They joined in worshipping the Baal of Peor and ate meat sacrificed to lifeless gods.	and they were ruled by their foes; their enemies oppressed them and made them subject to their power.	42
29	Their deeds provoked the LORD to anger,	Many times he came to their rescue,	43
30	and plague broke out amongst them; but Phinehas stood up and interceded,	but they were disobedient and rebellious still. <sup>s</sup>
31	so the plague was stopped. This was counted to him as righteousness throughout all generations for ever.	And yet, when he heard them wail and cry aloud, he looked with pity on their distress;	44
32	They roused the LORD to anger at the waters of Meribah, and Moses suffered because of them;	he called to mind his covenant with them and, in his boundless love, relented;	45
33	for they had embittered his spirit and he had spoken rashly.	he roused compassion for them in the hearts of all their captors.	46
34	They did not destroy the peoples round about, as the LORD had commanded them to do,	Deliver us, O LORD our God, and gather us in from among the nations that we may give thanks to thy holy name and make thy praise our pride.	47
35	but they mingled with the nations, learning their ways;	Blessed be the LORD the God of Israel	48
36	they worshipped their idols and were ensnared by them.	from everlasting to everlasting; and let all the people say 'Amen.'
37	Their sons and their daughters they sacrificed to foreign demons;	O praise the LORD.
38	they shed innocent blood, the blood of sons and daughters offered to the gods of Canaan, and the land was polluted with blood.	BOOK 5
39	Thus they defiled themselves by their conduct and they followed their lusts and broke faith with God.	107
40	Then the LORD grew angry with his people	It is good to give thanks to the LORD, for his love endures for ever.	1

<sup>s</sup> Prob. rdg.: Heb. adds and were brought low by their guilt.

the promised land shows disloyalty; Num. ch. 14. 28–31: In Num. ch. 25, Phinehas slays the offending Israelite; the episode is embellished here. 32–33: The incident of the waters of Meribah has also been embellished; see Num.20.2–13. 34–46: Summary of the events in the Book of Judges. 34: The LORD had commanded: compare Exod.23.23–33; Deut.7.1–5. 38: The precise incident of polluting the land with blood is not clear in Judg.; however, compare 1 Kgs.16.34. The prohibition seems to counter a common practice; see Num.35.33–34; Lev.18.25–29. 47: This verse seems to indicate that the psalm was written during the Babylonian Exile, i.e. after 587 B.C.; compare Ps.74 n. 48: Let all the people say seems to be a liturgical prescription. This verse appears to be an addition to the psalm, either to adapt it to public worship or to close the collection of psalms in Book 4.

Ps. 107: Let them thank the LORD. A Thanksgiving of the community sung either by captives

2	So let them say who were redeemed by the LORD, redeemed by him from the power of the enemy	he has shattered doors of bronze, bars of iron he has snapped in two.	16
3	and gathered out of every land, from east and west, from north and south.	Some were fools, they took to rebellious ways, and for their transgression they suffered punishment.	17
4	Some lost their way in desert wastes; they found no road to a city to live in;	They sickened at the sight of food and drew near to the very gates of death.	18
5	hungry and thirsty, their spirit sank within them.	So they cried to the LORD in their trouble,	19
6	So they cried to the LORD in their trouble, and he rescued them from their distress;	and he saved them from their distress; he sent his word to heal them and bring them alive out of the pit of death. <sup>t</sup>	20
7	he led them by a straight and easy way until they came to a city to live in.	Let them thank the LORD for his enduring love	21
8	Let them thank the LORD for his enduring love and for the marvellous things he has done for men:	and for the marvellous things he has done for men. Let them offer sacrifices of	22
9	he has satisfied the thirsty and filled the hungry with good things.	thanksgiving and recite his deeds with shouts of joy.	22
10	Some sit in darkness, dark as death, prisoners bound fast in iron,	Others there are who go to sea in ships	23
11	because they had rebelled against God's commands and flouted the purpose of the Most High.	and make their living on the wide waters. These men have seen the acts of the	24
12	Their spirit was subdued by hard labour; they stumbled and fell with none to help them.	LORD and his marvellous doings in the deep.	24
13	So they cried to the LORD in their trouble, and he saved them from their distress;	At his command the storm-wind rose and lifted the waves high. Carried up to heaven, plunged down	25
14	he brought them out of darkness, dark as death, and broke their chains.	to the depths, tossed to and fro in peril, they reeled and staggered like	26
15	Let them thank the LORD for his enduring love and for the marvellous things he has done for men:	drunken men, and their seamanship was all in vain. So they cried to the LORD in their	27
		trouble,	28

<sup>t</sup> alive . . . death: prob. rdg.; Heb. from their corruption.

returning from the Babylonian Exile or by pilgrims to Jerusalem who had been delivered from various dangers. Wisdom motifs are prominent (vv. 33–43) as in other psalms which stand at the beginning of collections: Pss. 1 (Book 1), 73 (Book 3) and 90 (Book 4). 1: A frequent exclamation of praise in the liturgy of the Temple; see 118.1; 1 Chr. 16.34; 1 Macc. 4.24. 2–3: A universal gathering out of all nations of those whom God calls and delivers; compare Isa. 43.5–6; 49.12. The four sections that follow perhaps symbolize the four quarters of the earth. 4–32: Thanksgiving of those delivered from perils of the desert (vv. 4–7), from prison (vv. 10–16), from sickness (vv. 17–22), from the dangers of the sea (vv. 23–32). 8–9: A refrain that is repeated and adapted to each situation; see vv. 15–16; 21–22; 31–32. 22: Sacrifices: probably to fulfill and he brought them out of their distress.

29 The storm sank to a murmur and the waves of the sea were stilled.
30 They were glad then that all was calm,
as he guided them to the harbour
they desired.
31 Let them thank the LORD for his enduring love
and for the marvellous things he has done for men.
32 Let them exalt him in the assembly of the people
and praise him in the council of the elders.
33 He turns rivers into desert and springs of water into thirsty
ground;
34 he turns fruitful land into salt
waste,
because the men who dwell there are so wicked.
35 Desert he changes into standing pools,
and parched land into springs of
water.
36 There he gives the hungry a home, and they build themselves a city to live in;
37 they sow fields and plant vineyards and reap a fruitful harvest.
38 He blesses them and their numbers increase,
and he does not let their herds lose strength.
39 Tyrants<sup>u</sup> lose their strength and are brought low
in the grip of misfortune and
sorrow;
40 he brings princes into contempt and leaves them wandering in a trackless waste.
41 But the poor man he lifts clear of his troubles
and makes families increase like flocks of sheep.
42 The upright see it and are glad, while evildoers are filled with disgust.

Let the wise man lay these things to 43
heart,
and ponder the record of the LORD's enduring love.

108

My heart is steadfast, O God, 1<sup>v</sup>
my heart is steadfast.
I will sing and raise a psalm;
awake,<sup>w</sup> my spirit,
awake, lute and harp, 2
I will awake at dawn of day.<sup>x</sup>
I will confess thee, O LORD, among 3
the peoples,
among the nations I will raise a
psalm to thee;
for thy unfailing love is wider than 4
the heavens
and thy truth reaches to the skies.
Show thyself, O God, high above 5
the heavens;
let thy glory shine over all the
earth.
Deliver those that are dear to thee; 6<sup>y</sup> save with thy right hand and
answer.
God has spoken from his sanctuary:<sup>z</sup> 7
'I will go up now and measure out
Shechem;
I will divide the valley of Succoth
into plots;
Gilead and Manasseh are mine; 8 Ephraim is my helmet, Judah my
sceptre;
Moab is my wash-bowl, I fling my 9
shoes at Edom;
Philistia is the target of my anger.'

Who can bring me to the impregnable 10
city,
who can guide me to Edom,
since thou, O God, hast abandoned 11
us
and goest not forth with our
armies?

<sup>u</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. om.

<sup>v</sup> Verses 1-5: cp. Ps. 57. 7-11.

<sup>w</sup> awake: prob. rdg.; Heb. also.

<sup>x</sup> at dawn of day: or the dawn.

<sup>y</sup> Verses 6-13: cp. Ps. 60; 5-12.

<sup>z</sup> from his sanctuary: or in his holiness.

vows made during distress. 33-43: The Wisdom themes of the two ways, "good and evil," and the reversal of situations in rewarding the upright and humiliating the evildoers are elaborated.

Ps. 108: I will raise a psalm to thee. A vow; vv. 1-5 are almost identical with 57.7-11 and vv. 6-13 with 60.5-12. See the annotations to those passages.

- 12 Grant us help against the enemy,
for deliverance by man is a vain
hope.
13 With God's help we shall do
valiantly,
and God himself will tread our enemies under foot.

109

- 1 O God of my praise, be silent no
longer,
2 for wicked men heap calumnies
upon me.
3 They have lied to my face and ringed me round with words of hate.
They have attacked me without a cause<sup>a</sup> 4 and accused me though I have done nothing unseemly.<sup>b</sup> 5 They have repaid me evil for good and hatred in return for my love.
6 They say, 'Put up some rascal to denounce him,
an accuser to stand at his right
side.'
7 But when judgement is given, that rascal will be exposed and his follies accounted a sin.
8 May his days be few;
may his hoarded wealth<sup>c</sup> fall to another!
9 May his children be fatherless, his wife a widow!
10 May his children be vagabonds and beggars,
driven from their homes!
11 May the money-lender distraint on all his goods
and strangers seize his earnings!
12 May none remain loyal to him, and none have mercy on his fatherless children!

- May his line be doomed to extinction,
may their name be wiped out within a generation!
May the sins of his forefathers be remembered
and his mother's wickedness never be wiped out!
May they remain on record before
the LORD,
but may he extinguish their name
from the earth!
For that man never set himself to be loyal to his friend but persecuted the downtrodden and the poor
and hounded the broken-hearted
to their death.
Curses he loved: may the curse fall
on him!
He took no pleasure in blessing:
may no blessing be his!
He clothed himself in cursing like a garment:
may it seep into his body like water and into his bones like oil!
May it wrap him round like the clothes he puts on,
like the belt which he wears every
day!
May the LORD so requite my accusers
and those who speak evil against
me!
But thou, O LORD God, deal with me as befits thy honour;
in the goodness of thy unfailing love deliver me,
for I am downtrodden and poor, and my heart within me is distracted.

<sup>a</sup> Prob. rdg.: Heb. adds in return for my love.
<sup>b</sup> though . . . unseemly; prob. rdg.: Heb. obscure.
<sup>c</sup> hoarded wealth: or charge, cp. Acts 1. 20.

Ps. 109: Help me, O LORD my God. A Lament (see Introduction) of an individual who is falsely accused of causing the death of someone (v. 16). It is divided into three distinct sections; the first (vv. 1-5) and the third (vv. 20-31) are supplications for deliverance, the second (vv. 6-19) is a series of curses against an individual by his enemies. 1: No one is left to praise the psalmist, i.e. to take his part, but God, and he is silent. 6-19: These verses seem to be spoken by the poet's enemies, for there is a profound emotional change—from meekness of vv. 1-5 into hatred, as well as a pronominal change from "they" of vv. 1-5, to his. The curses all say one thing: "may he be put to death." 6: Ordinarily the accuser stood at the left of the accused and his defender at the right: see v. 31; 110.5; 120.5. 8: See Tfn. c. 13: For his name to be wiped out in one generation was the Israelite's greatest tragedy; compare Isa. 53.12 for the opposite. 16-17: It seems that the psalmist was accused of accomplishing someone's death by a curse. 20: Other translations of this verse are possible; in this one the psalmist invokes the law of the talion, 23 I fade like a passing shadow,

 I am shaken off like a locust.
 24 My knees are weak with fasting and my flesh wastes away, so meagre is my fare.
 25 I have become the victim of their taunts;
 when they see me they toss their
 heads.
 26 Help me, O LORD my God;
 save me, by thy unfailing love, 27 that men may know this is thy doing and thou alone, O LORD, hast done it.
 28 They may curse, but thou dost bless;
 may my opponents be put to
 shame,
 but may thy servant rejoice!
 29 May my accusers be clothed with
 dishonour,
 wrapped in their shame as in a cloak!
 30 I will lift up my voice to extol the
 LORD,
 and before a great company I will praise him.
 31 For he stands at the poor man's right side
 to save him from his adversaries.<sup>d</sup>

110

1 The LORD said to my lord,
 'You shall sit<sup>e</sup> at my right hand when<sup>f</sup> I make your enemies the footstool under your feet.'
 2 When the LORD from Zion hands you the sceptre, the symbol of your power,
 march forth through the ranks of<sup>g</sup>
 your enemies.
 3 At birth<sup>h</sup> you were endowed with princely gifts

and<sup>i</sup> resplendent<sup>j</sup> in holiness.
 You have shone with the dew of youth since your mother bore you.
 The LORD has sworn and will not change his purpose: 4
 'You are a priest for ever, in the succession of Melchizedek.'
 The Lord at your right hand 5 has broken kings in the day of his anger.
 So the king in his majesty,<sup>k</sup> 6 sovereign of a mighty land, will punish nations;<sup>l</sup> he will drink from the torrent 7 beside the path
 and therefore will hold his head high.

111

O praise the LORD. 1
 With all my heart will I praise the
 LORD
 in the company of good men, in the whole congregation.
 Great are the doings of the LORD; 2
 all men study them for their delight.
 His acts are full of majesty and 3 splendour;
 righteousness is his for ever.
 He has won a name by his 4 marvellous deeds;
 the LORD is gracious and
 compassionate.
 He gives food to those who fear him, 5 he keeps his covenant always in mind.

d Prob. rdg.; Heb. his judges. e You shall sit: or Sit.
f Or until or while. g Or reign in the midst of.
h At birth: or On the day of your power.
i you were . . . and: or your people offered themselves willingly; mng. of Heb. uncertain.
j Or apparelled.
k So . . . majesty: poss. rdg.; Heb. full of corpses, he crushed.
l So . . . nations: or He shall punish the nations—heaps of corpses, broken heads—over a wide expanse.

i.e. "an eye for an eye" against his accusers. 23: Locusts were either shaken off to the ground and killed or swept away by the wind; see Exod.10.19. 25: To toss the head was a sign of derision and hostility.

Ps. 110: Sit at my right hand. A Royal Psalm, probably used at the coronation ceremonies for kings (compare Ps.2). 1: The LORD: Yahweh. My lord: the king who is taking office. Footstool: a figure for complete domination. 4: The succession of Melchizedek: the king will also serve as priest, like a predecessor Melchizedek, the Canaanite priest-king of Jerusalem (Gen.14.18-20). The verse is used in a very different way in Heb.5.6 and 7.1,17. 5: Right hand: chief support, as in v. 1.

Ps. 111: The beginning of Wisdom. A Hymn with Wisdom themes. It is an acrostic; hence each of the twenty-two half-verses begins with a successive letter of the Heb. alphabet. The opening phrase, O praise the LORD (Heb. Hallelujah), is not part of the alphabetic structure; Pss.112

- |    |  |  |    |
|----|--|--|----|
| 6  | He showed his people what his strength could do, bestowing on them the lands of other nations.   | his goodness shall be remembered for all time.   |    |
| 7  | His works are truth and justice; his precepts all stand on firm foundations,   | Bad news shall have no terrors for him, because his heart is steadfast, trusting in the LORD.                                | 7  |
| 8  | strongly based to endure for ever, their fabric goodness and truth.  | His confidence is strongly based, he will have no fear; and in the end he will gloat over his enemies.                       | 8  |
| 9  | He sent and redeemed his people; he decreed that his covenant should always endure.  | He gives freely to the poor; righteousness shall be his for ever; in honour he carries his head high.                        | 9  |
| 10 | Holy is his name, inspiring awe. The fear of the LORD is the beginning <sup>m</sup> of wisdom, and they who live by it grow in understanding. Praise will be his for ever. | The wicked man shall see it with rising anger and grind his teeth in despair; the hopes of wicked men shall come to nothing. | 10 |

112

113

- |   |   |  |     |
|---|---|--|-----|
| 1 | O praise the LORD.  | O praise the LORD.   | 1   |
|   | Happy is the man who fears the LORD and finds great joy in his commandments.              | Praise the LORD, you that are his servants, praise the name of the LORD.   |     |
| 2 | His descendants shall be the mightiest in the land, a blessed generation of good men.     | Blessed be the name of the LORD now and evermore.  | 2   |
| 3 | His house shall be full of wealth and riches; righteousness shall be his for ever.        | From the rising of the sun to its setting may the LORD's name be praised.  | 3   |
| 4 | He is gracious, compassionate, good, a beacon in darkness for honest men.                 | High is the LORD above all nations, his glory above the heavens.   | 4   |
| 5 | It is right for a man to be gracious in his lending, to order his affairs with judgement. | There is none like the LORD our God in heaven or on earth, who sets his throne so high but deigns to look down so low; | 5-6 |
| 6 | Nothing shall ever shake him;   |  |     |

<sup>m</sup> Or chief part.

and 113 also begin with this ritual proclamation. 9: Inspiring awe: compare 76.4 n. 10: Compare Prov.1.7 and Job 28.28.

Ps. 112: Happy is the man who fears the LORD. A Wisdom Psalm in acrostic form; see Ps.111 n. It continues the previous psalm, being linked to it by the phrase "fear of the LORD" (v. 1; 111.10), which it elaborates and applies to practical life. Attributes assigned to God in Ps.111 are here ascribed to the virtuous man who acts as God does (v. 4). 1: Praise the LORD: see Ps.111 n. 3-5: Righteousness, graciousness, compassion, goodness, judgement are all attributes that are applied ordinarily to God in his dealings with all men and in particular with Israel; see 111.3-4; 103.6-8,13,17. 3: Righteousness here is the state of being in proper order with God and of possessing the happiness that flows from it. 5: To act with judgement is to work truth and justice (111.7) by delivering the oppressed, giving freely to the poor (v.9) to bring about righteousness. 8: Strongly based: compare 111.7-8. 10: Grind teeth: an expression of extreme and malicious anger and/or frustration; see Lam.3.16; Mt.8.12; Acts 7.54.

Ps. 113: Praise the LORD. A Hymn, the first of a collection (Pss.113-118) known as the "Hallel" (praise). This collection (often called the "Egyptian Hallel") was used on the great festivals: Booths, Passover, and Weeks. At the Passover seder service, Pss.113-114 are sung before the meal and Pss.115-118 after it. See Mt.26.30; Mk.14.26. 2-4: The response of an assembly to the call to praise the LORD (v. 1). 5-6: A key concept in Israel's relation to God was that he was exalted so high as to be beyond reach, yet came so low as to live in their midst; see

7	who lifts the weak out of the dust and raises the poor from the dunghill,	for thy true love and for thy constancy.
8	giving them a place among princes, among the princes of his people;	Why do the nations ask, "Where then is their God?"	2
9	who makes the woman in a childless house a happy mother of children. <sup>n</sup>	Our God is in high heaven; he does whatever pleases him. Their idols are silver and gold, made by the hands of men. They have mouths that cannot speak, and eyes that cannot see; they have ears that cannot hear, nostrils, and cannot smell; with their hands they cannot feel, with their feet they cannot walk, and no sound comes from their throats. Their makers grow to be like them, and so do all who trust in them.	3 4 5 6 7
114
1	O praise the LORD. <sup>o</sup>  When Israel came out of Egypt, Jacob from a people of outlandish speech,	But Israel trusts in the LORD; he is their helper and their shield. The house of Aaron trusts in the LORD; he is their helper and their shield. Those who fear the LORD trust in the LORD; he is their helper and their shield. The LORD remembers us, and he will bless us; he will bless the house of Israel, he will bless the house of Aaron. The LORD will bless all who fear him, high and low alike.	2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10 11 12
2	Judah became his sanctuary, Israel his dominion.
3	The sea looked and ran away; Jordan turned back.
4	The mountains skipped like rams, the hills like young sheep.
5	What was it, sea? Why did you run? Jordan, why did you turn back?
6	Why, mountains, did you skip like rams, and you, hills, like young sheep?
7	Dance, O earth, at the presence of the Lord, at the presence of the God of Jacob,
8	who turned the rock into a pool of water, the granite cliff into a fountain.
115
1	Not to us, O LORD, not to us, but to thy name ascribe the glory,	May the LORD give you increase, both you and your sons.	14

<sup>n</sup> O praise the LORD transposed to the beginning of Ps. 114.
<sup>o</sup> See note on Ps. 113. 9.

Ezek.48.35. 7: Dunghill: sign of abject rejection and ritual uncleanness. 9: Barrenness was considered a curse and disgrace; see Gen.16.4-5; 1 Sam.1.6.

Ps. 114: Judah became his sanctuary. A Thanksgiving, although some classify it as a Hymn. This psalm, which continues the Hallel, is a psalm of praise proclaiming how God saved Israel at the Exodus. 2: Judah: name of the southern portion; Israel: name of the northern portion. 3-6: Wondrous events accompanied the Exodus at the Red sea (Exod. ch. 14), at the Jordan River (Josh. ch. 3) and at Sinai (Exod.19.16-20). 7-8: The entire world is to enter into the joy of vv. 3-6. 8: See Exod.17.6 and Num.20.11.

Ps. 115: To thy name ascribe the glory. A Liturgy, part of the Hallel (Ps.113 n.), contrasts the invisible God with the idols of the heathen. 1: God's glory is his true love; compare 1 Jn.4.7-9. 2-8: Israel's God is invisible to the nations but his actions of constant love are evident; the idols are visible but their actions are not. 9-11: These verses perhaps were sung antiphonally, i.e. one chorus said the first part of the verse and another the second. Three classes of people take part: Israel are all the lay people; house of Aaron are the priestly class; those who fear the LORD are either the converts from the pagan nations or the first two classes combined. 12-13: An oracle perhaps pronounced by a Temple prophet. 14-15: A blessing pronounced by a priest. 14: See Deut.1.11 on increase. An abundance of children was seen as a sign of God's beneficent favor.

15 You are blessed by the LORD, the LORD who made heaven and
earth.
16 The heavens, they are the LORD's;
the earth he has given to all
mankind.
17 It is not the dead who praise the
LORD,
not those who go down into
silence;
18 but we, the living, bless the LORD,
now and for evermore.

O praise the LORD.

116

1 I love the LORD, for he has heard me
and listens to my prayer; 2 for he has given me a hearing whenever I have cried to him.
3 The cords of death bound me,
Sheol held me in its grip.
Anguish and torment held me fast;
4 so I invoked the LORD by name,
'Deliver me, O LORD, I beseech thee;
for I am thy slave.'<sup>p</sup> 5 Gracious is the LORD and righteous, our God is full of compassion.
6 The LORD preserves the simple-hearted;
I was brought low and he saved me.
7 Be at rest once more, my heart, for the LORD has showered gifts
upon you.
8 He has rescued me from death and my feet from stumbling.
9 I will walk in the presence of the
LORD
in the land of the living.

I was sure that I should be swept 10
away,
and my distress was bitter.
In panic I cried, 11
'How faithless all men are!'
How can I repay the LORD 12 for all his gifts to me?
I will take in my hands the cup of 13
salvation
and invoke the LORD by name.
I will pay my vows to the LORD 14
in the presence of all his people.
A precious thing in the LORD's 15
sight
is the death of those who die faithful to him.
<sup>q</sup>I am thy slave, thy slave-girl's son; 16 thou hast undone the bonds that bound me.
To thee will I bring a thank-offering 17
and invoke the LORD by name.
I will pay my vows to the LORD 18
in the presence of all his people, in the courts of the LORD's house, 19
in the midst of you, Jerusalem.

O praise the LORD.

117

Praise the LORD, all nations, 1 extol him, all you peoples; for his love protecting us is strong, 2
the LORD's constancy is everlasting.

O praise the LORD.

<sup>p</sup> for . . . slave: transposed from the beginning of verse 16;
Heb. adds O LORD.
<sup>q</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. prefixes For I am thy slave, O
LORD; see note on verse 4.

17: In Sheol, the underworld of the dead, there is only silence; see Job 3.13,18. 18: See Ps.113.2. Ps. 116: I love the LORD, for he has heard me. A Thanksgiving Psalm, part of the Hallel; see Ps.113 n. It supposes a recovery from serious illness (vv. 2-4) and the ensuing fulfillment of a vow to offer a sacrifice of thanks in the Temple (vv. 17-20). 3: Sheol, the place of the dead, is pictured as a trapper that has snared the poet in the cords of his noose. 4: Calling a person, here the LORD, by name not only expresses a submission to him (v. 13) but also draws power from him. 5: The key attributes of God in dealing with men: graciousness, righteousness, full of compassion; see 103.6-8 n. 10-11: The poet describes as faithless either himself because he lost confidence in God (v. 9) or his friends who left him helpless in his illness. 13: Cup of salvation: possibly a figurative expression or possibly an allusion to a sacrificial libation in fulfillment of a vow such as mentioned in Num.15.1-10. 14: The vows are fulfilled in the Temple in the presence of people. 15: In the Hebrew concept of Sheol, death severed all contact between God and the faithful whom he loves (117.2) and so their death is precious, i.e. costly to him. Another possible interpretation is that they are like gold purified in the fire and hence costly; see Wis.3.1-8. 17: Thank-offering: see Lev.7.12-15. 19: LORD's house: the Temple.

Ps. 117: Praise the LORD. A Hymn, probably part of the Temple liturgy. The shortest of the psalms, it is part of the Hallel (see Ps.113 n.). 2: O praise the LORD may belong with Ps.118 as its opening words.

118

1	It is good to give thanks to the LORD, for his love endures for ever.	but the LORD has helped me. The LORD is my refuge and defence, and he has become my deliverer.	14
2	Declare it, house of Israel: his love endures for ever.	Hark! Shouts of deliverance in the camp of the victors!	15
3	Declare it, house of Aaron: his love endures for ever.	With his right hand the LORD does mighty deeds, the right hand of the LORD raises up.	16
4	Declare it, you that fear the LORD: his love endures for ever.	I shall not die but live to proclaim the works of the LORD.	17
5	When in my distress I called to the LORD, his answer was to set me free.	The LORD did indeed chasten me, but he did not surrender me to Death.	18
6	The LORD is on my side, I have no fear; what can man do to me?	Open to me the gates of victory; <sup>8</sup> I will enter by them and praise the LORD.	19
7	The LORD is on my side, he is my helper, and I shall gloat over my enemies.	This is the gate of the LORD; the victors <sup>l</sup> shall make their entry through it.	20
8	It is better to find refuge in the LORD than to trust in men.	I will praise thee, for thou hast answered me and hast become my deliverer.	21
9	It is better to find refuge in the LORD than to trust in princes.	The stone which the builders rejected has become the chief corner-stone.	22
10	All nations surround me, but in the LORD's name I will drive them away.	This is the LORD's doing; it is marvellous in our eyes.	23
11	They surround me on this side and on that, but in the LORD's name I will drive them away.	This is the day on which the LORD has acted: <sup>u</sup> let us exult and rejoice in it.	24
12	They surround me like bees at the honey; they attack me, as fire attacks brushwood, but in the LORD's name I will drive them away.	We pray thee, O LORD, deliver us; we pray thee, O LORD, send us prosperity.	25
13	They thrust hard against me so that I nearly fall;	Blessed in the name of the LORD are all who come;	26

r Or righteous. s Or righteousness.
l Or righteous. u Or which the LORD has made.

Ps. 118: This is the LORD's doing. A Thanksgiving, originally possibly a king's thanksgiving hymn for victory in battle (vv. 10-14), sung in the Temple. However, as the last of the "Egyptian Hallel" (see Ps. 113 n.), it was appropriate for use at the Passover. The psalm seems to be a dramatic ceremonial (see Neh. 12.27-43) with the following structure: a procession forms outside the Temple and is invited to praise the LORD (vv. 1-4); the king or another individual in the name of the group describes dramatically how God came to the rescue when the nation confidently implored his help (vv. 5-18); a dialogue between the leader of the procession outside the Temple gates and the priests within (vv. 19-25); the blessing given by the priest to the procession gathered round the altar (vv. 26-27); resumption of the invitation (v. 1) to praise the LORD (vv. 28-29). 2-4: House of Israel . . . Aaron . . . you that fear the LORD: see 115.10-12 n. 10-12: In the LORD's name: by the power of the LORD. 20-21: The condition for entering the Temple is a righteous life which is attested by the fact that God has answered in time of need. 22: In the context of the Exodus feasts—Passover, Weeks, and Booths—Israel was the stone rejected by the empire builders, Egypt. The verse is quoted frequently in the NT; see Mt. 21.42; Acts 4.11. 24: Israelite festivals came to be viewed as a contemporary reenactment of a day on which God acted in past events: Passover as the Exodus; Weeks, the Sinai episode; Booths, the Wilderness. Christian liturgy interprets "the day" to mean the Resurrection of Christ. 25: Deliver us: Heb. "Hosanna"; see Mt. 21.9 and parallels. 27: Light: possibly a reminiscence of a primitive celebration held at dawn. The four elevations at the corners of the altar were called horns; see Exod. 27.2; Lev. 4.7.

	we bless you from the house of the LORD.	let me not stray from thy commandments.
27	The LORD is God; he has given light to us, the ordered line of pilgrims by the horns of the altar.	I treasure thy promise in my heart, for fear that I might sin against thee.	11
28	Thou art my God and I will praise thee; my God, I will exalt thee.	Blessed art thou, O LORD; teach me thy statutes.	12
29	It is good to give thanks to the LORD, for his love endures for ever.	I say them over, one by one, the decrees that thou hast proclaimed.	13
		I have found more joy along the path of thy instruction than in any kind of wealth.	14
		I will meditate on thy precepts and keep thy paths ever before my eyes.	15
1	Happy are they whose life is blameless, who conform to the law of the LORD.	In thy statutes I find continual delight; I will not forget thy word.	16
2	Happy are they who obey his instruction, who set their heart on finding him;	Grant this to me, thy servant: let me live and, living, keep thy word.	17
3	who have done no wrong and have lived according to his will.	Take the veil from my eyes, that I may see the marvels that spring from thy law.	18
4	Thou, Lord, hast laid down thy precepts for men to keep them faithfully.	I am but a stranger here on earth, <sup>v</sup> do not hide thy commandments from me.	19
5	If only I might hold a steady course, keeping thy statutes!	My heart pines with longing day and night for thy decrees.	20
6	I shall never be put to shame if I fix my eyes on thy command- ments.	The proud have felt thy rebuke; cursed are those who turn from thy commandments.	21
7	I will praise thee in sincerity of heart as I learn thy just decrees.	Set me free from scorn and insult, for I have obeyed thy instruction.	22
8	Thy statutes will I keep faithfully; O do not leave me forsaken.	The powers that be sit scheming together against me; but I, thy servant, will study thy statutes.	23
9	How shall a young man steer an honest course? By holding to thy word.	Thy instruction is my continual delight;	24
10	With all my heart I strive to find thee;	I turn to it for counsel.

<sup>v</sup> Or in the land.

Ps. 119: Thy law, O LORD, is my continual delight. A Wisdom meditation, didactic in nature, with many motifs of a Lament. Its unparalleled length arises from its being an acrostic (see Ps. 111 n.) with eight verses for each of the twenty-two letters of the Heb. alphabet. The word "law" and its synonyms—instruction, will, precept, statutes, commandments, decrees, word, promise, paths—occur in every verse. Frequent also is the plea that God teach his Law that man may be faithful to him. Law and its synonyms are understood in the wide sense of divine teaching as found in the Pentateuch and in the prophets. There is very little logical development of thought but ideas are strung together loosely. The main thrust appears to be "How I love thy precepts, O LORD." The elements of a Lament are: description of troubles and enemies, pleas for deliverance, vows both explicit and implicit (vv. 106,175). The psalm is considered to be a late composition. 18: Only an extraneous obstruction of vision, a veil, prevents a person from seeing the benefits of the law. 19: The poet needs to be taught the native law of God's earth since every man comes into the world as a stranger. 21: The proud are the most averse to God's commandments. 23: Powers that be: lit. princes. The joy of keeping God's statutes is the 25	I lie prone in the dust; grant me life according to thy word.	because I trust in thy word. Rob me not of my power to speak the truth,	43

26	I tell thee all I have done and thou dost answer me; teach me thy statutes.	for I put my hope in thy decrees. I will heed thy law continually, for ever and ever;	44
27	Show me the way set out in thy precepts, and I will meditate on thy wonders.	I walk in freedom wherever I will, because I have studied thy precepts.	45
28	I cannot rest for misery; renew my strength in accordance with thy word.	I will speak of thy instruction before kings and will not be ashamed;	46
29	Keep falsehood far from me and grant me the grace of living by thy law.	in thy commandments I find continuing delight; I love them with all my heart.	47
30	I have chosen the path of truth and have set thy decrees before me.	I will welcome thy commandments <sup>w</sup> and will meditate on thy statutes.	48
31	I hold fast to thy instruction; O LORD, let me not be put to shame.	Remember the word spoken to me, thy servant, on which thou hast taught me to fix my hope.	49
32	I will run the course set out in thy commandments, for they gladden my heart.	In time of trouble my consolation is this, that thy promise has given me life.	50
33	Teach me, O LORD, the way set out in thy statutes, and in keeping them I shall find my reward.	Proud men treat me with insolent scorn, but I do not swerve from thy law.	51
34	Give me the insight to obey thy law and to keep it with all my heart;	I have cherished thy decrees all my life long, and in them I find consolation,	52
35	make me walk in the path of thy commandments, for that is my desire.	O LORD.
36	Dispose my heart toward thy instruction and not toward ill-gotten gains;	Gusts of anger seize me as I think of evil men who forsake thy law.	53
37	turn away my eyes from all that is vile, grant me life by thy word.	Thy statutes are the theme of my song <sup>x</sup> wherever I make my home.	54
38	Fulfil thy promise for thy servant, the promise made to those who fear thee.	In the night I remember thy name, O LORD, and dwell upon thy law.	55
39	Turn away the censure which I dread, for thy decrees are good.	This is true of me, that I have kept thy precepts.	56
40	How I long for thy precepts! In thy righteousness grant me life.	Thou, LORD, art all I have; I have promised to keep thy word.	57
41	Thy love never fails; let it light on me, O LORD, and thy deliverance, for that was thy promise;	With all my heart I have tried to please thee; fulfil thy promise and be gracious to me.	58
42	then I shall have my answer to the man who taunts me,	I have thought much about the course of my life	59

<sup>w</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds which I love.
<sup>x</sup> the theme of my song: or wonderful to me.

immediate reward of the docile. 48: Will welcome: lit. "stretch out my hand to." 55: For the

	and always turned back to thy instruction;	I know, O LORD, that thy decrees are just	75
60	I have never delayed but always made haste	and even in punishing thou keepest faith with me.
	to keep thy commandments.	Let thy never-failing love console me,	76
61	Bands of evil men close round me, but I do not forget thy law.	as thou hast promised me, thy servant.
62	At midnight I rise to give thee thanks	Extend thy compassion to me, that I may live;	77 for the justice of thy decrees.	for thy law is my continual delight.
63	I keep company with all who fear thee,	Put the proud to shame, for with their lies they wrong me;	78 with all who follow thy precepts.	but I will meditate on thy precepts.
64	The earth is full of thy never-failing love;	Let all who fear thee turn to me, all who cherish thy instruction.	79
	O LORD, teach me thy statutes.	Let me give my whole heart to thy statutes,	80
65	Thou hast shown thy servant much kindness,	so that I am not put to shame.
	fulfilling thy word, O LORD.	I long with all my heart for thy deliverance,	81
66	Give me insight, give me knowledge, for I put my trust in thy commandments.	hoping for the fulfilment of thy word;
67	I went astray before I was punished; but now I pay heed to thy promise.	my sight grows dim with looking for thy promise	82
68	Thou art good and thou doest good;	and still I cry, 'When wilt thou comfort me?'
	teach me thy statutes.	Though I shrivel like a wine-skin in the smoke,	83
69	Proud men blacken my name with lies,	I do not forget thy statutes.
	yet I follow thy precepts with all my heart;	How long has thy servant to wait for thee to fulfil thy decree	84
70	their hearts are thick and gross; but I continually delight in thy law.	against my persecutors?
71	How good it is for me to have been punished,	Proud men who flout thy law spread tales about me.	85
	to school me in thy statutes!	Help me, for they hound me with their lies,	86
72	The law thou hast ordained means more to me	but thy commandments all stand for ever.
	than a fortune in gold and silver.	They had almost swept me from the earth,	87
73	Thy hands moulded me and made me what I am;	but I did not forsake thy precepts; show me how I may learn thy commandments.	grant me life, as thy love is unchanging,	88
74	Let all who fear thee be glad when they see me,	that I may follow all thy instruction.
	because I hope for the fulfilment of thy word.	Eternal is thy word, O LORD, planted firm in heaven.	89

Semite, darkness of night connotes the absence of God. 70: Thick and gross hearts are dull, insensitive and cruel. 75: If God's decrees are just their observance is beneficial to men and God keeps faith with men in punishing transgressions. 83: Leather flasks containing wine were hung from the ceiling, out of reach of children and rodents, where, exposed to heat and smoke, they eventually became brittle and useless. Though the psalmist is shriveled by age like an old

90 Thy promise<sup>y</sup> endures for all time, stable as the earth which thou hast fixed. 91 This day, as ever, thy decrees stand fast; for all things serve thee. 92 If thy law had not been my continual delight, I should have perished in all my troubles; 93 never will I forget thy precepts, for through them thou hast given me life. 94 I am thine; O save me, for I have pondered thy precepts. 95 Evil men lie in wait to destroy me; but I will give thought to thy instruction. 96 I see that all things come to an end, but thy commandment has no limit. 97 O how I love thy law! It is my study all day long. 98 Thy commandments are mine for ever; through them I am wiser than my enemies. 99 I have more insight than all my teachers, for thy instruction is my study; 100 I have more wisdom than the old, because I have kept thy precepts. 101 I set no foot on any evil path in my obedience to thy word; 102 I do not swerve from thy decrees, for thou thyself hast been my teacher. 103 How sweet is thy promise in my mouth, sweeter on my tongue than honey! 104 From thy precepts I learn wisdom; therefore I hate the paths of falsehood. 105 Thy word is a lamp to guide my feet and a light on my path; 106 I have bound myself by oath and solemn vow to keep thy just decrees. 107 I am cruelly afflicted;	O LORD, revive me and make good thy word. Accept, O LORD, the willing tribute 108 of my lips and teach me thy decrees. Every day I take my life in my 109 hands, yet I never forget thy law. Evil men have set traps for me, 110 but I do not stray from thy precepts. Thy instruction is my everlasting 111 inheritance; it is the joy of my heart. I am resolved to fulfil thy statutes; 112 they are a reward that never fails. I hate men who are not single- 113 minded, but I love thy law. Thou art my shield and hiding-place; 114 I hope for the fulfilment of thy word. Go, you evildoers, and leave me to 115 myself, that I may keep the command- ments of my God. Support me as thou hast promised, 116 that I may live; do not disappoint my hope. Sustain me, that I may see 117 deliverance; so shall I always be occupied with thy statutes. Thou dost reject those who stray 118 from thy statutes, for their talk is all malice and lies. In thy sight all the wicked on earth 119 are scum; therefore I love thy instruction. The dread of thee makes my flesh 120 creep, and I stand in awe of thy decrees. I have done what is just and right; 121 thou wilt not abandon me to my oppressors. Stand surety for the welfare of thy 122 servant;
--	--

<sup>y</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. Thy constancy.

wineskin, he can still meditate on the law in good vigor. 99: In the study of the Law, God is the inner teacher so that the psalmist has more insight than his academic teachers. 100: Even though wisdom and old age were equated, the young who kept the Law acquired more wisdom than the old who did not. 109: The threat to life itself does not distract him from attention to the Law. 113: Not single-minded: those whose allegiance is divided, who have ambivalent feelings about

	let not the proud oppress me. <sup>z</sup>	I may be despised and of little	141
123	My sight grows dim with looking for thy deliverance and waiting for thy righteous promise.	account, but I do not forget thy precepts.
124	In all thy dealings with me, LORD, show thy true love and teach me thy statutes.	Thy justice is an everlasting justice, and thy law is truth.	142
125	I am thy servant; give me insight to understand thy instruction.	Though I am oppressed by trouble and anxiety, thy commandments are my continual delight.	143
126	It is time to act, O LORD; for men have broken thy law.	Thy instruction is ever just; give me understanding that I may live.	144
127	Truly I love thy commandments more than the finest gold.
128	It is by thy precepts that I find the right way; I hate the paths of falsehood.	I call with my whole heart; answer me, LORD. I will keep thy statutes.	145
129	Thy instruction is wonderful; therefore I gladly keep it.	I call to thee; O save me that I may heed thy instruction.	146
130	Thy word is revealed, and all is light; it gives understanding even to the untaught.	I rise before dawn and cry for help; I hope for the fulfilment of thy word.	147
131	I pant, I thirst, longing for thy commandments.	Before the midnight watch also my eyes are open for meditation on thy promise.	148
132	Turn to me and be gracious, as thou hast decreed for those who love thy name.	Hear me, as thy love is unchanging, and give me life, O LORD, by thy decree.	149
133	Make my step firm according to thy promise, and let no wrong have the mastery over me.	My pursuers in their malice are close behind me, but they are far from thy law.	150
134	Set me free from man's oppression, that I may observe thy precepts.	Yet thou art near, O LORD, and all thy commandments are true.	151
135	Let thy face shine upon thy servant and teach me thy statutes.	I have long known from thy instruction that thou hast given it eternal foundations.	152
136	My eyes stream with tears because men do not heed thy law.
137	How just thou art, O LORD! How straight and true are thy decrees!	See in what trouble I am and set me free, for I do not forget thy law.	153
138	How just is the instruction thou givest! It is fixed firm and sure.	Be thou my advocate and win release for me; true to thy promise, give me life.	154
139	I am speechless with resentment, for my enemies have forgotten thy words.	Such deliverance is beyond the reach of wicked men, because they do not ponder thy statutes.	155
140	Thy promise has been tested through and through, and thy servant loves it.	Great is thy compassion, O LORD; grant me life by thy decree.	156

<sup>z</sup> oppress me: or charge me falsely.

the Law. 135: Let thy face shine: regard favorably. 140: Tested: proved valid. 150: Though evildoers may apprehend the psalmist, they cannot overpower the Law which is his support.

157	Many are my persecutors and enemies, but I have not swerved from thy instruction.	be true to thy promise and save me. Let thy praise pour from my lips, because thou teachest me thy statutes;	171
158	I was cut to the quick when I saw traitors who had no regard for thy promise.	let the music of thy promises be on my tongue, for thy commandments are justice itself.	172
159	See how I love thy precepts, O LORD! Grant me life, as thy love is unchanging.	Let thy hand be prompt to help me, for I have chosen thy precepts;	173
160	Thy word is founded in truth, and thy just decrees are everlasting.	I long for thy deliverance, O LORD, and thy law is my continual delight.	174
161	The powers that be persecute me without cause, yet my heart thrills at thy word.	Let me live and I will praise thee; let thy decrees be my support.	175
162	I am jubilant over thy promise, like a man carrying off much booty.	I have strayed like a lost sheep; come, search for thy servant, for I have not forgotten thy commandments.	176
163	Falsehood I detest and loathe, but I love thy law.
120
164	Seven times a day I praise thee for the justice of thy decrees.	I called to the LORD in my distress, and he answered me.	1
165	Peace is the reward of those who love thy law; no pitfalls beset their path.	'O LORD,' I cried, 'save me from lying lips and from the tongue of slander.'	2
166	I hope for thy deliverance, O LORD, and I fulfil thy commandments;	What has he in store for you, slanderous tongue?	3
167	gladly I heed thy instruction and love it greatly.	What more has he for you?
168	I heed thy precepts and thy instruction, for all my life lies open before thee.	Nothing but a warrior's sharp arrows or red-hot charcoal. Hard is my lot, exiled in Meshech, dwelling by the tents of Kedar.	4 5
169	Let my cry of joy reach thee, O LORD; give me understanding of thy word.	All the time that I dwelt among men who hated peace, I sought peace; but whenever I spoke of it, they were for war.	6 7
170	Let my supplication reach thee;

164: Seven times: either a symbolic number meaning "always" (compare Mt.18.21), or an allusion to a pious regimen of prayer.

Ps. 120: He answered me. Either a Thanksgiving (v. 1) which contains a past lamentation (vv. 2-7) or a Lament with God's assurance of deliverance. The superscriptions in the MT (see Introduction) designate Pss.120-134 as "Songs of Ascents." The phrase could mean the ascent of pilgrims to the city of Jerusalem, one of the highest points in Palestine, and hence a song for one of the great annual pilgrim feasts designated in Exod.23.14-17; Deut.16.16. It could also mean the ascent of a procession within Jerusalem up the steps leading to the Temple; hence the interpretation of the superscription as "Psalms of the Steps." The theme of exile (v. 5) among a hostile people (vv. 6-7) with the resultant longing for Jerusalem, the city of peace, possibly made this a Pilgrim Song. 3: What more: a formula commonly used for a curse in Heb.; compare 1 Sam.25.22. 4: Sharp arrows: death in battle. 5: Meshech: an ancient people to the north of Palestine (Gen.10.2) from whom the final enemy of Israel would come; see Ezek.38.2. Kedar: a land in the Syrian desert, perhaps a symbol of hardship or barbarism; see S. of S.1.5-6. 7: See 55-21.

121

- 1 If I lift up my eyes to the hills, where shall I find help?
2 Help comes only from the LORD,
maker of heaven and earth.
3 How could he let your foot stumble?
How could he, your guardian,
sleep?
4 The guardian of Israel never slumbers, never sleeps.
5 The LORD is your guardian, your defence at your right hand; 6 the sun will not strike you by day nor the moon by night.
7 The LORD will guard you against all evil;
he will guard you, body and soul.
8 The LORD will guard your going and your coming,
now and for evermore.

122

- 1 I rejoiced when they said to me,
'Let us go to the house of the
LORD.'
2 Now we stand within your gates,
O Jerusalem:
3 Jerusalem that is built to be a city where people come together in unity;
4 to which the tribes resort, the tribes
of the LORD,
to give thanks to the LORD
himself,
the bounden duty of Israel.
5 For in her are set the thrones of
justice,

the thrones of the house of David.
Pray for the peace of Jerusalem: 6
'May those who love you prosper; peace be within your ramparts 7 and prosperity in your palaces.'
For the sake of these my brothers 8 and my friends,
I will say, 'Peace be within you.'
For the sake of the house of the 9
LORD our God
I will pray for your good.

123

I lift my eyes to thee 1
whose throne is in heaven.
As the eyes of a slave follow his 2 master's hand
or the eyes of a slave-girl her mistress,
so our eyes are turned to the LORD our God
waiting for kindness from him.
Deal kindly with us, O LORD, deal 3 kindly,
for we have suffered insult enough;
too long have we had to suffer 4 the insults of the wealthy,
the scorn of proud men.

124

If the LORD had not been on our 1
side,
Israel may now say,
if the LORD had not been on our 2
side
when they assailed us,

Ps. 121: The guardian of Israel. A Hymn, another Song of Ascents (see Ps.120 n.), pointing to Mount Zion as the source of protection in the dangers of the pilgrimage to Jerusalem (vv. 2-6) as well as in life (vv. 7-8). 1: Sanctuaries were built on hills, both to the pagan Baals (2 Kgs.23.5) and to the God of Israel for whom the Temple on Mount Zion was built. 4: Never sleeps: the affirmation is in sharp contrast with the anxiety in 44.23. 5: The defendant of an accused man stood at his right hand at a trial. 8: Going and coming: the performance of one's daily work; see Deut.28.6.

Ps. 122: Pray for the peace of Jerusalem. A Hymn, sung by admiring pilgrims at their departure as they still stood within the walls of Jerusalem. 3: Jerusalem was the center of political unity since it belonged to no tribe when David made it his capital (2 Sam.5.6-10); it was the center of religious unity, in whose Temple alone could sacrifices be legitimately offered; see Deut.12.5-7; 2 Kgs. ch. 23. 5: Thrones of justice: where the king held court (1 Kgs.7.7). 6-9: Pilgrims pray for Jerusalem as they leave. 6: Peace: in Heb. "shalom," has wide-ranging positive meaning, namely, well-being, happiness, and prosperity.

Ps. 123: Deal kindly with us, O LORD. A Lament of the community which returned humbled and lowly from the Exile and was exposed to the contempt of its pagan neighbors; see Neh.2.19. 1: See Ps.121.1. 3-4: A plea for help.

Ps. 124: Our help is in the name of the LORD. A Thanksgiving. See Ps.120 n. on Songs of

- 3 they would have swallowed us alive when their anger was roused against us.
- 4 The waters would have carried us
away
and the torrent swept over us; 5 over us would have swept the seething waters.
- 6 Blessed be the LORD, who did not leave us
to be the prey between their teeth.
- 7 We have escaped like a bird from the fowler's trap;
the trap broke, and so we escaped.
- 8 Our help is in the name of the LORD,
maker of heaven and earth.

125

- 1 Those who trust in the LORD are like Mount Zion, which cannot be shaken but stands fast for ever.
- 2 As the hills enfold Jerusalem, so the LORD enfolds his people, now and evermore.
- 3 The sceptre of wickedness shall surely find no home
in the land allotted to the
righteous,
so that the righteous shall not set their hands to injustice.
- 4 Do good, O LORD, to those who are good and to those who are upright in
heart.
- 5 But those who turn aside into crooked ways,
may the LORD destroy them, as he destroys all evildoers!

Peace be upon Israel!

126

- When the LORD turned the tide of Zion's fortune,
we were like men who had found new health.<sup>a</sup>
- Our mouths were full of laughter and our tongues sang aloud for joy.
- Then word went round among the nations,
'The LORD has done great things for them.'
- Great things indeed the LORD then did for us,
and we rejoiced.

- Turn once again our fortune, LORD, as streams return in the dry south.
- Those who sow in tears shall reap with songs of joy.
- A man may go out weeping, carrying his bag of seed;
but he will come back with songs of joy,
carrying home his sheaves.

127

- Unless the LORD builds the house, its builders will have toiled in vain.
- Unless the LORD keeps watch over a city,
in vain the watchman stands on guard.
- In vain you rise up early and go late to rest,
toiling for the bread you eat;
he supplies the need of those he loves.<sup>b</sup>
- Sons are a gift from the LORD

<sup>a</sup> like . . . health; or like dreamers.

<sup>b</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds an unintelligible word.

Ascents. The theme is the deliverance of the nation from its foes. 4-5: The metaphor of waters is also found in 69.1-2,15. 8: Compare 121.2.

Ps. 125: Peace be upon Israel. A Lament; a Song of Ascents (see 120 n.). 1-3: The security of those who trust in God is as solid as Mount Zion, the rock on which the Temple stood. 3: Sceptre of wickedness: a foreign conqueror. The allusion is, however, quite vague. 4-5: A plea for help.

Ps. 126. Turn once again our fortune, O LORD. A Lament with a prayer for deliverance, possibly from the hardships the community experienced in the first years after the return from Exile; see Neh.5.1-5. 1-2: To the returned Exiles their new life of freedom at first seemed like a dream (see Tfn. a) as they sang, in contrast to their stay in Babylon; compare 137.2-4. 4: In the south of Palestine water courses, dry during most of the year, all at once fill up with streams of water from sudden rains in winter.

Ps. 127: Without the LORD all is in vain. A Wisdom Psalm. Since this Song of Ascents (see Ps.120 n.) is a Wisdom Psalm, it is ascribed to Solomon in the superscription of the MT (see Introduction). 1-2: God is the true source of security and blessing. 3-5: The blessing of having

- and children a reward from him.
 4 Like arrows in the hand of a fighting man
   are the sons of a man's youth.
 5 Happy is the man
   who has his quiver full of them;
 such men shall not be put to shame when they confront their enemies in court.

128

- 1 Happy are all who fear the LORD, who live according to his will.
 2 You shall eat the fruit of your own labours,
   you shall be happy and you shall prosper.
 3 Your wife shall be like a fruitful vine
   in the heart of your house;
   your sons shall be like olive-shoots round about your table.
 4 This is the blessing in store for the
   man
   who fears the LORD.
 5 May the LORD bless you from Zion; may you share the prosperity of Jerusalem
   all the days of your life, 6 and live to see your children's children!

Peace be upon Israel!

129

- 1 Often since I was young have men attacked me—
   let Israel now say—

- often since I was young have men 2
   attacked me,
   but never have they prevailed.
 They scored my back with scourges, 3 like ploughmen driving long furrows.
 Yet the LORD in his justice 4 has cut me loose from the bonds
   of the wicked.
 Let all enemies of Zion 5
   be thrown back in shame;
 let them be like grass growing on 6
   the roof,
   which withers before it can shoot, which will never fill a mower's hand 7 nor yield an armful for the harvester,
 so that passers-by will never say to 8
   them,
 'The blessing of the LORD be
   upon you!
 We bless you in the name of the LORD.'

130

- Out of the depths have I called to 1
   thee, O LORD;
   Lord, hear my cry. 2
 Let thy ears be attentive to my plea for mercy.
 If thou, LORD, shouldst keep 3 account of sins,
   who, O LORD, could hold up his
   head?
 But in thee is forgiveness, 4 and therefore thou art revered.
 I wait for the LORD with all my 5 soul,
   I hope for the fulfilment of his word.

many sons. 5: In an Israelite court, which was held in an open forum, the larger a man's family, the greater influence he had.

Ps. 128: May the LORD bless you from Zion. A Wisdom Psalm; see Ps.120 n. 1-4: It is a frequent theme of Wisdom teaching that the faithful are blessed with a devoted family. 5-6: A prayer for Jerusalem and for peace.

Ps. 129: Let all enemies of Zion be thrown back in shame. A Lament of the community in which an individual speaks for the whole nation, apparently in a cultic setting. See Ps.120 n. 1: Israel was young in the Exodus from Egypt and in the wandering in the desert. 3: Ploughmen driving long furrows: apparently a popular metaphor (also found in a Ugaritic text 62.4-5). 5-8: A curse, prompted by the danger from foes. 6: In Palestine a house has a flat roof made of clay from which grass sprouts after a rain but quickly withers in the sunshine that follows. See Ps.37.2. 8: See Ps.118.26; Ruth 2.4.

Ps. 130: LORD, hear my cry. A Lament; see Ps.120 n. This psalm is one of the seven "Penitential Psalms" (others are: Pss. 6, 32, 38, 51, 102, 143), so called because they are used in the Christian liturgy on occasions of mourning as an expression of repentance. 1: Depths: affliction of the spirit because of sinfulness rather than physical misery. 4: God is revered because he is

6	My soul waits <sup>e</sup> for the Lord more eagerly than watchmen for the morning. Like men who watch for the morning,	a dwelling for the Mighty One of Jacob.’ We heard of it in Ephrathah; we came upon it in the region of Jaar.	6
7	O Israel, look for the LORD. For in the LORD is love unfailing, and great is his power to set men free.	Let us enter his dwelling, let us fall in worship at his footstool.	7
8	He alone will set Israel free from all their sins.	Arise, O LORD, and come to thy resting-place, thou and the ark of thy power. Let thy priests be clothed in righteousness and let thy loyal servants shout for joy.	8 9

131

1	O LORD, my heart is not proud, nor are my eyes haughty; I do not busy myself with great matters or things too marvellous for me.	For thy servant David’s sake reject not thy anointed king. The LORD swore to David an oath which he will not break: ‘A prince of your own line will I set upon your throne. If your sons keep my covenant and heed the teaching that I give them, their sons in turn for all time shall sit upon your throne.’	10
2	No; I submit myself, I account myself lowly, as a weaned child clinging to its mother. <sup>d</sup>	For the LORD has chosen Zion and desired it for his home: ‘This is my resting-place for ever; here will I make my home, for such is my desire. I will richly bless her destitute <sup>e</sup> and satisfy her needy with bread. With salvation will I clothe her priests; her loyal servants shall shout for joy.	11 12
3	O Israel, look for the LORD now and evermore.		13

132

1	O LORD, remember David in the time of his adversity, how he swore to the LORD and made a vow to the Mighty One of Jacob:		14
2	‘I will not enter my house nor will I mount my bed, I will not close my eyes in sleep or my eyelids in slumber, until I find a sanctuary for the LORD,		15
3			16

c waits: transposed from after the LORD in verse 5.
d Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds as a weaned child clinging to me.
e her destitute: prob. rdg.; Heb. her provisions.

forgiving and not because he is vindictive. 6-7: Men keeping a military or shepherd’s watch during the darkest hours before dawn eagerly await the security of the morning. 8: Set Israel free: compare Isa.44.22.

Ps. 131: I submit myself. A fragment of a Song of Ascents; see Ps.120 n. 1b: The allusion in these words of humility is unclear. 2: For the suggestion that God is like a mother see Isa.66.7-13.

Ps. 132: The LORD swore to David. A Royal Psalm. It was probably used in a liturgical setting, possibly at a coronation ceremony or at a processional ceremony, to commemorate the finding of the Ark (vv. 6-8; see 1 Sam.6.13) and its transfer to Jerusalem (2 Sam. ch. 6.) This latter use put it into the category of the Ascents; see Ps.120 n. 2; Mighty One: a name for God. 5: Dwelling: a shrine to house the Ark of the Covenant above which God was considered to be present in a special way; see Exod.25.22. 6: Ephrathah: Bethlehem, David’s birth-place. Jaar: Kiriath-jearim, a city in Judah to which the Philistines returned the Ark after capturing it in battle; see 1 Sam.6.13-7.2. 7: His footstool: the Ark; see v. 5. 8: Arise, O LORD: a ceremonial exclamation when moving the Ark; see 68.1 and compare Num.10.35. 9: This is possibly a rubric for the priests to put on sacred vestments, i.e. be clothed in righteousness, and for the assembly to shout for joy, i.e. start singing as the procession begins. 11-18: Possibly an oracle by a Temple prophet proclaiming God’s promises to David and to Zion. 17: God lights a lamp for David by establishing his successor (see 1 Kgs.11.36).

- 17 There will I renew the line of David's house
and light a lamp for my anointed
king;
18 his enemies will I clothe with shame, but on his head shall be a shining crown.<sup>7</sup>

133

- 1 How good it is and how pleasant for brothers to live<sup>f</sup> together!
2 It is fragrant as oil poured upon the head
and falling over the beard, Aaron's beard, when the oil runs down over the collar of his vestments.
3 It is like the dew of Hermon falling upon the hills of Zion.
There the LORD bestows his blessing, life for evermore.

134

- 1 Come, bless the LORD,
all you servants of the LORD, who stand night after night in the house of the LORD.
2 Lift up your hands in the sanctuary and bless the LORD.
3 The LORD, maker of heaven and
earth,
bless you from Zion!

135

- 1 O praise the LORD.

Praise the name of the LORD;

- praise him, you servants of the
LORD,
who stand in the house of the LORD, 2 in the temple courts of our God.
Praise the LORD, for that is good; 3 honour his name with psalms, for that is pleasant.
The LORD has chosen Jacob to be 4
his own
and Israel as his special treasure.
I know that the LORD is great, 5 that our LORD is above all gods.
Whatever the LORD pleases, 6 that he does, in heaven and on
earth,
in the sea, in the depths of ocean.
He brings up the mist from the 7 ends of the earth,
he opens rifts<sup>g</sup> for the rain,
and brings the wind out of his
storehouses.
He struck down all the first-born in 8
Egypt,
both man and beast.
In Egypt he sent signs and portents 9 against Pharaoh and all his subjects.
He struck down mighty nations 10
and slew great kings, Sihon king of the Amorites, Og the 11
king of Bashan,
and all the princes of Canaan, and gave their land to Israel, 12 to Israel his people as their
patrimony.
O LORD, thy name endures for ever; 13 thy renown, O LORD, shall last for
all generations.
The LORD will give his people 14
justice

f Or to worship. g Prob. rdg.; Heb. lightnings.

Ps. 133: How pleasant for brothers to live together. A Wisdom Psalm; see Introduction. The united community of Israel is seen to be as beneficent as the oil that conferred the blessings of the priesthood and the dew that brought refreshment in the heat. 2: Oil upon the head was part of the ceremony of priestly consecration which brought a person into a brotherly relationship of Temple ministers; see Exod.29.7. 3: Hermon is the highest mountain in Syria, whose peak is almost always covered with snow and lost in mist. It was believed by the ancients to be the source of the refreshing dew that settled on the parched countryside to the south of Palestine.

Ps. 134: The LORD bless you from Zion. A Benediction which closes the Songs of Ascents (Ps.120 n.) with a blessing. It consists of a liturgical dialogue between pilgrims who leave and the priests who remain on duty in the Temple at night, 1-2: Encouragement given to the priests, the servants of the LORD, by the pilgrims. 3: Blessing imparted by the priests in the name of the LORD, from whom all blessings in heaven and on earth come. Maker of heaven and earth: also used in 121.2 and 124.8.

Ps. 135: O praise the LORD. A Hymn which begins and ends with a ritual call to worship. It is composed almost entirely of allusions to, or borrowings from, other psalms and passages of the Bible. 7: In the absence of meteorological science, the formation of mist was a mystery. Also, rain was thought to fall from rifts opened by God in the vault containing the waters above the heaven; see Gen.1.6-8. 8-12: God's deeds in history. 10: For the defeat of kings see Num.

	and have compassion on his servants.	his love endures for ever, and brought Israel from among them;	11
15	The gods of the nations are idols of silver and gold, made by the hands of men.	his love endures for ever. With strong hand and outstretched arm,	12
16	They have mouths that cannot speak and eyes that cannot see;	his love endures for ever, he divided the Red Sea in two,	13
17	they have ears that do not hear, and there is no breath in their nostrils. <sup>b</sup>	his love endures for ever, and made Israel pass through it, his love endures for ever;	14
18	Their makers grow like them, and so do all who trust in them.	but Pharaoh and his host he swept into the sea;	15
19	O house of Israel, bless the LORD; O house of Aaron, bless the LORD.	his love endures for ever. He led his people through the wilderness;	16
20	O house of Levi, bless the LORD; you who fear the LORD, bless the LORD.	his love endures for ever. He struck down great kings; his love endures for ever.	17
21	Blessed from Zion be the LORD who dwells in Jerusalem.	He slew mighty kings, his love endures for ever, Sihon king of the Amorites, his love endures for ever, and Og the king of Bashan; his love endures for ever.	18 19 20

O praise the LORD.

136

1	It is good to give thanks to the LORD, for his love endures for ever.	He gave their land to Israel, his love endures for ever,	21
2	Give thanks to the God of gods; his love endures for ever.	to Israel his servant as their patrimony;	22
3	Give thanks to the Lord of lords; his love endures for ever.	his love endures for ever. He remembered us when we were cast down,	23
4	Alone he works great marvels; his love endures for ever.	his love endures for ever, and rescued us from our enemies;	24
5	In wisdom he made the heavens; his love endures for ever.	his love endures for ever. He gives food to all his creatures;	25
6	He laid the earth upon the waters; his love endures for ever.	his love endures for ever. Give thanks to the God of heaven, for his love endures for ever.	26
7	He made the great lights, his love endures for ever,
8	the sun to rule by day, his love endures for ever,
9	the moon and the stars to rule by night;
	his love endures for ever.
10	He struck down the first-born of the Egyptians,

137

By the rivers of Babylon we sat down and wept

h Prob. rdg.; Heb. mouths.

21.21-35. 15-18: Similar to 115.3-8. 19-21: For the house of Israel, Aaron, etc., see 115.9-11 n.
Ps. 136: His love endures forever. A Hymn. In the Jewish liturgy it is called "the Great Hallel" since it was recited at the Passover meal after the "Lesser Hallel," i.e. Pss.113-118. In structure it is a litany; that is, the refrain, "his love endures forever," in the second half of every verse, was sung by the congregation in response to the first half of the verse sung by a soloist. The basic structure is an introduction (vv. 1-3), God's majesty in creation (vv. 4-9), his greatness in the Exodus (vv. 10-15), in the Wilderness (vv. 16-20), in the Conquest (vv. 21-22), his deliverance in the time of the Judges (vv. 23-25), and a conclusion (v. 26). 17-20: Num.21.21-35; compare Ps.135.11. 23-25: Compare 135.13-18.

Ps. 137: We sat down and wept. A Lament sung in the Exile after the destruction of Jerusalem by the Babylonians in 587 B.C. 1: Rivers of Babylon: the Tigris and Euphrates and the irrigation when we remembered Zion.

 2 There on the willow-trees<sup>d</sup>
 we hung up our harps,
 3 for there those who carried us off demanded music and singing, and our captors called on us to be merry:
 'Sing us one of the songs of Zion.' 4 How could we sing the LORD's song in a foreign land?
 5 If I forget you, O Jerusalem, let my right hand wither away; 6 let my tongue cling to the roof of my mouth
 if I do not remember you, if I do not set Jerusalem above my highest joy.
 7 Remember, O LORD, against the people of Edom
 the day of Jerusalem's fall, when they said, 'Down with it,
 down with it,
 down to its very foundations!' 8 O Babylon, Babylon the destroyer, happy the man who repays you for all that you did to us!
 9 Happy is he who shall seize your children
 and dash them against the rock.

138

1 I will praise thee, O LORD, with all
 my heart;
 boldly, O God, will I sing psalms to thee.<sup>j</sup> 2 I will bow down towards thy holy
 temple,
 for thy love and faithfulness I will
 praise thy name;
 for thou hast made thy promise wide
 as the heavens.

When I called to thee thou didst 3
 answer me
 and make me bold and valiant-
 hearted.
 Let all the kings of the earth praise<sup>k</sup> 4
 thee, O LORD,
 when they hear the words thou hast spoken;
 and let them sing of<sup>l</sup> the LORD's 5
 ways,
 for great is the glory of the LORD.
 For the LORD, high as he is, cares 6 for the lowly,
 and from afar he humbles the proud.
 Though I walk among foes thou dost 7 preserve my life,
 exerting thy power against the rage of my enemies,
 and with thy right hand thou savest me.
 The LORD will accomplish his 8 purpose for me.
 Thy true love, O LORD, endures
 for ever;
 leave not thy work unfinished.

139

LORD, thou hast examined me and 1 knowest me.
 Thou knowest all, whether I sit 2 down or rise up;
 thou hast discerned my thoughts
 from afar.
 Thou hast traced my journey and 3
 my resting places,
 and art familiar with all my paths.
 For there is not a word on my 4 tongue

i Or poplars.

j boldly . . . thee: or I will sing psalms to thee before the gods.

k Or confess. l Or walk in.

ditches which branched off from them. 3: A group of psalms which extol Jerusalem, the "city of God" are called the songs, or canticles, of Zion; they are Pss. 46, 48, 76, 84, 87, and 122. 7: The people of Edom (a country to the southeast of Judah), allied themselves with the Babylonians in plundering Jerusalem after the day of its capture in June-July, 587 B.C.; see Ezek. 35.5; Obad. 10-14. 9: In ancient warfare children were often cruelly killed.

Ps. 138: I will praise thee, O LORD. A Thanksgiving Psalm, probably a royal one sung in the Temple. 1: The word "gods" in Tfn. j can also mean godlike beings and may be translated as "angels"; some versions interpret it "kings" or "judges." 2: Promise wide as the heavens: God offers everything to man, including himself. 6: Not only does God stay afar from the proud, those who aspire to be his equals, but he also humbles them, in bringing them lower than they were.

Ps. 139: Slay the wicked. A Lament (see Introduction). Man's life is mysterious; and since God has shown himself all-wise and all-powerful in creating man, he knows intimately the inner soul of the poet and his need for guidance. 2: Sit down or rise up: all of man's actions.

	but thou, LORD, knowest them all. <sup>m</sup>	day by day they were fashioned, not one of them was late in growing. <sup>n</sup>
5	Thou hast kept close guard before me and behind and hast spread thy hand over me.	How deep I find thy thoughts, O God,	17
6	Such knowledge is beyond my understanding, so high that I cannot reach it.	how inexhaustible their themes! Can I count them? They outnumber	18
7	Where can I escape from thy spirit? Where can I flee from thy presence?	the grains of sand; to finish the count, my years must equal thine.
8	If I climb up to heaven, thou art there; if I make my bed in Sheol, again I find thee.	O God, if only thou wouldst slay the wicked!	19
9	If I take my flight to the frontiers of the morning or dwell at the limit of the western sea,	If those men of blood would but leave me in peace— those who provoke thee with deliberate evil	20
10	even there thy hand will meet me and thy right hand will hold me fast.	and rise in vicious rebellion against thee!
11	If I say, 'Surely darkness will steal over me, night will close around me',	How I hate them, O LORD, that hate thee!	21
12	darkness is no darkness for thee and night is luminous as day; to thee both dark and light are one.	I am cut to the quick when they oppose thee; I hate them with undying hatred; I hold them all my enemies.	22
13	Thou it was who didst fashion my inward parts; thou didst knit me together in my mother's womb.	Examine me, O God, and know my thoughts; test me, and understand my misgivings.	23
14	I will praise thee, for thou dost fill me with awe; wonderful thou art, and wonderful thy works.	Watch lest I follow any path that grieves thee; guide me in the ancient <sup>o</sup> ways.	24
	Thou knowest me through and through:
15	my body is no mystery to thee, how I was secretly kneaded into shape and patterned in the depths of the earth.	140
16	Thou didst see my limbs unformed in the womb, and in thy book they are all recorded;	Rescue me, O LORD, from evil men: 1 keep me safe from violent men, whose heads are full of wicked 2 schemes, who stir up contention day after day. Their tongues are sharp as serpents' 3 fangs;

m For . . . them all: or If there is any offence on my tongue, thou, LORD, knowest it all.
n was late in growing: prob. rdg.; Heb. om. o Or everlasting.

8: Although God's knowledge encompassed Sheol (Job 26.6), he was ordinarily considered absent from it (Job 3.13–19), the view here being unique. 9: The great mysteries for the ancient man affecting his life daily were the frontiers of the morning, "the home of light" and the limit of the western sea, the Mediterranean, the "dwelling of darkness"; see Job 38.12–20. 15: Depths of the earth: the womb, the emphasis being on the mystery of the process that is at work. 16: Thy book: see 56.8 n. 22: For the Hebrew, God's cause is the cause of his faithful, and vice versa; compare Mt.12.30. 24: Ancient ways: the fidelity of the patriarchs to God even when his guidance was a mystery to them.

Ps. 140: Rescue me, O LORD. A Lament (see Introduction), a lengthy appeal for deliverance from enemies. 1–2: A prayer for help. 3–7: The entrapment by the wicked. 3: Tongues: possibly

- on their lips is spiders' poison.
 4 Guard me, O LORD, from wicked men;
 keep me safe from violent men, who plan to thrust me out of the
 way.
 5 Arrogant men set hidden traps for
 me,
 rogues spread their nets and lay snares for me along the path.
 6 I said, 'O LORD, thou art my God;
 O LORD, hear my plea for mercy.
 7 O LORD God, stronghold of my safety,
 thou hast shielded my head in the day of battle.
 8-9 Frustrate, O LORD, their designs
 against me;
 never let the wicked gain their purpose.
 If any of those at my table rise
 against me,
 let their own conspiracies be
 their undoing.
 10 Let burning coals be tipped upon
 them;
 let them be plunged into the miry depths,
 never to rise again.
 11 Slander shall find no home in the
 land;
 evil and violence shall be hounded to destruction.'
 12 I know that the LORD will give their due to the needy
 and justice to the downtrodden.
 13 Righteous men will surely give thanks to thy name;
 the upright will worship in thy
 presence.
- listen to my cry when I call to
 thee.
 Let my prayer be like incense duly 2 set before thee
 and my raised hands like the evening sacrifice.
 Set a guard, O LORD, over my 3
 mouth;
 keep watch at the door of my lips.
 Turn not my heart to sinful thoughts 4 nor to any pursuit of evil courses.
 The evildoers appal me;<sup>p</sup> not for me the delights of their table.
 I would rather be buffeted by the 5
 righteous
 and reproved by good men.
 My head shall not be anointed with the oil of wicked men, for that would make me a party to their crimes.
 They shall founder on the rock of 6
 justice
 and shall learn how acceptable my words are.
 Their bones shall be scattered at the 7 mouth of Sheol,
 like splinters of wood or stone on
 the ground.
 But my eyes are fixed on thee, O 8
 LORD God;
 thou art my refuge; leave me not unprotected.
 Keep me from the trap which they 9 have set for me,
 from the snares of evildoers.
 Let the wicked fall into their own 10 nets,
 whilst I pass in safety, all alone.

142

- 141
- 1 O LORD, I call to thee, come quickly to my aid;
- I cry aloud to the LORD;
 to the LORD I plead aloud for
 mercy.

<sup>p</sup> appal me: prob. rdg.; Heb. with men.

an allusion to a curse; compare 109.28. 6: His plea is based on his confession: thou art my God. 8-11: A curse on the enemies. 8-9: My table: compare 41.9. 12-13: The psalmist's trust.

Ps. 141: Listen to my cry. A Lament (see Introduction), with the usual vow absent. 2: The fragrant smoke of incense rising from the altar was a symbol of prayer acceptable to God; see Rev.5.8. Raised hands are a gesture of supplication which the poet prays may be acceptable as an evening sacrifice which God had commanded; see Exod.29.38-42. 3: Guard over mouth: against sinful words. 4: Anointing oneself with oil was a sign of prosperity and festivity; see 23.5; Ezek.16.9. 6: God is often called the rock on which the wicked founder; see 18.2; compare Lk.20.18. 7: Bones at the mouth of Sheol: symbol of shameful death.

Ps. 142: I cry to thee. O LORD. A Lament (see Introduction). See Ps.30.8 and 77.1.

2	I pour out my complaint before him and tell over my troubles in his presence.	so that my spirit fails me and my heart is dazed with despair.	4
3	When my spirit is faint within me, thou art there to watch over my steps. In the path that I should take they have hidden a snare.	I dwell upon the years long past, upon the memory of all that thou hast done; the wonders of thy creation fill my mind.	5
4	I look to my right hand, I find no friend by my side; no way of escape is in sight, no one comes to rescue me.	To thee I lift my outspread hands, athirst for thee in a thirsty land. LORD, make haste to answer, for my spirit faints.	6
5	I cry to thee, O LORD, and say, 'Thou art my refuge; thou art all I have in the land of the living.	Do not hide thy face from me or I shall be like those who go down to the abyss.	7
6	Give me a hearing when I cry, for I am brought very low; save me from my pursuers, for they are too strong for me.	In the morning let me know thy true love; I have put my trust in thee. Show me the way that I must take; to thee I offer all my heart.	8
7	Set me free from my prison, so that I may praise thy name. The righteous shall crown me with garlands, <sup>q</sup> when thou givest me my due reward.	Deliver me, LORD, from my enemies, for with thee have I sought refuge. Teach me to do thy will, for thou art my God; in thy gracious kindness, show me the level road. Keep me safe, O LORD, for the honour of thy name and, as thou art just, release me from my distress.	9
		10	10
		11	11

143

1	LORD, hear my prayer; be true to thyself, and listen to my pleading; then in thy righteousness answer me.	In thy love for me, reduce my enemies to silence and bring destruction on all who oppress me; for I am thy servant.	12
---	---	---	----

2 Bring not thy servant to trial before
thee;
against thee no man on earth can be right.

144

3	An enemy has hunted me down, has ground my living body under foot and plunged me into darkness like a man long dead,	Blessed is the LORD, my rock, who trains my hands for war, my fingers for battle; my help that never fails, my fortress,	1
		2	2

<sup>q</sup> crown me with garlands: or crowd round me.

4: Right hand: see 109.6 n. 5: Land of the living: this earth. 7-8: The vow usual in a Lament. 7: Prison: probably meant figuratively for the feeling of being hemmed in by enemies. Praise thy name: the vow as a motive for deliverance. Reward: liberation and restoration to an honorable status surrounded by the righteous.

Ps. 143: LORD, make haste to answer. A Lament (see Introduction). This is the last of the so-called "Penitential Psalms" (see Ps.130 n.). The poet confesses that because of his sins he does not deserve to be heard in strict justice (vv. 1-2) but only in God's love (vv. 8,10,12). 1: God will be true to himself when he listens to the pleas of the psalmist since his attributes are: righteousness, true love (v. 8), and gracious kindness (v. 10); see 86.15 n. 7: Hide thy face: see 10.11 n. Abyss: Sheol, the place of the dead. 8-12: An appeal to God's love for deliverance and for the destruction of the enemies. 8: In the darkness and loneliness of night God seemed absent, but morning was the true indication of God's love.

Ps. 144: Rescue me from the cruel sword. A Lament (see Introduction), probably by a king (vv. 10-11). The first part, vv. 1-11, is almost completely borrowed from, or inspired by, other my strong tower and my refuge, my shield in which I trust, he who puts nations under my

feet.

- 3 O LORD, what is man that thou carest for him?
What is mankind? Why give a thought to them?
- 4 Man is no more than a puff of wind,
his days a passing shadow.
- 5 If thou, LORD, but tilt the heavens, down they come;
touch the mountains, and they
smoke.
- 6 Shoot forth thy lightning flashes,
far and wide,
and send thy arrows whistling.
- 7 Stretch out thy hands from on high to rescue me
and snatch me from great waters.<sup>r</sup>
- 9 I will sing a new song to thee, O
God,
psalms to the music of a ten-stringed lute.
- 10 O God who gavest victory to kings and deliverance to thy servant
David,
rescue me from the cruel sword;
snatch me from the power of foreign foes,
whose every word is false
and all their oaths are perjury.
- 12 Happy<sup>s</sup> are we whose sons in their early prime stand like tall towers, our daughters like sculptured pillars
at the corners of a palace.
- 13 Our barns are full and furnish plentiful provision;
our sheep bear lambs in thousands upon thousands;
- 14 the oxen in our fields are fat and sleek;
there is no miscarriage or untimely birth,

no cries of distress in our public places.
Happy are the people in such a case as ours;
happy the people who have the LORD for their God. 15

145

- I will extol thee, O God my king, and bless thy name for ever and
ever. 1
- Every day will I bless thee and praise thy name for ever and
ever. 2
- Great is the LORD and worthy of all praise;
his greatness is unfathomable. 3
- One generation shall commend thy works to another and set forth thy mighty deeds. 4
- My theme shall be thy marvellous
works,
the glorious splendour of thy
majesty. 5
- Men shall declare thy mighty acts
with awe
and tell of thy great deeds. 6
- They shall recite the story of thy abounding goodness and sing of thy righteousness with joy. 7
- The LORD is gracious and
compassionate,
forbearing, and constant in his
love. 8
- The LORD is good to all men, and his tender care rests upon all his creatures. 9
- All thy creatures praise thee, LORD, and thy servants bless thee. 10
- They talk of the glory of thy kingdom and tell of thy might, 11

<sup>r</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds from the power of foreign foes, (8) whose every word is false and all their oaths are perjury (cp. verse. 11).

<sup>s</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. Who.

psalms: vv. 1-2 = 18.2-3; v. 3 = 8.4-5; v. 4 = 39.5; v. 5 = 18.10; v. 9 = 18.49-50. 9: The vow usual in a Lament. 12-14: The blessing of peace and prosperity promised to Israel for obeying the Law; see Deut.28.1-12. 12: Like sculptured pillars: statuesque.

Ps. 145: I will extol thee, O God my king. A Hymn, many of whose phrases are similar to other psalms and other parts of the Bible. It extols the goodness and greatness of God. The preceding six psalms (139-144) are Laments, but the ensuing and last six (145-150) are Hymns. This acrostic psalm (see Ps.111 n.) lacks a verse for the Heb. letter nun in the MT, possibly as a result of a copyist's omission; its place would be between vv. 13 and 14. 8-9: The unique attri-

12 they proclaim to their fellows how mighty are thy deeds, how glorious the majesty of thy kingdom.

13 Thy kingdom is an everlasting kingdom,
and thy dominion stands for all
generations.

14 In all his promises the LORD keeps faith,
he is unchanging in all his works;
the LORD holds up those who stumble
and straightens backs which are bent.

15 The eyes of all are lifted to thee in
hope,
and thou givest them their food
when it is due;

16 with open and bountiful hand thou givest what they desire<sup>t</sup> to every living creature.

17 The LORD is righteous in all his ways, unchanging in all that he does;

18 very near is the LORD to those who call to him, who call to him in singleness of
heart.

19 He fulfils their desire if only they
fear him;
he hears their cry and saves them.

20 The LORD watches over all who love him
but sends the wicked to their doom.

21 My tongue shall speak out the praises of the LORD, and all creatures shall bless his
holy name
for ever and ever.

Praise the LORD, my soul.
As long as I live I will praise the LORD;
I will sing psalms to my God all my life long.

Put no faith in princes,
in any man, who has no power to save.

He breathes his last breath,
he returns to the dust;
and in that same hour all his thinking ends.

Happy the man whose helper is the God of Jacob,
whose hopes are in the LORD his
God,
maker of heaven and earth,
the sea, and all that is in them;
who serves wrongdoers as he has sworn and deals out justice to the oppressed.

The LORD feeds the hungry and sets the prisoner free.

The LORD restores sight to the blind
and straightens backs which are
bent;

the LORD loves the righteous and watches over the stranger;
the LORD gives heart to the orphan and widow
but turns the course of the wicked
to their ruin.

The LORD shall reign for ever, thy God, O Zion, for all generations.

O praise the LORD.

146

147

1 O praise the LORD.

O praise the LORD. 1
<sup>t</sup> they desire: or thou wilt.

butes of God in his dealing with Israel and all men; see 86.15 n. 14-20: God's responsive attention to the needs of the faithful. 21: The praise of God, an echo of vv. 1-4.

Ps. 146: Praise the LORD, my soul. A Hymn. The last five of the psalms (146-150) begin and end with O praise the LORD, Heb. "Hallelujah". 1-2: The praise of God. 3-4: Compare 144.3-4. 4: Returns to the dust: see Gen.3.19. His thinking: his planning and projects. 5-10: The great deeds, past and present, of God the Creator. 6-9: In extolling God's deeds on behalf of the poor in the present there is a subtle allusion to his deeds on behalf of Israel, the oppressed, the hungry, the prisoner, the bent of back in the Exodus.

Ps. 147: How good it is to sing psalms to our God. A Hymn, possibly two separate psalms joined together; the Sept. and Vg. treat this psalm as two (vv. 1-11 and 12-20) with a Hallelujah (see Ps.146 n.) in vv. 1 and 20. 1: The praise of God. 2-11: His power in history and over nature;

- How good it is to sing psalms to
our God!
How pleasant to praise him!
- 2 The LORD is rebuilding Jerusalem; he gathers in the scattered sons of Israel.
- 3 It is he who heals the broken in spirit
and binds up their wounds, 4 he who numbers the stars one by one
and names them one and all.
- 5 Mighty is our Lord and great his
power,
and his wisdom beyond all telling.
- 6 The LORD gives new heart to the humble
and brings evildoers down to the dust.
- 7 Sing to the LORD a song of
thanksgiving,
sing psalms to the harp in honour of our God.
- 8 He veils the sky in clouds and prepares rain for the earth;
he clothes the hills with grass and green plants for the use of
man.
- 9 He gives the cattle their food and the young ravens all that they gather.
- 10 The LORD sets no store by the strength of a horse and takes no pleasure in a runner's legs;
11 his pleasure is in those who fear
him,
who wait for his true love.
- 12 Sing to the LORD, Jerusalem;
O Zion, praise your God, 13 for he has put new bars in your gates;
he has blessed your children within them.
- 14 He has brought peace to your realm and given you fine wheat in plenty.
- He sends his command to the ends 15
of the earth,
and his word runs swiftly.
He showers down snow, white as 16
wool,
and sprinkles hoar-frost thick as
ashes;
crystals of ice he scatters like 17
bread-crumbs;
he sends the cold, and the water stands frozen,
he utters his word, and the ice is 18
melted;
he blows with his wind and the waters flow.
To Jacob he makes his word known, 19
his statutes and decrees to Israel; he has not done this for any other 20
nation,
nor taught them his decrees.
- O praise the LORD.

148

- O praise the LORD. 1
- Praise the LORD out of heaven; praise him in the heights. 2
- Praise him, all his angels; praise him, all his host. 3
- Praise him, sun and moon;
praise him, all you shining stars;
praise him, heaven of heavens, 4 and you waters above the heavens.
- Let them all praise the name of the 5
LORD,
for he spoke the word and they were created;
he established them for ever and ever 6 by an ordinance which shall never pass away.
- Praise the LORD from the earth, 7 you water-spouts and ocean
depths;
fire and hail, snow and ice, 8 gales of wind obeying his voice;

his goodness to the faithful. 2: A clue to the postexilic date of the poem. 12–20: God's special care of Jerusalem and Israel. 15: God's word here is presented as a messenger, an active power in the world.

Ps. 148: Let all praise the name of the LORD. A Hymn; see Ps. 146 n. 1–12: All that God has created should praise him. 2: Host: the armies of angels; compare Mt. 26.53. 3: Heaven of heavens: the highest heaven, i.e. God's dwelling, where he is enthroned above the vault and the heavenly reservoir of waters: see Gen. 1.6–8. 5: He spoke the word: compare Gen. ch. 1

9 all mountains and hills; all fruit-trees and all cedars; 10 wild beasts and cattle, creeping things and winged birds; 11 kings and all earthly rulers, princes and judges over the whole earth; 12 young men and maidens, old men and young together. 13 Let all praise the name of the LORD, for his name is high above all others, and his majesty above earth and heaven; 14 he has exalted his people in the pride of power and crowned with praise his loyal servants, all Israel, the people nearest him.	let them shout for joy as they kneel before him. Let the high praises of God be on their lips and a two-edged sword in their hand, to wreak vengeance on the nations and to chastise the heathen; to load their kings with chains and put their nobles in irons; to execute the judgement decreed against them— this is the glory of all his faithful servants.	6 6 7 8 9
--	--	----------------------------------

O praise the LORD.

O praise the LORD.

150

O praise the LORD. 1

149

1 O praise the LORD.

O praise God in his holy place, praise him in the vault of heaven,
the vault of his power;
praise him for his mighty works, praise him for his immeasurable greatness.
Praise him with fanfares on the trumpet,
praise him upon lute and harp;
praise him with tambourines and
dancing,
praise him with flute and strings;
praise him with the clash of cymbals, praise him with triumphant cymbals;
let everything that has breath praise the LORD! 6

Sing to the LORD a new song, sing his praise in the assembly of the faithful;
2 let Israel rejoice in his maker and the sons of Zion exult in their
king.
3 Let them praise his name in the dance,
and sing him psalms with tambourine and harp.
4 For the LORD accepts the service of his people;
he crowns his humble folk with
victory.
5 Let his faithful servants exult in triumph;

O praise the LORD.

and Ps.33.6. 13-14: Israel has a very special place but should not be alone in praising the name of the LORD.

Ps. 149: Sing to the LORD a new song. A Hymn; see Ps.146 n. It reflects a liturgical setting. 3: Dance seems to be prescribed as part of the religious ceremony; see 2 Sam.6.14; Exod.15.20. 4-9: A military victory appears to be reflected.

Ps. 150: O praise God in his holy place. A Hymn. This is the last of Hallelujah psalms (see Ps.146 n.) and it also is a final doxology to Book 5 and to all the psalms. A festival seems to be the background (vv. 3-5). 1: Holy place: the Temple. 3-5: The various musical instruments used in the Temple liturgy are indicated. 6: Praise from all living beings, the note on which the Psalter closes.

PROVERBS

The Book of Proverbs is a distillate of centuries of Israelite instruction in the home, court, and school. Called by some a foreign body in the Bible, Proverbs ignores major religious themes (covenant, patriarchs, Exodus, Sinai) and makes creative use of non-Israelite wisdom traditions, particularly Egyptian. In substance, it represents the results of a search for a divinely sustained order in the lessons derived from human experience. Prudence plus knowledge are thought to have been conferred by God, and these are regarded as an authoritative repository, entrusted to the care of fathers, teachers, and royal counselors. All insight being deemed a gift of God, Proverbs was thought of as revealed wisdom and hence was incorporated into Scripture.

Four long collections and five short appendixes are represented. Several headings indicate royal patronage (1.1; 10.1; 25.1); these and others (22.17; 24.23; 30.1; 31.1) testify to many centuries in which material accumulated. Chs. 1–9, by far the most religious collection, are the latest; these chapters have stylistic affinities with Deuteronomy and prophecy. The oldest collections, surely preexilic, are 10.1–22.16 and 25.1–29.27; these are basically “secular.” The teachings generally reflect an agricultural economy and are “this worldly” and optimistic despite a rigid principle of retribution. There is a characteristic tendency toward sharp contrast, such as rich/poor, wise/fool, good/evil.

	Advice to the reader		the sayings of wise men and their riddles.
1	The proverbs of Solomon son of David, king of Israel,		The fear of the LORD is the beginning <sup>a</sup> of knowledge,	7
2	by which men will come to wisdom and instruction and will understand words that bring understanding,		but fools scorn wisdom and discipline.
3	and by which they will gain a well-instructed intelligence, righteousness, justice, and probity.		Attend, my son, to your father's instruction	8
4	The simple will be endowed with shrewdness and the young with knowledge and prudence.		and do not reject the teaching of your mother;
5	If the wise man listens, he will increase his learning, and the man of understanding will acquire skill		for they are a garland of grace on your head	9
6	to understand proverbs and parables,		and a chain of honour round your neck.
			My son, bad men may tempt you <sup>b</sup> and say,	10, 11
			<small>a Or chief part. b Prob. rdg.: Heb. adds do not come, or, with some MSS., do not consent.</small>

1.1–7.27: Advice to the reader. This section differs both stylistically and thematically from the subsequent ones. Only here are there discussions of single topics in long paragraphs and also reflections of Deut. and the Prophets. The personification of Wisdom and Folly is a major theme of the chapters; the picture of Lady Wisdom is a derivative of the portrait of Dame Folly. It is not fully clear how one is to view the allusions to the “foreign woman,” whether: (1) she may be a participant in a fertility cult, that is, a sacred prostitute; or (2) simply a loose woman, foreign because her bad behavior sets her apart. In either case, the chapters burn with the intense conviction that since all knowledge derives from God it instructs man in the path of life. The superscription (1.1) recalls a tradition, 1 Kgs. 4.29–34, that Solomon composed or compiled proverbs and songs.

1.2–6: Introduction to the several collections. The editor gives reasons for studying the proverbial traditions. 6: The Heb. word for proverb (masal) implies a “likeness” or an authoritative word, while that for riddle (hidah) suggests an enigmatic saying.

1.7–9: Recommendation of wisdom. 7: This motto of the book occurs again at 9.10, and in expanded form in Job 28.28 and Ecclus. 1.14. It is in creative tension with the anthropocentricity (“centering on man”) of most wisdom texts. Fools: a moral rather than an intellectual judgment.

8: A metaphor for student, my son derives from the family setting in which the father instructed his children in the way of the wise. The term is used frequently in Egyptian wisdom literature for “pupil.” 9: Garland: a motif common in Egyptian wisdom literature.

1.10–19: Warning against the sinner's style of life. The attractiveness of evil is negated by its

	'Come with us; let us lie in wait for someone's blood; let us waylay <sup>c</sup> an innocent man who has done us no harm.	and would have nothing to do with my reproof, I in my turn will laugh at your doom	26
12	Like Sheol we will swallow them alive; though blameless, they shall be like men who go down to the abyss.	and deride you when terror comes upon you, when terror comes upon you like a hurricane	27
13	We shall take rich treasure of every sort and fill our homes with booty; throw in your lot with us, and we will have a common purse.'	and your doom descends like a whirlwind. <sup>f</sup> Insolent men delight in their insolence; stupid men hate knowledge. <sup>g</sup>
14	My son, do not go along with them, keep clear of their ways;	When they call upon me, I will not answer them;	28
15	they hasten hot-foot into crime, impatient to shed blood.	when they search for me, they shall not find me.
16	In vain is a net spread wide if any bird that flies can see it.	Because they hate knowledge and have not chosen to fear the LORD,	29
17	These men lie in wait for their own blood and waylay <sup>c</sup> no one but themselves.	because they have not accepted my counsel and have spurned all my reproof,	30
18	This is the fate <sup>d</sup> of men eager for ill-gotten gain: it robs those who get it of their lives.	they shall eat the fruits of their behaviour and have a surfeit of their own devices;	31
19	Wisdom cries aloud in the open air, she raises her voice in public places;	for the simpleton turns a deaf ear and comes to grief,	32
20	she calls at the top of the busy street and proclaims at the open gates of the city:	and the stupid are ruined by their own complacency.
21	'Simple fools, how long will you be content with your simplicity?'	But whoever listens to me shall live without a care, undisturbed by fear of misfortune.'	33
22	If only you would respond to my reproof, I would give you my counsel and teach you my precepts.	My son, if you take my words to heart and lay up my commands in your mind,	2
23	But because you refused to listen when I called, because no one attended when I stretched out my hand,
24	because you spurned all my advice

c Prob. rdg.; Heb. store up.
d This . . . fate: prob. rdg.; Heb. Such are the courses.
e The rest of verse 22 transposed to follow verse 27.
f Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds when anguish and distress come upon you.
g Insolent . . . knowledge: transposed from end of verse 22.

ultimate result; compare Wis.2.1–20. 12: Sheol: the shadowy realm of the dead. 17: A popular proverb enforces the warning against gullibly paying heed to the enticing criminal.

1.20–33: Wisdom in the role of prophethood. In striking prophetic style personified Wisdom pleads for a hearing and rebukes those who pay her no heed. 20–21: Unafraid of competition, Wisdom speaks publicly at the gates, the center of economic and judicial activity. 23: Give you my counsel: lit. "I will pour out my spirit upon you . . ." recalling prophetic language, e.g. Isa.44.3. 24: The hand of God may be stretched out either to strengthen or save a people or else to punish them; the former is intended here, and resembles numerous prophetic texts (see the refrain in Isa.5.25; 9.17,21; 10.4). The outstretched hand is a frequent Deuteronomistic expression for God's saving deeds in defeating the enemies of his people. 32: Turns a deaf ear: turns away, i.e. waywardness. 33: See 3.24–26.

2.1–22: The fruits of wisdom. By diligent attention to the precepts of the sages one becomes heir to (1) insight into religious knowledge; (2) divine protection, both from evil ways and from

- 2 giving your attention to wisdom and your mind to understanding, 3 if you summon discernment to your aid
and invoke understanding, 4 if you seek her out like silver and dig for her like buried treasure, 5 then you will understand the fear of
the LORD
and attain to the knowledge of God; 6 for the LORD bestows wisdom and teaches knowledge and understanding.
7 Out of his store he endows the upright with ability as a shield for those who live blameless lives;
8 for he guards the course of justice and keeps watch over the way of his loyal servants.
- 9 Then you will understand what is right and just and keep<sup>h</sup> only to the good man's path;
10 for wisdom will sink into your mind, and knowledge will be your heart's delight.
11 Prudence will keep watch over you, understanding will guard you, 12 it will save you from evil ways and from men whose talk is subversive, 13 who forsake the honest course to walk in ways of darkness, 14 who rejoice in doing evil and exult in evil and subversive acts, 15 whose own ways are crooked, whose tracks are devious.
16 It will save you from the adulteress, from the loose woman with her seductive words,
17 who forsakes the teaching of her childhood
and has forgotten the covenant of her God;
18 for her path<sup>i</sup> runs downhill towards
death,
- and her course is set for the land of the dead.
No one who resorts to her<sup>j</sup> finds his 19 way back
or regains the path to life.
- See then that you follow the 20 footsteps of good men and keep to the course of the
righteous;
for the upright shall dwell on earth, 21 and blameless men remain there; but the wicked shall be uprooted 22
from it
and traitors weeded out.
- My son, do not forget my teaching, 3 but guard my commands in your
heart;
for long life and years in plenty 2 will they bring you, and prosperity as well.
Let your good faith and loyalty 3 never fail,
but bind them about your neck.
Thus will you win favour and 4 success
in the sight of God and man.
- Put all your trust in the LORD 5 and do not rely on your own understanding.
Think of him in all your ways, 6
and he will smooth your path.
Do not think how wise you are, 7 but fear the LORD and turn from
evil.
Let that be the medicine to keep you 8
in health,
the liniment for your limbs.
Honour the LORD with your wealth 9 as the first charge on all your earnings;
then your granaries will be filled 10 with corn<sup>k</sup>

h keep: prob. rdg.; Heb. uprightness.

i Prob. rdg.; Heb. house.

j resorts to her: or takes to them.

k with corn: or to overflowing.

the adulteress; and (3) the promise of the land, i.e. possessions. 3: Invoke understanding: this passage comes near to personifying wisdom; see 1.1–7.27 n. 9: The insight is moral, what is right and just. 16: Loose: lit. alien; a moral rather than an ethnic term. 17: As frequently elsewhere, covenant is the term for the relation between God and man.

3.1–12: Divine trustworthiness. The LORD's discipline, like that of one's natural parents, has man's best interests at heart. 3: The New English Bible, with the Sept., omits a third clause found in the MT: "Write them upon the tablet of your heart." 9: First charge: lit. first fruit (see Exod.22.29). This is the sole cultic injunction in Prov.

	and your vats bursting with new wine.	and your feet will not stumble. When you sit, you need have no fear;	24
11	My son, do not spurn the LORD's correction	when you lie down, your sleep will be pleasant.
12	or take offence at his reproof; for those whom he loves the LORD reproves, and he punishes a favourite son.	Do not be afraid when fools are frightened	25
13	Happy he who has found wisdom, and the man who has acquired understanding;	or when ruin comes upon the wicked;
14	for wisdom is more profitable than silver, and the gain she brings is better than gold.	for the LORD will be at your side, and he will keep your feet clear of the trap.	26
15	She is more precious than red coral, and all your jewels are no match for her.	Refuse no man any favour that you owe him	27
16	Long life is in her right hand, in her left hand are riches and honour.	when it lies in your power to pay it. Do not say to your friend, 'Come back again;	28
17	Her ways are pleasant ways and all her paths lead to prosperity.	you shall have it tomorrow'—when you have it already.
18	She is a staff of life to all who grasp her, and those who hold her fast are safe.	Plot no evil against your friend, your unsuspecting neighbour.	29
19	In wisdom the LORD founded the earth	Do not pick a quarrel with a man for no reason,	30
20	and by understanding he set the heavens in their place;	if he has not done you a bad turn.
21	by his knowledge the depths burst forth	Do not emulate a lawless man, do not choose to follow his footsteps;	31
22	and the clouds dropped dew.	for one who is not straight is detestable to the LORD,	32
23	My son, keep watch over your ability and prudence,	but upright men are in God's confidence.
24	do not let them slip from sight;	The LORD's curse rests on the house of the evildoer,	33
25	they shall be a charm hung about your neck	while he blesses the home of the righteous.
26	and an ornament on your breast.	Though God himself meets the arrogant with arrogance,	34
27	Then you will go your way without a care,	yet he bestows his favour on the meek. <sup>l</sup>
		Wise men are adorned with <sup>m</sup> honour,	35 but the coat <sup>n</sup> on a fool's back is contempt.

<sup>l</sup> Or wretched.
<sup>m</sup> are adorned with: prob. rdg.; Heb. shall inherit.
<sup>n</sup> the coat: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.

3.13-18: Praise of Wisdom. In the style almost of a hymn the author extols Wisdom as a precious treasure. 13: Happy: the word that usually introduces beatitudes, as in "wisdom psalms" (Pss. 1.32, etc.). 16: The image is likely that of the Egyptian goddess Maat, who holds in her right hand the symbol of life and in her left hand the scepter, symbolizing wealth and dignity. 18: Staff: lit. tree.

3.19-20: Wisdom's role at creation. Wisdom was at God's side when he created the universe. This motif is elaborated in 8.22-31. 20: Depths: underground springs (see Gen. 7.11; 2 Sam. 1.21). In Israelite thought the sources of water were three: rain, dew, and underground streams.

3.21-35: Admonition and warning. A series of exhortations to commendable behavior is followed by specific prohibitions, particularly in regard to the treatment of neighbors. 32: Detestable: the word in the cultic sense is usually rendered "abomination," and is frequent in Deut. Originally it had the limited sense of ritual uncleanness.

- |    |  |  |    |
|----|--|--|----|
| 4  | Listen, my sons, to a father's instruction,consider attentively how to gain understanding;                         | For they cannot sleep unless they have done some wrong;unless they have been someone's downfall they lose their sleep.                             | 16 |
| 2  | for it is sound learning I give you;so do not forsake my teaching.   | The bread they eat is the fruit of crime   | 17 |
| 3  | I too have been a father's son,tender in years, my mother's only child.  | and they drink wine got by violence.The course of the righteous is like morning light,   | 18 |
| 4  | He taught me and said to me:Hold fast to my words with all your heart,keep my commands and you will have life. | growing brighter till it is broad day;but the ways of the wicked are like darkness at night,and they do not know what has been their downfall. | 19 |
| 5  | Do not forget or turn a deaf ear to what I say.  | My son, attend to my speech,pay heed to my words;do not let them slip out of your mind,  | 20 |
| 7  | The first thing <sup>o</sup> is to acquire wisdom;gain understanding though it cost you all you have.              | keep them close in your heart;for they are life to him who finds them,and health to his whole body.  | 21 |
| 6  | Do not forsake her, and she will keep you safe;love her, and she will guard you;                                   | Guard your heart more than any treasure,for it is the source of all life.  | 22 |
| 8  | cherish her, and she will lift you high;if only you embrace her, she will bring you to honour.                     | Keep your mouth from crooked speechand your lips from deceitful talk.  | 23 |
| 9  | She will set a garland of grace on your headand bestow on you a crown of glory.                                    | Let your eyes look straight before you,fix your gaze upon what lies ahead.   | 24 |
| 10 | Listen, my son, take my words to heart,and the years of your life shall be multiplied.                             | Look out for the path that your feet must take,and your ways will be secure.   | 25 |
| 11 | I will guide you in the paths of wisdomand lead you in honest ways.  | Swerve neither to right nor left,and keep clear of every evil thing.   | 26 |
| 12 | As you walk you will not slip,and, if you run, nothing will bring you down.  | My son, attend to my wisdomand listen to my good counsel,so that you may observe proper prudence   | 5  |
| 13 | Cling to instruction and never let it go;observe it well, for it is your life.                                     | and your speech be informed with knowledge.  | 2  |
| 14 | Do not take to the course of the wickedor follow the way of evil men;  | For though the lips of an adulteress drip honeyand her tongue is smoother than oil,yet in the end she is more bitter than wormwood,            | 3  |
| 15 | do not set foot on it, but avoid it;turn aside and go on your way.   | 4  | 4  |

<sup>o</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds wisdom.

4.1–27: Threefold recommendation of Wisdom. She is the supreme acquisition, indeed a lover or bride (vv. 1–9); a path of light enabling one to walk in the right way (10–19); and the pathway itself (20–27). 3: I, too . . .: This formula, one of self-abnegation, is also found in Wis.7.1.

5.1–23: Warning against the loose woman. Belying her beautiful appearance, the adulteress leads a youth to his destruction. He must be able to recognize her deceitfulness (vv. 1–6) in order to steer clear of embarrassment and loss (7–14), particularly since he should be faithful to his

5 Her feet go downwards on the path to death, her course is set for Sheol. 6 She does not watch for the road that leads to life; her course turns this way and that, and what does she care?<sup>p</sup> 7 Now, my son, listen to me and do not ignore what I say: 8 keep well away from her and do not go near the door of her house; 9 or you will lose your dignity in the eyes of others and your honour before strangers; 10 strangers will batten on your wealth, and your hard-won gains pass to another man's family. 11 The end will be that you will starve, you will shrink to mere skin and bones. 12 Then you will say, 'Why did I hate correction and set my heart against reproof? 13 I did not listen to the voice of my teachers or pay attention to my masters. 14 I soon earned<sup>q</sup> a bad name and was despised in the public assembly.' 15 Drink water from your own cistern and running water from your own spring; 16 do not let your<sup>r</sup> well overflow into the road, your runnels of water pour into the street; 17 let them be yours alone, not shared with strangers. 18 Let your fountain, the wife of your youth, 19 a lovely doe, a graceful hind, let her be your companion;	you will at all times be bathed in her love, and her love will continually wrap you round. Wherever you turn, she will guide you; when you lie in bed, she will watch over you, and when you wake she will talk with you.<sup>s</sup> Why, my son, are you wrapped up in the love of an adulteress? 20 Why do you embrace a loose woman? For a man's ways are always in the LORD's sight 21 who watches for every path that he must take. The wicked man is caught in his own iniquities 22 and held fast in the toils of his own sin; he will perish for want of discipline, wrapped in the shroud of his boundless folly. 23 My son, if you pledge yourself to another man 6 and stand surety for a stranger, if you are caught by your promise, 2 trapped by some promise you have made, do what I now tell you 3 and save yourself, my son: when you fall into another man's power, bestir yourself, go and pester the man, give yourself no rest, 4 allow yourself no sleep. Save yourself like a gazelle from the toils, 5 like a bird from the grasp of the fowler. p what . . . care?: or she is restless.
---	--

q Or I almost earned.
r do not let your: prob. rdg.; Heb. shall your.
s Wherever . . . with you: transposed from ch. 6 (verse 22).

solicitous wife (15–23). 6: The metaphor is that of restless turning this way and that, characteristic of the opportunist, who, irresponsible, does not care. 15: Cistern: a metaphor for wife (see v. 18); a cistern was important for storing precious water. 21: That God's sight takes in all the ways of a man is a theme in the Egyptian work by Amen-em-ope and in Mesopotamian hymns to the sun-god Shamash. That God sees everything is essential to the belief in a judgment after life, a theme prominent in Egypt.

6.1–19: Various admonitions. Do everything possible to be free of standing surety for another's debt (vv. 1–5); do not be a sluggard (vv. 6–11; compare 24.30–34); avoid scoundrels who by gestures belie their words (vv. 12–15); shun detestable habits (vv. 16–19; these are described by

- 6 Go to the ant, you sluggard, watch her ways and get wisdom.
- 7 She has no overseer,
no governor or ruler;
- 8 but in summer she prepares her store of food
and lays in her supplies at harvest.
- 9 How long, you sluggard, will you lie abed?
When will you rouse yourself from
sleep?
- 10 A little sleep, a little slumber,
a little folding of the hands in rest, 11 and poverty will come upon you like a robber,
want like a ruffian.
- 12 A scoundrel, a mischievous man, is
he who prowls about with crooked talk—
- 13 a wink of the eye,
a touch with the foot,
a sign with the fingers.
- 14 Subversion is the evil that he is plotting,
he stirs up quarrels all the time.
- 15 Down comes disaster suddenly upon
him;
suddenly he is broken beyond all remedy.
- 16 Six things the LORD hates, seven things are detestable to him:
- 17 a proud eye, a false tongue, hands that shed innocent blood,
- 18 a heart that forges thoughts of
mischief,
and feet that run swiftly to do evil,
- 19 a false witness telling a pack of lies,
and one who stirs up quarrels between brothers.
- 20 My son, observe your father's commands
- and do not reject the teaching of your mother;
wear them always next your heart and bind them close about your
neck;
for a command is a lamp, and teaching a light,
reproof and correction point the way
of life,
to keep you from the wife of another man,
from the seductive tongue of the loose woman.
Do not desire her beauty in your
heart
or let her glance provoke you;
for a prostitute can be had for the price of a loaf,
but a married woman is out for bigger game.
- Can a man kindle fire in his bosom without burning his clothes?
If a man walks on hot coals, will his feet not be scorched?
So is he who sleeps with his neighbour's wife;
no one can touch such a woman and go free.
Is not a thief contemptible when he steals to satisfy his appetite, even if he is hungry?
And, if he is caught, must he not pay seven times over and surrender all that his house contains?
So one who commits adultery is a senseless fool:
he dishonours the woman and ruins
himself;
he will get nothing but blows and contumely
and will never live down the disgrace;

<sup>1</sup> Verse 22 transposed to follow wrap you round in
5. 19.

metaphors of the body in vv. 16–18). 16: Six . . . seven: a common literary device (see 30.15–31), perhaps growing out of the parallel structure of a Heb. verse (see 10.1–22.16 n.). The device usually means “the totality of,” rather than the specific number mentioned. 19: The climax of the section is in false witness and one who stirs up quarrels. . . .

6.20–35: Warning against adultery. What a young man learns in the family setting can shield him from adultery. He who succumbs to the allurements of the married woman cannot expect forgiveness from the woman's husband. 23: The commandment is a lamp, that is, more than simply a mechanical law. The psalms similarly throb with joyous exultation over the gift of the divine commandments. See too Deut.6.4–7. 27: This appears to be an old proverb about fire and its ill effects, applied to the destructive effects of passions left unrestrained. 31: Seven times over: contrast Exod.22.1–4.

34 for a husband's anger is a jealous anger and in the day of vengeance he will show no mercy; 35 compensation will not buy his forgiveness;<sup>u</sup> no bribe, however large, will purchase his connivance. 7 My son, keep my words, store up my commands in your mind. 2 Keep my commands if you would live, and treasure my teaching as the apple of your eye. 3 Wear them like a ring on your finger; write them on the tablet of your memory. 4 Call Wisdom your sister, greet Understanding as a familiar friend; 5 then they will save you from the adulteress, from the loose woman with her seductive words. 6 I glanced<sup>v</sup> out of the window of my house, I looked down through the lattice, and I saw among simple youths, there amongst the boys I noticed a lad, a foolish lad, 8 passing along the street, at the corner, stepping out in the direction of her house 9 at twilight, as the day faded, at dusk as the night grew dark; suddenly a woman came to meet him, dressed like a prostitute, full of wiles, 11 flighty and inconstant, a woman never content to stay at home, lying in wait at every corner, now in the street, now in the public squares.	She caught hold of him and kissed 13 him; brazenly she accosted him and said, 'I have had a sacrifice, an offering, to 14 make and I have paid my vows today; that is why I have come out to meet 15 you, to watch for you and find you. I have spread coverings on my bed 16 of coloured linen from Egypt. I have sprinkled my bed with 17 myrrh, my clothes<sup>w</sup> with aloes and cassia. Come! Let us drown ourselves in 18 pleasure, let us spend a whole night of love; for the man of the house is away, 19 he has gone on a long journey, he has taken a bag of silver with 20 him; until the moon is full he will not be home.' Persuasively she led him on, 21 she pressed him with seductive words. Like a simple fool he followed her, 22 like an ox on its way to the slaughter-house, like an antelope bounding into the noose, like a bird hurrying into the trap; 23 he did not know that he was risking his life until the arrow pierced his vitals. But now, my son, listen to me, 24 attend to what I say. Do not let your heart entice you 25 into her ways, do not stray down her paths; many has she pierced and laid low, 26 and her victims are without number. Her house is the entrance to Sheol, 27 which leads down to the halls of death.
--	--

u compensation . . . forgiveness: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.
v I glanced: prob. rdg.; Heb. om. w my clothes: prob. rdg.; Heb. om.

7.1–27: Wisdom as a defense against the loose woman. The words of the sages will protect one from the seductress. Her way of working is described by an observer, safely from a distance. 4: Sister: probably bride, as in S. of S.4.9–10,12, and in Egyptian love literature. 14: Having had an animal sacrifice, the seductress is now ready to enjoy the subsequent feast; see Lev.3.1–5 and 7.15. Irony is intended in the contrast of ritual observance and personal dissoluteness. See also 15.8 and Isa.1.12–17.

Wisdom and folly contrasted

8 Hear how Wisdom lifts her voice and Understanding cries out.
2 She stands at the cross-roads, by the wayside, at the top of the 3 hill;
beside the gate, at the entrance to
the city,
at the entry by the open gate she calls aloud:
4 'Men, it is to you I call,
I appeal to every man:
5 understand, you simple fools, what it is to be shrewd;
you stupid people, understand what sense means.
6 Listen! For I will speak clearly, you will have plain speech from me;
7 for I speak nothing but truth and my lips detest wicked talk.
8 All that I say is right, not a word is twisted or crooked.
9 All is straightforward to him who can understand,
all is plain to the man who has
knowledge.
10 Accept instruction and not silver, knowledge rather than pure gold; 11 for wisdom is better than red coral,
no jewels can match her.
12 I am Wisdom, I bestow shrewdness and show the way to knowledge and prudence.
13 †Pride, presumption, evil courses, subversive talk, all these I hate.
14 I have force, I also have ability; understanding and power are mine.
15 Through me kings are sovereign and governors make just laws.
16 Through me princes act like princes, from me all rulers on earth derive their nobility.
17 Those who love me I love, those who search for me find me.
18 In my hands are riches and honour, boundless wealth and the rewards of virtue.

My harvest is better than gold, fine 19
gold,
and my revenue better than pure silver.
I follow the course of virtue, 20
my path is the path of justice;
I endow with riches those who love 21
me
and I will fill their treasuries.
'The LORD created me the beginning 22
of his works,
before all else that he made, long ago.
Alone, I was fashioned in times 23
long past,
at the beginning, long before earth itself.
When there was yet no ocean I was 24
born,
no springs brimming with water.
Before the mountains were settled 25
in their place,
long before the hills I was born, when as yet he had made neither 26 land nor lake
nor the first clod<sup>y</sup> of earth.
When he set the heavens in their 27 place I was there,
when he girdled the ocean with the horizon,
when he fixed the canopy of clouds 28 overhead
and set the springs of ocean firm in their place,
when he prescribed its limits for the 29 sea<sup>z</sup>
and knit together earth's foundations.
Then I was at his side each day, 30
his darling and delight,

<sup>x</sup> Prob. rdg. ; Heb. prefixes The fear of the LORD is to hate evil.

<sup>y</sup> the first clod; or the sum of the clods.

<sup>z</sup> Prob. rdg. ; Heb. adds and the water shall not disobey his command.

8.1-9.18: Wisdom and Folly contrasted. Wisdom seeks out men where they usually congregate, and hence is readily available to, and clearly understandable by, all who wish to respond (8.1-13). She enables monarchs to rule as befits true kings (vv. 14-16). Those who seek her find her, and gain wealth and rewards beyond wealth (vv. 17-21). Created as the first of God's works, she is God's delight as man is hers (vv. 22-36). Like a gracious hostess, she invites men to her home and table (9.1-6). The insolent reject her, the wise accept her (vv. 7-12). By contrast, Lady Stupidity (vv. 13-18) invites fools to destruction. 13: The verse has suffered in ancient copying. It was probably once a numerical saying, possibly reading: "Three things I hate, indeed four I loathe; pride, presumption, evil courses, and subversive talk." 22: The emphasis on Wisdom's role before all else came into being is common in Egyptian and Babylonian texts; see also Col. 1.15-16 and Jn.1.1-3. Created: acquired, possessed. 30: Darling: the Heb. is uncertain; perhaps

31 playing in his presence continually, playing on the earth, when he had finished it, while my delight was in mankind. 32-33 'Now, my sons, listen to me, listen to instruction and grow wise, do not reject it. Happy is the man who keeps to my ways, 34 happy the man who listens to me, watching daily at my threshold with his eyes on the doorway; 35 for he who finds me finds life and wins favour with the LORD, 36 while he who finds me not, hurts himself, and all who hate me are in love with death.' 9 Wisdom has built her house, she has hewn her seven pillars; 2 she has killed a beast and spiced her wine, and she has spread her table. 3 She has sent out her maidens to proclaim from the highest part of the town, 4 'Come in, you simpletons.' She says also to the fool, 5 'Come, dine with me and taste the wine that I have spiced. 6 Cease to be silly, and you will live, you will grow in understanding.' 7 Correct an insolent man, and be sneered at for your pains; correct a bad man, and you will put yourself in the wrong. 8 Do not correct the insolent or they will hate you;	correct a wise man, and he will be your friend. Lecture a wise man, and he will grow wiser; teach a righteous man, and his learning will increase. The first step to wisdom is the fear of the LORD, and knowledge of the Holy One is understanding; for through me your days will be multiplied and years will be added to your life. If you are wise, it will be to your own advantage; if you are haughty, you alone are to blame. The Lady Stupidity is a flighty creature; the simpleton, she cares for nothing. She sits at the door of her house, on a seat in the highest part of the town, to invite the passers-by indoors as they hurry on their way: 'Come in, you simpletons', she says. She says also to the fool, 'Stolen water is sweet and bread got by stealth tastes good.' Little does he know that death lurks there, that her guests are in the depths of Sheol.	9 9 10 11 12 13 14 15 16 17 18
A collection of wise sayings
The proverbs of Solomon: A wise son brings joy to his father;		10

the meaning is master workman or confidant. If darling, the figure is of a child playing in the presence of a loving father. The personification of Wisdom is of profound theological significance, for it corrects a faulty notion that God was thought of in Wisdom literature as somewhat remote from his creation. A development in the idea of personification can be traced from Job ch. 28, which asks about Wisdom's hiding place, through 8.22-31 (and 3.19-20), to Eccles.24.1-24 and Wis.7.22-8.21. In Eccles.24.1 Wisdom is identified with Torah; in Wis. she is viewed, in a Greek manner, as an emanation of God. 9.1: From the mention of seven pillars it has been conjectured that the house is really the world and the pillars are those which support the sky. Yet the figure seems modeled after vv. 14-15. 10: Contrast Wisdom as something to be learned with the inner knowledge of God as in Jer.31.33-34. 17: Lady Stupidity quotes an old proverb, to which may be compared the Arabic saying that "everything forbidden is sweet."

10.1-22.16: A collection of wise sayings. The section consists of observations from experience in the form of miscellaneous one-line maxims. Each verse is in parallelism, i.e. it consists of two balanced parts, as is usual in Heb. verse. The observations have a secular tone, and their date is preexilic. These proverbs may have been used for instruction in the home and in school.

2 a foolish son is his mother's bane.          Ill-gotten wealth brings no profit;          uprightness is a safeguard against          death. 3 The LORD does not let the righteous          go hungry,<sup>a</sup>          but he disappoints the cravings<sup>b</sup> of          the wicked. 4 Idle hands make a man poor;          busy hands grow rich. 5 A thoughtful son puts by in          summer;          a son who sleeps at harvest is a          disgrace. 6 Blessings are showered on the          righteous;          the wicked are choked by their own          violence. 7 The righteous are remembered in          blessings;          the name of the wicked turns rotten. 8 A wise man takes a command to          heart;          a foolish talker comes to grief. 9 A blameless life makes for security;          crooked ways bring a man down. 10 To wink at a fault causes trouble;          a frank rebuke leads to peace. 11 The words of good men are a          fountain of life;          the wicked are choked by their own          violence. 12 Hate is always picking a quarrel,          but love turns a blind eye to every          fault. 13 The man of understanding has          wisdom on his lips;          a rod is in store for the back of the          fool. 14 Wise men lay up knowledge;          when a fool speaks, ruin is near. 15 A rich man's wealth is his strong          city,          but poverty is the undoing of the          helpless. 16 The good man's labour is his          livelihood;          the wicked man's earnings bring him          to a bad end. 17 Correction is the high road to life;          neglect reproof and you miss the way.	There is no spite in a just man's          talk;          it is the stupid who are fluent with          calumny. When men talk too much, sin is          never far away;          common sense holds its tongue.          A good man's tongue is pure silver;          the heart of the wicked is trash.          The lips of a good man teach many,          but fools perish for want of sense.          The blessing of the LORD brings          riches          and he sends no sorrow with them.          Lewdness is sport for the stupid;          wisdom a delight to men of          understanding. The fears of the wicked will          overtake them;          the desire of the righteous will be          granted. When the whirlwind has passed by,          the wicked are gone;          the foundations of the righteous are          eternal. Like vinegar on the teeth or smoke          in the eyes,          so is the lazy servant to his master.          The fear of the LORD brings length          of days;          the years of the wicked are few.          The hope of the righteous blossoms;          the expectation of the wicked withers          away. The way of the LORD gives refuge to          the honest man,          but dismays those who do evil.          The righteous man will never be          shaken;          the wicked shall not remain on          earth. Wisdom flows from the mouth of          the righteous;          the subversive tongue will be rooted          out. The righteous man can suit his          words to the occasion;          the wicked know only subversive          talk.	18 19 20 21 22 23 24 25 26 27 28 29 30 31 32
---	--	---

<sup>a</sup> Or be afraid.
<sup>b</sup> Or the clamour.

The mention of Solomon does not imply his authorship, but rather his royal sponsorship, or else possibly a literary type. 2: Premature death was thought to be an indication of divine disfavor. 3: See also Ps.37.25. 6: The doctrine of reward and punishment is here almost mechanical, in that calamity is understood as punishment for sin. 25: Whirlwind: God uses natural phenomena to punish those with whom he is angry (see especially Eccles.39.28-31

- |   |   |
|---|---|
| 11 False scales are the LORD's abomination;correct weights are dear to his heart. 2 When presumption comes in, in comes contempt,but wisdom goes with sagacity. 3 Honesty is a guide to the upright,but rogues are balked by their own perversity. 4 Wealth is worth nothing in the day of wrath,but uprightness is a safeguard against death. 5 By uprightness the blameless keep their course,but the wicked are brought down by their wickedness. 6 Uprightness saves the righteous,but rogues are trapped in their own greed. 7 When a man dies, his thread of life ends,and with it ends the hope of affluence. 8 A righteous man is rescued from disaster,and the wicked man plunges into it. 9 By his words a godless man tries to ruin others,but they are saved when the righteous plead for them. 10 A city rejoices in the prosperity of the righteous;there is jubilation when the wicked perish. 11 By the blessing of the upright a city is built up;the words of the wicked tear it down. 12 A man without sense despises others,but a man of understanding holds his peace. 13 A gossip gives away secrets,but a trusty man keeps his own counsel. 14 For want of skilful strategy an army is lost;victory is the fruit of long planning. 15 Give a pledge for a stranger and know no peace;refuse to stand surety and be safe. 16 Grace in a woman wins honour, | but she who hates virtue makes a home for dishonour. Be timid in business and come to beggary;be bold and make a fortune. Loyalty brings its own reward; 17a cruel man makes trouble for his kin. A wicked man earns a fallacious<sup>c</sup> 18profit;he who sows goodness reaps a sure reward.<sup>d</sup> A man set on righteousness finds 19life,but the pursuit of evil leads to death. The LORD detests the crooked heart, 20but honesty is dear to him. Depend upon it: an evil man shall 21not escape punishment;the righteous and all their offspring shall go free. Like a gold ring in a pig's snout 22is a beautiful woman without good sense. The righteous desire only what is 23good;the hope of the wicked comes to nothing. A man may spend freely and yet 24grow richer;another is sparing beyond measure,yet ends in poverty. A generous man grows fat and 25prosperous,and he who refreshes others will himself be refreshed. He who withholds his grain is cursed 26by the people,but he who sells his corn is blessed. He who eagerly seeks what is good 27finds much favour,but if a man pursues evil it turns upon him. Whoever relies on his wealth is 28riding for a fall,but the righteous flourish like the green leaf. He who brings trouble on his family 29inherits the wind,and a fool becomes slave to a wise man. |
|---|---|

<sup>c</sup> Or fraudulent.
<sup>d</sup> a sure reward: or the reward of honesty.

and Wis.16-19). 11.9: Saved: in the courts, when the righteous plead as advocates of the weak. 21: The strong statement seems to counter doubt about retribution (compare 24.16), as if one cannot always or truly depend on it; such questioning of the justice of God is a recurrent theme

- 30 The fruit of righteousness is a tree of life, but violence means the taking away of life.
- 31 If the righteous in the land get their deserts,
how much more the wicked man and the sinner!
- 12 He who loves correction loves knowledge;
he who hates reproof is a mere brute.
- 2 A good man earns favour from the LORD;
the schemer is condemned.
- 3 No man can establish himself by wickedness, but good men have roots that cannot be dislodged.
- 4 A capable wife is her husband's crown;
one who disgraces him is like rot in his bones.
- 5 The purposes of the righteous are lawful;
the designs of the wicked are full of deceit.
- 6 The wicked are destroyed<sup>e</sup> by their own words;
the words of the good man are his salvation.
- 7 Once the wicked are down, that is the end of them, but the good man's line continues.
- 8 A man is commended for his intelligence,
but a warped mind is despised.
- 9 It is better to be modest<sup>f</sup> and earn one's living than to be concealed<sup>g</sup> and go hungry.
- 10 A righteous man cares for his beast,
but a wicked man is cruel at heart.
- 11 He who tills his land has enough to eat, but to follow idle pursuits is foolishness.
- 12 The stronghold of the wicked crumbles like clay,<sup>h</sup>
but the righteous take lasting root.
- 13 The wicked man is trapped by his own falsehoods,
but the righteous comes safe through trouble.
- One man wins success by his words; 14 another gets his due reward by the work of his hands.
- A fool thinks that he is always right; 15 wise is the man who listens to advice.
- A fool shows his ill humour at once; 16
a clever man slighted conceals his feelings.
- An honest speaker comes out with 17
the truth,
but the false witness is full of deceit.
- Gossip can be sharp as a sword, 18 but the tongue of the wise heals.
- Truth spoken stands firm for ever, 19
but lies live only for a moment.
- Those who plot evil delude 20
themselves,
but there is joy for those who seek the common good.
- No mischief will befall the righteous, 21 but wicked men get their fill of adversity.
- The LORD detests a liar 22
but delights in the honest man.
- A clever man conceals his knowledge, 23
but a stupid man broadcasts his folly.
- Diligence brings a man to power, 24
but laziness to forced labour.
- An anxious heart dispirits a man, 25 and a kind word fills him with joy.
- A righteous man recoils from evil,<sup>i</sup> 26
but the wicked take a path that leads them astray.
- The lazy hunter puts up no game, 27
but the industrious man reaps a rich harvest.<sup>j</sup>
- The way of honesty leads to life, 28
but there is a well-worn path to death.
- A wise man sees the reason for his 13 father's correction;
an arrogant man will not listen to rebuke.

<sup>e</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. are an ambush for blood.

<sup>f</sup> Or scorned.

<sup>g</sup> Or honoured.

<sup>h</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. A wicked man covets a stronghold of crumbling earth.

<sup>i</sup> recoils from evil: prob. rdg.; Heb. let him spy out his friend.

<sup>j</sup> but . . . harvest: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.

in Eccles. and the major theme of Job. 30: Tree of life (see Gen.3.22-24): a symbol for eternal life found also in Egypt and Babylonia. Here eternal life arises from righteous living. The motif of the beneficial effect of correction is frequent in Prov. and underwent further development

2 A good man enjoys the fruit of righteousness, but violence is meat and drink for the treacherous. 3 He who minds his words preserves his life; he who talks too much comes to grief. 4 A lazy man is torn by appetite unsatisfied, but the diligent grow fat and prosperous. 5 The righteous hate falsehood; the doings of the wicked are foul and deceitful. 6 To do right is the protection of an honest man, but wickedness brings sinners to grief.<sup>k</sup> 7 One man pretends to be rich, although he has nothing; another has great wealth but goes in rags.<sup>l</sup> 8 A rich man must buy himself off, but a poor man is immune from threats. 9 The light of the righteous burns brightly; the embers of the wicked will be put out. 10 A brainless fool causes strife by his presumption; wisdom is found among friends in council. 11 Wealth quickly come by dwindles away, but if it comes little by little, it multiplies. 12 Hope deferred makes the heart sick; a wish come true is a staff of life. 13 To despise a word of advice is to ask for trouble; mind what you are told, and you will be rewarded. 14 A wise man's teaching is a fountain of life for one who would escape the snares of death. 15 Good intelligence wins favour, but treachery leads to disaster. 16 A clever man is wise and conceals everything, but the stupid parade their folly.	An evil messenger causes trouble,<sup>m</sup> 17 but a trusty envoy makes all go well again. To refuse correction brings poverty 18 and contempt; one who takes a reproof to heart comes to honour. Lust indulged sickens a man;<sup>n</sup> 19 stupid people loathe to mend their ways. Walk with the wise and be wise; 20 mix with the stupid and be misled. Ill fortune follows the sinner close 21 behind, but good rewards the righteous. A good man leaves an inheritance 22 to his descendants, but the sinner's hoard passes to the righteous. Untilled land might yield food 23 enough for the poor, but even that may be lost through injustice. A father who spares the rod hates 24 his son, but one who loves him keeps him in order. A righteous man eats his fill, 25 but the wicked go hungry. The wisest women build up their 14 homes; the foolish pull them down with their own hands. A straightforward man fears the 2 LORD; the double-dealer scorns him. The speech of a fool is a rod for his 3 back;<sup>o</sup> a wise man's words are his safeguard. Where there are no oxen the barn is 4 empty, but the strength of a great ox ensures rich crops. A truthful witness is no liar; 5 a false witness tells a pack of lies.
--	--

k brings . . . grief: or plays havoc with a man.

l One man . . . rags: Or One man may grow rich though he has nothing; another may grow poor though he has great wealth.

m causes trouble; or is unsuccessful.

n Lust . . . a man: or Desire fulfilled is pleasant to the appetite.

o his back: prob. rdg.; Heb. pride.

in later literature. 13.23: The land here is either that left uncultivated every seventh year (Lev.25.1-7) or the marginal areas left for the poor (Lev.19.9-10). 14.4: Empty: of fodder.

- 6 A conceited man seeks wisdom, yet finds none;
to one of understanding, knowledge comes easily.
- 7 Avoid a stupid man,
you will hear not a word of sense
from him.
- 8 A clever man has the wit to find the right way;
the folly of stupid men misleads
them.
- 9 A fool is too arrogant to make amends;
upright men know what reconciliation means.
- 10 The heart knows its own bitterness,
and a stranger has no part in its joy.
- 11 The house of the wicked will be torn down,
but the home of the upright flourishes.
- 12 A road may seem straightforward to a man,
yet may end as the way to death.
- 13 Even in laughter the heart may grieve,
and mirth may end in sorrow.
- 14 The renegade reaps the fruit of his conduct,
a good man the fruit of his own achievements.
- 15 A simple man believes every word
he hears;
a clever man understands the need for proof.
- 16 A wise man is cautious and turns his back on evil;
the stupid is heedless and falls
headlong.
- 17 Impatience runs into folly; distinction comes by careful thought.<sup>p</sup>
- 18 The simple wear the trappings of
folly;
the clever are crowned with
knowledge.
- 19 Evil men cringe before the good, wicked men at the righteous man's door.
- 20 A poor man is odious even to his friend;
the rich have friends in plenty.
- He who despises a hungry man does 21
wrong,
but he who is generous to the poor is happy.
- Do not those who intend evil go 22
astray,
while those with good intentions are loyal and faithful?
- The pains of toil bring gain, 23 but mere talk brings nothing but poverty.
- Insight is the crown of the wise; 24
folly the chief ornament of the stupid.
- A truthful witness saves life; 25 the false accuser utters nothing but lies.
- A strong man who trusts in the fear 26
of the LORD
will be a refuge for his sons.
The fear of the LORD is the fountain 27
of life
for the man who would escape the snares of death.
- Many subjects make a famous king; 28 with none to rule, a prince is ruined.
- To be patient shows great 29
understanding;
quick temper is the height of folly.
- A tranquil mind puts flesh on a 30
man,
but passion rots his bones.
- He who oppresses<sup>q</sup> the poor insults 31
his Maker;
he who is generous to the needy honours him.
- An evil man is brought down by his 32
wickedness;
the upright man is secure in his own honesty.
- Wisdom is at home in a discerning 33
mind,
but is ill at ease in the heart of a fool.
- Righteousness raises a people to 34
honour;
to do wrong is a disgrace to any
nation.
- A king shows favour to an 35 intelligent servant,

<sup>p</sup> distinction . . . thought: prob. rdg.; Heb. a man of careful thought is hated.
<sup>q</sup> Or slanders.

31: The attitude to the poor is ambivalent in Wisdom literature, for it is usually assumed that one's external circumstances indicate his interior life, and hence a rich man was enjoying God's reward and a poor man his punishment. On the other hand, the wise championed the cause of the widow, the orphan, and the poor. 33: The harsh judgment on the fool is moral, associating but his displeasure strikes down those who fail him.	Better a dish of vegetables if love go with it	17

15	A soft answer turns away anger, but a sharp word makes tempers hot.	than a fat ox eaten in hatred.
2	A wise man's tongue spreads knowledge; stupid men talk nonsense.	Bad temper provokes a quarrel, but patience heals discords.	18
3	The eyes of the LORD are everywhere, surveying evil and good men alike.	The path of the sluggard is a tangle of weeds,	19
4	A soothing word is a staff of life, but a mischievous tongue breaks the spirit.	but the road of the diligent is a highway.
5	A fool spurns his father's correction, but to take a reproof to heart shows good sense.	A wise son brings joy to his father; a young fool despises his mother.	20
6	In the righteous man's house there is ample wealth; the gains of the wicked bring trouble.	Folly may amuse the empty-headed; a man of understanding makes straight for his goal.	21
7	The lips of a wise man promote knowledge; the hearts of the stupid are dishonest.	Schemes lightly made come to nothing,	22
8	The wicked man's sacrifice is abominable to the LORD; the good man's prayer is his delight.	but with long planning they succeed.
9	The conduct of the wicked is abominable to the LORD, but he loves the seeker after righteousness.	A man may be pleased with his own retort;	23
10	A man who leaves the main road resents correction, and he who hates reproof will die.	how much better is a word in season!
11	Sheol and Abaddon lie open before the LORD, how much more the hearts of men!	For men of intelligence the path of life leads upwards	24
12	The conceited man does not take kindly to reproof and he will not consult the wise.	and keeps them clear of Sheol below.
13	A merry heart makes a cheerful face; heartache crushes the spirit.	The LORD pulls down the proud man's home	25
14	A discerning mind seeks knowledge, but the stupid man feeds on folly.	but fixes the widow's boundary-stones.
15	In the life of the downtrodden every day is wretched, but to have a glad heart is a perpetual feast.	A bad man's thoughts are the LORD's abomination,	26
16	Better a pittance with the fear of the LORD than great treasure and trouble in its train.	but the words of the pure are a delight. <sup>r</sup>
		A grasping man brings trouble on his family,	27
		but he who spurns a bribe will enjoy long life.
		The righteous think before they answer;	28
		a bad man's ready tongue is full of mischief.
		The LORD stands aloof from the wicked,	29
		he listens to the righteous man's prayer.
		A bright look brings joy to the heart,	30 and good news warms a man's marrow.
		Whoever listens to wholesome reproof	31 shall enjoy the society of the wise.

<sup>r</sup> the words . . . delight: or gracious words are pure.

folly with sin (13.10; 14.9; 15.5,7). 15.3: Eyes . . . everywhere: God's scrutiny of men (see also 15.11; 20.27; 24.11–12) assures the working out of divine retribution (10.6). 8: See also 21.3. 11. Abaddon: lit. destruction or perdition. That is, God who sees into the realm of the dead surely sees into the hearts of living men. 25: Fixes: that is, the LORD preserves her property

- 32 He who refuses correction is his own worst enemy, but he who listens to reproof learns sense.
- 33 The fear of the LORD is a training in wisdom, and the way to honour is humility.
- 16 A man may order his thoughts, but the LORD inspires the words he utters.
- 2 A man's whole conduct may be pure in his own eyes, but the LORD fixes a standard for the spirit of man.
- 3 Commit to the LORD all that you do, and your plans will be fulfilled.
- 4 The LORD has made each thing for its own end; he made even the wicked for a day of disaster.
- 5 Proud men, one and all, are abominable to the LORD; depend upon it: they will not escape punishment.
- 6 Guilt is wiped out by faith and loyalty, and the fear of the LORD makes men turn from evil.
- 7 When the LORD is pleased with a man and his ways, he makes even his enemies live at peace with him.
- 8 Better a pittance honestly earned than great gains ill gotten.
- 9 Man plans his journey by his own wit, but it is the LORD who guides his steps.
- 10 The king's mouth is an oracle, he cannot err when he passes sentence.
- 11 Scales<sup>s</sup> and balances<sup>t</sup> are the LORD's concern;
- all the weights in the bag are his business.
- Wickedness is abhorrent to kings, 12 for a throne rests firm on righteousness.
- Honest speech is the desire of kings, 13 they love a man who speaks the truth.
- A king's anger is a messenger of death, 14 and a wise man will appease it, In the light of the king's countenance is life, 15 his favour is like a rain-cloud in the spring.
- How much better than gold it is to gain wisdom, 16 and to gain discernment is better than pure silver.
- To turn from evil is the highway of the upright; 17 watch your step and save your life. Pride comes before disaster, 18 and arrogance before a fall. Better sit humbly with those in need 19 than divide the spoil with the proud. The shrewd man of business will 20 succeed well, but the happy man is he who trusts in the LORD.
- The sensible man seeks advice from the wise, 21 he drinks it in and increases his knowledge.<sup>u</sup>
- Intelligence is a fountain of life to its possessors, 22 but a fool is punished by his own folly.
- The wise man's mind guides his speech, 23 and what his lips impart increases learning.<sup>v</sup>

<sup>s</sup> Or Pointer. <sup>t</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. balances of justice.

<sup>u</sup> he drinks . . . knowledge; or and he whose speech is persuasive increases learning.

<sup>v</sup> and what . . . learning; or and increases the learning of his utterance.

intact. 16.1: Man proposes but God disposes; compare the Egyptian Amen-em-ope 20.5-6, "If the tongue of man [be] the rudder of the boat, the All-Lord is its pilot." 2: A similar saying occurs in 21.2; see also v. 25. Compare the statement in a Babylonian work that what is good with man is evil with the gods, and what is evil to him is proper to a god. 4: The second half of the verse expresses the view that God is the source of evil as well as good. This view is characteristic of Hebrew "monism," namely, that the ultimate source of evil as well as good is God (see Isa.45.6-7). 9: Wisdom recognizes its limits (see 30.4). The limitation on the nature of human knowledge can induce some despair in the sage, for he can no longer perceive any purpose in life. This despair is increased greatly in Eccles. 10: The king functions as the ultimate source of appeal for redress (20.8; see 1 Kgs.3.16-28). 12: The idea of righteousness as a royal pedestal is an Egyptian motif as well. 15: Rain-cloud: the seasonal rain was eagerly awaited to assure the grain crop; hence the comparison with the favorable countenance of the king.

- |  |   |
|--|---|
| 24 Kind words are like dripping honey,sweetness on the tongue and healthfor the body. 25 A road may seem straightforward toa man,yet may end as the way to death. 26 The labourer's appetite is alwaysplaguig him,his hunger spurs him on. 27 A scoundrel repeats evil gossip;it is like a scorching fire on his lips. 28 Disaffection stirs up quarrels,and tale-bearing breaks upfriendship. 29 A man of violence draws others onand leads them into lawless ways. 30 The man who narrows his eyes isdisaffected at heart,and a close-lipped man is bent onmischieif. 31 Grey hair is a crown of glory,and it is won by a virtuous life. 32 Better be slow to anger than afighter,better govern one's temper thancapture a city. 33 The lots may be cast into the lap,but the issue depends wholly on theLORD. 17 Better a dry crust and concord with itthan a house full of feasting andstrife. 2 A wise slave may give orders to adisappointing sonand share the inheritance with thebrothers. 3 The melting-pot is for silver and thecrucible for gold,but it is the LORD who assays thehearts of men. 4 A rogue gives a ready ear tomischievous talk,and a liar listens to slander. 5 A man who sneers at the poorinsults his Maker,and he who gloats over another'sruin will answer for it. 6 Grandchildren are the crown of oldage,and sons are proud of their fathers. 7 Fine talk is out of place in a boor, | how much more is falsehood in thenoble! He who offers a bribe finds it work 8like a charm,he prospers in all he undertakes. He who conceals another's offence 9seeks his goodwill,but he who harps on somethingbreaks up friendship. A reproof is felt by a man of 10discernmentmore than a hundred blows by astupid man. An evil man is set only on 11disobedience,but a messenger without mercy willbe sent against him. Better face a she-bear robbed of her 12cubsthan a stupid man in his folly. If a man repays evil for good, 13evil will never quit his house. Stealing water starts a quarrel; 14drop a dispute before you bare yourteeth. To acquit the wicked and condemn 15the righteous,both are abominable in the LORD'ssight. What use is money in the hands of 16a stupid man?Can he buy wisdom if he has nosense? A friend is a loving companion at 17all times,and a brother is born to sharetroubles. A man is without sense who gives a 18guaranteeand surrenders himself to another assurety. He who loves strife loves sin. 19He who builds a lofty entranceinvites thieves. A crooked heart will come to no 20good,and a mischievous tongue will endin disaster. A stupid man is the bane of his 21parent,and his father has no joy in aboorish son. |
|--|---|

---

30: Narrows: restricts himself to his evil purpose, and, being close-lipped, acts secretly to achieve his aim. 33: The decision of God was learned by casting lots (called Urim and Thummim, Exod.28.15 n.) which were in the care of priests. 17.8: Bribe: the meaning here is a proper gift,

- 22 A merry heart makes a cheerful countenance, but low spirits sap a man's strength.
- 23 A wicked man accepts a bribe under his cloak to pervert the course of justice.
- 24 Wisdom is never out of sight of a discerning man, but a stupid man's eyes are roving everywhere.
- 25 A stupid son exasperates his father and is a bitter sorrow to the mother who bore him.
- 26 Again, to punish the righteous is not good and it is wrong to inflict blows on men of noble mind.
- 27 Experience uses few words;
discernment keeps a cool head.
- 28 Even a fool, if he holds his peace, is thought wise;
keep your mouth shut and show your good sense.
- 18 The man who holds aloof seeks every pretext to bare his teeth in scorn at competent people.
- 2 The foolish have no interest in seeking to understand, but prefer to display their wit.
- 3 When wickedness comes in, in comes contempt;
with loss of honour comes reproach.
- 4 The words of a man's mouth are a gushing torrent, but deep is the water in the well of wisdom.<sup>w</sup>
- 5 It is not good to show favour to the wicked or to deprive the righteous of justice.
- 6 When the stupid man talks, contention follows;
his words provoke blows.
- 7 The stupid man's tongue is his undoing;
his lips put his life in jeopardy.
- 8 A gossip's whispers are savoury morsels, gulped down into the inner man.
- 9 Again, the lazy worker is own brother to the man who enjoys destruction.
- The name of the LORD is a tower of strength, where the righteous may run for refuge.
- A rich man's wealth is his strong city, a towering wall, so he supposes.
Before disaster comes, a man is proud,
but the way to honour is humility.
To answer a question before you have heard it out is both stupid and insulting.
A man's spirit may sustain him in sickness,
but if the spirit is wounded, who can mend it?
- Knowledge comes to the discerning mind;
the wise ear listens to get knowledge.
A gift opens the door to the giver and gains access to the great.
In a lawsuit the first speaker seems right, until another steps forward and cross-questions him.
- Cast lots, and settle a quarrel, and so keep litigants apart.
- A reluctant brother is more unyielding than a fortress,
and quarrels are stubborn as the bars of a castle.
- A man may live by the fruit of his tongue, his lips may earn him a livelihood.
The tongue has power of life and death;
make friends with it and enjoy its fruits.
- Find a wife, and you find a good thing;
so you will earn the favour of the LORD.
- The poor man speaks in a tone of entreaty, and the rich man gives a harsh answer.
- Some companions are good only for idle talk,
but a friend may stick closer than a brother.

<sup>w</sup> The words . . . wisdom: prob. rdg.; *inverting phrases.*not a dishonest one; the verse commends generosity. 18.10–11: The trust in God, here expressed in name, is more dependable than a trust in wealth. See 2 Sam.22.3; Ps.18.2. 24: See 17.17.

- 19 Better be poor and above reproach than rich and crooked in speech.
- 2 Again, desire without knowledge is not good;
the man in a hurry misses the way.
- 3 A man's own folly wrecks his life, and then he bears a grudge against
the LORD.
- 4 Wealth makes many friends, but a man without means loses the friend he has.
- 5 A false witness will not escape
punishment,
and one who utters nothing but lies
will not go free.
- 6 Many curry favour with the great;
a lavish giver has the world for his friend.
- 7 A poor man's brothers all dislike him, how much more is he shunned by his friends!
Practice in evil makes the perfect scoundrel;
the man who talks too much meets his deserts.
- 8 To learn sense is true self-love;
cherish discernment and make sure of success.
- 9 A false witness will not escape
punishment,
and one who utters nothing but lies
will perish.
- 10 A fool at the helm is out of place, how much worse a slave in command of men of rank!
- 11 To be patient shows intelligence;
to overlook faults is a man's glory.
- 12 A king's rage is like a lion's roar,
his favour like dew on the grass.
- 13 A stupid son is a calamity to his father;
a nagging wife is like water dripping endlessly.
- 14 Home and wealth may come down from ancestors,
but an intelligent wife is a gift from
the LORD.
- 15 Laziness is the undoing of the worthless;
idlers must starve.
- 16 To keep the commandments keeps a man safe,
but scorning the way of the LORD brings death.
- 17 He who is generous to the poor lends to the LORD;
- he will repay him in full measure.
Chastise your son while there is hope 18
for him,
but be careful not to flog him to death.
A man's ill temper brings its own 19
punishment;
try to save him, and you make matters worse.
Listen to advice and accept 20
instruction,
and you will die a wise man.
A man's heart may be full of 21 schemes,
but the LORD's purpose will prevail.
Greed is a disgrace to a man;
better be a poor man than a liar. 22
The fear of the LORD is life; 23 he who is full of it will rest untouched by evil.
The sluggard plunges his hand in the 24 dish
but will not so much as lift it to his mouth.
Strike an arrogant man, and he 25
resents it like a fool;
reprove an understanding man, and he understands what you mean.
He who talks his father down vexes 26
his mother;
he is a son to bring shame and disgrace on them.
A son who ceases to accept 27 correction
is sure to turn his back on the teachings of knowledge.
A rascally witness perverts justice, 28 and the talk of the wicked fosters
mischief.
There is a rod in pickle for the 29 arrogant,
and blows ready for the stupid man's
back.
- Wine is an insolent fellow, and 20 strong drink makes an uproar;
no one addicted to their company grows wise.
A king's threat is like a lion's roar; 2 one who ignores it is his own worst enemy.
To draw back from a dispute is 3 honourable;
it is the fool who bares his teeth.
The sluggard who does not plough 4 in autumn

- goes begging at harvest and gets nothing.
- 5 Counsel in another's heart is like deep water,
but a discerning man will draw it up.
- 6 Many a man protests his loyalty,
but where will you find one to keep faith?
- 7 If a man leads a good and upright life, happy are the sons who come after him!
- 8 A king seated on the judgement-throne has an eye to sift all that is evil.
- 9 Who can say, 'I have a clear conscience;
I am purged from my sin'?
- 10 A double standard in weights and measures is an abomination to the LORD.
- 11 Again, a young man is known by his actions, whether his conduct is innocent or guilty.<sup>x</sup>
- 12 The ear that hears, the eye that sees, the LORD made them both.
- 13 Love sleep, and you will end in poverty;
keep your eyes open, and you will eat your fill.
- 14 'A bad bargain!' says the buyer to the seller, but off he goes to brag about it.
- 15 There is gold in plenty and coral too, but a wise word is a rare jewel.
- 16 Take a man's garment when he pledges his word for a stranger and hold that as a pledge for the unknown person.
- 17 Bread got by fraud tastes good,
but afterwards it fills the mouth with grit.
- 18 Care is the secret of good planning;
wars are won by skilful strategy.
- 19 A gossip will betray secrets;<sup>y</sup> have nothing to do with a tattler.
- 20 If a man reviles father and mother, his lamp will go out when darkness comes.
- 21 If you begin by piling up property in haste, it will bring you no blessing in the end.
- Do not think to repay evil for evil, wait for the LORD to deliver you.
- A double standard in weights is an abomination to the LORD, and false scales are not good in his sight.
- It is the LORD who directs a man's steps;
how can mortal man understand the road he travels?
- It is dangerous to dedicate a gift rashly or to make a vow and have second thoughts.
- A wise king sifts out the wicked and turns back for them the wheel of fortune.
- The LORD shines into a man's very soul, searching out his inmost being.
- A king's guards are loyalty and good faith, his throne is upheld by righteousness.
- The glory of young men is their strength,
the dignity of old men their grey hairs.
- A good beating purges the mind, and blows chasten the inmost being.
- The king's heart is under the LORD's hand; like runnels of water, he turns it wherever he will.
- A man may think that he is always right, but the LORD fixes a standard for the heart.
- Do what is right and just;
that is more pleasing to the LORD than sacrifice.
- Haughty looks and a proud heart—these sins mark a wicked man.
- Forethought and diligence are sure of profit;
the man in a hurry is as sure of poverty.

<sup>x</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. upright.

<sup>y</sup> Or He who betrays secrets is a gossip.

20.16: A man's garment: demand a significant pledge if it is made by a man on behalf of a stranger. Ordinarily a garment taken in pledge had to be returned at sundown (Exod.22.26).
25: Gifts dedicated to sanctuaries were accompanied by solemn oaths, not to be taken lightly; see Ps.15.4. 27: Shines: God plants moral discernment within every man. 21.3: See Hos.6.6.

6	He who makes a fortune by telling lies runs needlessly into the toils of death.	Persevere in right conduct and loyalty and you shall find life and honour.	21
7	The wicked are caught up in their own violence, because they refuse to do what is just.	A wise man climbs into a city full of armed men and undermines its strength and its confidence.	22
8	The criminal's conduct is tortuous; straight dealing is a sign of integrity.	Keep a guard over your lips and tongue and keep yourself out of trouble.	23
9	Better to live in a corner of the house-top than have a nagging wife and a brawling household.	The conceited man is haughty, his name is insolence; conceit and impatience are in all he does.	24
10	The wicked man is set on evil; he has no pity to spare for his friend.	The sluggard's cravings will be the death of him, because his hands refuse to work;	25
11	The simple man is made wise when he sees the insolent punished, and learns his lesson when the wise man prospers.	all day long his cravings go unsatisfied, while the righteous man gives without stint.	26
12	The just God <sup>z</sup> makes the wicked man's home childless; <sup>a</sup> he overturns the wicked and ruins them.	The wicked man's sacrifice is an abomination to the LORD; how much more when he offers it with vileness at heart!	27
13	If a man shuts his ears to the cry of the helpless, he will cry for help himself and not be heard.	A lying witness will perish, but he whose words ring true will leave children behind him.	28
14	A gift in secret placates an angry man; a bribe slipped under the cloak pacifies great wrath.	A wicked man puts a bold face on it, whereas the upright man secures his line of retreat.	29
15	When justice is done, all good men rejoice, but it brings ruin to evildoers.	Face to face with the LORD, wisdom, understanding, counsel go for nothing.	30
16	A man who takes leave of common sense comes to rest in the company of the dead.	A horse may be made ready for the day of battle, but victory comes from the LORD.	31
17	Love pleasure and you will beg your bread; a man who loves wine and oil will never grow rich.	A good name is more to be desired than great riches; esteem is better than silver or gold. Rich and poor have this in common: the LORD made them both.	22
18	The wicked man serves as a ransom for the righteous, so does a traitor for the upright.	A shrewd man sees trouble coming and lies low; the simple walk into it and pay the penalty.	3
19	Better to live alone in the desert than with a nagging and ill-tempered wife.	The fruit of humility is the fear of God with riches and honour and life.	4
20	The wise man has his home full of fine and costly treasures; the stupid man is a mere spendthrift.

<sup>z</sup> Or The just man.
<sup>a</sup> makes . . . childless: prob. rdg.; Heb. considers the wicked man's home.

9: Corner: may mean a room apart. 18: Ransom: the price society pays; righteous men are clearly discerned by comparison with the unrighteous.

- 5 The crooked man's path is set with snares and pitfalls;
the cautious man will steer clear of
them.
- 6 Start a boy on the right road,
and even in old age he will not leave it.
- 7 The rich lord it over the poor;
the borrower becomes the lender's slave.
The man who sows injustice reaps
trouble,
and the end of his work will be the rod.<sup>b</sup>
- 9 The kindly man will be blessed,
for he shares his food with the poor.
- 10 Drive out the insolent man, and strife goes with him;
if he sits on the bench, he makes a mockery of justice.
- 11 The LORD loves a sincere man; but you will make a king your friend with your fine phrases.
- 12 The LORD keeps watch over every claim at law,
and overturns the scoundrel's case.
- 13 The sluggard protests, "There's a lion outside;
I shall get myself killed in the street."
- 14 The words of an adulteress are like a deep pit;
those whom the LORD has cursed will fall into it.
- 15 Folly is deep-rooted in the heart of a boy;
a good beating will drive it right out of him.
- 16 Oppression of the poor may bring gain to a man,
but giving to the rich leads only to penury.
- open your mind to the knowledge I impart;
to keep them in your heart will be a pleasure,
and then you will always have them ready on your lips.
I would have you trust in the LORD and so I tell you these things this day for your own good.
Here I have written out for you thirty sayings,
full of knowledge and wise advice, to impart to you a knowledge of the truth,
that you may take back a true report<sup>c</sup> to him who sent you.
- Never rob a helpless man because he is helpless,
nor ill-treat a poor wretch in court;
for the LORD will take up their cause and rob him who robs them of their livelihood.
Never make friends with an angry
man
nor keep company with a bad-tempered one;
be careful not to learn his ways, or you will find yourself caught in a trap.
Never be one to give guarantees, or to pledge yourself as surety for
another;
for if you cannot pay, beware:
your bed will be taken from under
you.
Do not move the ancient boundary-stone
which your forefathers set up.
You see a man skilful at his craft:
he will serve kings, he will not serve common men.

When you sit down to eat with a ruling prince,
be sure to keep your mind on what is before you, 23

17 The sayings of the wise:

Pay heed and listen to my words,

<sup>b</sup> the rod; or the threshing.
<sup>c</sup> Prob. rdg.: Heb. adds words of truth.

22.17–24.22(34): Thirty wise sayings. This section is dependent on the Egyptian work by Amen-em-ope, from which ten sayings have been derived and adapted to the Israelite setting. 17–21: A prologue. The MT's reading (v. 20), formerly rendered "excellent things," has been corrected to "thirty sayings"—a very minor change in the Heb.—on the basis of the Amen-em-ope, where, as here, there are found both prologue and conclusion (for the latter see 24.21–22). 17: To my words: MT reads "to the words of the wise," possibly a superscription belonging elsewhere and misplaced here. 28: The prohibition against removing a landmark is in Amen-em-ope, ch. 6; compare Prov.23.10; Deut.19.14 and 27.17. 23.1: What: i.e. who: in whose

2 and if you are a greedy man, cut your throat first. 3 Do not be greedy for his dainties, for they are not what they seem. 4 Do not slave to get wealth;<sup>d</sup> be a sensible man, and give up. 5 Before you can look round, it will be gone; it will surely grow wings like an eagle, like a bird in the sky. 6 Do not go to dinner with a miser,<sup>e</sup> do not be greedy for his dainties; 7 for they will stick in your<sup>f</sup> throat like a hair. He will bid you eat and drink, but his heart is not with you; 8 you will bring up the mouthful you have eaten, and your winning words will have been wasted. 9 Hold your tongue in the hearing of a stupid man; for he will despise your words of wisdom. 10 Do not move the ancient boundary- stone or encroach on the land of orphans: they have a powerful guardian who will take up their cause against you. 11 Apply your mind to instruction and open your ears to knowledge when it speaks. 12 Do not withhold discipline from a boy; take the stick to him, and save him from death. 13 If you take the stick to him yourself, you will preserve him from the jaws of death. 14 My son, if you are wise at heart, my heart in its turn will be glad; 15 I shall rejoice with all my soul when you speak plain truth. 16 Do not try to emulate sinners;	envy only those who fear the LORD day by day; do this, and you may look forward 18 to the future, and your thread of life will not be cut short. Listen, my son, listen, and become 19 wise; set your mind on the right course. Do not keep company with 20 drunkards or those who are greedy for the flesh-pots; for drink and greed will end in 21 poverty, and drunken stupor goes in rags. Listen to your father, who gave you 22 life, and do not despise your mother when she is old. Buy truth, never sell it; 23 buy wisdom, instruction, and understanding. A good man's father will rejoice 24 and he who has a wise son will delight in him. Give your father and your mother 25 cause for delight, let her who bore you rejoice. My son, mark my words, 26 and accept my guidance with a will. A prostitute is a deep pit, 27 a loose woman a narrow well; she lies in wait like a robber 28 and betrays her husband with man after man. Whose is the misery? whose the 29 remorse? Whose are the quarrels and the anxiety? Who gets the bruises without knowing why? Whose eyes are bloodshot?
--	---

d to get wealth: or for an invitation to a feast.
e Or a man with an evil eye.
f Prob. rdg.; Heb. his.

presence you are. 2: Cut your throat: curb your appetite. 5: Eagle: Amen-em-ope here reads geese, but since Palestine has no such fowl, the Heb. text substitutes eagle. 10: Ancient: Amen-em-ope reads widow (in Heb. almana); olam, "ancient," is a scribe's error; "widow's boundary" is a more suitable parallel for the land of orphans. 11: The next-of-kin was responsible for the welfare of the defenseless victim of the powerful (see Lev.25.25; Ruth 4.1-6); here the guardian is God. 20: Meat was eaten by most people only on special occasions; hence the danger of greed when it was served. 27: Deep pit: dug as a trap for wild animals. 28: See 7.12.

- 30 Those who linger late over their wine, those who are always trying some new spiced liquor.
- 31 Do not gulp down the wine, the strong red wine, when the droplets form on the side of the cup;<sup>g</sup>
- 32 in the end it will bite like a snake and sting like a cobra.
- 33 Then your eyes see strange sights, your wits and your speech are confused;
- 34 you become like a man tossing out at sea, like one who clings to<sup>h</sup> the top of the rigging;
- 35 you say, 'If it lays me flat, what do I care?
If it brings me to the ground, what of it?
As soon as I wake up,
I shall turn to it again.'
- 24 Do not emulate wicked men or long to make friends with them;
2 for violence is all they think of, and all they say means mischief.
- 3 Wisdom builds the house, good judgement makes it secure, 4 knowledge furnishes the rooms with all the precious and pleasant things that wealth can buy.
- 5 Wisdom prevails over strength, knowledge over brute force; 6 for wars are won by skilful strategy, and victory is the fruit of long planning.
- 7 Wisdom is too high for a fool;
he dare not open his mouth in court.
- 8 A man who is bent on mischief gets a name for intrigue;
9 the intrigues of foolish men misfire, and the insolent man is odious to his fellows.
- 10 If your strength fails on a lucky<sup>i</sup> day,
- how helpless will you be on a day of disaster!
- When you see a man being dragged 11 to be killed, go to his rescue, and save those being hurried away to their death.
- If you say, 'But I do not know this 12
man',
God, who fixes a standard for the heart, will take note.
God who watches you—be sure he will know;
he will requite every man for what he does.
- Eat honey, my son, for it is good, 13 and the honeycomb so sweet upon the tongue.
- Make wisdom too your own; 14
if you find it, you may look forward to the future, and your thread of life will not be cut short.
- Do not lie in wait like a felon at the 15 good man's house,
or raid his farm.
Though the good man may fall seven 16 times, he is soon up again, but the rascal is brought down by misfortune.
- Do not rejoice when your enemy 17 falls,
do not gloat when he is brought down;
or the LORD will see and be 18 displeased with you,
and he will cease to be angry with him.
- Do not vie with evildoers 19 or emulate the wicked;
for wicked men have no future to 20
look forward to;
their embers will be put out.
- My son, fear the LORD and grow 21
rich,
but have nothing to do with men of rank,

g Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds it runs smoothly to and fro.
h clings to: prob. rdg.; Heb. lies on.
i lucky: prob. rdg.; Heb. om.

24.11–22: Passive virtue is inadequate. See Ps.82.4; Isa.58.6,7; 1 Jn.3.16. 16: V.22; Ps.34.19. 17: See Job 31.29; Obad.12.

22 they will bring about disaster without warning;
who knows what ruin such men may cause?<sup>j</sup>

23 More sayings of wise men: Partiality in dispensing justice is not good.

24 A judge who pronounces a guilty man innocent
is cursed by all nations, all peoples execrate him;

25 but for those who convict the guilty
all will go well,
they will be blessed with prosperity.

26 A straightforward answer is as good as a kiss of friendship.

27 First put all in order out of doors and make everything ready on the
land;
then establish your house and home.

28 Do not be a witness against your neighbour without good reason nor misrepresent him in your evidence.

29 Do not say,
'I will do to him what he has done
to me;
I will requite him for what he has
done.'

30 I passed by the field of an idle man, by the vineyard of a man with no sense.

31 I looked, and it was all dried up, it was overgrown with thistles and covered with weeds, and the stones of its walls had been
torn down.

32 I saw and I took good note,
I considered and learnt the lesson:
a little sleep, a little slumber,
a little folding of the hands in rest,
and poverty will come upon you like a robber,
want like a ruffian.

Other collections of wise sayings

More proverbs of Solomon transcribed 25
by the men of Hezekiah king of Judah:

The glory of God is to keep things 2 hidden
but the glory of kings is to fathom
them.

The heavens for height, the earth<sup>k</sup> 3
for depth:
unfathomable is the heart of a king.
Rid silver of its impurities, 4 then it may go to<sup>l</sup> the silversmith; rid the king's presence of wicked men, 5 and his throne will rest firmly on righteousness.

Do not put yourself forward in the 6 king's presence
or take your place among the great;
for it is better that he should say to 7
you, 'Come up here', than move you down to make room for a nobleman.

Be in no hurry to tell everyone what 8
you have seen,
or it will end in bitter reproaches from your friend.

Argue your own case with your 9 neighbour,
but do not reveal another man's secrets,
or he will reproach you when he 10 hears of it and your indiscretion will then be beyond recall.

Like apples of gold set in silver 11
filigree
is a word spoken in season.
Like a golden earring or a necklace 12 of Nubian gold
is a wise man whose reproof finds attentive ears.

Like the coolness of snow in harvest 13 is a trusty messenger to those who send him.<sup>m</sup>

j they . . . cause: or they will come to sudden disaster;
who knows what the ruin of such men will be.
k Or the underworld.
l then it may go to: or and it will come out bright for.
m Prob. rdg.: Heb. adds refreshing his master.

24.23-34: Miscellaneous proverbs, plus a narrative about a sluggard. 30-31: Compare Isa.5.1-7. 34: Identical with 6.11.

25.1-31.9: Other collections of wise sayings. Chs. 25-29 are a second collection of "Proverbs of Solomon." The reign of Hezekiah was 715-687 B.C. The official phrase men of Hezekiah suggests that this king took an active interest in the welfare of the Wisdom tradition, as had Solomon before him. 7: Compare Lk.14.7-11. 12: Nubian: Ethiopic. 14: In a subtropical climate the first clouds promising rain after the many dry months are greeted eagerly and become

- |    |  |   |           |
|----|--|---|-----------|
| 14 | Like clouds and wind that bring no rainis the man who boasts of gifts he never gives.                      | Like a city that has burst out of its confining walls <sup>p</sup>is a man who cannot control his temper. | 28        |
| 15 | A prince may be persuaded by patience,and a soft tongue may break down solid bone. <sup>n</sup>            | Like snow in summer or rain at harvest,honour is unseasonable in a stupid man.                            | 26 |
| 16 | If you find honey, eat only what you need,too much of it will make you sick;                               | Like a fluttering sparrow or a darting swallow,groundless abuse gets nowhere.                             | 2         |
| 17 | be sparing in visits to your neighbour's house,if he sees too much of you, he will dislike you.            | The whip for a horse, the bridle for an ass,the rod for the back of a fool!                               | 3         |
| 18 | Like a club or a sword or a sharp arrowis a false witness who denounces his friend.                        | Do not answer a stupid man in the language of his folly,or you will grow like him;                        | 4         |
| 19 | Like a tooth decayed or a foot limpingis a traitor relied on in the day of trouble.                        | answer a stupid man as his folly deserves,or he will think himself a wise man.                            | 5         |
| 20 | Like one who dresses <sup>o</sup> a wound with vinegar,so is the sweetest of singers to the heavy-hearted. | He who sends a fool on an errand cuts his own leg off and displays the stump.                                 | 6         |
| 21 | If your enemy is hungry, give him bread to eat;if he is thirsty, give him water to drink;                  | A proverb in the mouth of stupid mendangles helpless as a lame man's legs.                                | 7         |
| 22 | so you will heap glowing coals on his head,and the LORD will reward you.                                   | Like one who gets the stone caught in his slingis he who bestows honour on a fool.                        | 8         |
| 23 | As the north wind holds back the rain,so an angry glance holds back slander.                               | Like a thorn that pierces a drunkard's handis a proverb in a stupid man's mouth.                          | 9         |
| 24 | Better to live in a corner of the house-topthan have a nagging wife and a brawling household.              | Like an archer who shoots at any passer-by <sup>q</sup>is one who hires a stupid man or a drunkard.       | 10        |
| 25 | Like cold water to the throat when it is dryis good news from a distant land.                              | Like a dog returning to its vomitis a stupid man who repeats his folly.                                   | 11        |
| 26 | Like a muddied spring or a tainted wellis a righteous man who gives way to a wicked one.                   | Do you see that man who thinks himself so wise?There is more hope for a fool than for him.                | 12        |
| 27 | A surfeit of honey is bad for a man,and the quest for honour is burdensome.                                | The sluggard protests, 'There is a lion <sup>r</sup> in the highway,a lion at large in the streets.'      | 13        |

<sup>n</sup> solid bone: or authority.

<sup>o</sup> Prob. rdg.: Heb. adds a garment on a cold day.

<sup>p</sup> Or that is breached and left unvalled.

<sup>q</sup> passer-by: transposed from end of verse.

<sup>r</sup> Or snake.

particularly disappointing when no rain falls. 15: Compare Ecclus.28.17. 22: Glowing coals may have had a cultic origin in Egypt. The figure is used in Rom.12.20. 26.1: Rainfall in Palestine is limited to certain seasons, so that the weather is highly predictable. 4-5: The two

- |                 |  |   |    |
|-----------------|--|---|----|
| 14              | A door turns on its hinges,a sluggard on his bed.  | from the lips of an outsider and notfrom your own.  |    |
| 15              | A sluggard plunges his hand in thedishbut is too lazy to lift it to his mouth.                 | Stone is a burden and sand a deadweight,but to be vexed by a fool is moreburdensome than either.                  | 3  |
| 16              | A sluggard is wiser in his own eyesthan seven men who answersensibly.                          | Wrath is cruel and anger is adeluge;  | 4  |
| 17              | Like a man who seizes a passing curby the earsis he who meddles in another'squarrel.       | but who can stand up to jealousy?Open reproof is betterthan love concealed.   | 5  |
| 19 <sup>b</sup> | A man who deceives anotherand then says, 'It was only a joke',                                     | The blows a friend gives are wellmeant,but the kisses of an enemy areperfidious.                                  | 6  |
| 18              | is like a madman shooting atrandomhis deadly darts and arrows.                                 | A man full-fed refuses honey,but even bitter food tastes sweet toa hungry man.  | 7  |
| 20              | For lack of fuel a fire dies downand for want of a tale-bearer aquarrel subsides.              | Like a bird that strays far from itsnest  | 8  |
| 21              | Like bellows for the coal and fuelfor the fireis a quarrelsome man for kindlingstrife.     | is a man far from his home.Oil and perfume bring joy to theheart,but cares torment a man's very soul.             | 9  |
| 22              | A gossip's whispers are savourymorselsgulped down into the inner man.                          | Do not neglect your own friend oryour father's; <sup>f</sup>a neighbour at hand is better than abrother far away. | 10 |
| 23              | Glib speech that covers a spitefulheartis like glaze spread on earthenware.                    | Be wise, my son, then you will bringjoy to my heart,and I shall be able to forestall mycritics.                   | 11 |
| 24              | With his lips an enemy may speakyou fairbut inwardly he harbours deceit;                       | A shrewd man sees trouble comingand lies low;the simple walk into it and pay thepenalty.                          | 12 |
| 25              | when his words are gracious, do nottrust him,for seven abominations fill his heart;            | Take a man's garment when hepledges his word for a strangerand hold that as a pledge for theunknown person.       | 13 |
| 26              | he may cloak his enmity indissimulation,but his wickedness is shown upbefore the assembly. | If one man greets another tooheartily,he may give great offence.  | 14 |
| 27              | If he digs a pit, he will fall into it;if he rolls a stone, it will roll backupon him.         | Endless dripping on a rainy day—that is what a nagging wife is like.  | 15 |
| 28              | A lying tongue makes innocenceseem guilty,and smooth words conceal theirsting.             | As well try to control the wind as tocontrol her!As well try to pick up oil in one'sfingers!                      | 16 |
| 27              | Do not flatter yourself abouttomorrow,for you never know what a day willbring forth.       | As iron sharpens iron,so one man sharpens the wits ofanother.   | 17 |
| 2               | Let flattery come from a stranger,not from yourself,   |   |    |

<sup>s</sup> Verses 18 and 19 transposed.

<sup>t</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds or how should you enter your brother's house in the day of your ruin?

proverbs supplement each other: they are not in contradiction. 27.13: See 20.16. 15: See 19.13.

- 18 He who guards the fig-tree will eat
its fruit,
and he who watches his master's interests will come to honour.
- 19 As face answers face reflected in the
water,
so one man's heart answers another's.
- 20 Sheol and Abaddon are insatiable;
a man's eyes too are never satisfied.
- 21 The melting-pot is for silver and the crucible for gold,
but praise is the test of character.
- 22 Pound a fool with pestle and mortar,<sup>u</sup>
his folly will never be knocked out
of him.
- 23 Be careful to know your own sheep and take good care of your flocks;
for possessions do not last for ever, nor will a crown endure to endless
generations.
- 24 The grass disappears, new shoots are seen
and the green growth on the hills is gathered in;
- 26 the lambs clothe you,
the he-goats are worth the price of a field,
- 27 while the goats' milk is enough for your food
and nourishment for your maidens.
- 28 The wicked man runs away with no one in pursuit,
but the righteous is like a young lion in repose.
- 2 It is the fault of a violent man that quarrels start,
but they are settled by a man of discernment.
- 3 A tyrant oppressing the poor is like driving rain which ruins the crop.
- 4 The lawless praise wicked men;
the law-abiding contend with them.
- 5 Bad men do not know what justice is,
but those who seek the LORD know everything good.
- 6 Better be poor and above reproach
than rich and crooked.
- 7 A discerning son observes the law, but one who keeps riotous company wounds his father.
- 8 He who grows rich by lending at discount or at interest is saving for another who will be generous to the poor.
- 9 If a man turns a deaf ear to the law, even his prayers are an abomination.
- 10 He who tempts the upright into evil courses will himself fall into the pit he has dug.
- The honest shall inherit a fortune,
but the wicked shall inherit nothing.
- 11 The rich man may think himself wise,
but a poor man of discernment sees through him.
- 12 When the just are in power, there are great celebrations,<sup>v</sup> but when the wicked come to the top, others are downtrodden.
- 13 Conceal your faults, and you will not prosper;
confess and give them up, and you will find mercy.
- 14 Happy the man who is scrupulous in conduct,
but he who hardens his heart falls into misfortune.
- 15 Like a starving lion or a thirsty bear is a wicked man ruling a helpless
people.
- 16 The man who is stupid and grasping
will perish,
but he who hates ill-gotten gain will live long.
- 17 A man charged with bloodshed will jump into a well to escape arrest.
- 18 Whoever leads an honest life will be safe,
but a rogue will fail, one way or another.
- 19 One who cultivates his land has plenty to eat;
idle pursuits lead to poverty.
- 20 A man of steady character will enjoy many blessings, but one in a hurry to grow rich will not go unpunished.

<sup>u</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds with goats.

<sup>v</sup> Or there is great pageantry.

28.6: See 14.31 n. 13: Mercy: from men. Divine mercy plays little role in Wisdom literature.

- |    |  |    |  |
|----|--|----|--|
| 21 | To show favour is not good;but men will do wrong for a merecrust of bread.   | 8  | Arrogance can inflame a city,but wisdom averts the people'sanger.  |
| 22 | The miser <sup>w</sup> is in a hurry to growrich,never dreaming that want willovertake him.                              | 9  | If a wise man goes to law with afool,he will meet abuse or derision, butget no remedy.   |
| 23 | Take a man to task and in the endwin more thanksthan the man with a flatteringtongue.                                    | 10 | Men who have tasted blood hate anhonest man,but the upright set much store byhis life.   |
| 24 | To rob your father or mother andsay you do no wrongis no better than wanton destruction.                                     | 11 | A stupid man gives free rein to hisanger;a wise man waits and lets it growcool.  |
| 25 | A self-important <sup>x</sup> man provokesquarrels,but he who trusts in the LORD growsfat and prosperous.                | 12 | If a prince listens to falsehood,all his servants will be wicked.  |
| 26 | It is plain stupidity to trust in one'sown wits,but he who walks the path of wisdomwill come safely through.             | 13 | Poor man and oppressor have thisin common:what happiness each has comes fromthe LORD.  |
| 27 | He who gives to the poor will neverwant,but he who turns a blind eye getsnothing but curses.                             | 14 | A king who steadfastly deals outjustice to the weakwill be secure for ever on his throne.  |
| 28 | When the wicked come to the top,others are pulled down; <sup>y</sup>but, when they perish, the righteouscome into power. | 15 | Rod and reprimand impart wisdom,but a boy who runs wild bringsshame on his mother.   |
| 29 | A man who is still stubborn aftermuch reproofwill suddenly be broken pastmending.  | 16 | When the wicked are in power, sinis in power,but the righteous will gloat overtheir downfall.                                    |
| 2  | When the righteous are in powerthe people rejoice,but they groan when the wickedhold office.                             | 17 | Correct your son, and he will be acomfort to youand bring you delights of every kind.  |
| 3  | A lover of wisdom brings joy to hisfather,but one who keeps company withharlots squanders his wealth.                    | 18 | Where there is no one in authority, <sup>a</sup>the people break loose,but a guardian of the law keepsthem on the straight path. |
| 4  | By just government a king gives hiscountry stability,but by forced contributions hereduces it to ruin.                   | 19 | Mere words will not keep a slavein order;he may understand, but he will notrespond.  |
| 5  | A man who flatters his neighbouris spreading a net for his feet.   | 20 | When you see someone over-eagerto speak, <sup>b</sup>there will be more hope for a foolthan for him.                             |
| 6  | An evil man is ensnared by his sin, <sup>z</sup>but a righteous man lives andflourishes.                                     | 21 | Pamper a slave from boyhood,and in the end he will proveungrateful.  |
| 7  | The righteous man is concerned forthe cause of the helpless,but the wicked understand no suchconcern.                    | 22 | A man prone to anger provokes aquarreland a hot-head is always doingwrong.   |

<sup>w</sup> Or The man with the evil eye. <sup>x</sup> Or grasping.
<sup>y</sup> are pulled down: or hide themselves.

<sup>z</sup> An evil . . . sin: or When an evil man steps out a trap awaits him.

<sup>a</sup> Or no vision. <sup>b</sup> Or someone hasty in business.

- |  |   |   |    |
|--|---|---|----|
| 23   | Pride will bring a man low;a man lowly in spirit wins honour.   | Put fraud and lying far from me;give me neither poverty nor wealth,provide me only with the food Ineed.   | 8  |
| 24   | He who goes shares with a thief ishis own enemy:he hears himself put on oath anddare not give evidence.   | If I have too much, I shall deny theeand say, 'Who is the LORD?'If I am reduced to poverty, I shallstealand blacken the name of my God.   | 9  |
| 25   | A man's fears will prove a snare tohim,but he who trusts in the LORD hasa high tower of refuge.   | Never disparage a slave to hismaster,or he will speak ill of you, and youwill pay for it.   | 10 |
| 26   | Many seek audience of a prince,but in every case the LORD decides.  | There is a sort of people whodefame their fathersand do not speak well of their ownmothers;   | 11 |
| 27   | The righteous cannot abide anunjust man,nor the wicked a man whoseconduct is upright.   | a sort who are pure in their owneyesand yet are not cleansed of theirfilth;a sort—how haughty are their looks,how disdainful their glances!A sort whose teeth are swords,their jaws are set with knives,they eat the wretched out of thecountryand the needy out of house andhome. <sup>d</sup> | 12 |
| 30 Sayings of Agur son of Jakeh fromMassa:<sup>c</sup> |   | The leech has two daughters;'Give', says one, and 'Give', says theother.  | 15 |
|  | This is the great man's very word:I am weary, O God,I am weary and worn out;  | Three things there are which will neverbe satisfied,four which never say, 'Enough!'The grave and a barren womb, <sup>e</sup>a land thirsty for waterand fire that never says, 'Enough!'   | 16 |
| 2  | I am a dumb brute, scarcely a man,without a man's powers ofunderstanding;   | The eye that mocks a father orscorns a mother's old age <sup>f</sup>will be plucked out by magpiesor eaten by the vulture's young.  | 17 |
| 3  | I have not learnt wisdomnor have I received knowledge fromthe Holy One.   |   |    |
| 4  | Who has ever gone up to heavenand come down again?Who has cupped the wind in thehollow of his hands?Who has bound up the waters in thefold of his garment?Who has fixed the boundaries of theearth?What is his name or his son's name,if you know it? |   |    |
| 5  | God's every promise has stood thetest:he is a shield to all who seek refugewith him.  |   |    |
| 6  | Add nothing to his words,or he will expose you for a liar.  |   |    |
| 7  | Two things I ask of thee;do not withhold them from mebefore I die.  |   |    |

<sup>c</sup> From Massa: prob. rdg.: (cp. 31. 1): Heb. the oracle.

<sup>d</sup> house and home: prob. rdg.: Heb. man.

<sup>e</sup> Or a woman's desire.

<sup>f</sup> old age: prob. rdg.: Heb. unintelligible.

30.1-9: The skeptical words of Agur (vv. 1-4), a non-Israelite (Tfn. c), followed by pious advice (5-6) and a prayer (7-9), form an appendix. 1: Massa: probably a place in Arabia (Gen.25.14). The word also means "oracle." Weary . . . worn out: Some interpreters read here the proper names Ithiel and Ucal; the translation has altered the extremely difficult text. 3-4: The style is ironical, scorning those who know too much about God, but the mood is agonized sadness.

30.10-33: Another appendix. Some of these numerical sayings may originally have been

- 18 Three things there are which are too wonderful for me, four which I do not understand: 19 the way of a vulture in the sky,
the way of a serpent on the rock,
the way of a ship out at sea,
and the way of a man with a girl.
- 20 The way of an unfaithful wife is this:
she eats, then she wipes her mouth and says, 'I have done no harm.'
- 21 At three things the earth shakes, four things it cannot bear: 22 a slave turned king,
a churl gorging himself, 23 a woman unloved when she is married,
and a slave-girl displacing her
mistress.
- 24 Four things there are which are smallest on earth
yet wise beyond the wisest:
25 ants, a people with no strength, yet they prepare their store of food in the summer;
26 rock-badgers, a feeble folk, yet they make their home among the rocks;
27 locusts, which have no king,
yet they all sally forth in detachments; 28 the lizard, which can be grasped in the hand,
yet is found in the palaces of kings.
- 29 Three things there are which are stately in their stride, four which are stately as they move: 30 the lion, a hero among beasts, which will not turn tail for anyone; 31 the strutting cock and the he-goat;
and a king going forth to lead his army.<sup>g</sup>
- 32 If you are churlish and arrogant and fond of filthy talk, hold your
tongue;

for wringing out the milk produces 33
curd
and wringing the nose produces blood, so provocation leads to strife.

Sayings of Lemuel king of Massa, 31 which his mother taught him:

What, O my son, what shall I say to 2
you,
you, the child of my womb and answer to my prayers?
Do not give the vigour of your 3 manhood to women nor consort with those who make eyes at<sup>h</sup> kings.
It is not for kings, O Lemuel, not 4 for kings to drink wine nor for princes to crave strong
drink;
if they drink, they will forget rights 5
and customs and twist the law against their wretched victims.
Give strong drink to the desperate 6 and wine to the embittered;
such men will drink and forget their 7
poverty
and remember their trouble no
longer.
Open your mouth and speak up for 8
the dumb,
against the suit of any that oppose
them;
open your mouth and pronounce 9
just sentence
and give judgement for the wretched
and the poor.

A capable wife

Who can find a capable wife? 10
Her worth is far beyond coral.

<sup>g</sup> going forth to lead his army: prob. rdg.: Heb. unintelligible.
<sup>h</sup> who make eyes at: prob. rdg.; Heb. unintelligible.

riddles (e.g. vv. 15b–16). 18–19: The point seems to be the absence of all trace of the movement made. 20: Eats: commits adultery. The words are to be taken as symbolic of sex relations.

31.1–9: The advice of the queen mother, here an appendix, is paralleled in Egyptian royal instructions. 1: Lemuel: he is unknown. 4–9: Those whose situation is desperate resort to strong drink; the king must not imbibe, for he is to vindicate the cause of the poor and so is not to impair his judgement by strong drink. 8–9: A characteristic Hebrew concern for the lowly.

31.10–31: A capable wife. An acrostic poem on the ideal wife, possibly meant as instruction to girls (for other alphabetic poems see Lam. chs. 1–4; Pss. 9–10; 119, etc.). 10: Who . . . wife: a rhetorical question, equivalent to the statement, "A man who finds a capable wife . . ."

- 11 Her husband's whole trust is in her,
and children are not lacking.
- 12 She repays him with good, not evil,
all her life long.
- 13 She chooses wool and flax and toils at her work.
- 14 Like a ship laden with merchandise,
she brings home food from far off.
- 15 She rises while it is still night and sets meat before her household.<sup>i</sup>
- 16 After careful thought she buys a field
and plants a vineyard out of her earnings.
- 17 She sets about her duties with vigour
and braces herself for the work.
- 18 She sees that her business goes well, and never puts out her lamp at night.
- 19 She holds the distaff in her hand, and her fingers grasp the spindle.
- 20 She is open-handed to the wretched and generous to the poor.
- 21 She has no fear for her household
when it snows,
for they are wrapped in two cloaks.
- 22 She makes her own coverings, and clothing of fine linen and purple.
- 23 Her husband is well known in the city gate
- when he takes his seat with the elders of the land.
- She weaves linen and sells it, 24 and supplies merchants with their sashes.
- She is clothed in dignity and power 25 and can afford to laugh at tomorrow.
- When she opens her mouth, it is to 26
speak wisely,
and loyalty is the theme of her teaching.
- She keeps her eye on the doings of 27
her household
and does not eat the bread of idleness.
- Her sons with one accord call her 28
happy;
her husband too, and he sings her praises:
- 'Many a woman shows how capable 29
she is;<sup>j</sup>
but you excel them all.'
- Charm is a delusion and beauty 30 fleeting;
it is the God-fearing woman who is honoured.
- Extol her for the fruit of all her toil, 31 and let her labours bring her honour in the city gate.

<sup>i</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds and a prescribed portion for her maidens.

<sup>j</sup> Or Many daughters show how capable they are.

ECCLESIASTES

This book stands alone in the Hebrew Bible, both in theology and style. It asserts that God and his ways are inscrutable, and that this recognition is the only valid intellectual stance for man, who cannot comprehend why the same fate befalls the good and the bad, man and beast. Since death ignores all distinctions, life in the long run is empty, profitless.

As in Egyptian royal instructions, the style depends on frequent references to personal experience and reflection. Despair over existence is expressed in repeated refrains and phrases, brief stories and maxims. In service of his basic pessimistic outlook, the author's favorite expressions are "emptiness," "under the sun," "labor and toil," "chasing the wind," "man's portion."

The book predates the entrance of vivid views of afterlife into Jewish thought. However, the Hebrew employed here is a late type (fourth or third century B.C.). The ascription of the book to Solomon is, therefore, unlikely; yet Solomon's name may have opened the way for its inclusion in the canon, while at the same time reinforcing the theme of life's emptiness.

The noun applied to the author, Hebrew Qoheleth, here rendered "Speaker," is taken by some to be a proper name. But the noun seems related to a root which means "to assemble," and the Greek name Ecclesiastes derives from the idea of someone addressing an assembly (see 1.1 n.). The place of composition was probably Palestine.

The book moves a step beyond Job in attacking man's overconfidence about his wisdom; yet it encourages man to enjoy life while he has the strength to do so. Glosses which relieve the gloom (and, indeed, the impiety) of the book seem to have been added in later times at 3.17; 7.18; 8.12-13; 11.9b; 12.9-11.

The emptiness of all endeavour

1 THE WORDS OF THE SPEAKER, THE son of David, king in Jerusalem.

2 Emptiness, emptiness, says the 3 Speaker, emptiness, all is empty. What 4 does man gain from all his labour and 5 his toil here under the sun? Generations 6 come and generations go, while the 7 earth endures for ever.

8 The sun rises and the sun goes down;
9 back it returns to its place<sup>a</sup> and rises 10 there again. The wind blows south, the 11 wind blows north, round and round it 12 goes and returns full circle. All streams 13 run into the sea, yet the sea never over-14 flows; back to the place from which the 15 streams ran they return to run again.

16 All things are wearisome;<sup>b</sup> no man
17 can speak of them all. Is not the eye 18 surfeited with seeing, and the ear sated 19 with hearing? What has happened will 20 happen again, and what has been done 21 will be done again, and there is nothing new under the sun. Is there anything of which one can say, 'Look, this is new'?

No, it has already existed, long ago before our time. The men of old are not remembered, and those who follow will not be remembered by those who follow them.

I, the Speaker, ruled as king over Israel in Jerusalem; and in wisdom I applied my mind to study and explore all that is done under heaven. It is a sorry business that God has given men to busy themselves with. I have seen all the deeds that are done here under the sun; they are all emptiness and chasing the wind. What is crooked cannot become straight; what is not there cannot be counted. I said to myself, 'I have amassed great wisdom, more than all my predecessors on the throne in Jerusalem; I have become familiar with wisdom and knowledge.' So I

<sup>a</sup> back . . . place: prob. rdg.; Heb. to its place panting.
<sup>b</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. weary.

1.1-6.12: The emptiness of all endeavor. Inasmuch as meaningless repetition characterizes life, there is no profit to toil.

1.1-11: Title and prologue. 1: The unusual Heb. form for "the speaker" indicates that an office, not a name, is meant. 2: The Heb. phrase emptiness, emptiness is a superlative, just as Song of Songs means "the best song." 3: Under the sun: on earth. 4: Earth endures while the "lord of the earth," man, passes on; see Gen.1.28. 8: Things: or words.

1.12-2.26: Neither wisdom nor pleasure is profitable. Since one fate comes to all, there is no gain in work, knowledge, or sensuality. 13: The occupation of the wise man is dismissed as sorry business, even if a gift of God. 14: Chasing: with nothing to show for one's effort (Hos. 12.1). 16: Predecessors: the fiction of Solomonic authorship is here abandoned; Solomon had applied my mind to understand wisdom and knowledge, madness and folly, and I came to see that this too is chasing 18 the wind. For in much wisdom is much vexation, and the more a man knows, the more he has to suffer.

2 I said to myself, 'Come, I will plunge into pleasures and enjoy myself'; but
2 that too was emptiness. Of laughter I said, 'It is madness!' And of pleasure, 3 'What is the good of that?' So I sought to stimulate myself with wine, in the hope of finding out what was good for men to do under heaven throughout the brief span of their lives. But my mind was guided by wisdom, not blinded by<sup>c</sup> folly.

4 I undertook great works; I built myself houses and planted vineyards;
5 I made myself gardens and parks and planted all kinds of fruit-trees in them;
6 I made myself pools of water to irrigate
7 a grove of growing trees; I bought slaves, male and female, and I had my home-born slaves as well; I had possessions, more cattle and flocks than any 8 of my predecessors in Jerusalem; I amassed silver and gold also, the treasure of kings and provinces; I acquired singers, men and women, and 9 all that man delights in.<sup>d</sup> I was great, greater than all my predecessors in Jerusalem; and my wisdom stood me
10 in good stead. Whatever my eyes coveted, I refused them nothing, nor did I deny myself any pleasure. Yes indeed, I got pleasure from all my labour, and for all my labour this was 11 my reward. Then I turned and reviewed all my handiwork, all my labour and toil, and I saw that everything was emptiness and chasing the wind, of no profit under the sun.

12 I set myself to look at wisdom and 13 at madness and folly.<sup>e</sup> Then I perceived that wisdom is more profitable than folly, as light is more profitable than 14 darkness: the wise man has eyes in his head, but the fool walks in the dark. Yet I saw also that one and the same 15 fate overtakes them both. So I said to myself, 'I too shall suffer the fate of the fool. To what purpose have I been wise? What<sup>f</sup> is the profit of it? Even this', I said to myself, 'is emptiness. The wise man is remembered no longer 16 than the fool, for, as the passing days multiply,<sup>g</sup> all will be forgotten. Alas, wise man and fool die the same death!' So I came to hate life, since everything 17 that was done here under the sun was a trouble to me; for all is emptiness and chasing the wind. So I came to hate all 18 my labour and toil here under the sun, since I should have to leave its fruits to my successor. What sort of a man will he be who succeeds me, who inherits what others have acquired?<sup>h</sup> Who 19 knows whether he will be a wise man or a fool? Yet he will be master of all the fruits of my labour and skill here under the sun. This too is emptiness.

Then I turned and gave myself up to 20 despair, reflecting upon all my labour and toil here under the sun. For anyone 21 who toils with wisdom, knowledge, and skill must leave it all to a man who has spent no labour on it. This too is emptiness and utterly wrong. What 22 reward has a man for all his labour, his scheming, and his toil here under the sun? All his life long his business is 23 pain and vexation to him; even at night his mind knows no rest. This too is emptiness. There is nothing better for a 24 man to do than to eat and drink and enjoy himself in return for his labours. And yet I saw that this comes from the hand of God. For without him who can 25 enjoy his food, or who can be anxious? God gives wisdom and knowledge 26 and joy to the man who pleases him, while to the sinner is given the trouble of gathering and amassing wealth only to hand it over to someone else who pleases God. This too is emptiness and chasing the wind.

<sup>c</sup> not blinded by: prob. rdg.; Heb. to grasp.

<sup>d</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds two unintelligible words.

<sup>e</sup> The rest of verse 12 transposed to follow verse 18.

<sup>f</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. Then.

<sup>g</sup> for . . . multiply: prob. rdg.; Heb. because already.

<sup>h</sup> What sort . . . acquired: see note on verse 12.

only one predecessor in Jerusalem (contrast 2.7,9). 2.10: The author intends his readers to assume that the king possessed the means and power of fulfilling his will, yet at the same time he renders a negative judgment on "Solomon and all his glory." 23: Rest is forbidden even the good man. 24: Similar advice is given in the Babylonian text, Gilgamesh Epic; see also Isa.22.13. 26: Except for the refrain this may be a pious gloss, or a quotation to be refuted.

3 FOR EVERYTHING ITS SEASON, AND FOR every activity under heaven its time:

- 2 a time to be born and a time to die;
a time to plant and a time to uproot;
- 3 a time to kill and a time to heal;
a time to pull down and a time to build up;
- 4 a time to weep and a time to laugh;
a time for mourning and a time for dancing;
- 5 a time to scatter stones and a time to gather them;
a time to embrace and a time to refrain from embracing;
- 6 a time to seek and a time to lose;
a time to keep and a time to throw away;
- 7 a time to tear and a time to mend;
a time for silence and a time for speech;
- 8 a time to love and a time to hate;
a time for war and a time for peace.

9 What profit does one who works get 10 from all his labour? I have seen the business that God has given men to 11 keep them busy. He has made everything to suit its time; moreover he has given men a sense of time past and future, but no comprehension of God's work from beginning to end. I know that there is nothing good for man<sup>i</sup> except to be happy and live the best life he can while he is alive. Moreover, that a man should eat and drink and enjoy himself, in return for all his labours, is a gift of God. I know that whatever God does lasts for ever; to add to it or subtract from it is impossible. And he has done it all in such a way that men must feel awe in his presence. Whatever is has been already,<sup>j</sup> and whatever is to come has been already, and God summons each event back in its turn.
16 Moreover I saw here under the sun that, where justice ought to be, there was wickedness, and where righteousness ought to be, there was wickedness. I said to myself, 'God will judge the just man and the wicked equally; every activity and<sup>k</sup> every purpose has its proper time.' I said to myself, 'In dealing with men it is God's purpose<sup>l</sup> to test them and to see what they truly are.<sup>m</sup> For man is a creature of chance and the beasts are creatures of chance, and one mischance awaits them all: death comes to both alike. They all draw the same breath. Men have no advantage over beasts; for everything is emptiness. All go to the same place: all came from the dust, and to the dust all return. Who knows whether the spirit<sup>n</sup> of man goes upward or whether the spirit<sup>n</sup> of the beast goes downward to the earth?' So I saw that there is nothing better than that a man should enjoy his work, since that is his lot. For who can bring him through to see what will happen next?

Again, I considered all the acts of oppression here under the sun; I saw the tears of the oppressed, and I saw that there was no one to comfort them. Strength was on the side of their oppressors, and there was no one to avenge them. I counted the dead happy because they were dead, happier than the living who are still in life. More fortunate than either I reckoned the man yet unborn, who had not witnessed the wicked deeds done here under the sun. I considered all toil and all achievement and saw that it comes from rivalry between man and man. This too is emptiness and chasing the wind. The fool folds his arms and wastes away. Better one hand full and peace of mind, than both fists full and toil that is chasing the wind.

i for man: prob. rdg., cp. 2. 24; Heb. in them.
j Or Whatever has been already is.
k Prob. rdg.; Heb. and upon.
l it is God's purpose: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.
m Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds they to them.
n Or breath.

3.1-15: On timeliness. Every deed, thought, or feeling has an appropriate moment, but man cannot discover it. 11: Time past and future: man can know the facts of history and in a sense the events of the immediate future, yet can fail to grasp God's role in history.

3.16-4.3: Tears of the oppressed. Injustice abounds, and none comes to the defense of the weak, so that death is to be preferred to life. 16: Wickedness: perhaps bribery at the court. 19: Although man rules the beast, death strikes both man and beast indiscriminately. 21: The sage is agnostic, recognizing that life after death is problematic. 4.1: Compare Isa.25.8 for the prophetic word of comfort to the fearful.

4.4-16: Advantages of community. Concerted effort is better than solitary endeavor. 5-6: Two

7 Here again, I saw emptiness under 8 the sun: a lonely man without a friend, without son or brother, toiling endlessly yet never satisfied with his wealth—
 'For whom', he asks, 'am I toiling and denying myself the good things of life?'
 This too is emptiness, a sorry business.
 Two are better than one; they receive a good reward for their toil, because, if one falls, the other<sup>o</sup> can help his companion up again; but alas for the man who falls alone with no partner to help him up.
 And, if two lie side by side, they keep each other warm; but how can one keep warm by himself? If a man is alone, an assailant may overpower him, but two can resist; and a cord of three strands is not quickly snapped.
 Better a young man poor and wise than a king old and foolish who will listen to advice no longer. A man who leaves prison may well come to be king, though born a pauper in his future kingdom. But I have studied all life here under the sun, and I saw his place taken by yet another young man, and no limit set to the number of the subjects whose master he became. And he in turn will be no hero to those who come after him. This too is emptiness and chasing the wind.
 5 Go carefully when you visit the house of God. Better draw near in obedience than offer the sacrifice of 2 fools, who sin without a thought. Do not rush into speech, let there be no hasty utterance in God's presence. God is in heaven, you are on earth; so let 3 your words be few. The sensible man has much business on his hands; the fool talks and it is so much chatter.
 4 When you make a vow to God, do not be slow to pay it, for he has no use for 5 fools; pay whatever you vow. Better not vow at all than vow and fail to pay.
 6 Do not let your tongue lead you into sin, and then say before the angel of God that it was a mistake; or God will be angry at your words, and all your achievements will be brought to nothing.<sup>p</sup>

 You must fear God.

If you witness in some province the oppression of the poor and the denial of right and justice, do not be surprised at what goes on, for every official has a higher one set over him, and the highest<sup>q</sup> keeps watch over them all. The best thing for a country is a king whose<sup>r</sup> own lands are well tilled.

The man who loves money can never have enough, and the man who is in love with great wealth enjoys no return from it. This too is emptiness. When riches multiply, so do those who live off them; and what advantage has the owner, except to look at them? Sweet is the sleep of the labourer whether he eats little or much; but the rich man owns too much and cannot sleep. There is a singular evil here under the sun which I have seen: a man hoards wealth to his own hurt, and then that wealth is lost through an unlucky venture, and the owner's son left with nothing. As he came from the womb of mother earth, so must he return, naked as he came;
 all his toil produces nothing which he can take away with him. This too is a singular evil: exactly as he came, so shall he go, and what profit does he get when his labour is all for the wind?
 What is more, all his days are overshadowed; gnawing anxiety and great vexation are his lot, sickness<sup>s</sup> and resentment. What I have seen is this: that it is good and proper for a man to eat and drink and enjoy himself in return for his labours here under the sun, throughout the brief span of life which God has allotted him. Moreover, it is a gift of God that every man to

<sup>o</sup> if one falls, the other; prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.

<sup>p</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds for in a multitude of dreams and empty things and many words.

<sup>q</sup> for every . . . the highest; or though every . . . over him, the Highest . . .

<sup>r</sup> whose; prob. rdg.; Heb. for.

<sup>s</sup> sickness; prob. rdg.; Heb. and his sickness.

proverbs are employed in a didactic setting. 9–10: In companionship there is reward, some profit to one's action. 16: Since memory is short, the hero is soon forgotten.

5.1–7: Passive ethics. Act so as not to call God's attention to you. 6: Angel: that is, the angel responsible for collecting what was vowed. 7: The wise man's motto was fear of God according to Prov.1.7 and 9.10.

5.8–6.12: Oppression and anxiety. Society is so ordered that injustice will be observed by high officials; in money there is no profit, only sleeplessness. 15: This verse may be a citation

Wisdom and folly compared

whom he has granted wealth and riches and the power to enjoy them should accept his lot and rejoice in his labour. 20 He will not dwell overmuch upon the passing years; for God fills his<sup>4</sup> time with joy of heart.

6 Here is an evil under the sun which I have seen, and it weighs heavy upon 2 men. Consider the man to whom God grants wealth, riches, and substance,<sup>u</sup> and who lacks nothing that he has set his heart on: if God has not given him the power to enjoy these things, but a stranger enjoys them instead, that is 3 emptiness and a grave disorder. A man may have a hundred children and live a long life; but however many his days may be, if he does not get satisfaction from the good things of life and in the end receives no burial, then I maintain 4 that the still-born child is in better case than he. Its coming is an empty thing, it departs into darkness, and in darkness 5 its name is hidden; it has never seen the sun or known anything,<sup>v</sup> yet its state is 6 better than his. What if a man should live a thousand years twice over, and never prosper? Do not both go to one place?

7 The end of all man's toil is but to fill his belly, yet his appetite is never satisfied. What advantage then in facing life has the wise man over the fool, or the 9 poor man for all his experience? It is better to be satisfied with what is before your eyes than give rein to desire; this too is emptiness and chasing the wind. 10 Whatever has already existed has been given a name, its nature is known; a man cannot contend with what is 11 stronger than he. The more words one uses the greater is the emptiness of it all; and where is the advantage to a man? 12 For who can know what is good for a man in this life, this brief span of empty existence through which he passes like a shadow? Who can tell a man what is to happen next here under the sun?

A GOOD NAME SMELLS SWEETER THAN 7 the finest ointment, and the day of death is better than the day of birth. Better to visit the house of mourning 2 than the house of feasting; for to be mourned is the lot of every man, and the living should take this to heart. Grief is better than laughter: a sad face 3 may go with a cheerful heart. Wise 4 men's thoughts are at home in the house of mourning, but a fool's thoughts in the house of mirth. It is better to listen 5 to a wise man's rebuke than to the praise of fools. For the laughter of a 6 fool is like the crackling of thorns under a pot. This too is emptiness. Slander 7 drives a wise man crazy and breaks a strong man's<sup>w</sup> spirit. Better the end of 8 anything than its beginning; better patience than pride. Do not be quick 9 to show resentment; for resentment is nursed by fools. Do not ask why the 10 old days were better than these; for that is a foolish question. Wisdom is better 11 than possessions and an advantage to all who see the sun. Better have wisdom 12 behind you than money; wisdom profits men by giving life to those who know her.

Consider God's handiwork; who can 13 straighten what he has made crooked? When things go well, be glad; but when 14 things go ill, consider this: God has set the one alongside the other in such a way that no one can find out what is to happen next.<sup>x</sup> In my empty existence I 15 have seen it all, from a righteous man perishing in his righteousness to a wicked man growing old in his wickedness. Do not be over-righteous and do 16 not be over-wise. Why make yourself a laughing-stock? Do not be over-wicked 17 and do not be a fool. Why should you die before your time? It is good to hold 18

t his: prob. rdg.; Heb. om. u Or honour. v Or it.
w strong man's; prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.
x find out . . . next: or hold him responsible.

of Job 1.21. 19: Lot: fate; lot and fate are close in idea. 6.3: Long life and many children were signs of God's favor and hence sources of happiness. A lack of proper burial was considered a curse. 4: On the advantage of the still-born, see Job 3.11.

7.1-12: Seven proverbs on relative value. The task of the wise man was to evaluate various alternatives, in essence, to make distinctions as to better options. 12b: This part of the verse may be a gloss, inasmuch as the author elsewhere (7.23-24) denies that Wisdom can be known or that she profits man.

7.13-29: On premature death. Man should not so behave as to bring about an early death, despite the fact that no woman is trustworthy (and few men!). 14: The practice of divining on to the one thing and not lose hold of the other; for a man who fears God will 19 succeed both ways. Wisdom makes the 20 wise man stronger than the ten rulers of 21 a city. The world contains no man so 22 righteous that he can do right always 23 and never do wrong.<sup>y</sup> Moreover, do 24 not pay attention to everything men 25 say, or you may hear your servant

 26 disparage you; for you know very well 27 how many times you yourself have 28 disparaged others. All this I have put to 29 the test of wisdom. I said, 'I am resolved 30 to be wise', but wisdom was beyond my 31 grasp—whatever has happened lies 32 beyond our grasp, deep down, deeper 33 than man can fathom.

34 I went on to reflect, I set my mind<sup>z</sup> 35 to inquire and search for wisdom and 36 for the reason in things, only to discover 37 that it is folly to be wicked and madness
 38 to act like a fool. The wiles of a woman 39 I find mightier<sup>a</sup> than death; her heart 40 is a trap to catch you and her arms are 41 fetters. The man who is pleasing to God 42 may escape her, but she will catch a 43 sinner. 'See,' says the Speaker, 'this is 44 what I have found, reasoning things 45 out one by one, after searching long 46 without success: I have found one man 47 in a thousand worth the name, but I 48 have not found one woman among 49 them all. This alone I have found, that 50 God, when he made man, made him
 51 straightforward, but man invents end-52 less subtleties of his own.'

53 8 Who is wise enough for all this? Who 54 knows the meaning of anything? Wis-55 dom lights up a man's face, but grim 56 looks make a man hated.<sup>b</sup> Do as the 57 king commands you, and if you have to 58 swear by God, do not be precipitate.
 59 Leave the king's presence and do not 60 persist in a thing which displeases him; 61 he does what he chooses. For the king's 62 word carries authority. Who can 63 question what he does? Whoever obeys 64 a command will come to no harm. A 65 wise man knows in his heart the right

66 time and method for action. There is a 67 time and a method for every enterprise, 68 although man is greatly troubled by 69 ignorance of the future; who can tell 70 him what it will bring? It is not in man's 71 power to restrain the wind,<sup>c</sup> and no one 72 has power over the day of death. In 73 war no one can lay aside his arms, no 74 wealth will save its possessor. All this 75 I have seen, having applied my mind to 76 everything done under the sun. There 77 was a time when one man had power
 78 over another and could make him
 79 suffer. It was then that I saw wicked 80 men approaching and even entering<sup>d</sup> 81 the holy place; and they went about the 82 city priding themselves on having done 83 right. This too is emptiness. It is be-84 cause sentence upon a wicked act is not 85 promptly carried out that men do evil 86 so boldly. A sinner may do wrong<sup>e</sup> and 87 live to old age, yet I know that it will 88 be well with those who fear God: their 89 fear of him ensures this, but it will not 90 be well with a wicked man nor will he 91 live long; the man who does not fear 92 God is a mere shadow. There is an 93 empty thing found on earth: when the 94 just man gets what is due to the unjust, 95 and the unjust what is due to the just.
 96 I maintain that this too is emptiness.

97 So I commend enjoyment, since there is 98 nothing good for a man to do here 99 under the sun but to eat and drink and 100 enjoy himself; this is all that will 101 remain with him to reward his toil
 102 throughout the span of life which God 103 grants him here under the sun. I 104 applied my mind to acquire wisdom 105 and to observe the business which goes 106 on upon earth, when man never closes 107 an eye in sleep day or night; and always 108 I perceived that God has so ordered it 109 that man should not be able to discover 110 <sup>y</sup> can do . . . wrong: or prospers without ever making a 111 mistake.

<sup>z</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds to know and.

<sup>a</sup> Or more bitter.

<sup>b</sup> make . . . hated; prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.

<sup>c</sup> Or to retain the breath of life.

<sup>d</sup> approaching . . . entering; prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.

<sup>e</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds an unintelligible word.

the future is attacked. 26: See Prov.7.10–27, 28: Eccus.25.13–24 advances this misogynistic attitude considerably (see also Zech.5.7–8). 29: This verse affirms the goodness of man at creation.

8.1–9.6: The king and his subjects. Respect for royal authority is prudent, even though injustice prevails. 12–13: These verses seem to be a gloss affirming divine justice. 17: God has sealed off from the wise man the object of his inquiry; hence the sage may be deceived because of the partial knowledge permitted him.

what is happening here under the sun. However hard a man may try, he will not find out; the wise man may think that he knows, but he will be unable to find the truth of it.

9 I applied my mind to all this, and I understood that the righteous and the wise and all their doings are under God's control; but is it love or hatred? No man knows. Everything that confronts him, everything is empty, since one and the same fate befalls every one, just and unjust alike, good and bad, clean and unclean, the man who offers sacrifice and the man who does not. Good man and sinner fare alike, the man who can take an oath and the man who dares not. This is what is wrong in all that is done here under the sun: that one and the same fate befalls every man. The hearts of men are full of evil; madness fills their hearts all through their lives, and after that they go down to join the dead. But for a man who is counted among the living there is still hope: remember, a live dog is better than a dead lion. True, the living know that they will die; but the dead know nothing. There are no more rewards for them; they are utterly forgotten. For them love, hate, ambition,<sup>f</sup> all are now over. Never again will they have any part in what is done here under the sun.

7 Go to it then, eat your food and enjoy it, and drink your wine with a cheerful heart; for already God has accepted what you have done. Always be dressed in white and never fail to anoint your head. Enjoy life with a woman you love all the days of your allotted span here under the sun, empty as they are;<sup>g</sup> for that is your lot while you live and labour here under the sun. Whatever task lies to your hand, do it with all your might; because in Sheol, for which you are bound, there is neither doing nor thinking, neither understanding nor wisdom. One more thing I have observed here under the sun: speed does not win the race nor strength the battle. Bread does not belong to the wise, nor wealth to the intelligent, nor success to the skilful; time and chance govern all. Moreover, no man knows when his hour will come; like fish caught in a net, like a bird taken in a snare, so men are trapped when bad times come suddenly.

This too is an example of wisdom as I have observed it here under the sun, and notable I find it. There was a small town with few inhabitants, and a great king came to attack it; he besieged it and constructed great siege-works against it. There was in it a poor wise man, and he alone might have saved the town by his wisdom, but no one remembered that poor wise man. 'Surely', I said to myself, 'wisdom is better than strength.' But the poor man's wisdom was despised, and his words went unheeded. A wise man who speaks his mind calmly is more to be heeded than a commander shouting orders among fools. Wisdom is better than weapons of war, and one mistake can undo many things done well.

Dead flies make the perfumer's sweet ointment turn rancid and ferment; so can a little folly make wisdom lose its worth. The mind of the wise man faces right, but the mind of the fool faces left. Even when he walks along the road, the fool shows no sense and calls everyone else<sup>h</sup> a fool. If your ruler breaks out in anger against you, do not resign your post; submission makes amends for great mistakes. There is an evil that I have observed here under the sun, an error for which a ruler is responsible: the fool given high office, but<sup>i</sup> the great and the rich in humble posts. I have seen slaves on horseback and men of high rank going on foot like slaves.

<sup>f</sup> Or passion.

<sup>g</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds all your days, empty as they are.

<sup>h</sup> calls everyone else: or tells everyone he is.

<sup>i</sup> but: prob. rdg.; Heb. om.

9.7-12: The wise man's counsel. Enjoy your wife, since time and chance befall everyone. 8: The festive garment and the anointed head are signs of the good life. 10: Sheol: the land of the dead, of shadowy existence, but not, in Hebrew thought, of punishment.

9.13-18: The waste of wisdom. The point of this passage is that a ready means of deliverance, the wisdom of a poor man, was not called on. 18: The sense of and here is equivalent to "but."

10.1-20: Maxims derived from experience. The whole of life is brought under Wisdom's control. 2: Right and left are to be understood here in a moral sense. For a somewhat different use of right and left, see Mt.25.33-46.

- 8 The man who digs a pit may fall into it, and he who pulls down a wall may be 9 bitten by a snake. The man who quarries stones may strain himself, and the woodcutter runs a risk of injury.
 10 When the axe is blunt and has not first<sup>j</sup> been sharpened, then one must use more force; the wise man has a better
 11 chance of success. If a snake bites before it is charmed, the snake-charmer loses his fee.
 12 A wise man's words win him favour, but a fool's tongue is his undoing. He begins by talking nonsense and ends in mischief run mad. The fool talks on and on; but no man knows what is coming, and who can tell him what will come after that? The fool wears himself to death<sup>k</sup> with all his labour, for he does not know the way to town.
 16 Woe betide the land when a slave has become its king, and its princes feast in the morning. Happy the land when its king is nobly born, and its princes feast at the right time of day, with self-control, and not as drunkards. If the owner is negligent the rafters collapse, and if he is idle the house crumbles away. The table has its pleasures, and wine makes a cheerful life; and money is behind it all. Do not speak ill of the king in your ease, or of a rich man in your bedroom; for a bird may carry your voice, and a winged messenger may repeat what you say.
 11 Send your grain across the seas, and in time you will get a return. Divide your merchandise among seven ventures, eight maybe, since you do not know what disasters may occur on earth.<sup>l</sup> If the clouds are heavy with rain, they will discharge it on the earth; whether a tree falls south or north, it must lie as it falls. He who watches the wind will never sow, and he who keeps an eye on the clouds will never reap.
 5 You do not know how a pregnant woman comes to have a body and a living spirit in her womb; nor do you know how God, the maker of all things, works. In the morning sow your seed betimes, and do not stop work until evening, for you do not know whether this or that sowing will be successful, or whether both alike will do well.

Advice to a young man

THE LIGHT OF DAY IS SWEET, AND 7 pleasant to the eye is the sight of the sun; if a man lives for many years, he 8 should rejoice in all of them. But let him remember that the days of darkness will be many. Everything that is to come will be emptiness. Delight in your 9 boyhood, young man, make the most of the days of your youth; let your heart and your eyes show you the way; but remember that for all these things God will call you to account. Banish discontent from your mind, and shake off the troubles of the body; boyhood and the prime of life are mere emptiness.

Remember your Creator in the days 12 of your youth, before the time of trouble comes and the years draw near when you will say, 'I see no purpose in them.'<sup>m</sup> Remember him before the sun 2 and the light of day give place to darkness, before the moon and the stars grow dim, and the clouds return with the rain—when the guardians of the 3 house tremble, and the strong men stoop, when the women grinding the meal cease work because they are few, and those who look through the windows look no longer, when the street- 4 doors are shut, when the noise of the mill is low, when the chirping of the sparrow grows faint<sup>n</sup> and the songbirds fall silent;<sup>o</sup> when men are afraid 5

<sup>j</sup> first: prob. rdg.; Heb. face.

<sup>k</sup> fool . . . death: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.

<sup>l</sup> Or on land.

<sup>m</sup> Or I have no pleasure in them.

<sup>n</sup> grows faint: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.

<sup>o</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. sink low.

11.1-10: Admonitions. One cannot foresee the result of a course of action, but he must be willing to take the risk of failure. Youth is to be especially prized. 8: Darkness: Sheol; see 9.10 n.

12.1-8: An allegory on old age. By means of a rich store of metaphors, not all of them fully clear, the author characterizes the twilight years. 1: The unusual Heb. word translated Creator can have a double meaning, one, "cistern," referring to one's wife (as in Prov.5.15,18-19), the other "grave," thus hinting at the positive and negative themes of the book. 2: Clouds may refer to poor eyesight. 3: The guardians . . . are the arms; the strong men are the knees; the women grinding are the teeth; and the windows are the eyes. 4: The doors are the ears, the chirping . . . is sleeplessness, the songbirds are the voice. 5: Almond . . . : gray hair; locust, creaking of bones.

of a steep place and the street is full of terrors, when the blossom whitens on the almond-tree and the locust's paunch is swollen and caper-buds have no more zest. For man goes to his everlasting home, and the mourners go about the 6 streets. Remember him before the silver cord is snapped<sup>p</sup> and the golden bowl is broken, before the pitcher is shattered at the spring and the wheel broken at 7 the well, before the dust returns to the earth as it began and the spirit<sup>q</sup> returns to God who gave it. Emptiness, empti-8 ness, says the Speaker, all is empty.
 9 So the Speaker, in his wisdom, continued to teach the people what he knew. He turned over many maxims in 10 his mind and sought how best to set them out. He chose his words to give pleasure, but what he wrote was the honest truth. The sayings of the wise 11 are sharp as goads, like nails driven home; they lead the assembled people, for they come from one shepherd. One 12 further warning, my son: the use of books is endless, and much study is wearisome.
 This is the end of the matter: you 13 have heard it all. Fear God and obey his commands; there is no more to man than this. For God brings every- 14 thing we do to judgement, and every secret, whether good or bad.

p is snapped: prob. rdg.; Heb. unintelligible.

q Or breath.

---

6: Cord and bowl: life, and when broken, death. 7: Spirit: breath; see Tfn. q; Gen.3.19. 8: See 1.2.

12.9-14: Postscript. One addition (vv. 9-12) praises the author for his integrity, and even suggests that the wisdom set forth is sufficient; hence the use of books is endless. Earlier translations read, "of making many books there is no end." 13-14: A second addition reflects a usual piety, and is in tension with the rest of the book.

THE SONG OF SONGS

Unique in the Bible, this collection of songs sensitively touches several major chords in the love life of a young man and a maiden. It is an anthology which plays on a wide range of themes: love's awakening, the description of the beloved, the enticement, the surrender of the embrace, the pain of separation, the joy of coming together again, the wedding ceremony. The book was early regarded as fully allegorical, a view not surprising because of the presence of some obvious symbolism, as is noted.

In its own way, the book extols the virtues of deep rather than transient love. There is no discernible overall flow of action or plot, although the positioning of the various songs creates a definite dramatic effect.

The traditional ascription of authorship to King Solomon (1.1) may have come about because of the several appearances of his name in the text. Scholars have dated the songs as early as the tenth century B.C. and as late as the Greek period, the fourth century B.C., with a postexilic date at least for the final redaction the usual view. There are no historical allusions; the geographical ones are mainly from the Northern Kingdom (see 1.14 n.); the images are decidedly rural. The book is often referred to as Canticles.

Bride<sup>a</sup>

- 1 I will sing the song of all songs to Solomon
2 that he may<sup>b</sup> smother me with kisses.

- Your love is more fragrant than wine, 3 fragrant is<sup>c</sup> the scent of your perfume, and your name like perfume poured out;<sup>d</sup>
for this the maidens love you.
4 Take me with you, and we will run
together;
bring me into your chamber, O king.

Companions

Let us rejoice and be glad for you; Let us praise your love more than
wine,
and your caresses more than any song.

Bride

- 5 I am dark but lovely, daughters of Jerusalem,
like the tents of Kedar
or the tent-curtains of Shalmah.
6 Do not look down on me; a little dark I may be because I am scorched by the sun.

My mother's sons were displeased
with me,
they sent me to watch over the
vineyards;
so I did not watch over my own
vineyard.

- Tell me, my true love, 7
where you mind your flocks, where you rest them at midday, that I may not be left picking lice as I sit among your companions' herds.

Bridegroom

If you yourself do not know, 8
O fairest of women,
go, follow the tracks of the sheep and mind your kids by the shepherds' huts.

I would compare you, my dearest, 9 to Pharaoh's chariot-horses.
Your cheeks are lovely between 10 plaited tresses,
your neck with its jewelled chains.

a The Hebrew text implies, by its pronouns, different speakers, but does not indicate them; they are given, however, in two MSS. of Sept.

b I will . . . that he may: or The song of all songs which was Solomon's; may he . . .

c Or more fragrant than.

d poured out: prob. rdg.; Heb. word uncertain.

1.1-11: Opening songs of man and woman, telling of their love. Bride (Tfn. a): the maiden appears more like a young lover than a bride, but the songs would be appropriate for a wedding, recalling early love and courtship. 1: Song of all songs: Heb. idiom for the best of songs. 4: The girl is often portrayed as taking the initiative. King: bridegroom; see 3.11 n. 5: Dark but lovely: she is more sunburned than city girls, but no less pretty. Daughters of Jerusalem: used in 2.7 and passim. This is an answer to the chorus-companions of v. 4 where the chorus is female, perhaps consisting of wedding guests (see 5.1 n.); in 8.8-9 the chorus is male. Kedar: in northern Arabia. Shalmah: a frequent correction of the text, which reads Solomon; possibly it was near Kedar. 7: That . . . lice: the Heb. text here is obscure.

Companions

- 11 We will make you braided plaits of
gold
set with beads of silver.

Bride

- 12 While the king reclines on his couch,
my spikenard gives forth its scent.
13 My beloved is for me a bunch of myrrh
as he lies on my breast, 14 my beloved is for me a cluster of henna-blossom
from the vineyards of En-gedi.

Bridegroom

- 15 How beautiful you are, my dearest,
O how beautiful,
your eyes are like doves!

Bride

- 16 How beautiful you are, O my love, and how pleasant!

Bridegroom

- 17 Our couch is shaded with branches;
the beams of our house are of cedar,
our ceilings are all of fir.

Bride

- 2 I am an asphodel in Sharon,
a lily growing in the valley.

Bridegroom

- 2 No, a lily among thorns is my dearest among girls.

Bride

- 3 Like an apricot-tree among the trees of the wood,
so is my beloved among boys.
To sit in its shadow was my
delight,
and its fruit was sweet to my taste.
4 He took me into the wine-garden and gave me loving glances.
5 He refreshed me with raisins, he revived me with apricots;
for I was faint with love.

- His left arm was under my head, his 6 right arm was round me.

Bridegroom

- I charge you, daughters of Jerusalem, 7
by the spirits and the goddesses<sup>e</sup> of
the field:
Do not rouse her, do not disturb my
love
until she is ready.<sup>f</sup>

Bride

- Hark! My beloved! Here he comes, 8 bounding over the mountains, leaping over the hills.
My beloved is like a gazelle 9 or a young wild goat:
there he stands outside our wall, peeping in at the windows, glancing through the lattice.

- My beloved answered, he said to me: 10
Rise up, my darling;
my fairest, come away.
For now the winter is past, 11
the rains are over and gone;
the flowers appear in the country- 12
side;
the time is coming when the birds
will sing,
and the turtle-dove's cooing will be heard in our land;
when the green figs will ripen on the 13
fig-trees
and the vines<sup>g</sup> give forth their fragrance.
Rise up, my darling;
my fairest, come away.

Bridegroom

- My dove, that hides in holes in the 14 cliffs
or in crannies on the high ledges, let me see your face, let me hear your voice;
for your voice is pleasant, your face is lovely.

<sup>e</sup> by . . . goddesses: or by the gazelles and the hinds.
<sup>f</sup> until . . . ready: or while she is resting.
<sup>g</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds blossom.

1.12-2.7: The lovers together. 14: En-gedi: on the western edge of the Dead Sea, the only southern Israelite reference, except for Jerusalem, in the book. 2.1: Asphodel: a flower; perhaps a daffodil. Sharon: the coastal plain in north central Israel. 7: A refrain (see 3.5; 8.4), perhaps marking the end of a section. Goddesses: see Tfn. e.

2.8-17: The season for love. 11: It is spring, which is the time for love the world over.

Companions

- 15 Catch for us the jackals, the little jackals,<sup>h</sup> that spoil our vineyards, when the vines are in flower.

Bride

- 16 My beloved is mine and I am his;
he delights in the lilies.
- 17 While the day is cool and the shadows are dispersing,
turn, my beloved, and show yourself a gazelle or a young wild goat on the hills where cinnamon grows.<sup>i</sup>
- 3 Night after night on my bed
I have sought my true love;
I have sought him but not found
him,
I have called him but he has not answered.
- 2 I said, 'I will rise and go the rounds of
the city,
through the streets and the squares, seeking my true love.'
I sought him but I did not find him,
I called him but he did not answer.
- 3 The watchmen, going the rounds of
the city, met me,
and I asked, 'Have you seen my true
love?'
- 4 Scarcely had I left them behind me when I met my true love.
I seized him and would not let him go until I had brought him to my mother's house,
to the room of her who conceived
me.

Bridegroom

- 5 I charge you, daughters of Jerusalem,
by the spirits and the goddesses<sup>j</sup> of
the field:

Do not rouse her, do not disturb my
love
until she is ready.<sup>k</sup>

Companions

- What is this coming up from the 6
wilderness
like a column of smoke from burning myrrh or frankincense,
from all the powdered spices that merchants bring?
Look; it is Solomon carried in 7
his litter;
sixty of Israel's chosen warriors are his escort,
all of them skilled swordsmen, 8
all trained to handle arms, each with his sword ready at his side to ward off the demon of the night.
- The palanquin which King Solomon 9 had made for himself was of wood from Lebanon.
Its poles he had made of silver, 10 its head-rest of gold;
its seat was of purple stuff,
and its lining was of leather.
- Come out, daughters of Jerusalem; 11 you daughters of Zion, come out and welcome King Solomon, wearing the crown with which his mother has crowned him, on his wedding day, on his day of joy.

Bridegroom

- How beautiful you are, my dearest, 4
how beautiful!
Your eyes behind your veil are like doves,

<sup>h</sup> Or fruit-bats.

<sup>i</sup> on . . . grows: or on the rugged hills or on the hills of Bethel.

<sup>j</sup> by . . . goddesses: or by the gazelles and the hinds.

<sup>k</sup> until . . . ready: or while she is resting.

15: The import of the verse is unclear; it is directed against someone or something interfering with the lovers. The image of the vineyards is used for the maiden's physical charms; see 7.12, and, in 6.2, gardens.

3.1-5: Separation and reunion. Here the maiden finds her beloved; in a similar passage, 5.2-8, she does not. 4: I seized him: see 1.4 n. Mother's . . . room: to bind symbolically her love making to that of her parents; see 8.2,5. 5: See 2.7 n.

3.6-11: Solomon's wedding procession. The legendary style of Solomon was perhaps the model for every groom to aspire to, the way he would want a poet to picture his wedding. For another description of a royal wedding, see Ps.45. 6: What is this: the rhetorical question is used often as a stylistic device; see 5.9; 6.10. 11: Perhaps the crown the groom wears as "king" on his wedding day in the Near East today still accounts for the allusions to the king and Solomon in the book; the maiden is nowhere referred to as queen.

4.1-12: The lover's description of the maiden. See also 6.4-10; 7.1-9 for similar endearments.

- your hair like a flock of goats streaming down Mount Gilead.
- 2 Your teeth are like a flock of ewes
just shorn
which have come up fresh from the dipping;
each ewe has twins and none has cast
a lamb.
- 3 Your lips are like a scarlet thread, and your words are delightful;<sup>l</sup> your parted lips behind your veil
are like a pomegranate cut open.
- 4 Your neck is like David's tower, which is built with winding courses;
a thousand bucklers hang upon it,
and all are warriors' shields.
- 5 Your two breasts are like two fawns,
twin fawns of a gazelle.<sup>m</sup>
- 6 While the day is cool and the shadows are dispersing,
I will go to the mountains of myrrh and to the hills of frankincense.
- 7 You are beautiful, my dearest, beautiful without a flaw.
- 8 Come from Lebanon, my bride;
come with me from Lebanon.
Hurry down from the top of Amana,
from Senir's top and Hermon's, from the lions' lairs, and the hills
the leopards haunt.
- 9 You have stolen my heart,<sup>n</sup> my sister,
you have stolen it,<sup>o</sup> my bride, with one of your eyes, with one jewel of your necklace.
- 10 How beautiful are your breasts, my sister, my bride!
Your love is more fragrant than
wine,
and your perfumes sweeter than any spices.
- 11 Your lips drop sweetness like the honeycomb, my bride, syrup and milk are under your
tongue,
- and your dress has the scent of Lebanon.
- Your two cheeks<sup>p</sup> are an orchard 13<sup>q</sup> of pomegranates,
an orchard full of rare fruits:<sup>r</sup> spikenard and saffron, sweet-cane 14 and cinnamon
with every incense-bearing tree, myrrh and aloe
with all the choicest spices.
My sister, my bride, is a garden 12 close-locked,
a garden close-locked, a fountain sealed.
- Bride*
The fountain in my garden<sup>s</sup> is a 15 spring of running water pouring down from Lebanon.
Awake, north wind, and come, south 16
wind;
blow upon my garden that its perfumes may pour forth, that my beloved may come to his garden
and enjoy its rare fruits.
- Bridegroom*
I have come to my garden, my sister 5
and bride,
and have plucked my myrrh with my spices;
I have eaten my honey and my syrup,
I have drunk my wine and my milk.
Eat, friends, and drink,
until you are drunk with love.
- Bride*
I sleep but my heart is awake. 2
Listen! My beloved is knocking:
'Open to me, my sister, my dearest,
my dove, my perfect one;

<sup>l</sup> Or and your mouth is lovely.

<sup>m</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds which delight in the lilies.

<sup>n</sup> stolen my heart; or put heart into me.

<sup>o</sup> stolen it; or put heart into me.

<sup>p</sup> Your two cheeks; prob. rdg.; Heb. Your shoots.

<sup>q</sup> Verse 12 transposed to follow verse 14.

<sup>r</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds henna with spikenard.

<sup>s</sup> my garden; prob. rdg.; Heb. gardens.

6: Mountains . . . hills: breasts. 8: Many commentators hold that this is an old poem from Lebanon, and hence the mention of Lebanese mountaintops. 9: My sister: a term of endearment as in ancient Egypt, and used in 4.9-5.2; compare Prov.7.4. Bride: See 1.1-11 n. 12: Garden close-locked: her charms are closed to all but her beloved.

4.15-5.1: Sensitive metaphors. The maiden invites her young man to make love and he responds. 5.1: Friends: the wedding guests; compare 8.13 n.

5.2-8: The maiden's dream song. A short dramatic dream sequence. It is kindred to 3.1-5, both passages dealing with the pain of separation and the search for the lover, here fruitless.

- for my head is drenched with dew, my locks with the moisture of the night.<sup>7</sup>
- 3 'I have stripped off my dress; must I put it on again?
I have washed my feet; must I soil them again?'
- 4 When my beloved slipped his hand through the latch-hole, my bowels stirred within me.
- 5 When I arose to open for my beloved,
my hands dripped with myrrh;
the liquid myrrh from my fingers ran over the knobs of the bolt.
- 6 With my own hands I opened to my
love,
but my love had turned away and
gone by;
my heart sank when he turned his
back.
I sought him but I did not find him,
I called him but he did not answer.
- 7 The watchmen, going the rounds of
the city, met me;
they struck me and wounded me;
the watchman on the walls took away my cloak.
- 8 I charge you, daughters of Jerusalem,
if you find my beloved, will you not tell him<sup>f</sup>
that I am faint with love?
- Companions*
- 9 What is your beloved more than any other,
O fairest of women?
What is your beloved more than any
other,
that you give us this charge?
- Bride*
- 10 My beloved is fair and ruddy, a paragon among ten thousand.
- 11 His head is gold, finest gold;
his locks are like palm-fronds.<sup>u</sup>
- 12 His eyes are like doves beside brooks of water,
splashed by the milky water
as they sit where it is drawn.
- His cheeks are like beds of spices or 13 chests full of perfumes;
his lips are lilies, and 'drop liquid
myrrh;
his hands are golden rods set in 14
topaz;
his belly a plaque of ivory overlaid with lapis lazuli.
His legs are pillars of marble in 15 sockets of finest gold;
his aspect is like Lebanon, noble as cedars.
His whispers are<sup>v</sup> sweetness itself, 16 wholly desirable.
Such is my beloved, such is my darling,
daughters of Jerusalem.
- Companions*
- Where has your beloved gone, 6
O fairest of women?
Which way did your beloved go,
that we may help you to seek him?
- Bride*
- My beloved has gone down to his 2
garden,
to the beds where balsam grows, to delight in the garden<sup>w</sup> and to pick the lilies.
- I am my beloved's, and my beloved 3
is mine,
he who delights in the lilies.
- Bridegroom*
- You are beautiful, my dearest, as 4 Tirzah,
lovely as Jerusalem.<sup>x</sup> Turn your eyes away from me; 5 they dazzle me.
Your hair is like a flock of goats
streaming down Mount Gilead;
your teeth are like a flock of ewes 6
come up fresh from the dipping, each ewe has twins and none has cast
a lamb.
Your parted lips behind your veil 7
are like a pomegranate cut open.
- <sup>f</sup> will you . . . him: or what will you tell him?
<sup>u</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds black as the raven.
<sup>v</sup> Or His nature is.
<sup>w</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. gardens.
<sup>x</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds majestic as the starry heavens (see verse 10).

7: Perhaps they mistook her for a woman of the streets; contrast 3.3. 8: See 2.7; 3.5; 2.5.
5.9-7.9: Descriptions of the beloved. 10-16: The maiden describes the man, as he has described her in 4.1-7. 6.1: The same theme as in 3.3 and 5.6. 4-10: A description of the maiden; see 4.1-12 n. 4: Tirzah: the early residence of the northern kings (1 Kgs.15.33). The maiden is

- 8 There may be sixty princesses, eighty concubines, and young women past counting,
9 but there is one alone, my dove, my perfect one,
her mother's only child,
devoted to the mother who bore her;
young girls see her and call her happy, princesses and concubines praise her.
- 10 Who is this that looks out like the dawn,
beautiful as the moon, bright as the sun,
majestic as the starry heavens?
- 11 I went down to a garden of nut-trees to look at the rushes by the stream, to see if the vine had budded or the pomegranates were in flower.
- 12 I did not know myself;
she made me feel more than a prince reigning over the myriads<sup>y</sup> of his people.
- Companions*
Come back, come back, Shulammitic
maiden,
13 come back, that we may gaze upon you.
- Bridegroom*
How you love to gaze on the Shulammitic maiden,
as she moves between the lines of dancers!
- 7 How beautiful are your sandalled feet,
O prince's daughter!
The curves of your thighs are like jewels,
the work of a skilled craftsman.
- 2 Your navel is a rounded goblet that never shall want for spiced
wine.
Your belly is a heap of wheat fenced in by lilies.
- Your two breasts are like two fawns, 3
twin fawns of a gazelle.
Your neck is like a tower of ivory. 4
Your eyes are the pools in Heshbon, beside the gate of the crowded city.<sup>z</sup>
Your nose is like towering Lebanon that looks towards Damascus.
You carry your head like Carmel; 5 the flowing hair on your head is lustrous black,
your tresses are braided with ribbons.
How beautiful, how entrancing 6
you are,
my loved one, daughter of delights!
You are stately as a palm-tree, 7 and your breasts are the clusters of dates.
I said, 'I will climb up into the palm 8 to grasp its fronds.'
May I find your breasts like clusters of grapes on the vine,
the scent of your breath like apricots,
and your whispers like spiced wine 9 flowing smoothly to welcome my caresses,
gliding down through lips and teeth.
- Bride*
I am my beloved's, his longing is all 10
for me.
Come, my beloved, let us go out into 11
the fields
to lie among the henna-bushes;
let us go early to the vineyards 12 and see if the vine has budded or its blossom opened,
if the pomegranates are in flower.
There will I give you my love, when the mandrakes give their 13 perfume,
and all rare fruits are ready at our
door,

<sup>y</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. chariots.
<sup>z</sup> Or the gate of Beth-rabbim.

compared to two capital cities. 8-9: She excels all the women of a king's harem. Perhaps 1 Kgs.11.3, Solomon's harem, is here echoed. 10: The praise spoken by the harem women. 11-12: Perhaps a fragment of a longer poem. V. 12 is obscure. 6.13-7.9: Another praise of the beauty of the maiden. 13: Shulammitic: the name occurs only here in the book. It seems related to the Heb. for Solomon. The meaning, often guessed at, is uncertain. The dancers are the wedding dancers. 7.4: Heshbon: a city in Moab east of the Jordan. 5: Carmel: a famous mountain on the coast, in the north.

7.10-8.4: Love's fulfillment. 10-13: The flowers are probably all symbols of awakening passion. 12: See 2.15 n. 13: Mandrakes: an aphrodisiac; they were also an assurance of fertility (see Gen.30.14-17). 8.2: Room of [my] mother: see 3.4 n. 4: See 2.7 n.

fruits new and old which I have in store for you, my
love.

- 8 If only you were my own true brother
that sucked my mother's breasts!
Then, if I found you outside, I would kiss you,
and no man would despise me.
- 2 I would lead you to the room of the mother who bore me, bring you to her house for you to embrace me;<sup>a</sup> I would give you mulled wine to drink
and the fresh juice of pomegranates, 3 your<sup>b</sup> left arm under my head and your<sup>b</sup> right arm round me.

Bridegroom

- 4 I charge you, daughters of Jerusalem:
Do not rouse her, do not disturb my
love
until she is ready.<sup>c</sup>

Companions

- 5 Who is this coming up from the wilderness
leaning on her beloved?

Bridegroom

- Under the apricot-trees I roused
you,
there where your mother was in labour with you,
there where she who bore you was
in labour.
- 6 Wear me as a seal upon your heart,
as a seal upon your arm;
for love is strong as death, passion cruel as the grave;
it blazes up like blazing fire, fiercer than any flame.
- 7 Many waters cannot quench love,
no flood can sweep it away;
if a man were to offer for love

the whole wealth of his house, it would be utterly scorned.

Companions

- We have a little sister 8
who has no breasts;
what shall we do for our sister when she is asked in marriage?
If she is a wall, 9
we will build on it a silver parapet, but<sup>d</sup> if she is a door,
we will close it up with planks of cedar.

Bride

- I am a wall and my breasts are like 10
towers;
so in his eyes I am as one who brings contentment.
Solomon has a vineyard at Baal- 11
hamon;
he has let out his vineyard to guardians,
and each is to bring for its fruit
a thousand pieces of silver.
But my vineyard is mine to give; 12
the thousand pieces are yours, O Solomon,
and the guardians of the fruit shall have two hundred.

Bridegroom

- My bride, you who sit in my 13
garden,
what is it that my friends<sup>e</sup> are listening to?
Let me also hear your voice.

Bride

- Come into the open, my beloved, 14 and show yourself like a gazelle or a young wild goat
on the spice-bearing mountains.

a for you to embrace me: or to teach me how to love you.

b Prob. rdg.; Heb. his.

c until . . . ready: or while she is resting.

d Or and.

e my garden . . . friends: prob. rdg.; Heb. the gardens, friends.

8.5a: A suggestion of a procession, perhaps the bridal march, using the same words as 3.6.
8.5b-7: Authentic love. These verses could well be considered the theme of the whole book.
8.8-12: The little sister. To her brothers who seek to protect her, the maiden responds with a statement of her chastity. 11: Solomon: see 3.11 n. Baal-hamon: an unknown place. 12: Vineyard: see 2.15 n. Mine to give: lit. my own before me. The verse perhaps means that the king sells the fruit of his vineyard for whatever he pleases, even great amounts, but her richer love is her own to give to whomever she pleases; see 8.7b. Two hundred: possibly the dowry.
8.13-14: The lovers together. Perhaps a joyous wedding game is reflected. 13: My bride: the words are not in the Heb. text, but have been added for clarity. Friends: see 5.1 n. The Heb. word here is a synonym of that in 5.1. 14: See 2.9; 4.6 n.

THE BOOK OF THE PROPHET ISAIAH

There are three major collections of literature in the book of Isaiah reflecting different periods of Israel's history. Most of the material in chapters 1–39 is related to Isaiah of Jerusalem, the advisor of kings, a poet of genius, and an eloquent religious spokesman whose career coincided with a series of four kings of Judah: Uzziah, 783–742 B.C. (1.1; 6.1), Jotham, 742–735 B.C. (1.1); Ahaz, 735–715 B.C. (1.1; 7.1–12), and Hezekiah, 715–687 B.C. (1.1; 38.1–6).

The advance of the Assyrian Empire toward Egypt disturbed the balance of power in the Near East, causing political intrigue and rebellions that swallowed up the Northern Kingdom of Israel (721 B.C.) and threatened to engulf Judah (see ch. 7). Isaiah spoke out against political involvements which compromised the covenant with the LORD, and against the oppression of the poor by the rich and the mighty. In language that is both powerful and of poetic beauty, he pleaded for a renewed faith in God.

Collections of Isaiah's prophecies seem to have existed separately. When these were gathered into one book, the words of the collector-editors and of later writers (perhaps disciples; see 8.16) seem to have been added. Many units in these chapters, therefore, are easily recognized as not those of Isaiah, but written in a different style and reflecting a later historical situation.

Chapters 40–55 are from an unknown prophet, now called Second Isaiah, active in Babylon toward the end of the Exile (587–539 B.C.), whose words were joined to those of Isaiah. This conclusion is based on the difference in historical situation, namely exiles receiving the promises of a return to their homeland, and not the inhabitants of Palestine threatened with imminent invasion. The glowing promises of this section have led to its often being called the "Book of the Consolation of Israel." One discerns in moving from the first (chs. 1–39) into this section, a change in religious ideas, especially now a clear affirmation, in theological language, of monotheism and a religious universalism. Moreover, a different vocabulary is used, and the style has become more rhetorical and complex.

The final chapters of the book (56–66) reflect for the most part the life and thought of the post-exilic community struggling against discouragement to reestablish its life in the promised land. The varying styles, religious ideas, and historical situations reflect diverse authors writing over a longer period of time. This section is often called "Trito-Isaiah" or "Third Isaiah."

Judah arraigned

- |   |   |  |
|---|---|--|
| 1 | THE VISION RECEIVED BY ISAIAH SON of Amoz concerning Judah and Jerusalem during the reigns of Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, kings of Judah. | and the ass its master's stall;but Israel, my own people,has no knowledge, no discernment.  |
| 2 | Hark you heavens, and earth give ear,for the LORD has spoken:I have sons whom I reared and brought up,but they have rebelled against me.  | O sinful nation, people loaded with iniquity,race of evildoers, wanton destructive childrenwho have deserted the LORD,spurned the Holy One of Israeland turned your backs on him. |
| 3 | The ox knows its owner   | Where can you still be struck if you will be disloyal still?Your head is covered with sores,your body diseased;   |

1.1–5.30: Judah arraigned. Isaiah's charge is that Israel has rejected her sovereign LORD and loving father.

1.1: Superscription. The prophetic message frequently is designated as a vision (see 6.1–13; Ezek.1.1–3; Amos 1.1) to indicate that it was a revelation from God. On the kings of Judah, see Introduction. Uzziah: compare 6.1.

1.2–31: A collection of speeches. Diverse speeches from different periods in Isaiah's life. They are a compendium of the prophet's thought. 2–3: The prophetic message often takes the form of a lawsuit in which God is both plaintiff and judge with the heavens and earth as witnesses. The indictment is lack of knowledge, i.e. insensitivity to God's benefits. 4–9: A woe (v. 4) indictment is elaborated into a warning to the people of Judah and Jerusalem. First comes the people's sinfulness, then the results of their rebellion, and finally, they are reminded that the LORD has stopped short of total destruction. 4: O: lit. "woe" (see 5.8–23 n.). 5: See 9.13.

- 6 from head to foot there is not a sound spot in you—nothing but bruises and weals and raw wounds
which have not felt compress or bandage
or soothing oil.
- 7 Your country is desolate, your cities lie in ashes.
Strangers devour your land before your eyes;
it is desolate as Sodom<sup>a</sup> in its overthrow.
- 8 Only Zion is left,
like a watchman's shelter in a
vineyard,
a shed in a field of cucumbers,
a city well guarded.
- 9 If the LORD of Hosts had not left us a remnant,
we should soon have been like Sodom,
no better than Gomorrah.
- 10 Hear the word of the LORD, you rulers of Sodom;
attend, you people of Gomorrah, to the instruction of our God:
- 11 Your countless sacrifices, what are they to me?
says the LORD.
I am sated with whole-offerings of rams
and the fat of buffaloes;
I have no desire for the blood of bulls,
of sheep and of he-goats.
- 12-13 Whenever you come to enter my presence—
who asked you for this?
No more shall you trample my courts.
- The offer of your gifts is useless, the reek of sacrifice is abhorrent to
me.
New moons and sabbaths and assemblies,
sacred seasons and ceremonies, I cannot endure.
- I cannot tolerate your new moons 14
and your festivals;
they have become a burden to me, and I can put up with them no longer.
- When you lift your hands outspread 15
in prayer,
I will hide my eyes from you.
Though you offer countless prayers,
I will not listen.
There is blood on your hands;
wash yourselves and be clean. 16 Put away the evil of your deeds, away out of my sight.
Cease to do evil and learn to do right, 17 pursue justice and champion the
oppressed;
give the orphan his rights, plead the widow's cause.
- Come now, let us argue it out, 18
says the LORD.
Though your sins are scarlet,
they may become white as snow;
though they are dyed crimson,
they may yet be like wool.
Obey with a will, 19 and you shall eat the best that earth yields;
but, if you refuse and rebel, 20 locust-beans shall be your only food.<sup>b</sup>
- The LORD himself has spoken.

<sup>a</sup> Sodom: prob. rdg.: Heb. strangers.

<sup>b</sup> locust-beans . . . food: or, with Scroll, you shall be eaten by the sword.

7-8: This description of the destruction refers either to the invasion of Tiglath-pileser III in 734-732 B.C. (see 7.1-9 n.) or Sennacherib in 701 B.C. (see 36.1). 8: In Palestine stones gathered in a vineyard are made into a small tower from which the watchman protects the fruit by warding off thieves and destructive animals. This shelter is useless when the vines are destroyed; just so is Zion, Jerusalem, in a land which will be devastated. The description here of Jerusalem's isolation is similar to Sennacherib's report of his siege of the city. 9: Judah is compared to Sodom and Gomorrah both in their depravity (Gen.18.20-33) and in their total destruction (Gen.19.24-29), except that God leaves Judah a remnant. 10-17: Instructions on the relationship between ritual and social justice (see Amos 5.21-27). 10: Instruction: that is, "Torah," or "Law." 11-15: The LORD rejects the rituals of the cult. 11: The fat and the blood of animals were not to be eaten but used only for sacrifices, the former because it was considered a choice morsel, the latter because it was the vehicle of life; see Lev. 3.12-16. 12: My presence: the Temple. 13: New moons occurred on the first day of each month; these days, like the sabbaths, were days of rest; see Num.28.11-15. 15: Hide my eyes: refuse to look at. Outspread hands do not draw God's benevolent gaze because there is blood on them. 16-17: Instructions concerning the LORD's expectations. 18-20: If Israel repents she will be saved; if she continues to rebel, she

21	How the faithful city has played the whore, once the home of justice where righteousness dwelt— but now murderers!	and righteousness her repentant people. Rebels and sinners shall be broken together and those who forsake the LORD shall cease to be.	28
22	Your silver has turned into base metal and your liquor is diluted with water.	For the sacred oaks in which you delighted shall fail you, the garden-shrines of your fancy shall disappoint you.	29
23	Your very rulers are rebels, confederate with thieves; every man of them loves a bribe and itches for a gift; they do not give the orphan his rights, and the widow's cause never comes before them.	You shall be like a terebinth whose leaves have withered, like a garden without water; the strongest tree <sup>c</sup> shall become like tow, and what is made of it <sup>d</sup> shall go up in sparks, and the two shall burst into flames together with no one to quench them.	30 31
24	This therefore is the word of the Lord, the LORD of Hosts, the Mighty One of Israel:

Enough! I will secure a respite from my foes and take vengeance on my enemies.

This is the word which Isaiah son of 2 Amoz received in a vision concerning Judah and Jerusalem.

25 Once again I will act against you to refine away your base metal as with potash and purge all your impurities; 26 I will again make your judges what once they were and your counsellors like those of old.
Then at length you shall be called the home of righteousness, the faithful city.

In days to come <sup>2e</sup> the mountain of the LORD's house shall be set over all other mountains, lifted high above the hills.
All the nations shall come streaming to it,
and many peoples shall come and say,
3 'Come, let us climb up on to the mountain of the LORD,

27 Justice shall redeem Zion

<sup>c</sup> Or the strong man.
<sup>d</sup> Or what he makes.
<sup>e</sup> Verses 2-4: cp. Mic. 4. 1-3.

will be punished. 21-28: The corruption of Jerusalem (vv. 21-23) and judgment which will purge and purify the city (vv. 24-28). 21-23: These verses are written in a meter used for lamentations and dirges, thus expressing grief over the decay of Judah's religious life as in the metaphor, silver to base metal. 21: The faithful city: Jerusalem; see also v. 26. 25-27: These verses contain the heart of the message of First Isaiah (see Introduction): after a period of purification Judah will be restored. The last word is hope not doom. Justice, the quality by which a king rescues the oppressed, and righteousness, the state of right order and harmony in relationships, will be given by God. 27: Zion was originally the mount where the Temple was built; it became another name for Jerusalem. 29-31: The sacred oaks (lit. "oaks"), the garden-shrines (lit. "gardens"), and the terebinth are the sacred places and symbols of fertility religion. This is one of the few passages in Isa. chs. 1-39 where judgment is announced on Israel because of pagan practices.

2.1: A second superscription. This verse probably served as the original title to a collection of Isaiah's speeches, perhaps Isa. chs. 2-5. Both the individual utterances of the prophets and the collections of their speeches are characterized as the word. Vision: see 1.1 n.

2.2-5: An announcement of eternal peace. The new age will begin when Mount Zion is elevated above all other mountains, i.e. recognized as the most holy place. The same vision of peace is found in Mic.4.1-4; it is strikingly reversed in Joel 3.9-12. 2: The mountain is Zion; the LORD's house is the Temple in Jerusalem. On the importance and holiness of Zion, see Pss.48.1-2; 78.69; 87.1-7. 3: As they approach Zion the peoples will be singing a pilgrim song (see Ps.122). Zion is the source of both instruction (or "Torah," or "Law"), ordinarily understood as the

	to the house of the God of Jacob, that he may teach us his ways and we may walk in his paths. For instruction issues from Zion, and out of Jerusalem comes the word of the LORD;	Man's proud eyes shall be humbled, the loftiness of men brought low, and the LORD alone shall be exalted on that day.	11
4	he will be judge between nations, arbiter among many peoples. They shall beat their swords into mattocks and their spears into pruning- knives; <sup>f</sup> nation shall not lift sword against nation nor ever again be trained for war.	For the LORD of Hosts has a day of doom waiting for all that is proud and lofty, for all that is high and lifted up, for all the cedars of Lebanon, lofty and high, and for all the oaks of Bashan, for all lofty mountains and for all high hills, for every high tower and for every sheer wall, for all ships of Tarshish and all the dhows of Arabia.	12 13 14 15
5	O people of Jacob, come, let us walk in the light of the LORD.	Then man's pride shall be brought low, and the loftiness of man shall be humbled, and the LORD alone shall be exalted on that day, while the idols shall pass away utterly.	16 17 18
6	Thou hast abandoned thy people the house of Jacob; for they are crowded with traders <sup>g</sup> and barbarians like the Philistines, and with the children of foreigners everywhere.	Get you into caves in the rocks and crevices in the ground from the dread of the LORD and the splendour of his majesty, when he rises to inspire the earth with fear.	19
7	Their land is filled with silver and gold, and there is no end to their treasure; their land is filled with horses, and there is no end to their chariots;	On that day a man shall fling away his idols of silver and his idols of gold which he has made for himself to worship; he shall fling them to the dung- beetles and the bats, and creep into clefts in the rocks	20 21
8	their land is filled with idols, and they bow down to the work of their own hands, to what their fingers have made.
9	Mankind shall be brought low, all men shall be humbled; and how can they raise themselves? <sup>h</sup>
10	Get you into the rocks and hide yourselves in the ground from the dread of the LORD and the splendour of his majesty.

<sup>f</sup> They shall beat . . . pruning-knives: cp. Joel 3. 9-12.

<sup>g</sup> Or hawkers.

<sup>h</sup> Prob. rdg.: Heb. and do not forgive them.

responsibility of the priest, and the word of the LORD, the message of the prophet. 4: Peace can result because there will be but one judge and arbiter, namely, Israel's God. See 11.3-4. 5: The language of v. 3 is used in an admonition. On light as a symbol of the presence of the LORD, see 60.1-3.

2.6-22: The coming Day of the LORD. On the day when the LORD comes to judge pride and idolatry, men will flee from his wrath. The organization of the unit is difficult to discern, but there are refrains throughout (compare vv. 9, 11 with v. 17, and v. 10 with vv. 19, 21). V. 22 is omitted from the Sept. 6-11: An announcement of judgment because of foreign corruption, specifically, idolatry. 6-9: The words are addressed to God. Barbarians: the Gk. reads "sooth-sayers"; divination was illegal (see Lev. 20.27; Deut. 18.10-11), yet was practiced (see 1 Sam. 28.3-20). 11: As v. 12 indicates, that day is the Day of the LORD, when, in popular expectation (Amos 5.18-20), the LORD would punish the enemies of Israel; the prophets of the eighth century declare, rather, that on that day the LORD would, instead, judge his own people. (See also 13.6; 4.1; Amos 2.16; compare Jer. 17.16-18; Ezek. 30.3). 12-19: The Day of the LORD is a day of doom for all that is proud in man and nature. 13: Bashan is a region in northeastern Trans-Jordan, known for its oaks. 16: On ships of Tarshish see Isa. 23.1.14; 60.9; Ezek. 27.25; and crannies in the cliffs from the dread of the LORD and the splendour of his majesty, when he rises to inspire the earth with fear.

22	Have no more to do with man, for what is he worth? He is no more than the breath in his nostrils.		Jerusalem is stricken and Judah fallen because they have spoken and acted against the LORD, rebellng against the glance of his glorious eye. The look on their faces testifies against them; like Sodom they proclaim their sins and do not conceal them. <sup>j</sup> Woe upon them! they have earned their own disaster.
3	Be warned: the Lord, the LORD of Hosts, is stripping Jerusalem and Judah of every prop and stay, <sup>i</sup> warrior and soldier, judge and prophet, diviner and elder, captains of companies and men of rank, counsellor, magician, and cunning enchanter.		Happy <sup>k</sup> the righteous man! all goes well with him, for such men enjoy the fruit of their actions. Woe betide the wicked! with him all goes ill, for he reaps the reward that he has earned.
4	Then I will appoint mere boys to be their captains, who shall govern as the fancy takes them;		Money-lenders strip my people bare, 12 and usurers lord it over them. O my people! your guides lead you astray and confuse the path that you should take.
5	the people shall deal harshly each man with his fellow and with his neighbour; children shall break out against their elders, and nobodies against men of substance.		The LORD comes forward to argue 13 his case and stands to judge his people. The LORD opens the indictment 14 against the elders of his people and their officers:
6	If a man takes hold of his brother in his father's house, saying, 'You have a cloak, you shall be our chief; our stricken family shall be under you',		You have ravaged the vineyard, and the spoils of the poor are in your houses. Is it nothing to you that you crush 15 my people and grind the faces of the poor? This is the very word of the Lord, the LORD of Hosts.
7	he will cry out that day and say, 'I will not be your master; there is neither bread nor cloak in my house, and you shall not make me head of the clan.'

i Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds all stay of bread and all stay of water.

j like... them: or and their sins, like those of Sodom, denounce them; they do not deny them.

k Prob. rdg.; Heb. Say.

Ps.48.7. Dhows: sailing vessels. 22: He is . . . the breath in his nostrils; see Gen. 2.7; Ps.104.29. 3.1-12: A threat of anarchy. The LORD will take away from Jerusalem and Judah all their leaders, and chaos will result. 1: Be warned: lit. "for behold." Prop and stay refer to the leaders of the people. The phrase, "all stay of bread and all stay of water" (Tfn. i), interprets the prop and stay as referring to what supports life. 2: The prophet lists all who might give any direction, government officials, military leaders and charismatics. 4: Compare Eccles.10.16. Captains: that is, princes. 5: Oppression and disorder result from the removal of leaders. 6-7: When leaders, qualified either because of training or talents, disappear, the only requirement for election as chief will be the possession of a decent outer cloak. The struggle for individual survival will be so intense that no one will take the responsibility of providing for the welfare of a clan. 8-12: The guides who confuse the path are the elders (v. 14) who despoil the food.

3.13-15: The LORD's indictment of the leaders. On the "lawsuit" form of prophecy see 1.2-3 n. 13: Technical legal language is used to describe the LORD's appearance. People: The New English Bible reads a singular with the Sept. 14: Officers: princes. On the vineyard as a figure of speech representing Israel, see 5.1-7.

- 16 Then the LORD said:
Because the women of Zion hold themselves high and walk with necks outstretched and wanton glances, moving with mincing gait
and jingling feet,
17 the Lord will give the women of Zion bald heads,
the LORD will strip the hair from their foreheads.
- 18 In that day the Lord will take away all finery: anklets, discs, crescents, 19,20 pendants, bangles, coronets, headbands, armlets, necklaces, lockets, 21,22 charms, signets, nose-rings, fine dresses, 23 mantles, cloaks, flounced skirts, scarves of gauze, kerchiefs of linen, turbans, and flowing veils.
- 24 So instead of perfume you shall have the stench of decay, and a rope in place of a girdle, baldness instead of hair elegantly coiled,
a loin-cloth of sacking instead of a mantle,
and branding instead of beauty.
- 25 Your men shall fall by the sword, and your warriors in battle; 26 then Zion's gates shall mourn and lament,
and she shall sit on the ground stripped bare.
- 4 Then on that day
seven women shall take hold of one man and say,
- 'We will eat our own bread and wear our own clothes
if only we may be called by your
name;
take away our disgrace.'
- On that day the plant that the LORD 2 has grown
shall become glorious in its beauty, and the fruit of the land shall be the pride and splendour of the survivors of Israel.
- Then those who are left in Zion, who 3 remain in Jerusalem, every one enrolled in the book of life, shall be called holy. If the Lord washes away the 4 filth of the women of Zion and cleanses Jerusalem from the blood that is in it by a spirit of judgement, a consuming spirit, then over every building on 5 Mount Zion and on all her places of assembly the LORD will create a cloud of smoke by day and a bright flame of fire by night; for glory shall be spread over all as a covering and a canopy, a 6 shade from the heat by day, a refuge and a shelter from rain and tempest.
- I will sing for my beloved 5
my love-song about his vineyard:
My beloved had a vineyard high up on a fertile hill-side.
He trenched it and cleared it of 2 stones
and planted it with red vines;
he built a watch-tower in the middle and then hewed out a winepress in it.

3.16-24: Announcement of judgment against the ladies of Jerusalem. First, reasons for punishment are given in terms of evil pride of the women of Zion; next, sentence is passed which fits the crime (vv. 17-24). 17,24: The humiliations which the women will suffer are common to military defeat and exile. 18-23: The list of finery is a prose elaboration of vv. 17,24.

3.25-4.1: Judgment against Jerusalem and her women. 25: The repeated pronoun your is feminine singular, referring to Jerusalem; compare v. 26. 4.1: With men killed in war (v. 25), women will be without husbands and children, a reproach in the society of that day. To take away the disgrace, women will break all tradition and beg men to marry them. On disgrace, see 54.4; Gen.30.23; 2 Sam.13.13.

4.2-6: A promise of Jerusalem's renewal. The hope for the future lies in survivors who have been purged through punishment. 2: The plant and the fruit are the survivors or the remnant. See 1.9 n. 3: Enrolled in the book of life: compare Exod.32.32; Mal.3.16; Dan.12.1. 5-6: The cloud and the fire were symbols of God's presence and guidance in the Wilderness during the flight from Egypt; see Exod.13.21-22. The glory is a technical name for God's protective presence in a perceptible yet hidden manner; compare Exod.40.34-38; Ezek.10.4.

5.1-7: The parable of the vineyard. Israel is indicted for her failure to respond to the LORD's nurture. The prophet first sings a love song (vv. 1-2) and then assumes the role of the vineyard's owner presenting a lawsuit (vv. 3-6). 1: The vineyard is a common metaphor in love poetry (see S. of S.1.6; 7.12; 8.12). 2: The soil in Palestine is shallow and full of stones; these the good farmer gathers and makes a tower from which he keeps watch over the vineyard. The winepress

	He looked for it to yield grapes, but it yielded wild grapes.	Shame on you! you who rise early in the morning	11
3	Now, you who live in Jerusalem, and you men of Judah, judge between me and my vineyard.	to go in pursuit of liquor and draw out the evening inflamed with wine,
4	What more could have been done for my vineyard that I did not do in it? Why, when I looked for it to yield grapes, did it yield wild grapes?	at whose feasts there are harp and lute, tabor and pipe and wine, who have no eyes for the work of the LORD, and never see the things that he has done.	12
5	Now listen while I tell you what I will do to my vineyard: I will take away its fences and let it be burnt, I will break down its walls and let it be trampled underfoot,	Therefore my people are dwindling away all unawares; the nobles are starving to death, and the common folk die of thirst.	13
6	and so I will leave it derelict; it shall be neither pruned nor hoed, but shall grow thorns and briars. Then I will command the clouds to send no more rain upon it.	Therefore Sheol gapes with straining throat and has opened her measureless jaws: down go nobility and common people,	14
7	The vineyard of the LORD of Hosts is Israel, and the men of Judah are the plant he cherished. He looked for justice and found it denied, for righteousness but heard cries of distress.	their noisy bustling mob. <sup>m</sup> Mankind is brought low, men are humbled, humbled are haughty looks. But the LORD of Hosts sits high in judgement, and by righteousness the holy God shows himself holy.	15
8	Shame on you! you who add house to house and join field to field, until not an acre remains, and you are left to dwell alone in the land.	Young rams shall feed where fat bullocks once pastured, and kids shall graze broad acres where cattle grew fat. <sup>n</sup>	17
9	The LORD of Hosts has sworn <sup>l</sup> in my hearing: Many houses shall go to ruin, fine large houses shall be uninhabited.	Shame on you! you who drag wickedness along like a tethered sheep and sin like a heifer on a rope, who say, 'Let the LORD make haste, let him speed up his work for us to see it,	18
10	Five acres of vineyard shall yield only a gallon, and ten bushels of seed return only a peck.		19

l has sworn: prob. rdg.; Heb. om.
m nobility . . . mob: or nobility, common people and noisy mob, and are restless there.
n Young . . . grew fat: prob. rdg.; Heb. unintelligible.

is a hollow excavation made in the bedrock in which the grapes are pressed. Wild: i.e. sour. 3-6: The vineyard's owner calls for the court to convene (v. 3), argues the reasonableness of his complaint (vv. 4-5), and gives his judgment. 5: From the gathered stones fences are built as boundaries and walls to retain the terraces. 7: The Heb. contains two plays on words, mishpat . . . mispah ("justice" . . . "denied") and tzedakah . . . tze'akah ("righteousness" . . . "cries of distress"). Justice and righteousness are often used in parallel (see 1.21; Amos 5.24) to characterize the standards of behavior which the LORD expects (see also 1.17,26-27; 9.7; 16.5).

5.8-23: A series of woe indictments. Each accusation begins with the cry shame on you (lit. "woe," vv. 8,11,18,20,21,22). Isa.10.1-4 may also belong to this series. Each unit describes a group in terms of its immoral actions. 8-10: Against the rich who take the land of the poor. 11-17: Against those whose pursuit of pleasure obscures their perception of the LORD's activity and the needs of his people. 14: Sheol: netherworld. 18-19: Against those who dare the LORD

- let the purpose of the Holy One of Israel be soon fulfilled, so that we may know it.'
- 20 Shame on you! you who call evil good and good evil, who turn darkness into light and light into darkness,
who make bitter sweet and sweet bitter.
- 21 Shame on you! you who are wise in your own eyes and prudent in your own esteem.
- 22 Shame on you! you mighty toppers, valiant mixers of drink,
- 23 who for a bribe acquit the guilty and deny justice to those in the right.
- 26<sup>o</sup> So he will hoist a signal to a nation far away, he will whistle to call them from the end of the earth;
and see, they come, speedy and swift;
- 27 none is weary, not one of them stumbles, not one slumbers or sleeps.
None has his belt loose about his waist or a broken thong to his sandals.
- 28 Their arrows are sharpened and their bows all strung, their horses' hooves flash like shooting stars,
- their chariot-wheels are like the whirlwind.
Their growling is the growling of a lioness, they growl like young lions, which roar as they seize the prey and carry it beyond reach of rescue.
They shall roar over it on that day like the roaring of the sea.
If a man looks over the earth, behold, darkness closing in,
and the light darkened on the hill-tops<sup>p</sup>!

The call of Isaiah

IN THE YEAR OF KING UZZIAH'S DEATH 6
I saw the Lord seated on a throne, high and exalted, and the skirt of his robe filled the temple. About him were 2 attendant seraphim, and each had six wings; one pair covered his face and one pair his feet, and one pair was spread in flight. They were calling 3 ceaselessly to one another,

Holy, holy, holy is the LORD of Hosts:
the whole earth is full of his glory.

o Verses 24 and 25 transposed to follow 10. 4.
p hill-tops: or clouds.

to act in demonstration of his power. 20: Against those who distort moral law. 21: Against those who are proud of their wisdom. 22-23: Against drunkards who pervert justice.

5.26-30: An announcement of judgment. The prophet alludes to one of several Assyrian invasions which took place during his career, namely, by Tiglath-pileser III in 734-732 B.C.; Shalmeneser in 722 B.C.; Sargon, 711 B.C.; Sennacherib in 701 B.C. The invaders are regarded as called in by God to punish his people. 26: The invaders obey God as a dog obeys the whistle of his master. 27-28: No comfort should be taken in the wishful thinking that the invaders will become weary or ill-equipped or softened by the long march; compare Jos.9.1-15. 30: That day: see 2.11 n. The invaders will leave the land in the same chaos over which, before creation, darkness and the sea spread; compare Gen.1.1-2.

6.1-13: Isaiah's report of his call. This inaugural vision in which Isaiah receives his call to prophesy should probably be at the beginning of the book as are the calls of other prophets; compare Jer.1.4-9; Ezek. chs. 1-3. It may be at this place either because the following chapters, often known as the "Book of Immanuel," existed as a separate collection which an editor who compiled the whole book put at the wrong place; or because the editor thought the previous chapters (1-5), which magnificently describe the majesty of God, were a better introduction to the whole book. The vision report authenticates that the prophet is commissioned as the LORD's spokesman; also, it justifies the prophet's uncompromising message of doom. 1: King Uzziah's death was in 742 B.C. God's throne was considered to be above the Ark in the temple; see Exod. 25.16-22; Ezek.10.1-5. The skirt of his robe was possibly the cloud of smoke that came from sacrifices and from the incense; compare 2 Chr.7.1-3. 2: The seraphim (lit. "fiery ones") perhaps are to be associated with the cherubim who appear as the LORD's attendants in Ezek. ch. 1 and elsewhere are associated with the Ark (Exod.25.18-20). The seraph covered his face for fear of seeing God. Feet is a euphemism for sexual organs. The triple holy is an intensive superlative. Isaiah frequently speaks of the LORD as "the holy one of Israel" (1.4; 5.19,24;

4 And, as each one called, the threshold shook to its foundations, while the 5 house was filled with smoke. Then I cried,

Woe is me! I am lost, for I am a man of unclean lips and I dwell among a people of unclean lips;
yet with these eyes I have seen the King, the LORD of Hosts.

6 Then one of the seraphim flew to me carrying in his hand a glowing coal which he had taken from the altar with 7 a pair of tongs. He touched my mouth with it and said,

See, this has touched your lips;
your iniquity is removed,
and your sin is wiped away.

8 Then I heard the Lord saying, Whom shall I send? Who will go for me?
And I answered, Here am I; send me.
9 He said, Go and tell this people:

You may listen and listen, but you will not understand.<sup>q</sup>

You may look and look again, but you will never know.<sup>r</sup>

10 This people's wits are dulled, their ears are deafened and their eyes blinded,
so that they cannot see with their
eyes
nor listen with their ears nor understand with their wits, so that they may turn and be healed.

Then I asked, How long, O Lord? And 11
he answered,

Until cities fall in ruins and are deserted,
houses are left without people, and the land goes to ruin and lies
waste,
until the LORD has sent all 12 mankind far away,
and the whole country is one vast desolation.
Even if a tenth part of its people 13 remain there,
they too will be exterminated [like an oak or a terebinth, a sacred pole thrown out from its place in a hill-shrine<sup>s</sup>].

Prophecies during the Syro-Ephraimite war

WHILE AHAZ SON OF JOTHAM AND 7 grandson of Uzziah was king of Judah, Rezin king of Aram with Pekah son of Remaliah, king of Israel, marched on Jerusalem, but could not force a battle.
When the house of David heard that 2 the Aramaeans had come to terms with the Ephraimites, king and people were shaken like forest trees in the wind.
Then the LORD said to Isaiah, Go out 3 with your son Shear-jashub<sup>t</sup> to meet Ahaz at the end of the conduit of the Upper Pool by the causeway leading to <sup>q</sup> Or but how will you understand?

<sup>r</sup> Or but how will you know?

<sup>s</sup> a sacred pole . . . hill-shrine: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.

<sup>t</sup> That is A remnant shall return.

10.20). 4: The smoke in the house (that is, the Temple) should be associated with the "cloud" (Exod.19.9) on Mount Sinai where the "glory of the LORD" was present; compare Ezek.10.1-4. 5: Human lips are deemed unclean to speak on behalf of God. Furthermore, according to OT tradition, no one could see God and live (Exod.33.20). 6-7: See Jer.1.9-10; Ezek.3.1-3. 8: Me: lit. "us." The questions are not addressed to the prophet; he overhears the LORD speaking to the heavenly council (see Ps.82). 9-10: The Heb. (see Tfn. q and r) reads literally as a commission to the prophet deliberately to prevent the people from hearing, seeing, understanding, and thus repenting. 11-13: Isaiah's response is a prayer of intercession, but the LORD offers no hope until the land will have been destroyed.

7.1-9: Assurance given to Ahaz. Assyria invaded the lands to the west in 735 b.c. The kings of Israel, the Northern Kingdom, and of Aram, i.e. Syria, had tried to organize a coalition of small nations to stop the invasion. When Ahaz, king of Judah, refused to join the coalition, the two kings laid siege to Jerusalem (about 734-732 b.c.). Ahaz decided to ask Assyria for help; thereupon Isaiah emerged to counsel Ahaz neither to fear the besiegers nor to seek the human help of Assyria, but rather to look to the LORD for aid. For the historical context, see 2 Kgs.16.1-20. 1: Ahaz reigned 735-715 b.c. Aram: Syria, with its capital at Damascus. 2: The house of David, i.e. Judah, the Southern Kingdom, was shaken with fear because it was no military match for either of the attackers. 3: Shear-jashub: see Tfn. r. Isaiah's son is a living reminder of God's promise to David (2 Sam.7.15-16) that a remnant will return; see 10.21-22.

4 the Fuller's Field, and say to him, Be on your guard, keep calm; do not be frightened or unmanned by these two smouldering stumps of firewood, because Rezin and his Aramaeans with Remaliah's son are burning with rage.
5 The Aramaeans with Ephraim and Remaliah's son have laid their plans
6 against you, saying, Let us invade Judah and break her spirit;<sup>u</sup> let us make her join with us, and set the son of 7 Tabeal on the throne. Therefore the Lord GOD has said:

This shall not happen now, and never shall,

8 for all that the chief city of Aram is Damascus, and Rezin is the chief of Damascus;
within sixty-five years
Ephraim shall cease to be a nation, 9 for all that Samaria is the chief city of Ephraim,
and Remaliah's son the chief of Samaria.
Have firm faith, or you will not stand firm.

10 Once again the LORD spoke to Ahaz 11 and said, Ask the LORD your God for a sign, from lowest Sheol or from 12 highest heaven. But Ahaz said, No, I will not put the LORD to the test by asking for a sign. Then the answer 13 came: Listen, house of David. Are you not content to wear out men's patience?

Must you also wear out the patience of 14 my God? Therefore the Lord himself shall give you a sign: A young woman is with child, and she will bear a son, and will<sup>v</sup> call him Immanuel.<sup>w</sup> By the 15 time that he has learnt to reject evil and choose good, he will be eating curds and honey;<sup>x</sup> before that child 16 has learnt to reject evil and choose good, desolation will come upon the land before whose two kings you cower now. The LORD will bring on 17 you, your people, and your house, a time the like of which has not been seen since Ephraim broke away from Judah.<sup>y</sup>

On that day the LORD will whistle 18 for the fly from the distant streams of Egypt and for the bee from Assyria.
They shall all come and settle in the 19 precipitous ravines and in the clefts of the rock; camel-thorn and stinkwood shall be black with them. On that day 20 the Lord shall shave the head and body with a razor hired on the banks of the Euphrates,<sup>z</sup> and it shall remove the beard as well. On that day a man shall 21 save alive a young cow and two ewes;

u Or and parley with her. v Or you will.

w That is God is with us.

x he will; . . . honey; or curds and honey will be eaten.

y Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds the king of Assyria.

z Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds with the king of Assyria.

4: Smouldering stumps: a scornful allusion to the destructive power of the two kings as being already extinguished. 6: The son of Tabeal—his own name is not given—probably was a rebel in Judah who agreed with the anti-Assyrian policies of the coalition. 8-9: No nation, whatever its chief city and whoever its human chief, can prevail against Jerusalem, the city of God, whose chief is the LORD. 9: Firm faith (Heb. ta aminu) and stand firm (te amenu) are different forms of the same verb; this play on words underscores that the only security for Judah is faith in God, not reliance upon human help.

7.10-17: The sign of Immanuel. The historical context is the same as in 7.1-9. Here the prophet assures Ahaz that within a short time Aram and Israel will be destroyed. 10: The LORD spoke: that is, through the prophet. 11-12: A sign was an event so extraordinary that in it one could recognize the hand of God. Put the LORD to the test: i.e. expect God to perform an extraordinary feat on demand. Here Ahaz, by refusing the sign Isaiah offers him, prompts the prophet to conclude that Ahaz prefers to rely on Assyria rather than on God for deliverance from Israel and Aram. 14: A young woman: lit. "the young woman." The Heb. here, 'almah (feminine of 'elem, young man), refers to a girl of marriageable age, or one recently married (see Gen.24.43; Exod.2.8; Prov.30.19; S. of S.6.8). The NT references (Mt.1.23; see also Lk.1.27) to this verse are based on the early Gk. rendering of the passage. Many identifications have been proposed of the young woman and her son: the wife of Ahaz and her son the future king Hezekiah; the wife of Isaiah; collective Israel personified and sometimes called "virgin"; compare Jer.14.17; Amos 5.2. 15-16: Curds and honey are simple foods and perhaps contain an allusion to difficult times. Nevertheless, before the child ceases to be a toddler, the threat by the two kings will be ended.

7.18-25: The Day of the LORD. Each announcement is introduced by on that day (vv. 18,20, 21,23); the phrase is commonly used by the prophets to indicate God's decisive future action in establishing his justice. 20: To shave the head was a sign of disgrace and/or mourning; see Neh.13.25; Jer.48.37. Body: lit. "feet," a euphemism for pubic hair.

22 and he shall get so much milk that he eats curds; for all who are left in the 23 land shall eat curds and honey. On that day every place where there used to be a thousand vines worth a thousand pieces of silver shall be given over to 24 thorns and briars. A man shall go there only to hunt with bow and arrows, for thorns and briars cover the whole land; 25 and no one who fears thorns and briars shall set foot on any of those hills once worked with the hoe. Oxen shall be turned loose on them, and sheep shall trample them.

8 The LORD said to me, Take a large tablet and write on it in common 2 writing,<sup>a</sup> Maher-shalal-hash-baz;<sup>b</sup> and fetch Uriah the priest and Zechariah son of Jeberechiah for me as trust-3 worthy witnesses. Then I lay with the prophetess, and she conceived and bore a son; and the LORD said to me, Call 4 him Maher-shalal-hash-baz. Before the boy can say Father or Mother, the wealth of Damascus and the spoils of Samaria shall be carried off and presented to the king of Assyria.

5 Once again the LORD said to me:

6 Because this nation has rejected the waters of Shiloah, which run so softly and gently,<sup>c</sup> 7 therefore the Lord will bring up against it
the strong, flooding waters of the Euphrates,
the king of Assyria and all his glory;
it shall run up all its channels and overflow all its banks; 8 it shall sweep through Judah in a flood,

pouring over it and rising shoulder-
high.

The whole expanse of the land shall be filled,
so wide he spreads his wings; for God is with us.<sup>d</sup>

Take note, you nations, and be 9
dismayed.

Listen, all you distant parts of the
earth:

you may arm yourselves but will
be dismayed;

you may arm yourselves but will
be dismayed.

Make your plans, but they will be 10
foiled,

propose what you please, but it shall not stand;

for God is with us.<sup>d</sup>

These were the words of the LORD 11
to me, for his hand was strong upon me; and he warned me not to follow<sup>e</sup> the ways of this people: You shall not say 12
'too hard' of everything that this people calls hard; you shall neither dread nor fear that which they fear. It is the LORD 13 of Hosts whom you must count 'hard';<sup>f</sup> he it is whom you must fear and dread.
He shall become your 'hardship',<sup>f</sup> a 14 boulder and a rock which the two houses of Israel shall run against and over which they shall stumble, a trap and a snare to those who live in Jerusalem; and many shall stumble 15 over them, many shall fall and be

<sup>a</sup> in common writing: or with an ordinary stylus.

<sup>b</sup> That is Speed-spoil-hasten-plunder.

<sup>c</sup> Prob. rdg.: Heb. adds Rezin and the son of Remaliah.

<sup>d</sup> God is with us: Heb. Immanuel.

<sup>e</sup> Or and he turned me from following . . .

<sup>f</sup> 'hard' and 'hardship': prob. rdg.; Heb. unintelligible in this context.

8.1-4: The sign of Maher-shalal-hash-baz (speedy-spoiling-prompt-plundering). The prophet reports two symbolic "sign acts" (see 7.11-12 n.), the writing of the name of a child before his conception, and the name of the child himself. The message of the name is that the threat to Judah (see 7.1-9 n.) will be ended by Assyria; the message of the inscription is that the promise can be trusted as a word of the LORD since it is known in advance. For other "sign acts" see also Hos.1.2; Ezek.4.1,9; 5.1; 37.16; Jer.13.4; etc. 1: Common writing: intelligible to ordinary people. 2: Uriah: see 2 Kgs.16.10-16. 3: The prophetess would have been Isaiah's wife, but elsewhere the term refers to a woman performing some official function; see 2 Kgs.22.14; Exod.15.20; Judg.4.4; Neh.6.14.

8.5-10: Judgments against the enemies of the LORD. 6: This nation: Judah. Waters of Shiloah: the stream fed by the spring Gihon which flowed alongside the hill Ophel and brought clean drinking water into a pool (7.3) in Jerusalem. Flowing softly and gently is meant to signify God's life-giving providence. 7-8: Assyria, whose aid Ahaz unwisely solicited (2 Kgs.16.5-9), will overrun the land like the Euphrates which, unlike Shiloah, overflows all its channels, including those made by man for irrigation. 9-10: Contrary to appearances, the plans of God are being carried out and those of Assyria foiled.

8.11-22: The role of the prophet among people who will not hear. 11-15: The prophet reports a private message concerning his role; he is to fear (v. 13) only the LORD, who causes the unfaith-broken, many shall be snared and caught.

dealt heavily with Galilee of the Nations on the road beyond Jordan to the sea.

- 16 Fasten up the message, seal the oracle with my teaching;<sup>g</sup> 17 and I will wait for the LORD who hides his face from the house of Jacob;
 I will watch for him.
 18 See, I and the sons whom the LORD has given me
 are to be signs and portents in Israel,
 sent by the LORD of Hosts who dwells on Mount Zion.
 19 But men will say to you,
 'Seek guidance of ghosts and familiar spirits
 who squeak and gibber;
 a nation may surely seek guidance of its gods,
 of the dead on behalf of the living, 20 for an oracle or a message?'
 They will surely say some such thing as this;
 but what they say is futile.
 21 So despondency and fear will come over them,
 and then, when they are afraid and fearful,
 they will turn against their king and their gods.
 22 Then, whether they turn their gaze upwards or look down, everywhere is distress and darkness inescapable,
 constraint and gloom that cannot be avoided;
 9 for there is no escape for an oppressed people.

The people who walked in darkness 2 have seen a great light:
 light has dawned upon them,
 dwellers in a land as dark as death.
 Thou hast increased their joy and<sup>h</sup> 3 given them great gladness;
 they rejoice in thy presence as men rejoice at harvest,
 or as they are glad when they share
 out the spoil;
 for thou hast shattered the yoke 4
 that burdened them,
 the collar that lay heavy on their
 shoulders,
 the driver's goad, as on the day of Midian's defeat.
 All the boots of trampling soldiers 5 and the garments fouled with blood shall become a burning mass, fuel for fire.
 For a boy has been born for us, a 6 son given to us to bear the symbol of dominion on his shoulder;
 and he shall be called in purpose wonderful, in battle God-like,
 Father for all time,<sup>i</sup> Prince of
 peace.
 Great shall the dominion be, 7 and boundless the peace bestowed on David's throne and on his kingdom,
 to establish it and sustain it with justice and righteousness from now and for evermore.
 The zeal of the LORD of Hosts shall do this.

For, while the first invader has dealt lightly with the land of Zebulun and the land of Naphtali, the second has

<sup>g</sup> Or among my disciples.

<sup>h</sup> their joy and: prob. rdg.; Heb. the nation, not.

<sup>i</sup> Or of a wide realm.

ful to stumble (v. 14; compare 6.9–10 n.). 16–20: These words are addressed to the prophet's disciples (see Tfn. g). 17: Since the LORD hides his face there is no prophetic word to give. 18: The sons are the ones mentioned in 7.3; 8.1–4; and possibly also 7.14. Sign: see 7.11–12 n. 19–20: Squeak and gibber: probably a mocking imitation of sounds made by necromancers to convey the alleged voice of the dead. When people reject the words of a living prophet, they turn to ghosts. For the prohibition of consulting the dead, see Deut. 8.10–15.

9.1–7: The great light, a new king. After an introductory note (v. 1), this poem captures the celebration and hope following the birth of a new prince to continue the line of David. Three reasons for celebration are given: (1) the yoke of the oppressor has been broken (v. 4), (2) the gear of battle has been destroyed (v. 5), and (3) a new crown prince has been born (vv. 6–7). 1: Zebulun, Naphtali, and Galilee probably refer to territories taken by the Assyrians after 734 b.c. 4: On Midian's defeat, see Judg. 7.15–25. 6: The verse begins with a birth announcement (Job 3.3; Jer. 20.15); it closes with a series of four crown names. 7: Peace means more than the absence of war; it means the presence of justice and righteousness.

Prophecies addressed to Israel

- 8 The Lord has sent forth his word against Jacob
and it shall fall on Israel; 9 all the people shall be humbled, Ephraim and the dwellers in Samaria, though in their pride and arrogance
they say, 10 The bricks are fallen, but we will build in hewn stone;
the sycomores are hacked down,
but we will use cedars instead.
11 The LORD has raised their foes<sup>j</sup> high against them
and spurred on their enemies, 12 Aramaeans from the east and Philistines from the west, and they have swallowed Israel in one mouthful.
For all this his anger has not
turned back,
and his hand is stretched out still.
13 Yet the people did not come back to him who struck them, or seek guidance of the LORD of Hosts;
14 therefore on one day the LORD cut off from Israel
head and tail, palm and reed.<sup>k</sup> 16 This people's guides have led them
astray;
those who should have been guided are in confusion.
17 Therefore the Lord showed no mercy to their young men, no tenderness to their orphans and widows;
all were godless and evildoers,
every one speaking profanity.
For all this his anger has not
turned back,
and his hand is stretched out still.
18 Wicked men have been set ablaze like a fire

- fed with briars and thorns, kindled in the forest thickets;
they are wrapped in a murky pall of smoke.
The land is scorched by the fury of 19
the LORD of Hosts,
and the people have become fuel for the fire.<sup>l</sup> On the right, one man eats his fill 20
but yet is hungry;
on the left, another devours but is not satisfied;
each feeds on his own children's
flesh,
and neither spares his own brother.<sup>m</sup> 21 For all this his anger has not
turned back,
and his hand is stretched out still.
Shame on you! you who make 10 unjust laws
and publish burdensome decrees, depriving the poor of justice, 2 robbing the weakest of my people of their rights, despoiling the widow and plundering
the orphan.
What will you do when called to 3 account,
when ruin from afar confronts you?
To whom will you flee for help and where will you leave your
children,
so that they do not cower before 4
the gaoler
or fall by the executioner's hand?
For all this his anger has not
turned back,
and his hand is stretched out still.

<sup>j</sup> their foes; prob. rdg.; Heb. the foes of Rezin.

<sup>k</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds (15) The aged and honoured are the head, and the prophet who gives false instruction is the tail.

<sup>l</sup> See note on verse 20.

<sup>m</sup> and neither . . . brother: transposed from end of verse 19.

<sup>n</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. prefixes Manasseh devours Ephraim, and Ephraim Manasseh; together they are against Judah.

9.8–10.4; 5.24–25: The LORD's outstretched hand. A series of five stanzas (9.8–12, 13–17, 18–21; 10.1–4; 5.24–25), each concluding with the same refrain, announces the LORD's unrelenting judgment upon his people. For a similar series see Amos 4.6–12. Repeated disasters have not brought repentance; therefore the punishment continues. 8: The word of the Lord spoken through a prophet is considered to be God's active power which sets in motion the fulfillment of the prophecy. 9: Ephraim was the Northern Kingdom named after the leading tribe; Samaria was the capital city. 10–13: The destruction of houses made of bricks and sycomores has not humbled the people who boast that they will build with hewn stone, in this way rejecting God's warning and his guidance. 14: Head and tail: rulers and subjects, rich and poor. The MT (see Tfn. k) is a gloss interpreting the meaning of head and tail. 18–21: The disaster is so severe that cannibalism results. See Jer. 19.9. 10.1–4: This woe indictment (see 5.8–23) explains the

- [24<sup>o</sup>] So, as tongues of fire lick up the stubble and the heat of the flame dies down, their root shall moulder away,
and their shoots vanish like dust;
for they have spurned the instruction of the LORD of Hosts and have rejected the word of the Holy One of Israel.
- [25<sup>o</sup>] So the anger of the LORD is roused against his people, he has stretched out his hand against them and struck them down;
the mountains trembled, and their corpses lay like offal in the streets.
For all this his anger has not
turned back,
and his hand is stretched out still.
- 5 The Assyrian! He is the rod that I wield in my anger,
and the staff of my wrath is in his hand.<sup>p</sup>
- 6 I send him against a godless nation,
I bid him march against a people who rouse my wrath,
to spoil and plunder at will and trample them down like mud in the streets.
- 7 But this man's purpose is lawless, lawless are the plans in his mind;
for his thought is only to destroy and to wipe out nation after nation.
- 8 'Are not my officers all kings?' he says; 9 'see how Calno has suffered the fate of Carchemish.
Is not Hamath like Arpad, and Samaria like Damascus?
- 10 Before now I have found kingdoms full of idols,
with more images than Jerusalem and Samaria,
- 11 and now, what I have done to Samaria and her worthless gods,
- I will do also to Jerusalem and her idols.'
- When the Lord has finished all that he means to do on Mount Zion and in Jerusalem, he will punish the king of Assyria for this fruit of his pride and for his arrogance and vainglory, because he said:
- By my own might I have acted and in my own wisdom I have laid my schemes;
I have removed the frontiers of
nations
and plundered their treasures, like a bull I have trampled on their inhabitants.
My hand has found its way to the wealth of nations,
and, as a man takes the eggs from a deserted nest,
so have I taken every land;
not a wing fluttered,
not a beak gaped, no chirp was heard.
- Shall the axe set itself up against the hewer,
or the saw claim mastery over the sawyer,
as if a stick were to brandish him who wields it,
or a staff of wood to wield one who is not wood?
- Therefore the Lord, the LORD of Hosts, will send disease on his sturdy frame, from head to toe,<sup>q</sup>
and within his flesh<sup>r</sup> a fever like fire shall burn.

<sup>o</sup> These are verses 24 and 25 of ch. 5, transposed to this point.

<sup>p</sup> and . . . hand: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.

<sup>q</sup> from . . . toe: transposed from verse 18.

<sup>r</sup> within his flesh: or in his strong body.

punishment as arising from failure to give the poor (v. 2) their legal rights. 5.24–25 (see Tfn. o): Punishment will be total. Stubble is destroyed completely by a fire, root and shoots, unlike a tree which can sprout again.

10.5–19: Assyria, rod of God's anger. Assyria is the LORD's means of punishing his people, but she too will be judged for her arrogance. 5: The Assyrian: lit. "woe Assyria." 6–7: God's purpose to punish Israel, carried out by Assyria, is just, but Assyria's own purpose to plunder at will is lawless. 9: Calno, Carchemish, Hamath, and Arpad are cities in northern Syria taken by Tiglath-pileser III in 734 B.C. 13–14: The king of Assyria (v. 12) is quoted as boasting that everything he did was his own plan. 13: Frontiers: as the Assyrians advanced they included conquered nations as provinces of their empire. They were notorious for their cruelty to conquered inhabitants. 15: The question is rhetorical; Assyria is just a tool in the hand of the LORD. 16–19: After the LORD, the light of Israel, has used the Assyrians (v. 12) for his purposes, he will destroy them, leaving only a tiny remnant.

- |    |   |  |                |
|----|---|--|----------------|
| 17 | The light of Israel shall become a fireand his Holy One a flame,which in one day shall burn up and consumehis thorns and his briars;  | Oreb, and will lift his staff against the River as he did against Egypt.   |                |
| 18 | the glory of forest and meadow shall be destroyedas when a man falls in a fit;  | On that daythe burden they laid on your shoulder shall be removedand their yoke shall be broken from your neck.  | 27             |
| 19 | and the remnant of trees in the forest shall be so fewthat a child may count them one by one.   | An invader from Rimmon <sup>u</sup> has come to Aiath,has passed by Migron,and left his baggage-train at Michmash;he has passed by Maabarrahand camped for the night at Geba.Ramah is anxious, Gibeah of Saul is in panic.Raise a shrill cry, Bath-gallim;hear it, Laish, and answer her,Anathoth: | 2829       |
| 20 | On that day the remnant of Israel, the survivors of Jacob, shall cease to lean on him that proved their destroyer, but shall loyally lean on the LORD, the Holy One of Israel.  | 'Madmenah is in flight; take refuge, people of Gebim.'Today he is due to pitch his camp in Nob;he gives the signal to advance against the mount of the daughter of Zion,the hill of Jerusalem.   | 3031       |
| 21 | A remnant shall turn again, a remnant of Jacob,to God their champion.   |  |                |
| 22 | Your people, Israel, may be many as the sands of the sea,but only a remnant shall turn again,the instrument of final destruction, justice in full flood; <sup>s</sup>   |  |                |
| 23 | for the Lord, the LORD of Hosts, will bring final destruction upon all the earth.   | Look, the Lord, the LORD of Hosts, cleaves the trees with a flash of lightning,the tallest are hewn down, the lofty laid low,the heart of the forest is felled with the axe,and Lebanon with its noble trees has fallen.Then a shoot shall grow from the stock of Jesse,   | 333411 |
| 24 | Therefore these are the words of the Lord, the LORD of Hosts: My people who live in Zion, you must not be afraid of the Assyrians, though they beat you with their rod and lift their staff against you as the Egyptians did; |  |                |
| 25 | for soon, very soon, my anger will come to an end, and my wrath will all be spent. <sup>t</sup> Then the LORD of Hosts will brandish his whip over them as he did when he struck Midian at the Rock of                        |  |                |
| 26 |   |  |                |

<sup>s</sup> the instrument . . . flood: or wasting with sickness, yet overflowing with righteousness.
<sup>t</sup> will . . . spent: prob. rdg.: Heb. obscure.
<sup>u</sup> and their yoke . . . Rimmon: prob. rdg.: Heb. and their yoke from upon your neck, and a yoke shall be broken because of oil. He . . .

10.20-23: A remnant shall return. On the Day of the LORD (that day, see 2.11 n.) those who are left in Israel will trust the LORD and not Assyria. 21-22: A remnant shall turn again, or, "a remnant shall return." The sentence is the name of Isaiah's son, Shear-jashub (7.3). The idea of a remnant, a group which would survive the judgment, is very important in Isaiah's thought (see 4.2-3; 11.11,16; 28.5-6; 37.4,31-32).

10.24-27: Deliverance from Assyria. The people of Jerusalem (Zion, v. 24) are not to fear the Assyrians, for the LORD will treat them as he did the Egyptians (v. 24). 26: Midian: see Judg. chs. 6-7; Oreb: Judg.7.25. River: the Euphrates, symbolic here of Assyria.

10.28-34: The advance of the Assyrians. The route of the invader (vv. 28-32) is described as he approaches from the north toward Jerusalem. 30-34: The destruction is the work of the LORD.

11.1-9: The appearance of the Davidic king. The prophet first announces the coming of a new king (v. 1), describes him as the perfect king (vv. 2-5), and characterizes the results of his reign as perfect and complete peace throughout all of nature (vv. 6-9). See 9.1-7. 1: Jesse was

- |  |   |
|--|---|
| and a branch shall spring from his roots. 2 The spirit of the LORD shall rest upon him,a spirit of wisdom and understanding,a spirit of counsel<sup>v</sup> and power,a spirit of knowledge and the fear of the LORD.<sup>w</sup> 3 He shall not judge by what he sees nor decide by what he hears; 4 he shall judge the poor with justiceand defend the humble in the land with equity;his mouth shall be a rod to strike down the ruthless,<sup>x</sup>and with a word he shall slay the wicked. 5 Round his waist he shall wear the belt of justice,and good faith shall be the girdle round his body. 6 Then the wolf shall live with the sheep,and the leopard lie down with the kid;the calf and the young lion shall grow up together,and a little child shall lead them; 7 the cow and the bear shall be friends,and their young shall lie down together.The lion shall eat straw like cattle; 8 the infant shall play over the hole of the cobra,and the young child dance over the viper's nest. 9 They shall not hurt or destroy in all my holy mountain;for as the waters fill the sea, | so shall the land be filled with the knowledge of the LORD. On that day a scion from the root of Jesse shall be set up as a signal to the peoples;the nations shall rally to it,and its resting-place shall be glorious. On that day the Lord will make his power more glorious by recovering the remnant of his people, those who are still left, from Assyria and Egypt, from Pathros, from Cush and Elam, from Shinar, Hamath and the islands of the sea. Then he will raise a signal to the nationsand gather together those driven out of Israel;he will assemble Judah's scattered peoplefrom the four corners of the earth.Ephraim's jealousy shall vanish,and Judah's enmity shall be done away. Ephraim shall not be jealous of Judah,nor Judah the enemy of Ephraim.They shall swoop down on the Philistine flank in the westand together they shall plunder the tribes of the east;Edom and Moab shall be within their grasp,and Ammon shall obey them. |
|--|---|

<sup>v</sup> Or force.
<sup>w</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds and his delight shall be in the fear of the LORD. <sup>x</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. land.

the father of David (1 Sam.16.1–20); the new king continues the dynasty of David in fulfillment of the promise reported in 1 Sam. ch. 7. 2: The same Heb. word (ruah) is translated by "spirit" and "breath." The spirit, or breath, of the LORD is found throughout the Bible as an active and creative presence of God. It swept over the abyss at creation (Gen.1.2); it inspired his servants (42.1; 61.1), judges (Judg.3.10; 6.34), kings (1 Sam.11.6), and prophets (2 Kgs.2.9, Mic.3.8), enabling them to accomplish deeds beyond their human capacities. The future king would possess the powers of the greatest men of Israel. 3–5: The king was responsible for justice, especially the protection of the poor and the humble. See Ps.72. 6–9: The rise of this messianic ruler has cosmic implications; all creatures, even natural enemies, will be at peace with one another.

11.10–16: The return of the exiles. The passage assumes the dispersion of the people of Israel among the nations and looks toward the day of their return. 10: A scion from the root of Jesse: lit. "the root of Jesse"; see 11.1 n. 11: Most of the known countries of the civilized world (that is, the Near East) are listed. Pathros (see Jer.44.1,15) was a section of upper Egypt; Cush, Ethiopia; Shinar, a name for Babylonia; the islands of the Sea included the islands of the Mediterranean as well as the Aegean coast. 13–14: The kingdom, reunited, will conquer its

15 The LORD will divide the tongue of the Egyptian sea
and wave his hand over the River to bring a scorching wind;
he shall split it into seven channels and let men go across dry-shod.
16 So there shall be a causeway for the remnant of his people, for the remnant rescued from Assyria,
as there was for Israel when they came up out of Egypt.

12 You shall say on that day:
I will praise thee, O LORD, though thou hast been angry
with me;
thy anger has turned back,
and thou hast comforted me.
2 God is indeed my deliverer.
I am confident and unafraid;
for the LORD is my refuge and defence
and has shown himself my deliverer.
3 And so you shall draw water with joy
from the springs of deliverance.
4 You shall all say on that day:
Give thanks to the LORD and invoke
him by name,
make his deeds known in the world
around;
declare that his name is supreme.
5 Sing psalms to the LORD, for he has triumphed,
and this must be made known in all the world.

Cry out, shout aloud, you that dwell in Zion,
for the Holy One of Israel is among you in majesty. 6

Prophecies relating to foreign nations

BABYLON: AN ORACLE WHICH ISAIAH 13
son of Amoz received in a vision.

Raise the standard on a windy height,
roar out your summons,
beckon with arm upraised to the advance,
draw your swords, you nobles.
I have given my warriors their orders 3
and summoned my fighting men to launch my anger;
they are eager for my triumph.
Hark, a tumult in the mountains, 4
the sound of a vast multitude;
hark, the roar of kingdoms, of nations gathering!
The LORD of Hosts is mustering a host for war,
men from a far country, from 5 beyond the horizon.
It is the LORD with weapons of his wrath
coming to lay the whole land
waste.
Howl, for the Day of the LORD is 6
at hand;
it comes, a mighty blow from Almighty God.

traditional enemies. 15-16: The return of the remnant will be a new exodus, with natural phenomena more glorious than the first; see Exod.14.21-22; Josh.3.13-17. 15: The River: the Euphrates. The tongue of the Egyptian Sea: the modern Gulf of Suez.

12.1-6: Two Thanksgiving hymns. Two brief hymns similar in form to psalms of Enthronement of the LORD (Pss.47; 97) mark the end of the first major section of the book of Isa. Each is introduced by ceremonial instructions to the congregation (vv. 1a and 4a) which link the songs to the previous section (11.11-16). 2b: The language is common in hymns of Thanksgiving; see Exod.15.2; Ps.18.14. 3: The verse can be read with 4a as liturgical instruction to Temple priests. 4-6: Typical invitations to give thanks and to sing; see Pss.105.1; 148.13.

13.1-23.18: Prophecies against foreign nations. Most major sections are introduced with the word oracle, or "burden." See 13.1; 15.1; 17.1; 19.1; 21.1,11,13; 22.1; 23.1; 30.6.

13.1-22: Judgment on Babylon. Since Babylon did not develop into a ruling power until 612 B.C. when it destroyed Nineveh, the capital of Assyria, this oracle is probably later than Isaiah. The Medes, mentioned in v. 17, were united to the Persians under Cyrus in 550 B.C. Together they conquered Babylon in 539 B.C. Therefore, the prophecy belongs somewhere between the Exile in 587 B.C. and the conquest of Babylon by Cyrus. The oracle is in the poetic form of a dirge, i.e. a funeral lament, over Babylon. 3: My warriors: the Medes (v. 17) and Persians who carry out God's purpose of overthrowing Babylon to bring back the captives from Exile. 5: Far country: Persia. Whole land: Babylonian empire. 6: Day of the LORD: see 2.11 n. Since Israel has been punished by God with the Exile, here the Day is a judgment on its

- |    |   |   |    |
|----|---|---|----|
| 7  | Thereat shall every hand hang limp,every man's courage shall meltaway,  | their infants will be dashed to theground before their eyes,their houses rifled and their wivesravished.  | 16 |
| 8  | his stomach hollow with fear;anguish shall grip them, like awoman in labour.One man shall look aghast at anotherand their faces shall burn withshame.           | I will stir up against them theMedes,who care nothing for silver and arenot tempted by gold, <sup>z</sup>who have no pity on little childrenand spare no mother's son;  | 17 |
| 9  | The Day of the LORD is comingindeed,that cruel day of wrath and fury,to make the land a desolationand exterminate its wicked people.                                | and Babylon, fairest of kingdoms,proud beauty of the Chaldaeans,shall be like Sodom and Gomorrahwhen God overthrew them.  | 18 |
| 10 | The stars of heaven in theirconstellations shall give no light,the sun shall be darkened at itsrising,and the moon refuse to shine.                                 | Never again shall she beinhabited,no man shall dwell in her throughall the ages;there no Arab shall pitch his tent,no shepherds fold their flocks.  | 19 |
| 11 | I will bring disaster upon the worldand their due punishment upon thewicked.I will check the pride of thehaughtyand bring low the arrogance ofruthless men. | There marmots shall have theirlair,and porcupines shall overrun herhouses;there desert owls shall dwell,and there he-goats shall gambol;  | 20 |
| 12 | I will make men scarcer than finegold,rarer than gold of Ophir.   | jackals shall occupy her mansions, <sup>a</sup>and wolves her gorgeous palaces.Her time draws very near,and her days have not long to run.  | 21 |
| 13 | Then the heavens shall shudder, <sup>y</sup>and the earth shall be shaken fromits placeat the fury of the LORD of Hosts, onthe day of his anger.                    |   | 22 |
| 14 | Then, like a gazelle before thehunteror a flock with no man to roundit up,each man will go back to his ownpeople,every one will flee to his own land.       | The LORD will show compassion forJacob and will once again make Israelhis choice. He will settle them on theirown soil, and strangers will come tojoin them and attach themselves toJacob. Many nations shall escort Israelto her place, and she shall employ themas slaves and slave-girls on the land ofthe LORD; she shall take her captorscaptive and rule over her task-masters. | 2  |
| 15 | All who are found will bestabbed,all who are taken will fall by thesword;   |   |    |

<sup>y</sup> Prob. rdg.: Heb. Then I will make the heavens shudder.

<sup>z</sup> Prob. rdg.: Heb. adds bows shall dash young men to the ground.

<sup>a</sup> Prob. rdg.: Heb. her widows.

enemies who afflicted it beyond measure. Before the Exile the Day was a judgment exclusively on Israel; compare Amos 5.18. 10-15: God's decisive judgments are accompanied by a disruption of order in heaven as well as the civil order established by man, since he is master of all. 16: Children were treated cruelly in ancient warfare; see Ps.137.8-9. 17: Medes: 13.1-22 n. above. 19: Chaldaeans: the inhabitants of the southern part of Mesopotamia at the head of the Persian Gulf, who extended their rule over all of Babylonia and Assyria under Nabopolassar, the father of Nebuchadnezzar. Sodom and Gomorrah: see Gen.19.23-25. 20: The land on which an Arab pitched his tent was a desert, unsuitable for habitation.

14.1-23: The return of the exiles and a satire on the fall of their oppressor. 1-2: Since this unit refers to the return from Exile and the conversion of pagan nations, it has affinities with the second part of Isaiah, namely, chs. 40-55, and perhaps its date of composition is the same (see Introduction). Strangers: converts to Judaism, a characteristic of postexilic prophecy.

- |   |  |   |
|---|--|---|
| 3 When the LORD gives you relieffrom your pain and your fears and from4 the cruel slavery laid upon you, youwill take up this song of derision overthe king of Babylon: See how the oppressor has met hisend and his frenzy ceased! 5 The LORD has broken the rod of thewicked,the sceptre of the ruler6 who struck down peoples in his ragewith unerring blows,who crushed nations in angerand persecuted them unceasingly.7 The whole world has rest and is atpeace;it breaks into cries of joy.8 The pines themselves and the cedarsof Lebanon exult over you:Since you have been laid low, theysay,no man comes up to fell us. 9 Sheol below was all astirto meet you at your coming;she roused the ancient dead to meetyou,all who had been leaders onearth;she made all who had been kingsof the nationsrise from their thrones. 10 One and all they greet you withthese words:So you too are weak as we are,and have become one of us! 11 Your pride and all the music ofyour luteshave been brought down toSheol;<sup>b</sup>maggots are the pallet beneath you,and worms your coverlet. 12 How you have fallen from heaven,bright morning star, | fell to the earth, sprawlinghelpless across the nations!You thought in your own mind,I will scale the heavens;I will set my throne high above thestars of God,I will sit on the mountain wherethe gods meetin the far recesses of the north.I will rise high above the cloud-banksand make myself like the MostHigh.Yet you shall be brought down toSheol,to the depths of the abyss.Those who see you will stare at you,they will look at you andponder:Is this, they will say, the man whoshook the earth,who made kingdoms quake,who turned the world into a desertand laid its cities in ruins,who never let his prisoners go freeto their homes,the kings of every land?Now they lie all of them in honour,each in his last home.But you have been flung outunburied,mere loathsome carrion,companion to the slain pierced bythe swordwho have gone down to the stonyabyss.And you, a corpse trampledunderfoot,shall not share burial with them,for you have ruined your land andslaughtered your people.Such a brood of evildoers shallnever be seen again. | 13 14 15 16 17 18 19 20 |
|---|--|---|

<sup>b</sup> Or Your pride has been brought down to Sheol to the crowding throng of your dead.

3-23: This dirge is referred to the king of Babylon in its prose introduction (vv. 3-4a) and conclusion (vv. 22-23), but it could have been applied to any of Israel's oppressors. 8: The cedars of Lebanon were in great demand for building of palaces (1 Kgs.5.6) and were lavishly cut down as spoils of war. 9: Sheol: the underworld where the "shades" of the dead dwelled. See Ezek.32.17-32; Ps.88. 12-15: The tyrant placed himself above the stars (v. 13) and now lies beneath the earth. 12: Bright morning star: Heb. "Helal son of Shaha," possibly meaning "Day Star, son of Dawn," and reflecting the names of deities. 13: Mountain where the gods meet: lit. "Mountain of assembly"; in Canaanite mythology a place (usually Mount Zaphon, Pss.48.3; 89.12) where the gods met in council. 19-20: To be left unburied as carrion was considered to be a loathsome curse which pursued and troubled a person even beyond death. Those pierced by the sword died an untimely death with their lives unfulfilled and so in some way were cursed

- |   |   |
|---|---|
| 21 Make the shambles ready for his sonsbutchered for their fathers' sin;they shall not rise up and possessthe worldnor cover the face of the earth withcities. 22 I will rise against them, says theLORD of Hosts; I will destroy the nameof Babylon and what remains of her,her offspring and posterity, says the 23 LORD; I will make her a haunt of thebustard, a waste of fen, and sweep herwith the besom of destruction. This isthe very word of the LORD of Hosts. 24 The LORD of Hosts has sworn:In very truth, as I planned, so shallit be;as I designed, so shall it fall out: 25 I will break the Assyrian in myown landand trample him underfoot uponmy mountains;his yoke shall be lifted from you,his burden taken from your shoulders. 26 This is the plan prepared for thewhole earth,this the hand stretched out over allthe nations. 27 For the LORD of Hosts has preparedhis plan:who shall frustrate it?His is the hand stretched out, andwho shall turn it back? 28 In the year that King Ahaz died thisoracle came from God: 29 Let none of you rejoice, youPhilistines, | because the rod that chastisedyou is broken;for a viper shall be born of a snakeas a plant from the root,and its fruit shall be a flyingserpent. But the poor shall graze theirflocks in my meadows, 30and the destitute shall lie down inpeace;but the offspring of your roots Iwill kill by starvation,and put the remnant of you todeath. Howl in the gate, cry for help in the 31city,let all Philistia be in turmoil;for a great enemy is coming fromthe north,not a man straying from hisranks. What answer is there for the 32envoys of the nation?This, that the LORD has fixed Zionin her place,and the afflicted among his peopleshall take refuge there. Moab: an oracle. 15 On the night when Ar is sacked,Moab meets her doom;on the night when Kir is sacked,Moab meets her doom. The people of Dibon go up<sup>c</sup> to the 2hill-shrines to weep;Moab howls over Nebo and overMedeba. |
|---|---|

<sup>c</sup> The people . . . go up: prob. rdg.: Heb. He has gone up to the house and Dibon.

by God. 21: That sons be cut off from life at an early age was considered to be a particularly heavy punishment for the sin of a father.

14.24-27: Judgment against Assyria. 24: The LORD . . . planned to act against Assyria; in doing so he will deliver his people. 27: God's hand is stretched out in punishment of Assyria.

14.28-32: Judgment against the Philistines. 28: Ahaz died about 715 B.C. 29: Although the Philistines ceased to be a power in the time of David, they continued to exist as a thorn in Israel's side, rejoicing in her misfortunes and taking advantage of them; see Ezek.25.15-17. The rod that chastised the Philistines probably was Sargon II, who died in 705 B.C. The snake is probably the Assyrian nation that will give birth to another tyrant ruler, or viper. 32: Zion was deemed to be impregnable and inviolable.

15.1-16.14: Lament over Moab. Moab was the country immediately to the east of the Dead Sea. According to Gen.19.36-38, the Moabites are descended from Lot and so related to the Israelites. The relations between the two peoples vacillated between close friendship and bitter hostility; see Ruth 1.1-2; 1 Sam.22.3-4; 2 Sam.8.2. This song at points carries a tone of authentic lament, but at others (16.6,12) shows no regret over Moab's destruction. See Jer. ch. 48. 2-3: weep, howls, hair torn, beard shaved, sackcloth: these were conventional signs of mourning.

The hair is torn from every head, and every beard shaved off.
3 In the streets men go clothed with
sackcloth,
they cry out on the roofs;
in the public squares every man howls,
weeping as he goes through them.
4 Heshbon and Elealeh cry for help, their voices are heard as far as Jahaz.
Thus Moab's stoutest warriors become cowards,
and her courage ebbs away.
5 My heart cries out for Moab, whose nobles have fled<sup>d</sup> as far as Zoar.<sup>e</sup>
On the ascent to Luhith men go up weeping;
on the road to Horonaim there are cries of 'Disaster!'
6 The waters of Nimrim are desolate
indeed;
the grass is parched, the herbage
dead,
not a green thing is left; 7 and so the people carry off across the gorge of the Arabim their hard-earned wealth and all their savings.
8 The cry for help echoes round the frontiers of Moab, their howling reaches Eglaim and Beer-elim.
9 The waters of Dimon already run with blood;
yet I have more troubles in store for Dimon,
for I have a vision<sup>f</sup> of the survivors of Moab,
of the remnant of Admah.
16 The rulers of the country send a present of lambs
from Sela in the wilderness to the hill of the daughter of Zion; 2 the daughters of Moab at the fords of the Arnon shall be like fluttering birds, like scattered nestlings.
3 'Take up our cause with all your might;
let your shadow shield us at high noon, dark as night.

Shelter the homeless, do not betray the fugitive;
let the homeless people of Moab 4 find refuge with you;
hide them from the despoiler.'

When extortion has done its work and the looting is over, when the heel of the oppressor has vanished from the land, a throne shall be set up in mutual 5 trust in David's tent,
and on it there shall sit a true judge,
one who seeks justice and is swift to do right.

We have heard tell of Moab's pride, 6 how great it is,
we have heard of his pride, his overweening pride;
his talk is full of lies.

For this all Moab shall howl; 7 Moab shall howl indeed;
he<sup>g</sup> shall mourn for the prosperous farmers of Kir-hareseth, utterly ruined;

the orchards of Heshbon, 8
the vines of Sibmah languish, though their red grapes once laid low the lords of the nations, though they reached as far as Jazer and trailed out to the wilderness, though their branches spread abroad and crossed the sea.

Therefore I will weep for Sibmah's 9 vines as I weep for Jazer.
I will drench you with my tears, Heshbon and Elealeh;
for over your summer-fruits and your harvest
the shouts of the harvesters are ended.

Joy and gladness shall be banished 10
from the meadows,
no more shall men shout and sing
in the vineyards,
no more shall they tread wine in the winepresses;
I have silenced the shouting of the harvesters.

d have fled: prob. rdg.; Heb. om. e Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds Eglath Shelishiya.
f I have a vision: prob. rdg.; Heb. a lion.
g Prob. rdg.; Heb. you.

9: The Heb. words for Dimon and blood are very similar; hence the play on words. 16.4: David's tent: the dynasty of David. 8: Wilderness: the Arabian desert to the east of Moab. Sea: the Dead Sea.

11 Therefore my heart throbs like a harp for Moab, and my very soul for Kir-hareseth.<sup>h</sup> 12 When Moab comes to worship and wearies himself at the hillshrines,
when he enters his sanctuary to pray,
he will gain nothing.
13 These are the words which the LORD 14 spoke long ago about Moab; and now he says, In three years, as a hired labourer counts them off, the glory of Moab shall become contemptible for all his vast numbers; a handful shall be left and those of no account.

17 Damascus: an oracle.

Damascus shall be a city no longer,
she shall be but a heap of ruins.
2 For ever desolate, flocks shall have her for their own,
and lie there undisturbed.
3 No longer shall Ephraim boast a fortified city,
or Damascus a kingdom;
the remnant of Aram and the glory of Israel, their fate is one.
This is the very word of the LORD
of Hosts.
4 On that day Jacob's weight shall dwindle
and the fat on his limbs waste
away,
5 as when the harvester gathers up the standing corn
and reaps the ears in armfuls, or as when a man gleans the ears in 6 the Vale of Rephaim, or as when one beats an olive-tree and only gleanings are left on it, two or three berries on the top of a branch,

four or five on the boughs of the fruiting tree.
This is the very word of the LORD
the God of Israel.

On that day men shall look to their 7 Maker and turn their eyes to the Holy
One of Israel; they shall not look to the 8 altars made by their own hands nor to anything that their fingers have made, sacred poles or incense-altars.
On that day their strong cities shall 9 be deserted like the cities of the Hivites and the Amorites, which they abandoned when Israel came in; all shall be desolate.

For you forgot the God who 10 delivered you,
and did not remember the rock,
your stronghold.
Plant them, if you will, your gardens in honour of Adonis, strike your cuttings for a foreign
god;
protect your gardens on the day you 11
plant them,
and next day make the seed sprout.
But the crop will be scorched when wasting disease comes in the day of incurable pain.

Listen! it is the thunder of many 12
peoples,
they thunder with the thunder of
the sea.
Listen! it is the roar of nations roaring with the roar of mighty waters.
When he rebukes them, away they 13
fly,
driven like chaff on the hills before
the wind,
like thistledown before the storm.
At evening all is confusion, 14

<sup>h</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. Kir-hares.

17.1-6: Judgment on the Syro-Ephraimite coalition. In the context of the threat to Judah from Syria (Aram, v. 3) and Israel (Ephraim, v. 3), the prophet announces judgment on these enemies. The date is 734-732 B.C.; see 7.1-9 n. 1: Damascus: capital of Syria. 3: The glory of Israel perhaps refers to her capital, Samaria. 5: The Vale of Rephaim was northwest of Jerusalem; see Josh.15.8; 18.16.

17.7-11: Concerning idolatry. 7-8: One day men will choose their Maker over what they have made. 8: Sacred poles: lit. "Asherim," cultic objects representing a Canaanite goddess. 9-11: Idolatry results in desolation. 10: Adonis (lit. "pleasant plants") was a god of vegetation.

17.12-14: The thunder of the enemy. While the passage may refer to the unsuccessful Assyrian attack on Jerusalem (2 Kgs.19.35-36) in 701 B.C., the language and concepts are common enough to lack a direct reference.

and before morning they are gone.
Such is the fate of our plunderers, the lot of those who despoil us.

in summer the birds shall make their home there,
in winter every beast of the earth.

- 18 There is a land of sailing ships, a land beyond the rivers of Cush 2 which sends its envoys by the Nile,
journeying on the waters in vessels of reed.
Go, swift messengers,
go to a people tall and smooth-skinned,
to a people dreaded near and far,
a nation strong and proud,
whose land is scoured by rivers.
3 All you who dwell in the world, inhabitants of earth,
shall see when the signal is hoisted on the mountains and shall hear when the trumpet sounds.
- 4 These were the words of the LORD to
me:
From my dwelling-place I will look quietly down
when the heat shimmers in the summer sun,
when the dew is heavy at harvest
time.
5 Before the vintage, when the budding is over and the flower ripens into a berry, the shoots shall be cut down with knives,
the branches struck off and cleared
away.
6 All shall be left to birds of prey on
the hills
and to beasts of the earth;

At that time tribute shall be brought 7 to the LORD of Hosts from a people tall and smooth-skinned, dreaded near and far, a nation strong and proud, whose land is scoured by rivers. They shall bring it to Mount Zion, the place where men invoke the name of the LORD of Hosts.

Egypt: an oracle. 19

See how the LORD comes riding swiftly upon a cloud,
he shall descend upon Egypt;
the idols of Egypt quail before him,
Egypt's courage melts within her.
I will set Egyptian against Egyptian, 2 and they shall fight one against another,
neighbour against neighbour, city against city and kingdom against kingdom.
Egypt's spirit shall sink within her, 3 and I will throw her counsels into confusion.
They may resort to idols and oracle-mongers,
to ghosts and spirits,
but I will hand Egypt over to a 4 hard master,
and a cruel king shall rule over
them.
This is the very word of the Lord,
the LORD of Hosts.
The waters of the Nile shall drain 5
away,

18.1-20.6: Relations with Egypt.

18.1-7: The proposal of the envoys. This section ensues on an attempt by an Egyptian embassy to establish a coalition against Assyria, about 714 B.C. Isaiah speaks against the attempt, holding that God, not human treaties, controls history. 1: Beyond . . . Cush: the Pharaohs of the Twenty-fifth Dynasty who, coming from the area south of Egypt, are regarded as Ethiopians; Cush is the ordinary Heb. name for Ethiopia. 2: Vessels of reed: the Egyptians used boats made of papyrus, lined with pitch. 4-6: As the seasons turn, the LORD will act in his time.

19.1-15: Judgment against Egypt. The LORD will bring internal chaos in Egypt, dry up the Nile, and cause all who depended on it to suffer (vv. 1-10). The crucial decisions in history are made in the counsels of the LORD to which the prophets are privy and the wise counsellors of kings are not (vv. 11-15). 1: In Canaanite mythology too the god Baal often is called "cloud rider"; see Pss. 104.3; 68.4 n. 2: Egyptian against Egyptian may allude to the turbulent period at the beginning of the Twenty-fifth Dynasty begun by the Ethiopian king Piankhi, or else to an invasion of Egypt by the Assyrians (under Sargon II in 711 B.C. or Esarhaddon in 671 B.C.) which some Egyptians may have welcomed as liberation from the Ethiopian rule. 4: The hard master may be one of the rulers mentioned in v. 2. 5-6: Egypt depended upon the regular floods

- the river shall be parched and run dry;
 6 its channels shall stink, the streams of Egypt shall be parched and dry up, reeds and rushes shall wither away;
 7 the lotus too beside the Nile<sup>f</sup> and all that is sown along the Nile shall dry up, shall be blown away and vanish.
 8 The fishermen shall groan and lament, all who cast their hooks into the Nile and those who spread nets on the water shall lose heart.
 9 The flax-dressers shall hang their heads, the women carding and the weavers shall grow pale, 10 Egypt's spinners shall be downcast, and all her artisans sick at heart.
 11 Fools that you are, you princes of Zoan!
 Wisest of Pharaoh's counsellors you may be, but stupid counsellors you are. How can you say to Pharaoh, 'I am the heir of wise men and spring from ancient kings'?'
 12 Where are your wise men, Pharaoh, to teach you and make known to you what the LORD of Hosts has planned for Egypt?
 13 Zoan's princes are fools, the princes of Noph are dupes; the chieftains of her clans have led Egypt astray.
 14 The LORD has infused into them a spirit that warps their judgement; they make Egypt miss her way in all she does,
- as a drunkard will miss his footing as he vomits.
 There shall be nothing in Egypt that 15 any man can do, head or tail, palm or rush.
- When that day comes the Egyptians 16 shall become weak as women; they shall fear and tremble when they see the LORD of Hosts raise his hand against them, as raise it he will. The land of 17 Judah shall strike terror into Egypt; its very name shall cause dismay, because of the plans that the LORD of Hosts has laid against them.
- When that day comes there shall be 18 five cities in Egypt speaking the language of Canaan and swearing allegiance to the LORD of Hosts, and one of them shall be called the City of the Sun.<sup>j</sup>
- When that day comes there shall be 19 an altar to the LORD in the heart of Egypt, and a sacred pillar set up for the LORD upon her frontier. It shall stand 20 as a token and a reminder to the LORD of Hosts in Egypt, so that when they appeal to him against their oppressors, he may send a deliverer to champion their cause, and he shall rescue them. The LORD will make himself known to 21 the Egyptians; on that day they shall acknowledge the LORD and do him service with sacrifice and grain-offering, make vows to him and pay them. The LORD will strike down 22 Egypt, healing as he strikes; then they will turn back to him and he will hear their prayers and heal them.
- When that day comes there shall be 23 a highway between Egypt and Assyria; Assyrians shall come to Egypt and Egyptians to Assyria: then Egyptians shall worship with<sup>k</sup> Assyrians.

<sup>i</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds on the mouth of the Nile.

<sup>j</sup> the City of the Sun: or Heliopolis.

<sup>k</sup> Or shall be slaves to.

of the Nile. The anticipated disaster is more serious than a mere drought. 11: Zoan: the Greek Tanis, a city on the Nile delta; see Num.13.22; Ezek.30.14. The wise men of Egypt were renowned; see 1 Kgs.4.30. 13: Noph: Memphis, one of the ancient capitals of Egypt. 15: Everyone in Egypt, from the highly placed (the head, the palm) to the lowest (the tail, rush in the water) will be helpless.

19.16-25: Hope for the salvation of Egypt. Five paragraphs, each beginning with the same phrase (When that day comes), have been appended to the poem against Egypt. 16: That day: Day of the LORD; see 2.11 n. 18: City of the Sun: the translation and identification are problematic. Heliopolis (Tfn. j) was a later name for the city of On, center of sun worship and renowned as an educational center. 22: The LORD will treat Egypt as he does Israel, i.e. he will strike her with a healing punishment, unlike that of the dire punishment visited on Egypt at the

- 24 When that day comes Israel shall rank with Egypt and Assyria, those three, and shall be a blessing in the centre of the world. So the LORD of Hosts will bless them: A blessing be upon Egypt my people, upon Assyria the work of my hands, and upon Israel my possession.
- 20 SARGON KING OF ASSYRIA SENT HIS commander-in-chief<sup>1</sup> to Ashdod, and he took it by storm. At that time the LORD said to Isaiah son of Amoz, Come, strip the sackcloth from your waist and take your sandals off. He did so, and went about naked and barefoot.
- 3 The LORD said, My servant Isaiah has gone naked and barefoot for three years as a sign and a warning to Egypt and Cush; just so shall the king of Assyria lead the captives of Egypt and the exiles of Cush naked and barefoot, their buttocks shamefully exposed, young and old alike. All men shall be dismayed, their hopes in Cush and their pride in Egypt humbled. On that day those who dwell along this coast will say, So much for all our hopes on which we relied for help and deliverance from the king of Assyria; what escape have we now?
- 21 A wilderness: an oracle.
- Rough weather, advancing like a storm in the south, coming from the wilderness, from a land of terror!
- 2 Grim is the vision shown to me: the traitor betrayed, the spoiler himself despoiled.
- Up, Elam; up, Medes, to the siege, no time for weariness!
- At this my limbs writhe in anguish, I am gripped by pangs like a woman in labour.
- I am distraught past hearing, dazed past seeing, my mind reels, sudden convulsions seize me.
- The cool twilight I longed for has become a terror: the banquet is set out, the rugs are spread; they are eating and drinking—rise, princes, burnish your shields. For these were the words of the Lord to me: Go, post a watchman to report what he sees. He sees chariots, two-horsed chariots, riders on asses, riders on camels. He is alert, alert, always on the alert.
- Then the look-out cried: All day long I stand on the Lord's watch-tower and night after night I keep my station. See, there come men in a chariot, a two-horsed chariot. And a voice calls back: Fallen, fallen is Babylon, and all the images of her gods lie shattered on the ground. O my people, once trodden out and winnowed on the threshing-floor, what I have heard from the LORD of Hosts, from the God of Israel, I have told you.

<sup>1</sup> Or sent Tartan.

Exodus. 24-25: Israel, Egypt, and Assyria, traditional enemies, will be reconciled on that day and the promise of Gen.12.3 to Abraham of blessing will be fulfilled.

20.1-6: A sign of Egypt's humiliation. When Egypt attempted to unite the small states of Palestine against Assyria (714-711 B.C.; see 14.28-32; 18.1-7), Isaiah walked naked and barefoot, proclaiming himself as a sign of Egypt's failure. 1: Sargon: Sargon II (722-705 B.C.). Ashdod was one of the Philistine cities taken by the Assyrians in 711 B.C. 3-6: The prophet would have proclaimed these words as the interpretation of his behavior. 3: Sign: see 7.11-12 n. 4: See 2 Sam.10.1-5. 6: The Palestinian coastal states which trusted Egypt have no escape.

21.1-10: A vision of the fall of Babylon. The poem was written by an anonymous prophet, active at the time of Babylon's fall in 539 B.C., who awaits a messenger with the news of the oppressor's demise. 2: Elam and the Medes, powers east of Babylon, together with Persia, overcame Babylon. 5: According to a tradition found in Daniel ch. 5 and in the Gk. historian Herodotus, an orgy of eating and drinking was in progress so that Babylon was attacked and fell without a battle. 10: The news is for the people of Israel who have experienced the punishment of exile.

11 Dumah: an oracle.

One calls to me from Seir: Watchman, what is left of the night?

Watchman, what is left?

12 The watchman answered:
Morning comes, and also night.<sup>m</sup> Ask if you must; then come back again.

13 With the Arabs: an oracle.

You caravans of Dedan, that camp in the scrub with the Arabs, 14 bring water to meet the thirsty.
You dwellers in Tema, meet the fugitives with food, 15 for they flee from the sword, the sharp edge of the sword, from the bent bow, and from the press of battle.

16 For these are the words of the Lord to me: Within a year, as a hired labourer counts off the years, all the glory of Kedar shall come to an end; 17 few shall be the bows left to the warriors of Kedar.

The LORD the God of Israel has spoken.

22 The Valley of Vision:<sup>n</sup> an oracle.

Tell me, what is amiss that you have all climbed on to the roofs,

2 O city full of tumult, town in ferment and filled with uproar, whose slain were not slain with the sword
and did not die in battle?

Your commanders are all in flight, 3 huddled together out of bowshot;
all your stoutest warriors are huddled together,
they have taken to their heels.
Then I said, Turn your eyes away 4
from me;
leave me to weep in misery.
Do not thrust consolation on me for the ruin of my own people.

For the Lord, the LORD of Hosts, 5 has ordained a day of tumult, a day of trampling and turmoil in the Valley of Vision,<sup>n</sup> rousing cries for help that echo among the mountains.

Elam took up his quiver, 6 horses were harnessed to the chariots of Aram,<sup>o</sup> Kir took the cover from his shield.
Your fairest valleys were overrun by 7 chariots and horsemen,
the gates were hard beset, the heart of Judah's defence was 8 laid open.

On that day you looked to the weapons stored in the House of the Forest; you filled all the many pools in 9 the City of David, collecting water from the Lower Pool.<sup>p</sup> Then you surveyed 10 the houses in Jerusalem, tearing some down to make the wall inaccessible, and between the two walls you made a 11 cistern for the Waters of the Old Pool; but you did not look to the Maker of it all or consider him who fashioned it long ago.

m and also night: or and the night is full spent.

n Or of Calamity. o Prob. rdg.; Heb. man.

p you filled . . . Lower Pool: or you took note of the cracks, many as they were, in the wall of the City of David, and you collected water from the Lower Pool.

21.11-17: Speeches concerning Arabia. With the exception of Seir (Edom), the places mentioned are in Arabia.

22.1-14: The LORD's Day of judgment upon his people. The events here probably occurred in 701 B.C. when Sennacherib of Assyria invaded Judah and besieged Jerusalem, but left without destroying the city (2 Kgs.19.35-36). 1: Valley of Vision: the allusion is uncertain; some interpret it as a euphemism for the Valley of Slaughter, spoken of in Jer.7.30-32. 2: The tumult may have been the cries of alarm as the siege began, or the celebration when the siege was lifted. 5-13: The prophet sees the approach of the enemy as the coming day of the LORD's judgment. 6: Elam, Aram (the text is uncertain), and Kir (an unknown locality in Mesopotamia) may represent troops in the Assyrian army. 8-13: The people of Jerusalem trusted in their siege preparations instead of the LORD; they ate and drank (v. 13) instead of praying and lamenting. 8: The House of the Forest was an armory built by Solomon (1 Kgs.7.2; 10.17). 9-11: According to 2 Kgs.20.20 (which see) Hezekiah built a reservoir and water conduit; such water systems were common in Palestinian cities, built in such a way as to provide water

12 On that day the Lord, the LORD of Hosts, called for weeping and beating the breast,
for shaving the head and putting on sackcloth; 13 but instead there was joy and merry-making, slaughtering of cattle and killing of sheep, eating of meat and drinking of wine,
as you thought,
Let us eat and drink; for tomorrow we die.

14 The LORD of Hosts has revealed himself to me; in my hearing he swore:
Your wickedness shall never be purged until you die.
This is the word of the Lord, the LORD of Hosts.

15 These were the words of the Lord, the LORD of Hosts.
Go to this steward,
to Shebna, comptroller of the household, and say:

16 What right, what business, have you here, that you have dug yourself a grave here, cutting out your grave on a height and carving yourself a resting-place in the rock?

17 The LORD will shake you out, shake you as a garment<sup>q</sup> is shaken out to rid it of lice;
18 then he will bundle you tightly and throw you like a ball into a great wide land.
There you shall die,
and there shall lie your chariot of honour,

an object of contempt to your master's household.
I will remove you from office and drive you from your post. 19

On that day I will send for my servant Eliakim son of Hilkiah; I will invest him with your robe, gird him with your sash; and hand over your authority to him. He shall be a father to the inhabitants of Jerusalem and the people of Judah. I will lay the key of the house of David on his shoulder; what he opens no man shall shut, and what he shuts no man shall open. He shall be a seat of honour for his father's family; I will fasten him firmly in place like a peg. On him shall hang all the weight of the family, down to the lowest dregs—all the little vessels, both bowls and pots. On that day, says the LORD of Hosts, the peg which was firmly fastened in its place shall be removed; it shall be hacked out and shall fall, and the load of things hanging on it shall be destroyed. The LORD has spoken.

Tyre: an oracle. 23

The ships of Tarshish howl, for the harbour is sacked;
the port of entry from Kittim is swept away.
The people of the sea-coast, the merchants of Sidon, wail, whose agents cross the great waters, whose harvest<sup>r</sup> is the grain of the Shihor and their revenue the trade of nations.

<sup>q</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. man.
<sup>r</sup> whose harvest: prob. rdg.; Heb. the harvest of the Nile.

in case of siege. 12-13: The city celebrates the completion of fortifications with sacrifices, the slaughtering of cattle, instead of seeing the impending siege as a call to repentance.

22.15-25: Against an arrogant official. Shebna, the highest government official under the king (Jer.20.1-6), has behaved arrogantly; he will not be buried in the magnificent grave he has prepared for himself, but will be exiled after losing his office (vv. 15-19). He will be replaced by Eliakim (vv. 20-25; see 36.3,11,22; 37.2). 15: The comptroller of the household (lit. "the one over the household") was the prime minister (see Gen.41.40). 21-24: The symbols of authority and the duties of the prime minister are described. 25: The verse is enigmatic; it suggests that Eliakim himself eventually will be removed from office.

23.1-18: Judgment against Tyre and Sidon. These were Phoenician seaports. 1-7: The location of Tarshish is uncertain; it was a distant Mediterranean port, perhaps on the southern coast

- 4 Sidon, the sea-fortress,<sup>s</sup> cries in her disappointment,<sup>t</sup> I no longer feel the anguish of labour or bear children;
I have no young sons to rear, no daughters to bring up.
- 5 When the news is confirmed in Egypt her people sway in anguish at the fate of Tyre.
- 6 Make your way to Tarshish, they
say, howl, you who dwell by the sea-coast.
- 7 Is this your busy city, ancient in story,
on whose voyages you were carried to settle far away?
- 8 Whose plan was this against Tyre,
the city of battlements, whose merchants were princes and her traders the most honoured men on earth?
- 9 The LORD of Hosts planned it to prick every noble's pride and bring all the most honoured men on earth into contempt.
- 10 Take to the tillage of your fields,
you people of Tarshish;
for your market<sup>u</sup> is lost.
- 11 The LORD has stretched out his hand over the sea
and shaken kingdoms,
he has given his command to destroy the marts of Canaan; 12 and he has said, You shall busy yourselves no more,
you, the sorely oppressed virgin
city of Sidon.
Though you arise and cross over to Kittim,
even there you shall find no rest.
- 13 Look at this land, the destined home of ships<sup>v</sup>! The Chaldaeans<sup>w</sup> erected their<sup>x</sup> siege-towers, dismantled its palaces and laid it in ruins.
- Howl, you ships of Tarshish; 14
for your haven is sacked.
- From that day Tyre shall be for- 15 gotten for seventy years, the span of one king's life. At the end of the seventy years her plight shall be that of the harlot in the song:
- Take your harp, go round the city, 16
poor forgotten harlot;
touch the strings sweetly, sing all
your songs,
make them remember you again.
- At the end of seventy years, the LORD 17 will turn again to Tyre; she shall go back to her old trade and hire herself out to every kingdom on earth. The 18 profits of her trading will be dedicated to the LORD; they shall not be hoarded or stored up, but shall be given to those who worship the LORD, to purchase food in plenty and fine attire.
- The LORD's judgement on the earth*
- Beware, the LORD will empty the 24
earth,
split it open and turn it upside down,
and scatter its inhabitants.
Then it will be the same for priest 2 and people,
the same for master and slave,
mistress and slave-girl,
seller and buyer,
borrower and lender, debtor and creditor.
The earth is emptied clean away 3 and stripped clean bare.
- <sup>s</sup> the sea-fortress: prob. rdg.; Heb. the sea, sea-fortress, saying.
<sup>t</sup> in her disappointment: prob. rdg.; Heb. be dis-appointed.
<sup>u</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. girdle.
<sup>v</sup> Or marmots.
<sup>w</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds this was the people; it was not Assyria.
<sup>x</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. his.

of Spain and so a symbol for the end of the earth. Kittim: probably Cyprus. 13: This verse, the text of which is corrupt, relates the destruction to the Babylonian period (see Ezek. chs. 27–28). 15: Seventy years is symbolic of a long time.

24.1–27.13: The new age. The diverse materials collected in this section are strongly eschatological in character, looking toward the final triumph of the LORD. There are announcements of the final judgment, prayers of petition, and hymns. The literary style with the tendency toward apocalyptic (vv. 21–23) and the theological perspective of final judgment (v. 21) indicate that this collection originated long after Isaiah of Jerusalem (see Introduction).

24.1–23: The LORD's judgment on the earth. The first (vv. 1–6) and final (vv. 18b–23) sections of this chapter constitute a single announcement of the LORD's intervention against all of

For this is the word that the LORD has spoken. 4 The earth dries up and withers, the whole world withers and grows sick; the earth's high places sicken, 5 and earth itself is desecrated by the feet of those who live in it, because they have broken the laws, and violated the eternal covenant. 6 For this a curse has devoured the earth and its inhabitants stand aghast. For this those who inhabit the earth dwindle and only a few men are left. 7 The new vine dries up, the vines sicken, and all the revellers turn to sorrow. 8 Silent the merry beat of tambourines, hushed the shouts of revelry, the merry harp is silent. 9 No one shall drink wine to the sound of song; the liquor will be bitter to the man who drinks it. 10 The city of chaos is a broken city, every house barred, that no one may enter. 11 Men call for wine in the streets; all revelry is darkened, and mirth is banished from the land. 12 Desolation alone is left in the city and the gate is broken into pieces. 13 So shall it be in all the world, in every nation, as when an olive-tree is beaten and stripped, as when the vintage is ended. 14 Men raise their voices and cry aloud, they shout in the west,<sup>y</sup> so great is the LORD's majesty.	Therefore let the LORD be glorified 15 in the regions of the east, and the name of the LORD the God of Israel in the coasts and islands of the west. From the ends of the earth we have 16 heard them sing, How lovely is righteousness! But I thought, Villainy, villainy! Woe to the traitors and their treachery! Traitors double-dyed they are indeed! The hunter's scare, the pit, and the 17 trap threaten all who dwell in the land; if a man runs from the rattle of the 18 scare he will fall into the pit; if he climbs out of the pit he will be caught in the trap. When the windows of heaven above are opened and earth's foundations shake, the earth is utterly shattered, 19 it is convulsed and reels wildly. The earth reels to and fro like a 20 drunken man and sways like a watchman's shelter; the sins of men weigh heavy upon it, and it falls to rise no more. On that day the LORD will punish 21 the host of heaven in heaven, and on earth the kings of the earth, herded together, close packed like 22 prisoners in a dungeon; shut up in gaol, after a long time they shall be punished. The moon shall grow pale and the 23 sun hide its face in shame; for the LORD of Hosts has become king creation. The remainder of the chapter (vv. 7-18a) consists of additions to that poem. 5: The eternal covenant may allude to the one with Noah (Gen.9.1-17), but in view of the reference to the laws and statutes, may well reflect the covenant on Sinai (Exod. chs. 19-24). 7-13: As nature suffers, the city (vv. 10,12), probably Jerusalem, will become desolate; the same tragedy will occur throughout the earth (v. 13). 14-18a: Some are heard to praise the LORD and righteousness (v. 16), or "the righteous one," but this is deceptive. 17-18a: There is no escape from God's judgment; compare Amos 5.18-20. 18b-23: The judgment has cosmic dimensions; afterward the LORD will become king in Jerusalem. 18b: Windows of heaven: see Gen.7.11. 21: Host of heaven: the stars, here conceived of as deities. See Jer.19.13; Zeph.1.5; Ps.82.1,6-7. 23: On the enthronement of the LORD, see Pss.47,93,96.
---	---

<sup>y</sup> in the west: or more loudly than the sea.

on Mount Zion and in Jerusalem, and shows his glory before their elders.

The deliverance and ingathering of Judah

- 25 O LORD, thou art my God;
I will exalt thee and praise thy name; for thou hast accomplished a wonderful purpose,
certain and sure, from of old.
2 For thou hast turned cities into heaps of ruin,
and fortified towns into rubble;
every mansion in the cities is swept
away,
never to be rebuilt.
3 For this a cruel nation holds thee
in honour,
the cities of ruthless nations fear thee.
4 Truly thou hast been a refuge to
the poor,
a refuge to the needy in his trouble, shelter from the tempest and shade from the heat.
For the blast of the ruthless is like an icy storm
5 or a scorching drought;
thou subduest the roar of the foe,<sup>z</sup>
and the song of the ruthless dies
away.
6 On this mountain the LORD of Hosts will prepare a banquet of rich fare for all the
peoples,
a banquet of wines well matured and richest fare, well-matured wines strained clear.

On this mountain the LORD will 7 swallow up
that veil that shrouds all the peoples, the pall thrown over all the nations;
he will swallow up death for ever. 8
Then the Lord GOD will wipe away the tears

from every face
and remove the reproach of his people from the whole earth.
The LORD has spoken.

On that day men will say, 9
See, this is our God
for whom we have waited to deliver us; this is the LORD for whom we have waited;
let us rejoice and exult in his deliverance.

For the hand of the LORD will rest 10
on this mountain, but Moab shall be trampled under his feet
as straw is trampled into a midden.
In it Moab shall spread out his 11
hands
as a swimmer spreads his hands to swim,
but he shall sink his pride with every stroke of his hands.

The LORD has thrown down the 12 high defences of your walls, has levelled them to the earth and brought them down to the dust.

On that day this song shall be sung in 26 Judah:

We have a strong city whose walls and ramparts are our deliverance.

<sup>z</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds heat in the shadow of a cloud.

25.1-5: A hymn of thanksgiving. Compare Ps.145. 2-4: God, and not man's fortified towns and cities, is the ultimate source of security and he is especially a refuge to the poor. 5: The dominance of the ruthless is as fleeting as a song.

25.6-12: Promise of the LORD's banquet. The unit is an announcement of salvation, with strong eschatological tones. The inclusion of Moab (vv. 10b-12) seems out of place and may be an addition, a symbol for all of Israel's enemies. 6: This mountain: Zion. Shared-offering sacrifices were those in which a part of the animal was burned on the altar to God, a part given to the priests, and a part eaten at the shrine by the offerer and his family as a sign of a loving communion with the deity; see Num.7.16-36; 1 Sam.9.12. Here this cultic feast is extended to symbolize the great, universal banquet given by God in which man and God will live in communion and harmony; compare Lk.14.12-25; Isa.55.1-3. 8: This is one of the rare OT passages expressing the hope for the end of death.

26.1-6: A hymn of trust. See Ps.24, especially vv. 7-10. The themes of 25.1-5 are resumed: Judah has confidence in the LORD because he has destroyed the enemy and cares for the oppressed and the poor (v. 6). 1-2: An entrance or processional liturgy begins the psalm: see Ps.118.19-20. 1: The strong city is Jerusalem.

- |    |  |  |    |
|----|--|--|----|
| 2  | Open the gates to let a righteous nation in,a nation that keeps faith.   | to this end thou hast punished themand destroyed them,and made all memory of themperish.   |    |
| 3  | Thou dost keep in peace men of constant mind,in peace because they trust in thee.  | Thou hast enlarged the nation, O LORD,   | 15 |
| 4  | Trust in the LORD for ever;for the LORD himself is an everlasting rock.  | enlarged it and won thyself honour,thou hast extended all the frontiersof the land.  |    |
| 5  | He has brought low all who dwell high in a towering city;he levels it to the ground and lays it in the dust,   | In our distress, O LORD, we <sup>b</sup> sought thee out,chastened by the mere whisper of thy rebuke.  | 16 |
| 6  | that the oppressed and the poor may tread it underfoot.  | As a woman with child, when her time is near,  | 17 |
| 7  | The path of the righteous is level,and thou markest out the right way for the upright.   | is in labour and cries out in her pains,so were we in thy presence, O LORD.  |    |
| 8  | We too look to the path prescribed in thy laws, O LORD;thy name and thy memory are our heart's desire.   | We have been with child, we have been in labour,but have brought forth wind.   | 18 |
| 9  | With all my heart I long for thee in the night,I seek thee eagerly when dawn breaks;for, when thy laws prevail in the land,the inhabitants of the world learn justice. | We have won no success for the land,and no one will be born to inhabit the world.  |    |
| 10 | The wicked are destroyed, they have never learnt justice;corrupt in a land of honest ways,they do not regard the majesty of the LORD.                                      | But thy dead live, their bodies will rise again.They that sleep in the earth will awake and shout for joy;for thy dew is a dew of sparkling light,and the earth will bring those long dead to birth again. | 19 |
| 11 | O LORD, thy hand is lifted high,but the bitter enemies of thy people do not see it; <sup>a</sup>let the fire of thy enmity destroy them.                                   | Go, my people, enter your roomsand shut your doors behind you;withdraw for a brief while, until wrath has gone by.   | 20 |
| 12 | O LORD, thou wilt bestow prosperity on us;for in truth all our works are thy doing.  | For see, the LORD is coming from his placeto punish the inhabitants of the earth for their sins;then the earth shall uncover her blood-stainsand hide her slain no more.                                   | 21 |
| 13 | O LORD our God,other lords than thou have been our masters,but thee alone do we invoke by name.  | On that day the LORD will punish with his cruel sword, his mighty and powerful sword,  | 27 |
| 14 | The dead will not live again,those long in their graves will not rise;   |  |    |

<sup>a</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds let them see and be ashamed.
<sup>b</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. they.

26.7-19: Prayers of petition and meditations. 8: For the ancients, the name somehow contained the reality of a person or thing. 11: The enemies of God's people do not recognize in their calamity the hand of the LORD instructing them to salvation and so they are destroyed by it. 14: The dead here seem to be individuals who have died in hostility to God. 19: The words concerning resurrection may refer to individuals; see Dan.12.2; however, they may be only figurative, referring to the restoration of the nation whose suffering has been described in the previous verses; see Ezek. ch. 37.

26.20-27.1: The LORD's judgment on the dragon. 27.1: Leviathan and other sea monsters, Leviathan that twisting<sup>c</sup> sea-serpent, that writhing serpent Leviathan, and slay the monster of the deep.

- 2 On that day sing to the pleasant
vineyard,
3 I the LORD am its keeper, moment by moment I water it for fear its green leaves fail.
Night and day I tend it,
4 but I get no wine;
I would as soon have briars and thorns, then I would wage war upon it and burn it all up, 5 unless it grasps me as its refuge and makes peace with me—
unless it makes peace with me.

- 6 In time to come Jacob's offspring shall take root
and Israel shall bud and blossom, and they shall fill the whole earth with fruit.

- 7 Has God struck him down as he struck others down?
Has the slayer been slain as he slew others?

- 8-10<sup>d</sup> This then purges Jacob's iniquity, this<sup>e</sup> has removed his sin;
that he grinds all altar stones to powder like chalk;
no sacred poles and incense-altars are left standing.

The fortified city is left solitary, and his quarrel with her ends in brushing her away,<sup>f</sup> removing her by a cruel blast when the east wind blows;

it is a homestead stripped bare,
deserted like a wilderness;
there the calf grazes and there lies
down,
and crops every twig.
Its boughs snap off when they grow dry, 11 and women come and light their fires with them.
For they are a people without sense;
therefore their maker will show them no mercy,
he who formed them will show them no favour.

On that day the LORD will beat out 12
the grain,
from the streams of the Euphrates
to the Torrent of Egypt;
but you Israelites will be gleaned one by one.

On that day 13
a blast shall be blown on a great
trumpet,
and those who are lost in Assyria and those dispersed in Egypt will come in and worship the LORD on the holy mountain, in Jerusalem.

Assyria and Judah

Oh, the proud garlands of the drunkards of Ephraim

28

<sup>c</sup> Or primeval.
<sup>d</sup> Verses 8-10 re-arranged thus: 9, 10a, 8, 10b.
<sup>e</sup> Prob. rdg.: Heb. adds all fruit.
<sup>f</sup> Prob. rdg.: Heb. adds by dismissing her.

well-known in Canaanite and Mesopotamian mythology, occasionally appear in the OT, especially in Pss., as symbols of the chaos and evil overcome by God; see 51.9-10; Amos 9.3; Ps. 74.13; Job 26.12-13. The struggle against the monster or monsters is usually associated either with creation or with the end of the world.

27.2-13: Words of salvation and judgment. The section is not a unified whole, but a collection of various speeches announcing the LORD's intentions. 2-6: The poem is a reinterpretation of the metaphors of the vineyard in 5.1-7; announcement of judgment has become promise of salvation. 7-11: The New English Bible rearrangement of the verses is an attempt to make sense of a very confusing passage. The first part sees the judgment upon Israel as a purging punishment; the second part is an announcement of total judgment upon an unidentified fortified city which symbolizes the forces of evil. 12-13: The day of the LORD will be a day of harvest when the exiles will be brought home. 12: Torrent of Egypt: a stream, dry except during the rainy season, flowing from the Sinai peninsula into the Mediterranean fifty miles south of Gaza. It was considered to be the southern boundary of Judah. 13: The great trumpet, the horn which called people to worship, will summon the exiles home to Jerusalem.

28.1-33.24: Assyria and Judah. The historical context of many of these speeches is the Assyrian crisis of 705-701 B.C. when Hezekiah allied himself with Egypt against Assyria. The prophet criticized those who favored the alliance and warned of disaster. Many of the speeches in this unit begin in Hebrew with a cry "Woe," which the New English Bible translates in various ways; see 28.1; 29.1; 29.15; 30.1; 31.1; 33.1.

and the flowering sprays, so lovely in their beauty, on the heads of revellers dripping with perfumes, overcome with wine! 2 See, the Lord has one at his bidding, mighty and strong, whom he sets to work with violence against the land, like a sweeping storm of hail, like a destroying tempest, like a torrent of water in overwhelming flood. 3 The proud garlands of Ephraim's drunkards shall be trampled underfoot, and the flowering sprays, so lovely in their beauty on the heads dripping with perfumes, shall be like early figs ripe before summer; he who sees them plucks them, and their bloom is gone while they lie in his hand. 5 On that day the LORD of Hosts shall be a lovely garland, a beautiful diadem for the remnant of his people, a spirit of justice for one who presides in a court of justice, and of valour for<sup>g</sup> those who repel the enemy at the gate. 7 These too are addicted to wine, clamouring in their cups: priest and prophet are addicted to strong drink and bemused with wine; clamouring in their cups, confirmed topers,<sup>h</sup> hiccuping in drunken stupor; every table is covered with vomit, filth that leaves no clean spot. 9 Who is it that the prophet hopes to teach,	to whom will what they hear make sense? Are they babes newly weaned, just taken from the breast? It is all harsh cries and raucous shouts, 'A little more here, a little there!' So it will be with barbarous speech and strange tongue that this people will hear God speaking, this people to whom he once said, 'This is true rest; let the exhausted have rest. This is repose', and they refused to listen. Now to them the word of the LORD will be harsh cries and raucous shouts, 'A little more here, a little there!— and so, as they walk, they will stumble backwards, they will be injured, trapped and caught. Listen then to the word of the LORD, you arrogant men who rule this people in Jerusalem. You say, 'We have made a treaty with Death and signed a pact with Sheol: so that, when the raging flood sweeps by, it shall not touch us; for we have taken refuge in lies and sheltered behind falsehood.' These then are the words of the Lord GOD: Look, I am laying a stone in Zion, a block of granite, a precious corner-stone for a firm foundation;	10 11 12 13 14 15 16
---	--	---

<sup>g</sup> for: prob. rdg.; Heb. om.
<sup>h</sup> These too . . . topers: or These too lose their way through wine and are set wandering by strong drink: priest and prophet lose their way through strong drink and are fuddled with wine; are set wandering by strong drink, lose their way through tipping.

28.1-6: Judgment against the Northern Kingdom. The speech probably dates before the fall of Samaria (2 Kgs.17.6) in 722-721 B.C. which signaled the end of the Northern Kingdom, Ephraim. 2: The one must be an Assyrian king. 5-6: This promise of salvation for the remnant is a later addition.

28.7-22: Judgment because of false prophets, priests, and leaders. The prophet ridicules drunken priests and prophets, holding them responsible for his people's trouble. 9-10: The drunkards mimic the language of the prophet, namely Isaiah, as if his language were the unintelligible babbling of infants, which the Heb. words imitate. 11-13: The leaders refusing to listen to God through Isaiah, will be forced to listen to him through the harsh, unintelligible shouts of the Assyrians, their conquerors. 14: The word is now addressed to those who rule, that is, the king and his advisers. 15: The treaty (or "covenant") which Isaiah ridicules may have been an agreement with Egypt for mutual aid against Assyria. 16: Faith: see 7.9 n.

- he who has faith shall not waver.
 17 I will use justice as a plumb-line and righteousness as a plummet; hail shall sweep away your refuge of lies,
 and flood-waters carry away your shelter.
 18 Then your treaty with Death shall be annulled
 and your pact with Sheol shall not stand;
 the raging waters will sweep by,
 and you will be like land swept by the flood.
 19 As often as it sweeps by, it will take you;
 morning after morning it will sweep by,
 day and night.
 The very thought of such tidings will bring nothing but dismay; 20 for 'The bed is too short for a man to stretch,
 and the blanket too narrow to cover him.'
 21 But the LORD shall arise as he rose on Mount Perazim
 and storm with rage as he did in the Vale of Gibeon
 to do what he must do—how strange a deed!
 to perform his work—how outlandish
 a work!
 22 But now have done with your arrogance,
 lest your bonds grow tighter;
 for I have heard destruction decreed
 by the Lord GOD of Hosts for the whole land.
 23 Listen and hear what I say, attend and hear my words.
 24 Will the ploughman continually plough for the sowing, breaking his ground and harrowing
 it?
 Does he not, once he has levelled it, 25 broadcast the dill and scatter the cummin?
 Does he not plant the wheat in rows with barley<sup>i</sup> and spelt along the edge?
 Does not his God instruct him and 26 train him aright?
 Dill is not threshed with a sledge, 27 and the cartwheel is not rolled over cummin;
 dill is beaten with a rod,
 and cummin with a flail.
 Corn is crushed, but not to the 28 uttermost,
 not with a final crushing;
 his cartwheels rumble over it and break it up,
 but they do not grind it fine.
 This message, too, comes from the 29
 LORD of Hosts,
 whose purposes are wonderful and his power great.
 Alas for Ariel! Ariel, 29
 the city where David encamped.
 Add year to year,
 let the pilgrim-feasts run their round, and I will bring Ariel to sore 2 straits,
 when there shall be moaning and lamentation.
 I will make her my Ariel indeed,
 my fiery altar.
 I will throw my army round you 3
 like a wall;
 I will set a ring of outposts all round you
 and erect siege-works against you.
 You shall be brought low, you will 4 speak out of the ground

i Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds an unintelligible word.

17: Plumb-line: see Amos 7.7-9. 20: The proverb cited illustrates the point: the treaty is not sufficient to save Israel. 21: Mount Perazim was the site of one of David's victories over the Philistines (2 Sam.5.17-21). Gibeon was in Benjamin (Josh.18.25); the allusion is uncertain, though Josh. 10.1-10 may be meant.

28.23-29: The parable of the farmer. No direct interpretation or application, such as in 5.1-7 and 2 Sam.12.1-6, is given here; the point (v. 29) is that the farmer's wisdom symbolizes the divine purposes. 27: In the Near East even today large grains like wheat, barley, etc. (British: corn) are threshed under a sledge pulled over the ears by oxen or donkeys. Dill and cummin are too small and soft and would be lost or crushed in such a process. 28: As corn is crushed, but not to the uttermost, neither is Israel's weakness by God.

29.1-8: Jerusalem under siege. 1-4: The occasion is probably Sennacherib's invasion of Judah in 701 B.C. (2 Kgs.18.13-35). 1: Ariel, which probably means "lion of God," is a special

- and your words will issue from the earth;
 your voice will come like a ghost's from the ground, and your words will squeak out of the earth.
- 5 Yet the horde of your enemies shall crumble into dust, the horde of ruthless foes shall fly like chaff.
 Then suddenly, all in an instant,
 6 punishment shall come from the LORD of Hosts with thunder and earthquake and a great noise, with storm and tempest and a flame of devouring fire;
 7 and the horde of all the nations warring against Ariel, all their baggage-trains and siege-works,
 and all her oppressors themselves, shall fade as a dream, a vision of the night.
- 8 Like a starving man who dreams and thinks that he is eating, but wakes up to find himself empty, or a thirsty man who dreams and thinks that he is drinking, but wakes up to find himself thirsty and dry, so shall the horde of all the nations be that war against Mount Zion.
- 9 Loiter and be dazed, enjoy yourselves and be blinded, be drunk but not with wine, reel but not with strong drink; 10 for the LORD has poured upon you a spirit of deep stupor;
 he has closed your eyes, the prophets, and muffled your heads, the seers.
- 11 All prophetic vision has become for you like a sealed book. Give such a book to one who can read and say, 'Come, read this'; he will answer, 'I cannot', because it is sealed. Give it to one who cannot read and say, 'Come, read this'; he will answer, 'I cannot read.'
- Then the Lord said:
 13 Because this people approach me with their mouths and honour me with their lips while their hearts are far from me, and their religion is but a precept of men, learnt by rote, therefore I will yet again shock this people, 14 adding shock to shock:
 the wisdom of their wise men shall vanish and the discernment of the discerning shall be lost.
- Shame upon those who seek to hide their purpose too deep for the LORD to see, and who, when their deeds are done in the dark, say, 'Who sees us? Who knows of us?' 16 How you turn things upside down, as if the potter ranked no higher than the clay!
 Shall the thing made say of its maker, 'He did not make me'?
 Shall the pot say of the potter, 'He has no skill'?
- The time is but short 17 before Lebanon goes back to grassland and the grassland is no better than scrub.
- On that day deaf men shall hear 18 when a book is read, and the eyes of the blind shall see out of impenetrable darkness.
 19 The lowly shall once again rejoice in the LORD, and the poorest of men exult in the name for Jerusalem, used only by Isaiah. 5-8: Promises of salvation from the enemy alternate with the promise of punishment, but the final word is that Jerusalem will be delivered. According to his own reports, Sennacherib besieged Jerusalem but left without destroying it. See 37.21-36. 29.9-24: Human ignorance and the LORD's plans. 9-10: The failure to see and hear comes from the LORD; see 6.9-10 n. 11-12: This seems to be a later prose addition to explain vv. 9-10. 13-14: The punishment for religious rites without depth is a loss of wisdom. 13: See Mt.15.8-9; Mk.7.6-7. Religion: lit. "their fear of me." 15-17: Not trusting God's help but seeking instead help from military alliances (as the kings of Judah did) is like the pot accusing the potter of having no skill; see 30.1-2. 17: Lebanon was proverbially very fertile. 18-21: The time will

- Holy One of Israel.
- 20 The ruthless shall be no more, the arrogant shall cease to be; those who are quick to see mischief,
- 21 those who charge others with a sin or lay traps for him who brings the wrongdoer into court or by falsehood deny justice to the righteous— all these shall be exterminated.
- 22 Therefore these are the words of the LORD the God of the house of Jacob, the God who ransomed Abraham:
- This is no time for Jacob to be shamed, no time for his face to grow pale;
23 for his descendants will hallow my name when they see what I have done in their nation. They will hallow the Holy One of Jacob and hold the God of Israel in awe;
- 24 those whose minds are confused will gain understanding, and the obstinate will receive instruction.
- 30 Oh, rebel sons! says the LORD, you make plans, but not of my devising, you weave schemes, but not inspired by me, 2 you hurry down to Egypt without consulting me, to seek protection under Pharaoh's shelter and take refuge under Egypt's wing.
3 Pharaoh's protection will bring you disappointment and refuge under Egypt's wing humiliation;
- for, though his officers are at Zoan and his envoys reach as far as Hanes, all are left in sorry plight by that unprofitable nation, no help they find, no profit, only disappointment and disgrace.
- The Beasts of the South: an oracle.
- Through a land of hardship and distress the tribes of lioness and roaring lion, sand-viper and venomous flying serpent, carry their wealth on the backs of asses and their treasures on camels' humps to an unprofitable people. Vain and worthless is the help of Egypt;
- 7 therefore have I given her this name, Rahab Quelled. Now come and write it on a tablet, engrave it as an inscription before their eyes, that it may be there in future days, a testimony for all time. For they are a race of rebels, disloyal sons, sons who will not listen to the LORD's instruction; they say to the seers, 'You shall not see', and to the visionaries, 'You shall have no true visions; give us smooth words and seductive visions. Turn aside, leave the straight path, and rid us for ever of the Holy One of Israel.'

come when, hearing and sight restored, the lowly (v. 19) will have cause for celebration, and the ruthless and arrogant (v. 20) will be destroyed.

30.1-18: The fruits of rebellion. These pronouncements are related to the period of Judah's alliance with Egypt against Assyria, 705-701 B.C. 4: Zoan and Hanes were in the Nile delta. 6-7: It is vain to seek the help of Egypt (Beasts of the South). 7: Rahab Quelled is a sarcastic title based on one of the names of the chaos dragon slain by the deity. See 27.1 n. Rahab is often a synonym for Egypt. 8-18: Several speeches concerning the danger of rebellion against the LORD support the prophet's warnings against the Egyptian alliance. 8-11: Isaiah is commanded to write down his words so that when they come true it will be known that he was a prophet. 8: See 8.1-4, 16-18. 9: Disloyal sons deny the goodness of their father, the LORD, by seeking help from Egypt or Assyria. 10: Seductive visions are false prophecies that confirm

12 These are the words of the Holy One of Israel:

Because you have rejected this warning and trust in devious and dishonest practices, resting on them for support,

13 therefore you shall find this iniquity will be like a crack running down a high wall, which bulges and suddenly, all in an instant, comes crashing down, 14 as an earthen jar is broken with a crash, mercilessly shattered, so that not a shard is found among the fragments to take fire from the glowing embers, or to scoop up water from a pool.

15 These are the words of the Lord GOD the Holy One of Israel:

Come back, keep peace, and you will be safe;
in stillness and in staying quiet, there lies your strength.

16 But you would have none of it; you said, No, we will take horse and flee; therefore you shall be put to flight: We will ride apace;

therefore swift shall be the pace of your pursuers.

17 When a thousand flee at the challenge of one, you shall all flee at the challenge of five, until you are left like a pole on a mountain-top, a signal post on a hill.

18 Yet the LORD is waiting to show you his favour, yet he yearns to have pity on you; for the LORD is a God of justice. Happy are all who wait for him!

O people of Zion who dwell in Jerusalem, you shall weep no more. The LORD will show you favour and answer you when he hears your cry for help. The Lord may give you bread of adversity and water of affliction, but he who teaches you shall no longer be hidden out of sight, but with your own eyes you shall see him always. If you stray from the road to right or left you shall hear with your own ears a voice behind you saying, This is the way; follow it. You will reject, as things unclean, your silvered images and your idols sheathed in gold; you will loathe them like a foul discharge and call them ordure.<sup>j</sup> The Lord will give you rain for the seed you sow, and as the produce of your soil he will give you heavy crops of corn in plenty. When that day comes the cattle shall graze in broad pastures; the oxen and asses that work your land shall be fed with well-seasoned fodder, winnowed with shovel and fork. On each high mountain and each lofty hill shall be streams of running water, on the day of massacre when the highest in the land fall. The moon shall shine with a brightness like the sun's, and the sun with seven times his wonted brightness, seven days' light in one, on the day when the LORD binds up the broken limbs of his people and heals their wounds.

See, the name of the LORD comes from afar, his anger blazing and his doom heavy.

His lips are charged with wrath and his tongue is a devouring fire.

His breath is like a torrent in spate, rising neck-high,

a yoke to force the nations to their ruin,

a bit in the mouth to guide the peoples astray.

<sup>j</sup> call them ordure: or say to them, Be off.

human wisdom, inclination, whim, or fancy; see 1 Kgs.22.8–28. 13: Lack of faith is like a crack in a high wall which gives way under pressure. 15: See 7.9. 16: See Amos 2.14–16. 17: Signal post: Jerusalem under siege.

30.19–26: Healing beyond punishment. Those who suffer adversity (v. 20) are encouraged to remain faithful by the assurance that a punishment will purge them and by the promise of restored prosperity. The section reflects the circumstances of the Exile; vv. 19–26 may be a late expansion of v. 18.

30.27–33: Judgment against Assyria. The approach of the LORD to punish Assyria is an

- 29 But for you there shall be songs, as on a night of sacred pilgrimage, your hearts glad, as the hearts of men who walk to the sound of the pipe
on their way to the LORD's hill, to the rock of Israel.
- 30 Then the LORD shall make his voice heard in majesty and show his arm sweeping down in fierce anger
with devouring flames of fire, with cloudburst and tempests of rain and hailstones;
- 31 for at the voice of the LORD Assyria's heart fails her, as she feels the stroke of his rod.
- 32 Tambourines and harps and shaking sistrums
shall keep time
with every stroke of his rod, of the chastisement which the LORD inflicts on her.
- 33 Long ago was Topheth made ready,<sup>k</sup> made deep and broad,
its fire-pit a blazing mass of logs, and the breath of the LORD like a stream of brimstone blazing in it.
- 31 Shame upon those who go down to Egypt for help
and rely on horses,
putting their trust in chariots many
in number
and in horsemen in their thousands, but do not look to the Holy One of Israel
or seek guidance of the LORD!
- 2 Yet the LORD too in his wisdom can bring about trouble and he does not take back his
words;
he will rise up against the league of
evildoers,
- against all who help those who do
wrong
The Egyptians are men, not God,<sup>l</sup> 3 their horses are flesh, not spirit;
and, when the LORD stretches out his hand,
the helper will stumble and he who is helped will fall,
and they will all vanish together.
- This is what the LORD has said to me: 4
- As a lion or a young lion growls over its prey
when the muster of shepherds is called out against it,
and is not scared at their noise or cowed by their clamour, so shall the LORD of Hosts come down to do battle for Mount Zion and her high summit.
- Thus the LORD of Hosts, like a bird 5 hovering over its young,
will be a shield over Jerusalem;
he will shield her and deliver her, standing over her and delivering
her.
- O Israel, come back to him whom 6
you have so deeply offended, for on that day when you spurn, 7
one and all,
the idols of silver and the idols of
gold
which your own sinful hands have made,
Assyria shall fall by the sword, but 8
by no sword of man;
a sword that no man wields shall devour him.
- He shall flee before the sword, and his young warriors shall be put to forced labour,

<sup>k</sup> Prob. rdg.: Heb. adds is that prepared also for the king?
<sup>l</sup> Or gods.

nounced. 33: The oracle is probably about 701 B.C. Topheth was a place just outside of Jerusalem where human sacrifices had been offered to the pagan deity Molech; see Lev.18.21; 2 Kgs.23.10. Assyria apparently will be slaughtered and burned there.

31.1-3: Against reliance on Egypt. The prophet again indicts those leaders who made a treaty with Egypt. 2-3: The LORD in his wisdom controls history; it is ridiculous to trust in these mere men. 2: League: an allusion to the treaty parties, i.e. Egyptians, who help, and Israel, who do wrong; see 30.1-18 n.

31.4-9: A promise to protect Jerusalem. The LORD will come down on Zion and fight against Assyria. The speech should be associated with Sennacherib's invasion of 701 B.C. See 29.1-8; 37.21-38. 5: The LORD will continue his protective role, hovering over Jerusalem like an eagle over its young, picking her up from danger; compare Deut.32.11. 6-7: The verses probably are a late addition.

- |  |  |
|--|--|
| 9 his officers shall be helpless from terrorand his captains too dismayed to flee.This is the very word of the LORDwhose fire blazes in Zion,and whose furnace is set up in Jerusalem. 32 Behold, a king shall reign in righteousnessand his rulers rule with justice,2 and a man shall be a refuge from the windand a shelter from the tempest,or like runnels of water in dry ground,like the shadow of a great rock in a thirsty land. 3 The eyes that can see will not be clouded,and the ears that can hear will listen;4 the anxious heart will understand and know,and the man who stammers will at once speak plain. 5 The scoundrel will no longer be thought noble,nor the villain called a prince;6 for the scoundrel will speak like a scoundreland will hatch evil in his heart;he is an impostor in all his actions,and in his words a liar even to the LORD;he starves the hungry of their foodand refuses drink to the thirsty. 7 The villain's ways are villainousand he devises infamous plansto ruin the poor with his liesand deny justice to the needy. 8 But the man of noble mind forms noble designsand stands firm in his nobility. 9 You women that live at ease,stand up | and hear what I have to say.You young women without a care,mark my words.You have no cares now, but when the year is out, you will tremble,10 for the vintage will be over and no produce gathered in.You who are now at ease, be anxious;11 tremble, you who have no cares.Strip yourselves bare;put a cloth round your waistsand beat your breasts12 for the pleasant fields and fruitful vines.On the soil of my people shall spring13 up thorns and briars,in every happy home and in the busy town,for the palace is forsaken and the14 crowded streets deserted;citadel<sup>m</sup> and watch-tower are turnedinto open heath,the joy of wild asses ever after andpasture for the flocks,until a spirit from on high is15 lavished upon us.Then the wilderness will becomegrasslandand grassland will be cheap asscrub;then justice shall make its home in16 the wilderness,and righteousness dwell in thegrassland;when righteousness shall yield17 peaceand its fruit be quietness andconfidence for ever.Then my people shall live in a18 tranquil country,dwelling in peace, in houses full ofease;it will be cool on the slopes of the19 forest then,and cities shall lie peaceful in theplain. |
|--|--|

m Or hill; Heb. Ophel.

32.1–8: A promise of justice and righteousness. When Israel's government is based on justice, fools will be seen for what they are. See Prov.16.12–15. 1: See 9.7; 11.3–5. 5: In Wisdom thought the scoundrel is a fool and the noble man, especially a ruler, is wise.

32.9–14: A warning to complacent women. The women, now carefree (probably at the vintage festival, v. 10) will, in a year, mourn the destruction of their fields and cities. See 3.16–24; Amos 4.1–3. 14: Citadel: the fortified hills in the old city of David.

32.15–20: A promise of peace with justice. The outpouring of the spirit reverses the desolation wrought by human complacency outlined in the previous section.

- |    |   |  |    |
|----|---|--|----|
| 20 | Happy shall you be, sowing every man by the water-side, and letting ox and ass run free.  | Now, says the LORD, I will rise up. Now I will exalt myself, now lift myself up.   | 10 |
| 33 | Ah! you destroyer, yourself undestroyed, betrayer still unbetrayed, when you cease to destroy you will be destroyed, after all your betrayals, you will be betrayed yourself. | What you conceive and bring to birth is chaff and stubble; a wind like fire shall devour you. Whole nations shall be heaps of white ash, or like thorns cut down and set on fire.            | 11 |
| 2  | O LORD, show us thy favour; we hope in thee. Uphold us every morning, save us when troubles come.   | You who dwell far away, hear what I have done; acknowledge my might, you who are near.   | 12 |
| 3  | At the roar of the thunder the peoples flee, at thy rumbling nations are scattered;   | In Zion sinners quake with terror, the godless are seized with trembling and ask,  | 13 |
| 4  | their spoil is swept up as if young locusts had swept it, like a swarm of locusts men swarm upon it.  | Can any of us live with a devouring fire? Can any live in endless burning? The man who lives an upright life and speaks the truth,   | 14 |
| 5  | The LORD is supreme, for he dwells on high; if you fill Zion with justice and with righteousness,   | who scorns to enrich himself by extortion, who snaps his fingers at a bribe, who stops his ears to hear nothing of bloodshed,  | 15 |
| 6  | then he will be the mainstay of the age: <sup>n</sup> wisdom and knowledge are the assurance of salvation; the fear of the LORD is her <sup>o</sup> treasure.                 | who closes his eyes to the sight of evil— that is the man who shall dwell on the heights,  | 16 |
| 7  | Hark, how the valiant cry aloud for help and those sent to sue for peace weep bitterly!   | his refuge a fastness in the cliffs, his bread secure and his water never failing.   | 17 |
| 8  | The highways are deserted, no travellers tread the roads. Covenants are broken, treaties are flouted; man is of no account.   | Your eyes shall see a king in his splendour and will look upon a land of far distances.  | 18 |
| 9  | The land is parched and wilting, Lebanon is eaten away and crumbling; Sharon has become a desert, Bashan and Carmel are stripped bare.  | You will call to mind what once you feared: 'Where then is he that counted, where is he that weighed, where is he that counted the treasures?' You will no longer see that barbarous people, | 19 |

n the age; prob. rdg.; Heb. your times.
o Prob. rdg.; Heb. his.

33.1–24: An exilic liturgy. It is impossible to identify the precise historical context of this psalm. The apparently disjointed units in this collection of prayers probably reflect the use of the chapter in worship after the time of Isaiah. 1: The destroyer, Babylon in 21.1–10, is not identified here. 5–6: A hymn of praise. 7–9: In the absence of the fear of the LORD the order made by man is of no account and nature itself is wilting. 10–14: Announcement of the LORD's intervention. 17–20: This poem is considered postexilic. King: God or a restored Davidic king.

- |  |   |
|--|---|
| that people whose speech was sohard to catch,whose stuttering speech you couldnot understand. 20 Look upon Zion, city of our solemnfeasts,let your eyes rest on Jerusalem,a land of comfort, a tent that shallnever be shifted,whose pegs shall never be pulledup,not one of its ropes cast loose. 21 There we have the LORD's majesty;<sup>p</sup>it will be a place<sup>q</sup> of rivers andbroad streams;but<sup>r</sup> no galleys shall be rowedthere,no stately ship sail by. 22 For the LORD our judge, the LORDour law-giver,the LORD our king—he himself willsave us. 23 [Men may say, Your rigging isslack;it will not hold the mast firm in itssocket,nor can the sails be spread.]Then the blind man shall have a fullshare of the spoiland the lame shall take part in thepillage; 24 no man who dwells there shall say,'I am sick';and the sins of the people who livethere shall be pardoned. Edom and Israel 34 Approach, you nations, to listen,and attend, you peoples;let the earth listen and everythingin it,the world and all that it yields; 2 for the LORD's anger is turnedagainst all the nations | and his wrath against all the hostof them:he gives them over to slaughter anddestruction. Their slain shall be flung out, 3the stench shall rise from theircorpses,and the mountains shall streamwith their blood. All the host of heaven shall 4crumble into nothing,the heavens shall be rolled up likea scroll,and the starry host fade away,as the leaf withers from the vineand the ripening fruit from thefig-tree; for the sword of the LORD<sup>s</sup> appears 5in heaven. See how it descends in judgementon Edom,on the people whom he dooms<sup>t</sup> todestruction. The LORD has a sword steeped in 6blood,it is gorged with fat,the fat of rams' kidneys, and theblood of lambs and goats;for he has a sacrifice in Bozrah,a great slaughter in Edom. Wild oxen shall come down and 7buffaloes<sup>u</sup> with them,bull and bison together,and the land shall drink deep ofbloodand the soil be sated with fat. For the LORD has a day of 8vengeance,the champion of Zion has a yearwhen he will requite. Edom's torrents shall be turned into 9pitchand its soil into brimstone, <small>p Or threshing-floor.q it . . . place; or instead.r Or and.s the sword of the LORD: prob. rdg.; Heb. my sword.t Prob. rdg.; Heb. I doom.u and buffaloes: prob. rdg.; Heb. om.</small> |
|--|---|

Stuttering speech: a reversal of the doom pronounced in 28.12–13. 21–24: In the messianic age not man's economy dependent on stately ships but one dependent on the LORD's majesty will prevail: no man will be sick in body or oppressed by want or sins; compare Ezek.34.11–31; 47.1–12; Mt.11.5.

34.1–35.10: Edom and Israel. Two poems, both of them exilic or postexilic, are juxtaposed to contrast the expected devastation of Edom (34.1–17) with the glorious future in store for the exiles (35.1–10).

34.1–17: The doom of Edom. Compare Ps.137.7–9. 5–8: He is coming to destroy Edom, as men slaughter animals for sacrifice. 5: Sword: see Ezek. ch. 21. 6: Bozrah was a major city in northern Edom. 9–15: As the result of divine intervention, Edom will return to a state of chaos.

- and the land shall become blazing pitch, 10 which night and day shall never be quenched,
and its smoke shall go up for ever.
From generation to generation it shall lie waste,
and no man shall pass through it ever again.
- 11 Horned owl and bustard shall make their home in it,
screech-owl and raven shall haunt it.
He has stretched across it a measuring-line of chaos, 12 and its frontiers shall be a jumble of stones.
No king shall be acclaimed there, and all its princes shall come to nought.
- 13 Thorns shall sprout in its palaces;
nettles and briars shall cover its walled towns.
It shall be rough land fit for wolves,
a haunt of desert-owls.
- 14 Marmots shall consort with jackals, and he-goat shall encounter he-goat.
There too the nightjar shall rest and find herself a place for repose.
- 15 There the sand-partridge shall make her nest,
lay her eggs and hatch them and gather her brood under her
wings;
there shall the kites gather,
one after another.
- 16 Consult the book of the LORD and read it;
not one of these shall be lacking,
not one miss its fellow,
for with his own mouth he has ordered it
and with his own breath he has brought them together.
- 17 He it is who has allotted each its
place,
and his hand has measured out their portions;
they shall occupy it for ever and dwell there from generation to generation.
- Let the wilderness and the thirsty 35 land be glad,
let the desert rejoice and burst into
flower.
Let it flower with fields of asphodel, 2 let it rejoice and shout for joy.
The glory of Lebanon is given to it, the splendour too of Carmel and Sharon;
these shall see the glory of the LORD,
the splendour of our God.
- Strengthen the feeble arms, 3 steady the tottering knees; say to the anxious, Be strong and 4 fear not.
See, your God comes with
vengeance,
with dread retribution he comes to save you.
- Then shall blind men's eyes be 5 opened,
and the ears of the deaf unstopped.
Then shall the lame man leap like 6 a deer,
and the tongue of the dumb shout aloud;
for water springs up in the
wilderness,
and torrents flow in dry land.
The mirage becomes a pool, 7
the thirsty land bubbling springs; instead of reeds and rushes, grass shall grow
in the rough land where wolves now lurk.
- And there shall be a causeway there 8 which shall be called the Way of Holiness,
and the unclean shall not pass along it;
it shall become a pilgrim's way,<sup>v</sup>
no fool shall trespass on it.
No lion shall come there, 9 no savage beast climb on to it;
not one shall be found there.
By it those he has ransomed shall return
and the LORD's redeemed come 10
home;

<sup>v</sup> a pilgrim's way: prob. rdg.; Heb. unintelligible.

11: Chaos: see Jer.4.23–28. 16–17: The announcement is trustworthy, for it is written in the book of the LORD (probably prophetic books).

35.1–10: God comes in judgment to save the exiles. This poem of the return from Exile resembles Second Isaiah; see 40.1–11; 42.17–18. 4: The anxious: those discouraged by the long captivity. 7: Like a mirage turned into a real pool of water was the announcement of the return from Exile; compare Ps.126.1. 8: Causeway: highway.

they shall enter Zion with shouts of triumph, crowned with everlasting gladness.
 Gladness and joy shall be their escort, and suffering and weariness shall flee away.

Jerusalem delivered from Sennacherib

36:1<sup>w</sup> IN THE FOURTEENTH YEAR OF THE REIGN of Hezekiah, Sennacherib king of Assyria attacked and took all the
 2 fortified cities of Judah. From Lachish he sent the chief officer<sup>x</sup> with a strong force to King Hezekiah at Jerusalem; and he halted by the conduit of the 3 Upper Pool on the causeway which leads to the Fuller's Field. There Eliakim son of Hilkiyah, the comp-
 4 troller of the household, came out to him, with Shebna the adjutant-general and Joah son of Asaph, the secretary
 5 of state. The chief officer said to them, "Tell Hezekiah that this is the message of the Great King, the king of Assyria:
 6 "What ground have you for this confidence of yours? Do you think fine words can take the place of skill and numbers? On whom then do you rely for support in your rebellion against 7 me? On Egypt? Egypt is a splintered cane that will run into a man's hand and pierce it if he leans on it. That is what Pharaoh king of Egypt proves to 8 all who rely on him. And if you tell me that you are relying on the LORD your God, is he not the god whose hill-shrines and altars Hezekiah has suppressed, telling Judah and Jerusalem that they must prostrate themselves before this altar alone?"
 9 "Now, make a bargain with my master the king of Assyria: I will give you two thousand horses if you can find 10 riders for them. Will you reject the authority of even the least of my master's servants and rely on Egypt for chariots and horsemen? Do you think that I have come to attack this land and destroy it without the consent of the LORD? No; the LORD himself said to me, "Attack this land and destroy it."" Eliakim, Shebna, and Joah said to the chief officer, "Please speak to us in Aramaic, for we understand it; do not speak Hebrew to us within earshot of the people on the city wall." The chief officer answered, "Is it to your master and to you that my master has sent me to say this? Is it not to the people sitting on the wall who, like you, will have to eat their own dung and drink their own urine?" Then he stood and shouted in Hebrew, "Hear the message of the Great King, the king of Assyria. These are the king's words: "Do not be taken in by Hezekiah. He cannot save you. Do not let him persuade you to rely on the LORD, and tell you that the LORD will save you and that this city will never be surrendered to the king of Assyria." Do not listen to Hezekiah; these are the words of the king of Assyria: "Make peace with me. Come out to me, and then you shall each eat the fruit of his own vine and his own fig-tree, and drink the water of his own cistern, until I come and take you to a land like your own, a land of grain and new wine, of corn and vineyards. Beware lest Hezekiah mislead you by telling you that the LORD will save you. Did the god of any of these nations save his land from the king of Assyria? Where are the gods of Hamath and Arpad? Where are the gods of Sepharvaim? Where are the gods of Samaria? Did they save Samaria from me? Among all the gods of these nations is there one who saved his land from me? And how is the LORD to save Jerusalem?"

The people were silent and answered not a word, for the king had given

<sup>w</sup> Verses 1-22: cp. 2 Kgs. 18. 13-37; 2 Chr. 32. 1-19.
<sup>x</sup> Or sent Rab-shakeh.

36.1-39.8: An appendix. With some variants, this material, with the exception of 38.9-20, is found in 2 Kgs.18.13-20.19. The main theme is the relationship between Isaiah and King Hezekiah through several crises.

36.1-22: First account of Sennacherib's attack. See 2 Kgs.18.13-27. This account omits the report in 2 Kgs.18.14-16 of Hezekiah's submission and tribute to the Assyrians. 1: The fourteenth year of Hezekiah was 701 B.C. 2: See 7.3. 3: See 22.15-25. 6: A reference to the alliance with Egypt; see 31.1-3. 11: Aramaic: the international language of the Assyrian empire. 13: In Hebrew: lit. "in Jewish" or "in the Judean language."

orders that no one was to answer him.
 22 Eliakim son of Hilkiah, comptroller of the household, Shebna the adjutant-general, and Joah son of Asaph, secretary of state, came to Hezekiah with their clothes rent and reported what the chief officer had said.
 37<sup>1y</sup> When King Hezekiah heard their report, he rent his clothes and wrapped himself in sackcloth, and went into the house of the LORD. He sent Eliakim comptroller of the household, Shebna the adjutant-general, and the senior priests, all covered in sackcloth, to the prophet Isaiah son of Amoz, to give him this message from the king: 'This day is a day of trouble for us, a day of reproof and contempt. We are like a woman who has no strength to bear the child that is coming to the birth.
 4 It may be that the LORD your God heard the words of the chief officer whom his master the king of Assyria sent to taunt the living God, and will confute what he, the LORD your God, heard. Offer a prayer for those who still survive.' King Hezekiah's servants came to Isaiah, and he told them to say this to their master: 'This is the word of the LORD: "Do not be alarmed at what you heard when the lackeys of the king of Assyria blasphemed me. I will put a spirit in him, and he shall hear a rumour and withdraw to his own country; and there I will make him fall by the sword."
 8 So the chief officer withdrew. He heard that the king of Assyria had left Lachish, and he found him attacking 9 Libnah. But when the king learnt that Tirhakah king of Cush was on the way to make war on him, he sent messengers again<sup>z</sup> to Hezekiah king of Judah, to say to him, 'How can you be deluded by your god on whom you rely when he promises that Jerusalem shall not fall into the hands of the king of Assyria? Surely you have heard what 11 the kings of Assyria have done to all countries, exterminating their people; can you then hope to escape? Did their 12 gods save the nations which my forefathers destroyed, Gozan, Harran, Rezep, and the people of Beth-eden living in Telassar? Where are the kings 13 of Hamath, of Arpad, and of Lahir, Sepharvaim, Hena, and Ivvah?"

Hezekiah took the letter from the 14 messengers and read it; then he went up into the house of the LORD, spread it out before the LORD and offered this 15 prayer: 'O LORD of Hosts, God of Israel, enthroned on the cherubim, thou alone art God of all the kingdoms of the earth; thou hast made heaven and earth. Turn thy ear to me, O LORD, 17 and listen; open thine eyes, O LORD, and see; hear the message that Sennacherib has sent to taunt the living God. It is true, O LORD, that the kings of 18 Assyria have laid waste every country, that they have consigned their gods to 19 the fire and destroyed them; for they were no gods but the work of men's hands, mere wood and stone. But now, 20 O LORD our God, save us from his power, so that all the kingdoms of the earth may know that thou, O LORD, alone art God.'

Isaiah son of Amoz sent to Hezekiah 21 and said, 'This is the word of the LORD the God of Israel: I have heard your prayer to me concerning Sennacherib king of Assyria. This is the word which 22 the LORD has spoken concerning him:

The virgin daughter of Zion disdains
 you,
 she laughs you to scorn;
 the daughter of Jerusalem tosses her
 head
 as you retreat.

<sup>y</sup> Verses 1-38: cp. 2 Kgs. 19, 1-37; 2 Chr. 32, 20-22.
<sup>z</sup> again: prob. rdg., cp. 2 Kgs. 19, 9; Heb. and he heard.

37.1-7: Hezekiah turns to Isaiah. See 2 Kgs. 19.1-7. The king and his officials, afraid and in mourning, consult Isaiah who announces the end of the siege and the death of Sennacherib. 1: Rent his clothes: sign of consternation and despair. Sackcloth: symbol of mourning and repentance.

37.8-20: A second account of Sennacherib's attack. See 2 Kgs. 19.9-19. This narrative is another tradition of the events reported in 36.1-37.7. 9: Tirhakah was a member of the royal house of Ethiopia, Cush, which gained control over Egypt to become the Twenty-fifth Dynasty. 12: Nations: places in Mesopotamia. 14-20: Instead of summoning Isaiah, Hezekiah goes to the Temple to pray for help.

37.21-38: Isaiah's intervention. See 2 Kgs. 19.20-34. 22: Virgin daughter of Zion: prophetic 23 Whom have you taunted and blasphemed?

 Against whom have you clamoured, casting haughty glances at the Holy One of Israel?
 24 You have sent your servants to taunt the Lord, and said:
 With my countless chariots I have gone up high in the mountains, into the recesses of Lebanon.
 I have cut down its tallest cedars,
 the best of its pines,
 I have reached its highest limit of forest and meadow.<sup>a</sup> 25 I have dug wells
 and drunk the waters of a foreign land, and with the soles of my feet I have dried up all the streams of Egypt.
 26 Have you not heard long ago?
 I did it all.
 In days gone by I planned it and now I have brought it about, making fortified cities tumble down into heaps of rubble.
 27 Their citizens, shorn of strength, disheartened and ashamed, were but as plants in the field, as green herbs, as grass on the roof-tops blasted before the east wind.
 28 I know your rising up and your sitting down, your going out and your coming in.
 29 The frenzy of your rage against me and your arrogance
 have come to my ears.
 I will put a ring in your nose
 and a hook in your lips, and I will take you back by the road on which you have come.

This shall be the sign for you: this 30 year you shall eat shed grain and in the second year what is self-sown; but in the third year sow and reap, plant vineyards and eat their fruit. The sur- 31 vivors left in Judah shall strike fresh root under ground and yield fruit above ground, for a remnant shall come 32 out of Jerusalem and survivors from Mount Zion. The zeal of the LORD of Hosts will perform this.
 'Therefore, this is the word of the 33
 LORD concerning the king of Assyria:

He shall not enter this city nor shoot an arrow there, he shall not advance against it with shield
 nor cast up a siege-ramp against it.
 By the way on which he came he 34 shall go back;
 this city he shall not enter.
 This is the very word of the
 LORD.
 I will shield this city to deliver it, 35 for my own sake and for the sake of my servant David.'

The angel of the LORD went out and 36 struck down a hundred and eighty-five thousand men in the Assyrian camp;
 when morning dawned, they all lay dead. So Sennacherib king of Assyria 37 broke camp, went back to Nineveh and stayed there. One day, while he was 38 worshipping in the temple of his god Nisroch, Adrammelech and Sharezer his sons murdered him and escaped to the land of Ararat. He was succeeded by his son Esarhaddon.

At this time Hezekiah fell dan- 38<sup>b</sup> gerously ill and the prophet Isaiah son of Amoz came to him and said, 'This is the word of the LORD: Give your

<sup>a</sup> and meadow; prob. rdg.; Heb. its meadow.
<sup>b</sup> Verses 1-8, 21, 22: cp. 2 Kgs. 20. 1-11.

term for Jerusalem. Tosses her head: gesture of contempt. 24: Tallest cedars of Lebanon: the most powerful and exalted kings; compare Ezek.31.3-14. 25: To dry up streams . . . with the soles of the feet is a figure of speech for easy victory over Egypt whose power is in the Nile River. 26: Achievements claimed by Assyria were planned and brought about by God. 27: Grass sprang up on the mud roof-tops of Palestinian houses but dried up quickly in the east wind from the desert. 29: Under God's power Sennacherib is as helpless as a prisoner led into captivity with a hook in his lips. 30: Either the sign is that after two years conditions of life will be normal; or it may be a proverb that the change from adversity to prosperity is gradual. 32: Remnant: see 10.21-22 n. 36: An angel of the LORD appears in the Bible either as the LORD himself (Exod.3.2-6) or as a messenger or agent of God's will in some event.

38.1-22: Hezekiah's illness. See 2 Kgs.20.1-11. 3: Hezekiah uses the language of the Lament; last instructions to your household, for you are a dying man and will not recover.' Hezekiah turned his face to the wall and offered this prayer to the LORD: 'O LORD, remember how I have lived before thee, faithful and loyal in thy service, always doing what was good in thine eyes.' And he wept bitterly. Then the word of the LORD came to Isaiah: 'Go and say to Hezekiah: "This is the word of the LORD the God of your father David: I have heard your prayer and seen your tears; I will add fifteen years to your life. I will deliver you and this city from the king of Assyria and will protect this city."' Then Isaiah told them to apply a fig-plaster; so they made one and applied it to the boil, and he recovered. Then Hezekiah said, 'By what sign shall I know that I shall go up into the house of the LORD?' And Isaiah said,<sup>d</sup> 'This shall be your sign from the LORD that he will do what he has promised. Watch the shadow cast by the sun on the stairway of Ahaz: I will bring backwards ten steps the shadow which has gone down on the stairway.' And the sun went back ten steps on the stairway down which it had gone.

9 A poem of Hezekiah king of Judah after his recovery from his illness, as it was written down:

10 I thought: In the prime of life I must pass away;
for the rest of my years I am consigned to the gates of Sheol.

11 I said: I shall no longer see the LORD
in the land of the living;
never again, like those who live in the world,
shall I look on a man.

12 My dwelling is taken from me, pulled up like a shepherd's tent;
thou hast cut short my life like a weaver who severs the web from the thrum.

From morning to night thou tormentest me,
then I am racked with pain till the morning.

All my bones are broken, as a lion would break them;
from morning to night thou tormentest me.
I twitter as if I were a swallow,
I moan like a dove.
My eyes falter as I look up to the heights;
O Lord, pay heed, stand surety for me.

How can I complain, what can I say to the LORD when he himself has done this?
I wander to and fro all my life long in the bitterness of my soul.

Yet, O Lord, my soul shall live with thee;
do thou give my spirit rest.<sup>e</sup> Restore me and give me life.
Bitterness had indeed been my lot in place of prosperity;
but thou by thy love hast brought me back from the pit of destruction; for thou hast cast all my sins behind thee.

Sheol cannot confess thee,
Death cannot praise thee, nor can they who go down to the abyss hope for thy truth.

The living, the living alone can confess thee
as I do this day,
as a father makes thy truth known,
O God, to his sons.

The LORD is at hand to save me;
so let us sound the music of our praises all our life long in the house of the LORD.<sup>f</sup>

At this time Merodach-baladan son of Baladan king of Babylon sent

<sup>c</sup> Verses 21, 22 transposed.

<sup>d</sup> And Isaiah said: prob. rdg., cp. 2 Kgs. 20. 9; Heb. om.

<sup>e</sup> Yet . . . rest: prob. rdg.; Heb. unintelligible.

<sup>f</sup> Verses 21, 22 transposed to follow verse 6.

<sup>g</sup> Verses 1-8: cp. 2 Kgs. 20. 12-19.

see Introduction to Pss. 9-20: The song ascribed here to Hezekiah is a typical individual thanksgiving psalm, used in the Temple service of thanksgiving for deliverance from suffering. See Pss. 32; 116. 11: See the LORD: visit the Temple. 18-19: According to Hebrew thought, it was impossible to confess, i.e. praise, God or relate to him, after death.

39.1-8: Hezekiah and ambassadors from Babylon. See 2 Kgs. 20.12-19. The Babylonian king envoys with a gift to Hezekiah; for he had heard that he had been ill and was well again. Hezekiah welcomed them and showed them all his treasury, silver and gold, spices and fragrant oil, his entire armoury and everything to be found among his treasures; there was nothing in his house and in all his realm that Hezekiah did not show them. Then the prophet Isaiah came to King Hezekiah and asked him, 'What did these men say and where have they come from?' 'They have come from a far-off country,' Hezekiah answered, 'from Babylon.' Then Isaiah asked, 'What did they see in your house?' 'They saw everything,' Hezekiah replied; 'there was nothing among my treasures that I did not show them.' Then Isaiah said to Hezekiah, 'Hear the word of the LORD of Hosts: The time is coming, says the LORD, when everything in your house, and all that your forefathers have amassed till the present day, will be carried away to Babylon; not a thing shall be left. And some of the sons who will be born to you, sons of your own begetting, shall be taken and shall be made eunuchs in the palace of the king of Babylon.' Hezekiah answered, 'The word of the LORD which you have spoken is good'; thinking to himself that peace and security would last out his lifetime.

News of the returning exiles

40 Comfort, comfort my people;<sup>h</sup>
—it is the voice of your God;
2 speak tenderly to Jerusalem<sup>i</sup> and tell her this,
that she has fulfilled her term of bondage,
that her penalty is paid;

she has received at the LORD's hand double<sup>j</sup> measure for all her sins.

There is a voice that cries: 3 Prepare a road for the LORD
through the wilderness, clear a highway across the desert for
our God.

Every valley shall be lifted up, 4 every mountain and hill brought
down;
rugged places shall be made smooth and mountain-ranges become a plain.

Thus shall the glory of the LORD 5
be revealed,
and all mankind together shall see it;
for the LORD himself has spoken.

A voice says, 'Cry', 6
and another asks, 'What shall I cry?'
'That all mankind is grass, they last no longer than a flower of
the field.

The grass withers, the flower fades, 7 when the breath of<sup>k</sup> the LORD blows upon them;<sup>l</sup>

the grass withers, the flowers fade, 8 but the word of our God endures for evermore.<sup>m</sup>

You who bring Zion good news,<sup>n</sup> up 9 with you to the mountain-top;
lift up your voice and shout, you who bring good news to Jerusalem,<sup>n</sup> lift it up fearlessly;
cry to the cities of Judah, 'Your God is here.'

h Comfort . . . people: or Comfort, O my people, comfort.

i speak . . . Jerusalem: or bid Jerusalem be of good heart.

j double: or full.

k the breath of: or a wind from.

l Prob. rdg.: Heb. adds surely the people are grass.

m You . . . news: or O Zion, bringer of good news.

n you . . . Jerusalem: or O Jerusalem, bringer of good news.

sent envoys to Hezekiah, ostensibly to inquire about his health, but probably to encourage rebellion against Assyria. The date is probably 705–703 B.C. Isaiah criticizes the welcome given the Babylonians and announces judgment against Hezekiah.

40.1–55.13: Words of hope. On Second Isaiah, see Introduction.

40.1–11: The prophet's commission. 1: This second part of Isaiah is known as "The Consolation of Israel" because the prophet brings comfort to the captives in the Exile. 2: Fulfilled . . . bondage: the Exile is over. 3: The voice that cries, here and in v. 6, is that of the LORD giving the prophet his mission (6.8; Jer.1.7–10; Ezek.2.1–3) to prepare the return from the captivity across the desert as in the Exodus. 4: God will eliminate all difficulties from the path of the returning captives. 5: The glory of the LORD, i.e. the presence and power of God, will become manifest to all nations in the restoration of Israel. 6–8: Like First Isaiah (6.1–13), this prophet overhears the discussion in the heavenly council. 6: Another: the prophet.

- |   |   |   |
|---|---|---|
| 10 Here is the Lord GOD coming inmight,coming to rule with his right arm.His recompense comes with him,he carries his reward before him. 11 He will tend his flock like ashepherdand gather them together withhis arm;he will carry the lambs in his bosomand lead the ewes to water. Israel delivered and redeemed 12 Who has gauged the waters in thepalm of his hand,or with its span set limits to theheavens?Who has held all the soil of earthin a bushel,or weighed the mountains on abalanceand the hills on a pair of scales?13 Who has set limits to the spirit ofthe LORD?What counsellor stood at his sideto instruct him?14 With whom did he confer to gaindiscernment?Who taught him how to do justiceor gave him lessons in wisdom?15 Why, to him nations are but dropsfrom a bucket,no more than moisture on thescales;coasts and islands weigh as light asspecks of dust.16 All Lebanon does not yield woodenough for fuelor beasts enough for a sacrifice.17 All nations dwindle to nothingbefore him,he reckons them mere nothings, lessthan nought. 18 What likeness will you find for Godor what form to resemble his?19 Is it an image which a craftsmansets up, | and a goldsmith covers with plateand fits with studs of silver as acostly gift?Or is it mulberry-wood that willnot rot which a man chooses,seeking out a skilful craftsman for it,to mount an image that will not fall?Each workman helps the others,each man encourages his fellow.The craftsman urges on thegoldsmith,the gilder urges the man who beatsthe anvil,he declares the soldering to besound;he fastens the image with nailsso that it will not fall down. Do you not know, have you notheard,were you not told long ago,have you not perceived ever sincethe world began,that God sits throned on the vaultedroof of earth,whose inhabitants are likegrasshoppers?He stretches out the skies like acurtain,he spreads them out like a tent tolive in;he reduces the great to nothingand makes all earth's princes lessthan nothing.Scarcely are they planted, scarcelysown,scarcely have they taken root in theearth,before he blows upon them andthey wither away,and a whirlwind carries them offlike chaff.To whom then will you liken me,whom set up as my equal?asks the Holy One.Lift up your eyes to the heavens;consider who created it all, <small>o These are verses 6 and 7 of ch. 41, transposed to this point.p Or locusts.</small> | 20 21 22 23 24 25 26 |
|---|---|---|

40.12-31: The majestic Creator. 12-14: Rhetorical questions stress the majesty (v. 12) and the wisdom (vv. 13-14) of God. 15-17: All nations are nothing before him. 15: Coasts and islands: lit. "islands." 16: Lebanon had the biggest forest of the largest trees known to ancient man. 18-20: Probably an interpolation, with 41.6-7. No image resembles God. 21-24: God controls the destinies of men. 22: The vaulted roof is the horizon or the dome over the earth. 25-26: Holy One of Israel, the characteristic title given to God by Second Isaiah, has its foun-

led out their host one by one and called them all by their names; through his great might, his might and power, not one is missing. 27 Why do you complain, O Jacob, and you, Israel, why do you say, 'My plight is hidden from the LORD and my cause has passed out of God's notice'? 28 Do you not know, have you not heard? The LORD, the everlasting God, creator of the wide world, grows neither weary nor faint; no man can fathom his understanding. 29 He gives vigour to the weary, new strength to the exhausted. 30 Young men may grow weary and faint, even in their prime they may stumble and fall; 31 but those who look to the LORD will win new strength, they will grow wings like eagles; they will run and not be weary, they will march on and never grow faint. 41 Keep silence before me, all you coasts and islands; let the peoples come to meet me.<sup>q</sup> Let them come near, then let them speak; we will meet at that place of judgement, I and they. 2 Tell me, who raised up that one from the east, one greeted by victory wherever he goes? Who is it that puts nations into his power and makes kings go down before him,<sup>r</sup>	he scatters them with his sword like dust and with his bow like chaff before the wind; he puts them to flight and passes 3 on unscathed, swifter than any traveller on foot? Whose work is this, I ask, who has 4 brought it to pass? Who has summoned the generations from the beginning? It is I, the LORD, I am the first, and to the last of them I am He. Coasts and islands saw it and were 5 afraid, the world trembled from end to end.<sup>s</sup> But you, Israel my servant, 8<sup>t</sup> you, Jacob whom I have chosen, race of Abraham my friend, I have taken you up, 9 have fetched you from the ends of the earth, and summoned you from its farthest corners, I have called you my servant, have chosen you and not cast you off; fear nothing, for I am with you; 10 be not afraid, for I am your God. I strengthen you, I help you, I support you with my victorious right hand. Now shall all who defy you 11 be disappointed and put to shame; all who set themselves against you shall be as nothing; they shall vanish.
--	--

q come to meet me: prob. rdg., transposing, with slight change, from end of verse 5; Heb. win new strength (repeated from 40. 31).

r before him: prob. rdg.; Heb. om.

s See note on verse 1.

t Verses 6 and 7 transposed to follow 40. 20.

dation in the inaugural vision of Isaiah of Jerusalem; see 6.3. It signifies that God is and acts beyond all earthly and/or profane causality and motivation. Hence, the terms "creator" and created are used more frequently by Second Isaiah than by any other OT writer; see 41.20, 42.5, etc. 28: See Pss. 90.2; 147.5. 31: See Pss. 103.5.

41.1-29: The LORD in court. The framework of the chapter is a courtroom scene (place of judgement, v. 1) in which the LORD himself argues the case that he controls historical events. 1: Coasts and islands: all the earth to the farthest reaches of the Mediterranean Sea, the then known world. 2: The one from the east of whom these first four verses speak is Cyrus, whom the ancient world welcomed as a benevolent liberator from the harsh Babylonians. 4: God will be there when the last generations of men will cease to be. 8: In Second Isaiah, Israel is represented as a servant chosen anew by God, never to be cast off again to the mercy of the nations. The title servant was applied to the patriarchs, Abraham and Jacob (Gen.26.24; 28.25), and to prophets

- 12 You will look for your assailants
but not find them;
all who take up arms against you shall be as nothing, nothing at all.
- 13 For I, the LORD your God, take you by the right hand;
I say to you, Do not fear;
It is I who help you,
- 14 fear not, Jacob you worm and Israel poor louse.
It is I who help you, says the LORD, your ransom, the Holy One of Israel.
- 15 See, I will make of you a sharp
threshing-sledge,
new and studded with teeth;
you shall thresh the mountains and crush them
and reduce the hills to chaff; 16 you shall winnow them, the wind shall carry them away
and a great gale shall scatter them.
Then shall you rejoice in the LORD and glory in the Holy One of Israel.
- 17 The wretched and the poor look for water and find none, their tongues are parched with
thirst;
but I the LORD will give them an
answer,
I, the God of Israel, will not forsake them.
- 18 I will open rivers among the sand-dunes
and wells in the valleys;
I will turn the wilderness into pools and dry land into springs of water;
- 19 I will plant cedars in the wastes, and acacia and myrtle and wild olive;
the pine shall grow on the barren heath
side by side with fir and box, 20 that men may see and know, may once for all give heed and understand
- that the LORD himself has done this,
that the Holy One of Israel has performed it.
- Come, open your plea, says the LORD, 21 present your case, says Jacob's King; let them come forward, these idols, 22
let them foretell the future.
Let them declare the meaning of past events
that we may give our minds to it; let them predict things that are to be that we may know their outcome.
Declare what will happen hereafter; 23
then we shall know you are gods.
Do what you can, good or ill, anything that may grip us with fear and awe.
You cannot! You are sprung from 24
nothing,
your works are rotten;
whoever chooses you is vile as you are.
I roused one from the north, and 25
he obeyed;
I called one from the east, summoned him in<sup>u</sup> my name, he marches over viceroys as if they were mud,
like a potter treading his clay.
Tell us, who declared this from the 26 beginning, that we might know
it,
or told us beforehand so that we could say, 'He was right'?
- Not one declared, not one foretold, not one heard a sound from you.
Here is one who will speak first as 27 advocate for Zion,
here I appoint defending counsel for Jerusalem;
but from the other side no advocate 28 steps forward and, when I look, there is no one there.
I ask a question and no one answers;
see what empty things they are! 29

<sup>u</sup> summoned him in: or who will call on.

and kings, especially David. 14: The ransomer (Heb. goel) was the closest relative, whose duty it was to be the "avenger of blood" (Num.35.19-29) in a murder, or to buy back a kinsman from slavery (Lev.25.48), or to pay his debt. The LORD is Israel's nearest kin who first ransomed them from Egypt by his mighty deeds of the Exodus and now will repeat the wonders. 18: The return from captivity will be more wonderful than the Exodus because the LORD will not only furnish water in the desert (Num.20.8-12) but will transform it into pools. 21: Plea . . . case: language of a juridical process. 25: One from the north . . . east: Cyrus from Persia. 27: The LORD is the one who speaks as the advocate (lawyer) for Israel, 28-29: On the expression of monotheism, see Introduction. 29: A final sarcastic denial of the existence of other gods.

	Nothing that they do has any worth, their effigies are wind, mere nothings.		I am the LORD; the LORD <sup>z</sup> is my name; I will not give my glory to another god, nor my praise to any idol.	8
42	Here is my servant, whom I uphold, my chosen one in whom I delight, I have bestowed my spirit upon him, and he will make justice shine on the nations.		See how the first prophecies have come to pass, and now I declare new things; before they break from the bud I announce them to you.	9
2	He will not call out or lift his voice high, or <sup>v</sup> make himself heard in the open street.		Sing a new song to the LORD, sing his praise throughout the earth, you that sail the sea, and all sea-creatures, and you that inhabit the coasts and islands.	10
3	He will not break a bruised reed, or snuff out a smouldering wick; he will make justice shine on every race, <sup>w</sup>		Let the wilderness and its towns rejoice, and the villages of the tribe of Kedar.	11
4	never faltering, never breaking down, <sup>x</sup> he will plant justice on earth, while coasts and islands wait for his teaching.		Let those who live in Sela shout for joy and cry out from the hill-tops. You coasts and islands, all uplift his praises; let all ascribe glory to the LORD.	12
5	Thus speaks the LORD who is God, he who created the skies and stretched them out, who fashioned the earth and all that grows in it, who gave breath to its people, the breath of life to all who walk upon it:		The LORD will go forth as a warrior, he will rouse the frenzy of battle like a hero; he will shout, he will raise the battle-cry and triumph over his foes.	13
6	I, the LORD, have called you with righteous purpose and taken you by the hand; I have formed you, and appointed you to be a light <sup>y</sup> to all peoples, a beacon for the nations,		I kept silence and held myself in check; now I will cry like a woman in labour,	14
7	to open eyes that are blind, to bring captives out of prison, out of the dungeons where they lie in darkness.

<sup>v</sup> He will not . . . or: or In very truth he will call out and lift his voice high, and . . .
<sup>w</sup> on every race: or in truth.
<sup>x</sup> never faltering . . . down: or he will neither rebuke nor wound.
<sup>y</sup> Or a covenant. <sup>z</sup> the LORD: or He.

42.1–43.7: Israel, the servant of God. These poems (except possibly the hymn in 42.10–13) speak of the relationship between God and his servant, and of the role of that servant.

42.1–4: First servant song. This and three other passages in Second Isaiah are generally acknowledged to have a unique orientation; the other three are 49.1–6; 50.4–11; 52.13–53.12. Here God himself speaks to introduce his servant. Some scholars argue that the servant is a particular individual but without agreement concerning his identity; both the language and context of this song, however, urge that he is Israel. 1: Spirit: see 11.2 n. 2–4: The servant will be gentle of voice and sympathetic to those in desperate spiritual straits, the bruised reed and smouldering wick. 4: Teaching, or “Law” (Heb. Torah), parallels justice. The servant will bring it to all peoples, the coasts and islands.

42.5–43.7: The Creator and his servant Israel. 6: With righteous purpose: according to the divine plan. Formed is the same word used in Gen.2.7 for the making of man, i.e. a potter molding clay. 10–11: Kedar and Sela, remote inhabited places in the desert of Arabia, the former to the north and the latter to the south, will praise the LORD along with the remote whimpering, panting and gasping.

 15 I will lay waste mountains and hills and shrivel all their green herbs;
 I will turn rivers into desert wastes<sup>a</sup>
 and dry up all the pools.
 16 Then will I lead blind men on their way<sup>b</sup>
 and guide them by paths they do not know;
 I will turn darkness into light before
 them
 and straighten their twisting roads.
 All this I will do and leave nothing undone.
 17 Those who trust in an image, those who take idols for their gods turn tail in bitter shame.
 18 Hear now, you that are deaf;
 you blind men, look and see:
 19 yet who is blind but my servant,
 who so deaf as the messenger whom I send?
 Who so blind as the one who holds my commission,
 so deaf as the servant of the
 LORD?
 20 You have seen much but remembered little,
 your ears are wide open but nothing is heard.
 21 It pleased the LORD, for the furtherance of his justice, to make his law a law of surpassing
 majesty;
 22 yet here is a people plundered and taken as prey,
 all of them ensnared, trapped in holes,
 lost to sight in dungeons, carried off as spoil without hope of
 rescue,
 as plunder with no one to say,
 'Give it back.'
 23 Hear this, all of you who will, listen henceforward and give me a hearing:
 24 who gave away Jacob for plunder, who gave Israel away for spoil?

Was it not the LORD? They sinned against him,
 they would not follow his ways and refused obedience to his law; so in his anger he poured out upon 25
 Jacob
 his wrath and the fury of battle.
 It wrapped him in flames, yet still he did not learn the lesson, scorched him, yet he did not lay it to heart.

But now this is the word of the 43
 LORD,
 the word of your creator, O Jacob,
 of him who fashioned you, Israel:
 Have no fear; for I have paid your ransom;
 I have called you by name and you are my own.
 When you pass through deep waters, 2
 I am with you,
 when you pass through rivers,
 they will not sweep you away;
 walk through fire and you will not be scorched,
 through flames and they will not burn you.
 For I am the LORD your God, 3 the Holy One of Israel, your
 deliverer;
 for your ransom I give Egypt,
 Nubia and Seba are your price.
 You are more precious to me than 4
 the Assyrians,
 you are honoured and I have loved
 you,
 I would give the Edomites in exchange for you,
 and the Leummim for your life.

Have no fear; for I am with you; 5
 I will bring your children from the east
 and gather you all from the west.
 I will say to the north, 'Give them 6
 up',
 and to the south, 'Do not hold them back.'

<sup>a</sup> desert wastes: prob. rdg.; Heb. coasts and islands.
<sup>b</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds which they do not know.

places to the west, the coasts and islands. 18-19: God heals the deaf and blind Israelites, his servant, thereby reversing the action performed by Isaiah at his command in 6.10. 22: People . . . taken as prey: Israel in the Exile. No human power, but only God will say to Babylon: "Give back the captives." 43.3: God gave Egypt and Nubia (in Africa) and Seba (in Arabia) into the hands of the Persians so that Israel might be allowed to return from the Exile. 6-7: Israel

	Bring my sons and daughters from afar, bring them from the ends of the earth;		For your sakes I have sent to Babylon;
7	bring every one who is called by my name, all whom I have created, whom I have formed, all whom I have made for my glory.'		I will lay the Chaldaeans prostrate as they flee, and their cry of triumph will turn to groaning.
8	Bring out this people, a people who have eyes but are blind, who have ears but are deaf.		I am the LORD, your Holy One, your creator, Israel, and your King.	15
9	All the nations are gathered together and the peoples assembled. Who amongst them can expound this thing and interpret for us all that has gone before? Let them produce witnesses to prove their case, or let them listen and say, 'That is the truth.'		Thus says the LORD, who opened a way in the sea and a path through mighty waters, who drew on chariot and horse to their destruction, a whole army, men of valour; there they lay, never to rise again; they were crushed, snuffed out like a wick:	16 17
10	My witnesses, says the LORD, are you, my servants, you whom I have chosen to know me and put your faith in me and understand that I am He. Before me there was no god fashioned nor ever shall be after me.		Cease to dwell on days gone by and to brood over past history. Here and now I will do a new thing; this moment it will break from the bud. Can you not perceive it? I will make a way even through the wilderness and paths in the barren desert; the wild beasts shall do me honour, the wolf and the ostrich; for I will provide water in the wilderness and rivers in the barren desert, where my chosen people may drink.	18 19
11	I am the LORD, I myself, and none but I can deliver.		I have formed this people for myself and they shall proclaim my praises.	21
12	I myself have made it known in full, and declared it, I and no alien god amongst you, and you are my witnesses, says the LORD.		Yet you did not call upon me, O Jacob; much less did you weary yourself in my service, O Israel.	22
13	I am God; from this very day I am He. What my hand holds, none can snatch away; what I do, none can undo.		You did not bring me sheep as whole-offerings	23
14	Thus says the LORD your ransomer, the Holy One of Israel:

brought back from Exile is a people newly created by God—begotten by him, they are his sons and daughters and can be called by his name.

43.8–44.8: Israel can witness that the LORD is God. As in 41.1–29, the framework of these poems is the legal process; the court will decide who is God and whether the LORD is a just God. 8–10: In this court scene God calls blind and deaf Israel as witnesses to prove that he alone is God. 14: Ransomer: see 41.14 n. The LORD has sent his power to Babylon to act on behalf of Israel. Holy One: see 40.25–26 n. 15: The King in the Ancient Near East was an absolute ruler having the power of life and death. Only the LORD has such power in Israel because he was her creator. 19–21: The return from Exile is a creative act by which a new thing, i.e. the redeemed people of Israel, is formed. 23: The Law did require sacrifices, but neither the

- or honour me with sacrifices;
I asked you for no burdensome offerings and wearied you with no demands for incense.
- 24 You did not buy me sweet-cane with your money or glut me with the fat of your sacrifices; rather you burdened me with your sins and wearied me with your iniquities.
- 25 I alone, I am He,
who for his own sake wipes out your transgressions, who will remember your sins no more.
- 26 Cite me by name, let us argue it out;
set forth your pleading and justify yourselves.
- 27 Your first father transgressed, your spokesmen rebelled against me, 28 and your princes profaned my sanctuary;
so I sent Jacob to his doom and left Israel to execration.
- 44 Hear me now, Jacob my servant,
hear me, my chosen Israel.
- 2 Thus says the LORD your maker, your helper, who fashioned you from birth:
have no fear, Jacob my servant,
Jeshurun whom I have chosen,
3 for I will pour down rain on a thirsty land, showers on the dry ground.
I will pour out my spirit on your offspring and my blessing on your children.
- 4 They shall spring up like a green tamarisk, like poplars by a flowing stream.
- This man shall say, 'I am the LORD's man', that one shall call himself a son of Jacob, another shall write the LORD's name on his hand and shall add the name of Israel to his own.
- Thus says the LORD, Israel's King, the LORD of Hosts, his ransomers:
I am the first and I am the last,
and there is no god but me.
Who is like me? Let him stand up, let him declare himself and speak and show me his evidence, let him announce beforehand<sup>c</sup> things to come,
let him<sup>d</sup> declare what is yet to happen.
- Take heart, do not be afraid. 8
Did I not foretell this long ago?
I declared it, and you are my witnesses.
Is there any god beside me,
or any creator, even one I do not know?
- Those who make idols are less than 9
nothing;
all their cherished images profit nobody;
their worshippers are blind,
sheer ignorance makes fools of them.
- If a man makes a god or casts an 10
image,
his labour is wasted.
Why! its votaries show their folly; 11
the craftsmen too are but men.
Let them all gather together and confront me, all will be afraid and look the fools they are.

<sup>c</sup> let him announce beforehand: prob. rdg.; Heb. since my appointing an ancient people and . . .
<sup>d</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. them.

Law nor the prophets looked upon these as the basic bonds in Israel's relation to her God (see 1.11; Exod.20.23-23.19; Jer.7.21-23). 24: Sweet-cane: an aromatic plant used in making incense and sacred anointing oil; see Exod.30.23-25. 26: The LORD wants Israel (compare Job 13.15-27; 16.21) to cite him to a lawsuit, if it feels unjustly oppressed. 27: First father: Jacob (Gen.27.1-29; Hos.12.2-4). Your spokesmen: rulers, priests, and prophets. 44.2: Jeshurun: a name for Israel; it appears also in Deut.32.15; 33.5,26. 3: Spirit: see 11.1 n. 5: The name of his owner was tattooed on the hand of a Babylonian slave (see Rev.13.16). 6: Ransomers: see 41.14 n.

44.9-20: Idols and idolaters are ridiculous. This biting satire on idolatry appears to be an addition to the preceding verses as a commentary on them. In the MT, the entire unit is understood as prose. 9-11: All who make idols are fools. 10: See 41.29; 45.20. 11: See 1.29; 42.17.

- 12 The blacksmith sharpens a graving tool and hammers out his work<sup>e</sup> hot from the coals and shapes it with his strong arm; when he grows hungry his strength fails, if he has no water to drink he tires. The woodworker draws his line taut and marks out a figure with a scribe; he planes the wood and measures it with callipers, and he carves it to the shape of a man, comely as the human form, to be set up presently in a house.<sup>f</sup>
- 14 A man plants a cedar and the rain makes it grow, so that later on he will have cedars to cut down; or he chooses an ilex or an oak to raise a stout tree for himself in the forest. It becomes fuel for his fire: some of it he takes and warms himself, some he kindles and bakes bread on it, and some he makes into a god and prostrates himself, shaping it into an idol and bowing down before it. The one half of it he burns in the fire and on this he roasts meat, so that he may eat his roast and be satisfied; he also warms himself at it and he says, 'Good! I can feel the heat, I am growing warm.' Then what is left of the wood he makes into a god by carving it into shape; he bows down to it and prostrates himself and prays to it, saying, 'Save me; for thou art my god.' Such people neither know nor understand, their eyes made too blind to see, their minds too narrow to discern. Such a man will not use his reason, he has neither the wit nor the sense to say, 'Half of it I have burnt, yes, and used its embers to bake bread; I have roasted meat on them too and eaten it; but the rest of it I turn into this abominable thing and so I am worshipping a log of wood.' He feeds on ashes indeed! His own deluded mind has misled him, he cannot recollect himself so far as to say, 'Why! this thing in my hand is a sham.'
- 21 Remember all this, Jacob, remember, Israel, for you are my servant,
- I have fashioned you, and you are to serve me;
you shall not forget me, Israel.
I have swept away your sins like a dissolving mist,
and your transgressions are dispersed like clouds;
turn back to me; for I have ransomed you.
Shout in triumph, you heavens, for it is the LORD's doing;
cry out for joy, you lowest depths of the earth;
break into songs of triumph, you mountains,
you forest and all your trees;
for the LORD has ransomed Jacob and made Israel his masterpiece.
- Thus says the LORD, your ransomer, who fashioned you from birth:
I am the LORD who made all things,
by myself I stretched out the skies, alone I hammered out the floor of the earth.
I frustrate false prophets and their signs and make fools of diviners;
I reverse what wise men say and make nonsense of their wisdom.
I make my servants' prophecies come true and give effect to my messengers' designs.
I say of Jerusalem,
'She shall be inhabited once more',
and of the cities of Judah, 'They shall be rebuilt;
all their ruins I will restore.'
I say to the deep waters, 'Be dried up;
I will make your streams run dry.'
I say to Cyrus, 'You shall be my shepherd to carry out all my purpose, so that Jerusalem may be rebuilt and the foundations of the temple may be laid.'

<sup>e</sup> his work: prob. rdg.; Heb. he works. <sup>f</sup> Or a shrine.

12-20: The procedures for making idols are reviewed to show that they are nothing but human creations.

44.21-45.17: The election of Cyrus. The LORD announces that his means of ransoming Israel is through a foreign king. 24: Ransomer: see 41.14 n. 25: Signs: see 7.11-12 n. 28: Cyrus, king of Persia (559-529 B.C.) and victor over Babylon (539 B.C.), issued the edict that Jerusalem and

- 45 Thus says the LORD to Cyrus his anointed,
 Cyrus whom he has taken by the hand
 to subdue nations before him and undo the might of kings;
 before whom gates shall be opened and no doors be shut:
- 2 I will go before you and level the swelling hills;
 I will break down gates of bronze and hack through iron bars.
- 3 I will give you treasures from dark vaults,
 hoarded in secret places,
 that you may know that I am the
 LORD,
 Israel's God who calls you by
 name.
- 4 For the sake of Jacob my servant and Israel my chosen
 I have called you by name and given you your title, though you have not known me.
- 5 I am the LORD, there is no other;
 there is no god beside me.
 I will strengthen you though you have not known me,
- 6 so that men from the rising and the setting sun
 may know that there is none but I:
 I am the LORD, there is no other;
- 7 I make the light, I create
 darkness,
 author alike of prosperity and
 trouble.
 I, the LORD, do all these things.
- 8 Rain righteousness, you heavens,
 let the skies above pour down;
 let the earth open to receive it,
 that it may bear the fruit of salvation
 with righteousness in blossom at its
 side.
 All this I, the LORD, have created.
- 9 Will the pot contend<sup>g</sup> with the potter,
 or the earthenware<sup>h</sup> with the hand that shapes it?
 Will the clay ask the potter what he is making?
 or his<sup>i</sup> handiwork say to him, 'You have no skill'?
- Will the babe say<sup>j</sup> to his father,
 'What are you begetting?', or to his mother, 'What are you bringing to birth'?
- Thus says the LORD, Israel's Holy
 One, his maker:
 Would you dare question me concerning my children, or instruct me in my handiwork?
 I alone, I made the earth and created man upon it;
 I, with my own hands, stretched out
 the heavens
 and caused all their host to shine.
 I alone have roused this man in
 righteousness,
 and I will smooth his path before
 him;
 he shall rebuild my city and let my exiles go free—not for a price nor for a bribe, says the LORD of Hosts.
- Thus says the LORD:
 Toilers of Egypt and Nubian
 merchants
 and Sabaeans bearing tribute<sup>k</sup> shall come into your power and be your slaves,
 shall come and march behind you in chains;
 they shall bow down before you in supplication, saying,
 'Surely God is among you and there is no other,
 no other god.
 How then canst thou be a god that hasten thyself,
 O God of Israel, the deliverer?' 10 11 12 13 14 15

<sup>g</sup> Will . . . contend: prob. rdg.; Heb. Ho! he has contended.

<sup>h</sup> Or shard.

<sup>i</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. your.

<sup>j</sup> Will . . . say: prob. rdg.; Heb. Ho! you that say.

<sup>k</sup> bearing tribute: or men of stature.

the temple be rebuilt; see Ezra 1.1-4. Shepherd: king; see Ezek. ch. 34. 45.1: Anointed is the English equivalent of the Heb. mashiah (from which the word "Messiah" comes) and of the Gk. christos from which "Christ" is derived. Hebrew priests (Lev.8.12-13) and kings (1 Sam. 6.12-13) were anointed with oil, signifying a special gift of the spirit to carry out a commission given them by God. Cyrus is the only non-Israelite called "anointed" because he carried out God's purpose of liberating his people. God himself leads Cyrus by the hand so that he may accomplish his task without fail. 4: Your title: "anointed." 13: This man: Cyrus.

- 16 Those who defy him are confounded and brought to shame,
those who make idols perish in confusion.
- 17 But Israel has been delivered by
the LORD,
delivered for all time to come;
they shall not be confounded or put to shame for all eternity.
- 18 Thus says the LORD, the creator of
the heavens,
he who is God,
who made the earth and fashioned it and himself fixed it fast, who created it no empty void, but made it for a place to dwell in:
I am the LORD, there is no other.
- 19 I do not speak in secret, in realms of darkness,
I do not say to the sons of Jacob,
'Look for me in the empty void.'
I the LORD speak what is right, declare what is just.
- 20 Gather together, come, draw near,
all you survivors of the nations, you fools, who carry your wooden idols in procession and pray to a god that cannot save
you.
- 21 Come forward and urge your case, consult together:
who foretold this in days of old,
who stated it long ago?
Was it not I the LORD?
There is no god but me;
there is no god other than I, victorious and able to save.
- 22 Look to me and be saved, you peoples from all corners of
the earth,
for I am God, there is no other.
- 23 By my life I have sworn,
I have given a promise of victory,
a promise that will not be broken, that to me every knee shall bend and by me every tongue shall swear.
- In the LORD alone, men shall say, are victory and might
and all who defy him
shall stand ashamed in his presence, but all the sons of Israel shall stand victorious
and find their glory in the LORD.
- Bel has crouched down, Nebo has stooped low:
their images, once carried in your processions,
have been loaded on to beasts and
cattle,
a burden for the weary creatures;
they stoop and they crouch;
not for them to bring the burden to
safety;
the gods themselves go into captivity.
Listen to me, house of Jacob and all the remnant of the house
of Israel,
a load on me from your birth, carried by me from the womb:
till you grow old I am He,
and when white hairs come, I will carry you still;
I have made you and I will bear the burden,
I will carry you and bring you to safety.
To whom will you liken me? Who is my equal?
With whom can you compare me?
Where is my like?
Those who squander their bags of
gold
and weigh out their silver with a balance
hire a goldsmith to fashion them into a god;
then they worship it and fall prostrate before it;
they hoist it shoulder-high and carry it home;
they set it down on its base;
there it must stand, it cannot stir from its place.

45.16–25: Lawsuit against idolators. 18: The empty void (better, “chaos”) preceded, and is the alternative to, creation. 20–21a: Idolators are summoned as if to a court; see 41.21. 21b–25: Note the clear statement of monotheism.

46.1–13: The LORD and the gods of Babylon. 1–7: The downfall of the Babylonian gods. 1: Bel (“lord”) is one of the titles of Marduk, the main Babylonian deity; Nebo (Babylonian Nabu), the god of wisdom, was considered Marduk’s son. The liturgies of Babylonian cultic festivities, among them the New Year’s celebration, included processions of their images. See also v. 7. 2–4: Babylon’s gods had to be carried to safety when Cyrus captured the city. In contrast the LORD has carried Israel from the time of her birth at the Exodus. 6–7: See 44.9–20.

- Let a man cry to it as he will, it never answers him;
it cannot deliver him from his troubles.
- 8 Remember this, you rebels, consider it well, and abandon hope, 9 remember all that happened long
ago;
for I am God, there is no other,
I am God, and there is no one like
me;
- 10 I reveal the end from the beginning, from ancient times I reveal what is to be;
I say, 'My purpose shall take effect,
I will accomplish all that I please.'
- 11 I summon a bird of prey<sup>l</sup> from the east,
one from a distant land to fulfil my
purpose.
Mark this; I have spoken, and I will bring it about,
I have a plan to carry out, and carry it out I will.
- 12 Listen to me, all you stubborn
hearts,
for whom victory is far off: 13 I bring my victory near, it is not far off,
and my deliverance shall not be delayed;
I will grant deliverance in Zion and give my glory to Israel.<sup>m</sup>
- 47 Down with you, sit in the dust, virgin daughter of Babylon.
Down from your throne, sit on the ground,
daughter of the Chaldaeans;
never again shall men call you soft-skinned and delicate.
- 2 Take up the millstone, grind meal, uncover your tresses;
strip off your skirt, bare your thighs,
wade through rivers,
3 so that your nakedness may be plain to see
- and your shame exposed.
I will take vengeance, I will treat with none of you, says the Holy One of Israel, our ransomer,
whose name is the LORD of Hosts.
- Sit silent,
be off into the shadows, daughter of the Chaldaeans;
for never again shall men call you queen of many kingdoms.
When I was angry with my
people,
I dishonoured my own possession and gave them into your power.
You showed them no mercy, you made your yoke weigh heavy on the aged.
You said then, 'I shall reign a queen
for ever',
while<sup>n</sup> you gave no thought to this and did not consider how it would end.
Now therefore listen to this,
you lover of luxury, carefree on your throne.
You say to yourself,
'I am, and who but I?
No widow's weeds for me, no deaths of children.'
Yet suddenly, in a single day, these two things shall come upon
you;
they shall both come upon you in full measure:<sup>o</sup> children's deaths and widowhood, for all your monstrous sorceries, your countless spells.
Secure in your wicked ways you thought, 'No one is looking.'
Your wisdom betrayed you, omniscient as you were,
and you said to yourself,
'I am, and who but I?'

<sup>l</sup> a bird of prey: or a massed host.

<sup>m</sup> and give my glory to Israel: or for Israel my glory.

<sup>n</sup> for ever', while: or of a wide realm, for all time' but.

<sup>o</sup> in full measure: or at random.

11: The one from the east is Cyrus; see 41.2; in 44.28 he is "my shepherd"; in 45.1, "his anointed." 47.1-15: A funeral song for Babylon. The city of Babylon, personified as a dethroned queen reduced to slavery, is commanded to mourn, for nothing can stop the punishment the LORD plans for her. The poem is a taunt song in qinah ("dirge") form. 1: Daughter of Babylon: better, "daughter Babylon." 2: To grind meal was the work of slaves whose task required them to strip off outer clothes, especially in working around irrigation rivers, i.e. canals. 4: Holy One: see 40.25-26 n. Ransomer: see 41.14 n. 8: Babylon describes herself in the same terms as did the LORD; see 43.13. 9-12: Magic, divination, and rituals for warding off evil were important elements in Babylonian religion. 10: Her famous wisdom was not able to reveal to Babylon her

- |    |  |  |             |
|----|--|--|-------------|
| 11 | Therefore evil shall come upon you,and you will not know how tomaster it;disaster shall befall you,and you will not be able to charmit away;ruin all unforeseenshall come suddenly upon you.   | suddenly I acted and it came about.I knew that you were stubborn,your neck stiff as iron, your browlike bronze,therefore I told you of these thingslong ago,and declared them before theycame about,   | 456 |
| 12 | Persist in your spells and yourmonstrous sorceries, <sup>p</sup>maybe you can get help from them,maybe you will yet inspire awe.   | so that you could not say, 'Thiswas my idol's doing;my image, the god that I fashioned,he ordained them.'  | 6           |
| 13 | But no! in spite of your many wilesyou are powerless.Let your astrologers, your star-gazerswho foretell your future month bymonth,persist, and save you!   | You have heard what I said;consider it well,and you must admit the truth of it.Now I show you new things,hidden things which you did notknow before.   | 7           |
| 14 | But look, they are gone like chaff;fire burns them up;they cannot snatch themselves fromthe flames;this is no glowing coal to warmthem,no fire for them to sit by.   | They were not created long ago,but in this very hour;you had never heard of thembefore today.You cannot say, 'I know themalready.'   | 8           |
| 15 | So much for your magicianswith whom you have trafficked allyour life:they have stumbled off, each hisown way,and there is no one to save you.  | You neither heard nor knew,long ago your ears were closed;for I knew that you wereuntrustworthy, treacherous,a notorious rebel from your birth.For the sake of my own name Iwas patient, <sup>q</sup>rather than destroy you I heldmyself in check.    | 9           |
| 48 | Hear this, you house of Jacob,you who are called by the nameof Israel,you who spring from the seed ofJudah;who swear by the name of theLORDand boast in the God of Israel,but not in honesty or sincerity,although you call yourselves citizensof a holy cityand lean for support on the Godof Israel;his name is the LORD of Hosts. | See how I tested you, not as silveris tested,but in the furnace of affliction;there I purified you.For my honour, for my ownhonour I did it;let them disparage my pasttriumphs <sup>r</sup> if they will:I will not give my glory to anyother god. | 1011    |
| 2  | Long ago I announced what wouldfirst happen,I revealed it with my own mouth;   | Hear me, Jacob,and Israel whom I called:I am He; I am the first,   | 12          |

p Prob. rdg.: Heb. adds with which you have trafficked all your life (cp. verse 15).
q See note on verse 11.
r my past triumphs: transposed from verse 9.

basic weakness and consequent fall. 13: Astrology was a sophisticated art in Mesopotamia. 48.1–22: Hear what the LORD will do. Just as he controlled the past, so the God of Israel controls the future. 3: With my own mouth: that is, through the prophets. 4–5: The purpose of prophecy was to show that the LORD alone controls history. 6: New things: the message of deliverance in Second Isaiah. 10: See 1.25. The furnace of affliction was the Babylonian Exile. 12–16: The LORD promises to call Cyrus (he whom I love, v. 14) to destroy Babylon. 12: See 41.4.

I am the last also.
 13 With my own hands I founded the earth, with my right hand I formed the expanse of sky;
 when I summoned them,
 they sprang at once into being.
 14 Assemble, all of you, and listen to me;
 which of you has declared what is coming, that he whom I love shall wreak my<sup>g</sup> will on Babylon and the Chaldaeans shall be scattered?
 15 I, I myself, have spoken, I have called him,
 I have made him appear, and wherever he goes he shall prosper.
 16 Draw near to me and hear this:
 from the beginning I have never spoken in secret;
 from the moment of its first happening I was there.<sup>h</sup> 17 Thus says the LORD your ransomer,
 the Holy One of Israel:
 I am the LORD your God:
 I teach you for your own advantage and lead you in the way you must go.
 18 If only you had listened to my commands, your prosperity would have rolled on like a river in flood and your just success like the waves of the sea; 19 in number your children would have been like the sand and your descendants countless as its grains; their name would never be erased or blotted from my sight.
 20 Come out of Babylon, hasten away from the Chaldaeans; proclaim it with loud songs of triumph, crying the news to the ends of the earth;

tell them, 'The LORD has ransomed his servant Jacob.'
 Though he led them through desert places they suffered no thirst, 21 for them he made water run from the rock,
 for them he cleft the rock and streams gushed forth.

There is no peace for the wicked,
 22 says the LORD.

Israel a light to the nations

Listen to me, you coasts and islands, 49 pay heed, you peoples far away:
 from birth the LORD called me,
 he named me from my mother's womb.
 He made my tongue his sharp sword 2 and concealed me under cover of his hand;
 he made me a polished arrow and hid me out of sight in his quiver.
 He said to me, 'You are my servant, 3 Israel through whom I shall win glory';
 so I rose to honour in the LORD's sight and my God became my strength.<sup>u</sup> Once I said, 'I have laboured in vain; 4
 I have spent my strength for nothing, to no purpose';
 yet in truth my cause is with the LORD and my reward is in God's hands.
 And now the LORD who formed me 5 in the womb to be his servant, to bring Jacob back to him that Israel should be gathered to him,<sup>v</sup> now the LORD calls me again:<sup>w</sup> it is too slight a task for you, as 6
 my servant,

<sup>s</sup> Or his.<sup>t</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds and now the Lord God has sent me, and his spirit.<sup>u</sup> so I rose . . . strength: transposed from end of verse 5.<sup>v</sup> be gathered to him: or not be swept away.<sup>w</sup> See note on verse 3.

20: Servant Jacob: see 41.8 n. 18: Your prosperity: welfare, well-being. 22: Probably a gloss. 49.1-6: Second servant song. See 42.1-4 n. The servant himself speaks concerning his call and mission. In vv. 1-4, though the servant speaks as an individual, he is identified as Israel; however, in vv. 5-6 his mission is to restore Israel. Hence, he is identified by some as the ideal Israel or the faithful Israel, the remnant. 1,5: Mother's womb: see Jer.1.5. Named me: see 43.1.

- to restore the tribes of Jacob, to bring back the descendants of Israel:
I will make you a light to the
nations,
to be my salvation<sup>x</sup> to earth's farthest bounds.
- 7 Thus says the Holy One, the LORD who ransoms Israel,
to one who thinks little of himself,
whom every nation abhors,
the slave of tyrants:
When they see you kings shall rise, princes shall rise and bow down,
because of the LORD who is faithful, because of the Holy One of Israel who has chosen you.
- 8 Thus says the LORD:
In the hour of my favour I answered you,
and I helped you on the day of deliverance,<sup>y</sup> putting the land to rights and sharing out afresh its desolate fields;
- 9 I said to the prisoners, 'Go free', and to those in darkness, 'Come out and be seen.'
They shall find pasture in the desert sands<sup>z</sup> and grazing on all the dunes.
- 10 They shall neither hunger nor
thirst,
no scorching heat or sun shall distress them;
for one who loves them shall lead them
and take them to water at bubbling springs.
- 11 I will make every hill a path and build embankments for my highways.
- 12 See, they come; some from far
away,
these from the north and these from
the west
and those from the land of Syene.
- 13 Shout for joy, you heavens, rejoice, O earth,
- you mountains, break into songs of
triumph,
for the LORD has comforted his
people
and has had pity on his own in their distress.
- But Zion says,
"The LORD has forsaken me; my God has forgotten me."
Can a woman forget the infant at her breast,
or a loving mother the child of her
womb?
Even these forget, yet I will not forget you.
Your walls are always before my
eyes,
I have engraved them on the palms of my hands.
Those who are to rebuild you make better speed
than those who pulled you down, while those who laid you waste depart.
Raise your eyes and look around
you:
see how they assemble, how they are flocking back to you.
By my life I, the LORD, swear it, you shall wear them proudly as your jewels,
and adorn yourself with them
like a bride;
- I did indeed make you waste and
desolate,
I razed you to the ground, but your boundaries<sup>a</sup> shall now be too narrow
for your inhabitants—
and those who laid you in ruins are far away.
- The children born in your bereavement shall yet say in your hearing,
'This place is too narrow; make room for me to live in.'
Then you will say to yourself,

<sup>x</sup> to be my salvation: or that my salvation may reach.
<sup>y</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds I have formed you, and appointed you to be a light to all peoples (cp. 42. 6).
<sup>z</sup> desert sands: prob. rdg.; Heb. ways.
<sup>a</sup> I did . . . boundaries: or your wasted and desolate land, your ruined countryside.

49.7-26: The glorious return. 9a: Prisoners . . . darkness: the exiles in Babylon. 9b-10: The desert between Babylon and Israel will provide water and food as Israel returns, as did the desert at the Exodus. 12: Syene: a town at the southern end of Egypt; see Ezek.29.10. 14-26: The LORD has not forgotten Jerusalem; Israel will return and rebuild it. 18: By my life: an oath formula; see Amos 4.2. 19-21: The city cannot contain the enlarged population. 20: In

- 'All these children, how did I come by them,
bereaved and barren as I was?
Who reared them
when I was left alone, left by myself;
where did I get them all?'
- 22 The LORD God says, Now is the time: I will beckon to
the nations
and hoist a signal to the peoples, and they shall bring your sons in their arms
and carry your daughters on their shoulders;
23 kings shall be your foster-fathers and their princesses shall be your nurses.
They shall bow to the earth before you and lick the dust from your feet;
and you shall know that I am the LORD and that none who look to me will be disappointed.
- 24 Can his prey be taken from the strong man, or the captive be rescued from the ruthless?
- 25 And the LORD answers,
The captive shall be taken even from the strong,
and the prey of the ruthless shall be rescued;
I will contend with all who contend against you
and save your children from them.
- 26 I will force your oppressors to feed on their own flesh
and make them drunk with their own blood as if with fresh wine, and all mankind shall know that it is I, the LORD, who save you, I your ransomer, the Mighty One
of Jacob.
- 50 The LORD says,
Is there anywhere a deed of divorce by which I have put your mother
away?
Was there some creditor of mine to whom I sold you?
No; it was through your own wickedness that you were sold and for your own misconduct that your mother was put away.
Why, then, did I find no one when I came? 2
Why, when I called, did no one
answer?
Did you think my arm too short to redeem,
did you think I had no power to save?
Not so. By my rebuke I dried up the sea and turned rivers into desert; their fish perished for lack of water and died on the thirsty ground;
I clothed the skies in mourning 3 and covered them with sackcloth.
- The Lord GOD has given me 4 the tongue of a teacher and skill to console the weary with a word in the morning;
he sharpened my hearing that I might listen like one who is taught.
- The Lord GOD opened my ears 5 and I did not disobey or turn back in defiance.
- I offered my back to the lash, 6 and let my beard be plucked from my chin,
I did not hide my face from spitting and insult;
but the Lord GOD stands by to help 7
me;
therefore no insult can wound me.
I have set my face like flint, for I know that I shall not be put
to shame,
because one who will clear my name 8
is at my side.

bereavement: in Exile, separated from the Temple, the special presence of God. 22: The signal, formerly a sign of danger (5.26; 13.2; 18.3; compare Jer.6.1), is now a call for the return. 23: See 49.7. 26: Ransomer: see 41.14 n.

50.1-3: Separation, not divorce. The Exile did not mark the end of the LORD's relationship with Israel, as some say; he can do what he wills. 1: Put your mother away: see Hos.2.2-13; Jer.3.1-10. Deed of divorce: see Deut.24.1-4. The covenant is not broken since no creditor takes precedence over God. 2: See Exod. chs. 14-15.

50.4-9: Third servant song. See 42.1-4 n. The servant speaks concerning his mission (v. 4) and his response to suffering (vv. 5-9). 4: The prophet perhaps identifies himself with the servant, but it is still possible to regard the servant as Israel, or at least faithful Israel. Teacher: or "disciple." 8: The language comes from the court process.

- Who dare argue against me? Let us confront one another.
 Who will dispute my cause? Let him come forward.
- 9 The Lord GOD will help me; who then can prove me guilty? They will all wear out like a garment, the moths will eat them up.
- 10 Which of you fears the LORD and obeys his servant's commands? The man who walks in dark places with no light, yet trusts in the name of the LORD and leans on his God.
- 11 But you who kindle a fire and set fire-brands alight, go, walk into your own fire and among the fire-brands you have set ablaze.
 This is your fate at my hands: you shall lie down in torment.
- 51 Listen to me, all who follow the right and seek the LORD: look to the rock from which you were hewn, to the quarry from which you were dug;
- 2 look to your father Abraham and to Sarah who gave you birth: when I called him he was but one, I blessed him and made him many.
- 3 The LORD has indeed comforted Zion, comforted all her ruined homes, turning her wilderness into an Eden, her thirsty plains into a garden of the LORD.
 Joy and gladness shall be found in her, thanksgiving and melody.
- 4 Pay heed to me, my people, and hear me, O my nation; for my law shall shine forth and I will flash the light of my judgement over the nations.
- 5 My victory is near, my deliverance has gone<sup>b</sup> forth
- and my arm shall rule the nations; for me coasts and islands shall wait and they shall look to me for protection.
 Lift your eyes to the heavens, 6 look at the earth beneath: the heavens grow murky as smoke; the earth wears into tatters like a garment, and those who live on it die like maggots; but my deliverance is everlasting and my saving power shall never wane.
- Listen to me, my people who know 7 what is right, you who lay my law to heart: do not fear the taunts of men, let no reproaches dismay you; for the grub will devour them like 8 a garment and the moth as if they were wool, but my saving power shall last for ever and my deliverance to all generations.
- Awake, awake, put on your strength, 9 O arm of the LORD, awake as you did long ago, in days gone by.
 Was it not you who hanked the Rahab in pieces and ran the dragon through?
 Was it not you 10 who dried up the sea, the waters of the great abyss, and made the ocean depths a path for the ransomed?
 So the LORD's people shall come 11 back, set free, and enter Zion with shouts of triumph, crowned with everlasting joy; joy and gladness shall overtake them as they come,

b Or shone.

50.10–11: Follow the servant. Israel is admonished to be obedient like the servant, trusting in the LORD and not in herself.

51.1–16: Comfort to Zion. Several poems of different types present a common theme, Zion's salvation. 1–2: Abraham and Sarah, the rock from which Israel was hewn, were made many in accord with God's promise (Gen.12.1–3); the same promise and power are still active. 3: The restoration of Zion will be like the creation of Eden out of the primeval desert; see Gen.2.5–9; Ezek.36.35. 5: Israel's restoration will inaugurate a new era for all nations who will look to the LORD for protection. 9: Rahab, the dragon: see 30.7 n. 10: The crossing of the sea at the Exodus was also a new creation, like the slaying of the dragon of the great abyss at the original creation.

- and sorrow and sighing shall flee away.
- 12 I, I myself, am he that comforts you.
Why then fear man, man who must die, man frail as grass?
- 13 Why have you forgotten the LORD your maker, who stretched out the skies and founded the earth?
Why are you continually afraid, all the day long,
why dread the fury of oppressors ready to destroy you?
Where is that fury?
- 14 He that cowers under it shall soon stand upright and not die, he shall soon reap the early crop and not lack bread.
- 15 I am the LORD your God, the LORD of Hosts is my name. I cleft the sea and 16 its waves roared, that I might fix the heavens in place and form the earth and say to Zion, 'You are my people.'
I have put my words in your mouth and kept you safe under the shelter of my hand.
- 17 Awake, awake; rise up, Jerusalem.
You have drunk from the LORD's hand
the cup of his wrath, drained to its dregs the bowl of drunkenness;
- 18 of all the sons you have borne there is not one to guide you,
of all you have reared, not one to take you by the hand.
- 19 These two disasters have overtaken you;
who can console you?—
havoc and ruin, famine and the sword;
who can comfort you?
- 20 Your sons are in stupor, they lie at the head of every street, like antelopes caught in the net, glutted with the wrath of the LORD,
the rebuke of your God.
Therefore listen to this, in your affliction, drunk that you are, but not with wine:
thus says the LORD, your Lord and your God, who will plead his people's cause:
Look, I take from your hand the cup of drunkenness;
you shall never again drink from the bowl of my wrath,
I will give it instead to your tormentors and oppressors, those who said to you, 'Lie down and we will walk over you';
and you made your backs like the ground beneath them, like a roadway for passers-by.
- Awake, awake, put on your strength, 52
O Zion,
put on your loveliest garments, holy city of Jerusalem;
for never shall the uncircumcised and the unclean enter you again.
Rise up, captive Jerusalem, shake 2
off the dust;
loose your neck from the collar that binds it, O captive daughter of Zion.
- The LORD says, You were sold but 3 no price was paid, and without payment you shall be ransomed. The Lord 4 GOD says, At the beginning my people went down into Egypt to live there, and at the end it was the Assyrians who oppressed them; but now what do I 5 find here? says the LORD. My people carried off and no price paid, their rulers derided, and my name reviled all

14: The early crop was the result of the "blessing" of an early rain. 16: You are my people: see Hos.1.8; 2.23.

51.17–52.2: Awake, Jerusalem. The holy city earlier had been drunk with the LORD's wrath. Compare Jer.13.13; 25.15–18; Ezek.23.32–34; Lam.4.21. 17: Pleasure and pain are pictured in the Bible as a cup that is offered to a person by God, emphasizing God's control of man's destiny; compare Pss.11.6; 16.5–6; Mk.10.38–39. 18: Take you by the hand: give guidance and support. 52.1–2: The opening call to awake is reiterated, now looking to the future instead of the past. 1: Uncircumcised: foreigners. Unclean: Jews who do not observe the ritual laws of cleanliness.

52.3–6: Israel sold and ransomed without money. A prose insertion. 4–5: Egypt paid the price

6	day long, says the LORD. But on that day my people shall know my name; they shall know that it is I who speak; here I am.	Behold, my servant shall prosper, he shall be lifted up, exalted to the heights.	13
7	How lovely on the mountains are the feet of the herald who comes to proclaim prosperity and bring good news, the news of deliverance, calling to Zion, 'Your God is king.'	Time was when many <sup>c</sup> were aghast at you, my people; <sup>d</sup> so now many nations <sup>e</sup> recoil at sight of him, and kings curl their lips in disgust. For they see what they had never been told and things unheard before fill their thoughts.	14 15
8	Hark, your watchmen raise their voices and shout together in triumph; for with their own eyes they shall see the LORD returning in pity to Zion.	Who could have believed what we have heard, and to whom has the power of the LORD been revealed?	53
9	Break forth together in shouts of triumph, you ruins of Jerusalem; for the LORD has taken pity on his people and has ransomed Jerusalem.	He grew up before the LORD like a young plant whose roots are in parched ground; he had no beauty, no majesty to draw our eyes, no grace to make us delight in him; his form, disfigured, lost all the likeness of a man, his beauty changed beyond human semblance. <sup>f</sup>	2
10	The LORD has bared his holy arm in the sight of all nations, and the whole world from end to end shall see the deliverance of our God.	He was despised, he shrank from the sight of men, tormented and humbled by suffering; we despised him, we held him of no account, a thing from which men turn away their eyes.	3
11	Away from Babylon; come out, come out, touch nothing unclean. Come out from Babylon, keep yourselves pure, you who carry the vessels of the LORD.	Yet on himself he bore our sufferings,	4
12	But you shall not come out in urgent haste nor leave like fugitives; for the LORD will march at your head, your rearguard will be Israel's God.

<sup>c</sup> Or the great. <sup>d</sup> See note on 53. 2.
<sup>e</sup> Or great nations.
<sup>f</sup> his form . . . semblance: transposed from end of 52. 14.

of Israel's slavery by the plagues and death of its firstborn, but Babylon paid no price when it carried them off into Exile. 6: That day: see 7.18-25 n. Know my name: see 43.1.

52.7-12: A pilgrim victory hymn. This is a continuation of the song, interrupted after v. 2, which celebrates the joyful return of the LORD and his people to the holy city. 7: God is king: see 43.15 n. 8-9: Watchmen are the people left in the ruins of Jerusalem at the time of its destruction by the Babylonians in 587 B.C. (2 Kgs.25.8-12). They look for the return of the LORD who was considered to have gone to Babylon with the captives; compare Ezek.11.22-25; 43.1-7. 12: The Israelites on their return from Babylon did not ask for an escort of soldiers but trusted that the LORD would be their guard: see Ezra 8.21-23.

52.13-53.12: Fourth servant song. The suffering servant. See 42.1-4 n. Israel, the servant of God, has suffered as a humiliated individual. However, the servant endured without complaint because it was vicarious suffering (suffering for others). 13-15: Nations and kings will be surprised to see the servant exalted. 53.1: The crowds, pagan nations, among whom the servant (Israel) lived, speak here (through v. 9), saying that the significance of Israel's humiliation and exaltation is hard to believe. 2: In traditional Hebrew thought, the good man prospers like a tree by water but the wicked is like a plant growing in parched ground; see Ps.1.3-6. 3: Turn away their eyes: lit. hide their faces, an expression used in relation to lepers, whose sickness, considered a sign of sin, made them despised. 4-5: The vicarious suffering expressed here is in

- our torments he endured, while we counted him smitten by
 God, struck down by disease and misery;
 5 but he was pierced for our transgressions,
 tortured for our iniquities;
 the chastisement he bore is health
 for us
 and by his scourging we are healed.
 6 We had all strayed like sheep, each of us had gone his own way;
 but the LORD laid upon him
 the guilt of us all.
 7 He was afflicted, he submitted to be struck down
 and did not open his mouth;
 he was led like a sheep to the slaughter,
 like a ewe that is dumb before the shearers.<sup>g</sup> 8 Without protection, without justice,<sup>h</sup>
 he was taken away;
 and who gave a thought to his fate,
 how he was cut off from the world of living men, stricken to the death for my people's
 transgression?
 9 He was assigned a grave with the
 wicked,
 a burial-place among the refuse of
 mankind,
 though he had done no violence and spoken no word of treachery.
 10 Yet the LORD took thought for his tortured servant
 and healed him who had made himself<sup>i</sup> a sacrifice for sin; so shall he enjoy long life and see his children's children, and in his hand the LORD's cause shall prosper.
 11 After all his pains he shall be bathed in light,
 after his disgrace he shall be fully vindicated;
 so shall he, my servant, vindicate many,
 himself bearing the penalty of their guilt.
 Therefore I will allot him a portion 12
 with the great,
 and he shall share the spoil with
 the mighty,
 because he exposed himself to face death<sup>j</sup>
 and was reckoned among transgressors,
 because he bore the sin of many and interceded for their transgressions.
 Sing aloud, O barren woman who 54 never bore a child, break into cries of joy, you who have never been in labour;
 for the deserted wife has more sons than she who lives in wedlock,
 says the LORD.
 Enlarge the limits of your home, 2 spread wide the curtains of your tent;
 let out its ropes to the full and drive the pegs home;
 for you shall break out of your 3 confines right and left, your descendants shall dispossess wide regions,<sup>k</sup> and re-people cities now desolate.
 Fear not; you shall not be put to 4
 shame,
 you shall suffer no insult, have no cause to blush.

<sup>g</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds and he would not open his mouth.

<sup>h</sup> Without protection, without justice: or After arrest and sentence.

<sup>i</sup> healed . . . himself: prob. rdg.; Heb. he made sick, if you make.

<sup>j</sup> Or because he poured out his life to the death.

<sup>k</sup> wide regions: or the nations.

contrast both to the traditional solidarity in guilt of Exod.20.5 and to individual responsibility proposed by the prophets at the time of the Exile; see Jer.31.30; Ezek. ch. 18. 5: Health for us: lit. "our peace," which means "general welfare." 6-7: The servant is led like a sheep in contrast to the peoples going their own way. 8: Although some legal process seems to be involved, the servant does not receive justice; see Jer.39.5-6. 9: The death probably refers to the destruction and Exile of Israel. Compare Ezek. ch. 37. 10-12: The theme of 52.13 is resumed. Israel, which has suffered for all mankind, will now be granted her rightful place. 10: Long life and children's children are the signs of a final vindication before God; see Job 42.16-17. 11: Bathed in light: enjoying God's favor; see Ps.80.3.

54.1-17: Reassurance to Israel. A series of metaphors is used to repeat the promise that the nation will be rebuilt and Israel's relationship to the LORD restored. 1: The deserted wife represents Israel in Exile; the one in wedlock represents preexilic Israel. 4: Shame of your

It is time to forget the shame of your younger days and remember no more the reproach of your widowhood; 5 for your husband is your maker, whose name is the LORD of Hosts; your ransom is the Holy One of Israel who is called God of all the earth. 6 The LORD has acknowledged you a wife again, once deserted and heart-broken, your God has called you a bride still young though once rejected. 7 On the impulse of a moment I forsook you, but with tender affection I will bring you home again. 8 In sudden anger I hid my face from you for a moment; but now have I pitied you with a love which never fails, says the LORD who ransoms you. 9 These days recall for me the days of Noah: as I swore that the waters of Noah's flood should never again pour over the earth, so now I swear to you never again to be angry with you or reproach you. 10 Though the mountains move and the hills shake, my love shall be immovable and never fail, and my covenant of peace shall not be shaken. So says the LORD who takes pity on you. 11 O storm-battered city, distressed and disconsolate, now I will set your stones in the finest mortar and your foundations in lapis lazuli;	I will make your battlements of red jasper<sup>l</sup> and your gates of garnet;<sup>m</sup> all your boundary-stones shall be jewels. Your masons shall all be instructed by the LORD, and your sons shall enjoy great prosperity; and in triumph<sup>n</sup> shall you be restored. You shall be free from oppression and have no fears, free from terror, and it shall not come near you; should any attack you, it will not be my doing, the aggressor, whoever he be, shall perish for his attempt. It was I who created the smith to fan the coals in the furnace and forge weapons each for its purpose, and I who created the destroyer to lay waste; but now no weapon made to harm you shall prevail, and you shall rebut every charge brought against you. Such is the fortune of the servants of the LORD; their vindication comes from me. This is the very word of the LORD. Come, all who are thirsty, come, fetch water; come, you who have no food, buy corn and eat; come and buy, not for money, not for a price.<sup>o</sup> Why spend money and get what is not bread, why give the price of your labour and go unsatisfied? Only listen to me and you will have good food to eat,	12 13 14 15 16 17 2 2 l Or carbuncle. m Or firestone.
--	--	--

n Or in righteousness.
o Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds wine and milk.

younger days: see Ezek. ch. 16. 7: Tender affection: lit. the affection of a mother for the child of her womb. 8: Love which never fails is the covenant love based on the bond of parent and child between the LORD and Israel; see 43.6-7 n. Ransoms: see 41.14 n. 9: See Gen.9.8-17; compare Gen.8.21-22. 10: Covenant of peace: see Ezek.34.25.

55.1-13: Admonitions and reassurance. The Book of the Consolation of Israel (chs. 40-55) concludes with this poem celebrating God's liberality (vv. 1-2), faithfulness (vv. 3-5), transcendence (vv. 6-9), and power (vv. 10-13). 1-2: See 25.6-12 n. All are invited to the LORD's table. The language is both metaphorical and literal; those who listen (vv. 2-3) to the LORD and you will enjoy the fat of the land.

 3 Come to me and listen to my words, hear me, and you shall have life:
 I will make a covenant with you,
 this time for ever,
 to love you faithfully as I loved David.
 4 I made him a witness to all races,
 a prince and instructor of peoples; 5 and you in turn shall summon nations you do not know, and nations that do not know you shall come running to you, because the LORD your God,
 the Holy One of Israel, has glorified
 you.
 6 Inquire of the LORD while he is present,
 call upon him when he is close at hand.
 7 Let the wicked abandon their ways and evil men their thoughts: let them return to the LORD, who will have pity on them,
 return to our God, for he will freely forgive.
 8 For my thoughts are not your thoughts,
 and your ways are not my ways.
 This is the very word of the LORD.
 9 For as the heavens are higher than
 the earth,
 so are my ways higher than your ways and my thoughts than your thoughts;
 10 and as the rain and the snow come down from heaven
 and do not return until they have watered the earth,
 making it blossom and bear fruit,
 and give seed for sowing and bread
 to eat, 11 so shall the word which comes from my mouth prevail;
 it shall not return to me fruitless without accomplishing my purpose or succeeding in the task I gave it.
 12 You shall indeed go out with joy and be led forth in peace.

Before you mountains and hills shall break into cries of joy, and all the trees of the wild shall clap their hands,
 pine-trees shall shoot up in place of 13
 camel-thorn,
 myrtles instead of briars;
 all this shall win the LORD a great
 name,
 imperishable, a sign for all time.

Warnings to keep the moral law

These are the words of the LORD: 56
 Maintain justice, do the right;
 for my deliverance is close at hand, and my righteousness will show itself victorious.
 Happy is the man who follows these 2 precepts,
 happy the mortal who holds them
 fast,
 who keeps the sabbath undefiled,
 who refrains from all wrong-doing!
 The foreigner who has given his 3 allegiance to the LORD must not say,
 'The LORD will keep me separate from his people for ever';
 and the eunuch must not say,
 'I am nothing but a barren tree.'
 For these are the words of the 4
 LORD:
 The eunuchs who keep my sabbaths, who choose to do my will and hold fast to my covenant, shall receive from me something 5 better than sons and daughters, a memorial and a name in my own house and within my walls;
 I will give them an everlasting name,
 a name imperishable for all time.
 So too with the foreigners who give 6 their allegiance to me, the LORD, to minister to me and love my name and to become my servants, all who keep the sabbath undefiled and hold fast to my covenant:

will be fed. 3-5: The words of the LORD give life. 3: The irrevocable covenant with David (2 Sam. ch. 7) is extended to the people as a whole. 6: Inquire: to request an oracle. See Amos 5.5-6,14. Call upon him: to pray. 12-13: Nature will celebrate as Israel comes out of Babylon. 56.1-66.24: A collection of postexilic poems. See Introduction. 56.1-8: The house of prayer for all nations. Converts to Judaism are welcomed and encouraged to obey the ritual laws. 3: Barren tree: no offspring to give to the community of God's people. 4-5: The law of Deut.23.1-6 is superseded. 5: Inscription and service among God's people will earn a name more lasting

- 7 them will I bring to my holy hill and give them joy in my house of prayer.
Their offerings and sacrifices shall be acceptable on my altar;
for my house shall be called a house of prayer for all nations.
- 8 This is the very word of the Lord
GOD,
who brings home the outcasts of Israel:
I will yet bring home all that remain to be brought in.
- 9 Come, beasts of the plain, beasts of the forest,
come, eat your fill,
10 for Israel's watchmen are blind, all of them unaware.
They are all dumb dogs who cannot bark,
stretched on the ground, dreaming, lovers of sleep,
11 greedy dogs that can never have enough.
They are shepherds who understand
nothing,
absent each of them on his own pursuits,
each intent on his own gain wherever he can find it.
- 12 'Come,' says each of them, 'let me fetch wine,
strong drink, and we will drain
it down;
let us make tomorrow like today,
or greater far!'
57 The righteous perish, and no one takes it to heart;
men of good faith are swept away,
but no one cares,
the righteous are swept away before the onset of evil,
2 but they enter into peace;
they have run a straight course and rest in their last beds.
- Come, stand forth, you sons of a soothsayer. 3
You spawn of an adulterer and a harlot,
who is the target of your jests?
4 Against whom do you open your mouths
and wag your tongues,
children of sin that you are, spawn
of a lie,
5 burning with lust under the terebinths,
under every spreading tree,
and sacrificing children in the gorges,
under the rocky clefts?
6 And you, woman,
your place is with the creatures of the gorge;
that is where you belong.
To them you have dared to pour a libation
and present an offering of grain.<sup>p</sup> 7 On a high mountain-top
you have made your bed;
there too you have gone up to offer sacrifice.
In spite of all this am I to relent?<sup>q</sup> 8 Beside door and door-post you have put up your sign.
Deserting me, you have stripped and lain down
on the wide bed which you have
made,
and you drove bargains with men for the pleasure of sleeping
together,
and you have committed countless acts of fornication
in the heat of your lust.
9 You drenched your tresses in oil blended with many perfumes;
you sent out your procurers far and wide
even down to the gates of Sheol.

<sup>p</sup> See note on verse 7.

<sup>q</sup> Line transposed from end of verse 6.

than begetting sons and daughters. 7: Holy hill: Mount Zion, on which the Temple was built. The future community of God will exclude no one because of arbitrary physical or ethnic conditions but will include all nations. 8: Who brings home the outcasts of Israel: see 11.12; 27.12; Ps.147.2.

56.9-57.13: Against corruption. 56.9-57.2: Israel's leaders fail in their duty. 9: Beasts: the hostile nations; see Ezek.34.5-6; 39.17. 11: Shepherds: rulers; see Ezek. ch. 34. 57.3: Idolatry was considered adultery against God. The Israelites practicing idolatry are not children of the LORD but spawn of an adulterer. 5: Terebinths: trees used in pagan fertility cults. Sacrificing children: see 30.33. 7-11: This alludes either literally to sexual immorality connected with the fertility cult sacrifice or figuratively to the courting of foreign alliances and friendships with pagan nations, as in Ezek. ch. 16. 7: See Ezek.16.16; 23.41. 8: Sign: idol placed at the en-

- 10 Worn out by your unending excesses,
even so you never said, 'I am past
hope.'
You earned a livelihood and so you had no anxiety.
- 11 Whom do you fear so much, that you should be false, that you never remembered me or gave me a thought?
Did I not hold my peace and seem not to see
while you showed no fear of me?
- 12 Now I will denounce your conduct that you think so righteous.
- 13 These idols of yours shall not help when you cry;
no idol shall save you.
The wind shall carry them off, one
and all,
a puff of air shall blow them away;
but he who makes me his refuge shall possess the earth and inherit my holy hill.
- 14 Then a voice shall be heard:
Build up a highway, build it and clear the track,
sweep away all that blocks my people's path.
- 15 Thus speaks the high and exalted
one,
whose name is holy, who lives forever:
I dwell in a high and holy place with him who is broken and humble in spirit,
to revive the spirit of the humble, to revive the courage of the broken.
- 16 I will not be always accusing,
I will not continually nurse my
wrath.
For a breath of life passed out from
me,
and by my own act I created living creatures.
- For a time I was angry at the guilt
of Israel;
I smote him in my anger and withdrew my favour.
But he ran wild and went his wilful
way.
Then I considered his ways,
I cured him and gave him relief, and I brought him comfort in full measure,
brought peace to those who mourned for him,
by the words that issue from my lips,
peace for all men, both near and far,
and so I cured him, says the LORD.
But the wicked are like a troubled
sea,
a sea that cannot rest, whose troubled waters cast up mud and filth.
- There is no peace for the wicked,
says the LORD.
- Shout aloud without restraint;
lift up your voice like a trumpet.
Call my people to account for their transgression
and the house of Jacob for their sins,
although they ask counsel of me day by day
and say they delight in knowing
my ways,
although, like nations which have acted rightly
and not forsaken the just laws of their gods,
they ask me for righteous laws and say they delight in approaching God.
- Why do we fast, if thou dost not see it?
Why mortify ourselves, if thou payest no heed?

trace of a house as an invitation to wanton pleasure seekers. 13: Holy hill: Zion, Jerusalem; see 56.7 n.; 65.10.

57.14–21: Consolation to the humble. God addresses the broken and humble in spirit (v. 15) to assure them that they will be healed. 15: Name is holy: see 40.25–26 n. 18: Those who mourned for Israel are either the repentant Israelites or peoples sympathetic to Israel's tragedy, like the Persians. 19: Men . . . near: proselytes.

58.1–12: The true fasts, a prophetic Torah. This is a postexilic oracle (v. 12). Its insistence on justice along with outward religious acts is in the tradition of the great prophets (Jer.7.21–28). 1: A voice like a trumpet is that of the prophet to warn people of danger; see Ezek.33.3–4. 3: A fast was prescribed by the Law only on the Day of Atonement (Lev.23.26–32). Later other fasts were added to commemorate public calamities (e.g. destruction of the Temple in the fifth month; Zech.8.18–19) or to beg God's mercy when disaster threatened (Joel 2.1–15). There

- Since you serve your own interest only on your fast-day and make all your men work the harder,
- 4 since your fasting leads only to wrangling and strife and dealing vicious blows with the fist,
on such a day you are keeping no fast that will carry your cry to heaven.
- 5 Is it a fast like this that I require, a day of mortification such as this,
that a man should bow his head like a bulrush
and make his bed on sackcloth and
ashes?
Is this what you call a fast,
a day acceptable to the LORD?
- 6 Is not this what I require of you as a fast:
to loose the fetters of injustice,
to untie the knots of the yoke, to snap every yoke
and set free those who have been crushed?
- 7 Is it not sharing your food with the
hungry,
taking the homeless poor into your
house,
clothing the naked when you meet
them
and never evading a duty to your kinsfolk?
- 8 Then shall your light break forth like the dawn
and soon you will grow healthy like a wound newly healed;
your own righteousness shall be your vanguard
and the glory of the LORD your rearguard.
- 9 Then, if you call, the LORD will
answer;
if you cry to him, he will say,
'Here I am.'
If you cease to pervert justice, to point the accusing finger and lay false charges,
- 10 if you feed the hungry from your own plenty
and satisfy the needs of the wretched,
then your light will rise like dawn out of darkness
and your dusk be like noonday;
the LORD will be your guide 11 continually
and will satisfy your needs in the shimmering heat;
he will give you strength of limb;
you will be like a well-watered
garden,
like a spring whose waters never fail.
The ancient ruins will be restored 12 by your own kindred and you will build once more on ancestral foundations;
you shall be called Rebuilder of broken walls,
Restorer of houses in ruins.
- If you cease to tread the sabbath 13 underfoot,
and keep my holy day free from your own affairs,
if you call the sabbath a day of joy and the LORD's holy day a day to be honoured,
if you honour it by not plying your trade,
not seeking your own interest or attending to your own affairs, then you shall find your joy in the 14
LORD,
and I will set you riding on the heights of the earth, and your father Jacob's patrimony shall be yours to enjoy;
the LORD himself has spoken it.
- The LORD's arm is not so short that 59 he cannot save
nor his ear too dull to hear; it is your iniquities that raise a 2 barrier
between you and your God, because of your sins he has hidden his face
so that he does not hear you.
Your hands are stained with blood 3 were also fasts out of private devotion; see Mt.6.16; Lk.18.12. 5: Bow his head: sign of sadness; sackcloth and ashes: sign of mortification and mourning.

58.13-14: The rewards of observing the Sabbath. See Exod.20.8-11; Deut.5.12-15.

59.1-21: A liturgy of repentance. The parts which comprise this unit may have once existed separately, but together they are the words of a liturgical act of confession and forgiveness. 1-9: It is your iniquities: the prophet begins the service by indicting Israel for her sins.

- and your fingers with crime;
 your lips speak lies
 and your tongues utter injustice.
- 4 No man sues with just cause,
 no man goes honestly to law;
 all trust in empty words, all tell lies, conceive mischief and give birth to
 trouble.
- 5 They hatch snakes' eggs, they weave cobwebs;
 eat their eggs and you will die, for rotten eggs hatch only rottenness.
- 6 As for their webs, they will never make cloth,
 no one can use them for clothing;
 their works breed trouble and their hands are busy with deeds of violence.
- 7 They rush headlong into crime in furious haste to shed innocent blood;
 their schemes are schemes of mischief and leave a trail of ruin and devastation.
- 8 They do not know the way to
 peace,
 no justice guides their steps;
 all the paths they follow are crooked;
 no one who walks in them enjoys true peace.
- 9 Therefore justice is far away from us, right does not reach us;
 we look for light but all is darkness, for the light of dawn, but we walk in deep gloom.
- 10 We grope like blind men along a wall,
 feeling our way like men without
 eyes;
 we stumble at noonday as if it were
 twilight,
 like dead men in the ghostly underworld.
- 11 We growl like bears,
 like doves we moan incessantly, waiting for justice, and there is none;
 for deliverance, but it is still far
 away.
- Our acts of rebellion against thee 12 are past counting
 and our sins bear witness against us;
 we remember our many rebellions,
 we know well our guilt:
 we have rebelled and broken faith 13
 with the LORD,
 we have relapsed and forsaken our
 God;
 we have conceived lies in our hearts and repeated them
 in slanderous and treacherous words.
 Justice is rebuffed and flouted 14 while righteousness stands aloof; truth stumbles in the market-place and honesty is kept out of court, so truth is lost to sight, 15 and whoever shuns evil is thought a madman.
- The LORD saw, and in his eyes it was an evil thing,
 that there was no justice;
 he saw that there was no man to help 16 and was outraged that no one intervened;
 so his own arm brought him victory and his own integrity upheld him. 17 He put on integrity as a coat of mail
 and the helmet of salvation on his
 head;
 he put on garments of vengeance and wrapped himself in a cloak of jealous anger.
 High God of retribution that he is, 18
 he pays in full measure, wreaking his anger on his foes, retribution on his enemies.
 So from the west men shall fear his 19
 name,
 fear his glory from the rising of the sun;
 for it shall come like a shining river,
 the spirit of the LORD hovering over it,
 come as the ransom of Zion 20 and of all in Jacob who repent of their rebellion.
 This is the very word of the LORD.
- This, says the LORD, is my covenant, 21

5-6: This is probably a proverb. Snakes' eggs: malicious evil deeds; weave cobwebs: useless, unproductive schemes and plans. 10: The dead in the underworld were thought to be weak and in a state of torpor. 19: Spirit of the LORD: see 11.2 n. 20: Ransom: see 41.14 n. 21: This verse, which is a later addition, affirms a covenant which shall not end.

which I make with them: My spirit which rests on you and my words which I have put into your mouth shall never fail you from generation to generation of your descendants from now onward for ever. The LORD has said it.

Promise of the new Jerusalem

60 Arise, Jerusalem, rise clothed in light; your light has come
and the glory of the LORD shines over you.

2 For, though darkness covers the
earth
and dark night the nations, the LORD shall shine upon you and over you shall his glory appear;

3 and the nations shall march towards your light
and their kings to your sunrise.

4 Lift up your eyes and look all around:
they flock together, all of them,
and come to you;
your sons also shall come from afar,
your daughters walking beside them leading the way.

5 Then shall you see, and shine with
joy,
then your heart shall thrill with pride;
the riches of the sea shall be lavished
upon you
and you shall possess the wealth of nations.

6 Camels in droves shall cover the
land,
dromedaries of Midian and Ephah, all coming from Sheba laden with golden spice<sup>r</sup> and frankincense,
heralds of the LORD's praise.

7 All Kedar's flocks shall be gathered for you,

rams of Nebaioth shall serve your need,
acceptable offerings on my altar, and glory shall be added to glory
in my temple.

Who are these that sail along like 8 clouds,
that fly like doves to their dovecotes?
They are vessels assembling from 9
the coasts and islands, ships from Tarshish leading the convoy;
they bring your sons from afar, their gold and their silver with
them,
to the honour of the LORD your
God,
the Holy One of Israel;
for he has made you glorious.

Foreigners shall rebuild your walls 10
and their kings shall be your
servants;
for though in my wrath I struck
you down,
now I have shown you pity and
favour.
Your gates shall be open 11
continually,
they shall never be shut day or
night,
that through them may be brought the wealth of nations and their kings under escort.

For the nation or kingdom which 12 refuses to serve you shall perish, and wide regions shall be laid utterly waste.

The wealth of Lebanon shall come 13
to you,
pine, fir,<sup>s</sup> and boxwood,<sup>t</sup> all together,
to bring glory to my holy sanctuary, to honour the place where my feet rest.

<sup>r</sup> golden spice: or gold.
<sup>s</sup> Or elm.
<sup>t</sup> Or cypress.

60.1-22: The new Jerusalem. The LORD addresses the holy city, promising restoration and a glory greater than in the past. The style and thought here resemble the Book of the Consolation of Israel, i.e. chs. 40-55. 1-3: Jerusalem will shine with the glory of the LORD. 6-7: The riches of Arabia come by camels across the desert. 8-9: The riches of the west, coasts and islands, will come by ship. Like clouds . . . doves: white sails of ships from Tarshish. 10: The great reversal: walls destroyed by foreigners will be rebuilt by them; their kings, once tyrants, will now be servants. 13: Wealth of Lebanon: the cedar trees used by Solomon to build the first Temple;

- 14 The sons of your oppressors shall come forward to do homage, all who reviled you shall bow low at your feet;
 they shall call you the City of the LORD,
 the Zion of the Holy One of Israel.
- 15 No longer will you be deserted, a wife hated and unvisited;<sup>u</sup> I will make you an eternal pride and a never-ending joy.
- 16 You shall suck the milk of nations and be suckled at the breasts of kings.
 So you shall know that I the LORD
 am your deliverer, your ransom the Mighty One of Jacob.
- 17 For bronze<sup>v</sup> I will bring you gold and for iron I will bring silver, bronze<sup>v</sup> for timber and iron for stone;
 and I will make your government be peace
 and righteousness rule over you.
- 18 The sound of violence shall be heard
 no longer in your land, or ruin and devastation within your borders;
 but you shall call your walls Deliverance
 and your gates Praise.
- 19 The sun shall no longer be your light by day,
 nor the moon shine on you when evening falls;
 the LORD shall be your everlasting
 light,
 your God shall be your glory.
- 20 Never again shall your sun set nor your moon withdraw her
 light;
 but the LORD shall be your everlasting light and the days of your mourning shall be ended.
- Your people shall all be righteous 21 and shall for ever possess the land, a shoot of my own planting, a work of my own hands to bring me glory.
 The few shall become ten thousand, 22
 the little nation great.
 I am the LORD;
 soon, in the fullness of time, I will bring this to pass.
- The spirit of the Lord GOD is upon 61
 me
 because the LORD has anointed me;
 he has sent me to bring good news to the humble,
 to bind up the broken-hearted, to proclaim liberty to captives and release to those in prison; to proclaim a year of the LORD's 2
 favour
 and a day of the vengeance of
 our God;
 to comfort all who mourn,<sup>w</sup> to give them garlands instead of 3
 ashes,
 oil of gladness instead of mourners' tears,
 a garment of splendour for the heavy heart.
 They shall be called Trees of Righteousness,
 planted by the LORD for his glory.
 Ancient ruins shall be rebuilt 4 and sites long desolate restored; they shall repair the ruined cities and restore what has long lain
 desolate.
 Foreigners shall serve as shepherds 5
 of your flocks,
 and aliens shall till your land and tend your vines;
 but you shall be called priests of 6
 the LORD
 and be named ministers of our
 God;

<sup>u</sup> Or divorced and unmarried.

<sup>v</sup> Or copper.

<sup>w</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds to appoint to Zion's mourners.

1 Kgs.5.6-10. 16: Ransom: see 41.14 n. 18: Ancient as well as modern walls and gates of Jerusalem had names. Here they are symbolic, Deliverance being God's action protecting the city, and Praise being the people's action in entering God's protection. The life of the city will be completely changed. 19-20: The LORD will be a light of the city; compare vv. 1-3. 21-22: The people shall be reestablished in the land. 21: Jerusalem is a new plant, a new creation, at the LORD's hands; see 43.6-7 n. 22: Fullness of time: lit. "its time."

61.1-11: Good news to the exiles. A prophetic voice proclaims consolation and salvation. 1: Spirit of the LORD: see 11.2 n. 3: Righteousness: see 5.7 n. 4-9: The prophet announces the restoration and return. 4: See Amos 9.14. 5-6: Since foreigners will do the secular work, the

- you shall enjoy the wealth of other nations and be furnished<sup>x</sup> with their riches.
- 7 And so, because shame in double measure
and jeers and insults<sup>y</sup> have been my people's lot,
they shall receive in their own land
a double measure of wealth, and everlasting joy shall be theirs.
- 8 For I, the LORD, love justice and hate robbery and wrong-doing;
I will grant them a sure reward and make an everlasting covenant with them;
- 9 their posterity will be renowned
among the nations
and their offspring among the
peoples;
all who see them will acknowledge in them
a race whom the LORD has blessed.
- 10 Let me rejoice in the LORD with all
my heart,
let me exult in my God;
for he has robbed me in salvation as a garment
and clothed me in integrity as a cloak,
like a bridegroom with his priestly garland,
or a bride decked in her jewels.
- 11 For, as the earth puts forth her blossom
or bushes in the garden burst into
flower,
so shall the Lord GOD make righteousness and praise blossom before all the nations.
- 62 For Zion's sake I will not keep
silence,
for Jerusalem's sake I will speak
out,
until her right shines forth like the sunrise,
her deliverance like a blazing torch,
- until the nations see the triumph of your right
and all kings see your glory.
Then you shall be called by a new
name
which the LORD shall pronounce with his own lips;
you will be a glorious crown in the LORD's hand,
a kingly diadem in the hand of
your God.
- No more shall men call you Forsaken, no more shall your land be called Desolate,
but you shall be named Hephzi-bah<sup>z</sup> and your land Beulah;<sup>a</sup> for the LORD delights in you and to him your land is wedded.
For, as a young man weds a maiden,
so you shall wed him who rebuilds you,
and your God shall rejoice over you as a bridegroom rejoices over the
bride.
- I have posted watchmen on your walls, Jerusalem, who shall not keep silence day or
night:
'You who invoke the LORD's name, take no rest, give him no rest until he makes Jerusalem a theme of endless praise on earth.'
- The LORD has sworn with raised right hand and mighty arm:
Never again will I give your grain to feed your foes
or let foreigners drink the new wine for which you have toiled;
but those who bring in the corn shall eat and praise the LORD, and those who gather the grapes shall drink in my holy courts.
- Go out of the gates, go out, prepare a road for my people;

<sup>x</sup> be furnished: prob. rdg.; Heb. unintelligible.
<sup>y</sup> and insults: prob. rdg.; Heb. they shout in triumph.
<sup>z</sup> That is My delight is in her. <sup>a</sup> That is Wedded.

Israelites will be their priests, i.e. intermediaries between them and the LORD, offering sacrifices for them and giving them the Torah, or teaching; see Exod.19.5-6. 10-11: The prophet (or perhaps Israel) responds to the promises with a hymn.

62.1-12: New names for Jerusalem. See 60.1-22; 51.1-52.12. 1: New name: signifies a new status; see 43.1; Ezek.48.35. 4: Israel's land is an integral part of the promise and covenant with God; Gen.15.18-20; Deut.6.10-24. 6-7: Compare 21.12-13. The watchmen (prophets) must keep praying, giving God no rest until he fulfills his promises. 10-12: 60.1-62.9 are summarized here.

- build a highway, build it up, clear away the boulders;
raise a signal to the peoples.
- 11 This is the LORD's proclamation to earth's farthest bounds:
Tell the daughter of Zion, Behold, your deliverance has come.
His recompense comes with him;
he carries his reward before him;
- 12 and they shall be called a Holy People,
the Ransomed of the LORD,
a People long-sought, a City not forsaken.
- 63 'Who is this coming from Edom, coming from Bozrah, his garments stained red?
Under his clothes his muscles stand
out,
and he strides, stooping in his might.'
It is I, who announce that right has won the day,
I, who am strong to save.
- 2 'Why is your clothing all red, like the garments of one who treads grapes in the vat?'
- 3 I have trodden the winepress alone;
no man, no nation was with me.
I trod them down in my rage,
I trampled them in my fury;
and their life-blood spurted over my garments
and stained all my clothing.
- 4 For I resolved on a day of
vengeance;
the year for ransoming my own
had come.
- 5 I looked for a helper but found no one,
I was amazed that there was no one to support me;
yet my own arm brought me
victory,
alone my anger supported me.
- 6 I stamped on nations in my fury,
I pierced them in my rage
- and let their life-blood run out upon
the ground.
- I will recount the LORD's acts of 7 unfailing love
and the LORD's praises as High
God,
all that the LORD has done for us and his great goodness to the house
of Israel,
all that he has done for them in his tenderness
and by his many acts of love.
He said, 'Surely they are my people, 8 my sons who will not play me
false';
and he became their deliverer in all 9 their troubles.
- It was no envoy, no angel, but he himself that delivered them;
he himself ransomed them by his love and pity, lifted them up and carried them through all the years gone by.
- Yet they rebelled and grieved his 10
holy spirit;
only then was he changed into their
enemy
and himself fought against them.
Then men remembered days long 11 past
and him who drew out<sup>b</sup> his people: Where is he who brought them up from the Nile
with the shepherd<sup>c</sup> of his flock?
Where is he who put within him his holy spirit,
who made his glorious power march 12
at the right hand of Moses, dividing the waters before them,
to win for himself an everlasting name, causing them to go through the 13
depths
sure-footed as horses in the
wilderness,

<sup>b</sup> That is Moses whose name resembles the Heb. verb meaning draw out. cp. Exod. 2. 10 and the note there.
<sup>c</sup> Or shepherds.

63.1-6: The approach of the divine warrior. The prophet as watchman (62.6) asks a question (v. 1a) and the LORD, as a figure covered with the blood of his enemies, responds (1b-6). He alone has destroyed the nations in order to save his people; see ch. 34. 1: Bozrah; see 34.6 n. 2-3: As one treading grapes to squeeze out the juice for wine stains his garments, so the LORD trampled on the nations and stained his clothing with their blood. 63.7-64.12: Praise and petition. This prayer begins with an emphasis upon praising God for his saving acts (63.7-14) and turns to pleas that he act again to restore Jerusalem and the Temple (63.15-64.12). 7: Hymns often begin with an expression of the intention to praise. See Ps.89.1. 9-14: The account of God's acts corresponds to Israel's history. 11: Spirit: see 11.2 n.; Ps.106.4. 12: See Exod. chs. 14-15, especially 14.21 and 15.6. 13: See also Ps. 106.9.

- |   |  |  |
|---|--|--|
| 14 like cattle moving down into a valley without stumbling, guided by the spirit of the LORD? So didst thou lead thy people to win thyself a glorious name. 15 Look down from heaven and behold from the heights where thou dwellest holy and glorious. Where is thy zeal, thy valour, thy burning and tender love? 16 Stand not aloof;<sup>d</sup> for thou art our father, though Abraham does not know us nor Israel acknowledge us. Thou, LORD, art our father; thy name is our Ransomer<sup>e</sup> from of old. 17 Why, LORD, dost thou let us wander from thy ways and harden our hearts until we cease to fear thee? turn again for the sake of thy servants, the tribes of thy patrimony. 18 Why have wicked men trodden down thy sanctuary,<sup>f</sup> why have our enemies trampled on thy shrine? 19 We have long been reckoned as beyond thy sway, as if we had not been named thy own. 64 Why didst thou not rend the heavens and come down, and make the mountains shudder before thee 2 as when fire blazes up in brushwood or fire makes water boil? then would thy name be known to thy enemies and nations tremble at thy coming. 3 When thou didst terrible things that we did not look for, the mountains shuddered before thee. 4 Never has ear heard<sup>g</sup> or eye seen any other god taking the part of those who wait for him. | Thou dost welcome him who rejoices to do what is right, who remembers thee in thy ways. Though thou wast angry, yet we sinned, in spite of it we have done evil from of old, we all became like a man who is unclean and all our righteous deeds like a filthy rag; we have all withered<sup>h</sup> like leaves and our iniquities sweep us away like the wind. There is no one who invokes thee by name or rouses himself to cling to thee; for thou hast hidden thy face from us and abandoned us to our iniquities. But now, LORD, thou art our father; we are the clay, thou the potter, and all of us are thy handiwork. Do not be angry beyond measure, O LORD, and do not remember iniquity for ever; look on us all, look on thy people. Thy holy cities are a wilderness, Zion a wilderness, Jerusalem desolate; our sanctuary, holy and glorious, where our fathers praised thee, has been burnt to the ground and all that we cherish is a ruin. After this, O LORD, wilt thou hold back, wilt thou keep silence and punish us beyond measure? I was there to be sought by a people who did not ask, to be found by men who did not seek me. I said, 'Here am I, here am I', | 5 6 7 8 9 10 11 12 65 |
|---|--|--|

d Stand not aloof: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure in context.
e Or our Kinsman.
f Why . . . sanctuary: prob. rdg.; Heb. For a little while they possessed thy holy people.
g Never . . . heard: prob. rdg.; Heb. They have never heard or listened.
h have all withered: or are all carried away.

15-19: The petitioner asks for reasons for God's absence. 16: Ransomer: see 41.14 n. 17: Harden our hearts: since God controls all things, he must have caused Israel to go astray. Compare Exod.14.4. 19: Named: see 43.6-7 n. 64.12: When the LORD answers man with silence he leaves him to his own resources, i.e. doom, which is punishment beyond measure; see Ps.28.1. 65.1-25: The answer to the prayer. In the inherited organization of the book, this chapter appears as God's response to the previous petition; sinners will be judged but the faithful redeemed. 1-2: Far from keeping silence, God makes his presence known by shouting "Here am

- to a nation that did not invoke me
by name.
- 2 I spread out my hands all day appealing to an unruly people who went their evil way, following their own devices,
- 3 a people who provoked me continually to my face, offering sacrifice in gardens, burning incense on brick altars,
- 4 crouching among graves, keeping vigil all night long, eating swine's flesh, their cauldrons full of a tainted brew.
- 5 'Stay where you are,' they cry,
'do not dare touch me; for I am too sacred for you.'
- Such people are a smouldering fire, smoking in my nostrils all day long.
- 6 All is on record before me: I will not
keep silence;
- 7 I will repay<sup>i</sup> your iniquities, yours and your fathers', all at once,
says the LORD,
because they burnt incense<sup>j</sup> on the mountains
and defied me on the hills;
I will first measure out their reward and then pay them in full.
- 8 These are the words of the LORD:
As there is new wine in a cluster of grapes
and men say, 'Do not destroy it;
there is a blessing in it',
so will I do for my servants' sake:
I will not destroy the whole nation.
- 9 I will give Jacob children to come after him and Judah heirs who shall possess my mountains;
my chosen shall inherit them
and my servants shall live there.
- 10 Flocks shall range over Sharon, and the Vale of Achor be a pasture for cattle;
they shall belong to my people who seek me.
- 11 But you that forsake the LORD and forget my holy mountain, who spread a table for the god of Fate,
- and fill bowls of spiced wine in honour of Fortune,
I will deliver you to your fate, to execution,
and you shall all bend the neck to
the sword,
because I called and you did not
answer,
I spoke and you did not listen;
and you did what was wrong in my
eyes
and you chose what was against my will.
- Therefore these are the words of the LORD GOD:
My servants shall eat but you shall starve;
my servants shall drink but you shall go thirsty;
my servants shall rejoice but you shall be put to shame;
my servants shall shout in triumph in the gladness of their hearts, but you shall cry from sorrow and wail from anguish of spirit; your name shall be used as an oath
by my chosen,
and the Lord GOD shall give you over to death;
but his servants he shall call by another name.
- He who invokes a blessing on himself in the land shall do so by the God whose name is Amen,
and he who utters an oath in the
land
shall do so by the God of Amen;
the former troubles are forgotten and they are hidden from my sight.
- For behold, I create new heavens and a new earth.
Former things shall no more be remembered
nor shall they be called to mind.
Rejoice and be filled with delight, you boundless realms which I create;
for I create Jerusalem to be a delight

<sup>i</sup> Prob. rdg., transposing and then pay to follow reward.
<sup>j</sup> Or sacrifices.

I' and stretching out his hands to a people that is silent. 3: Sacrifice . . . incense: that is, participation in fertility cults. 4: Crouching among graves probably refers to consulting the spirits of the dead. Keeping vigil: awaiting a dream revelation; see Jer.23.25-32. Eating swine's flesh was a violation of dietary law; see Deut.14.8. 11: Fate, Fortune: Aramaean gods. 15: Oath: i.e.

and her people a joy; 19 I will take delight in Jerusalem and rejoice in my people;
 weeping and cries for help shall never again be heard in her.
 20 There no child shall ever again die an infant,
 no old man fail to live out his life;
 every boy shall live his hundred years before he dies, whoever falls short of a hundred shall be despised.<sup>k</sup> 21 Men shall build houses and live to inhabit them,
 plant vineyards and eat their fruit; 22 they shall not build for others to inhabit
 nor plant for others to eat.
 My people shall live the long life of
 a tree,
 and my chosen shall enjoy the fruit of their labour.
 23 They shall not toil in vain or raise children for misfortune.
 For they are the offspring of the blessed of the LORD
 and their issue after them; 24 before they call to me, I will answer, and while they are still speaking I will listen.
 25 The wolf and the lamb shall feed
 together
 and the lion shall eat straw like cattle.<sup>l</sup>
 They shall not hurt or destroy in all my holy mountain,
 says the LORD.

66 These are the words of the LORD:
 Heaven is my throne and earth my footstool.
 Where will you build a house for me,
 where shall my resting-place be?
 2 All these are of my own making and all these are mine.
 This is the very word of the LORD.

The man I look to is a man downtrodden and distressed,
 one who reveres my words.
 3 But to sacrifice an ox or to<sup>m</sup> kill a
 man,

slaughter a sheep or break a dog's
 neck,
 offer grain or offer pigs' blood, burn incense as a token and worship an idol—
 all these are the chosen practices of
 men
 who<sup>n</sup> revel in their own loathsome rites.
 I too will practise those wanton rites 4 of theirs
 and bring down on them the very things they dread;
 for I called and no one answered,
 I spoke and no one listened.
 They did what was wrong in my eyes and chose practices not to my liking.

Hear the word of the LORD, you who 5 revere his word:
 Your fellow-countrymen who hate you,
 who spurn you because you bear
 my name, have said,
 'Let the LORD show his glory,
 then we shall see you rejoice';
 but they shall be put to shame.
 That roar from the city, that uproar 6 in the temple,
 is the sound of the LORD dealing retribution to his foes.

Shall a woman bear a child without 7 pains?
 give birth to a son before the onset of labour?
 Who has heard of anything like 8 this?
 Who has seen any such thing?
 Shall a country be born after one day's labour,
 shall a nation be brought to birth
 all in a moment?
 But Zion, at the onset of her pangs, bore her sons.
 Shall I bring to the point of birth 9 and not deliver?

k Or cursed.
l Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds and the food of the snake shall be dust.
m to sacrifice an ox or to: or those who sacrifice an ox and . . .
n are the chosen practices of men who: or have chosen their own devices and . . .

curse. 21: See Amos 9.14. See also Ezek.28.26; 45.4; Hos.11.11. 25: Isa.11.9 is quoted at the end. 66.1-24: A collection of speeches. 1-2a: The LORD, who speaks, cannot be confined to one place. 2b-4: Those who sacrifice to idols will themselves be sacrificed. 5-9: God's intervention has already begun and will soon be evident. 5-6: He is dealing with his foes. 7-9: Israel is

- the LORD says;
shall I who deliver close the womb?
your God has spoken.
- 10 Rejoice with Jerusalem and exult in her,
all you who love her;
share her joy with all your heart,
all you who mourn over her.
- 11 Then you may suck and be fed from the breasts that give comfort, delighting in her plentiful milk.
- 12 For thus says the LORD:
I will send peace flowing over her like a river, and the wealth of nations like a stream in flood;
it shall suckle you,
and you shall be carried in their arms and dandled on their knees.
- 13 As a mother comforts her son,
so will I myself comfort you,
and you shall find comfort in Jerusalem.
- 14 This you shall see and be glad at heart, your limbs shall be as fresh as grass in spring;
the LORD shall make his power known among his servants and his indignation felt among his foes.
- 15 For see, the LORD is coming in fire, with his chariots like a whirlwind, to strike home with his furious anger and with the flaming fire of his reproof.
- 16 The LORD will judge by fire, with fire he will test all living men,
and many will be slain by the LORD;
- 17 those who hallow and purify themselves in garden-rites, one after another in a magic ring, those who eat the flesh of pigs and rats<sup>o</sup> and all vile vermin, shall meet their end, one and all,
says the LORD,
for I know their deeds and their thoughts. 18
- Then I myself will come to gather all nations and races, and they shall come and see my glory;
and I will perform a sign among them. 19
- I will spare some of them and send them to the nations, to Tarshish, Put, and Lud,<sup>p</sup> to Meshek, Rosh,<sup>q</sup> Tubal, and Javan,<sup>r</sup> distant coasts and islands which have never yet heard of me and have not seen my glory;
these shall announce that glory among the nations.
From every nation they shall bring your countrymen 20 on horses, in chariots and wagons, on mules and dromedaries,
as an offering to the LORD,
on my holy mountain Jerusalem,
says the LORD,
as the Israelites bring offerings in pure vessels to the LORD's house;
and some of them I will take for priests, for Levites, 21
says the LORD.
- For, as the new heavens and the new earth 22 which I am making shall endure in my sight,
says the LORD,
so shall your race and your name endure;

<sup>o</sup> Or jerboas.

<sup>p</sup> Or Lydia.

<sup>q</sup> Meshek, Rosh: prob. rdg.; Heb. those who draw the bow.

<sup>r</sup> Or Greece.

being reborn. Unlike the labour of childbirth, God will deliver the new Israel without prolonged birth pangs of further calamity and Israel will continue to be fruitful in bearing children. 10-16: God is coming to bring peace (v. 12) to his people and punishment to his enemies. 18-24: God will gather all nations and races to Jerusalem. 18: Not only Israel but all nations will see the glory of the LORD; see v. 5. 19: Sign: see 7.11-12 n. The glory of the LORD will be made known to the nations farthest west, coasts and islands of the Mediterranean world, by non-Israelites, since the Jews were not a seafaring people. Tarshish: possibly Spain, at the extreme edge of the then known world; Put and Lud: northern Africa; Javan: Ionia; Meshek, Rosh, Tubal: at the extremities of Asia Minor to the north of Palestine. 20-21: All peoples will be the countrymen of the Jews in the new Israel, some of them even becoming priests. 22: The race and name of Israel will endure forever as a new creation in a new world; see also 65.17.

23 and month by month at the new moon,
week by week on the sabbath,
all mankind shall come to bow down before me,
says the LORD;
24 and they shall come out and see the dead bodies of those who have rebelled against me;

their worm shall not die nor their fire be quenched,
and they shall be abhorred by all mankind.

---

24: The punishment of the wicked shall not end. Outside the city there will be a place of refuse, dead bodies and smoldering fire, as it was in the Valley of Hinnom outside of the old Jerusalem.

THE BOOK OF THE PROPHET JEREMIAH

Jeremiah prophesied in Jerusalem mostly before the Babylonians destroyed the Temple there in 587 B.C. but also for a short while after that event, and even, briefly, in Egypt among the fugitives from Judah. He foresaw this fall of the Southern Kingdom which occurred something over a century after the fall of the Northern Kingdom, Israel. He was no uninvolved spectator; loving his people, compelled by his God and undeterred either by ridicule or by persecution, he sought to salvage what he could from the national calamity. His major accomplishment as a prophet was his contribution to his people's maturation: Judah could survive, he knew, even without the Jerusalem sanctuary.

Chapters 1 to 20 contain two related types of matter: the tender prophet pleads with Israel for an appropriately loyal response, one that would enable a pardoning God to withhold a merited punishment; and he also reveals his dismay and sorrow at her stubbornly heedless behavior and rebels against his need to pursue his seemingly futile mission to her. In chapters 21 to 45 a biographer, probably the prophet's disciple Baruch, records the dramatic course of Jeremiah's frustrating ministry. Both here and in the remaining section (chs. 46-52), messages of hope and consolation occasionally relieve the dreary forebodings.

Persons other than the prophet and his biographer may be responsible for certain passages, especially within the "prophecies against the nations" (chs. 46-51), but also elsewhere in the book. Some of the passages are written after the manner of Deuteronomy or in the style of the later chapters of Isaiah.

1 THE WORDS OF JEREMIAH SON OF Hilkiah, one of the priests at 2 Anathoth in Benjamin. The word of the LORD came to him in the thirteenth year of the reign of Josiah son 3 of Amon, king of Judah; also during the reign of Jehoiakim son of Josiah, king of Judah, until the eleventh year of Zedekiah son of Josiah, king of Judah, was completed. In the fifth month the people of Jerusalem were carried away into exile.

Jeremiah's call and two visions

4 THE WORD OF THE LORD CAME TO ME:
5 'Before I formed you in the womb I knew you for my own; before you were born I consecrated you, I appointed 6 you a prophet to the nations.' 'Ah!
Lord God,' I answered, 'I do not know how to speak; I am only a child.' But 7 the LORD said, 'Do not call yourself a child; for you shall go to whatever people I send you and say whatever I tell you to say. Fear none of them, for 8

I am with you and will keep you safe.'
This was the very word of the LORD.
Then the LORD stretched out his hand 9 and touched my mouth, and said to me,
'I put my words into your mouth. This 10 day I give you authority over nations and over kingdoms, to pull down and to uproot, to destroy and to demolish, to build and to plant.'

The word of the LORD came to me: 11
'What is it that you see, Jeremiah?' 'An almond in early bloom,'<sup>a</sup> I answered.
'You are right,' said the LORD to me, 12
'for I am early on the watch<sup>b</sup> to carry

<sup>a</sup> Heb. shaked.
<sup>b</sup> Heb. shoked.

1.1-3: A title page. 1: Anathoth: about three miles north of Jerusalem. One of the priests: a member of a priestly family (see 1 Kgs. 2.26-27) though seemingly not of the Jerusalem priesthood. 2: Thirteenth year of Josiah: 627 B.C. 3: Eleventh year of Zedekiah: 587 B.C. In the fifth month: see 2 Kgs. 25.8,11. But chs. 40-44 imply that Jeremiah's activity actually extended into later years.

1.4-19: The beginning of Jeremiah's career: 5: I consecrated you: set you apart. To the nations: chs. 46-51 are against the nations. 6: I am only a child suggests inadequacy, not early youth. 7: Say whatever I tell you to say: the thought is dramatized in v. 9. 8: Fear none of them: God fortifies his prophet in advance against his people's opposition, a thought which is developed in vv. 17-19. 10: To pull down . . . uproot . . . build . . . plant: God's message has two aspects, the threat of disaster and consolation after calamity. 11-12: What God threatens through his prophet he brings to sure fulfillment. The early blooming almond (shaked) reminds Jeremiah

13 out my purpose.' The word of the LORD came to me a second time: 'What is it that you see?' 'A cauldron', I said, 'on a fire, fanned by the wind; it is tilted away from the north.' The LORD said:

From the north disaster shall flare up against all who live in this land;
 15 for now I summon all peoples and kingdoms of the north, says the LORD.
 Their kings shall come and each shall set up his throne before the gates of Jerusalem, against her walls on every side, and against all the cities of Judah.
 16 I will state my case against my people for all the wrong they have done in forsaking me, in burning sacrifices to other gods, worshipping the work of their own hands.
 17 Brace yourself, Jeremiah; stand up and speak to them. Tell them everything I bid you, do not let your spirit break at sight of them, or I will break you before their eyes.
 18 This day I make you a fortified city, a pillar of iron, a wall of bronze, to stand fast against the whole land, against the kings and princes of Judah, its priests and its people.
 19 They will make war on you but shall not overcome you, for I am with you and will keep you safe.
 This is the very word of the LORD.

Exhortations to Israel and Judah

2 THE WORD OF THE LORD CAME TO ME:
 2 Go, make a proclamation that all

Jerusalem shall hear: These are the words of the LORD:

I remember the unflinching devotion of your youth, the love of your bridal days, when you followed me in the wilderness, through a land unsown. Israel then was holy to the LORD, 3 the firstfruits of his harvest; no one who devoured her went unpunished, evil always overtook them.
 This is the very word of the LORD.

Listen to the word of the LORD, 4 people of Jacob, families of Israel, one and all. These are the words of the LORD: 5

What fault did your forefathers find in me, that they wandered far from me, pursuing empty phantoms and themselves becoming empty; that they did not ask, 'Where is the LORD, 6 who brought us up from Egypt, and led us through the wilderness, through a country of deserts and shifting sands, a country barren and ill-omened, where no man ever trod, no man made his home?' I brought you into a fruitful land 7 to enjoy its fruit and the goodness of it; but when you entered upon it you defiled it and made the home I gave you loathsome. The priests no longer asked, 'Where is the LORD?' 8 Those who handled the law had no thought of me, the shepherds of the people rebelled against me; that God is "watchful" (shoked) to carry out his purpose. 13–16: Disaster looms from the north. 13: In steam from a boiling cauldron the prophet sees an omen of national calamity. 15: Peoples and kingdoms of the north: the enemy, Babylon, is not directly identified until 20.4. While some, indeed, speculate that the distant Scythians are intended, more probably Jeremiah had in mind the Babylonians, the currently dominant Mesopotamian power. Similarly, in Amos 6.14, an unnamed nation can be identified as Assyria.

2.1–37: Israel's apostasy a fateful error, 2–3: In the wilderness . . . a land unsown: before the entry into Canaan, Israel served God with undivided loyalty, and he protected her. 5–8: In agricultural Canaan, the fruitful land, Israel forgot God's solicitude, confused him with the god

- the prophets prophesied in the name of Baal
and followed gods powerless to help.
- 9 Therefore I will bring a charge against you once more,
says the LORD,
against you and against your
descendants.
- 10 Cross to the coasts and islands of Kittim and see,
send to Kedar and consider well, see whether there has been anything like this:
- 11 has a nation ever changed its gods,
although they were no gods?
But my people have exchanged their Glory
for a god altogether powerless.
- 12 Stand aghast at this, you heavens, tremble in utter despair,
says the LORD.
- 13 Two sins have my people committed:
they have forsaken me,
a spring of living water,
and they have hewn out for themselves cisterns, cracked cisterns that can hold no
water.
- 14 Is Israel a slave? Was he born in slavery?
If not, why has he been despoiled?
- 15 Why do lions roar and growl at
him?
Why has his land been laid waste, why are his cities razed to the ground and abandoned?
- 16 Men of Noph and Tahpanhes will break your heads.
- 17 Is it not your desertion of the LORD
your God
that brings all this upon you?
- 18 And now, why should you make off to Egypt
to drink the waters of the Shihor?
- Or why make off to Assyria to drink the waters of the River?
It is your own wickedness that will punish you,
your own apostasy that will condemn you.
- See for yourselves how bitter a thing
it is and how evil,
to forsake the LORD your God and revere me no longer.
- This is the very word of the Lord GOD of Hosts.
- Ages ago you broke your yoke and snapped your traces,
crying, 'I will not be your slave';
and you sprawled in promiscuous vice on all the hill-tops, under every spreading tree.
- I planted you as a choice red vine,
true stock all of you,
yet now you are turned into a vine debased and worthless!
- The stain of your sin is still there and I see it,
though you wash with soda and do not stint the soap.
- This is the very word of the Lord
GOD.
- How can you say, 'I am not polluted,
not I!
I have not followed the Baalim'?
Look how you conducted yourself in the valley;
remember what you have done.
You have been like a she-camel, twisting and turning as she runs, rushing alone into<sup>c</sup> the wilderness, snuffing the wind in her lust;
who can restrain her in her heat?
No one need tire himself out in pursuit of her;

<sup>c</sup> rushing alone into: prob. rdg.; Heb. a wild-ass taught in.

Baal, and forfeited his care. 8: Priests . . . shepherds (rulers), and prophets all went astray. 9–13: It was wholly unnatural behavior in that not even worshipers of idols, no gods, exchange those phantoms for others. 10: Kittim: Cyprus. Kedar: in Arabia, east of Edom. 11: Their glory: God. 13: Water sources were either a spring flowing from underground, or cisterns, dug out and plastered to collect and hold rainwater. 14–15: The consequences of Israel's apostasy already in evidence. Despoiled . . . razed . . . abandoned: the allusions are either to the ruin wrought by Assyria about 721 B.C. in the Northern Kingdom, or else to the effects of some more recent invasion, possibly Necho's in 609 B.C.; see 22.10 n. 16: Noph and Tahpanhes: Memphis and Daphne in Lower Egypt. 18: Shihor: a branch of the Nile. The River: the Euphrates. Playing international politics is also disloyalty to God. 20: Promiscuous vice: an example of, and a metaphor for, religious apostasy. 21: Compare the vineyard parable in Isa.5.1–7. 23: Baalim: the gods of the Canaanites. The valley: its name was Ben-hinnom; see

- she is easily found at mating time.
 25 Why not save your feet from stony ground and your throats from thirst?
 But you said, 'No; I am desperate.
 I love foreign gods and I must go after them.'
- 26 As a thief is ashamed when he is found out,
 so the people of Israel feel ashamed,
 they, their kings, their princes, their priests and their prophets; 27 they say 'You are our father' to a block of wood
 and cry 'Mother' to a stone.
 But on me they have turned their backs
 and averted their faces from me.
 And now on the day of disaster they
 say,
 'Rise up and save us.'
- 28 Where are they, those gods you made for yourselves?
 Let them come and save you in the day of disaster.
 For you, Judah, have as many gods as you have towns.<sup>d</sup>
- 29 The LORD answers,
 Why argue your case with me?
 You are rebels, every one of you.
 30 In vain I struck down your sons, the lesson was not learnt;
 still your own sword devoured your prophets
 like a ravening lion.
- 31 'Have I shown myself inhospitable to Israel
 like some wilderness or waterless
 land?
 Why do my people say, 'We have broken away;
 we will never come back to thee?'
- 32 Will a girl forget her finery or a bride her ribbons?
 Yet my people have forgotten
 me
 over and over again.
- 33 How well you pick your way in
- search of lovers!
 Why! even the worst of women can learn from you.
 Yes, and there is blood on the corners of your robe— 34
 the life-blood of the innocent poor.
 You did not get it by housebreaking
 but by your sacrifices under every oak.
 You say, 'I am innocent;
 surely his anger has passed away.' 35
 But I will challenge your claim to have done no sin.
 Why do you so lightly change your 36
 course?
 Egypt will fail you as Assyria did;
 you shall go out from here, 37 each of you with his hands above
 his head,
 for the LORD repudiates those in whom you trusted,
 and from them you shall gain nothing.
- If a man puts away his wife 3 and she leaves him,
 and if she then becomes another's,
 may he go back to her again?
 Is not that woman defiled,
 a forbidden thing?
 You have played the harlot with many lovers;
 can you come back to me?
 says the LORD.
- Look up to the high bare places 2 and see:
 where have you not been ravished?
 You sat by the wayside to catch lovers,
 like an Arab lurking in the desert, and defiled the land
 with your fornication and your wickedness.
 Therefore the showers were 3 withheld

<sup>d</sup> towns: or blood-spattered altars.

<sup>e</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. prefixes You, O generation, see the word of the LORD.

7.31. 27: Block of wood . . . a stone: idols. 30: In vain I struck down your sons: brought defeat to your armies. The lesson that I was displeased was not learned; see 3.3 n. Your prophets, e.g. Uriah (26.20–23). 34: The life-blood of the innocent poor: see 5.28. Social injustice too is infidelity. 36: Egypt . . . Assyria: see vv. 16 and 18. 37: His hands above his head: disgraced; see 2 Sam.13.19. Those in whom you trusted: possibly Egypt; see 37.7.

3.1–10: A persistently inconstant people. Jeremiah condemns Judah, the wife faithless to God. 1: A twice divorced woman may not remarry her first husband; see Deut.24.1–4. 3: Showers and the spring rain failed.

But yours was a harlot's brow, and you were resolved to show no
shame.

- 4 Not so long since, you called me
'Father,
dear friend of my youth',
5 thinking, 'Will he be angry for ever?
Will he rage eternally?'
This is how you spoke; you have done evil
and gone unchallenged.

- 6 In the reign of King Josiah, the LORD said to me, Do you see what apostate Israel did? She went up to every hill-top and under every spreading tree, and 7 there she played the whore. Even after she had done all this, I said to her,
Come back to me, but she would not.
That faithless woman, her sister Judah, 8 saw it all; she saw too that I had put apostate Israel away and given her a note of divorce because she had committed adultery. Yet that faithless woman, her sister Judah, was not afraid; she too has gone and played the 9 whore. She defiled the land with her thoughtless harlotry and her adulterous 10 worship of stone and wood. In spite of all this that faithless woman, her sister Judah, has not come back to me in good faith, but only in pretence. This is the very word of the LORD.

- 11 The LORD said to me, Apostate Israel is less to blame than that faithless 12 woman Judah. Go and proclaim this message to the north:

Come back to me, apostate Israel,
says the LORD,
I will no longer frown on you.
For my love is unailing, says the
LORD,

- I will not be angry for ever.
13 Only you must acknowledge your wrongdoing,
confess your rebellion against the LORD your God.

Confess your promiscuous traffic with foreign gods
under every spreading tree, confess that you have not obeyed
me.

This is the very word of the LORD.

Come back to me, apostate children, 14 says the LORD, for I am patient with you, and I will take you, one from a city and two from a clan, and bring you to Zion. There will I give you shepherds 15 after my own heart, and they shall lead you with knowledge and understanding. In those days, when you have in- 16 creased and become fruitful in the land, says the LORD, men shall speak no more of the Ark of the Covenant of the LORD;
they shall not think of it nor remember it nor resort to it; it will be needed no more. At that time Jerusalem shall be 17 called the Throne of the LORD. All nations shall gather in Jerusalem to honour the LORD's name; never again shall they follow the promptings of their evil and stubborn hearts. In those 18 days Judah shall join Israel, and together they shall come from a northern land into the land I gave their fathers as their patrimony.

I said, How gladly would I treat you 19
as a son,
giving you a pleasant land,
a patrimony fairer than that of any nation!

I said, You shall call me Father and never cease to follow me.
But like a woman who is unfaithful 20
to her lover,
so you, Israel, were unfaithful to me.
This is the very word of the LORD.
Hark, a sound of weeping on the 21 bare places,
Israel's people pleading for mercy!
For they have taken to crooked ways and ignored the LORD their God.

were withheld but this proved ineffective as discipline (see Amos 4.7-8). 6: The reign of King Josiah: 640-609 B.C., in Jeremiah's earlier period. 7-9: Judah saw that I had delivered Israel over to the armies of Assyria (2 Kgs.18.9-12) but did not learn from that early example. 10: Has . . . come back . . . but only in pretence: this may refer to the reformation under Josiah in 621 B.C. (2 Kgs.22.8-23.25); if so, the reformation is judged as halfhearted.

3.11-4.2: An invitation to return, coupled with gleaming messianic promise. 11: Apostate Israel is less to blame: the Northern Kingdom had no such earlier example to learn from (vv. 7-9 n.). 12: To the north: in the Assyrian captivity, Israel still survives as the ten tribes. (Later these

- 22 Come back to me, wayward<sup>f</sup> sons;
I will heal your apostasy.
- O LORD, we come! We come to thee;
for thou art our God.
- 23 There is no help in worship on the hill-tops,
no help from clamour on the heights;
truly in the LORD our God is Israel's only salvation.
- 24 From our early days Baal, god of shame, has devoured the fruits of our fathers' labours, their flocks and herds, their sons and daughters.
- 25 Let us lie down in shame, wrapped round by our dishonour, for we have sinned against the LORD our God, both we and our fathers, from our early days till now, and we have not obeyed the LORD our God.
- 4 If you will but come back, O Israel, if you will but come back to me, says the LORD, if you will banish your loathsome idols from my sight, and stray no more,
- 2 if you swear by the life of the LORD, in truth, in justice and uprightness, then shall the nations pray to be blessed like you<sup>g</sup> and in you<sup>g</sup> shall they boast.
- 3 These are the words of the LORD to the men of Judah and Jerusalem:
- Break up your fallow ground,
do not sow among thorns, 4 circumcise yourselves to the service of the LORD,
- circumcise your hearts,
men of Judah and dwellers in Jerusalem, lest the fire of my fury blaze up and burn unquenched,
because of your evil doings.
- Tell this in Judah,
5 proclaim it in Jerusalem, blow the trumpet throughout the land,
sound the muster,
give the command, Stand to!—and let us fall back on the fortified cities.
- Raise the signal—To Zion!
6 make for safety, lose no time, for I bring disaster out of the north, and dire destruction.
- A lion has come out from his lair, 7 the destroyer of nations;
he has struck his tents, he has broken camp,
to harry your land
and lay your cities waste and unpeopled.
- 8 Well may you put on sackcloth, beat the breast and wail, for the anger of the LORD is not averted from us.
- 9 On that day, says the LORD, the hearts of the king and his officers shall fail them, priests shall be struck with horror and prophets dumbfounded.
- And I said, O Lord GOD, thou surely 10 didst deceive this people and Jerusalem in saying, 'You shall have peace', while the sword is at our throats.
- At that time this people and Jeru- 11 salem shall be told:
- A scorching wind from the high bare places in the wilderness sweeps down upon my people, were deemed "lost.") 22–25: Jeremiah imagines the response he desires. 22: Come back: reconciliation was still possible.

<sup>f</sup> Or apostate. <sup>g</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. him.

4.3–4: The peril of stubborn disobedience. Ancient psychology located the emotions in the lower viscera, and the mind in the heart; "uncircumcised heart" means a stubbornly closed mind. Jeremiah pleads for open minds. The thought of v. 4 is repeated with a different symbol in v. 14.

4.5–31: More about the devastating foe from the north. See 1.13–16. Mostly the prophet speaks for God, but in v. 13 (end), in vv. 19–21, and in v. 31 (end), he puts the words of anguished lamentation into the mouths of his people, while in v. 10 and vv. 23–26 he breaks in with his own exclamations of dismay. 6: God names himself as the moving force behind the invading armies. 9: Prophets: these claim, like Jeremiah, to speak for God, but, unlike

- no breeze for winnowing or for cleansing;
- 12 a wind too strong for these will come at my bidding, and now I will state my case
against them.
- 13 Like clouds the enemy advances with a whirlwind of chariots; his horses are swifter than eagles—alas, we are overwhelmed!
- 14 O Jerusalem, wash the wrongdoing from your heart
and you may yet be saved;
how long will you cherish your evil schemes?
- 15 Hark, a runner from Dan, tidings of evil from Mount Ephraim!
- 16 Tell all this to the nations, proclaim the doom of Jerusalem:
hordes of invaders come from a distant land,
howling against the cities of Judah.
- 17 Their pickets are closing in all round her,
because she has rebelled against me.
This is the very word of the LORD.
- 18 Your own ways, your own deeds have brought all this upon you;
this is your punishment, and all this comes of your rebellion.<sup>h</sup>
- 19 Oh, the writhing of my bowels and the throbbing of my heart!
I cannot keep silence.
I hear the sound of the trumpet,
the sound of the battle-cry.
- 20 Crash upon crash,
the land goes down in ruin,
my tents are thrown down,
their coverings torn to shreds.
- 21 How long must I see the standard raised
and hear the trumpet call?
- 22 My people are fools, they know nothing of me;
silly children, with no understanding,
they are clever only in wrongdoing,
- and of doing right they know
nothing.
- I saw the earth, and it was without form and void;
the heavens, and their light was
gone.
- I saw the mountains, and they reeled;
all the hills rocked to and fro.
- I saw, and there was no man, and the very birds had taken flight.
- I saw, and the farm-land was
wilderness,
and the towns all razed to the
ground,
before the LORD in his anger.
These are the words of the LORD:
- The whole land shall be desolate, though I will not make an end of it.
- Therefore the earth will mourn and the heavens above turn black.
For I have made known my purpose;
I will not relent or change my mind.
- At the sound of the horsemen and archers
the whole country is in flight; they creep into caves, they hide in thickets,
they scramble up the crags.
Every town is forsaken,
no one dwells there.
- And you, what are you doing?
When you dress yourself in scarlet, deck yourself out with golden ornaments,
and make your eyes big with antimony,
you are beautifying yourself to no purpose.
Your lovers spurn you
and are out for your life.
I hear a sound as of a woman in labour,

<sup>h</sup> your rebellion: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.

Jeremiah, say: "You shall have peace" (v. 10). 14: Heart: see vv. 3–4 n. 15: Dan . . . Mount Ephraim: places north of Jerusalem, the first to fall to the invader. 22: My people: after the imagined lamentation Jeremiah speaks again as if for God; in vv. 23–26, the prophet puts his vision of the event in "apocalyptic" terms, depicting a catastrophe whereby all becomes void as things were before creation. 27–28: Here again appear the words of the LORD, followed in v. 29 with another reference to the invader. 27: Some regard the last clause as one of several comforting additions, like 5.10,18; 48.47a. 30: To no purpose: flirtation with prospective military allies (your lovers) will not avail.

the sharp cry of one bearing her first child.          It is Zion, gasping for breath, clenching her fists.          Ah me! I am weary, weary of slaughter. 5 Go up and down the streets of Jerusalem          and see for yourselves;          search her wide squares:          can you find any man who acts justly,          who seeks the truth,          that I may forgive that city? 2 Men may swear by the life of the LORD,          but they only perjure themselves. 3 O LORD, are thine eyes not set upon the truth?          Thou didst strike them down,          but they took no heed;          didst pierce them to the heart,          but they refused to learn.          They set their faces harder than flint          and refused to come back. 4 I said, 'After all, these are the poor,          these are stupid folk,          who do not know the way of the LORD,          the ordinances of their God. 5 I will go to the great          and speak with them;          for they will know the way of the LORD,          the ordinances of their God.'          But they too have broken the yoke          and snapped their traces. 6 Therefore a lion out of the scrub          shall strike them down,          a wolf from the plains shall ravage them;          a leopard shall prowl about their cities          and maul any who venture out.          For their rebellious deeds are many,          their apostasies past counting. 7 How can I forgive you for all this?	Your sons have forsaken me and sworn by gods          that are no gods.          I gave them all they needed, yet they preferred adultery,          and haunted the brothels;          each neighs after another man's wife, 8          like a well-fed and lusty stallion.          Shall I not punish them for this? 9          the LORD asks.          Shall I not take vengeance          on such a people?          Go along her rows of vines and slash them, 10          yet do not make an end of them.          Hack away her green branches,          for they are not the LORD's.          Faithless are Israel and Judah, 11          both faithless to me.          This is the very word of the LORD.          They have denied the LORD, 12          saying, 'He does not exist.          No evil shall come upon us;          we shall never see sword or famine.          The prophets will prove mere wind, 13          the word not in them.' And so, because you talk in this way, 14          these are the words of the LORD the God of Hosts to me: I will make my words a fire in your mouth;          and it shall burn up this people like brushwood. I bring against you, Israel, a nation 15          from afar,          an ancient people established long ago,          says the LORD.          A people whose language you do not know,          whose speech you will not understand;          they are all mighty warriors, 16          their jaws are a grave, wide open,          to devour your harvest and your 17          bread,
--	--

5.1-31: Deserved calamities. The people are at fault. 1: The merit of even a few who act justly would enable God to forgive Jerusalem; compare Gen.18.28,32. 3: Refused to learn: disciplinary punishment had gone unheeded (see 2.30 n.). 10: Go: here and in v. 14 God seems to be making Jeremiah himself his own executioner. The vines are figurative; see 2.21 n. Yet do make an end of them: possibly a comforting addition; see 4.27 n. 11: Israel and Judah: both kingdoms are mentioned, though Israel has already long been in captivity. 12-13: A challenge and a retort. He does not exist is to be understood as denying the authenticity of the prophet's threatening words. "Atheism" in the Bible is largely a denial of divine activity, not of God's existence. 14: To me: to the prophet. Fire in your mouth: see v. 10 n. 15: From afar: see 1.15 n.

- to devour your sons and your daughters, to devour your flocks and your herds,
to devour your vines and your fig-trees.
They shall batter down the cities in which you trust,<sup>f</sup> walled though they are.
- 18 But in those days, the LORD declares,
I will still not make an end of you.
19 When you ask, 'Why has the LORD our God done all this to us?' I shall answer, 'As you have forsaken me and served alien gods in your own land, so shall you serve foreigners<sup>g</sup> in a land that is not yours.'
- 20 Tell this to the people of Jacob, proclaim it in Judah:
21 Listen, you foolish and senseless people, who have eyes and see nothing, ears and hear nothing.
22 Have you no fear of me? says the LORD; will you not shiver before me, before me, who made the shivering sand to bound the sea,
a barrier it never can pass?
Its waves heave and toss but they are powerless;
roar as they may, they cannot pass.
23 But this people has a rebellious and defiant heart, rebels they have been and now they are clean gone.
24 They did not say to themselves, 'Let us fear the LORD our God, who gives us the rains of autumn and spring showers in their turn, who brings us unfailingly fixed seasons of harvest.' 25 But your wrongdoing has upset nature's order, and your sins have kept from you her kindly gifts.
- For among my people there are wicked men, who lay snares like a fowler's net<sup>k</sup>
and set deadly traps to catch men.
Their houses are full of fraud,
as a cage is full of birds.
They grow rich and grand,
bloated and rancorous;
their thoughts are all of evil,
and they refuse to do justice,
the claims of the orphan they do not put right nor do they grant justice to the poor.
Shall I not punish them for this?
says the LORD;
shall I not take vengeance on such a people?
- An appalling thing, an outrage, has appeared in this land:
prophets prophesy lies and priests go hand in hand with them, and my people love to have it so.
How will you fare at the end of it all?
- Save yourselves, men of Benjamin, 6 come out of Jerusalem, blow the trumpet in Tekoa,
fire the beacon on Beth-hakkerem, for calamity looms from the north and great disaster.
Zion, delightful and lovely:
2 her end is near—
she to whom the shepherds come 3 and bring their flocks with them.
There they pitch their tents all round her,
each grazing his own strip of pasture.
Declare war solemnly against her;
4 come, let us attack her at noon.
Too late! the day declines and the shadows lengthen.
Come then, let us attack her by night
5 and destroy her palaces.

<sup>i</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds with the sword.

<sup>j</sup> Or foreign gods.

<sup>k</sup> who . . . net: prob. rdg.; Heb. unintelligible.

18: A comforting addition; see 4.27 n. 21–23: See nothing . . . hear nothing . . . rebellious and defiant heart. They are a people ignorant of the LORD of creation and willfully obtuse; see vv. 30–31 and 4.3–4 n. 22: Shiver . . . shivering sand. The translation imitates a play on words in the Hebrew original; shiver is taḥīlu, and sand ḥōl, the pun associating hīl and hōl. 27: Full of fraud: full of possessions obtained by fraud. 29: A refrain, see v. 9. 30–31: These verses resume the thought of vv. 21–23. A similar theme is found in 6.13–15.

6.1–30: Calamity is near. 1: Jerusalem is no refuge for the tribe of Benjamin, and when Zion (Jerusalem) falls, Tekoa and Beth-hakkerem to the south will be exposed to attack. 3: Shepherds . . . their flocks: used ironically for the hostile kings with their armies. 4–5: These words

- 6 These are the words of the LORD of Hosts:
Cut down the trees of Jerusalem and raise siege-ramps against her, the city whose name is Licence, oppression is rampant in her.
- 7 As a well keeps its water fresh, so she keeps her evil fresh. Violence and outrage echo in her streets; sickness and wounds stare me in the face.
- 8 Learn your lesson, Jerusalem, lest my love for you be torn from my heart, and I leave you desolate, a land where no one can live.
- 9 These are the words of the LORD of Hosts:
Glean the remnant of Israel like a vine, pass your hand like a vintager one last time over the branches.
- 10 To whom can I address myself, to whom give solemn warning? Who will hear me? Their ears are uncircumcised; they cannot listen; they treat the LORD's word as a reproach; they show no concern with it.
- 11 But I am full of the anger of the LORD, I cannot hold it in. I must pour it out on the children in the street and on the young men in their gangs. Man and wife alike shall be caught in it, the greybeard and the very old.
- 12 Their houses shall be turned over to others, their fields and their women alike. For I will raise my hand, says the LORD,
- against the people of the country. For all, high and low, are out for ill-gotten gain; prophets and priests are frauds, every one of them; they dress my people's wound, but skin-deep only, with their saying, 'All is well.' All well? Nothing is well! Are they ashamed when they practise their abominations? Ashamed? Not they! They can never be put out of countenance. Therefore they shall fall with a great crash,<sup>1</sup> and be brought to the ground on the day of my reckoning. The LORD has said it.
- These are the words of the LORD: Stop at the cross-roads; look for the ancient paths; ask, 'Where is the way that leads to what is good?' Then take that way, and you will find rest for yourselves. But they said, 'We will not.' Then I will appoint watchmen to direct you; listen for their trumpet-call. But they said, 'We will not.' Therefore hear, you nations, and take note, all you who witness it, of the plight of this people. Listen, O earth, I bring ruin on them, the harvest of all their scheming; for they have given no thought to my words and have spurned my instruction. What good is it to me if frankincense is brought from Sheba and fragrant spices from distant lands? I will not accept your whole-offerings, your sacrifices do not please me. Therefore these are the words of the LORD:
- I will set obstacles before this people which shall bring them to the ground;

<sup>1</sup> with a great crash: or where they fall or among the fallen.

are placed in the mouths of these "shepherds." 6-8: Oppression . . . evil . . . violence and outrage will bring on the city's fate, unless she heeds the lesson; see 2.30 n. 10-12: The prophet has no choice but to speak, while his people, unconcerned, cover their ears. 10: Their ears are uncircumcised; see 4.4. 11: The prophet's anger is a part of God's anger, and beyond the prophet's control; it spills over, causing havoc. 13-15: Prophets and priests are frauds: the thought of 5.31 is more fully developed here; see 5.30-31 n. 16-21: The fate of an unheeding people, for God asks obedience more than incense and offerings. Israel spurns his instruction (v. 19) and will perish. 16: Ancient paths: Jeremiah does not claim to be proposing a new doctrine. Find rest: he shares the common human yearning for security. 17: Watchmen: prophets. 20: Sheba was in Arabia. 22-26: Another dramatic projection of the northern foe (see 1.13-16;

fathers and sons, friends and neighbours
shall all perish together.

22 These are the words of the LORD:

See, a people is coming from a northern land,
a great nation rouses itself from earth's farthest corners.

23 They come with bow and sabre, cruel men and pitiless, bestriding their horses, they sound like the thunder of the sea, they are like men arrayed for battle against you, Zion.

24 We have heard tell of them and our hands hang limp, agony grips us, the anguish of a woman in labour.

25 Do not go out into the country;
do not walk by the high road;
for the foe, sword in hand,
is a terror let loose.

26 Daughter of my people, wrap yourself in sackcloth, sprinkle ashes over yourself, wail bitterly,
as one who mourns an only son;
in an instant shall the marauder be upon us.

27 I have appointed you an assayer of my people;
you will know how to test them and will assay their conduct;

28 arch-rebels all of them, mischief-makers, corrupt to a man.

29 The bellows puff and blow, the furnace glows;
in vain does the refiner smelt the ore, lead, copper and iron<sup>m</sup> are not separated out.

30 Call them spurious silver;
for the LORD has spurned them.

False religion and its punishment

THIS WORD CAME FROM THE LORD TO 7
Jeremiah. Stand at the gate of the 2 LORD's house and there make your proclamation: Listen to the words of the LORD, all you men of Judah who come in through these gates to worship him. These are the words of the LORD 3 of Hosts the God of Israel: Mend your ways and your doings, that I may let you live in this place. You keep saying, 4
"This place" is the temple of the LORD, the temple of the LORD, the temple of the LORD! This catchword of yours is a lie; put no trust in it. Mend your ways 5 and your doings, deal fairly with one another, do not oppress the alien, the 6 orphan, and the widow, shed no innocent blood in this place, do not run after other gods to your own ruin.
Then will I let you live in this place, in 7 the land which I gave long ago to your forefathers for all time. You gain noth- 8 ing by putting your trust in this lie.
You steal, you murder, you commit 9 adultery and perjury, you burn sacrifices to Baal, you run after other gods whom you have not known; then you 10 come and stand before me in this house, which bears my name, and say, "We are safe"; safe, you think, to indulge in all these abominations. Do you think 11 that this house, this house which bears my name, is a robbers' cave? I myself have seen all this, says the LORD. Go 12 to my shrine at Shiloh, which once I made a dwelling for my Name, and see what I did to it because of the wickedness of my people Israel. And 13 now you have done all these things, says the LORD; though I took pains to speak to you, you did not listen, and though I called, you gave no answer.

<sup>m</sup> copper and iron: transposed from after mischief-makers in verse 28.

<sup>n</sup> This place: prob. rdg.; Heb. Those.

4.5-31); vv. 24 and 25 are exclamations of the dismayed Judeans. 27-30: God speaks to Jeremiah. The prophet, like an assayer, tests his people, and finds them to be utterly lacking in value.

7.1-10.25: False religion and its punishment.

7.1-8.3: The Temple sermon (vv. 1-15), with supplements. To the Judeans assembled for worship at the Jerusalem Temple Jeremiah brings the alarming message that their confidence is misplaced, for God rejects their worship and will reduce his Temple and their land to ruins. The thought is expanded in vv. 21-26, 29-34, and 8.1-3. 1: The LORD's house: the Jerusalem Temple. 3: Mend your ways . . . that I may: he appeals for repentance. 9-10: You break half of the Ten Commandments, and yet say, "We are safe," because you are in the sanctuary. 12: Shiloh: an earlier sanctuary. It was probably destroyed by the Philistines after the battle of 14 Therefore what I did to Shiloh I will do to this house which bears my name, the house in which you put your trust, the place I gave to you and your fore-15 fathers; I will fling you away out of my sight, as I flung away all your kinsfolk, the whole brood of Ephraim.

16 Offer up no prayer, Jeremiah, for this people, raise no plea or prayer on their behalf, and do not intercede with me; 17 for I will not listen to you. Do you not see what is going on in the cities of Judah and in the streets of Jerusalem? 18 Children are gathering wood, fathers lighting fires, women kneading dough to make crescent-cakes in honour of the queen of heaven; and drink-offerings are poured out to other gods than me— 19 all to provoke and hurt me. But is it I, says the LORD, whom they hurt? No; it is themselves, covering their own 20 selves with shame. Therefore, says the Lord GOD, my anger and my fury shall fall on this place, on man and beast, on trees and crops, and it shall burn unquenched.

21 These are the words of the LORD of Hosts the God of Israel: Add whole-offerings to sacrifices and eat the flesh 22 if you will. But when I brought your forefathers out of Egypt, I gave them no commands about whole-offering and sacrifice; I said not a word about them. 23 What I did command them was this: If you obey me, I will be your God and you shall be my people. You must conform to all my commands, if you would 24 prosper. But they did not listen; they paid no heed, and persisted in disobedience with evil and stubborn hearts; they looked backwards and not 25 forwards, from the day when your forefathers left Egypt until now. I took pains to send to them all my servants 26 the prophets; they did not listen to me, they paid no heed, but were obstinate and proved even more wicked than their forefathers. When you tell them this, 27 they will not listen to you; if you call them, they will not answer. Then you 28 shall say to them, This is the nation that did not obey the LORD its God nor accept correction; truth has perished, it is heard no more on their lips.

O Jerusalem, cut off your hair, 29 the symbol of your dedication, and throw it away; raise up a lament on the high bare 30 places.

For the LORD has spurned the generation which has roused his wrath, and has abandoned them. For the men of Judah have done what is wrong in my eyes, says the LORD. They have defiled with their loathsome idols the house that bears my name, they have built a 31 shrine of Topheth in the Valley of Ben-hinnom, at which to burn their sons and daughters; that was no command of mine, nor did it ever enter my thought. Therefore a time is coming, 32 says the LORD, when it shall no longer be called Topheth or the Valley of Ben-hinnom, but the Valley of Slaughter; for the dead shall be buried in Topheth because there is no room elsewhere. So 33 the bodies of this people shall become food for the birds of the air and the wild beasts, and there will be no one to scare them away. From the cities of 34 Judah and the streets of Jerusalem I will banish all sounds of joy and gladness, the voice of the bridegroom and the bride; for the land shall become desert.

At that time, says the LORD, men 8 shall bring out from their graves the bones of the kings of Judah, of the Eben-ezer (1 Sam. ch. 4). 15: Ephraim: the Northern Kingdom, Israel (compare 2 Kgs. 18.9-12), of which Ephraim was the leading tribe. 16: Offer up no prayer (see 14.12) suggests that Jeremiah would have done so if it were not prohibited, and that God would have found it hard to refuse him (see 15.1-2 n.). 17-18; 30-31: These verses enlarge on the offensive acts listed briefly in v. 9, of running "after other gods." 18: Queen of heaven was an astral deity variously identified as Ishtar, Venus, or some other love goddess of the Ancient Near East. See also 44.17-19 and 32.29. 22: No commands about . . . sacrifice: Jeremiah seems to reflect a tradition at direct variance with much of the Pentateuch. 23: I will be your God . . . you . . . my people; the covenant arrangement is contingent, not on the temple cult, but on obedience to such ethical demands as those in vv. 5 and 6. 29: Your hair . . . symbol of . . . dedication: see Num. 6.1-8. 30-31: The house: the Temple. Topheth in the Valley of Ben-hinnom was outside the south wall of Jerusalem. 7.33-8.3: For those long dead to lie unburied constituted a grave indignity to the person and a defilement of the land (see 22.19).

- officers, priests, and prophets, and of 2 all who lived in Jerusalem. They shall expose them to the sun, the moon, and all the host of heaven, whom they loved and served and adored, to whom they resorted and bowed in worship. Those bones shall not be gathered up nor buried but shall become dung on the 3 ground. All the survivors of this wicked race, wherever I have banished them, would rather die than live. This is the very word of the LORD of Hosts.
 4 You shall say to them, These are the words of the LORD:
- If men fall, can they not also rise?
 If a man breaks away, can he not return?
- 5 Then why are this people so wayward, incurable in their waywardness?
 Why have they clung to their treachery
 and refused to return to their obedience?
- 6 I have listened to them and heard not one word of truth, not one sinner crying remorsefully,
 'Oh, what have I done?'
 Each one breaks away<sup>o</sup> in headlong career
 as a war-horse plunges in battle.
- 7 The stork in the sky knows the time to migrate, the dove and the swift and the wryneck
 know the season of return;
 but my people do not know the ordinances of the LORD.
- 8 How can you say, 'We are wise,
 we have the law of the LORD', when scribes with their lying pens have falsified it?
- 9 The wise are put to shame, they are dismayed and have lost their wits.
 They have spurned the word of the
 LORD,
 and what sort of wisdom is theirs?
- 10 Therefore will I give their wives to other men
- and their lands to new owners.
 For all, high and low,
 are out for ill-gotten gain;
 prophets and priests are frauds,
 every one of them;
 they dress my people's wound, but 11 skin-deep only,
 with their saying, 'All is well.'
 All well? Nothing is well!
 Are they ashamed when they 12 practise their abominations?
 Ashamed? Not they!
 They can never be put out of countenance.
 Therefore they shall fall with a great crash,<sup>p</sup>
 and be brought to the ground on the day of my reckoning.
 The LORD has said it.
 I would gather their harvest, says 13
 the LORD,
 but there are no grapes on the vine,
 no figs on the fig-tree;
 even their leaves are withered.
 Why do we sit idle? Up, all of you 14
 together, let us go into our walled cities and there meet our doom.
 For the LORD our God has struck us down,
 he has given us a draught of bitter poison;
 for we have sinned against the
 LORD.
 Can we hope to prosper when 15
 nothing goes well?
 Can we hope for respite when the terror falls suddenly?
 The snorting of his horses is heard 16
 from Dan;
 at the neighing of his stallions the whole land trembles.
 The enemy come; they devour the land and all its store,
 city and citizens alike.
 Beware, I am sending snakes against 17
 you,

<sup>o</sup> breaks away: or is wayward.

<sup>p</sup> with a great crash: or where they fall or among the fallen.

8.4-13: Unnatural conduct and its consequence. 8-9: They allow themselves to be misled by scribes with . . . lying pens: a possible disparaging reference to Josiah's reform; see 3.10 n. 10-12: These verses repeat 6.12-15 almost verbatim.

8.14-17: Consternation at the destroyer's approach. The people, or some among them, are speaking in vv. 14-16; God speaks in v. 17. 16: Dan was in the north, at the headwaters of the Jordan. 17: Vipers: figurative for irretrievable disaster.

- |  |   |
|--|---|
| vipers, such as no man can charm,and they shall bite you.This is the very word of the LORD. 18 How can I bear my sorrow?<sup>q</sup>I am sick at heart. 19 Hark, the cry of my peoplefrom a distant land:'Is the LORD not in Zion?Is her King no longer there?'Why do they provoke me with theirimagesand foreign gods? 20 Harvest is past, summer is over,and we are not saved.I am wounded at the sight of mypeople's wound, 21 I go like a mourner, overcome withhorror. 22 Is there no balm in Gilead,no physician there?Why has no new skin grown overtheir wound? 9 Would that my head were all water,my eyes a fountain of tears,that I might weep day and nightfor my people's dead! 2 Oh that I could find in the wildernessa shelter by the wayside,that I might leave my people anddepart!Adulterers are they all, a mob oftraitors. 3 The tongue is their weapon, a bowready bent.Lying, not truth, is master in theland.They run from one sin to another,and for me they care nothing.This is the very word of the LORD. 4 Be on your guard, each man againsthis friend;put no trust even in a brother. | Brother supplants brother,<sup>r</sup>and friend slanders friend.They make game of their friends 5but never speak the truth;they have trained their tongues to lies;deep in their sin, they cannotretrace their steps.Wrong follows wrong, deceit follows 6deceit;they refuse to acknowledge me.This is the very word of the LORD.Therefore these are the words of the 7LORD of Hosts:I am their refiner and will assay them.How can I disregard my people?Their tongue is a cruel arrow, 8their mouths speak lies.One speaks amicably to another,while inwardly he plans a trap forhim.Shall I not punish them for this? 9says the LORD;shall I not take vengeanceon such a people? Over the mountains will I raise 10weeping and wailing,and over the desert pastures will Ichant a dirge.They are scorched and untrodden,they hear no lowing of cattle;birds of the air and beasts have fledand are gone. I will make Jerusalem a heap of 11ruins, a haunt of wolves,and the cities of Judah an unpeopledwaste. What man is wise enough to under- 12stand this, to understand what the LORDhas said and to proclaim it? Why hasthe land become a dead land, scorchedlike the desert and untrodden? The 13 |
|--|---|

<sup>q</sup> How . . . sorrow?: prob. rdg.; Heb. unintelligible.
<sup>r</sup> Brother supplants brother; or Every brother is a supplanter like Jacob (cp. Gen. 27. 35 and note).

8.18-9.1: An elegy. Jeremiah envisions his people in captivity and laments. God interrupts the captives' dismayed exclamation with a challenge: Why do they provoke me? 22: Is there no balm in Gilead? This was probably a proverbial expression. Gilead was perhaps a distribution point for the healing balm.

9.2-22: The fate in store for a chaotic society caring nothing for God. Cheating, treachery, slander, and deceit are deeply engrained (vv. 2-6 and 8); therefore God will assay and punish them (vv. 7,9,11). 2: Repelled by his people's corruption, Jeremiah would find a refuge in the wilderness. 9: See 5.29 n. 10: Jeremiah bemoans the envisioned fate of his people as in 8.21 and 9.1. 13: My law; perhaps an allusion to Deut., which formed the basis of Josiah's reform; see 3.10 n. If so, unlike 3.10 and 8.8, this passage (vv. 12-16) urges compliance with that law. It is often suggested that this and similar passages are a later editor's attempt to make of

- LORD said, It is because they forsook my law which I set before them; they neither obeyed me nor conformed to it.
- 14 They followed the promptings of their own stubborn hearts, they followed the Baalim as their forefathers had taught
- 15 them. Therefore these are the words of the LORD of Hosts the God of Israel: I will feed this people with wormwood and give them bitter poison to drink.
- 16 I will scatter them among nations whom neither they nor their forefathers have known; I will harry them with the sword until I have made an end of them.
- 17 These are the words of the LORD of Hosts:
- Summon the wailing women to come, send for the women skilled in keening
- 18 to come quickly and raise a lament for us, that our eyes may run with tears and our eyelids be wet with weeping.
- 19 Hark, hark, lamentation is heard in Zion:
How fearful is our ruin! How great our shame!
We have left our lands, our houses have been pulled down.
- 20 Listen, you women, to the words of the LORD, that your ears may catch what he says.
Teach your daughters the lament, let them teach one another this dirge:
- 21 Death has climbed in through our windows,
it has entered our palaces, it sweeps off the children in the open air and drives the young men from the streets.
- This is the word of the LORD: 22
- The corpses of men shall fall and lie like dung in the fields, like swathes behind the reaper, but no one shall gather them.
- These are the words of the LORD: 23
- Let not the wise man boast of his wisdom nor the valiant of his valour;
let not the rich man boast of his riches;
but if any man would boast, let him 24 boast of this,
that he understands and knows me.
For I am the LORD, I show unfailing love,
I do justice and right upon the earth;
for on these I have set my heart.
This is the very word of the LORD.
- The time is coming, says the LORD, 25
when I will punish all the circumcised, Egypt and Judah, Edom and Ammon, 26
Moab, and all who haunt the fringes of the desert;<sup>s</sup> for all alike, the nations and Israel, are uncircumcised in heart.
Listen, Israel, to this word that the LORD 10 has spoken against you:
- Do not fall into the ways of the 2
nations,
do not be awed by signs in the heavens;
it is the nations who go in awe of these.
For the carved images of the nations 3
are a sham,
they are nothing but timber cut from the forest,

<sup>s</sup> who . . . desert: or the dwellers in the desert who clip the hair on their temples.

Jeremiah a supporter of the reform. 14: Baalim: gods (5.19). 15: Wormwood: a bitter drug 17–21: A continuation of the lament begun in v. 10. 17: Women skilled in keening: professionally trained for ritual weeping and wailing. 19: How fearful . . . pulled down: words attributed to the stricken inhabitants of Zion.

9.23–26: Closed minds. 23–24: To “know” God is to do as he does (22.16). 25–26: The thought of 4.3–4, there applied to Judah alone, is here generalized to include all the willfully obtuse. Egypt . . . Edom, Ammon, Moab: except for the Philistines, all of Israel’s neighbors practiced circumcision, but, like Judah, were also uncircumcised in heart.

10.1–16: The folly of idolatry and of other “ways of the nations.” This passage is closely related in thought to the satiric attack on the Babylonian gods and their deluded “witnesses” in Isa. chs. 40–48 (see especially Isa.44.9–20). 1–2: Do not be awed by signs in the heavens. “Omens” were connected with the prohibited worship of astral deities. 3–5: See Isa.40.18–20;

- worked with his chisel by a craftsman;
 4 he adorns it with silver and gold, fastening them on with hammer and nails so that they do not fall apart.
 5 They can no more speak than a scarecrow in a plot of cucumbers; they must be carried, for they cannot walk.
 Do not be afraid of them: they can do no harm, and they have no power to do good.
 6 Where can one be found like thee, O LORD?
 Great thou art and great the might of thy name.
 7 Who shall not fear thee, king of the nations?
 for fear is thy fitting tribute.
 Where among the wisest of the nations and all their royalty can one be found like thee?
 8 They are fools and blockheads one and all, learning their nonsense from a log of wood.
 9 The beaten silver is brought from Tarshish and the gold from Ophir; all are the work of craftsmen and goldsmiths.
 They are draped in violet and purple, all the work of skilled men.
 10 But the LORD is God in truth, a living god, an eternal king.
 The earth quakes under his wrath, nations cannot endure his fury.
 11 [You shall say this to them: The gods who did not make heaven and earth shall perish from the earth and from under these heavens.]
 12<sup>t</sup> God made the earth by his power, fixed the world in place by his wisdom,
- unfurled the skies by his understanding.
 At the thunder of his voice the waters in heaven are amazed;<sup>u</sup> he brings up the mist from the ends of the earth, he opens rifts<sup>v</sup> for the rain and brings the wind out of his storehouses.
 All men are brutish and ignorant; every goldsmith is discredited by his idol; for the figures he casts are a sham, there is no breath in them.
 They are worth nothing, mere mockeries, which perish when their day of reckoning comes.
 God, Jacob's creator, is not like these;
 for he is the maker of all.
 Israel is the people he claims as his own;
 the LORD of Hosts is his name.
 Put your goods together and carry them out of the country, living as you are under siege.
 For these are the words of the LORD:
 This time I will uproot the whole population of the land, and I will press them hard and squeeze them dry.
 O the pain of my wounds!
 Cruel are the blows I suffer.
 But this is my plight, I said, and I must endure it.
 My home is ruined, my tent-ropes all severed, my sons have left me and are gone, there is no one to pitch my tent again, no one to put up its curtains.

<sup>t</sup> Verses 12-16: cp. 51. 15-19.

<sup>u</sup> At the thunder . . . amazed: prob. rdg.; Heb. At the sound of his giving tumult of waters in heaven.
<sup>v</sup> rifts: prob. rdg.; Heb. lightnings.

46.1-7. 9: Tarshish . . . Ophir: regions not clearly identifiable, proverbially a source of precious metals. Tarshish is identified by some as in Spain; Ophir as in India, Arabia, or Africa. 11: The verse is bracketed because it appears to be a later addition. Jer. is in Heb. except for this one verse in Aram. 16: The climactic point of the passage is made in this verse.

10.17-25: The threat of total captivity, the distress of the victims, and a plea for equity. 17-18: It is uncertain which of two sieges is meant, the first (597) or the second (587). This time suggests the latter. 19-20: The heartfelt words this is my plight, I said, and I must endure it, seem to be spoken by Jeremiah himself. The subsequent words of v. 20 are the imagined anguished cry of his collective people, personified as an individual. Jeremiah had no sons: see 16.2. The 21 The shepherds of the people are mere brutes;

they never consult the LORD,
and so they do not prosper,
and all their flocks at pasture are scattered.

22 Hark, a rumour comes flying, then a mounting uproar from the land of the north,
an army to make Judah's cities desolate, a haunt of wolves.

23 I know, O LORD, that man's ways are not of his own choosing;
nor is it for a man to determine his course in life.

24 Correct us, O LORD, but with justice, not in anger, lest thou bring us almost to
nothing.

25 Pour out thy fury on nations that have not acknowledged thee, on tribes that have not invoked thee
by name;
for they have devoured Jacob and made an end of him
and have left his home a waste.

that I would give them a land flowing with milk and honey, the land you now possess. I answered, 'Amen, LORD.' Then the LORD said: Proclaim all these terms in the cities of Judah and in the streets of Jerusalem. Say, Listen to the terms of this covenant and carry them out. I have protested to your forefathers since I brought them out of Egypt, till this day; I took pains to warn them:
Obey me, I said. But they did not obey; they paid no attention to me, but each followed the promptings of his own stubborn and wicked heart. So I brought on them all the penalties laid down in this covenant by which I had bound them, whose terms they did not observe.

The LORD said to me, The men of Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem have entered into a conspiracy: they have gone back to the sins of their earliest forefathers and refused to listen to me. They have followed other gods and worshipped them; Israel and Judah have broken the covenant which I made with their fathers. Therefore these are the words of the LORD: I now bring on them disaster from which they cannot escape; though they cry to me for help I will not listen. The inhabitants of the cities of Judah and of Jerusalem may go and cry for help to the gods to whom they have burnt sacrifices; they will not save them in the hour of disaster. For you, Judah, have as many gods as you have towns; you have set up as many altars to burn sacrifices to Baal as there are streets in Jerusalem. So offer up no prayer for this people; raise no cry or prayer on their behalf, for I will not listen when they call to me in the hour of disaster.

What right has my beloved in my house
with her shameless ways?

Warnings and punishment

11 THE WORD WHICH CAME TO JEREMIAH
2 from the LORD: Listen to the terms of this covenant and repeat them to the men of Judah and the inhabitants of 3 Jerusalem. Tell them, These are the words of the LORD the God of Israel:
A curse on the man who does not ob-4 serve the terms of this covenant by which I bound your forefathers when I brought them out of Egypt, from the smelting-furnace. I said, If you obey me and do all that I tell you, you shall become my people and I will become 5 your God. And I will thus make good the oath I swore to your forefathers, people speak again in v. 24. 21: Shepherds: kings. 23–25: Jacob: the collective people. See Ps. 79.6–7 which may be the source of this verse.

11.1–15.9: Warnings and punishment.

11.1–17: The penalty of a breach of faith. Some scholars deny this section to Jeremiah because of its conventional style and substance. 3: The terms of a covenant include the penalty (curse) which the party incurs who fails to meet his obligations. 5: Amen: Heb. for "so be it." 8: All the penalties: the "curse" in v. 3. 9: The men of Judah: your own generation. 11–14: I will not listen . . . offer up no prayer: see 7.16 n. 15–16: A metaphor of irrevocable doom. The offerings brought to the Temple will not avail, for Judah, the choice olive-tree, is to be utterly consumed.

- Can the flesh of fat offerings on the altar ward off the disaster that threatens you?
- 16 Once the LORD called you an olive-tree, leafy and fair; but now with a great roaring noise you will feel sharp anguish;<sup>w</sup> fire sets its leaves alight and consumes<sup>x</sup> its branches.
- 17 The LORD of Hosts who planted you has threatened you with disaster, because of the harm Israel and Judah brought on themselves when they provoked me to anger by burning sacrifices to Baal.
- 18 It was the LORD who showed me, and so I knew; he opened my eyes to what they were doing. I had been like a sheep led obedient to the slaughter; I did not know that they were hatching plots against me and saying, 'Let us cut down the tree while the sap is in it; let us destroy him out of the living, so that his very name shall be forgotten.'
- 20 O LORD of Hosts who art a righteous judge, testing the heart and mind, I have committed my cause to thee; let me see thy vengeance upon them.
- 21 Therefore these are the words of the LORD about the men of Anathoth who seek to take my life, and say, 'Prophesy no more in the name of the LORD or we will kill you'—these are his words: I will punish them: their young men shall die by the sword, their sons and daughters shall die by famine. Not one of them shall survive; for in the year of their reckoning I will bring ruin on the men of Anathoth.
- O LORD, I will dispute with thee, for thou art just; yes, I will plead my case before thee. Why do the wicked prosper and traitors live at ease? Thou hast planted them and their roots strike deep, they grow up and bear fruit. Thou art ever on their lips, yet far from their hearts. But thou knowest me, O LORD, thou seest me; thou dost test my devotion to thyself. Drag them away like sheep to the shambles; set them apart for the day of slaughter.
- How long must the country lie parched and its green grass wither? No birds and beasts are left, because its people are so wicked, because they say, 'God will not see what we are doing.'
- If you have raced with men and the runners have worn you down, how then can you hope to vie with horses? If you fall headlong in easy country, how will you fare in Jordan's dense thickets? All men, your brothers and kinsmen, are traitors to you, they are in full cry after you; trust them not, for all the fine words they give you.
- I have forsaken the house of Israel, I have cast off my own people. I have given my beloved into the power of her foes.

<sup>w</sup> you will feel sharp anguish: transposed from end of verse 15.

<sup>x</sup> consumes: prob. rdg.; Heb. they consume.

11.18–12.6: A prayer of Jeremiah and what he learns. Jeremiah hears of plots against his life, seeks God's help, and is reassured. 18–19: A narrative preamble. 20: The prayer itself. 21–23: The answer. 20: Heart: lit. "kidneys," see 4.3–4 n. 21: It is the people of his own village, Anathoth (1.1), who have threatened to kill him for his prophesying.

12.1–6: Prayer and response. This passage, related in form and substance to 11.18–23, is in some disorder. Vv. 1–3 and the end of v. 4 are Jeremiah's prayer; v. 5 is what he takes to be the answer to his prayer. In v. 4 How long . . . wicked concerns "the drought"; see 14.1–6. V. 6 would follow best on 11.18. 1–2: Jeremiah is not here asking the broader question about the suffering of the righteous raised in Job; here the wicked, the traitors are specifically the men who hatch plots against him; see v. 6 and 11.19. 4: God will not see: see 5.12–13 n. 5: If you: you, Jeremiah. You have proved too soft for your task (see 20.14–18; 15.19–21 n.); but weightier challenges lie ahead.

12.7–13: God explains the lamentable disaster. The conduct of his own people left him no

- 8 My own people have turned on me like a lion from the scrub, roaring against me; therefore I hate
them.
- 9 Is this land of mine a hyena's lair,
with birds of prey hovering all around it?
Come, you wild beasts; come, all of you, flock to the feast.
- 10 Many shepherds have ravaged my
vineyard
and trampled down my field, they have made my pleasant field a desolate wilderness,
- 11 made it a waste land, waste and waterless, to my sorrow.
The whole land is waste, and no one cares.
- 12 Plunderers have swarmed across the high bare places in the wilderness, a sword of the LORD devouring the land from end to end; no creature can find
peace.
- 13 Men sow wheat and reap thistles;
they sift but get no grain.
They are disappointed of their<sup>y</sup> harvest
because of the anger of the
LORD.
- 14 These are the words of the LORD about all those evil neighbours who are laying hands on the land which I gave to my people Israel as their patrimony:
- 16<sup>z</sup> I will uproot them from that<sup>a</sup> soil. Yet, if they will learn the ways of my people, swearing by my name, 'By the life of the LORD', as they taught my people to swear by the Baal, they shall form
- 17 families among my people. But if they will not listen, I will uproot that people, uproot and destroy them. Also I will uproot Judah from among them; but 15 after I have uprooted them, I will have pity on them again and will bring each man back to his patrimony and his land. This is the very word of the LORD.

These were the words of the LORD to 13
me: Go and buy yourself a linen girdle and put it round your waist, but do not let it come near water. So I bought it 2 as the LORD had told me and put it round my waist. The LORD spoke to 3 me a second time: Take the girdle 4 which you bought and put round your waist; go at once to Perath and hide it in a crevice among the rocks. So I went 5 and hid the girdle at<sup>b</sup> Perath, as the LORD had told me. After a long time the 6 LORD said to me: Go at once to Perath and fetch back the girdle which I told you to hide there. So I went to Perath 7 and looked for the place where I had hidden it, but when I picked it up, I saw that it was spoilt, and no good for anything. Again the LORD spoke to me 8 and these were his words: Thus will I 9 spoil the gross pride of Judah, the gross pride of Jerusalem. This wicked nation 10 has refused to listen to my words; they have followed other gods, serving them and bowing down to them. So it shall be<sup>c</sup> like this girdle, no good for anything. For, just as a girdle is bound 11 close to a man's waist, so I bound all Israel and all Judah to myself, says the LORD, so that they should become my people to win a name for me, and praise and glory; but they did not listen.

<sup>y</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. your.

<sup>z</sup> The rest of verse 14 and verse 15 transposed to follow destroy them in verse 17.

<sup>a</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. their.

<sup>b</sup> Or by.

<sup>c</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. And let it be.

choice but to bring on the enemy and lay waste the land. 9-10: Many shepherds: foreign kings and their armies. Pleasant field: the land of Judah. God speaks in vv. 7-11; in 12-13 the prophet interprets the events.

12.14-17: An inclusive covenant. Were even Israel's evil neighbours to learn faithfully to worship God alone, they would form families (lit. "be built up") within God's people. Otherwise general havoc must ensue, but the latter would be followed in the end by a reconciled world. The passage is related to the "Prophecies against the nations" in chs. 46-51, and may be an addition here.

13.1-14: The waistcloth and the wine-jars, two symbols. 1-11: As Jeremiah bound the girdle about his waist, thus intimately God took Israel to himself in covenant. Israel spurned his love and would rot away like that garment. 4-7: Perath: usually the river Euphrates, but here perhaps a nearer place with a like-sounding name. 11: To win a name for me: for the broad purpose of making God known among the nations; compare Isa.5.55; Ezek.36.23-24.

- 12 You shall say this to them: These are the words of the LORD the God of Israel: Wine-jars should be filled with wine. They will answer, 'We know quite well that wine-jars should be 13 filled with wine.' Then you shall say to them, These are the words of the LORD: I will fill all the inhabitants of this land with wine until they are drunk—kings of David's line who sit on his throne, priests, prophets, and all who live in 14 Jerusalem. I will dash them to pieces one against another, fathers and sons alike, says the LORD, I will show them no compassion or pity or tenderness; nor refrain from destroying them.<sup>d</sup>
- 15 Hear and attend. Be not too proud to listen, for it is the LORD who speaks.
16 Ascribe glory to the LORD your God before the darkness falls, before your feet stumble on the twilight hill-sides, before he turns the light you look for to deep gloom and thick darkness.
- 17 If in those depths of gloom you will not listen, then for very anguish I can only weep and shed tears,<sup>e</sup> my eyes must stream with tears;
for the LORD's flock is carried away into captivity.
- 18 Say to the king and the queen mother:<sup>f</sup> Down, take a humble seat, for your proud crowns are fallen from your heads.
- 19 Your cities in the Negeb are besieged,
and no one can relieve them;
all Judah has been swept into exile, swept clean away.
- 20 Lift up your eyes and see those who are coming from the north.
- Where is the flock that was entrusted to you, the flock you were so proud of?
What will you say when you suffer because your leaders<sup>g</sup> cannot be found, though it was you who trained them to be your head?
Will not pangs seize you,
like the pangs of a woman in labour,
when you wonder,
'Why has this come upon me?'
For your many sins your skirts are torn off you, your limbs uncovered.
- Can the Nubian change his skin,
or the leopard its spots?
And you? Can you do good,
you who are schooled in evil?
Therefore I will scatter you<sup>h</sup> like chaff driven by the desert wind.
This is your lot, the portion of the rebel,
measured out by me, says the
LORD,
because you have forsaken me and trusted in false gods.
So I myself have stripped off your skirts
and laid bare your shame.
Your adulteries, your lustful neighing,
your wanton lewdness, are an offence to me.<sup>i</sup>
On the hills and in the open country
I have seen your foul deeds.
Alas, Jerusalem, unclean that you
are!
How long, how long will you delay?<sup>j</sup>

<sup>d</sup> nor refrain . . . them: or so corrupt are they.

<sup>e</sup> If . . . shed tears: or If you will not listen to this, for very anguish I must weep in secret.

<sup>f</sup> Or queen.

<sup>g</sup> leaders: transposed from next line.

<sup>h</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. them.

<sup>i</sup> an offence to me (Heb. you): transposed from verse 26.

<sup>j</sup> How . . . delay?: prob. rdg.; Heb. unintelligible.

12-14: A new meaning for an old saying: As wine-jars are filled with wine, so too would the people of Jerusalem, who thereafter would be shattered.

13.15-27: A frantic plea to trust in God. 15-17: Hear before it is too late, or else I must weep for very anguish. The mood is elegiac as in 9.1 and elsewhere. 18-22: One blow has already fallen, and another comes. 18: The king: probably Jehoiachin. 19: Negeb: southern Judah. 20: Entrusted to you: to Jerusalem. 23: The power of habit. Nubian: a black-skinned people from the upper Nile region.

- 14 This came to Jeremiah as the word of the LORD concerning the drought:
- 2 Judah droops, her cities languish, her men sink to the ground; Jerusalem's cry goes up.
- 3 Their flock-masters send their boys for water;
they come to the pools but find no
water there.
Back they go, with empty vessels;
the produce<sup>k</sup> of the land has failed,
because there is no rain.
The farmer's hopes are wrecked,
they uncover their heads for grief.
- 5 The hind calves in the open country and forsakes her young because there is no grass;
- 6 for lack of herbage, wild asses stand on the high bare places and snuff the wind for moisture, as wolves do, and their eyes begin to fail.
- 7 Though our sins testify against us, yet act,<sup>l</sup> O LORD, for thy own name's sake.
Our disloyalties indeed are many;
we have sinned against thee.
- 8 O hope of Israel, their saviour in time of trouble,
must thou be a stranger in the land, a traveller pitching his tent for a night?
- 9 Must thou be like a man suddenly overcome,
like a man powerless to save himself?
Thou art in our midst, O LORD, and thou hast named us thine; do not forsake us.
- 10 The LORD speaks thus of this people:
They love to stray from my ways, they wander where they will. Therefore he has no more pleasure in them; he remembers their guilt now, and punishes 11 their sins. Then the LORD said to me,
Do not pray for the well-being of this 12 people. When they fast, I will not listen to their cry; when they sacrifice whole-offering and grain-offering, I will not
- accept them. I will make an end of them with sword, with famine and pestilence.
But I said, O Lord GOD, the prophets 13 tell them that they shall see no sword and suffer no famine; for thou wilt give them lasting prosperity in this place.
The LORD answered me, The prophets 14 are prophesying lies in my name. I have not sent them; I have given them no charge; I have not spoken to them.
The prophets offer them false visions, worthless augury, and their own deluding fancies. Therefore these are the 15 words of the LORD about the prophets who, though not sent by me, prophesy in my name and say that neither sword nor famine shall touch this land: By sword and by famine shall those prophets meet their end. The people to 16 whom they prophesy shall be flung out into the streets of Jerusalem, victims of famine and sword; they, their wives, their sons, and their daughters, with no one to bury them: I will pour down upon them the evil they deserve.
- So this is what you shall say to 17
them:
Let my eyes stream with tears,
ceaselessly, day and night.
For the virgin daughter of my people has been broken in pieces, struck by a cruel blow.
If I go out into the country, 18
I see men slain by the sword;
if I enter the city, I see the ravages of famine;
prophet and priest alike go begging round the land and are never at rest.
Hast thou spurned Judah utterly? 19
Dost thou loathe Zion?
Why hast thou wounded us, and there is no remedy;
why let us hope for better days, and we find nothing good,
for a time of healing, and all is disaster?

<sup>k</sup> the produce: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.
<sup>l</sup> Or turn away.

14.1-15.9: Concerning the drought and other calamities. 7-9: Public confession and supplication. For thy own name's sake: that is, God should act for his own reasons because of who he is, to enhance his glory among men. 12: Their cry: the accompaniment of the ritual fasting, for relief from drought. 13: The prophets tell them; see 4.9 n. 17-18: So this is what you shall say to them is probably not in place, as a result of a copyist's blunder; the rest of vv. 17 and 18 is Jeremiah's private lament. 19-22: Again a public prayer, as in vv. 7-9. 21: The place where

- 20 We acknowledge our wickedness, the guilt of our forefathers;
O LORD, we have sinned against
thee.
- 21 Do not despise the place where thy name dwells
nor bring contempt on the throne of thy glory.
Remember thy covenant with us and do not make it void.
- 22 Can any of the false gods of the nations give rain?
Or do the heavens send showers of
themselves?
Art thou not God, O LORD,
that we may hope in thee?
It is thou only who doest<sup>m</sup> all these things.
- 15 The LORD said to me, Even if Moses and Samuel stood before me, I would not be moved to pity this people.
Banish them from my presence; let 2 them be gone. When they ask where they are to go, you shall say to them,
These are the words of the LORD:
- Those who are for death shall go
to their death,
and those for the sword to the
sword;
those who are for famine to famine,
and those for captivity to captivity.
- 3 Four kinds of doom do I ordain for them, says the LORD: the sword to kill, dogs to tear, birds of prey from the skies and beasts from their lairs to 4 devour and destroy. I will make them repugnant to all the kingdoms of the earth, because of the crimes of Manasseh son of Hezekiah, king of Judah, in Jerusalem.
- 5 Who will take pity on you,
Jerusalem,
who will offer you consolation?
- Who will turn aside to wish you well?
You cast me off, says the LORD, you turned your backs on me. 6
So I stretched out my hand and ruined you;
I was weary of relenting.
I winnowed them and scattered 7
them
through the cities of the land;
I brought bereavement on them, I destroyed my people, for they would not abandon their
ways.
I made widows among them more 8
in number
than the sands of the sea;
I brought upon them a horde of raiders<sup>n</sup>
to plunder at high noon.
I made the terror of invasion fall
upon them
all in a moment.
The mother of seven sons grew 9 faint,
she sank into a swoon;
her light was quenched while it was yet day;
she was left humbled and shamed.
All the remnant I gave to perish by
the sword
at the hand of their enemies.
This is the very word of the LORD.
- Confessions and addresses*
- Alas, alas, my mother, that you ever 10 gave me birth!
a man doomed to strife, with the whole world against me.
I have borrowed from no one, I have lent to no one,
yet all men abuse me.

m Or madest.
n I brought . . . raiders: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.

thy name dwells: the usual Deuteronomistic designation of the Temple in Jerusalem. 22: The reference to rain ties the prayer in with the context of drought (v. 1). 15.1-2: Because of their reputed success in providing water and calling down a storm, Moses and Samuel (Exod.17.1-7 and 1 Sam.7.7-13) are cited as examples of men who had influence with God. Now not even they, much less Jeremiah, could relieve the drought. 4: The reference to King Manasseh, whose evil excesses his grandson Josiah sought to counter, may be a Deuteronomistic addition (see 2 Kgs.21.1-18). 5-9: Probably written after 597 (possibly even after 587) since the calamity has already occurred; compare 9.12. 9: Mother of seven: the populous city Jerusalem is here personified.

15.10-21: The prophet's lament and God's response. 10: Jeremiah gives vent to self-pity; see

11 The LORD answered,
 But I will greatly strengthen you;
 in time of distress and in time of
 disaster
 I will bring the enemy to your feet.
 12 Can iron break steel from the north?<sup>o</sup> 15 LORD, thou knowest;
 remember me, LORD, and come to visit me,
 take vengeance for me on my
 persecutors.
 Be patient with me and take me not
 away,
 see what reproaches I endure for thy sake.
 16 I have to suffer those who despise thy words,
 but thy word is joy and happiness to
 me,
 for thou hast named me thine,
 O LORD, God of Hosts.
 17 I have never kept company with any gang of roisterers,
 or made merry with them;
 because I felt thy hand upon me I have sat alone;
 for thou hast filled me with indignation.
 18 Why then is my pain unending, my wound desperate and incurable?
 Thou art to me like a brook that is not to be trusted, whose waters fail.
 19 This was the LORD's answer:
 If you will turn back to me, I will take you back
 and you shall stand before me.
 If you choose noble utterance and reject the base,
 you shall be my spokesman.
 This people will turn again to you,
 but you will not turn to them.

To withstand them I will make you 20 impregnable,
 a wall of bronze.
 They will attack you but they will not prevail,
 for I am with you to deliver you and save you, says the LORD;
 I will deliver you from the wicked, 21
 I will rescue you from the ruthless.

The word of the LORD came to me: 16
 You shall not marry a wife; you shall 2 have neither son nor daughter in this place. For these are the words of the 3 LORD concerning sons and daughters born in this place, the mothers who bear them and the fathers who beget 4 them in this land: When men die, struck down by deadly ulcers, there shall be no weeping for them and no burial; they shall be like dung lying upon the ground. When men perish by sword or famine, their corpses shall become food for birds and for beasts.

For these are the words of the LORD: 5
 Enter no house where there is a mourning-feast; do not go in to weep or to bring comfort, for I have withdrawn my peace from this people, says 6 the LORD, my love and affection. High and low shall die in this land, but there shall be no burial, no weeping for them;
 no one shall gash himself, or shave his 7 head. No one shall give the mourner a portion of bread to console him for the dead, nor give him the cup of consolation, even for his father or mother.
 Nor shall you enter a house where there 8 is feasting, to sit eating and drinking there. For these are the words of the 9

<sup>o</sup> Prob. rdg.: Heb. adds and bronze. Heb. also adds (13) I will give away your wealth as spoil, and your treasure for no payment, because of your sin throughout your country. (14) I will make your enemies pass through a land you do not know; for my anger is a blazing fire and it shall burn for ever (cp. 17. 3, 4).

also 20.14-18. 11: The precise meaning of this is obscure. The verse may belong with the prayer continued in v. 15. 12-14: These verses seem to be a confused intrusion from 17.1-4. 15-18: Jeremiah pleads before God like a man on trial before a judge. 18: Why . . . ? Jeremiah charges that God is not being fair, nor even trustworthy, like Judean brooks which disappear in the dry season; see, too, Job 6.15-21. 19-21: The LORD's answer: God has not failed him; he has failed God. Jeremiah has been running away (see 12.5 n.) and must turn back. 19: Spokesman: prophet. 20: Wall of bronze: as in 1.18-19.

16.1-9: Jeremiah the solitary prophet. With no family of his own (vv. 1-4), alienated from his parental home (11.21; 12.6), renouncing human companionship (vv. 5 and 8), Jeremiah is the figure of a lonely man. 5: Like God, his prophet is to withdraw his peace, love, and affection. 6: Gash himself, or shave his head: rites of mourning. See 41.5; 47.5. 7: Compare Ezek.24.17; Hos.9.4. 8: See 15.17.

LORD of Hosts, the God of Israel: In your own days, in the sight of you all, and in this very place, I will silence all sounds of joy and gladness, and the voice of bridegroom and bride.

10 When you tell this people all these things they will ask you, 'Why has the LORD decreed that this great disaster is to come upon us? What wrong have we done? What sin have we committed against the LORD our God?' You shall answer, Because your forefathers forsook me, says the LORD, and followed other gods, serving them and bowing down to them. They forsook me and did not keep my law. And you yourselves have done worse than your forefathers; for each of you follows the promptings of his wicked and stubborn heart instead of obeying me. So I will fling you headlong out of this land into a country unknown to you and to your forefathers; there you can serve other gods day and night, for I will show you no favour. Therefore, says the LORD, the time is coming when men shall no longer swear, 'By the life of the LORD who brought the Israelites up from Egypt', but, 'By the life of the LORD who brought the Israelites back from a northern land and from all the lands to which he had dispersed them'; and I will bring them back to the soil which I gave to their forefathers.

16 I will send for many fishermen, says the LORD, and they shall fish for them. After that I will send for many hunters, and they shall hunt them out from every mountain and hill and from the crevices in the rocks. For my eyes are on all their ways; they are not hidden from my sight, nor is their wrongdoing concealed from me. I will first make them pay in full<sup>p</sup> for the wrong they have done and the sin they have committed by defiling with the dead lumber of their idols the land which belongs to me, and by filling it with their abominations.

O LORD, my strength and my stronghold, my refuge in time of trouble, to thee shall the nations come from the ends of the earth and say, Our forefathers inherited only a sham,
an idol vain and useless.
Can man make gods for himself? 20
They would be no gods.
Therefore I am teaching them, 21 once for all will I teach them my power and my might,
and they shall learn that my name is the LORD.

The sin of Judah is recorded with an iron tool, engraved on the tablet of their heart with a point of adamant and carved on the horns of their altars to bear witness against them.<sup>q</sup> Their altars and their sacred poles stand by every spreading tree, on the heights and the hills in the mountain country. I will give away your wealth as spoil, and all your treasure for no payment,<sup>r</sup> because of your<sup>s</sup> sin throughout your country. You will lose possession<sup>t</sup> of the patrimony which I gave you. I will make you serve your enemies as slaves in a land you do not know; for my anger is a blazing fire<sup>u</sup> and it shall burn for ever.

These are the words of the LORD: 5
A curse on the man who trusts in man and leans for support on human kind, while his heart is far from the LORD!
He shall be like a juniper in the desert; 6

<sup>p</sup> in full: or double.

<sup>q</sup> to bear . . . them: prob. rdg.; Heb. as their sons remember.

<sup>r</sup> for no payment: prob. rdg., cp. 15. 13; Heb. your hill-shrines.

<sup>s</sup> your: prob. rdg., cp. 15. 13; Heb. om.

<sup>t</sup> You . . . possession: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.

<sup>u</sup> for . . . fire: prob. rdg., cp. 15. 14; Heb. for you have kindled a fire in my anger.

16.10–21: Mingled threat and promise. 10–13: The sense and language of threat are Deuteronomic; see 15.4 n. 13: Serve other gods: contrast with this verse Jeremiah's message to the exiles in Babylonia in 29.12. 14–15: Restoration promised; as in Isa.52.10–12, the return from Babylonian captivity is equated with the ancient Exodus from Egypt. 16–18: See 10.3–5,8–9,14–16. 19–21: The nations: compare the broader purpose of calamity in 12.14–17 n. and 13.11 n.

17.1–18: Observations and prayers. 1–4: Judah, habituated in evil, is doomed. 1: Their heart: compare 4.3–4 n. and 31.33. Horns: the elevated corners of an altar. 5–8: A clear affirmation

- when good comes he shall not see it.
He shall dwell among the rocks in
the wilderness,
in a salt land where no man can live.
- 7 Blessed is the man who trusts in the
LORD,
and rests his confidence upon him.
- 8 He shall be like a tree planted by the waterside,
that stretches its roots along the stream.
When the heat comes it has nothing to fear;
its spreading foliage stays green.
In a year of drought it feels no care,
and does not cease to bear fruit.
- 9 The heart is the most deceitful of all things,
desperately sick;<sup>v</sup> who can fathom it?
10 I, the LORD, search the mind and test the heart,
requiting man for his conduct,
and as his deeds deserve.
- 11 Like a partridge which gathers into its nest
eggs which it has not laid, so is the man who amasses wealth unjustly.
Before his days are half done he must leave it,
and prove but a fool at the last.
- 12 O throne of glory, exalted from the beginning,
the place of our sanctuary,
- 13 O LORD on whom Israel's hope is fixed,
all who reject thee shall be put to
shame;
all in this land who forsake thee shall be humbled,<sup>w</sup> for they have rejected the fountain of living water.<sup>z</sup>
- 14 Heal me, O LORD, and I shall be
healed,
save me and I shall be saved;
for thou art my praise.
- They say to me, 'Where is the word of the LORD?
Let it come if it can!'
It is not the thought of disaster that makes me press after thee; never did I desire this day of despair.
Thou knowest all that has passed my lips;
it was approved by thee.
Do not become a terror to me;
thou art my only refuge on the day of disaster.
- 17
18 19 20 21
22
23
24
25
- May my persecutors be foiled,
not I;
may they be terrified, not I.
Bring on them the day of disaster;
destroy them, destroy them utterly.
- These were the words of the LORD to me: Go and stand in the Benjamin<sup>y</sup> Gate, through which the kings of Judah go in and out, and in all the gates of Jerusalem. Say, Hear the words of the LORD, you princes of Judah, all you men of Judah, and all you inhabitants of Jerusalem who come in through these gates. These are the words of the LORD: Observe this with care, that you do not carry any load on the sabbath or bring it through the gates of Jerusalem.
You shall not bring any load out of your houses or do any work on the sabbath, but you shall keep the sabbath day holy as I commanded your forefathers. Yet they did not obey or pay attention, but obstinately refused to hear or learn their lesson. Now if you will obey me, says the LORD, and refrain from bringing any load through the gates of this city on the sabbath, and keep that day holy by doing no work on it, then kings shall come through the gates of this city, kings<sup>z</sup>
- <sup>v</sup> the most . . . sick; or too deceitful for any man.
<sup>w</sup> humbled: prob. rdg.; Heb. written.
<sup>x</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds the LORD.
<sup>y</sup> Benjamin: prob. rdg.; Heb. sons of the people.
<sup>z</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds and officers.

of individual retribution; compare Ps. 1. 9–10: Only God can clearly know the motives behind a man's conduct; man's organs of thought and feeling are open to him. 10: As his deeds deserve connects 9–10 with 5–8. 12–13: A public confession. 12: The place: the Temple in Jerusalem; contrast 7.4 with its scorn of the Temple. 13: Living water: see, too, 2.13. 14–18: A private prayer. 15: “. . . Let it come if it can!”: see 5.12–13 n. 16: Never did I desire this day of despair: see 8.18–9.1 n.

17.19–27: The importance of Sabbath rest. The passage seems not to come from Jeremiah, but comes from a time like that of Nehemiah when the Sabbath received particular emphasis; see Neh. 13.15–22. 25: David's throne: apparently it is conceived of as vacant at the time.

- who shall sit on David's throne. They shall come riding in chariots or on horseback, escorted by their captains, by the men of Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem; and this city shall be inhabited for ever. People shall come from the cities of Judah, the country round Jerusalem, the land of Benjamin, the Shephelah, the hill-country and the Negeb, bringing whole-offerings, sacrifices, grain-offerings, and frankincense, bringing also thank-offerings to the house of the LORD. But if you do not obey me by keeping the sabbath day holy and by not carrying any load as you come through the gates of Jerusalem on the sabbath, then I will set fire to those gates; it shall consume the palaces of Jerusalem and shall not be put out.
- 18 These are the words which came to Jeremiah from the LORD: Go down at once to the potter's house, and there I will tell you what I have to say. So I went down to the potter's house and found him working at the wheel. Now and then a vessel he was making out of the clay would be spoilt in his hands, and then he would start again and mould it into another vessel to his liking. Then the word of the LORD came to me: Can I not deal with you, Israel, says the LORD, as the potter deals with his clay? You are clay in his hands like the clay in his, O house of Israel. At any moment I may threaten to uproot a nation or a kingdom, to pull it down and destroy it. But if the nation which I have threatened turns back from its wicked ways, then I shall think better of the evil I had in mind to bring on it. Or at any moment I may decide to build or to plant a nation or a kingdom. But if it does evil in my sight and does not obey me, I shall think better of the good I had in mind for it. Go now and tell the men of Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem that these are the words of the LORD: I am the potter; I am preparing evil for you and perfecting my designs against
- you. Turn back, every one of you, from his evil course; mend your ways and your doings. But they answer, 'Things are past hope. We will do as we like, and each of us will follow the promptings of his own wicked and stubborn heart.' Therefore these are the words of the LORD:
- Inquire among the nations: who ever heard the like of this? The virgin Israel has done a thing most horrible. Will the snow cease to fall on the rocky slopes of Lebanon? Will the cool rain streaming in torrents ever fail? No, but my people have forgotten me; they burn sacrifices to a mere idol, so they stumble in their paths, the ancient ways, and they take to byways and unmade roads; their own land they lay waste, and men will jeer at it for ever in contempt. All who go by will be horror-struck and shake their heads. Like a wind from the east I will scatter them before their enemies. In the hour of their downfall I will turn my back towards them and not my face.
- 'Come, let us decide what to do with Jeremiah', men say. 'There will still be priests to guide us, still wise men to advise, still prophets to proclaim the word. Come, let us invent some charges against him; let us pay no attention to his message.'
- But do thou, O LORD, pay attention, and hear what my opponents are saying against me. Is good to be repaid with evil?<sup>a</sup>

<sup>a</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds they have dug a pit for me (cp. verse 22).

18.1-17: A lesson from the potter's shop. A last minute pardon is possible; before 587, an appropriate response could yet avert the doom, and hence the plea (v. 11): turn back . . . from this evil course. 12: Things are past hope: because of the unnatural conduct of this unfaithful people it is now too late; see vv. 16-17.

18.18-23: A private prayer.

- Remember how I stood before thee, pleading on their behalf to avert thy wrath from them.
- 21 Therefore give their sons over to famine,
leave them at the mercy of the
sword.
Let their women be childless and widowed,
let death carry off their men, let their young men be cut down in battle.
- 22 Bring raiders upon them without warning,
and let screams of terror ring out from their houses.
For they have dug a pit to catch me and have hidden snares for my feet.
- 23 Well thou knowest, O LORD,
all their murderous plots against me.
Do not blot out their wrongdoing or annul their sin;
when they are brought stumbling into thy presence,
deal with them on the day of thy
anger.
- 19 These are the words of the LORD:
Go and buy an earthenware jar. Then take with you some of the elders of the 2 people and of the priests, and go out to the Valley of Ben-hinnom, on which the Gate of the Potsherd opens, and 3 there proclaim what I tell you. Say, Hear the word of the LORD, you princes of Judah and inhabitants of Jerusalem.
These are the words of the LORD of Hosts the God of Israel: I will bring on this place a disaster which shall ring in 4 the ears of all who hear of it. For they have forsaken me, and treated this place as if it were not mine, burning sacrifices to other gods whom neither they nor their fathers nor the kings of Judah have known, and filling this place with 5 the blood of the innocent. They have built shrines to Baal, where they burn their sons as whole-offerings to Baal.
It has no command of mine; I never
- spoke of it; it never entered my thought. Therefore, says the LORD, the 6 time is coming when this place shall no longer be called Topheth or the Valley of Ben-hinnom, but the Valley of Slaughter. In this place I will shatter 7 the plans of Judah and Jerusalem as a jar is shattered; I will make the people fall by the sword before their enemies, at the hands of those who would kill them, and I will give their corpses to the birds and beasts to devour. I will 8 make this city a scene of horror and contempt, so that every passer-by will be horror-struck and jeer in contempt at the sight of its wounds. I will compel 9 men to eat the flesh of their sons and their daughters; they shall devour one another's flesh in the dire straits to which their enemies and those who would kill them will reduce them in the siege. Then you must shatter the jar 10 before the eyes of the men who have come with you and say to them, These are the words of the LORD of Hosts: Thus will I shatter this people and this city as one shatters an earthen vessel so that it cannot be mended, and the dead shall be buried in Topheth because there is no room elsewhere to bury 12 them. This is what I will do to this place, says the LORD, and to those who live there: I will make this city like Topheth. Because of their defilement, 13 the houses of Jerusalem and those of the kings of Judah shall be like Topheth, every one of the houses on whose roofs men have burnt sacrifices to the host of heaven and poured drink-offerings to other gods.
- Jeremiah came in from Topheth, 14 where the LORD had sent him to prophecy, and stood in the court of the LORD's house. He said to all the people,
These are the words of the LORD of 15 Hosts the God of Israel: I am bringing on this city and on all its bloodspattered altars every disaster with which I have threatened it, for its

19.1–20.6: A dramatic pronouncement and its consequences. 1: An earthenware jar: it is dramatically reserved for the climax in v. 10. Elders . . . and . . . priests: they are both audience and witnesses. 2: Valley of Ben-hinnom is chosen for its association with human sacrifice; see 7.30–31 n. Gate of the Potsherd: the mention of pottery fragments anticipates the shattering of jars in vv. 10–11. 4–5: The innocent: their sons (compare 15.4 and 2 Kgs.21.1–7). 10–11: The shattering of the jar could have been interpreted as more than a dramatic gesture, and may have reflected a view that regarded it as a marginal, hostile act. See v. 1 n.; Ps.2.9. 14: See 26.2.

people have remained obstinate and refused to listen to me.

20 When Pashhur son of Immer the priest, the chief officer in the house of the LORD, heard Jeremiah prophesying these things, he had him flogged<sup>b</sup> and put him into the stocks at the Upper Gate of Benjamin, in the house of the LORD. The next morning he released him, and Jeremiah said to him, The LORD has called you not Pashhur but Magor-missabib.<sup>c</sup> For these are the words of the LORD: I will make you a terror to yourself and to all your friends; they shall fall by the sword of the enemy before your very eyes. I will hand over all Judah to the king of Babylon, and he will deport them to Babylon and put them to the sword. I will give all this city's store of wealth and riches and all the treasures of the kings of Judah to their enemies; they shall seize them as spoil and carry them off to Babylon. You, Pashhur, and all your household shall go into captivity and come to Babylon. There shall you die and there shall you be buried, you and all your friends to whom you have been a false prophet.

7 O LORD, thou hast duped me, and I have been thy dupe; thou hast outwitted me and hast prevailed. I have been made a laughing-stock all the day long, everyone mocks me.

8 Whenever I speak I must needs cry out and proclaim violence and destruction. I am reproached and mocked all the time for uttering the word of the LORD.

9 Whenever I said, 'I will call him to mind no more, nor speak in his name again', then his word was imprisoned in my body, like a fire blazing in my heart, and I was weary with holding it under, and could endure no more.

For I heard many whispering,<sup>d</sup> 'Denounce him! we will denounce him.'

All my friends were on the watch for a false step, saying, 'Perhaps he may be tricked, then we can catch him and take our revenge.'

But the LORD is on my side, strong and ruthless, therefore my persecutors shall stumble and fall powerless. Bitter shall be their abasement when they fail, and their shame shall long be remembered.

O LORD of Hosts, thou dost test the righteous and search the depths of the heart; to thee have I committed my cause, let me see thee take vengeance on them.

Sing to the LORD, praise the LORD; for he rescues the poor from those who would do them wrong.

A curse on the day when I was born! Be it for ever unblessed, the day when my mother bore me!

A curse on the man who brought word to my father, 'A child is born to you, a son', and gladdened his heart!

That man shall fare like the cities which the LORD overthrew without mercy.

He shall hear cries of alarm in the morning and uproar at noon, because death did not claim me before birth, <sup>b</sup> had him flogged; or struck him.

<sup>c</sup> That is Terror let loose.

<sup>d</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds Terror let loose.

20.3-6: When Jeremiah is released he puts an individual curse on his torturer, but without revoking his threat to all Judah.

20.7-13: A personal plaintive prayer. 7-9: God has misused his prophet. He would cease speaking in God's name were the compulsion not beyond his power to resist. 10: Friends: ironic. 11-12: He needs the LORD on his side and is torn between the wish to flee and the need to find refuge with his God.

20.14-18: Inner fury. 14: See Job 3.3. He avoids a curse on his parents. 16: Cities: Sodom and Gomorrah. See Gen.19.24-25.

and my mother did not become my
grave,
her womb great with me for ever.
18 Why did I come forth from the womb
to know only sorrow and toil, to end my days in shame?

Kings and prophets denounced

21 THE WORD WHICH CAME FROM THE LORD to Jeremiah when King Zedekiah sent to him Pashhur son of Malchiah and Zephaniah the priest, son of Maaseiah, 2 with this request: 'Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon is making war on us; inquire of the LORD on our behalf. Perhaps the LORD will perform a miracle as he has done in past times, so that Nebu-3 chadrezzar may raise the siege.' But Jeremiah answered them, Tell Zede-4 kiah, these are the words of the LORD the God of Israel: I will turn back upon you your own weapons with which you are fighting the king of Babylon and the Chaldeans besieging you outside the wall; and I will bring them into the 5 heart of this city. I myself will fight against you in burning rage and great fury, with an outstretched hand and a 6 strong arm. I will strike down those who live in this city, men and cattle alike; they shall die of a great pes-7 tilence. After that, says the LORD, I will take Zedekiah king of Judah, his courtiers and the people, all in this city who survive pestilence, sword, and famine, and hand them over to Nebuchadrezzar the king of Babylon, to their enemies and those who would kill them. He shall put them to the sword and shall show no pity, no mercy or compassion.
8 You shall say further to this people,
These are the words of the LORD: I offer you now a choice between the way 9 of life and the way of death. Whoever remains in this city shall die by sword, by famine, or by pestilence, but whoever goes out to surrender to the Chaldeans, who are now besieging you, shall survive; he shall take home his life, and nothing more. I have set 10 my face against this city, meaning to do them harm, not good, says the LORD. It shall be handed over to the king of Babylon, and he shall burn it to the ground.

To the royal house of Judah. 11
Listen to the word of the LORD:
O house of David, these are the 12
words of the LORD:
Administer justice betimes, rescue the victim from his oppressor,
lest the fire of my fury blaze up and burn unquenched
because of your evil doings.

The LORD says, 13
I am against you who lie in the
valley,
you, the rock in the plain,
you who say, 'Who can come down
upon us?
Who can penetrate our lairs?'
I will punish you as you deserve, 14
says the LORD,
I will kindle fire on the heathland around you,
and it shall consume everything round about.

These were the words of the LORD: 22
Go down to the house of the king of Judah and say this: Listen to the words 2 of the LORD, O king of Judah, you who sit on David's throne, you and your courtiers and your people who come in at these gates. These are the words 3 of the LORD: Deal justly and fairly, rescue the victim from his oppressor, do not ill-treat or do violence to the alien, the orphan or the widow, do not shed innocent blood in this place. If 4 you obey, and only if you obey, kings who sit on David's throne shall yet

21.1-23.8: The kings are denounced. 1-7: Jeremiah answers Zedekiah. 1: Pashhur: not the same person as in 20.1. 2: Nebuchadrezzar is closer to the Akkadian original, Nabū-kudurri-usur, than the more familiar spelling, Nebuchadnezzar (see 2 Kgs.24.1). Making war: the final siege of Jerusalem was in 588-587. The king hopes for a miracle like the deliverance from Egypt. 5: Outstretched hand. . . strong arm: these words are here bitterly ironical; they commonly signify deliverance for Israel, as in Deut.4.34. 7: See 2 Kgs.25.6-7,18-21. 12: House of David: all the Judean kings were of Davidic lineage. 13-14: These verses are apparently not in their original context. 13: Valley: Jerusalem. 22.1-7: These verses develop the thought of 21.11-12.

- come riding through these gates in chariots and on horses, with their retinue of courtiers and people. But if you do not listen to my words, then by myself I swear, says the LORD, this house shall become a desolate ruin.
- 6 For these are the words of the LORD about the royal house of Judah:
- Though you are dear to me as Gilead or as the heights of Lebanon, I swear that I will make you a wilderness, a land of unpeopled cities.
- 7 I will dedicate an armed host to fight against you, a ravening horde; they shall cut your choicest cedars down and fling them on the fire.
- 8 Men of many nations shall pass by this city and say to one another, 'Why has the LORD done this to such a great city?' The answer will be, 'Because they forsook their covenant with the LORD their God; they worshipped other gods and served them.'
- 10 Weep not for the dead nor brood over his loss. Weep rather for him who has gone away, for he shall never return, never again see the land of his birth.
- 11 For these are the words of the LORD concerning Shallum son of Josiah, king of Judah, who succeeded his father on the throne and has gone away: He shall never return; he shall die in the place of his exile and never see this land again.
- 13 Shame on the man who builds his house by unjust means and completes its roof-chambers by fraud, making his countrymen work without payment,
- giving them no wage for their labour!
- Shame on the man who says, 'I will build a spacious house with airy roof-chambers, set windows in it, panel it with cedar and paint it with vermilion'!
- If your cedar is more splendid, does that prove you a king? Think of your father: he ate and drank, dealt justly and fairly; all went well with him. He dispensed justice to the lowly and poor;<sup>e</sup> did not this show he knew me? says the LORD.
- But you have no eyes, no thought for anything but gain, set only on the innocent blood you can shed, on cruel acts of tyranny.
- Therefore these are the words of the LORD concerning Jehoiakim son of Josiah, king of Judah:
- For him no mourner shall say, 'Alas, brother, dear brother!' no one say, 'Alas, lord and master!' He shall be buried like a dead ass, dragged along and flung out beyond the gates of Jerusalem.
- Get up into Lebanon and cry aloud, make your voice heard in Bashan, cry aloud from Abarim, for all who befriend you are broken. I spoke to you in your days of prosperous ease, but you said, 'I will not listen.' This is how you behaved since your youth; never have you obeyed me. The wind shall carry away all your friends,<sup>f</sup>

<sup>e</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds all went well (repeated from verse 15).
<sup>f</sup> Or shepherds.

6: Gilead and Lebanon are symbols for flourishing habitations; so, too, cedars, v. 7. 10-12: Concerning Jehoahaz the son of Josiah. 10: For the dead: this is King Josiah, whom Pharaoh Necho killed at Megiddo (2 Kgs.23.28-30). For him who has gone away: this is Jehoahaz who succeeded his father, Josiah, only to be deposed by Necho and brought to Egypt where he died (2 Kgs.23.30-34). 11: Shallum is the name here and in 1 Chr.3.15. 13-19: Concerning Jehoiakim, son of Josiah, whom Necho made king after deposing Jehoahaz (see v. 18 and 2 Kgs.23.34-36). 17-19: Words addressed to Jehoiakim. 20-30: The kings of Judah in exile. 20: Lebanon, Bashan, and Abarim (the latter in Moab): these areas were to the north and the your lovers shall depart into exile.

Then you will be put to shame and abashed for all your evil deeds.<sup>g</sup>

- 23 You dwellers in Lebanon, who make your nests among the cedars, how you will groan when the pains come upon you, like the pangs of a woman in labour!

- 24 By my life, says the LORD, Coniah son of Jehoiakim, king of Judah, shall be the signet-ring on my right hand no longer. Yes, Coniah, I will pull you off.

- 25 I will hand you over to those who seek your life, to those you fear, to Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon and to the

- 26 Chaldeans. I will fling you headlong, you and the mother who gave you birth, into another land, a land where you were not born; and there shall you both die. They shall never come back to their own land, the land for which they long.

- 28 This man, Coniah, then, is he a mere puppet, contemptible and broken, only a thing unwanted? Why else are he and his children flung out headlong and hurled into a country they do not know?

- 29 O land, land, land, hear the words of the LORD: These are the words of the LORD: Write this man down as stripped of all honour, one who in his own life shall not prosper, nor shall he leave descendants to sit in prosperity on David's throne or rule again in Judah.

- 23 Shame on the shepherds who let the sheep of my flock scatter and be lost!

- 2 says the LORD. Therefore these are the words of the LORD the God of Israel about the shepherds who tend my people: You have scattered and dispersed my flock. You have not watched over them; but I am watching you to punish you for your evil doings, says the LORD. I will myself gather the remnant of my sheep from all the lands to which I have dispersed them. I will bring them back to their homes, and they shall be fruitful and increase. I will appoint shepherds to tend them; they shall never again know fear or dismay or punishment. This is the very word of the LORD.

The days are now coming, says the LORD, when I will make a righteous Branch spring from David's line, a king who shall rule wisely, maintaining law and justice in the land.

In his days Judah shall be kept safe, and Israel shall live undisturbed.

This is the name to be given to him: The LORD is our Righteousness.

Therefore the days are coming, says the LORD, when men shall no longer swear, 'By the life of the LORD who brought Israel up from Egypt', but, 'By the life of the LORD who brought the descendants of the Israelites back from a northern land and from all the lands to which he had dispersed them, to live again on their own soil.'

On the prophets. 9

Deep within me my heart is broken, there is no strength in my bones; because of the LORD, because of his dread words

I have become like a drunken man, like a man overcome with wine.

For the land is full of adulterers, and because of them the earth lies parched, the wild pastures have dried up.

The course that they run is evil, and their powers are misused.

For prophet and priest alike are goddess;

I have come upon the evil they are doing even in my own house.

This is the very word of the LORD.

<sup>g</sup> Or calamities.

east, the direction of exile or of flight. 21: God speaks in this verse. 24-30: Concerning Jehoiachin (called Coniah here, but Jeconiah in 24.2 and 1 Chr.3.16). 24: Signet-ring: a symbol of authority (see Gen.41.42; Hag.2.23). 25-27: See 2 Kgs.24.8-17. 27: They (by anticipation): this is possibly an allusion to the descendants of Jehoiachin, who are denied rulership in v. 30. 23.1-4: The shepherds (kings) whom God will appoint; see Ezek.34.1-10. 5: Branch is used also in Isa.11.1 and Zech.3.9 to designate the hoped for ideal ruler from the tree of Jesse, father of David. 7-8: A promise repeated from 16.14-15.

23.9-40: Concerning prophets and prophecy. 10-12: Here God is speaking. See 5.7,8; 6.13.

- 12 Therefore the path shall turn slippery beneath their feet;
they shall be dispersed in the dark and shall fall there.
For I will bring disaster on them when their day of reckoning comes.
This is the very word of the LORD.
- 13 I found the prophets of Samaria men of no sense:
they prophesied in Baal's name and led my people Israel astray.
- 14 In the prophets of Jerusalem I see a thing most horrible:
adulterers and hypocrites that they
are,
they encourage evildoers, so that no man turns back from his sin;
to me all her inhabitants are like Sodom and Gomorrah.
- 15 These then are the words of the LORD
of Hosts concerning the prophets:

I will give them wormwood to eat and a bitter poison to drink;
for a godless spirit has spread over all the land from the prophets of Jerusalem.
- 16 These are the words of the LORD of Hosts:

Do not listen to what the prophets
say,
who buoy you up with false hopes;
the vision they report springs from their own imagination, it is not from the mouth of the
LORD.
- 17 They say to those who spurn the word of the LORD,
'Prosperity shall be yours';
and to all who follow the promptings of their own stubborn heart
they say,
'No disaster shall befall you.'
- 18 But which of them has stood in the council of the LORD,
- seen him and heard his word?
Which of them has listened to his word and obeyed?
See what a scorching wind has gone 19
out from the LORD,
a furious whirlwind;
it whirls round the heads of the
wicked.
The LORD's anger is not to be 20 turned aside,
until he has accomplished and fulfilled his deep designs.
In days to come you will fully understand.
I did not send these prophets, yet 21
they went in haste;
I did not speak to them, yet they prophesied.
If they have stood in my council, 22 let them proclaim my words to my
people
and turn them from their evil course and their evil doings.
Am I a god only near at hand, not 23 far away?
Can a man hide in any secret place 24
and I not see him?
Do I not fill heaven and earth?
This is the very word of the LORD.
- I have heard what the prophets say, 25 the prophets who speak lies in my name and cry, 'I have had a dream, a dream!' How long will it be till they 26 change their tune, these prophets who prophesy lies and give voice to their own inventions? By these dreams which 27 they tell one another these men think they will make my people forget my name, as their fathers forgot my name for the name of<sup>h</sup> Baal. If a prophet has 28 a dream, let him tell his dream; if he has my word, let him speak my word in truth. What has chaff to do with grain?
says the LORD. Do not my words 29 scorch<sup>i</sup> like fire? says the LORD. Are they not like a hammer that splinters

<sup>h</sup> for the name of: or by their worship of.
<sup>i</sup> scorch: prob. rdg.; Heb. thus.

13-15: Prophets of Samaria is an allusion to times past, for, by Jeremiah's day, the people Israel had long been exiled, this after the Assyrian conquest in 722. 19: The fiurious whirlwind of the LORD's anger (v. 20) is not to be turned aside by optimistic slogans. 22: A prophet who has truly been admitted to intimacy with God (stood in my council) brings word to his people designed to turn them from their evil course. 25-32: Misdeeds of the self-appointed prophets. 25: They pass off mere dreams for true prophetic words. 26: They prophesy lies and give voice to their own fantasies, leading the people to apostasy. 29: Chaff... grain: they are ignorant

Two visions

30 rock? I am against the prophets, says the LORD, who steal my words from one another for their own use. I am against the prophets, says the LORD, who concoct words of their own and then say, 'This is his very word.' I am against the prophets, says the LORD, who dream lies and retail them, misleading my people with wild and reckless falsehoods. It was not I who sent them or commissioned them, and they will do this people no good. This is the very word of the LORD.

33 When you are asked by this people or by a prophet or priest what the burden of the LORD's message is, you shall answer, You are his burden, and I shall throw you down, says the LORD. 34 If prophet or priest or layman uses the term 'the LORD's burden', I will punish that man and his family. The form of words you shall use in speaking amongst yourselves is: 'What answer has the LORD given?' or, 'What has the LORD said?' You shall never again mention 'the burden of the LORD'; that is reserved for the man to whom he entrusts his message. If you do, you will make nonsense of the words of the living God, the LORD of Hosts our God. 37 This is the form you shall use in speaking to a prophet: 'What answer has the LORD given?' or, 'What has the LORD said?' But to any of you who do say, 'the burden of the LORD', the LORD speaks thus: Because you say, 'the burden of the LORD', though I sent to tell you not to say it, therefore I myself will carry you like a burden and throw you down, casting out of my sight both you and the city which I gave to you and to your forefathers. I will inflict on you endless reproach, endless shame which shall never be forgotten.

THIS IS WHAT THE LORD SHOWED ME: I saw two baskets of figs set out in front of the sanctuary of the LORD. This was after Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon had deported from Jerusalem Jeconiah son of Jehoiakim, king of Judah, with the officers of Judah, the craftsmen and the smiths,<sup>J</sup> and taken them to Babylon. In one basket the figs were very good, like the figs that are first ripe; in the other the figs were very bad, so bad that they were not fit to eat. The LORD said to me, 'What are you looking at, Jeremiah?' 'Figs,' I answered, 'the good very good, and the bad so bad that they are not fit to eat.' Then this word came to me from the LORD: These are the words of the LORD the God of Israel: I count the exiles of Judah whom I sent away from this place to the land of the Chaldaeans as good as these good figs. I will look upon them meaning to do them good, and I will restore them to their land; I will build them up and not pull them down, plant them and not uproot them. I will give them the wit to know me, for I am the LORD; they shall become my people and I will become their God, for they will come back to me with all their heart. But Zedekiah king of Judah, his officers and the survivors of Jerusalem, whether they remain in this land or live in Egypt—all these I will treat as bad figs, says the LORD, so bad that they are not fit to eat. I will make them repugnant to all the kingdoms of the earth, a reproach, a by-word, an object-lesson and a thing of ridicule wherever I drive them. I will send against them sword, famine, and pestilence until they have of the true intensity and power of God's words (see v. 9 and 20.9). 30: Steal my words: they quote but distort the words of true prophets. 33-38: In v. 33, there is a play on words, for masa<sup>a</sup> in Heb. is both something heavy to carry and also a prophetic message. In vv. 36, 38, the phrase burden of the LORD is regarded as offensive, an affront to the word of God, for it is not an unwelcome "burden." Hence, one should ask about God's answer; not his burden. 24.1-10: Two baskets of figs suggests two groups within the people. One, the Judean exiles, will eventually be restored; the second, survivors still in Jerusalem (v. 8), will yet experience exile. For the literary form used here compare 1.11-12, 13-16. 1: In front of the sanctuary: like firstfruit offerings; see Deut.26.1-4. Jeconiah (see 22.24-30 n.) was deported in 597 B.C. (2 Kgs.24.8-17). 6: Build them up . . . plant them: after the threat comes the promise; see 1.10. 8: This verse anticipates the events in ch. 43, with the wider dispersion of the conquered Judahites. See also 44.26-30. Treat as bad figs: See 29.17. 9: Repugnant: see 15.4; 29.18; 34.17. 10: See 21.9; 27.8; Isa.51.19.

<sup>J</sup> the smiths: or the harem.

vanished from the land which I gave to them and to their forefathers.

25 This came to Jeremiah as the word concerning all the people of Judah in the fourth year of Jehoiakim son of Josiah, king of Judah (that is the first year of Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon). This is what the prophet Jeremiah said to all Judah and all the inhabitants of Jerusalem: For twenty-three years, from the thirteenth year of Josiah son of Amon, king of Judah, to the present day, I have been receiving the words of the LORD and taking pains to speak to you, but you have not listened. The LORD has taken pains to send you his servants the prophets, but you have not listened or shown any inclination to listen. If each of you will turn from his wicked ways and evil courses, he has said, then you shall for ever live on the soil which the LORD gave to you and to your forefathers. You must not follow other gods, serving and worshipping them, nor must you provoke me to anger with the idols your hands have made; then I will not do you harm. But you did not listen to me, says the LORD; you provoked me to anger with the idols your hands had made and so brought harm upon yourselves. Therefore these are the words of the LORD of Hosts: Because you have not listened to my words, I will summon all the tribes of the north, says the LORD: I will send for my servant Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon. I will bring them against this land and all its inhabitants and all these nations round it; I will exterminate them and make them a thing of horror and derision, a scandal for ever. I will silence all sounds of joy and gladness among them, the voices of bridegroom and bride, and the sound of the handmill; I will quench the light of every lamp. For seventy years this whole country shall be a scandal and a horror; these nations shall be in subjection to the king of Babylon. When those seventy years are completed, I will punish the king of Babylon and his people, says the LORD, for all their misdeeds and make the land of the Chaldaeans a waste for ever. I will bring upon that country all I have said, all that is written in this book, all that Jeremiah has prophesied against these peoples. They will be the victims of mighty nations and great kings, and thus I will repay them for their actions and their deeds.

These were the words of the LORD the God of Israel to me: Take from my hand this cup of fiery wine and make all the nations to whom I send you drink it. When they have drunk it they will vomit and go mad; such is the sword which I am sending among them. Then I took the cup from the LORD's hand, gave it to all the nations to whom he sent me and made them drink it: to Jerusalem, the cities of Judah, its kings and officers, making them a scandal, a thing of horror and derision and an object of ridicule, as they still are: to Pharaoh king of Egypt, his courtiers, his officers, all his people, and all his rabble of followers, all the kings of the land of Uz, all the kings of the Philistines: to Ashkelon, Gaza, Ekron, and the remnant of Ashdod: also to Edom, Moab, and the Ammonites, all the kings of Tyre, all the kings of Sidon, and the kings of the coasts and islands: to Dedan, Tema, Buz, and all who roam the fringes of the desert,<sup>1</sup> all the

<sup>k</sup> They . . . victims: prob. rdg.; Heb. They were the victims.

<sup>1</sup> who roam . . . desert: or who clip the hair on their temples.

25.1-14: Ineffective warnings. Jeremiah, summarizing a twenty-three year effort, calls it a failure; he now foresees only disaster. 1: Fourth year: 605 B.C., the year when Jeremiah dictated his prophecies to Baruch (36.1). The reference in v. 13 to "this book" suggests that possibly 25.1-14 is the conclusion of, or else the preface to, the second copy of the "book" mentioned in 36.27-32. 3: From the thirteenth year of Josiah: see 1.2. 9: Babylon: see 1.15 n. 11: Seventy: actually Babylon fell in 539 B.C., fewer than seventy years from the destruction of Jerusalem in 587. Perhaps the seventy are reckoned (after the fact) to the rededication of the Temple about 516 B.C. (see Ezra 6.15).

25.15-38: Worldwide devastation. All Judah's foes will sink in ruin along with her—a small measure of comfort. 15: Cup: a frequent figure for experience; see Isa.51.22-23; Mk.14.36. Fiery wine: a captured city was often burned. Hence, fiery wine means a great disaster. 18: As they still are: the words suggest a time of continuing decline. 20: Uz: a place near Damascus. Ashkelon, Gaza, Ekron, Ashdod: Philistine cities. 23: Dedan, Tema, and Buz were in central kings of Arabia living in the wilderness, 25 all the kings of Zamri, all the kings of Elam, and all the kings of the Medes, 26 all the kings of the north, neighbours or far apart, and all the kingdoms on the face of the earth. Last of all the 27 king of Sheshak<sup>m</sup> shall drink. You shall say to them, These are the words of the LORD of Hosts the God of Israel:

 Drink this, get drunk and be sick; fall, to rise no more, before the sword which 28 I am sending among you. If they refuse to take the cup from you and to drink,
 say to them, These are the words of the LORD of Hosts: You must and shall 29 drink. I will first punish the city which bears my name; do you think that you can be exempt? No, you cannot be exempt, for I am invoking the sword against all that inhabit the earth. This is the very word of the LORD of Hosts.
 30 Prophecy to them and tell them all I have said:

The LORD roars from Zion on high and thunders from his holy dwelling-place.

Yes, he roars across the heavens,
 his home;

an echo comes back like the shout of men treading grapes.

31 The great noise reaches to the ends of the earth
 and all its inhabitants.

For the LORD brings a charge against the nations,

he goes to law with all mankind and has handed the wicked over to
 the sword.

This is the very word of the LORD.

32 These are the words of the LORD of Hosts:

Ruin spreads from nation to nation, a mighty tempest is blowing up from the ends of the earth.

33 In that day those whom the LORD has slain shall lie like dung on the ground from one end of the earth to the other; no one shall wail for them, they shall not be taken up and buried.

Howl, shepherds, cry aloud, 34 sprinkle yourselves with ashes, you masters of the flock.

It is your turn to go to the slaughter, and you shall fall like fine rams.

The shepherds shall have nowhere 35
 to flee,

the flockmasters no way of escape.

Hark, the shepherds cry out, the 36 flockmasters howl,

for the LORD is ravaging their
 pasture,

and their peaceful homesteads lie in 37 ruins beneath his anger.

They flee like a young lion 38 abandoning his lair,

for their land has become a waste, wasted by the cruel sword and by his
 anger.

Jerusalem laid under a curse

AT THE BEGINNING OF THE REIGN OF 26

Jehoiakim son of Josiah, king of Judah, this word came to Jeremiah from the LORD: These are the words of the 2

LORD: Stand in the court of the LORD's house and speak to the inhabitants of all the cities of Judah who come to worship there. You shall tell them everything that I command you to say to them, keeping nothing back.

Perhaps they may listen, and every man 3 may turn back from his evil courses.

Then I will relent, and give up my purpose to bring disaster on them for their evil deeds. You shall say to them, 4

These are the words of the LORD: If you do not obey me, if you do not follow the law I have set before you, and listen to the words of my servants 5

the prophets, the prophets whom I have taken pains to send to you, but you will not listen to my words.

m A name for Babylon.

Arabia. 25: Zamri is unknown. 29: City which bears my name: Jerusalem. All that inhabit the earth is an apocalyptic phrase; see following note. 30-38: This whole passage has the flavor of "apocalypse," the prediction of a violent intervention of God into human history for judgment. 34: Shepherds: rulers.

26.1-24: Jeremiah's arrest and release. Accused of a capital offense, Jeremiah is brought to trial, defends himself, finds support in a precedent, and is acquitted, though another prophet is executed for the same offense. 1: The beginning of the reign of Jehoiakim: 609 B.C. 2-6: An

6 have never listened to them, then I will make this house like Shiloh and this city an object of ridicule to all nations on earth.
 7 The priests, the prophets, and all the people heard Jeremiah say this in the LORD's house and, when he came to the end of what the LORD had commanded him to say to them, priests, prophets, and people seized him and threatened him with death. 'Why', they demanded, 'have you prophesied in the LORD's name that this house shall become like Shiloh and this city waste and uninhabited?' The people all gathered against Jeremiah in the LORD's house.
 10 The officers of Judah heard what was happening, and they went up from the royal palace to the LORD's house and took their places there at the entrance of the new gate. Then the priests and the prophets said to the officers and all the people, 'Condemn this fellow to death. He has prophesied against this city: you have heard it with your own ears.' Then Jeremiah said to the officers and the people, 'The LORD sent me to prophesy against this house and this city all that you have heard. If you now mend your ways and your doings and obey the LORD your God, then he may relent and revoke the disaster with which he has threatened you. But I am in your hands; do with me whatever you think right and proper. Only you may be certain that, if you put me to death, you and this city and all who live in it will be guilty of murdering an innocent man; for in very truth the LORD has sent me to you to say all this in your hearing.' 16 Then the officers and all the people said to the priests and the prophets, 'This man ought not to be condemned to death, for he has spoken to us in the name of the LORD our God.' Some of the elders of the land also stood up and said to the assembled people, 'In the time of Hezekiah king of Judah, Micah of Moresheth was prophesying and said to all the people of Judah: "These are the words of the LORD of Hosts:

Zion shall become a ploughed field, Jerusalem a heap of ruins, and the temple-hill rough heath."

Did King Hezekiah and all Judah put him to death? Did not the king show reverence for the LORD and seek to placate him? Then the LORD relented and revoked the disaster with which he had threatened them. Are we to bring great disaster on ourselves?

There was another man who prophesied in the name of the LORD, Uriah son of Shemaiah, from Kiriath-jearim. He also prophesied against this city and this land, just as Jeremiah had done. King Jehoiakim with all his officers and his bodyguard heard what he said and sought to put him to death. When Uriah heard of it, he was afraid and fled to Egypt. King Jehoiakim sent Elnathan son of Akbor with others to fetch Uriah from Egypt, and they brought him to the king. He had him put to death by the sword, and his body flung into the burial-place of the common people. But Ahikam son of Shaphan used his influence on Jeremiah's behalf to save him from death at the hands of the people.

A rising against Nebuchadrezzar checked

AT THE BEGINNING OF THE REIGN OF Zedekiah son of Josiah, king of Judah, this word came from the LORD to Jeremiah: These are the words of the LORD to me: Take the cords and bars of a yoke and put them on your neck. Then send to the kings of Edom, Moab, abstract of the Temple sermon, more fully quoted in 7.1-15. 9: Though Jeremiah said much more, what the people heard was: This house shall become like Shiloh (7.12 n.). The prophet had just laid the city under a curse; they must destroy him. 11: The officers and all the people sit as a court in the Temple gate. 12-15: Jeremiah repeats the threat. 15: In very truth the LORD has sent me (see 1.4-10). His affirmation is here made explicit. 18-19: Hezekiah: 715-687 B.C., about a century before this time. Micah of Moresheth: see Mic.1.1. Zion shall become . . . rough heath: see Mic.3.12. Hezekiah's reverence for the LORD is related not in the book of Mic. but in Isa.37.14-21. 20: Uriah is known only from this passage.

27.1-22: Jeremiah declares Nebuchadrezzar's success. 1: Zedekiah became king in 597 B.C. 3: Send: send word. The envoys have come to draw Judah into an anti-Babylonian alliance.

Ammon, Tyre, and Sidon by the envoys who have come from them to Zedekiah king of Judah in Jerusalem, and give them the following message for their masters: These are the words of the LORD of Hosts the God of Israel: Say to your masters: I made the earth with my great strength and with outstretched arm, I made man and beast on the face of the earth, and I give it to whom I see fit. I now give all these lands to my servant Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon, and I give him also all the beasts of the field to serve him. All nations shall serve him, and his son and his grandson, until the destined hour of his own land comes, and then mighty nations and great kings shall use him as they please. If any nation or kingdom will not serve Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon or submit to his yoke, I will punish them with sword, famine, and pestilence, says the LORD, until I leave them entirely in his power. Therefore do not listen to your prophets, your diviners, your wise women, your soothsayers, and your sorcerers when they tell you not to serve the king of Babylon. They are prophesying falsely to you; and so you will be carried far from your own land, and I shall banish you and you will perish. But if any nation submits to the yoke of the king of Babylon and serves him, I will leave them on their own soil, says the LORD; they shall cultivate it and live there. I have said all this to Zedekiah king of Judah: If you will submit to the yoke of the king of Babylon and serve him and his people, then you shall save your lives. Why should you and your people die by sword, famine, and pestilence, the fate with which the LORD has threatened any nation which does not serve the king of Babylon? Do not listen to the prophets who tell you not to become subject to the king of Babylon; they are prophesying falsely to you. I have not sent them, says the LORD; they are prophesying falsely in my name, and so I shall banish you and you will perish, you and these prophets who prophesy to you.

I said to the priests and all the people, These are the words of the LORD: Do not listen to your prophets who tell you that the vessels of the LORD's house will very soon be brought back from Babylon; they are only prophesying falsely to you. Do not listen to them; serve the king of Babylon, and save your lives. Why should this city become a ruin? If they are prophets, and if they have the word of the LORD, let them intercede with the LORD of Hosts to grant that the vessels still left in the LORD's house, in the royal palace, and in Jerusalem, may not be carried off to Babylon. For these are the words of the LORD of Hosts concerning the pillars, the sea, the trolleys, and all the other vessels still left in this city, which Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon did not take when he deported Jeconiah son of Jehoiakim, king of Judah, from Jerusalem to Babylon, together with all the nobles of Judah and Jerusalem. These indeed are the words of the LORD of Hosts the God of Israel concerning the vessels still left in the LORD's house, in the royal palace, and in Jerusalem: They shall be taken to Babylon and stay there until I recall them, says the LORD; then I will bring them back and restore them to this place.

That same year,<sup>n</sup> in the fifth month of the first<sup>o</sup> year of the reign of Zedekiah king of Judah, Hananiah son of Azzur, the prophet from Gibeon, said to me in the house of the LORD, in the presence of the priests and all the people, 'These are the words of the LORD of Hosts the God of Israel: I have broken the yoke of the king of Babylon. Within two years I will bring back to this place all the vessels of the LORD's house which Nebuchadrezzar <sup>n</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds at the beginning of the reign.

<sup>o</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. fourth.

7: The destined hour of his own land: when Cyrus of Persia will break the power of Babylon (539 B.C.). 9: Prophets: of these pagan nations. 12-15: Jeremiah's word to Zedekiah, king of Judah. 16-22: Jeremiah's word to the priests and people. 16: The vessels were taken as loot in 597 (see vv. 19-20). Very soon: within two years, according to 28.3. 17: See 21.8-10.

28.1-17: Two types of prophets in conflict. Hananiah disputes Jeremiah's claims and hears God's adverse judgment. 1: The same year, 597, as the events in ch. 27. 3: Temple treasures.

king of Babylon took from here and 4 carried off to Babylon. I will also bring back to this place, says the LORD, Jeconiah son of Jehoiakim, king of Judah, and all the exiles of Judah who went to Babylon; for I will break the 5 yoke of the king of Babylon.' The prophet Jeremiah said to Hananiah the prophet in the presence of the priests and all the people standing in the 6 LORD's house: 'May it be so! May the LORD indeed do this: may he fulfil all that you have prophesied, by bringing back the vessels of the LORD's house and all the exiles from Babylon to this 7 place! Only hear what I have to say to 8 you and to all the people: the prophets who preceded you and me from earliest times have foretold war, famine, and pestilence for many lands and for great 9 kingdoms. If a prophet foretells prosperity, when his words come true it will be known that the LORD has sent him.' 10 Then the prophet Hananiah took the yoke from the neck of the prophet 11 Jeremiah and broke it, saying before all the people, 'These are the words of the LORD: Thus will I break the yoke of Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon; I will break it off the necks of all nations within two years';<sup>p</sup> and the prophet 12 Jeremiah went his way. After Hananiah had broken the yoke which had been on Jeremiah's neck, the word of the LORD 13 came to Jeremiah: Go and say to Hananiah, These are the words of the LORD: You have broken bars of wood;
 in their place you shall get bars of iron.
 14 For these are the words of the LORD of Hosts the God of Israel: I have put a yoke of iron on the necks of all these nations, making them serve Nebu-chadrezzar king of Babylon. They shall serve him, and I have given him even 15 the beasts of the field. Then Jeremiah said to Hananiah, 'Listen, Hananiah.
 The LORD has not sent you, and you have led this nation to trust in false 16 prophecies. Therefore these are the words of the LORD: Beware, I will remove you from the face of the earth;

 you shall die within the year, because you have preached rebellion against the LORD.' The prophet Hananiah died that 17 same year, in the seventh month.

Jeremiah sent a letter from Jerusalem 29 to the remaining elders among the exiles, to the priests and prophets, and to all the people whom Nebuchadrezzar had deported from Jerusalem to Bab-2 ylon, after King Jeconiah had left Jerusalem with the queen mother and the eunuchs, the officers of Judah and Jerusalem, the craftsmen and the 3 smiths.<sup>q</sup> The prophet entrusted the letter to Elashah son of Shaphan and Gemariah son of Hilkiah, whom Zedekiah king of Judah had sent to Babylon to King Nebuchadrezzar. This is what he wrote: These are the words of the 4 LORD of Hosts the God of Israel: To all the exiles whom I have carried off from Jerusalem to Babylon: Build houses 5 and live in them; plant gardens and eat their produce. Marry wives and beget 6 sons and daughters; take wives for your sons and give your daughters to husbands, so that they may bear sons and daughters and you may increase there and not dwindle away. Seek the 7 welfare of any city to which I have carried you off, and pray to the LORD for it; on its welfare your welfare will depend. For these are the words of the 8 LORD of Hosts the God of Israel: Do not be deceived by the prophets or the diviners among you, and do not listen to the wise women whom you set to dream dreams. They prophesy falsely 9 to you in my name; I did not send them.
 This is the very word of the LORD.

These are the words of the LORD: 10
 When a full seventy years has passed over Babylon, I will take up your cause and fulfil the promise of good things I made you, by bringing you back to this <sup>p</sup> within two years: or while there are still two full years to run.
<sup>q</sup> the smiths: or the harem.

6: "May it be so...!": the Heb. word is amen. "... May the LORD indeed do this!" Although Jeremiah believes that it will not come about, he wishes that it would. 8-9: Only when the words of a prophet, one foretelling prosperity, come true, will the prophecy be recognized as authentic; see Deut.18.21-22. 16: You shall die . . . because you have preached rebellion against the LORD: see Deut.13.5.

29.1-32: Messages to the exiles. 1-23: The first letter. 2: The time is after the first deportation in 597. 3: The opportunity is the sending of envoys to Nebuchadrezzar. 10: Babylon's seventy years are possibly reckoned (approximately) from the battle of Carchemish in 605 to the fall

11 place. I alone know my purpose for you, says the LORD: prosperity and not 12 misfortune, and a long line of children after you. If you invoke me and pray 13 to me, I will listen to you: when you seek me, you shall find me; if you 14 search with all your heart, I will let you find me, says the LORD. I will restore your fortunes and gather you again from all the nations and all the places to which I have banished you, says the LORD, and bring you back to the place from which I have carried you into exile.

15 You say that the LORD has raised up 16 prophets for you in Babylon. These are the words of the LORD concerning the king who sits on the throne of David and all the people who live in this city, your fellow-countrymen who have not 17 gone into exile with you. These are the words of the LORD of Hosts: I bring upon them sword, famine, and pestilence, and make them like rotten figs, 18 too bad to be eaten. I pursue them with sword, famine, and pestilence, and make them repugnant to all the kingdoms of the earth, an object of execration and horror, of derision and reproach, among all the nations to which 19 I have banished them. Just as they did not listen to my words, says the LORD, when I took pains to send them my servants the prophets, so you did not 20 listen, says the LORD. But now, you exiles whom I have sent from Jerusalem to Babylon, listen to the words of the 21 LORD. These are the words of the LORD of Hosts the God of Israel concerning Ahab son of Kolaiah and Zedekiah son of Maaseiah, who prophesy falsely to you in my name. I will hand them over to Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon, and he will put them to death before 22 your eyes. Their names shall be used by all the exiles of Judah in Babylon when they curse a man; they shall say, May the LORD treat you like Zedekiah and Ahab, whom the king of Babylon

23 roasted in the fire! For their conduct in Israel was an outrage: they committed adultery with other men's wives, and without my authority prophesied in my name, and what they prophesied was false. I know; I can testify. This is the very word of the LORD.

To Shemaiah the Nehelamite.<sup>7</sup> These 24,25 are the words of the LORD of Hosts the God of Israel: You have sent a letter in your own name to Zephaniah son of Maaseiah the priest, in which you say:
 'The LORD has appointed you to be 26 priest in place of Jehoiada the priest, and it is your duty, as officer in charge of the LORD's house, to put every madman who sets up as a prophet into the stocks and the pillory. Why, then, have 27 you not reprimanded Jeremiah of Anathoth, who poses as a prophet before you? On the strength of this he 28 has sent to us in Babylon and said,
 "Your exile will be long; build houses and live in them, plant gardens and eat their produce." ' Zephaniah the priest 29 read this letter to Jeremiah the prophet, and the word of the LORD came to 30 Jeremiah: Send and tell all the exiles that these are the words of the LORD concerning Shemaiah the Nehelamite: Because Shemaiah has prophesied to you, though I did not send him, and has led you to trust in false prophecies, these are now the words of the LORD: 32
 I will punish Shemaiah and his children.
 He shall have no one to take his place in this nation and enjoy the prosperity which I will bestow on my people, says the LORD, because he has preached rebellion against me.

Hopes for the restoration of Jerusalem

THE WORD WHICH CAME TO JEREMIAH 30
 from the LORD. These are the words of 2 the LORD the God of Israel: Write in a book all that I have said to you, for this 3

<sup>r</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds you shall say, saying.

of Babylon in 539. 12: If you . . . pray to me I will listen to you: even in Babylon. 16-18: This city: Jerusalem; still populous between the first and second deportations, it was yet to experience defeat and ruin; see 24.8-10. 21-23: Ahab . . . and Zedekiah: two prophets in Babylonia not mentioned elsewhere. 22: May the Lord treat you like . . .: this is a formula used in a curse, the counterpart of the formula for blessing in Gen.48.20. 24-32: The second letter. 28: He (correctly) understood Jeremiah to be saying: "Your exile will be long," that is, longer than Hananiah's predicted two years (28.3).

30.1-31.40: Hopes for the restoration of Jerusalem. It is sometimes argued that these chapters

- is the very word of the LORD: The time is coming when I will restore the fortunes of my people Israel and Judah, says the LORD, and bring them back to the land which I gave to their forefathers; and it shall be their possession.
- 4 This is what the LORD has said to 5 Israel and Judah. These are the words of the LORD:
- You shall hear a cry of terror, of fear without relief.
- 6 Ask and see: can a man bear a child? Why then do I see every man gripping his sides like a woman in labour, every face changed, all turned pale?
- 7 Awful is that day:
when has there been its like?
A time of anguish for Jacob, yet he shall come through it safely.
- 8 In that day, says the LORD of Hosts, I will break their yoke off their necks and snap their cords; foreigners shall no longer use them as they please; they shall serve the LORD their God and David their king, whom I will raise up for them.
- 10 And you, Jacob my servant, have no fear; despair not, O Israel, says the LORD.
For I will bring you back safe from afar
and your offspring from the land where they are captives;
and Jacob shall be at rest once more, prosperous and unafraid.
- 11 For I am with you and will save you, says the LORD.
I will make an end of all the nations amongst whom I have scattered you,
but I will not make an end of you;
though I punish you as you deserve,
I will not sweep you clean away.
- For these are the words of the LORD to Zion:
- Your injury is past healing, cruel was the blow you suffered.
There can be no<sup>s</sup> remedy for your sore,
the new skin cannot grow.
All your lovers have forgotten you;
they look for you no longer.
I have struck you down
as an enemy strikes, and punished you cruelly;
for your wickedness is great and your sins are many.
- Why complain of your injury, that your sore cannot be healed?<sup>t</sup>
I have done this to you, because your wickedness is great and your sins are many.
- Yet all who devoured you shall themselves be devoured, all your oppressors shall go into captivity.
Those who plunder you shall be plundered, and those who despoil you I will give up to be spoiled.
I will cause the new skin to grow and heal your wounds, says the LORD, although men call you the Outcast, Zion, nobody's friend.
- These are the words of the LORD:
- Watch; I will restore the fortunes of Jacob's clans and show my love for all his dwellings.
Every city shall be rebuilt on its mound of ruins, every mansion shall have its familiar household.
From them praise shall be heard

<sup>s</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds one judging your case.
<sup>t</sup> Why . . . healed?: or Cry not for help in your injury.
Your sore cannot be healed.

originally held out hope for the exiles of the Northern Kingdom alone. As we have them now, they clearly speak to the exiles of the Southern Kingdom, too. References to the restoration of Judah are necessarily later than the fall of Jerusalem. 4-7: The concluding line, Yet he shall come through it safely, contains the consolation that an extreme crisis has been overcome. 8-11: The bright future. 9: David their king: the restoration of the monarchy to a descendant of David. 12-17: Again, Zion's disaster overcome. 18-24: The ruins will be restored and the kingdom reconstituted. 18: Jacob's clans: the ten northern tribes, not yet considered "lost" and sounds of merrymaking, I will increase them, they shall not diminish,

 I will raise them to honour, they shall
 no longer be despised.
 20 Their sons shall be what they once were,
 and their community shall be established in my sight.
 I will punish all their oppressors; 21 a ruler shall appear, one of
 themselves,
 a governor shall arise from their own number.
 I will myself bring him<sup>u</sup> near and so he<sup>v</sup> shall approach me; for no one ventures of himself to approach me,
 says the LORD.
 22 So you shall be my people, and I will be your God.
 23 See what a scorching wind has gone
 out from the LORD,
 a sweeping whirlwind.
 It whirls round the heads of the
 wicked;
 24 the LORD's anger is not to be turned
 aside,
 till he has finished and achieved his heart's desire.
 In days to come you will understand.
 31 At that time, says the LORD, I will become God of all the families of Israel, 2 and they shall become my people. These are the words of the LORD:
 A people that survived the sword found favour in the wilderness;
 Israel journeyed to find rest; 3 long ago<sup>w</sup> the LORD appeared to
 them:
 I have dearly loved you from of old,
 and still I maintain my unflinching care
 for you.
 4 I will build you up again, O virgin
 Israel,
 and you shall be rebuilt.
 Again you shall adorn yourself with jingles,

and go forth with the merry throng of dancers.
 Again you shall plant vineyards on 5
 the hills of Samaria, vineyards which those who planted them defiled;
 for a day will come when the watch- 6 men on Ephraim's hills cry out, Come, let us go up to Zion, to the LORD our God.

For these are the words of the LORD: 7

Break into shouts of joy for Jacob's
 sake,
 lead the nations, crying loud and
 clear,
 sing out your praises and say,
 The LORD has saved his people, and preserved a remnant of Israel.
 See how I bring them from the land 8
 of the north;
 I will gather them from the ends of
 the earth,
 their blind and lame among them, women with child and women in labour,
 a great company.
 They come home, weeping as they 9
 come,
 but I will comfort them and be their escort.
 I will lead them to flowing streams;
 they shall not stumble, their path will be so smooth.
 For I have become a father to Israel, and Ephraim is my eldest son.

Listen to the word of the LORD, you 10
 nations,
 announce it, make it known to coasts and islands far away:
 He who scattered Israel shall gather them again
 and watch over them as a shepherd watches his flock.
 For the LORD has ransomed Jacob 11 and redeemed him from a foe too strong for him.

<sup>u</sup> Or them. <sup>v</sup> Or they. <sup>w</sup> long ago; or from afar.

(3.12 n.). 21: A ruler . . . from their own number; the end of foreign domination. 22: My people . . . your God: this ancient formula reaffirms the covenant. 23–24: The wicked are those who hold God's people in captivity; see v. 16. The verses repeat 23.19–20. 31.1–22: God's constant love for the Northern Kingdom. 4: Dancing in vineyards was an ancient ritual; see Judg. 21.19–21. 5: Samaria: the capital of the Northern Kingdom. 6: Ephraim: see 7.15 n. Zion: The mention here suggests a future reunion of the two Hebrew kingdoms. 8: The land of the north: the

- 12 They shall come with shouts of joy to Zion's height, shining with happiness at the bounty of the LORD,
the corn, the new wine, and the oil,
the young of flock and herd.
They shall become like a watered
garden
and they shall never want again.
- 13 Then shall the girl show her joy in the dance,
young men and old shall rejoice;
I will turn their mourning into gladness,
I will relent and give them joy to outdo their sorrow.
- 14 I will satisfy the priests with the fat of the land
and fill my people with my bounty.
This is the very word of the
LORD.
- 15 These are the words of the LORD:

Hark, lamentation is heard in Ramah, and bitter weeping, Rachel weeping for her sons.
She refuses to be comforted: they are no more.
- 16 These are the words of the LORD:

Cease your loud weeping, shed no more tears;
for there shall be a reward for your toil,
they shall return from the land of
the enemy.
- 17 You shall leave descendants after
you;<sup>x</sup>
your sons shall return to their own
land.
- 18 I listened; Ephraim was rocking in his grief:
'Thou hast trained me to the yoke like an unbroken calf,
and now I am trained;
restore me, let me return,
for thou, LORD, art my God.
- Though I broke loose I have repented:
now that I am tamed I beat my
breast;
in shame and remorse
I reproach myself for the sins of my youth.'
- Is Ephraim still my dear son, a child in whom I delight? 20
As often as I turn my back on
him
I still remember him;
and so my heart yearns for him,
I am filled with tenderness towards him.
This is the very word of the
LORD.
Build cairns to mark your way, set up sign-posts; 21
make sure of the road,
the path which you will tread.
Come back, virgin Israel,
come back to your cities.
How long will you twist and turn, 22
my wayward child?
For the LORD has created a new thing in the earth:
a woman turned into a man.
- These are the words of the LORD of 23
Hosts the God of Israel: Once more shall these words be heard in the land of Judah and in her cities, when I restore their fortunes:

The LORD bless you,
the LORD, your true goal,<sup>y</sup> your
holy mountain.
Ploughmen and shepherds who 24 wander with their flocks shall live together there.<sup>z</sup> For I have given deep draughts to 25
the thirsty,
and satisfied those who were faint with hunger.
- x You shall . . . you: or There shall be hope for your posterity.
y the LORD . . . goal: or O home of righteousness.
z Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds Judah and all his cities.

distant regions of Assyria; see 2 Kgs.17.6. 15: Ramah: a place in Benjamin. Rachel was the mother of Benjamin and Joseph, and the grandmother of Ephraim and Manasseh, tribes of the Northern Kingdom. 18–20: Ephraim's penitent words. 18: See Hos.11.8. 22: A woman turned into a man: The meaning is obscure. Perhaps it is a witty reference to the mixed figure that the virgin Israel (v. 21) is God's dear son (v. 20), or that the kingdom, conceived as female, acts a male's role. 23–25: The restoration of Judah. 23: The LORD, your true goal: the alternative translation (see Tfn.y), "O home of righteousness," is a probable designation for Jerusalem, 26 Thereupon I woke and looked about me, and my dream<sup>a</sup> had been pleasant.

27 The time is coming, says the LORD, when I will sow Israel and Judah with the seed of man and the seed of cattle.

28 As I watched over them with intent to pull down and to uproot, to demolish and destroy and harm, so now will I watch over them to build and to plant. This is the very word of the LORD.

29 In those days it shall no longer be said,

‘The fathers have eaten sour grapes and the children’s teeth are set on edge’;

30 for a man shall die for his own wrongdoing; the man who eats sour grapes shall have his own teeth set on edge.

31 The time is coming, says the LORD, when I will make a new covenant with Israel and Judah. It will not be like the covenant I made with their forefathers when I took them by the hand and led them out of Egypt. Although they broke my covenant, I was patient with them, says the LORD. But this is the covenant which I will make with Israel after those days, says the LORD; I will set my law within them and write it on their hearts; I will become their God and they shall become my people. No longer need they teach one another to know the LORD; all of them, high and low alike, shall know me, says the LORD, for I will forgive their wrongdoing and remember their sin no more.

35 These are the words of the LORD, who gave the sun for a light by day and the moon and stars for a light by night, who cleft the sea and its waves roared; the LORD of Hosts is his name:

36 If this fixed order could vanish out of my sight,
says the LORD,
then the race of Israel too could cease for evermore

to be a nation in my sight.

These are the words of the LORD: If any man could measure the heaven above or fathom the depths of the earth beneath, then I could spurn the whole race of Israel because of all they have done. This is the very word of the LORD.

The time is coming, says the LORD, when the city shall be rebuilt in the LORD’s honour from the Tower of Hananel to the Corner Gate. The measuring line shall then be laid straight out over the hill of Gareb and round Goath.<sup>b</sup> All the valley and every field as far as the gorge of the Kidron to the corner by the Horse Gate eastwards shall be holy to the LORD. It shall never again be pulled down or demolished.

The word which came to Jeremiah from the LORD in the tenth year of Zedekiah king of Judah (the eighteenth year of Nebuchadrezzar). At that time the forces of the Babylonian king were besieging Jerusalem, and the prophet Jeremiah was imprisoned in the court of the guard-house attached to the royal palace. Zedekiah king of Judah had imprisoned him after demanding what he meant by this prophecy: ‘These are the words of the LORD: I will deliver this city into the hands of the king of Babylon, and he shall take it. Zedekiah king of Judah will not escape from the Chaldaeans but will be surrendered to the king of Babylon; he will speak with him face to face and see him with his own eyes. Zedekiah will be taken to Babylon and will remain there until I turn my thoughts to him, says the LORD. However much you fight against the Chaldaeans you will have no success.’

Jeremiah said, The word of the LORD came to me: Hanamel son of your uncle Shallum is coming to see you and a Or sleep. b Or Goah.

your holy mountain; see 33.16 for another use of righteousness. 26: The prophet, or a reader, reflects on the preceding lines. 27–40: The fulfillment of gleaming promises. 28: See 1.10. 31–34: A new covenant: unlike a usual covenant, it will not depend on external knowledge, nor be recorded on stone tablets, but will be internal, written on men’s hearts. 35–37: That God could reject Israel is not conceivable. 38–40: The places mentioned were in or near Jerusalem.

32.1–44: Jeremiah’s confidence in a restored Judah. 1: Tenth year: 588, the year before Jerusalem fell; see 2 Kgs.25.1–4. 2: Imprisoned (see 38.2–6,13). Yet Jeremiah had considerable freedom of movement. 7: Anathoth: see 1.1. Right of redemption: land remained within the will say, 'Buy my field at Anathoth; you have the right of redemption, as next of kin, to buy it.' As the LORD had foretold, my cousin Hanamel came to the court of the guard-house and said, 'Buy my field at Anathoth in Benjamin. You have the right of redemption and possession as next of kin; buy it.' I knew that this was the LORD's message; so I bought the field at Anathoth from my cousin Hanamel and weighed out the price, seventeen shekels of silver. I signed and sealed the deed and had it witnessed; then I weighed out the money on the scales. I took my copies of the deed of purchase, both the sealed and the unsealed, and gave them to Baruch son of Neriah, son of Mahseiah, in the presence of Hanamel my cousin, of the witnesses whose names were on the deed of purchase, and of the Judaeans sitting in the court of the guard-house. In the presence of them all I gave my instructions to Baruch: These are the words of the LORD of Hosts the God of Israel: Take these copies of the deed of purchase, the sealed and the unsealed, and deposit them in an earthenware jar so that they may be preserved for a long time. For these are the words of the LORD of Hosts the God of Israel: The time will come when houses, fields, and vineyards will again be bought and sold in this land. After I had given the deed of purchase to Baruch son of Neriah, I prayed to the LORD: O Lord GOD, thou hast made the heavens and the earth by thy great strength and with thy outstretched arm; nothing is impossible for thee. Thou keepest faith with thousands and thou dost requite the sins of fathers on to the heads of their sons. O great and mighty God whose name is the LORD of Hosts, great are thy purposes and mighty thy actions.

Thine eyes watch all the ways of men, and thou rewardest each according to his ways and as his deeds deserve. Thou didst work signs and portents in Egypt and hast continued them to this day, both in Israel and amongst all men, and hast won for thyself a name that lives on to this day. Thou didst bring thy people Israel out of Egypt with signs and portents, with a strong hand and an outstretched arm, and with terrible power. Thou didst give them this land which thou didst promise with an oath to their forefathers, a land flowing with milk and honey. They came and took possession of it, but they did not obey thee or follow thy law, they disobeyed all thy commands; and so thou hast brought this disaster upon them. Look at the siege-ramps, the men who are advancing to take the city, and the city given over to its assailants from Chaldaea, the victim of sword, famine, and pestilence. The word thou hast spoken is fulfilled and thou dost see it. And yet thou hast bidden me buy the field, O Lord GOD, and have the deed witnessed, even though the city is given to the Chaldaeans.

These are the words of the LORD to Jeremiah: I am the LORD, the God of all flesh; is anything impossible for me? Therefore these are the words of the LORD: I will deliver this city into the hands of the Chaldaeans and of Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon, and he shall take it. The Chaldaeans who are fighting against this city will enter it, set it on fire and burn it down, with the houses on whose roofs sacrifices have been burnt to Baal and drink-offerings poured out to other gods, by which I was provoked to anger.

From their earliest days Israel and Judah have been doing what is wrong family; if any man had to sell his property the next of kin had the duty, as well as the right, to purchase it; see Lev.25.25. 8: When it happened as the LORD had foretold (v. 7) Jeremiah knew that this was the LORD's message. 11: The sealed and the unsealed: clay tablets in Mesopotamia and papyrus rolls in Egypt were completed, with one copy open and one sealed for security. Baruch: see 36.4. 14: In an earthenware jar: the Qumran (Dead Sea) Scrolls were similarly preserved. 15: The meaning is that since not all of the people would be taken captive nor the kingdom be destroyed forever, one would make use of the land he bought. 16-44: The rest of the chapter enlarges on the theme already clearly stated and is thought to be a later supplement; the language is conventional. 16-25: A prayer for enlightenment: God's actions are beyond challenge; and yet (v. 25) he has led his prophet to perform a wholly irrational act, so that one must wonder. 26-44: God responds: After Judah has fared as she has indeed

31 in my eyes, provoking me to anger by their actions, says the LORD. For this city has so roused my anger and my fury, from the time it was built down to this day, that I would rid myself of it. Israel and Judah, their kings, officers, priests, prophets, and everyone living in Jerusalem and Judah have provoked me to anger by their wrongdoing. They have turned their backs on me and averted their faces; though I took pains to teach them, they would not hear or learn their lesson. They set up their loathsome idols in the house which bears my name and so defiled it. They built shrines to Baal in the Valley of Ben-hinnom, to surrender their sons and daughters to Molech. It was no command of mine, nor did it ever enter my thought to do this abominable thing and lead Judah into sin.

36 Now, therefore, these are the words of the LORD the God of Israel to this city of which you say, 'It is being given over to the king of Babylon, with sword, famine, and pestilence': I will gather them from all the lands to which I banished them in my anger, rage, and fury, and I will bring them back to this place and let them dwell there undisturbed. They shall become my people and I will become their God. I will give them one heart and one way of life so that they shall fear me at all times, for their own good and the good of their children after them. I will enter into an eternal covenant with them, to follow them unfailingly with my bounty; I will fill their hearts with fear of me, and so they will not turn away from me. I will rejoice over them, rejoice to do them good, and faithfully with all my heart and soul I will plant them in this land. 42 For these are the words of the LORD: As I brought on this people such great disaster, so will I bring them all the prosperity which I now promise them. 43 Fields shall again be bought and sold in this land of which you now say, 'It is desolate, without man or beast; it is given over to the Chaldaeans.' Fields shall be bought and sold, deeds signed, sealed, and witnessed, in Benjamin, in the neighbourhood of Jerusalem, in the cities of Judah, of the hill-country, of the Shephelah, and of the Negeb; for I will restore their fortunes. This is the very word of the LORD.

The word of the LORD came to 33 Jeremiah a second time while he was still imprisoned in the court of the guard-house: These are the words of the LORD who made the earth, who formed it and established it; the LORD is his name: If you call to me I will answer you, and tell you great and mysterious things which you do not understand. These are the words of the LORD the God of Israel concerning the houses in this city and the royal palace, which are to be razed to the ground, concerning siege-ramp and sword, and attackers<sup>c</sup> who fill the houses with the corpses of those whom he struck down in his furious rage: I hid my face from this city because of their wicked ways, but now I will bring her healing: I will heal and cure Judah and Israel, and will let my people see an age of peace and security. I will restore their fortunes and build them again as once they were. I will cleanse them of all the wickedness and sin that they have committed; I will forgive all the evil deeds they have done in rebellion against me. This city will win me a name<sup>d</sup> and praise and glory before all the nations on earth, when they hear of all the blessings I bestow on her; and they shall be moved and filled with awe because of the blessings and the peace which I have brought upon her.

These are the words of the LORD: 10 You say of this place, 'It is in ruins, <sup>c</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds the Chaldaeans.

<sup>d</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds of joy.

deserved, survivors will again become God's people, and he their God. 35: See 19.4-5. There "Baal," the Canaanite god, stands in place of the Moabite god Molech here. 39-40: God will give them a heart; he will fill their hearts with fear of him, by such divine initiative excluding all contingency from the arrangement. An eternal covenant is, in fact, a divine commitment; see 31.31-34 n.

33.1-26: More comforting thoughts. These supplement chs. 30-32. With vv. 1-9 compare 32.36-44. 4: Which are to be razed: the destruction was still in prospect. 8: I will cleanse them: as in 31.34 God takes the initiative. 9: This city will win me a name: see 13.11 n. 10: The destruction is no longer a prospect, but now a reality; accordingly, the passage comes after 587.

and neither man nor beast lives in the cities of Judah or in the streets of Jerusalem. It is all a waste, inhabited by neither man nor beast.' Yet in this place shall be heard once again the sounds of joy and gladness, the voice of the bridegroom and the bride; here too shall be heard voices shouting, 'Praise the LORD of Hosts, for he is good, for his love endures for ever', as they offer praise and thanksgiving in the house of the LORD. For I will restore the fortunes of the land as once they were. This is the word of the LORD.

12 These are the words of the LORD of Hosts: In this place and in all its cities, now ruined and inhabited by neither man nor beast, there shall once more be a refuge where shepherds may fold their flocks. In the cities of the hill-country, of the Shephelah, of the Negeb, in Benjamin, in the neighbourhood of Jerusalem and the cities of Judah, flocks will once more pass under the shepherd's hand as he counts them. This is the word of the LORD.

14 Wait, says the LORD, the days are coming when I will bestow on Israel and Judah all the blessings I have promised them. In those days, at that time, I will make a righteous Branch of David spring up; he shall maintain law and justice in the land. In those days Judah shall be kept safe and Jerusalem shall live undisturbed; and this shall be her name: The LORD is our Righteousness.

17 For these are the words of the LORD: David will never lack a successor on the throne of Israel, nor will the levitical priests lack a man who shall come before me continually to present whole offerings, to burn grain-offerings and to make other offerings.

19 This word came from the LORD to Jeremiah: These are the words of the LORD: If the law that I made for the day and the night could be annulled so that they fell out of their proper order, then my covenant with my servant David could be annulled so that none of his line should sit upon his throne; so also could my covenant with the levitical priests who minister to me. Like the innumerable host of heaven or the countless sands of the sea, I will increase the descendants of my servant David and the Levites who minister to me.

The word of the LORD came to Jeremiah: Have you not observed how this people have said, 'It is the two families whom he chose that the LORD has spurned'? So others will despise my people and no longer regard them as a nation. These are the words of the LORD: If I had not made my law for day and night nor established a fixed order in heaven and earth, then I would spurn the descendants of Jacob and of my servant David, and would not take any of David's line to be rulers over the descendants of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. But now I will restore their fortunes and have compassion upon them.

Events under Jehoiakim and Zedekiah

THE WORD WHICH CAME TO JEREMIAH from the LORD when Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon and his army, with all his vassal kingdoms and nations, were fighting against Jerusalem and all her towns: These are the words of the LORD the God of Israel: Go and say to Zedekiah king of Judah, These are the words of the LORD: I will give this city into the hands of the king of Babylon and he will burn it down. You shall not escape, you will be captured and handed over to him. You will see him face to face, and he will speak to you in person; and you shall go to Babylon. But listen to the LORD's word to you, 11: "Praise the LORD of Hosts . . .": this phrase is a variant of Ps.136.1. Offer . . . thanksgiving: the sacrifice of a thank offering (Lev.22.29) as acknowledgment of blessings received. 14-16: See 23.5-6 and 31.23 n. 17-22: The abiding stability of the Davidic and Levitical lines. 17: That David will never lack a successor (see 2 Sam.7.11-16) was an article of faith frequently invoked in postexilic times. 18: Nor will the levitical priests lack a man: see 1 Sam.2.35. 23-26: God will never spurn . . . the descendants of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob or leave them without a legitimate ruler.

34.1-7: A warning to Zedekiah about his captivity. 1: The time is just before the final siege. 3: See the realities in 39.6-7. 5: You shall not die by the sword: Jeremiah offers only this comfort

Zedekiah king of Judah. This is his word: You shall not die by the sword; you will die a peaceful death, and they will kindle fires in your honour like the fires kindled in former times for the kings your ancestors who preceded you. 'Alas, my lord!' they will say as they beat their breasts in mourning for you. This I have spoken. This is the very word of the LORD. The prophet Jeremiah repeated all this to Zedekiah king of Judah in Jerusalem when the army of the king of Babylon was attacking Jerusalem and the remaining cities of Judah, namely Lachish and Azekah. These were the only fortified cities left in Judah.

The word that came to Jeremiah from the LORD after Zedekiah had made a covenant with all the people in Jerusalem to proclaim an act of freedom for the slaves. All who had Hebrew slaves, male or female, were to set them free; they were not to keep their fellow Judaeans in servitude. All the officers and people, having made this covenant to set free their slaves, both male and female, and not to keep them in servitude any longer, fulfilled its terms and let them go. Afterwards, however, they changed their minds and forced back again into slavery the men and women whom they had freed. Then this word came from the LORD to Jeremiah: These are the words of the LORD the God of Israel: I made a covenant with your forefathers on the day that I brought them out of Egypt, out of the land of slavery. These were its terms: 'Within seven years each of you shall set free any Hebrew who has sold himself to you as a slave and has served you for six years; you shall set him free.' Your forefathers did not listen to me or obey me. You, on the contrary, recently proclaimed an act of freedom for the slaves and made a covenant in my presence, in the house that bears my name, and so have done what is right in my eyes. But you too have profaned my name. You have all taken back the slaves you had set free and you have forced them, both male and female, to be your slaves again. Therefore these are the words of the LORD: After you had proclaimed an act of freedom, a deliverance for your kinsmen and your neighbours, you did not obey me; so I will proclaim a deliverance for you, says the LORD, a deliverance over to sword, to pestilence, and to famine, and I will make you repugnant to all the kingdoms of the earth. You have disregarded my covenant and have not fulfilled the terms to which you yourselves had agreed; so I will make you like the calf of the covenant when they cut it into two and passed between the pieces. Those who passed between the pieces of the calf were the officers of Judah and Jerusalem, the eunuchs and priests and all the people of the land. I will give them up to their enemies who seek their lives, and their bodies shall be food for birds of prey and wild beasts. I will deliver Zedekiah king of Judah and his officers to their enemies who seek their lives and to the army of the king of Babylon, which is now raising the siege. I will give the command, says the LORD, and will bring them back to this city. They shall attack it and take it and burn it down, and I will make the cities of Judah desolate and unpeopled.

The word which came to Jeremiah from the LORD in the days of Jehoiakim son of Josiah, king of Judah: Go and speak to the Rechabites, bring them to one of the rooms in the house of the LORD and offer them wine to drink. So I fetched Jaazaniah son of Jeremiah, son of Habaziah, with his brothers to the king; compare his minimal promise (21.9) to those who would surrender to the Chaldeans. Ceremonial fires in your honour: contrast with 22.18-19. 7: Lachish and Azekah: southwest of Jerusalem.

34.8-22: The evils of slavery. 14: Within seven years: see Deut.15.12. 16: The betrayal of the classes was a profanation of God's name. 17: Deliverance for you: this is bitter irony. 18: The dismembered covenant animal suggests the fate of one who breaches the covenant; see Gen.15.10. 21: The raising of the siege at the advance of an Egyptian army coming to Jerusalem's relief had produced the illusion of victory; thereupon the slaveholders, regretting their generous impulse, denounced the covenant (v. 8). 22: The thought is more fully developed in 37.7-10. There, Pharaoh's diversionary campaign has failed and Jerusalem's end is in sight.

35.1-19: A lesson in loyalty. The members of the Rechabite order remain faithful to the rules and all his sons and all the family of 4 the Rechabites. I brought them into the house of the LORD to the room of the sons of Hanan son of Igdaliah, the man of God; this adjoins the officers' room above that of Maaseiah son of Shallum, 5 the keeper of the threshold. I set bowls full of wine and drinking-cups before the Rechabites and invited them to 6 drink wine; but they said, 'We will not drink wine, for our forefather Jonadab son of Rechab laid this command on us: "You shall never drink wine, neither 7 you nor your children. You shall not build houses or sow seed or plant vineyards; you shall have none of these things. Instead, you shall remain tent-dwellers all your lives, so that you may live long in the land where you are 8 sojourners." We have honoured all the commands of our forefather Jonadab son of Rechab and have drunk no wine all our lives, neither we nor our wives, 9 nor our sons, nor our daughters. We have not built houses to live in, nor have we possessed vineyards or sown 10 fields. We have lived in tents, obeying and observing all the commands of our forefather Jonadab. But when Nebu-chadrezzar king of Babylon invaded the land we said, "Come, let us go to Jerusalem before the advancing Chal-daean and Aramaean armies." And we have stayed in Jerusalem.'

12 Then the word of the LORD came to 13 Jeremiah: These are the words of the LORD of Hosts the God of Israel: Go and say to the men of Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, You must accept correction and obey my words, 14 says the LORD. The command of Jonadab son of Rechab to his descendants not to drink wine has been honoured; they have not drunk wine to this day, for they have obeyed their ancestor's command. But I have taken especial pains to warn you and yet you have not obeyed me. I sent my servants 15 the prophets especially to say to you,

 "Turn back every one of you from his evil course, mend your ways and cease to follow other gods and worship them; then you shall remain on the land that I have given to you and to your forefathers.' Yet you did not obey or listen to me. The sons of Jonadab son of 16 Rechab have honoured their ancestor's command laid on them, but this people have not listened to me. Therefore, 17 these are the words of the LORD the God of Hosts, the God of Israel: Because they did not listen when I spoke to them, nor answer when I called them, I will bring upon Judah and upon all the inhabitants of Jerusalem the disaster with which I threatened them. To the 18 Rechabites Jeremiah said, These are the words of the LORD of Hosts the God of Israel: Because you have kept the command of Jonadab your ancestor and obeyed all his instructions and carried out all that he told you to do, therefore these are the words of the 19
 LORD of Hosts the God of Israel:
 Jonadab son of Rechab shall not want a descendant to stand before me for all time.

IN THE FOURTH YEAR OF JEHOIAKIM SON 36 of Josiah, king of Judah, this word came to Jeremiah from the LORD: Take 2 a scroll and write on it every word that I have spoken to you about Jerusalem and Judah and all the nations, from the day that I first spoke to you in the reign of Josiah down to the present day. Per- 3 haps the house of Judah will be warned of the calamity that I am planning to bring on them, and every man will abandon his evil course; then I will forgive their wrongdoing and their sin.
 So Jeremiah called Baruch son of 4 Neriah, and he wrote on the scroll at Jeremiah's dictation all the words laid down by their founder but Israel shows no such loyalty to God; compare Isa.1.3. 6-7: The group traced their beginnings to Jonadab son of Rechab. The Rechabites are otherwise known only from 2 Kgs.10.15-28 and 1 Chr.2.55. The abstentions mentioned are features of a nomadic society, tent-dwellers; see 2.2. Nazirites, too, abstained from products of the vine; see Num.6.1-4 and Judg.13.2-5. 16: This verse contains the point of the chapter. 18-19: On individual survival in the midst of general disaster, see also 39.16-18 and 45.5.

36.1-32: Jeremiah, amid difficulties, records his words. 1: Fourth year: 605 B.C. 2: The day that I first spoke to you: see 1.2. 3: The word perhaps suggests Jeremiah's motivation in that he goes on hoping that his repeated appeal may yet effect a change; see v. 7. 4-6: Baruch's instruction. Jeremiah was probably hiding, fearing a fate like that of Uriah; see 26.21-23. The

which the LORD had spoken to him.
 5 He gave Baruch this instruction: 'I am prevented from going to the LORD's house. You must go there in my place on a fast-day and read the words of the LORD in the hearing of the people from the scroll you have written at my dictation. You shall read them in the hearing of all the men of Judah who come in 7 from their cities. Then perhaps they will present a petition to the LORD and every man will abandon his evil course; for the LORD has spoken against this people in great anger and wrath.'
 8 Baruch son of Neriah did all that the prophet Jeremiah had told him to do, and read the words of the LORD in the LORD's house out of the book.
 9 In the ninth month of the fifth year of the reign of Jehoiakim son of Josiah, king of Judah, all the people in Jerusalem and all who came there from the cities of Judah proclaimed a fast before 10 the LORD. Then Baruch read Jeremiah's words in the house of the LORD out of the book in the hearing of all the people; he read them from the room of Gemariah son of the adjutant-general Shaphan in the upper court at the entrance to the new gate of the LORD's house. Micaiah son of Gemariah, son of Shaphan, heard all the words of the 12 LORD out of the book and went down to the palace, to the adjutant-general's room where all the officers were gathered—Elishama the adjutant-general, Delaiah son of Shemaiah, Elnathan son of Akbor, Gemariah son of Shaphan, Zedekiah son of Hananiah 13 and all the other officers. There Micaiah repeated all the words he had heard when Baruch read out of the book in 14 the people's hearing. Then the officers sent Jehudi son of Nethaniah, son of Shelemiah, son of Cushi, to Baruch with this message: 'Come here and bring the scroll from which you read in the people's hearing.' So Baruch son of 15 Neriah brought the scroll to them, and they said, 'Sit down and<sup>e</sup> read it to us.'

When they heard what he read, they 16 turned to each other trembling and said, 'We must report this to the king.' They asked Baruch to tell them how he 17 had come to write all this. He said to them, 'Jeremiah dictated every word of 18 it to me, and I wrote it down in ink in the book.' The officers said to Baruch, 19 'You and Jeremiah must go into hiding so that no one may know where you are.' When they had deposited the scroll 20 in the room of Elishama the adjutant-general, they went to the court and reported everything to the king.

The king sent Jehudi to fetch the 21 scroll. When he had fetched it from the room of Elishama the adjutant-general, he read it to the king and to all the officers in attendance. It was the ninth 22 month of the year, and the king was sitting in his winter apartments with a fire burning in a brazier in front of him. When Jehudi had read three or 23 four columns of the scroll, the king cut them off with a penknife and threw them into the fire in the brazier. He went on doing so until the whole scroll 24 had been thrown on the fire. Neither the king nor any of his courtiers who heard these words showed any fear or 25 rent their clothes; and though Elnathan, Delaiah, and Gemariah begged the king not to burn the scroll, he 26 would not listen to them. The king then ordered Jerahmeel, a royal prince,<sup>f</sup> Seraiah son of Azriel, and Shelemiah son of Abdeel to fetch the scribe Baruch and the prophet Jeremiah; but the LORD had hidden them.

After the king had burnt the scroll 27 with all that Baruch had written on it at Jeremiah's dictation, the word of the LORD came to Jeremiah: Now take 28 another scroll and write on it all the words that were on the first scroll which Jehoiakim king of Judah burnt. You 29 shall say to Jehoiakim king of Judah, These are the words of the LORD: You

<sup>e</sup> Sit down and: or This time.
<sup>f</sup> a royal prince: or the king's deputy.

unspecified fast-day provides Baruch with a gathering of hearers. 8: The book: the scroll of v. 1. 9: Fifth year: probably a mistake for the "fourth"; see 25.1 n. 12: Other officers: see 26.10. 16: Trembling: see 26.9 n. The words were in themselves a threat to the people and the city. 19: Go into hiding: the officers were not overtly hostile (see v. 25), but only frightened. 22: Ninth month: Kislev, in midwinter. 23: Cut them . . . threw them into the fire: he hoped to remove the curse by destroying the words. 24: Once they had burned up the words they no burnt this scroll and said, Why have you written here that the king of Babylon shall come and destroy this land and exterminate both men and beasts? Therefore these are the words of the LORD about Jehoiakim king of Judah: He shall have no one to succeed him on the throne of David, and his dead body shall be exposed to scorching heat by day and frost by night. I will punish him and also his offspring and his courtiers for their wickedness, and I will bring down on them and on the inhabitants of Jerusalem and on the men of Judah all the calamities with which I threatened them, and to which they turned a deaf ear. Then Jeremiah took another scroll and gave it to the scribe Baruch son of Neriah, who wrote on it at Jeremiah's dictation all the words of the book which Jehoiakim king of Judah had burnt; and much else was added to the same effect.

37 King Zedekiah son of Josiah was set on the throne of Judah by Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon, in succession to Coniah son of Jehoiakim.

2 Neither he nor his courtiers nor the people of the land listened to the words which the LORD spoke through the prophet Jeremiah.

3 King Zedekiah sent Jehucal son of Shelemiah and the priest Zephaniah son of Maaseiah to the prophet Jeremiah to say to him, 'Pray for us to the LORD our God.' At the time Jeremiah was free to come and go among the people; he had not yet been thrown into prison. Meanwhile, Pharaoh's army had marched out of Egypt, and when the Chaldaeans who were besieging Jerusalem heard of it they raised the siege. Then this word came from the LORD to the prophet Jeremiah: These are the words of the LORD the God of Israel: Say to the king of Judah who sent you to consult me, Pharaoh's army which marched out to help you is on its way back to Egypt, its own land, and the Chaldaeans will return to the attack. They will capture this city and burn it to the ground. These are the words of the LORD: Do not deceive yourselves, do not imagine that the Chaldaeans will go away and leave you alone. They will not go: for even if you defeated the whole Chaldaean force with which you are now fighting, and only the wounded were left lying in their tents, they would rise and burn down the city.

When the Chaldaean army had raised the siege of Jerusalem because of the advance of Pharaoh's army, Jeremiah was on the point of leaving Jerusalem to go into Benjaminite territory and take possession of his patrimony in the presence of the people there. Irijah son of Shelemiah, son of Hananiah, the officer of the guard, was in the Benjamin Gate when Jeremiah reached it, and he arrested the prophet, accusing him of going over to the Chaldaeans. 'It is a lie,' said Jeremiah; 'I am not going over to the Chaldaeans.' Irijah would not listen to him but arrested him and brought him before the officers. The officers were indignant with Jeremiah; they flogged him and imprisoned him in the house of Jonathan the scribe, which they had converted into a prison; for Jeremiah had been put into a vaulted pit beneath the house, and here he remained for a long time.

King Zedekiah had Jeremiah brought to him and consulted him privately in the palace, asking him if there was a word from the LORD. 'Indeed there is,' said Jeremiah; 'you shall fall into the hands of the king of Babylon.' Then Jeremiah said to King Zedekiah, 'What wrong have I done to you or your courtiers or this people? Why have you thrown me into prison? Where are your prophets who prophesied that the longer showed any fear. 32: Another scroll: see 25.1 n. Much else: the written record continues beyond the fourth year (v. 1.).

37.1-10: Jeremiah disappoints the king. 1: See 2 Kgs.24.15-17. 3: Pray for us: Zedekiah attributes to Jeremiah special intercessory qualities; see 7.16 n. and 15.1-2 n. 4: Not yet . . . thrown into prison; see v. 15. 5-8: See 34.21-22.

37.11-16: Jeremiah is accused of desertion and imprisoned. 11: See v. 5. 12: His patrimony: a part of the family inheritance from which, in 32.6-15, he buys a field. 13: The Benjamin gate: in the direction of Anathoth. 15: They flogged him: see 20.2. 16: A vaulted pit: apparently, according to v. 20, a dungeonlike, unwholesome place.

37.17-21: Jeremiah speaks bluntly. 19: Prophets: like Hananiah (ch. 28).

king of Babylon would not attack you 20 or your country? I pray you now, my lord king, give me a hearing and let my petition be presented: do not send me back to the house of Jonathan the 21 scribe, or I shall die there.' Then King Zedekiah gave the order and Jeremiah was committed to the court of the guard-house and was granted a daily ration of one loaf from the Street of the Bakers, until the bread in the city was all gone. So Jeremiah remained in the court of the guard-house.

38 Shephatiah son of Mattan, Gedaliah son of Pashhur, Jucal son of Shelemiah, and Pashhur son of Malchiah heard what Jeremiah was saying to all the 2 people: These are the words of the LORD: Whoever remains in this city shall die by sword, by famine, or by pestilence, but whoever goes out to surrender to the Chaldeans shall sur-3 vive; he shall survive, he shall take home his life and nothing more. These are the words of the LORD: This city will fall into the hands of the king of Babylon's army, and they will capture 4 it. Then the officers said to the king,
 'The man must be put to death. By talking in this way he is discouraging the soldiers and the rest of the people left in the city. He is pursuing not the 5 people's welfare but their ruin.' King Zedekiah said, 'He is in your hands;
 6 the king is powerless against you.' So they took Jeremiah and threw him into the pit,<sup>g</sup> in the court of the guard-house, letting him down with ropes. There was no water in the pit, only mud, and 7-8 Jeremiah sank in the mud. Now Ebedmelech the Cushite, a eunuch, who was in the palace, heard that they had thrown Jeremiah into the pit and went to tell the king, who was seated in the 9 Benjamin Gate. 'Your majesty,' he said,
 'these men have shown great wickedness in their treatment of the prophet Jeremiah. They have thrown him into the pit, and when there is no more bread in the city he will die of hunger where he lies.' Thereupon the king told 10 Ebed-melech the Cushite to take three men with him and hoist Jeremiah out of the pit before he died. So Ebed-11 melech went to the palace with the men and took some tattered, cast-off clothes from the wardrobe<sup>h</sup> and let them down with ropes to Jeremiah in the pit. Ebed-12 melech the Cushite said to Jeremiah, 'Put these old clothes under your arm-pits to ease the ropes.' Jeremiah did this, and they pulled him up out of the 13 pit with the ropes; and he remained in the court of the guard-house.

King Zedekiah had the prophet 14 Jeremiah brought to him by the third entrance to the LORD's house and said to him, 'I want to ask you something; hide nothing from me.' Jeremiah an-15 swered, 'If I speak out, you will certainly put me to death; if I offer you any advice, you will not take it.' But 16 King Zedekiah swore to Jeremiah privately, 'By the life of the LORD who gave us our lives, I will not put you to death, nor will I hand you over to these men who are seeking to take your life.'
 Jeremiah said to Zedekiah, 'These are 17 the words of the LORD the God of Hosts, the God of Israel: If you go out and surrender to the officers of the king of Babylon, you shall live and this city shall not be burnt down; you and your family shall live. But if you do not sur-18 render to the officers of the king of Babylon, the city shall fall into the hands of the Chaldeans, and they shall burn it down, and you will not escape them.' King Zedekiah said to 19 Jeremiah, 'I am afraid of the Judaeans who have gone over to the enemy. I fear the Chaldeans will give me up to them and I shall be roughly handled.' Jeremiah answered, 'They will not give 20 you up. If you obey the LORD in every-

<sup>g</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds Malchiah son (or deputy) of the king.

<sup>h</sup> the wardrobe: prob. rdg.; Heb. underneath the treasury.

38.1-13: Jeremiah is charged with sedition. 1: Pashhur son of Malchiah: he is mentioned in 21.1. 2-3: Jeremiah's allegedly seditious speech may have been more extensive than the two verses quoted here. The same address probably appears in excerpts in 21.8-10, 32.3-5, and 34.2-5. 4: He is discouraging the soldiers: perhaps; but Jeremiah's goal is national survival. 5: Powerless: the king vacillates, first assenting to the attempt on Jeremiah's life and then (v. 10) to his deliverance from mortal danger. 7: Cushite: from Cush in Upper Egypt. 9: He will die of hunger: beyond hunger, there was the likelihood of dying of suffocation in the mud.

38.14-28: Zedekiah again consults the prophet. 15: The substance is paraphrased in Lk.22.67-68.

21 thing I tell you, all will be well with you and you shall live. But if you refuse to go out and surrender, this is what the 22 LORD has shown me: all the women left in the king of Judah's palace will be led out to the officers of the king of Babylon and they will say:

Your own friends have misled you and have been too strong for you; they have let your feet sink in the mud and have turned away and left you.

23 All your women and children will be led out to the Chaldaeans, and you will not escape; you will be seized by the king of Babylon and this city will be burnt down.' Zedekiah said to Jeremiah, 'Let 24 no one know about this, and you shall not be put to death. If the officers hear that I have been speaking with you and they come to you and say, "Tell us 25 what you said to the king and what he said to you; hide nothing from us, and 26 we will not put you to death", then answer, "I was presenting a petition to the king not to send me back to the 27 house of Jonathan to die there." ' The officers all came to Jeremiah and questioned him, and he said to them just what the king had told him to say; so 28 their talk came to an end and they were none the wiser. Jeremiah remained in the court of the guard-house till the day Jerusalem fell.

39<sup>1</sup> IN THE TENTH MONTH OF THE NINTH YEAR of the reign of Zedekiah king of Judah, Nebuchadrezzar advanced with all his army against Jerusalem, and they laid
 2 siege to it. In the fourth month of the eleventh year of Zedekiah, on the ninth day of the month, the city was thrown 3 open. All the officers of the king of Babylon came in and took their seats in the middle gate: Nergalsarezer of Simmagir, Nebusarsekim<sup>j</sup> the chief eunuch,<sup>k</sup> Nergalsarezer the commander of the frontier troops,<sup>l</sup> and all the other
 4 officers of the king of Babylon. When

Zedekiah king of Judah saw them, he and all his armed escort left the city and fled by night by way of the king's garden through the gate called Between the Two Walls. They escaped towards the Arabah, but the Chaldaean army pursued them and overtook Zedekiah in the lowlands of Jericho. The king was seized and brought before Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon at Riblah in the land of Hamath, and he pleaded his case before him. The king of Babylon 6 slew Zedekiah's sons before his eyes at Riblah; he also put to death the nobles of Judah. Then Zedekiah's eyes were 7 put out, and he was bound in fetters of bronze to be brought to Babylon. The Chaldaeans burnt the royal palace
 8 and the house of the LORD and the houses<sup>m</sup> of the people, and pulled down the walls of Jerusalem. Nebuzaradan 9 captain of the bodyguard deported to Babylon the rest of the people left in the city, those who had deserted to him and any remaining artisans.<sup>n</sup> At the 10 same time the captain of the guard left behind the weakest class of the people, those who owned nothing at all, and made them vine-dressers and labourers.

Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon sent 11 orders about Jeremiah to Nebuzaradan captain of the guard. 'Take him,' he 12 said; 'take special care of him, and do him no harm of any kind, but do for him whatever he says.' So Nebuzaradan 13 captain of the guard sent Nebushazban the chief eunuch, Nergalsarezer the commander of the frontier troops, and all the chief officers of the king of 14 Babylon, and they fetched Jeremiah from the court of the guard-house and handed him over to Gedaliah son of Ahikam, son of Shaphan, to take him out to the Residence. So he stayed with his own people.

i Verses 1-10: cp. 52. 4-16 and 2 Kgs. 25. 1-12.
j Probably a different form of Nebushazban (verse 13).
k the chief eunuch; or Rab-saris.
l the commander . . . troops; or Rab-mag.
m of the LORD and the houses; prob. rdg.; Heb. om.
n artisans: prob rdg., cp. 52. 15; Heb. people who were left.

22-23: The ladies of the court will taunt the king, but their fate will be no better. See 39.6; 41.10. 28: See 39.14.

39.1-14: Jeremiah is spared when Jerusalem falls. Vv. 1-2 and 4-10 appear also in 52.4-16 and 2 Kgs.25.1-12, the latter where they stood originally. Only 11-14 here concern Jeremiah. 14: Gedaliah son of Ahikam: the puppet governor appointed by Nebuchadrezzar; see 40.7. The Residence: for the governor at Mizpah (40.6). The royal palace had been destroyed (v. 8).

15 The word of the LORD had come to Jeremiah while he was under arrest in the court of the guard-house: Go and say to Ebed-melech the Cushite, These are the words of the LORD of Hosts the God of Israel: I will make good the words I have spoken against this city, foretelling ruin and not prosperity, and when that day comes you will be there to see it. But I will preserve you on that day, says the LORD, and you shall not be handed over to the men you fear. I will keep you safe and you shall not fall a victim to the sword; because you trusted in me you shall escape, you shall take home your life and nothing more. This is the very word of the LORD.

Jeremiah after the capture of Jerusalem

40 THE WORD WHICH CAME FROM THE LORD concerning Jeremiah: Nebuzaradan captain of the guard had taken him in chains to Ramah along with the other exiles from Jerusalem and Judah who were being deported to Babylon; and there he set him free, and took it upon himself to say to Jeremiah, 'The LORD your God threatened this place with disaster, and has duly carried out his threat that this should happen to all of you because you have sinned against the LORD and not obeyed him. But as for you, Jeremiah, today I remove the fetters from your wrists. Come with me to Babylon if you wish, and I will take special care of you; but if you prefer not to come, well and good. The whole country lies before you; go wherever you think best.' Jeremiah had not yet answered when Nebuzaradan went on,<sup>o</sup> 'Go back to Gedaliah son of Ahikam, son of Shaphan, whom the king of Babylon has appointed governor of the cities of Judah, and stay with him openly; or else go wherever you choose.' Then the captain of the guard granted him an allowance of food, and gave him a present, and so took leave of him. Jeremiah then came to Gedaliah son of Ahikam at Mizpah and stayed with him among the people left in the land.

When all the captains of the armed bands in the country-side and their men heard that the king of Babylon had appointed Gedaliah son of Ahikam governor of the land, and had put him in charge of the weakest class of the population, men, women, and children who had not been deported to Babylon, they came to him at Mizpah; Ishmael son of Nethaniah came, and Johanan and Jonathan sons of Kareah, Seraiah son of Tanhumeth, the sons of Ephai<sup>p</sup> from Netophah, and Jezaniah of Beth-maacah, with their men. Gedaliah son of Ahikam, son of Shaphan, gave them all this assurance: 'Have no fear of the Chaldaean officers. Settle down in the land and serve the king of Babylon; and then all will be well with you. I am to stay in Mizpah and attend upon the Chaldaeans whenever they come, and you are to gather in the summer-fruits, wine, and oil, store them in jars, and settle in the towns you have taken over.' The Judaeans also, in Moab, Ammon, Edom and other countries, heard that the king of Babylon had left a remnant in Judah and that he had set over them Gedaliah son of Ahikam, son of Shaphan. The Judaeans, therefore, from all the places where they were scattered, came back to Judah and presented themselves before Gedaliah at Mizpah; and they gathered in a considerable store of fruit and wine.

Johanan son of Kareah and all the captains of the armed bands from the country-side came to Gedaliah at Mizpah and said to him, 'Do you know that Baalis king of the Ammonites has sent Ishmael son of Nethaniah to assassinate you?'
<sup>o</sup> Jeremiah . . . went on: prob. rdg.; Heb. unintelligible in context.
<sup>p</sup> Or Ophai.

39.15-18: Jeremiah praises Ebed-melech. See 38.8-13. 15: Had come: before the fall of Jerusalem.

40.1-6: Jeremiah after the capture of Jerusalem. 1: Ramah: in Benjamin, a few miles north of Jerusalem. 2-3: Nebuzaradan's language here is much like that of Jeremiah in 44.2-6. 5: Ahikam, son of Shaphan: he is mentioned in 26.24 and 2 Kgs.22.12. 6: Mizpah: see 39.14 n.

40.7-41.18: The assassination of Gedaliah. The date was probably 582 B.C. Some scholars call the event the "third revolt." The story is told more succinctly in 2 Kgs.25.22-26. 9: Compare this with Jeremiah's counsel in 27-12. 10: Attend upon the Chaldaeans: Gedaliah would represent

- 15 sinate you?' But Gedaliah son of Ahikam did not believe them. Then Johanan son of Kareah said in private to Gedaliah, 'Let me go, unknown to anyone else, and kill Ishmael son of Nethaniah. Why allow him to assassinate you, and so let all the Judaeans who have rallied round you be scattered and the remnant of Judah lost?'
- 16 Gedaliah son of Ahikam answered him, 'Do no such thing. Your story about Ishmael is a lie.'
- 41 In the seventh month Ishmael son of Nethaniah, son of Elishama, who was a member of the royal house, came with ten men to Gedaliah son of Ahikam at Mizpah. While they were at table with him there, Ishmael son of Nethaniah and the ten men with him rose to their feet and assassinated Gedaliah son of Ahikam, son of Shaphan, whom the king of Babylon had appointed governor of the land. They also murdered the Judaeans with him in Mizpah and the Chaldaeans who happened to be there.
- 4 The second day after the murder of Gedaliah, while it was not yet common knowledge, there came eighty men from Shechem, Shiloh, and Samaria. They had shaved off their beards, their clothes were rent and their bodies gashed, and they were carrying grain-offerings and frankincense to take to the house of the LORD. Ishmael son of Nethaniah came out weeping from Mizpah to meet them and, when he met them, he said, 'Come to Gedaliah son of Ahikam.' But as soon as they reached the centre of the town, Ishmael son of Nethaniah and his men murdered them and threw their bodies into a pit, all except ten of them who said to Ishmael, 'Do not kill us, for we have a secret hoard in the country, wheat and barley, oil and honey.' So he held his hand and did not kill them with the others. The pit into which he threw the bodies of those whose death he had caused by using Gedaliah's name was the pit which King Asa had made when threatened by Baasha king of Israel; and the dead bodies filled it. He rounded up the rest of the people in Mizpah, that is the king's daughters and all who remained in Mizpah when Nebuzaradan captain of the guard appointed Gedaliah son of Ahikam governor; and with these he set out to cross over into Ammon. When Johanan son of Kareah and all the captains of the armed bands heard of the crimes committed by Ishmael son of Nethaniah, they took all the men they had and went to attack him. They found him by the great pool in Gibeon. The people with Ishmael were glad when they saw Johanan son of Kareah and the captains of the armed bands with him; and all whom Ishmael had taken prisoner at Mizpah turned and joined Johanan son of Kareah. But Ishmael son of Nethaniah escaped from Johanan with eight men, and they made their way to the Ammonites.
- Johanan son of Kareah and all the captains of the armed bands took from Mizpah the survivors whom he had rescued from Ishmael son of Nethaniah after the murder of Gedaliah son of Ahikam—men, armed and unarmed, women, children, and eunuchs, whom he had brought back from Gibeon. They started out and broke their journey at Kimham's holding near Bethlehem, on their way into Egypt to escape the Chaldaeans. They were afraid because Ishmael son of Nethaniah had assassinated Gedaliah son of Ahikam, whom the king of Babylon had appointed governor of the country.
- All the captains of the armed bands, including Johanan son of Kareah and Azariah son of Hoshaiiah, together with the people, high and low, came to the

them to the Chaldeans. 41.4: Shechem, Shiloh . . . Samaria: These were once prominent northern cities, now again settled after war and destruction. 4-5: Since Gedaliah's murder was not yet common knowledge, the mourning rites were perhaps in observance of a fast day of the seventh month. Seemingly, parts of the house of the LORD were still standing, or else they had been restored. 9: King Asa: around 900 B.C.; see 1 Kgs.15.16-22. 11-18: The defeat of Ishmael. 12: The pool in Gibeon is mentioned also in 2 Sam.2.13. 17: Kimham's father was named Barzillai; see 2 Sam.19.37-40 and 1 Kgs.2.7. Bethlehem was on the way to Egypt. Escape: the motive for the group's flight to Egypt was the fear of Babylonian reprisals for Ishmael's rebellious acts.

42.1-43.7: The fugitives consult Jeremiah, whether to proceed to Egypt for safety, or whether

2 prophet Jeremiah and said to him, 'May our petition be acceptable to you: Pray to the LORD your God on our behalf and on behalf of this remnant; for, as you see for yourself, only a few
3 of us remain out of many. Pray that the LORD your God may tell us which way we ought to go and what we ought to 4 do.' Then the prophet Jeremiah said to them, 'I have heard your request and will pray to the LORD your God as you desire, and whatever answer the LORD gives I will tell you; I will keep nothing
5 back.' They said to Jeremiah, 'May the LORD be a true and faithful witness against us if we do not keep our oath! We swear that we will do whatever the 6 LORD your God sends you to tell us. Whether we like it or not, we will obey the LORD our God to whom we send you, in order that it may be well with us; we will obey the LORD our God.'

7 Within ten days the word of the LORD
8 came to Jeremiah; so he summoned Johanan son of Kareah, all the captains of the armed bands with him, and all
9 the people, both high and low. He said to them, These are the words of the LORD the God of Israel, to whom you
10 sent me to present your petition: If you will stay in this land, then I will build you up and not pull you down, I will plant you and not uproot you; I grieve for the disaster which I have brought 11 upon you. Do not be afraid of the king of Babylon whom you now fear. Do not be afraid of him, says the LORD; for I am with you, to save you and deliver 12 you from his power. I will show you compassion, and he too will have compassion on you; he will let you stay on 13 your own soil. But it may be that you will disobey the LORD your God and say, 'We will not stay in this land. No, 14 we will go to Egypt, where we shall see no sign of war, never hear the sound of the trumpet, and not starve for want of 15 bread; and there we will live.' Then hear the word of the LORD, you remnant of Judah. These are the words of the LORD of Hosts the God of Israel: If you are bent on going to Egypt, if you do settle there, then the sword you 16 fear will overtake you in Egypt, and the famine you dread will still be with you, even in Egypt, and there you will die. All the men who are bent on going 17 to Egypt and settling there will die by sword, by famine, or by pestilence; not one shall escape or survive the calamity which I will bring upon them. These are 18 the words of the LORD of Hosts the God of Israel: As my anger and my wrath were poured out upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem, so will my wrath be poured out upon you when you go to 19 Egypt; you will become an object of execration and horror, of ridicule and reproach; you will never see this place again. To you, then, remnant of Judah, 20 the LORD says, Do not go to Egypt. Make no mistake, I can bear witness against you this day. You deceived 21 yourselves when you sent me to the LORD your God and said, 'Pray for us to the LORD our God; tell us all that the LORD our God says and we will do it.' I have told you everything today;

22 but you have not obeyed the LORD your God in what he sent me to tell you. So now be sure of this: you will die by 23 sword, by famine, and by pestilence in the place where you desire to go and make your home.

When Jeremiah had finished reciting 43 to the people all that the LORD their God had sent him to say, Azariah son
2 of Hoshaiah and Johanan son of Kareah and their party had the effrontery to say to<sup>q</sup> Jeremiah, 'You are lying; the LORD our God has not sent you to forbid us to go and make our 3 home in Egypt. Baruch son of Neriah has incited you against us in order to put us in the power of the Chaldeans, so that they may kill us or deport us to 4 Babylon.' Johanan son of Kareah and the captains of the armed bands and all 5 the people refused to obey the LORD and stay in Judah. So Johanan son of Kareah and the captains collected the remnant of Judah, all who had returned from the countries among which it would be safe to remain in Judea, but reject his answer. 2: Your: Jeremiah's God, as though there was a special tie between him and Jeremiah. 4: To the LORD your God: Jeremiah makes no distinction between their God and his. 10: Stay in this land: see 32.6-15. 14: The trumpet: the ram's horn warning of peril; see Ezek. 33.3. 19-20: See vv. 5-6. 43.3: The fugitives, strangely, they had been scattered to make their 6 home in Judah—men, women and children, including the king's daughters, all the people whom Nebuzaradan captain of the guard had left with Gedaliah son of Ahikam, son of Shaphan, as well 7 as the prophet Jeremiah and Baruch son of Neriah; these all went to Egypt and came to Tahpanhes, disobeying the LORD.

<sup>q</sup> to say to: or to say: It is being said to.

8 The word of the LORD came to 9 Jeremiah at Tahpanhes: Take some large stones and set them in cement in the pavement at the entrance to Pharaoh's palace in Tahpanhes. Let 10 the Judaeans see you do it and say to them, These are the words of the LORD of Hosts the God of Israel: I will send for my servant Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon, and he will place his throne on these stones that I have set there, and 11 spread his canopy over them. He will then proceed to strike Egypt down, killing those doomed to death, taking captive those who are for captivity, and putting to the sword those who are for 12 the sword. He will set fire to the temples of the Egyptian gods, burning the buildings and carrying the gods into captivity. He will scour the land of Egypt as a shepherd scours his clothes to rid them of lice. He will leave Egypt 13 with his purpose achieved. He will smash the sacred pillars of Bethshemesh in Egypt and burn down the temples of the Egyptian gods.

44 The word that came to Jeremiah for all the Judaeans who were living in Egypt, in Migdol, Tahpanhes, Noph, 2 and the district of Pathros: These are the words of the LORD of Hosts the God of Israel: You have seen the calamity that I brought upon Jerusalem and all the cities of Judah: today they are laid 3 waste and left uninhabited, all because of the wickedness of those who provoked me to anger by going after other gods, gods unknown to them, by burning sacrifices to them. It was you and your fathers who did this. I took pains 4 to send all my servants the prophets to you with this warning: 'Do not do this abominable thing which I hate.'

 But your fathers would not listen; they 5 paid no heed. They did not give up their wickedness or cease to burn sacrifices to other gods; so my anger and 6 wrath raged like a fire through the cities of Judah and the streets of Jerusalem, and they became the desolate ruin that they are today.

Now these are the words of the LORD
 7 the God of Hosts, the God of Israel:
 Why bring so great a disaster upon yourselves? Why bring destruction upon Judaeans, men and women, children and babes, and leave yourselves without a survivor? This is what comes 8 of your provoking me by all your idolatry in burning sacrifices to other gods in Egypt where you have made your home. You will destroy yourselves and become an object of ridicule and reproach to all the nations of the earth. Have you forgotten all the 9 wickedness committed by your forefathers, by the kings of Judah and their wives, by yourselves and your wives in the land of Judah and in the streets of Jerusalem? To this day you have shown 10 no remorse, no reverence; you have not conformed to the law and the statutes which I set before you and your forefathers. These, therefore, are the words 11 of the LORD of Hosts the God of Israel:
 I have made up my mind to bring calamity upon you and exterminate the people of Judah. I will deal with the 12 remnant of Judah who were bent on going to make their home in Egypt; in Egypt they shall all meet their end.
 Some shall fall by the sword, others will meet their end by famine. High and low alike will die by sword or by famine and will be an object of execration and horror, of ridicule and reproach. I will 13 punish those who live in Egypt as I punished those in Jerusalem, by sword, hold Baruch responsible for Jeremiah's unwelcome answer. 6: Jeremiah and Baruch: they were taken to Egypt, apparently against their will. 7: Tahpanhes: Daphne, just west of the Sinai-Egypt border (2.16).

43.8-44.30: Jeremiah in Egypt. 8-13: He forecasts Nebuchadrezzar's invasion of Egypt. 9: Stones: to dramatize the message. 12: Will scour the land: will leave no survivors. 13: Beth-shemesh: lit. "house of the sun (God)." It was also called On (Gen.41.45), and later, Heliopolis. It was near Tahpanhes. Nebuchadrezzar's forces did invade Egypt about 567 B.C. 44.1-30: The faithlessness of the Judeans in Egypt. 1: Migdol: near Tahpanhes; both were east of Noph

14 famine, and pestilence. Those who had remained in Judah came to make their home in Egypt, confident that they would return and live once more in Judah. But they shall not return;<sup>7</sup> not one of them shall survive, not one escape.

15 Then all the men who knew that their wives were burning sacrifices to other gods and the crowds of women standing by<sup>8</sup> answered Jeremiah, 'We will not listen to what you tell us in the name of the LORD. We intend to fulfil

16 all the promises by which we have bound ourselves: we will burn sacrifices to the queen of heaven and pour drink-offerings to her as we used to do, we and our fathers, our kings and our princes, in the cities of Judah and in the streets of Jerusalem. We then had food in plenty and were content; no calamity

17 touched us. But from the time we left off burning sacrifices to the queen of heaven and pouring drink-offerings to her, we have been in great want, and in the end we have fallen victims to sword and famine.' And the women said,

18 'When we burnt sacrifices to the queen of heaven and poured drink-offerings to her, our husbands knew full well that we were making crescent-cakes marked with her image and pouring

19 drink-offerings to her.' When Jeremiah received this answer from these men and women and all the people, he said,

20 'The LORD did not forget those sacrifices which you and your fathers, your kings and princes and the people of the land burnt in the cities of Judah and in the streets of Jerusalem, and they

21 mounted up in his mind until he could no longer tolerate them, so wicked were your deeds and so abominable the things you did. Your land became a desolate waste, an object of horror and

22 ridicule, with no inhabitants, as it still is. This calamity has come upon you because you burnt these sacrifices and sinned against the LORD and did not obey the LORD or conform to his laws, statutes, and teachings.'

Jeremiah further said to all the 24 people and to the women, Listen to the word of the LORD, all you from Judah who live in Egypt. These are the words 25 of the LORD of Hosts the God of Israel: You women have made your actions match your words. 'We will carry out our vows', you said, 'to burn sacrifices to the queen of heaven and to pour drink-offerings to her.' Well then, fulfil your vows by all means, and make your words good. But listen to the 26 word of the LORD, all you from Judah who live in Egypt. I have sworn by my great name, says the LORD, that my name shall never again be on the lips of the men of Judah; they shall no longer swear in Egypt, 'By the life of the Lord GOD.' I am on the watch to bring 27 you evil and not good, and all the men of Judah who are in Egypt shall meet their end by sword and by famine until not one is left.<sup>9</sup> It is then that all the 28 survivors of Judah who have made their home in Egypt shall know whose word prevails, theirs or mine.

This is the sign I give you, says the 29 LORD, that I intend to punish you in this place, so that you may learn that my words against you will prevail to bring evil upon you: These are the 30 words of the LORD: I will hand over Pharaoh Hophra king of Egypt to his enemies and to those who seek his life, just as I handed over Zedekiah king of Judah to his enemy Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon who was seeking to take his life.

THE WORD WHICH THE PROPHET 45

Jeremiah spoke to Baruch son of Neriah when he wrote these words in a

<sup>r</sup> Prob. rdg.: Heb. adds except fugitives.

<sup>s</sup> Prob. rdg.: Heb. adds and all the people who lived in Egypt, in Pathros.

<sup>t</sup> Prob. rdg.: Heb. adds Few will escape the sword in Egypt to return to Judah.

(Memphis), while Pathros was in the south of Egypt. 17: Queen of heaven: see 7.18 n. 18: The time: this is probably not an allusion to Josiah's reform (621 B.C.), but to some more recent period, such as the fall of Jerusalem in 587, or possibly even the earlier deportation in 597. 26-27: Meet their end: contrast the doom on the exiles to Egypt with the hope extended to the exiles in Babylonia (24.6). 28: Prevails: the word that is theirs is in vv. 16-17a. 29-30: Jeremiah proposes a sign, that when Pharaoh Hophra will be taken by his enemies, God's punishment of these Judeans will be imminent. Hophra was deposed in 569, lost his life in 566. This prediction concludes the story of the Judeans in Egypt and the biography of Jeremiah.

45.1-5: The experience of Baruch. A warning against aggrandizement. See also ch. 36.

book at Jeremiah's dictation in the fourth year of Jehoiakim son of Josiah, king of Judah: These are the words of the LORD the God of Israel concerning you, Baruch: You said, 'Woe is me, for the LORD has added grief to all my trials. I have worn myself out with my labours and have had no respite.' This is what you shall say to Baruch, These are the words of the LORD: What I have built, I demolish; what I have planted, I uproot. So it will be with the whole earth. You seek great things for yourself. Leave off seeking them; for I will bring disaster upon all mankind, says the LORD, and I will let you live wherever you go, but you shall save your life and nothing more.

Prophecies against the nations

46 THIS CAME TO THE PROPHET JEREMIAH as the word of the LORD concerning the nations.

2 Of Egypt: concerning the army of Pharaoh Necho king of Egypt at Carchemish on the river Euphrates, which Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon defeated in the fourth year of Jehoiakim son of Josiah, king of Judah.

3 Hold shield and buckler ready and advance to battle;
4 harness the horses, let the riders mount;
form up, your helmets on, your lances burnished;
on with your coats of mail!
5 But now, what sight is this?
They are broken and routed, their warriors beaten down;
they have turned to flight and do not look behind them.

Terror let loose!
This is the very word of the LORD.

Can the swift escape, can the warrior 6 save himself?
In the north, by the river Euphrates, they stumble and fall.

Who is this rising like the Nile, 7
like its streams turbulent in flood?
Egypt is rising like the Nile, 8
like its streams turbulent in flood.

He<sup>u</sup> says:

I will rise and cover the earth,
I will destroy both city and people.

Charge, horsemen! On, you flashing 9 chariots, on!
Forward, the warriors, Cushites and men of Put carrying shields,
Lydians grasping their bent bows!
This is the day of the Lord, the GOD 10
of Hosts,
a day of vengeance, vengeance on
his enemies;
the sword shall devour and be sated, drunk with their blood.
For the GOD of Hosts, the Lord, holds sacrifice
in a northern land, by the river Euphrates.
Go up into Gilead and fetch balm, 11
O virgin people of Egypt.
You have tried many remedies, all in vain;
no skin shall grow over your wounds.
The nations have heard your cry, 12 and the earth echoes with your screams;

<sup>u</sup> Or It.

4: God also knows failure and grief. 5: Baruch needs to be satisfied simply to survive.

46.1-51.64: Heathen nations will be destroyed. Compare 25.15-38. The book of Jer. ends on a note of comfort. Unlike the comfort in chs. 30-34 which stressed God's forgiving love and looked to the rehabilitation of his exiled people, these chapters offer comfort through the elimination of actively or potentially hostile nations. The prevailing tone is spiteful, yet sympathy is not lacking. 1: The verse ascribes the ensuing chapters to Jeremiah; compare 1.5,10. Some scholars, however, question his authorship of the whole, others of the individual parts. 2-26: Two taunt songs (vv. 2-12 and 13-26) against Egypt. The proud might of Egypt (vv. 3-4 and 7-9) suffers inglorious defeat (5-6 and 11-12) at Carchemish. 2: Carchemish: a place on the upper Euphrates. There, in 605 B.C., Nebuchadrezzar of Babylonia defeated and wiped out the army of Pharaoh Necho (II), an ally of the waning Assyrian power. 3: Egypt is addressed. 9: Put: in North Africa. The day of the Lord: in an old tradition the day was to be, as here, a time of God's triumph over enemies, the foes of his people Israel. 11: Balm: a healing medicine;

- warrior stumbles against warrior and both fall together.
- 13 The word which the LORD spoke to the prophet Jeremiah when Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon was coming to harry the land of Egypt:
- 14 Announce it in Egypt, proclaim it in Migdol, proclaim it in Noph and Tahpanhes.
Say, Stand to! Be ready! for a sword devours all around you.
- 15 Why does Apis flee, why does your bull-god not<sup>v</sup> stand fast?
The LORD has thrust him out.
- 16 The rabble of Egypt stumbles and falls, man against man;
each says, 'Quick, back to our people, to the land of our birth, far from the cruel sword!'
- 17 Give Pharaoh of Egypt the title King Bombast, the man who missed his moment.
- 18 By my life, says the King whose name is the LORD of Hosts, one shall come mighty as Tabor among the hills,
as Carmel by the sea.
- 19 Make ready your baggage for exile,
you native people of Egypt;
for Noph shall become a waste, ruined and unpeopled.
- 20 Egypt was a lovely heifer,
but a gadfly from the north descended on her.
- 21 The mercenaries in her land were like stall-fed calves;
but they too turned and fled,
not one of them stood his ground.
The hour of their downfall has come upon them,
their day of reckoning.
- 22 Hark, she is hissing like a snake,
for the enemy has come in all his force.
- They fall upon her with axes like woodcutters at their work.
They cut down her forest, says the LORD, and it flaunts itself no more;
for they are many as locusts and past counting.
- The Egyptians are put to shame, enslaved to a northern race.
The LORD of Hosts the God of Israel has spoken:
I will punish Amon god of No,<sup>w</sup>
Egypt with her gods and her princes, Pharaoh and all who trust in him.
I will deliver them to those bent on their destruction, to Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon and his troops;
yet in after time the land shall be peopled as of old.
This is the very word of the LORD.
- But you Jacob my servant, have no fear, despair not, O Israel;
for I will bring you back safe from afar
and your offspring from the land where they are captives;
and Jacob shall be at rest once more, prosperous and unafraid.
- O Jacob my servant, have no fear, says the LORD; for I am with you.
I will make an end of all the nations amongst whom I have banished you;
but I will not make an end of you;
though I punish you as you deserve,
I will not sweep you clean away.
- This came to the prophet Jeremiah as the word of the LORD concerning the Philistines before Pharaoh's harrying of Gaza: The LORD has spoken:

<sup>v</sup> Why does Apis . . . not: or Why is your bull-god routed, why does he not . . .
<sup>w</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds and Pharaoh.

see 8.22. 13: The precise occasion of the passage is uncertain. It may be that of 567 B.C.; see 43.13 n. 15: Apis: a bull god, one of the chief deities of Egypt. With the scorn here, compare Isa.46.1-2. 16: The people speaking are foreign mercenaries. 18: Mighty: these Palestinian mountains, Carmel and Tabor, dominate their vicinities. 25: Amon: a god worshipped at No (Thebes) in southern Egypt. 26: The latter part of the verse is probably an addition, softening the judgment; see 48.47 and 49.6. 27-28: Reassurance to Israel; see 30.1-11.

47.1-7: Concerning the Philistines. Pharaoh is mentioned only in v. 1. From the north (v. 2) suggests Babylon, not Egypt, as the agent of God (v. 4) being sent to destroy Philistia. The chapter could refer to any of the frequent occasions when Philistia was ground between the

- See how waters are rising from the north and swelling to a torrent in spate, flooding the land and all that is in it, cities and all who live in them. Men shall shriek in alarm and all who live in the land shall howl.
- 3 Hark, the pounding of his chargers' hooves, the rattle of his chariots and their rumbling wheels! Fathers spare no thought for their children; their hands hang powerless,
- 4 because the day is upon them when Philistia will be despoiled, and Tyre and Sidon destroyed to the last defender; for the LORD will despoil the Philistines, that remnant of the isle of Caphtor.
- 5 Gaza is shorn bare, Ashkelon ruined. Poor remnant of their strength, how long will you gash yourselves and cry:
- 6 Ah, sword in the hand of the LORD, how long will it be before you rest? Sheathe yourself, rest and be quiet.
- 7 How can it rest? for the LORD has given it work to do against Ashkelon and the plain by the sea; there he has assigned the sword its task.
- 48 Of Moab. The LORD of Hosts the God of Israel has spoken:
- Alas for Nebo! it is laid waste; Kiriathaim is put to shame and captured, Misgab reduced to shame and dismay;
- 2 Moab is renowned no longer. In Heshbon they plot evil against her:
- Come, destroy her, and leave her no longer a nation. And you who live in Madmen shall be struck down, your people pursued by the sword. Hark to the cries of anguish from Horonaim: great havoc and disaster! Moab is broken. Their cries are heard as far as Zoar. On the ascent of Luhith men go up weeping bitterly; on the descent of Horonaim cries of 'Disaster!' are heard. Flee, flee for your lives like a sand-grouse in the wilderness. Because you have trusted in your defences and your arsenals, you too will be captured, and Kemosh will go into exile, his priests and his captains with him; and a spoiler shall descend on every city. No city shall escape, valley and tableland will be laid waste and plundered; the LORD has spoken.
- Let a warning flash to Moab,<sup>x</sup> for she shall be laid in ruins<sup>y</sup> and her cities shall become waste places with no inhabitant. A curse on him who is slack in doing the LORD's work! A curse on him who withholds his sword from bloodshed!
- All his life long, Moab has lain undisturbed like wine settled on its lees, not emptied from vessel to vessel; he has not gone into exile. Therefore the taste of him is unaltered, <sup>x</sup> Let . . . Moab: or Doom Moab to become saltings.

<sup>y</sup> laid in ruins: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.

two major powers, e.g. during Necho's campaign in 609 (see 2 Kgs.23.29). 4: Tyre and Sidon, Phoenician cities, seemingly allied with the Philistines (27.3). Caphtor: Crete, or possibly Asia Minor; see Amos 9.7. Gaza . . . Ashkelon: Philistine cities. 6: Philistia speaks here.

48.1-47: Of Moab. A collection of compositions concerning Moab, some threatening calamities, others lamenting that people's distress. Neither the occasions nor the human agents of destruction are specified. During the latter half of the seventh century and early in the sixth, Moab suffered from incursions of Arab tribes from the east. When Jerusalem fell in 587, Moab afforded refuge to fugitives from Judah (see 40.11-12). 1-6: The chapter begins with what sounds like a dirge, sympathy for Moab in her plight; compare Isa.15.1-8. 7: The tone becomes more hostile. Kemosh: the Moabite god; see vv. 13 and 46. Will go into exile: see also Isa.46.2.

- and the flavour stays unchanged.
 12 Therefore the days are coming, says
 the LORD,
 when I will send men to tilt the jars;
 they shall tilt them
 and empty his vessels and smash his jars;
 13 and Moab shall be betrayed by Kemosh,
 as Israel was betrayed by Bethel,
 a god in whom he trusted.
 14 How can you say, 'We are warriors and men valiant in battle'?
 15 The spoiler of Moab and her cities has come up,
 and the flower of her army goes down to the slaughter.
 This is the very word of the King whose name is the LORD of Hosts.
 16 The downfall of Moab is near at hand,
 disaster rushes swiftly upon him.
 17 Grieve for him, all you his neighbours
 and all you who acknowledge him, and say, 'Alas! The commander's staff is broken,
 broken is the baton of honour.' 18 Come down from your place of
 honour,
 sit on the thirsty ground, you natives of Dibon;
 for the spoiler of Moab has come
 upon you
 and destroyed your citadels.
 19 You that live in Aroer, stand on the roadside and watch,
 ask the fugitives, the man running,
 the woman escaping,
 ask them, 'What has happened?' 20 Moab is reduced to shame and dismay:
 howl and shriek,
 proclaim by the Arnon that Moab is despoiled, 21 and that judgement has come to the tableland, to Holon and Jahazah, Mephaath and Dibon, Nebo and Beth-diblathaim and Kiriathaim, Beth-gamul, 22 Beth-meon, Kiriath and Bozrah, and to 23 all the cities of Moab far and near.
 Moab's horn is hacked off 25 and his strong arm is broken,
 says the LORD.
 Make Moab drunk—he has defied 26
 the LORD—
 until he overflows with his vomit and even he becomes a butt for derision.
 But was Israel ever your butt? 27 Was he ever in company with thieves,
 that whenever you spoke of him you should shake your head?
 Leave your cities, you inhabitants of 28 Moab,
 and find a home among the crags;
 become like a dove which nests in the rock-face at the mouth of a cavern.
 We have heard of Moab's pride, and 29 proud indeed he is,
 proud, presumptuous, overbearing,
 insolent.
 I know his arrogance, says the LORD; 30 his boasting is false, false are his deeds.
 Therefore I will howl over Moab 31 and cry in anguish at the fate of every soul in Moab;
 I will moan over the men of Kir-heres.
 I will weep for you more than I 32 wept for Jazer,
 O vine of Sibmah whose branches spread out to the sea
 and stretch as far as Jazer.
 The despoiler has fallen on your fruit and on your vintage, gladness and joy are taken away 33
 from the meadows of Moab, and I have stopped the flow of wine
 from the vats;

12: Smash his jars: see 13.12–14. 13: Bethel: see Gen.31.13. Here the word is a name for a deity rather than the place of a sanctuary. The betrayal alluded to is obscure. 17–24: Further sympathy for Moab. Alas!: the same Heb. word (echah) begins Lamentations. 25–39: Again the hostile words are interspersed with sympathetic murmurs (see vv. 31–32,34). 27: Shake your head: this motion is a sign of scorn. 29–33,36: These verses largely echo those of Isa.16.6–11.

nor shall shout follow shout from the harvesters—not one shout.

- 34 Heshbon and<sup>z</sup> Elealeh utter cries of anguish which are heard in Jahaz; the sound carries from Zoar to Horonaim and Eglath-shelishiyah; for the waters of Nimrim have become a desolate waste. In Moab I will stop their sacrificing at hill-shrines and burning of offerings to their gods, says the LORD.
- 35 Therefore my heart wails for Moab like a reed-pipe, wails like a pipe for the men of Kir-heres. Their hard-earned wealth has vanished. Every man's head is shorn in mourning, every beard shaved, every hand gashed, and every waist girded with sackcloth. On Moab's roofs and in her broad streets nothing is heard but lamentation; for I have broken Moab like a useless thing.<sup>a</sup>
- 36 Moab in her dismay has shamefully turned to flight. Moab has become a butt of derision and a cause of dismay to all her neighbours.
- 37 For the LORD has spoken:

A vulture shall swoop down and spread out his wings over Moab.

- 38 The towns are captured, the strongholds taken; on that day the spirit of Moab's warriors shall fail like the spirit of a woman in childbirth.
- 39 Then Moab shall be destroyed, no more to be a nation; for he defied the LORD.
- 40 The hunter's scare, the pit, and the trap threaten all who dwell in Moab, says the LORD.
- 41 If a man runs from the scare he will fall into the pit; if he climbs out of the pit he will be caught in the trap. All this will I bring on Moab in the year of their reckoning. This is the very word of the LORD.

- In the shadow of Heshbon the fugitives stand helpless; for fire has blazed out from Heshbon, flames have shot out from the palace of Sihon; they devour the homeland of Moab and the country of the sons of tumult.
- 42 Alas for you, Moab! the people of Kemosh have vanished, for your sons are taken into captivity and your daughters led away captive.
- 43 Yet in days to come I will restore Moab's fortunes. This is the very word of the LORD.

Here ends the sentence on Moab.

Of the people of Ammon. Thus says the LORD:

Has Israel no sons? Has he no heir? Why has Milcom inherited the land of Gad, and why do his people live in the cities of Gad?

- 44 Look, therefore, a time is coming, says the LORD, when I will make Rabbath Ammon hear the battle-cry, when it will become a desolate mound of ruins and its villages will be burnt to ashes, and Israel shall disinherit those who disinherited him, says the LORD.

45 Howl, Heshbon, for Ai is despoiled. Cry aloud, you villages round Rabbath Ammon, put on sackcloth and beat your breast, and score your bodies with gashes.

<sup>z</sup> and: prob. rdg., cp. Isa. 15. 4; Heb. as far as.
<sup>a</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds says the LORD.

34: Sites in Moab. 36: Kir-heres (Kir-hareseth) ancient capital of Moab. 40–46: Moab is to undergo irretrievable disaster. With vv. 43–44 compare Isa. 24.17–18. 45–46: On Moab's sad plight, see also Num. 21.28–29. 45: Heshbon: a border city. It is here in Moab, but in 49.3 it is in Ammon. Sihon: a Moabite king (Num. 21.21–31). Sons of tumult: see Num. 24.17b. 49.1–39: The seizure by the people of Ammon of Israelite territory will not go unpunished. The exact occasion is not known. 1: Gad: on Ammon's northern border, east of the Jordan. Milcom: the Ammonite god. 2: Rabbath Ammon: the capital city, modern Amman. 3: Heshbon: see

For Milcom will go into exile, and with him his priests and officers.
 4 Why do you boast of your resources, you whose resources are melting
 away,
 you wayward people who trust in your arsenals,
 and say, 'Who will dare attack me?' 5 Beware, I am bringing fear upon you from every side,<sup>b</sup> and every one of you shall be driven headlong
 with no man to round up the stragglers.
 6 Yet after this I will restore the fortunes of Ammon.
 This is the very word of the LORD.
 7 Of Edom. The LORD of Hosts has
 said:
 Is wisdom no longer to be found in Teman?
 Have her sages no skill in counsel?
 Has their wisdom decayed?
 8 The people of Dedan have turned and fled
 and taken refuge in remote places;
 for I will bring Esau's calamity
 upon him
 when his day of reckoning comes.
 9<sup>c</sup> When the vintagers come to you they will surely leave gleanings;
 and if thieves raid your early crop in the night,
 they will take only as much as they want.
 10 But I have ransacked Esau's treasure,
 I have uncovered his hiding-places, and he has nowhere to conceal
 himself;
 his children, his kinsfolk and his neighbours are despoiled;
 there is no one to help him.
 11 What! am I to save alive your fatherless children?
 Are your widows to trust in me?

For the LORD has spoken: Those 12 who were not doomed to drink the cup shall drink it none the less. Are you alone to go unpunished? You shall not go unpunished; you shall drink it. For 13 by my life, says the LORD, Bozrah shall become a horror and reproach, a by-word and a thing of ridicule; and all her towns shall be a byword for ever.

When a herald was sent among the 14<sup>d</sup> nations, crying,
 'Gather together and march against
 her,
 rouse yourselves for battle',
 I heard this message from the LORD:

Look, I make you the least of all 15
 nations,
 an object of all men's contempt.
 Your overbearing arrogance and 16 your insolent heart
 have led you astray,
 you who haunt the crannies among the rocks
 and keep your hold on the heights of the hills.
 Though you build your nest high as a vulture,
 thence I will bring you down.
 This is the very word of the LORD.
 Edom shall become a scene of 17 horror,
 all who pass that way shall be horror-struck
 and shall jeer in derision at the blows
 she has borne,
 overthrown like Sodom and Gomor- 18 rah and their neighbours,<sup>e</sup>
 says the LORD.
 No man shall live there,
 no mortal make a home in her.
 Look, like a lion coming up 19 from Jordan's dense thickets to the perennial pastures,

<sup>b</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds says the Lord God of Hosts.
<sup>c</sup> Verses 9 and 10: cp. Obad. 5, 6.
<sup>d</sup> Verses 14-16: cp. Obad. 1-4. <sup>e</sup> Or inhabitants.

48.45 n. 6: See, similarly, 48.47. 7-22: Of Edom: except for her "arrogance" (v. 16) Edom's offense is not here specified. After the fall of Jerusalem and during the early Persian Period (sixth century), the Nabateans, nomadic peoples from Arabia, invaded and pushed the Edomites westward into southern Judah. 7: "Men of the east," including Edom, were widely reputed for their wisdom; see 1 Kgs.4.29-30. Teman: an Edomite city, at times used synonymously with Edom. 8: Esau: the ancestor of Edom; see Gen.25.29-30;36.1. 9: Vintagers: harvesters of grapes. 10: Ransacked: see Obad.5-6. 12: Those who were not doomed: i.e. not specifically "sentenced"; probably they are included in the category of: "all that inhabit the earth" in 25.29. 13: Bozrah: a fortress city in the northern part of Edom. 14-16: See Obad.1-4. 18: Sodom and Gomorrah and their neighbours: see Deut.29.23. 19: From Jordan's dense thickets:

- in a moment I will chase every one
away
and round up the choicest of <sup>f</sup> her rams.
For who is like me? Who is my equal?
What shepherd can stand his ground
before me?
- 20 Therefore listen to the LORD's whole purpose against Edom and all his plans against the people of Teman:
- The young ones of the flock shall be carried off,
and their pasture shall be horrified at their fate.
- 21 At the sound of their fall the land
quakes;
it cries out, and the cry is heard at the Red Sea.<sup>g</sup>
- 22 A vulture shall soar and swoop
down
and spread out his wings over Bozrah,
and on that day the spirit of Edom's warriors shall fail
like the spirit of a woman in labour.
- 23 Of Damascus.
Hamath and Arpad are in
confusion,
for they have heard news of
disaster;
they are tossed up and down in anxiety
like the unresting sea.
- 24 Damascus has lost heart and turns to flight;
trembling has seized her,
the pangs of childbirth have gripped
her.
- 25 How forlorn is the town of joyful
song,
the city of gladness!
- 26 Therefore her young men shall fall in her streets
- and all her warriors lie still in death that day.
This is the very word of the LORD
of Hosts.
Then will I kindle a fire against the 27 wall of Damascus
and it shall consume the palaces of Ben-hadad.
- Of Kedar and the royal princes<sup>h</sup> of 28 Hazer which Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon subdued. The LORD has said:
- Come, attack Kedar, despoil the Arabs of the east.
Carry off their tents and their flocks, 29 their tent-hangings and all their vessels,
drive off their camels too,
and a cry shall go up: 'Terror let loose!'
- Flee, flee; make haste, 30 take refuge in remote places, O people of Hazer,
for the king of Babylon has laid his plans
and formed a design against you,
says the LORD.
Come, let us attack a nation living at 31
peace,
in fancied security,
with neither gates nor bars, sufficient to themselves.
Their camels shall be carried off as 32 booty,
their vast herds of cattle as plunder;
I will scatter them before the wind to roam the fringes of the desert,<sup>i</sup> and bring ruin upon them from every side.
Hazer shall become a haunt of 33 wolves,
for ever desolate;
no man shall live there,
no mortal make a home in her.
This is the very word of the LORD.

<sup>f</sup> the choicest of: prob. rdg.; Heb. who is chosen?

<sup>g</sup> Or the Sea of Reeds.

<sup>h</sup> royal princes: or kingdom.

<sup>i</sup> them . . . desert: or to the wind those who clip the hair on their temples.

God, like a lion, attacks Edom's rams, her leaders. 23-27: Damascus: the capital of Syria. 23: Except in v. 27, which is quoted from Amos 1.4, no reason for, or source of, the disaster is given. Hamath and Arpad are neighboring cities. Ben-hadad: a royal Syrian name. 28-33: Kedar: an area in the east of Palestine. 28: Hazer: a place unknown, but apparently in, or near, Kedar. 29: 'Terror let loose!': see 6.25; 46.5. 30: See 25.9. 31: See Ezek.38.11; Deut.33.28. 32: See Ezek.12.14,15. 33: Wolves: the exact identification is uncertain here and in 10.22.

- 34 This came to the prophet Jeremiah as the word of the LORD concerning 35 Zedekiah king of Judah: Thus says the LORD of Hosts: Listen, I will break the bow of Elam,
 the chief weapon of their might;
 36 I will bring four winds against Elam from the four quarters of heaven;
 I will scatter them before these four winds, and there shall be no nation to which the exiles from Elam shall not come.
 37 I will break Elam before their foes, before those who are bent on their destruction;
 I will vent my anger upon them in disaster;
 I will harry them with the sword until I make an end of them.
 38 Then I will set my throne in Elam, and there I will destroy the king and his officers.
 This is the very word of the LORD.
 39 Yet in days to come I will restore the fortunes of Elam.
 This is the very word of the LORD.
50 The word which the LORD spoke concerning Babylon, concerning the land of the Chaldaeans, through the prophet Jeremiah:
 2 Declare and proclaim among the nations, keep nothing back, spread the news: Babylon is taken, Bel is put to shame, Marduk is in despair;
 the idols of Babylon are put to shame,
 her false gods are in despair.
 For a nation out of the north has fallen upon her;
 they will make her land a desolate waste where neither man nor beast shall live.
 In those days, at that time, says the LORD, the people of Israel and the people of Judah shall come together and go in tears to seek the LORD their God; they shall ask after Zion, turning their faces towards her, and they shall come and join themselves to the LORD in an everlasting covenant which shall not be forgotten.
 My people were lost sheep, whose shepherds let them stray and run wild on the mountains; they went from mountain to hill and forgot their fold. Whoever found them devoured them, and their enemies said, 'We incur no guilt, because they have sinned against the LORD, the LORD who is the true goal and the hope of all their fathers.'
 Flee from Babylon, from the land of the Chaldaeans; go forth, and be like he-goats leading the flock.
 For I will stir up a host of mighty nations and bring them against Babylon, marshalled against her from a northern land;
 and from the north she shall be captured.
 Their arrows shall be like a practised warrior who never comes back empty-handed;
 the Chaldaeans shall be plundered, and all who plunder them shall take their fill.
 This is the very word of the LORD.

34-39: Elam: a country east of Babylonia, bordering on Media and Persia, and a protectorate of Media, but having no known contact with Judah. 34: Zedekiah: he began to reign around 597 B.C. 38: Throne: see also 1.15. 39: A comforting addition.

50.1-51.64: Concerning Babylon. Around 550 B.C. her capital fell before Cyrus the Persian. In part, chs. 50-51 anticipate those events, without, however, naming Persia, and in part they look back to them, but it is not always clear whether the intention is future or past. 2: Babylon is taken. But in vv. 3 and 9 the land is yet to be conquered. Bel, "great god," is a title of Marduk (Merodach), god of the city of Babylon. 3: A nation out of the north: Media lay north of Babylon, Persia to the southeast: by 539, Cyrus of Persia had incorporated the northern peoples into his expanding empire. 4-7: The reunion of Israel and . . . Judah: these verses interrupt the material concerning Babylon. 8: Flee from Babylon: this is addressed to captive Judeans. 9-10: God assembles the nations of the north; see 51.27-28 n. The time is future.

- 11 You ravaged my patrimony; but though you rejoice and exult, though you run free like a heifer
after threshing,
though you neigh like a stallion, 12 your mother shall be cruelly disgraced,
she who bore you shall be put to
shame.
Look at her, the mere rump of the
nations,
a wilderness, parched and desert, 13 unpeopled through the wrath of the
LORD,
nothing but a desolate waste;
all who pass by Babylon shall be horror-struck
and jeer in derision at the sight of her wounds.
- 14 Marshal your forces against Babylon,
on every side,
you whose bows are ready strung;
shoot at her, spare no arrows.
15 Shout in triumph over her, she has thrown up her hands, her bastions are down, her walls demolished;
this is the vengeance of the LORD.
Take vengeance on her;
as she has done, so do to her.
16 Destroy every sower in Babylon, every reaper with his sickle at harvest-time.
Before the cruel sword every man will go back to his people, every man flee to his own land.
- 17 Israel is a scattered flock harried and chased by lions:
as the king of Assyria was the first to feed on him,
so the king of Babylon was the last to gnaw his bones.
- 18 Therefore the LORD of Hosts the God of Israel says this:
I will punish the king of Babylon and his country
- as I have punished the king of Assyria.
I will bring Israel back to his 19 pasture,
and he shall graze on Carmel and Bashan;
in the hills of Ephraim and Gilead he shall eat his fill.
In those days, says the LORD, when 20 that time comes, search shall be made for the iniquity of Israel but there shall be none, and for the sin of Judah but it shall not be found; for those whom I leave as a remnant I will forgive.
- Attack the land of Merathaim; 21 attack it and the inhabitants of Pekod;
put all to the sword and destroy
them,
and do whatever I bid you.
This is the very word of the LORD.
- Hark, the sound of war in the land 22 and great destruction!
See how the hammer of all the 23
earth
is hacked and broken in pieces, how Babylon has become a horror among the nations.
O Babylon, you have laid a snare to 24 be your own undoing;
you have been trapped, all unawares;
there you are, you are caught, because you have challenged the
LORD.
The LORD has opened his arsenal 25 and brought out the weapons of
his wrath;
for this is work for the Lord the GOD
of Hosts
in the land of the Chaldeans.
Her harvest-time has come: 26 throw open her granaries,<sup>j</sup> pile her in heaps;
destroy her, let no survivor be left.
Put all her warriors to the sword; 27
let them be led to the slaughter.

<sup>j</sup> Or cattle-pens.

11: My patrimony: the land of Judah. 12: Your mother: Babylon, the capital city. 16: Every man: from a foreign land. 17-20: Concern for Israel and Judah; see vv. 4-7. God has already dealt with Assyria which had conquered Israel; now he will punish Babylonia. He will bring Israel back to its land, forgiven. 19: Carmel and Bashan . . . Ephraim and Gilead: areas west and east of the Jordan, formerly occupied by the Northern Kingdom. 21: The attention reverts to Babylonia. 23: The conquests of Babylon, the hammer of all the earth, have been ended.

- Woe upon them! for their time has come,
 their day of reckoning.
- 28 I hear the fugitives escaping from the land of Babylon to proclaim in Zion the vengeance of the LORD our God.
- 29 Let your arrows be heard whistling against Babylon, all you whose bows are ready strung.
 Pitch your tents all around her so that no one escapes.
 Pay her back for all her misdeeds; as she has done, so do to her, for she has insulted the LORD the Holy One of Israel.
- 30 Therefore her young men shall fall in her streets, and all her warriors shall lie still in death that day.
 This is the very word of the LORD.
- 31 I am against you, insolent city; for your time has come, your day of reckoning.
 This is the very word of the Lord God of Hosts.
- 32 Insolence shall stumble and fall and no one shall lift her up, and I will kindle fire in the heath around her and it shall consume everything round about.
- 33 The LORD of Hosts has said this:
 The peoples of Israel and Judah together are oppressed; their captors hold them firmly and refuse to release them.
- 34 But they have a powerful advocate, whose name is the LORD of Hosts; he himself will plead their cause, bringing distress on Babylon and turmoil on its people.
- 35 A sword hangs over the Chaldaeans,
- over the people of Babylon, her officers and her wise men, says the LORD.
 A sword over the false prophets, and they are made fools, a sword over her warriors, and they despair, a sword over her horses and her chariots and over all the rabble within her, and they shall become like women;
 a sword over her treasures, and they shall be plundered, a sword over her waters, and they shall dry up; for it is a land of idols that glories in its dreaded gods.<sup>k</sup>
- Therefore marmots and jackals shall skulk in it, desert-owls shall haunt it, nevermore shall it be inhabited by men and no one shall dwell in it through all the ages. As when God overthrew Sodom and Gomorrah and their neighbours,<sup>l</sup> says the LORD, no man shall live there, no mortal make a home in her.
- See, a people is coming from the north, a great nation, mighty<sup>m</sup> kings rouse themselves from earth's farthest corners; armed with bow and sabre, they are cruel and pitiless; bestriding horses, they sound like the thunder of the sea; they are like men arrayed for battle against you, Babylon.
 The king of Babylon has heard news of them and his hands hang limp; agony grips him, anguish as of a woman in labour.
 Look, like a lion coming up from Jordan's dense thickets to the perennial pastures, in a moment I will chase every one away

<sup>k</sup> dreaded gods; or dire portents.
<sup>l</sup> Or inhabitants.
<sup>m</sup> Or many.

28: At the end the Heb. adds "vengeance for his temple," as in 51.11. 40,44-46: These verses quote 49.18-21, substituting Babylon here for Edom there. 41-43: These verses quote 6.22-24 almost exactly, here substituting Babylon for Zion. 44: See vv. 40,44-46 n. God brings the Medes (51.11) to destroy Babylon and avenge the destruction of his Temple; see Isa.13.17-19. After Media's defeat about 550 B.C., by Cyrus of Persia, the latter was a real threat to Babylon.

- and round up the choicest of<sup>n</sup> the rams.
 For who is like me? Who is my equal?
 What shepherd can stand his ground before me?
- 45 Therefore listen to the LORD's whole purpose against Babylon and all his plans against the land of the Chaldaeans:
- The young ones of the flock shall be carried off and their pasture shall be horrified at their fate.
- 46 At the sound of the capture of Babylon
 the land quakes and her cry is heard among the nations.
- 51 For thus says the LORD:
- I will raise a destroying wind against Babylon and those who live in Kambul,<sup>o</sup>
- 2 and I will send winnowers to Babylon, who shall winnow her and empty her land;
 for they shall assail her on all sides on the day of disaster.
- 3 How shall the archer then string his bow or put on his coat of mail?
- Spare none of her young men, destroy all her host,
- 4 and let them fall dead in the land of the Chaldaeans, pierced through in her streets.
- 5 Israel and Judah are not left widowed by their God, by the LORD of Hosts;
 but the land of the Chaldaeans is full of guilt, condemned by the Holy One of Israel.
- 6 Flee out of Babylon, every man for himself, or you will be struck down for her sin;
- for this is the LORD's day of vengeance, and he is paying her full recompense.
 Babylon has been a gold cup in the LORD's hand to make all the earth drunk;
 the nations have drunk of her wine,
 and that has made them mad.
 Babylon falls suddenly and is broken. 7 Howl over her,
 fetch balm for her wound;
 perhaps she will be healed.
 We would have healed Babylon, but she would not be<sup>p</sup> healed.
 Leave her and let us be off, each to his own country;
 for her doom reaches to heaven and mounts up to the skies.
 The LORD has made our innocence plain to see;
 come, let us proclaim in Zion what the LORD our God has done.
- Sharpen the arrows, fill the quivers. 11
 The LORD has roused the spirit of the king of the Medes; for the LORD's purpose against Babylon is to destroy it,
 and his vengeance is the avenging of his temple.
 Raise the standard against Babylon's walls, mount a strong guard, post a watch,
 set an ambush;
 for the LORD has both planned and carried out what he threatened to do to the people of Babylon.
- O opulent city, standing beside great waters, your end has come, your destiny is certain. 13
 The LORD of Hosts has sworn by himself, saying, Once I filled you with men, countless as locusts, yet a song of triumph shall be chanted over you. 14

n the choicest of: prob. rdg.; Heb. who is chosen?
o Kambul: prob. rdg.; Heb. the heart of my opponents.
p would not be: or was not.

51.1: Kambul: Chaldea. 5: Not left widowed by their God: the same metaphor is in Isa.54.4-6. 6: Flee out of Babylon: this is addressed to the foreigners and the mercenaries; see 46.16 n. 7: Cup: see 25.15-16. 10: Our innocence: the words are spoken by the Judean exiles; see 50.28. 11: The avenging of his temple: see 50.28 n. 13: Great waters refers to the Euphrates river.

- 15<sup>a</sup> God made the earth by his power, fixed the world in place by his
wisdom,
unfurled the skies by his
understanding.
- 16 At the thunder of his voice the waters in heaven are amazed;<sup>r</sup> he brings up the mist from the ends
of the earth,
he opens rifts<sup>s</sup> for the rain
and brings the wind out of his
storehouses.
- 17 All men are brutish and ignorant, every goldsmith is discredited by his idol;
for the figures he casts are a sham,
there is no breath in them.
- 18 They are worth nothing, mere mockeries,
which perish when their day of reckoning comes.
- 19 God, Jacob's creator, is not like these;
for he is the maker of all.
Israel is the people he claims as
his own;
the LORD of Hosts is his name.
- 20 You are my battle-axe, my weapon
of war;
with you I will break nations in pieces,
and with you I will destroy kingdoms.
- 21 With you I will break horse and rider,
with you I will break chariot and
rider,
- 22 with you I will break man and woman,
with you I will break young and old, with you I will break young man and
maiden,
- 23 with you I will break shepherd and
flock,
with you I will break ploughman and team,
with you I will break viceroys and governors.
- 24 So will I repay Babylon and the people of Chaldaea
for all the wrong which they did in Zion in your sight.
This is the very word of the LORD.
- I am against you, O destroying mountain,<sup>t</sup>
you who destroy the whole earth, and I will stretch out my hand
against you
and send you tumbling from your terraces
and make you a burnt-out mountain.
No stone of yours shall be used as a corner-stone,
no stone for a foundation;
but you shall be desolate, for ever
waste.
This is the very word of the LORD.
- Raise a standard in the land,<sup>u</sup> blow the trumpet among the nations, hallow the nations for war against
her,
summon the kingdoms of Ararat, Minni, and Ashkenaz, appoint a commander-in-chief against her,
bring up the horses like a dark swarm of locusts;<sup>v</sup> hallow the nations for war against
her,
the king of the Medes, his viceroys and governors,
and all the lands of his realm.
The earth quakes and writhes;
for the LORD's designs against Babylon are fulfilled, to make the land of Babylon desolate and unpeopled.
Babylon's warriors have given up the fight,
they skulk in the forts;
their courage has failed, they have become like women.
Her buildings are set on fire, the bars of her gates broken.
Runner speeds to meet runner,

q Verses 15-19: cp. 10. 12-16.

r At the thunder . . . amazed: prob. rdg.; Heb. At the sound of his giving tumult of waters in heaven.

s rifts: prob. rdg.; Heb. lightnings.

t Or O Mount of the Destroyer.

u Or earth. v Or hoppers.

15-19: Note Tfn. q. 20-24: Continues vv. 1-14. The Medes (or Persians) are God's weapon against Babylon. 25-33: God summons a company of nations to avenge his people and destroy Babylon. 25: Mountain: Babylon, so called because of a landmark, a terraced tower (ziggurat) of the Marduk temple there. 27-28: Ararat, Minni, and Ashkenaz: they were far to the north. Defeated by the Medes, they were later added to the empire of Cyrus. The Heb. term for commander-in-chief is a loan word from the Babylonian. 31: Relay runners report to the king,

- messenger to meet messenger, bringing news to the king of Babylon that every quarter of his city is taken, 32 the river-crossings are seized, the guard-towers set on fire and the garrison stricken with panic.
- 33 For the LORD of Hosts the God of Israel has spoken:

Babylon is like a threshing-floor when it is trodden;
soon, very soon, harvest-time will
come.
- 34 'Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon has devoured me
and sucked me dry,
he has set me aside like an empty jar.
Like a dragon he has gulped me
down;
he has filled his maw with my delicate flesh
and spewed me up.
- 35 On Babylon be the violence done to
me,
the vengeance taken upon me!', Zion's people shall say.
'My blood be upon the Chaldaeans!',
Jerusalem shall say.
- 36 Therefore the LORD says:

I will plead your cause, I will avenge
you;
I will dry up her sea<sup>w</sup> and make her waters fail;
37 and Babylon shall become a heap of ruins, a haunt of wolves, a scene of horror and derision, with no inhabitant.
- 38 Together they roar like young lions, they growl like the whelps of a lioness.
- 39 I will cause their drinking bouts to end in fever
and make them so drunk that they will writhe and toss,
- then sink into unending sleep,
never to wake.
This is the very word of the LORD.
I will bring them like lambs to the
slaughter,
rams and he-goats together.
Sheshak<sup>x</sup> is captured, the pride of the whole earth taken; 40 Babylon has become a horror amongst the nations!
The sea has surged over Babylon, she is covered by its roaring
waves.
Her cities have become waste places, 41 a land dried up and desert, a land in whose cities no man lives and through which no mortal travels.
I will punish Bel in Babylon and make him bring up what he has swallowed;
nations shall never again come streaming to him.
The wall of Babylon has fallen; 42 come out of her, O my people, and let every man save himself from the anger of the LORD.
Then beware of losing heart, 43 fear no rumours spread abroad in the
land,
as rumour follows rumour,
each year a new one:
violence on earth and ruler against ruler.
44 Therefore a time is coming when I will punish Babylon's
idols,
and all her land shall be put to
shame,
and all her slain shall lie fallen in her midst.
Heaven and earth and all that is in 45 them
shall sing in triumph over Babylon;
for marauders from the north shall outrun her.
This is the very word of the LORD.
46 Babylon must fall for the sake of<sup>y</sup> Israel's slain,

<sup>w</sup> Possibly the Euphrates.

<sup>x</sup> A name for Babylon.

<sup>y</sup> for the sake of: prob. rdg.; Heb. om.

Nabonidus, who was probably away at his oasis at Tema in Arabia when Babylon fell. 33: Trodden: grain was separated from straw by the treading of animals (Deut.25.4). 34-35: Jerusalem's plea. 36-58: God responds. Babylon is doomed (if not already taken, vv. 41,44). 41: Sheshak: Babylonia. 44: Bel: also called Marduk, the god of Babylon; see Isa.46.1-2. 45: Come out . . . my people: from your captivity; compare Isa.48.20. 48: From the north:

as the slain of all the world fell for the sake of Babylon.
 50 You who have escaped from her sword, off with you, do not linger.
 Remember the LORD from afar and call Jerusalem to mind.
 51 We are put to shame by the reproaches we have heard, and our faces are covered with
 confusion:
 strangers have entered the sacred courts of the LORD's house.
 52 A time is coming therefore, says the
 LORD,
 when I will punish her idols, and all through the land there shall be the groaning of the wounded.
 53 Though Babylon should reach to the skies
 and make her high towers inaccessible,
 I will send marauders to overrun her.
 This is the very word of the LORD.
 54 Hark, cries of agony from Babylon!
 Sounds of destruction from the land of the Chaldeans!
 55 For the LORD is despoiling Babylon and will silence the hum of the city, before the advancing wave that booms and roars
 like mighty waters.
 56 For marauders march on Babylon herself,
 her warriors are captured and their bows are broken;
 for the LORD, a God of retribution, will repay in full.
 57 I will make her princes and her wise men drunk,
 her viceroys and governors and warriors,
 and they shall sink into unending sleep, never to wake.
 This is the very word of the King,
 whose name is the LORD of Hosts.

The LORD of Hosts says: 58
 The walls of broad Babylon shall be razed to the ground,
 her lofty gates shall be set on fire.
 Worthless now is the thing for which the nations toiled;
 the peoples wore themselves out for a mere nothing.

The instructions given by the prophet 59
 Jeremiah to the quartermaster Seraiah son of Neriah and grandson of Mah-seiah, when he went to Babylon with Zedekiah king of Judah in the fourth year of his reign.

Jeremiah, having written down in a<sup>z</sup> 60 book<sup>a</sup> a full description of the disaster which would come upon Babylon, said 61 to Seraiah, 'When you come to Babylon, look at this, read it all and then say, 62
 "Thou, O LORD, hast declared thy purpose to destroy this place and leave it with no one living in it, man or beast; it shall be desolate, for ever waste." When you have finished reading 63 the book, tie a stone to it and throw it into the Euphrates, and then say, "So 64 shall Babylon sink, never to rise again after the disaster which I shall bring upon her.''

Thus far are the collected sayings of Jeremiah.

Historical note about the fall of Jerusalem

ZEDEKIAH WAS TWENTY-ONE YEARS OLD 52<sup>b</sup>
 when he came to the throne, and he reigned in Jerusalem for eleven years; his mother was Hamutal daughter of

<sup>z</sup> Or one.
<sup>a</sup> Prob. rdg.: Heb. adds all these things which are written concerning Babylon.
<sup>b</sup> Verses 1-27: cp. 39. 1-10 and 2 Kgs. 24. 18-25. 21.

vv. 27-28 n. 51: We: the speaker and his fellow exiles. 53: High towers: see v. 25 n. and Gen. 11.4 n.
 56: Israel's God of retribution will repay Babylon for her cruelty to his people; compare Isa. 47.6. 59-64: A curse on Babylon. 59: Seraiah: he appears to have been a brother to Jeremiah's disciple Baruch; see 32.12. With king Zedekiah: such a journey is unknown. The king may have gone in person to pay a vassal's homage to Nebuchadrezzar; see 29.3. 63: Throw it into the Euphrates: set the process in motion. Compare the rinsing of the written curse in Num. 5.23. 64b: Thus far... Jeremiah: this half verse, apparently, once followed v. 58.

52.1-34: An appendix recapitulating Zedekiah's reign, Jerusalem's fall, deportations, Je-hoichin's release. Only vv. 28-30 are new; the remainder of this chapter is taken almost verbatim from, one may see, 2 Kgs. 24.18-25.21, 27-30. Vv. 4-16 occur also in Jer. 39.1-2, 4-10.

2 Jeremiah of Libnah. He did what was wrong in the eyes of the LORD, as 3 Jehoiakim had done. Jerusalem and Judah so angered the LORD that in the end he banished them from his sight; and Zedekiah rebelled against the king of Babylon.

4 In the ninth year of his reign, in the tenth month, on the tenth day of the month, Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon advanced with all his army against Jerusalem, invested it and erected watch-towers against it on every side; 5 the siege lasted till the eleventh year of 6 King Zedekiah. In the fourth month of that year, on the ninth day of the month, when famine was severe in the city and there was no food for the 7 common people, the city was thrown open. When Zedekiah king of Judah saw this, he and<sup>c</sup> all his armed escort left the city and fled by night through the gate called Between the Two Walls, near the king's garden. They escaped towards the Arabah, although the Chaldeans were surrounding the city.
8 But the Chaldaean army pursued the king and overtook him in the lowlands of Jericho; and all his company was dispersed. The king was seized and brought before the king of Babylon at Riblah in the land of Hamath, where he pleaded his case before him. The king of Babylon slew Zedekiah's sons before his eyes; he also put to death all the 9 princes of Judah in Riblah. Then the king of Babylon put Zedekiah's eyes out, bound him with fetters of bronze, brought him to Babylon and committed him to prison till the day of his death.

12 In the fifth month, on the tenth day of the month, in the nineteenth year of Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon, Nebuzaradan, captain of the king's 13 bodyguard,<sup>d</sup> came to Jerusalem and set fire to the house of the LORD and the royal palace; all the houses in the city, including the mansion of Gedaliah,<sup>e</sup> were burnt down. The Chaldaean forces with the captain of the guard pulled down the walls all round Jerusalem. <sup>f</sup>Nebuzaradan captain of the guard deported the rest of the people left in the city, those who had deserted to the king of Babylon and any remaining artisans. The captain of the guard left only the weakest class of people to be vine-dressers and labourers.

The Chaldeans broke up the pillars 17 of bronze in the house of the LORD, the trolleys, and the sea of bronze, and took the metal to Babylon. They took 18 also the pots, shovels, snuffers, tossing-bowls, saucers, and all the vessels of bronze used in the service of the temple. The captain of the guard took 19 away the precious metal, whether gold or silver, of which the cups, firepans, tossing-bowls, pots, lamp-stands, saucers, and flagons were made. The 20 bronze of the two pillars, of the one sea and of the twelve oxen supporting it, which King Solomon had made for the house of the LORD, was beyond weighing. The one pillar was eighteen cubits 21 high and twelve cubits in circumference; it was hollow and the metal was four fingers thick. It had a capital 22 of bronze, five cubits high, and a decoration of network and pomegranates ran all round it, wholly of bronze. The other pillar, with its pomegranates, was exactly like it. Ninety-six pomegranates were exposed 23 to view and there were a hundred in all on the network all round.

The captain of the guard took Seraiah 24 the chief priest and Zephaniah the deputy chief priest and the three on duty at the entrance; he took also from 25 the city a eunuch who was in charge of the fighting men, seven of those with right of access to the king who were still in the city, the adjutant-general<sup>g</sup> whose duty was to muster the people for war, and sixty men of the people who were still there. These Nebuzaradan 26 captain of the guard brought to the king of Babylon at Riblah. There, in the 27 land of Hamath, the king of Babylon had them flogged and put to death. So Judah went into exile from their own land.

<sup>c</sup> When Zedekiah . . . and: prob. rdg.; cp. 39. 4; Heb. om.

<sup>d</sup> captain . . . bodyguard: prob. rdg., cp. 2 Kgs. 25. 8; Heb. captain of the bodyguard stood before the king of Babylon.

<sup>e</sup> Gedaliah: prob. rdg.; Heb. the great man.

<sup>f</sup> Prob. rdg., cp. 39. 9 and 2 Kgs. 25. 11; Heb. prefixes The weakest class of the people (cp. verse 16).

<sup>g</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds commander-in-chief.

28 These were the people deported by Nebuchadrezzar in the seventeenth<sup>h</sup> year: three thousand and twenty-three 29 Judaeans. In his eighteenth year, eight hundred and thirty-two people from 30 Jerusalem; in his twenty-third year, seven hundred and forty-five Judaeans were deported by Nebuzaradan the captain of the bodyguard: all together four thousand six hundred people.
 31<sup>i</sup> In the thirty-seventh year of the exile of Jehoiachin king of Judah, on the twenty-fifth day of the twelfth month, Evil-merodach king of Babylon in the year of his accession showed favour to Jehoiachin king of Judah. He brought him out of prison, treated him kindly 32 and gave him a seat at table above the kings with him in Babylon. So 33 Jehoiachin discarded his prison clothes and lived as a pensioner of the king for the rest of his life. For his maintenance 34 a regular daily allowance was given him by the king of Babylon as long as he lived, to the day of his death.

<sup>h</sup> Prob. rdg.: Heb. seventh.
<sup>i</sup> Verses 31-34: cp. 2 Kgs. 25. 27-30.

---

28-30: The dates are 588, 587, and 582 B.C. The Heb. text reads seventh, 598 B.C., but this is usually corrected to seventeenth, 588. The events of 582 B.C. are unknown and unrecorded; perhaps there was some aftermath to the (undated) assassination of Gedaliah (40.7-41.8). No great numbers were deported, 4600 in all. 31-34: The same as 2 Kgs.25.27-30.

LAMENTATIONS

This collection of five carefully structured poems is unified by a common theme: lamentation over the fall of Jerusalem and its Temple to the Babylonians in 587 B.C. Each poem except the last is an alphabetic acrostic.

With dirge-type rhythm, the mood is set by a number of unnamed voices. One voice comments on the condition of the city (1.1–11b), while another is that of the city herself, whose personification heightens the pathos (1.11c–22). A third voice is that of a man who, though crushed, maintains an attitude of hope (ch. 3). At times the voice speaks in the plural, as in ch. 5. All these separate voices blend as one.

A very old tradition that Jeremiah was the author is based upon some similarities between his writings and Lamentations, but there are also profound differences; the poems have closer affinities to the national “laments,” such as Pss. 44, 74, 80. The exact date after 587 and the place of composition are difficult to determine because the style and themes were used for many hundreds of years, even in Mesopotamian compositions antedating Hebrew literature.

Lamentations probably came to be used in the Temple in liturgical mourning, a practice which continues in Jewish synagogue worship today.

---

Sorrows of captive Zion

- |   |  |  |   |   |
|---|--|--|---|---|
| 1 | How solitary lies the city, once so full of people!Once great among nations, now become a widow;once queen among provinces, now put to forced labour!                            |  | her young children have gone, driven away captive by the enemy.All majesty has vanished from the daughter of Zion.Her princes have become like deer that can find no pasture and run on, their strength all spent, pursued by the hunter. | 6 |
| 2 | Bitterly she weeps in the night, tears run down her cheeks;she has no one to bring her comfort among all that love her;all her friends turned traitor and became her enemies.    |  | Jerusalem has remembered her days of misery and wandering, <sup>a</sup> when her people fell into the power of the adversary and there was no one to help her. The adversary saw and mocked at her fallen state.                                  | 7 |
| 3 | Judah went into the misery of exile and endless servitude.Settled among the nations, she found no resting-place;all her persecutors fell upon her in her sore straits.           |  | Jerusalem had sinned greatly, and so she was treated like a filthy rag;all those who had honoured her held her cheap,for they had seen her nakedness. What could she do but sigh and turn away?   | 8 |
| 4 | The paths to Zion mourn, for none attend her sacred feasts;all her gates are desolate.Her priests groan and sigh,her virgins are cruelly treated.How bitter is her fate! |  | Uncleanness clung to her skirts,and she gave no thought to her fate.Her fall was beyond belief and there was no one to comfort her.   | 9 |
| 5 | Her adversaries have become her masters,her enemies take their ease,for the LORD has cruelly punished herbecause of misdeeds without number;                                 |  | Look, LORD, upon her misery,see how the enemy has triumphed.  |   |

<sup>a</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds all her treasures which have been from days of old.

---

1.1–22: The desolation of Zion (Jerusalem). This general lament introduces many of the themes of the book. 1: How: lit. “alas, how . . .” From greatness to widowhood, from a queen to a slave are typical of the poet’s stylistic contrasts. 3: Even though Judah as a whole sometimes appears, the main focus is on Jerusalem and the Temple. 5: Misdeeds without number: this theme of sin is to be contrasted with that of innocence, as in 3.52; or the sin of a specific group, as in 4.13; or the sins of the fathers, as in 5.7. 6: Daughter of Zion: a term of endearment for Zion, personifying the Temple mount area. 7: The backward look seems to come after the

- 10 The adversary stretched out his hand to seize all her treasures;
then it was that she saw Gentiles entering her sanctuary, Gentiles forbidden by thee to enter the assembly, for it was thine.
- 11 All her people groaned, they begged for bread;
they sold their treasures for food to give them strength again.
- Look, O LORD, and see how cheap I am accounted.
- 12 Is it of no concern to you who pass by?
If only you would look and see:
is there any agony like mine, like these my torments with which the LORD has cruelly punished me
in the day of his anger?
- 13 He sent down fire from heaven,
it ran through my bones;
he spread out a net to catch my
feet,
and turned me back;
he made me an example of
desolation,
racked with sickness all day long.
- 14 My transgressions were bound<sup>b</sup>
upon me,
his own hand knotted them round
me;
his yoke was lifted on to my neck, my strength failed beneath its weight;
the Lord abandoned me to its hold,<sup>c</sup>
and I could not stand.
- 15 The Lord treated with scorn
all the mighty men within my walls;
he marshalled rank on rank
against me
to crush my young warriors.
The Lord trod down, like grapes
in the press,
the virgin daughter of Judah.
- 16 For these things I weep over my plight,<sup>d</sup>
my eyes run with tears;
- for any to comfort me and renew my strength
are far to seek;
my sons are an example of
desolation,
for the enemy is victorious.
- Zion lifted her hands in prayer, but there was no one to comfort
her;
the LORD gave Jacob's enemies the order
to beset him on every side.
Jerusalem became a filthy rag in their midst.
- The LORD was in the right;
it was I who rebelled against his commands.
- Listen, O listen, all you nations, and look on my agony:
my virgins and my young men are gone into captivity.
- I called to my lovers, they broke faith with me;
my priests and my elders in the city went hungry and could find
nothing,
although they sought food for themselves
to renew their strength.
- See, LORD, how sorely I am distressed.
- My bowels writhe in anguish and my stomach turns within me, because I wantonly rebelled.
The sword makes orphans in the streets,
as plague does within doors.
- Hear me when I groan
with no one to comfort me.
All my enemies, when they heard of my calamity,
rejoiced at what thou hadst done;
but hasten the day thou hast promised
when they shall become like me.

<sup>b</sup> bound: prob. rdg.; Heb. word unknown.
<sup>c</sup> its hold: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.
<sup>d</sup> my plight: prob. rdg.; Heb. my eye.

passing of many years. 10: This verse is a stereotyped description of the enemy; see Ps. 74.4-8. 1.11c-22: The voice is now the city herself speaking. 12: You who pass by: perhaps the other nations; see v. 18. 15: Rank on rank against me: the role of the Lord as an enemy warrior, as in Isa.10.5-11. 17: Here the observer in 1.1-11b again comments. 18: The city's confession of sin; see Deut.28.15-68. Into captivity: see 2 Kgs.25.11. 21: Hasten the day: though somewhat incongruous with v. 15, this is a call for God's wrath on the enemy, as in 3.64-66; see also Pss.60.12; 83.9-18.

- 22 Let all their evil deeds come before thee;
torment them in their turn,
as thou hast tormented me
for all my transgressions;
for my sighs are many and my heart is faint.
- Zion's hope of relief after punishment*
- 2 What darkness the Lord in his anger has brought upon the daughter of Zion!
He hurled down from heaven to
earth
the glory of Israel,
and did not remember in the day of his anger
that Zion was his footstool.
- 2 The Lord overwhelmed without pity all the dwellings of Jacob.
In his wrath he tore down the strongholds of the daughter of Judah;
he levelled with the ground and desecrated
the kingdom and its rulers.
- 3 In his anger he hacked down
the horn of Israel's pride, he withdrew his helping hand when the enemy came on;
and he blazed in Jacob like flaming fire
that rages far and wide.
- 4 In enmity he strung his bow;
he took his stand like an adversary and with his strong arm he slew all those who had been his delight;
he poured his fury out like fire on the tent of the daughter of Zion.
- 5 The Lord played an enemy's part and overwhelmed Israel.
He overwhelmed all their towered mansions
and brought down their strongholds in ruins;
- sorrow upon sorrow he brought to the daughter of Judah.
He stripped his tabernacle as a vine 6 is stripped,
and made the place of assembly
a ruin.
In Zion the LORD blotted out all memory
of festal assembly<sup>e</sup> and of sabbath;
king and priest alike he scorned in the grimness of his anger.
The Lord spurned his own altar 7 and laid a curse upon his sanctuary.
He delivered the walls of her mansions
into the power of the enemy;
in the LORD's very house they raised shouts of victory as on a day of festival.
- The LORD was minded to bring 8 down in ruins
the walls of the daughter of Zion;
he took their measure with his line
and did not scruple to demolish
her;
he made rampart and wall lament,
and both together lay dejected.
Her gates are sunk into the earth, 9 he has shattered and broken their bars;
her king and her rulers are among the Gentiles,
and there is no law;
her prophets too have received no vision from the LORD.
- The elders of the daughter of 10
Zion
sit on the ground and sigh;
they have cast dust on their heads and clothed themselves in
sackcloth;
the virgins of Jerusalem
bow their heads to the ground.

<sup>e</sup> festal assembly: or appointed seasons.

2.1-4.22: A compassionate God judges suffering Zion. Dire as the sufferings are, the Lord will have compassion.

2.1-10: The fullness of calamity. 1: What: lit. "alas, how"; so too 1.1 and 4.1. The verse reminds God of past favors, especially his partiality for the Temple, which here, and in 1 Chr.28.2, is likened to a footstool, a figure of affectionate comfort. 3: Horn: perhaps of the altar, as in Amos 3.14; see also Ps.75.10. 4-5: See 1.15 n. 6: Blotted out all memory: see 1.7 n. 7: Shouts of victory: as in Ps.74.4. 9bc: Revelation and prophecy have ceased; compare Mic.3.5-6.

- 11 My eyes are blinded with tears,
my bowels writhe in anguish.
In my bitterness my bile is spilt on
the earth
because of my people's wound, when children and infants faint in the streets of the town and cry to their mothers, 12 'Where can we get corn and wine?'— when they faint like wounded things in the streets of the city, gasping out their lives
in their mothers' bosom.
- 13 How can I cheer you? Whose plight is like yours,
daughter of Jerusalem?
To what can I compare you for your comfort,
virgin daughter of Zion?
For your wound gapes wide as the ocean;
who can heal you?
- 14 The visions that your prophets saw
for you
were false and painted shams;
they did not bring home to you your guilt
and so reverse your fortunes.
The visions that they saw for you were delusions,
false and fraudulent.<sup>f</sup>
- 15 All those who pass by snap their fingers at you;
they hiss and wag their heads at you,
daughter of Jerusalem:
'Is this the city once called Perfect
in beauty,
Joy of the whole earth?'
16 All your enemies
make mouths and jeer at you;
they hiss and grind their teeth, saying, 'Here we are,
this is the day we have waited for;
we have lived to see it.'
- 17 The LORD has done what he planned to do,
he has fulfilled his threat,
- all that he ordained from days of old.
He has demolished without pity and let the enemy rejoice over you, filling your adversaries with pride.
Cry with a full heart<sup>g</sup> to the Lord, 18 O wall of the daughter of Zion; let your tears run down like a torrent
by day and by night.
Give yourself not a moment's rest,
let your tears never cease.
Arise and cry aloud in the night;
19 at the beginning of every watch pour out your heart like water in the Lord's very presence.
Lift up your hands to him for the lives of your children.<sup>h</sup> Look, LORD, and see:
20 who is it that thou hast thus tormented?
Must women eat the fruit of their wombs,
the children they have brought safely to birth?
Shall priest and prophet be slain
in the sanctuary of the Lord?
21 There in the streets young men and old
lie on the ground.
My virgins and my young men have fallen
by sword and by famine;
thou hast slain them in the day of thy anger,
slaughtered them without pity.
Thou didst summon my enemies 22 against me from every side, like men assembling for a festival;
not a man escaped, not one survived
in the day of the LORD's anger.
All whom I brought safely to birth and reared
were destroyed by my enemies.

<sup>f</sup> fraudulent: or causing banishment.<sup>g</sup> Cry . . . heart: prob. rdg.: Heb. Their heart cried.<sup>h</sup> Prob. rdg.: Heb. adds who faint with hunger at every street-corner.

2.11–16: An observer witnesses the distress. 12: The hunger: see 4.4–10. 13: Virgin: the figure appears also in Amos 5.2. 14: Your prophets: here the false prophets, who prophesied peace; see Jer.14.13–16. The true prophets spoke of destruction; see Jer.28.8. 15: All those who pass by: recalling the words of 1.12.

2.17–19: Let the city weep. 17: All that he ordained: compare Jer.23.20.

2.20–22: The city's plea to God. 21: The day of the LORD (v. 22), anticipated by many prophets, is viewed here as having occurred; see Joel 1.14–15 n.

3	I am the man who has known affliction, I have felt the rod of his wrath.	17	peace has gone out of my life, and I have forgotten what prosperity means.
2	It was I whom he led away and left to walk in darkness, where no light is.	18	Then I cry out that my strength has gone and so has my hope in the LORD.
3	Against me alone he has turned his hand, and so it is all day long.	19	The memory of my distress and my wanderings is <sup>i</sup> wormwood and gall.
4	He has wasted away my flesh and my skin and broken all my bones;	20	Remember, O remember, and stoop down to me. <sup>j k</sup>
5	he has built up walls around me, behind and before,	21	All this I take to heart and therefore I will wait patiently:
6	and has cast me into a place of darkness like a man long dead.	22	the LORD's true love is surely not spent, <sup>l</sup> nor has his compassion failed;
7	He has walled me in so that I cannot escape, and weighed me down with fetters;	23	they are new every morning, so great is his constancy.
8	even when I cry out and call for help, he rejects my prayer.	24	The LORD, I say, is all that I have; therefore I will wait for him patiently.
9	He has barred my road with blocks of stone and tangled up my way.	25	The LORD is good to those who look for him, to all who seek him;
10	He lies in wait for me like a bear or a lion lurking in a covert.	26	it is good to wait in patience and sigh for deliverance by the LORD.
11	He has made my way refractory and lamed me and left me desolate.	27	It is good, too, for a man to carry the yoke in his youth. Let him sit alone and sigh
12	He has strung his bow and made me the target for his arrows;	28	if it is heavy upon him; let him lay his face in the dust,
13	he has pierced my kidneys with shafts drawn from his quiver.	29	and there may yet be hope. Let him turn his cheek to the smiter
14	I have become a laughing-stock to all nations, the target of their mocking songs all day.	30	and endure full measure of abuse; for the Lord will not cast off his servants <sup>m</sup> for ever.
15	He has given me my fill of bitter herbs and made me drunk with wormwood.	31	He may punish cruelly, yet he will have compassion in the fullness of his love;
16	He has broken my teeth on gravel; fed on ashes, I am racked with pain;	32	he does not willingly afflict or punish any mortal man.
			<small>i The memory . . . is: or Remember my distress and my wanderings, the . . . j stoop down to me: prob. original rdg., altered in Heb. to I sink down. k Remember . . . me: or I remember, I remember them and sink down. l spent: prob. rdg.; Heb. unintelligible. m his servants: prob. rdg.; Heb. om.</small>

3.1-66: An individual in distress bemoans his plight. See the similar themes in such psalms of lamentation as Pss.22; 69. The individual has traditionally been identified as Jeremiah; see Introduction.

3.1-18: What his life has become. 1: His wrath: the Lord's, as in 2.4-5. 2-16: Many metaphors describe the techniques of the punishing God, literally inconsistent with one another, but thematically in accord. 14: Laughing-stock: see Jer.20.7.

3.19-33: A sensitive outpouring of trust in the Lord. The positive attitude here is unique in the book. 21: Wait patiently: the idea, a key one, recurs often in this section, but not elsewhere in the book; compare Pss.69.3; 42.5. 29: Hope: equivalent to waiting. 30: Compare Isa.50.6; Mt.5.39.

34	To trample underfoot any prisoner in the land,	drove me cruelly like a bird; they thrust me alive into the silent	53
35	to deprive a man of his rights in defiance of the Most High,	pit, and they closed it over me with
36	to pervert justice in the courts— such things the Lord has never approved.	a stone; the waters rose high above my head, and I said, 'My end has come.'	54
37	Who can command and it is done, if the Lord has forbidden it?	But I called on thy name, O LORD, from the depths of the pit;	55
38	Do not both bad and good proceed from the mouth of the Most High?	thou heardest my voice; do not turn a deaf ear	56
39	Why should any man living complain, any mortal who has sinned?	When I cry, 'Come to my relief.' Thou wast near when I called to	57
40	Let us examine our ways and put them to the test and turn back to the LORD;	thee; thou didst say, 'Have no fear.'
41	let us lift up our hearts, not our hands, to God in heaven.	Lord, thou didst plead my cause and ransom my life;	58
42	We ourselves have sinned and rebelled, and thou hast not forgiven.	thou sawest, LORD, the injustice done to me	59
43	In anger thou hast turned <sup>n</sup> and pursued us and slain without pity;	and gavest judgement in my favour;
44	thou hast hidden thyself behind the clouds beyond reach of our prayers;	thou sawest their vengeance, all their plots against me.	60
45	thou hast treated us as offscouring and refuse among the nations.	Thou didst hear their bitter taunts, O LORD,	61
46	All our enemies make mouths and jeer at us.	their many plots against me, the whispering, the murmurs of my	62
47	Before us lie hunter's scare and pit, devastation and ruin.	enemies all the day long.
48	My eyes run with streams of water because of my people's wound.	See how, whether they sit or stand, they taunt me bitterly.	63
49	My eyes stream with unceasing tears and refuse all comfort,	Pay them back for their deeds, O LORD,	64
50	while the LORD in heaven looks down and watches my affliction, <sup>o</sup>	pay them back what they deserve. Show them how hard thy heart	65
51	while the LORD torments <sup>p</sup> me with the fate of all the daughters of my city.	can be, how little concern thou hast for them.
52	Those who for no reason were my enemies	Pursue them in anger and exterminate them	66 from beneath thy heavens, O LORD.
		How dulled is the gold, how tarnished the fine gold!	4
		The stones of the sanctuary <sup>q</sup> lie strewn at every street-corner.

n Prob. rdg.; Heb. hidden.

o my affliction: prob. rdg.; Heb. my eye.

p the LORD torments: prob. rdg.; Heb. tormenting.

q The stones of the sanctuary: or Bright gems.

3.34-47: The city or nation speaks as a prophet. 41: A de-emphasis on worship and a stress on morality, as in Isa.1.15-17.

3.48-51: The afflicted individual again. 51: The only direct mention of the city in this chapter.

3.52-66: The innocent one is hurt. 52: No reason: this motif is common in the psalms of lamentation, as in Ps.69.4. 64: See 1.21 n.

4.1-16: A return to the distressing conditions in Jerusalem, but here on a more personal level.

- 2 See Zion's precious sons, once worth their weight in finest
gold,
now counted as pitchers of earthenware
made by any potter's hand.
- 3 Even whales<sup>r</sup> uncover the teat and suckle their young;
but the daughters of my people are cruel
as ostriches in the desert.
- 4 The sucking infant's tongue cleaves to its palate from thirst;
young children beg for bread but no one offers them a crumb.
- 5 Those who once fed delicately are desolate in the streets, and those nurtured in purple
now grovel on dunghills.
- 6 The punishment<sup>s</sup> of my people is worse
than the penalty<sup>t</sup> of Sodom, which was overthrown in a moment and no one wrung his hands.
- 7 Her crowned princes<sup>u</sup> were once purer than snow,
whiter than milk;
they were ruddier than branching coral,<sup>v</sup>
and their limbs were lapis lazuli.
- 8 But their faces turned blacker than soot,
and no one knew them in the
streets;
the skin was drawn tight over their bones,
dry as touchwood.
- 9 Those who died by the sword were more fortunate
than those who died of hunger; these wasted away, deprived of the produce of the field.
- 10 Tender-hearted women with their own hands
boiled their own children;
their children became their food in the day of my people's wounding.
- 11 The LORD glutted his rage and poured forth his anger;
he kindled a fire in Zion,
and it consumed her foundations.
This no one believed, neither the kings of the earth
nor anyone that dwelt in the world:
that enemy or invader would enter the gates of Jerusalem.
It was for the sins of her prophets and for the iniquities of her priests, who shed within her walls
the blood of the righteous.
They wandered blindly in the streets, so stained with blood
that men would not touch
even their garments.
'Away, away; unclean!' men cried to them.
'Away, do not come near.'
They hastened away, they wandered among the nations,<sup>w</sup> unable to find any resting-place.
The LORD himself scattered them,
he thought of them no more;
he showed no favours to priests,
no pity for elders.
- Still we strain our eyes, looking in vain for help.
We have watched and watched for a nation powerless to save us.
When we go out, we take to by-ways
to avoid the public streets;
our days are all but finished,<sup>x</sup> our end has come.
Our pursuers have shown themselves swifter
than vultures in the sky;
they are hot on our trail over the
hills,
they lurk to catch us in the
wilderness.
The LORD's anointed, the breath of life to us,

<sup>r</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. jackals.      <sup>s</sup> Or iniquity.
<sup>t</sup> Or sin.      <sup>u</sup> crowned princes; or Nazirites.
<sup>v</sup> than . . . coral; prob. rdg.; Heb. branch than coral.
<sup>w</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. add; they said.
<sup>x</sup> our . . . finished; prob. rdg.; Heb. our end has drawn near, our days are complete.

3-10: A vivid portrayal of the results of hunger. 3: Cruel: see v. 10. As ostriches: see Job 39.13-18. 6: Sodom: the oft-used example of a wicked city; see Gen.19.1-26. 10: Their own children: see 2.20. 13: See 1.5 n. Here the blame is laid at the feet of the leaders: prophets (false, see 2.14 n.), priests, and elders (v. 16).

4.17-20: A poet again cries out. The passage, deeply personal and sorrowful, is in the plural. 17: A nation powerless: perhaps Egypt; see Jer.37.5-7. 19-20: Perhaps this is related to the incident told of the king, that is, the LORD's anointed, in 2 Kgs.25.4-7.

was caught in their machinations;
 although we had thought to live among the nations, safe under his protection.

- 21 Rejoice and be glad, daughter of Edom,
 you who live in the land of Uz.
 Yet the cup shall pass to you in your turn,
 and when you are drunk you will expose yourself to shame.
- 22 The punishment for your sin, daughter of Zion, is now complete, and never again shall you be carried
 into exile.
 But you, daughter of Edom, your sin shall be punished,
 and your guilt revealed.

A prayer for remembrance and restoration

- Remember, O LORD, what has 5 befallen us;
 look, and see how we are scorned.
- 2 Our patrimony is turned over to strangers
 and our homes to foreigners.
- 3 We are like orphans, without a
 father;
 our mothers are like widows.
- 4 We must buy our own water to drink,
 our own wood can only be had at a price.
- 5 The yoke is on our necks, we are overdriven;
 we are weary and are given no rest.
- 6 We came to terms, now with the Egyptians,
 now with the Assyrians, to provide us with food.
- 7 Our fathers sinned and are no more,

- and we bear the burden of their guilt.
 Slaves have become our rulers, 8 and there is no one to rescue us
 from them.
 We must bring in our food from 9
 the wilderness,
 risking our lives in the scorching heat.<sup>y</sup>
 Our skins are blackened as in a 10 furnace
 by the ravages of starvation.
 Women were raped in Zion, 11 virgins raped in the cities of Judah.
 Princes were hung up by their hands, 12 and elders received no honour.
 Young men toil to grind corn, 13 and boys stumble under loads of wood.
 Elders have left off their sessions 14
 in the gate,
 and young men no longer pluck the strings.
 Joy has fled from our hearts, 15 and our dances are turned to mourning.
 The garlands have fallen from 16
 our heads;
 woe betide us, sinners that we are.
 For this we are sick at heart, 17
 for all this our eyes grow dim:
 because Mount Zion is desolate 18 and over it the jackals run wild.
- O LORD, thou art enthroned for ever, 19 thy throne endures from one generation to another.
 Why wilt thou quite forget us 20
 and forsake us these many days?
 O LORD, turn us back to thyself, 21
 and we will come back;
 renew our days as in times long past.
 For if thou hast utterly rejected us, 22 then great indeed has been thy anger against us.

<sup>y</sup> in the scorching heat: or by the sword.

4.21–22: Criticism of Edom for her action at the time of the fall; see Obad.10–14; Ps.137.7. 22: Punishment . . . complete: this theme is also found in Isa.40.2.

5.1–18: A prayer for remembrance and restoration. Many verses are paraphrases of passages in chs. 1; 2; 4. 6: Assyrians: this is anachronistic; the Babylonians, conquerors of the Assyrians, had control at the time of the fall of the city. The mention shows a powerful remembrance of the Assyrian conquest of the Northern Kingdom (721 B.C.) and the siege of Jerusalem; see 2 Kgs. chs. 17–19. 7: Our fathers sinned: another explanation of the fall. On the sins of the fathers being visited upon the children, see Jer.31.29; see also 1.5 n. 14–18: For a similar passage, see Isa.24.7–13.

5.19–22: A final prayer for rescue. 21: Turn us back: unless the LORD himself causes the city to return to him, she will have no success in doing so. 22: The conclusion is indefinite, fittingly cautious after the mournful words of the rest of the book.

THE BOOK OF THE PROPHET EZEKIEL

Ezekiel, priest and prophet, began his ministry in the last years of the Kingdom of Judah and ended it during the Babylonian captivity following upon the destruction of Jerusalem in 587 B.C. His ministry bridges the greatest catastrophe and transformation the religion of Israel ever experienced: the transition from a religion identified with a land and a temple, with its sacrifices, to a religion identified with a community of people, thus leading ultimately to the full development of the synagogue where the study of the Law is paramount, the essential Judaism of today.

Beginning with the inaugural vision, dated 593 B.C. (1.2), and ending with the last securely dated oracle, 571 B.C. (29.17), Ezekiel contains the most complete chronology of any prophetic book. The dates do not follow in order, however, and only the oracle immediately following a given date can be attached to it with certainty. The dating of the oracles according to contemporary chronology in the annotations is an approximation, correlating the lunar calendar followed by the ancients with the modern solar calendar.

Ezekiel, the most unusual among a unique class of men, the prophets of Israel, dramatized his prophecies by bizarre actions that some interpreters see as simply literary devices to emphasize his message, but which others see as reflecting pathological states. Further, though he seems to be with the captives in Babylon (1.1-3; 3.11, etc.) he sometimes addresses his message to the Palestinian Jews (11.1-3), so that interpreters are divided between postulating a double ministry (first to the people in Palestine before the captivity and then to the captives in Babylonia after the destruction of Jerusalem) and holding a single ministry, but attributing the gift of clairvoyance to Ezekiel by which he was in contact with people and events in Palestine.

The key to Ezekiel's message is a very exalted idea of God; a God beyond man's comprehension (1.4-28); a God whose hand guides the destinies of nations (chs. 25-32); a God whose "holy name" is upon man to forgive transgression and to give his own "spirit" to him (36.22-26). Earlier prophets saw in man's life a cause and effect chain with this sequence: sin—punishment—repentance (condition)—redemption (at a price). Ezekiel sees the sequence as: sin—punishment—redemption (gratuitous)—repentance (free). Thus, with redemption once assured, man is free to choose repentance without the coercion of punishment; Ezekiel's message, therefore, stresses also freedom of choice and human responsibility (ch. 18).

The MT account of Ezekiel is longer and more repetitious than that of the Sept., which is more concise and more strongly supported by the other versions, suggesting that the MT has undergone disturbance and dislocation in many passages. Moreover, chs. 40-48 are regarded by many scholars as an addition from a later hand and a later time (see 40.1-48.35 n.).

Ezekiel's call to be a prophet

1 ON THE FIFTH DAY OF THE FOURTH month in the thirtieth year, while I was among the exiles by the river Kebar,<sup>a</sup> the heavens were opened and I saw a vision of God. On the fifth day of the month in the fifth year of the exile of King Jehoiachin, the word of

<sup>a</sup> Or the Kebar canal.

1.1-3.21: Ezekiel empowered. He receives his commission to prophesy doom to the Israelites.
1.1-3: Superscription. 1-2: There is difficulty understanding the thirtieth year, especially in view of the fifth year (v. 2), since both dates seem to refer to the same event, i.e. the call of the prophet. The point of reference for both dates seems to be the capture of Jehoiachin by Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, in 597 B.C. (2 Kgs.24.10-17). The first date then becomes 568 B.C. and the second 593 B.C. Scholars think that the thirtieth year refers either to a second call of the prophet, the one in Babylonia (see Introduction); or possibly, though less likely, to the date of the compilation of Ezekiel's many messages into a single book. Some conjecture that the call of another prophet whose work was in some way associated with that of Ezekiel was added. The river Kebar, an irrigation canal mentioned in Babylonian records, flowed from the Euphrates through the old city of Nippur, where excavations revealed ancient business contracts with Jewish names. See Ps.137.1-6. There were two groups of exiles. The first, referred to here, was taken to Babylonia with King Jehoiachin. The second was deported by Nebuchadnezzar after his destruction of Jerusalem (12.11-12; 2 Kgs.25.3-12); this date is set by some at 586, by others at 587 B.C. Jehoiachin was considered the rightful king, if a restoration were to take place; hence his captivity is the point of departure for all the dates in the book. 3: Ezekiel means "God strengthens." Hand of the LORD is the symbol for Ezekiel's consciousness that he is divinely moved to action. Compare 8.1-9,11. Chaldea: southern part of Babylonia.

the LORD came to Ezekiel son of Buzi the priest, in Chaldea, by the river Kebar, and there the hand of the LORD came upon him.

4 I saw a storm wind coming from the north, a vast cloud with flashes of fire and brilliant light about it; and within was a radiance like brass, glowing in the heart of the flames. In the fire was the semblance of four living creatures in human form. Each had four faces and each four wings; their legs were straight, and their hooves were like the hooves of a calf, glittering like a disc of bronze. Under the wings on each of the four sides were human hands; all four creatures had faces and wings, and their wings touched one another. They did not turn as they moved; each creature went straight forward. Their faces were like this: all four had the face of a man and the face of a lion on the right, on the left the face of an ox and the face of an eagle. Their wings were spread; each living creature had one pair touching its neighbours',<sup>b</sup> while one pair covered its body. They moved straight forward in whatever direction the spirit<sup>c</sup> would go; they never swerved in their course. 13 The appearance of the creatures was as if fire from burning coals or torches were darting to and fro among them; the fire was radiant, and out of the fire came lightning.<sup>d</sup>

15 As I looked at the living creatures, I saw wheels on the ground, one beside each of the four.<sup>e</sup> The wheels sparkled like topaz, and they were all alike: in form and working they were like a wheel inside a wheel, and when they moved in any of the four directions they never swerved in their course. All four had hubs and each hub had a projection which had the power of sight,<sup>f</sup> and the rims of the wheels were full of eyes all round. When the living creatures 19 moved, the wheels moved beside them; when the creatures rose from the ground, the wheels rose; they moved in whatever direction the spirit<sup>c</sup> would go; and the wheels rose together with them, for the spirit of the living creatures was in the wheels. When the one 21 moved, the other moved; when the one halted, the other halted; when the creatures rose from the ground, the wheels rose together with them, for the spirit of the creatures was in the wheels.

Above the heads of the living creatures 22 was, as it were, a vault glittering like a sheet of ice, awe-inspiring, stretched over their heads above them. Under the 23 vault their wings were spread straight out, touching one another, while one pair covered the body of each. I heard, 24 too, the noise of their wings; when they moved it was like the noise of a great torrent or of a cloud-burst,<sup>g</sup> like the noise of a crowd or of an armed camp; when they halted their wings dropped. A sound was heard above the vault over 25 their heads, as they halted with drooping wings. Above the vault over their 26 heads there appeared, as it were, a sapphire<sup>h</sup> in the shape of a throne, and high above all, upon the throne, a form in human likeness. I saw what might 27 have been brass glowing like fire in a furnace from the waist upwards; and from the waist downwards I saw what looked like fire with encircling radiance. Like a rainbow in the clouds on a rainy 28 day was the sight of that encircling

<sup>b</sup> its neighbours': prob. rdg.; Heb. unintelligible.

<sup>c</sup> Or wind.

<sup>d</sup> Prob. rdg., cp. Sept.; Heb. adds (14) and the living creatures went out (prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure) and in like rays of light.

<sup>e</sup> one . . . four: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.

<sup>f</sup> the power of sight: prob. rdg.; Heb. fear.

<sup>g</sup> Or of the Almighty.

<sup>h</sup> Or lapis lazuli.

1.4-28a: The throne-chariot vision. God's incomprehensible majesty, power, and mobility are conveyed in a visual metaphor that overwhelms the imagination and, moreover, is a fitting summary of God's activity in the book. 4: North: mythological symbol for the dwelling of the gods; see Isa.14.13. Wind, cloud, fire are all signs of God's presence as in Exod.19.16; Ps.18.10-14. 12: The Spirit is God's purposeful power directing the activity of the universe and of man; see 1.20. 15-21: Wheels are symbols of cosmic mobility, and the eyes all around signify an all-seeing intelligence guiding the movement of the most insensitive elements in the universe which respond to the same active spirit that moves the prophet, e.g. 3.14. 22: The ancients considered the sky a vault (Gen.1.6), i.e. a solid roof over the world supporting a great torrent of flood waters above which God was enthroned Lord over the universe and all in it. Compare Ps.29.10-14. 28: Like . . . the glory of the LORD indicates that the description is a subjective vision rather than an objective presence of God such as that experienced at Sinai by all the people. See Exod.19.17-20.

radiance; it was like the appearance of the glory of the LORD.

When I saw this I threw myself on my face, and heard a voice speaking to me: 2 Man, he said, stand up, and let me talk with you. As he spoke, a spirit came into me and stood me on my feet, 3 and I listened to him speaking. He said to me, Man, I am sending you to the Israelites, a nation of rebels who have rebelled against me. Past generations of them have been in revolt against me to this very day, and this generation to which I am sending you is stubborn and obstinate. When you say to them, 'These are the words of the Lord God', 5 they will know that they have a prophet among them, whether they listen or whether they refuse to listen, because 6 they are rebels. But you, man, must not be afraid of them or of what they say, though they are rebels against you and renegades, and you find yourself sitting on scorpions. There is nothing to fear in what they say, and nothing in their looks to terrify you, rebels 7 though they are. You must speak my words to them, whether they listen or whether they refuse to listen, rebels that they are. But you, man, must listen to what I say and not be rebellious like them. Open your mouth and eat what I give you. 9 Then I saw a hand stretched out to me, holding a scroll. He unrolled it before me, and it was written all over on both sides with dirges and laments 3 and words of woe. Then he said to me, 'Man, eat what is in front of you, eat this scroll; then go and speak to the 2 Israelites.' So I opened my mouth and 3 he gave me the scroll to eat. Then he said, 'Man, swallow this scroll I give you, and fill yourself full.' So I ate it, and it tasted as sweet as honey.

Man, he said to me, go and tell the 4 Israelites what I have to say to them. You are sent not to people whose 5 speech is thick and difficult, but to Israelites. No; I am not sending you to 6 great nations whose speech is so thick and so difficult that you cannot make out what they say; if however I had sent you to them they would have listened to you. But the Israelites will 7 refuse to listen to you, for they refuse to listen to me, so brazen are they all and stubborn. But I will make you a 8 match for them. I will make you as brazen as they are and as stubborn as they are. I will make your brow like 9 adamant, harder than flint. Never fear them, never be terrified by them, rebels though they are. And he said to me, 10 Listen carefully, man, to all that I have to say to you, and take it to heart. Go 11 to your fellow-countrymen in exile and speak to them. Whether they listen or refuse to listen, say, 'These are the words of the Lord God.'

Then a spirit<sup>i</sup> lifted me up, and I 12 heard behind me a fierce rushing sound as the glory of the LORD rose<sup>j</sup> from his place. I heard the sound of the living 13 creatures' wings brushing against one another, the sound of the wheels beside them, and a fierce rushing sound. A 14 spirit<sup>i</sup> lifted me and carried me along, and I went full of exaltation, the hand of the LORD strong upon me. So I came 15 to the exiles at Tel-abib who were settled by the river Kebar. For seven days I stayed with them, dumbfounded.

<sup>i</sup> Or wind.
<sup>j</sup> rose: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.

1.28b-3.21: Prophetic experience of the call and five commissions. There are four calls: 1.28b-3.9; 3.10-11; 3.16-21; 3.22-27, which contain five commissions. 2.1: Man, lit. "son of man," used over ninety times, contrasts human frailty with God's might and glory. Compare Job 14.1-5. 2: Spirit . . . stood me, i.e. bridged the distance between God and the prophet, and gave such power to his words and actions that the people will know, i.e. be unable to ignore, the reality of the divine message even though they refuse to listen. 2.8-3.3: The scroll contains only dirges and words of woe because a prophet preaching peace is suspect; see 13.10-16. Eating the scroll signifies assimilating God's message; the sweetness is the sense of fulfillment it brings; compare Pss.19.9-10; 119.100-103. 4-9: Ezekiel's boldness is attributed to God because it was acquired in carrying out his commission. 10-21: Some interpreters conjecture that this repetition is a second call of Ezekiel; others, that it is the call of another man whose prophecy is added to that of Ezekiel's (see 1.1-2 n.); still others reason that it is editorial duplication. See Introduction. 14: Full of exaltation: lit. "bitter in the fury of my spirit," the ecstasy of a religious experience. 15: Tel-abib: a Jewish settlement in Babylonia. In 1.1, Ezekiel is already among the exiles when the vision takes place; here he is arriving after the vision.

16 At the end of seven days, the word of 17 the LORD came to me: Man, I have made you a watchman for the Israelites; you will take messages from me and 18 carry my warnings to them. It may be that I pronounce sentence of death on a wicked man:<sup>k</sup> if you do not warn him to give up his wicked ways and so save his life, the guilt is his; because of his wickedness he shall die, but I will hold 19 you answerable for his death. But if you have warned him and he still continues in his wicked and evil ways, he shall die because of his wickedness, but you will 20 have saved yourself. Or it may be that a righteous man turns away and does wrong, and I let that be the cause of his downfall; he will die because you have not warned him. He will die for his sin; the righteous deeds he has done will not be taken into account, and I will 21 hold you answerable for his death. But if you have warned the righteous man not to sin and he has not sinned, then he will have saved his life because he has been warned, and you will have saved yourself.

The impending ruin of Jerusalem

22 THE HAND OF THE LORD CAME UPON ME
 there, and he said to me, Rise up; go out into the plain, and there I will speak 23 to you. So I rose and went out into the plain; the glory of the LORD was there, like the glory which I had seen by the river Kebar, and I threw myself down 24 on my face. Then a spirit came into me and stood me on my feet, and spoke to me: Go, he said, and shut yourself up 25 in your house. You shall be tied and bound with ropes, man, so that you cannot go out among the people. I will 26 fasten your tongue to the roof of your mouth and you will be unable to speak;

 you will not be the one to rebuke them, rebels though they are. But when I have 27 something to say to you, I will give you back the power of speech. Then you will say to them, 'These are the words of the Lord God.' If anyone will listen, he may listen, and, if he refuses to listen, he may refuse; for they are rebels.

Man, take a tile and set it before you. 4
 Draw a city on it, the city of Jerusalem:
 lay siege to it, erect watch-towers 2 against it, raise a siege-ramp, put mantelets in position, and bring battering-rams against it all round. Then 3 take an iron griddle, and put it as a wall of iron between you and the city.
 Keep your face turned towards the city;
 it will be the besieged and you the besieger. This will be a sign to the Israelites.

Now lie on your left side, and I will 4 lay Israel's iniquity on you; you shall bear their iniquity for as many days as you lie on that side. Allowing one day 5 for every year of their iniquity, I ordain that you bear it for one hundred and ninety days; thus you shall bear Israel's iniquity. When you have completed all 6 this, lie down a second time on your right side, and bear Judah's iniquity for forty days; I count one day for 7 every year. Then turn your face towards the siege of Jerusalem and bare your arm, and prophesy against it. See 8 how I tie you with ropes so that you cannot turn over from one side to the other until you complete the days of your distress.

<sup>k</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds if you do not warn him.

For possible explanation see vv. 10–12. 16: How the word of the LORD came to Ezekiel is not clear; it need only imply his conviction that he spoke God's message to the people. 17–21: The prophet as watchman has a long tradition in Israel; compare Isa.21.6–12. Here it applies Ezekiel's principle of personal responsibility (see 18.1–32) to the prophetic office.

3.22–27: Ezekiel confined. To be bound with ropes (v. 25) may mean actual physical restraints; more probably it means discouragement, deterring the prophet from speaking and acting except when moved by special inspiration from God. Compare Ps.22.15.

4.1–5.17: Actions symbolic of the judgment of Jerusalem. The prophecies given here as actions seem impossible to perform and so are probably dramatic allegories. Ezekiel, having received a command "to speak . . . in allegory and parable" (17.2), acquired a reputation of dealing "only in parables"; see 20.49. 1: Tile: clay tablet. 3: Israelites, lit. "house of Israel," embraces both the Northern Kingdom of Israel, as in v. 4, taken into captivity in 721 B.C. by the Assyrians, and the Southern Kingdom of Judah, as in v. 6; Ezekiel envisions the ultimate restoration and reunion of the two. 4: Bear their iniquity: be a symbol of their punishment. 5–6: The number symbolism is uncertain, possibly referring to the duration of the exiles of the two kingdoms.

9 Then take wheat and barley, beans and lentils, millet and spelt. Mix them all in one bowl and make your bread out of them. You are to eat it during the one hundred and ninety days you spend lying on your side. And you must weigh out your food; you may eat twenty shekels' weight a day, taking it from time to time. Measure out your drinking water too; you may drink a sixth of a hin a day, taking it from time to time. You are to eat your bread baked like barley cakes, using human dung as fuel, and you must bake it where people can see you. Then the LORD said, 'This is the kind of bread, unclean bread, that the Israelites will eat in the foreign lands into which I shall drive them.' But I said, 'O Lord GOD, I have never been made unclean, never in my life have I eaten what has died naturally or been killed by wild beasts; no tainted meat has ever passed my lips.' So he allowed me to use cow-dung instead of human dung to bake my bread.

16 Then he said to me, Man, I am cutting short their daily bread in Jerusalem; people will weigh out anxiously the bread they eat, and measure with dismay the water they drink. So their food and their water will run short until they are dismayed at the sight of one another; they will waste away because of their iniquity.

5 Man, take a sharp sword, take it like a barber's razor and run it over your head and your chin. Then take scales and divide the hair into three. When the siege comes to an end, burn one third of the hair in a fire in the centre of the city; cut up one third with the sword all round the city; scatter one third to the wind, and I will follow it with drawn sword. Take a few of these hairs and tie them up in a fold of your robe. Then take others of them, throw them into the fire and burn them, and out of them fire will come upon all Israel.

These are the words of the Lord GOD: This city of Jerusalem I have set among the nations, with other countries around her, and she has rebelled against my laws and my statutes more wickedly than those nations and countries; for her people have rejected my laws and refused to conform to my statutes.

Therefore the Lord GOD says: Since you have been more ungrateful than the nations around you and have not conformed to my statutes and have not kept my laws or even the laws of the nations around you, therefore, says the Lord GOD, I, in my turn, will be against you; I will execute judgements in your midst for the nations to see, such judgements as I have never executed before nor ever will again, so abominable have your offences been. Therefore, O Jerusalem, fathers will eat their children and children their fathers in your midst; I will execute judgements on you, and any who are left in you I will scatter to the four winds. As I live, says the Lord GOD, because you have defiled my holy place with all your vile and abominable rites, I in my turn will consume you without pity; I in my turn will not spare you. One third of your people shall die by pestilence and perish by famine in your midst; one third shall fall by the sword in the country round about; and one third I will scatter to the four winds and follow with drawn sword. Then my anger will be spent, I will abate my fury against them and be calm; when my fury is spent they will know that it is I, the LORD, who spoke in jealous passion. I have made you a scandal<sup>1</sup> and a reproach to the nations around you, and all who pass by will see it. You will be an object of reproach and abuse, a terrible lesson to the nations around you, when I pass sentence on you and do judgement in anger and fury. I, the LORD, have spoken. When I shoot the deadly arrows of famine against you,<sup>m</sup> arrows of destruction, I will shoot to destroy you. I will bring famine upon you and cut short your daily bread; I will unleash famine and beasts of prey upon you, and they will leave you childless. Pestilence and slaughter will sweep through you, and I will bring the sword upon you. I, the LORD, have spoken.

<sup>1</sup> Or desolation.

9: Mixing different grains all in one bowl signifies the last of the food supply, the threat of famine. 12: Contact with human dung made a person unclean (Deut.23.13); here it indicates the ritual uncleanness of Babylon where pure cultic life was impossible. 5.1-17: Shearing the prophet's hair and beard—symbols of dignity (2 Sam.10.4-5) and of life (Num.6.1-9)—is a sign of the degradation and massacre following the horrible siege. God treats Israel with the jealous passion of a rejected lover; this theme is central in the book. For examples, read 6.13; 7.3, 8; 8.18; 14.21; 20.8; 28.23.

6 These were the words of the LORD to me: Man, look towards the mountains of Israel, and prophesy to them: Mountains of Israel, hear the word of the Lord GOD. This is his word to mountains and hills, watercourses and valleys: I am bringing a sword against you, and I will destroy your hill-shrines. Your altars will be made desolate, your incense-altars shattered, and I will fling down your slain before your idols. I will strew the corpses of the Israelites before their idols, and I will scatter your bones about your altars. In all your settlements the blood-spattered altars<sup>n</sup> shall be laid waste and the hill-shrines made desolate. Your altars will be waste and desolate and your idols shattered and useless, your incense-altars hewn down, and all your works wiped out; with the slain falling about you, you shall know that I am the LORD. But when they fall,<sup>o</sup> I will leave you, among the nations, some who survive the sword. When you are scattered in foreign lands, these survivors, in captivity among the nations, will remember how I was grieved because their hearts had turned wantonly from me and their eyes had gone roving wantonly after idols. Then they will loathe themselves for all the evil they have done with their abominations. So they will know that I am the LORD, that I was uttering no vain threat when I said that I would bring this evil upon them.

These are the words of the Lord GOD: Beat your hands together, stamp with your foot, bemoan your vile abominations, people of Israel. Men will fall by sword, famine, and pestilence. Far away they will die by pestilence; at home they will fall by the sword; any who survive or are spared will die by famine, and so at last my anger will be spent. You will know that I am the LORD when their slain fall among the idols round their altars, on every high hill, on all mountain-tops, under every spreading tree, under every leafy terebinth, wherever they have brought offerings of soothing odour for their idols one and all. So I will stretch out my hand over them and make the land a desolate waste in all their settlements, more desolate than the desert of Riblah.<sup>p</sup> They shall know that I am the LORD.

The word of the LORD came to me: Man, the Lord GOD says this to the land of Israel: An end is coming, the end is coming upon the four corners of the land.<sup>q</sup> The end is now upon you; I will unleash my anger against you; I will call you to account for your doings and bring your abominations upon your own heads. I will neither pity nor spare you: I will make you suffer for your doings and the abominations that continue in your midst. So you shall know that I am the LORD.

These are the words of the Lord GOD: Behold, it comes, disasters one upon another; the end, the end, it comes, it comes.<sup>r</sup> Doom is coming upon you, dweller in the land; the time is coming, the day is near, with

m Prob. rdg.; Heb. them.

n blood-spattered altars: or cities.

o when they fall: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.

p Prob. rdg.; Heb. Diblah. q Or earth.

r Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds it wakes up, behold it comes.

6.1-7.27: Oracles of judgment. Here punishment is announced in words rather than in symbolic actions. 3: Hill-shrines: lit. "high places," associated with mountaintops where worship was carried on. They were proscribed after Hezekiah centralized the cult in the Jerusalem Temple (2 Kgs. 18.4), because the rituals tended toward the cult of the fertility gods of the Canaanites. 5: The touch of corpses which made a person unclean for worship will pollute the very altars. 8: Some who survive: the "remnant" (Isa. 4.3) will be the seed of the restoration. 11: Sword, famine, pestilence are the traditional scourges by which God punishes his people; see Jer. 14.12; 27.8. 13: Leafy terebinth: certain trees were especially associated with female deities in fertility rites, the terebinth among them. See Deut. 16.21.

7.1-27: Judgment against the land. The day is near when all practitioners of evil in Israel will be destroyed and all human security will disintegrate: social life, vv. 10-11; economic life, confusion and the crash of thunder.<sup>s</sup>

8 Now, in an instant, I will vent my rage upon you and let my anger spend itself. I will call you to account for your doings and bring your abominations upon your own heads. I will neither pity nor spare; I will make you suffer for your doings and the abominations that continue in your midst. So you shall know that it is I, the LORD, who strike the blow.

10 Behold, the day! the doom is here, it has burst upon them. Injustice buds, insolence blossoms, violence shoots up into injustice and wickedness. And it is all their fault, the fault of their turmoil and tumult and all their restless ways. 12 The time has come, the day has arrived; the buyer has no reason to be glad, and the seller none for regret, for 13 I am angry at all their turmoil. The seller will never go back on his bargain while either of them lives; for the bargain will never be reversed because of the turmoil, and no man will exert himself, even in his iniquity, as long as he lives. The trumpet has sounded and all is ready, but no one goes out to war.

15 Outside is the sword, inside are pestilence and famine; in the country men will die by the sword, in the city famine and pestilence will carry them off. If any escape and take to the mountains, like moaning doves, there will I slay them, each for his iniquity, while their hands hang limp and their knees run with urine. They will go in sackcloth, shuddering from head to foot, with faces downcast and heads close shaved. 19 They shall fling their silver into the streets and cast aside their gold like filth; their silver and their gold will be powerless to save them on the day of the LORD's fury. Their hunger will not be satisfied nor their bellies filled; for their iniquity will be the cause of their downfall. They have fed their pride on their beautiful jewels, which they made into vile and abominable images.

Therefore I will treat their jewels like filth, I will hand them over as plunder to foreigners and as booty to the most evil people on earth, and these will defile them. I will turn my face from them and let my treasured land be profaned; brigands will come in and defile it.

Clench your fists, for the land is full of bloodshed<sup>r</sup> and the city full of violence. I will let in the scum of nations to take possession of their houses; I will quell the pride of the strong, and their sanctuaries shall be profaned. Shuddering will come over them, and they will look in vain for peace. Tempest shall follow upon tempest and rumour upon rumour. Men will go seeking a vision from a prophet; there will be no more guidance from a priest, no counsel from elders. The king will mourn, the prince will be clothed with horror, the hands of the common people will shake with fright. I will deal with them as they deserve, and call them to account for their doings; and so they shall know that I am the LORD.

Jerusalem's guilt and punishment

ON THE FIFTH DAY OF THE SIXTH MONTH 8 in the sixth year, I was sitting at home and the elders of Judah were with me. Suddenly the hand of the Lord GOD came upon me, and I saw what looked like a man. He seemed to be all fire from the waist down and to shine and glitter like brass from the waist up. He stretched out what seemed a hand and seized me by the forelock. A spirit<sup>u</sup> lifted me up between heaven and earth, carried me to Jerusalem in a vision of God and put me down at the entrance to the inner gate facing north, where stands the image of Lust to rouse

<sup>s</sup> and the crash of thunder: prob. rdg.; Heb. unintelligible.
<sup>r</sup> bloodshed: prob. rdg.; Heb. the judgement of bloodshed.
<sup>u</sup> Or wind.

12-19; religious life, 20-26; political life, 27. 12-14: Neither the buyer getting a good bargain can rejoice nor the seller suffering a loss will grieve; total disaster will permanently nullify all loss or gain. 26-27: In the catastrophe to follow, of all the community functions, only the work of the prophet will remain, it being a divine communication rather than a human effort.

8.1-11.25: God punishes Jerusalem for her abominations. 1-18: Pagan rites such as these are also mentioned elsewhere, e.g. 2 Kgs.21.7; Hos.10.1-2. 1: Sixth year: September 17, 592 B.C. 3: The image of Lust was probably that of the fertility goddess, Asherah, mentioned in

4 lustful passion. The glory of the God of Israel was there, like the vision I had 5 seen in the plain. The LORD said to me, 'Man, look northwards.' I did so, and there to the north of the altar gate, at the entrance, was that image of Lust.
 6 'Man,' he said, 'do you see what they are doing? The monstrous abominations which the Israelites practise here are driving me far from my sanctuary, and you will see even more such abominations.'
 7 Then he brought me to the entrance of the court, and I looked and found a 8 hole in the wall. 'Man,' he said to me,
 'dig through the wall.' I did so, and it 9 became an opening. 'Go in,' he said,
 'and see the vile abominations they 10 practise here.' So I went in and saw figures of reptiles, beasts, and vermin, and all the idols of the Israelites, 11 carved round the walls. Seventy elders of Israel were standing in front of them, with Jaazaniah son of Shaphan in the middle, and each held a censer from which rose the fragrant smoke of 12 incense. 'Man,' he said to me, 'do you see what the elders of Israel are doing in darkness, each at the shrine of his own carved image? They think that the LORD does not see them, or that he 13 has forsaken the country. You will see', he said, 'yet more monstrous abominations which they practise.'
 14 Then he brought me to that gateway of the LORD's house which faces north;
 and there I saw women sitting and 15 wailing for Tammuz. 'Man, do you see that?' he asked me. 'But you will see abominations more monstrous than 16 these.' So he took me to the inner court of the LORD's house, and there, by the entrance to the sanctuary of the LORD, between porch and altar, were some twenty-five men with their backs to the sanctuary and their faces to the east, prostrating themselves to the rising 17 sun. He said to me, 'Man, do you see that? Is it because they think these abominations a trifle, that the Jews have filled the country with violence?

 They provoke me further to anger, even while they seek to appease me; I will 18 turn upon them in my rage; I will neither pity nor spare. Loudly as they may cry to me, I will not listen.'

A loud voice rang in my ears: 'Here 9 they come, those appointed to punish the city, each carrying his weapon of destruction.' Then I saw six men 2 approaching from the road that leads to the upper northern gate, each carrying a battle-axe, one man among them dressed in linen, with pen and ink at his waist; and they halted by the altar of bronze. Then the glory of the God 3 of Israel rose from above the cherubim.
 He came to the terrace of the temple and called to the man dressed in linen with pen and ink at his waist. 'Go 4 through the city, through Jerusalem,' said the LORD, 'and put a mark on the foreheads of those who groan and lament over the abominations practised there.' Then I heard him say to the 5 others, 'Follow him through the city and kill without pity; spare no one.
 Kill and destroy them all, old men and 6 young, girls, little children and women, but touch no one who bears the mark.
 Begin at my sanctuary.' So they began with the elders in front of the temple.
 'Defile the temple,' he said, 'and fill the 7 courts with dead bodies; then go out into the city and kill.'

While they did their work, I was left 8 alone; and I threw myself upon my face, crying out, 'O Lord GOD, must thou destroy all the Israelites who are left, pouring out thy anger on Jerusa- 9 lem?' He answered, 'The iniquity of Israel and Judah is great indeed; the land is full of murder, the city is filled with injustice. They think the LORD has forsaken this country; they think he sees nothing. But I will neither pity nor 10 spare them; I will make them answer for all they have done.' Then the man 11

2 Kgs.21.7. 7-11: The imagery recalls the Egyptian Book of the Dead, with its descriptions of the cult of the god Osiris. 14-15: Tammuz, the Babylonian god of fertility, whose annual descent into the underworld brought death to vegetation, was mourned especially by women. 17: Violence is seen as the result of idolatry.

9.1-11: Purge of idolaters in Jerusalem. 2: Linen: a ritually clean cloth worn by those in immediate service of God, priests in the Temple (Lev.16.3-4) and angels in heaven (Dan.10.5; Rev.15.6). 7: Dead bodies made the Temple unfit for any worship, legitimate or idolatrous.

dressed in linen with pen and ink at his waist came and made his report: 'I have done what thou hast commanded.'

- 10 Then I saw, above the vault over the heads of the cherubim, as it were a throne of sapphire<sup>v</sup> visible above them.
- 2 The LORD said to the man dressed in linen, 'Come in between the circling wheels under the cherubim, and take a handful of the burning embers lying among the cherubim; then toss them over the city.' So he went in before my eyes.
- 3 The cherubim stood on the right side of the temple as a man enters, and a cloud filled the inner court. The glory of the LORD rose high from above the cherubim and moved on to the terrace; and the temple was filled with the cloud, while the radiance of the glory of the LORD filled the court. The sound of the wings of the cherubim could be heard as far as the outer court, as loud as if God Almighty were speaking.
- 6 Then he told the man dressed in linen to take fire from between the circling wheels and among the cherubim; the man came and stood by a wheel, and a cherub from among the cherubim put its hand into the fire that lay among them, and, taking some fire, gave it to the man dressed in linen; and he received it and went out.
- 8 Under the wings of the cherubim there appeared what seemed a human hand. And I saw four wheels beside the cherubim, one wheel beside each cherub. They had the sparkle of topaz, and all four were alike, like a wheel inside a wheel. When the cherubim moved in any of the four directions, they never swerved in their course; they went straight on in the direction in which their heads were turned, never swerving in their course. Their whole bodies, their backs and hands and wings, as well as the wheels, were full of eyes all round the four of them.<sup>w</sup> The whirring of the wheels sounded in my ears. Each had four faces: the first was that of a cherub, the second that of a man, the third that of a lion, and the fourth that of an eagle.

Then the cherubim raised themselves up, those same living creatures I had seen by the river Kebar. When the cherubim moved, the wheels moved beside them; when the cherubim lifted their wings and rose from the ground, the wheels did not turn away from them. When the one halted, the other halted; when the one rose, the other rose; for the spirit of the creatures was in the wheels. Then the glory of the LORD left the temple terrace and halted above the cherubim. The cherubim lifted their wings and raised themselves from the ground; I watched them go with the wheels beside them. They halted at the eastern gateway of the LORD's house, and the glory of the God of Israel was over them.

These were the living creatures I had seen beneath the God of Israel at the river Kebar; I knew that they were cherubim. Each had four faces and four wings and the semblance of human hands under their wings. Their faces were like those I had seen in vision by the river Kebar;<sup>x</sup> they moved, each one of them, straight forward.

A spirit<sup>y</sup> lifted me up and brought me to the eastern gate of the LORD's house, the gate that faces east. By the doorway were twenty-five men, and I saw among them two of high office, Jaazaniah son of Azzur and Pelatiah son of Benaiah. The LORD said to me,

<sup>v</sup> Or lapis lazuli. <sup>w</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds their wheels. <sup>x</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds and them. <sup>y</sup> Or wind.

10.1-22: God leaves the Temple. In the Bible, abandonment by the Lord is the most terrible punishment known; see Deut.31.16-17; Ps.27.8-10. 3-4: Unlike the subjective vision of 1.28, the glory of the LORD here is Israel's shared experience of the objective majesty of God. The symbolism of cloud conveys his hiddenness (Exod.16.10) and the brilliance of sapphire manifests his majesty (Exod.24.9-10). Compare Isa.6.1-5. 7: Jerusalem, desecrated and put under the ban (Josh.6.17 n.), must be completely destroyed by fire (5.2) coming from God's throne itself; a new city, holy to the LORD, may then rise in its place; see 40.2. 19: The LORD leaves by the eastern gateway because he is going eastward to the captives already in Babylon. The vision continues in 11.22-24.

11.1-25: False security of the inhabitants of Jerusalem. Jehoiachin and the most important people of Jerusalem were taken captive to Babylon in 597; those who remained congratulated themselves that they had God's favor and were therefore safe. Compare Jer.24.1-10. 2-3: The princes, as secure and contented as meat in a bubbling stewpot, express a confidence that Man, it is these who are planning mischief and plotting trouble in this city, saying to themselves, 'There will be no building of houses yet awhile; the city is a stewpot and we are the meat in it.' Therefore, said he, prophesy against them, prophesy, O man. Then the spirit of the LORD came suddenly upon me, and he told me to say, These are the words of the LORD: This is what you are saying to yourselves, you men of Israel; well do I know the thoughts that rise in your mind. You have killed and killed in this city and heaped the streets with the slain. These, therefore, are the words of the Lord God: The bodies of the slain that you have put there, it is they that are the meat. The city is indeed the stewpot, but I will take you out of it. It is a sword that you fear, and a sword I will bring upon you, says the Lord God. I will take you out of it; I will give you over to a foreign power; I will bring you to justice. You too shall fall by the sword when I judge you on the frontier of Israel; thus you shall know that I am the LORD. So the city will not be your stewpot, nor you the meat in it. On the frontier of Israel I will judge you; thus you shall know that I am the LORD. You have not conformed to my statutes nor kept my laws, but you have followed the laws of the nations around you.

While I was prophesying, Pelatiah son of Benaiah fell dead; and I threw myself upon my face, crying aloud, 'O Lord God, must thou make an end of all the Israelites who are left?'

The word of the LORD came to me:

Man, they are your brothers, your brothers and your kinsmen, this whole people of Israel, to whom the men who now live in Jerusalem have said, 'Keep your distance from the LORD; the land has been made over to us as our property.' Say therefore, These are the words of the Lord God: When I sent them far away among the nations and scattered them in many lands, for a while I became their sanctuary in the countries to which they had gone. Say therefore, These are the words of the Lord God: I will gather them from among the nations and assemble them from the countries over which I have scattered them, and I will give them the soil of Israel. When they come into it, they will do away with all their vile and abominable practices. I will give them a different heart and put a new spirit into them; I will take the heart of stone out of their bodies and give them a heart of flesh. Then they will conform to my statutes and keep my laws. They will become my people, and I will become their God. But as for those whose heart is set upon<sup>z</sup> their vile and abominable practices, I will make them answer for all they have done. This is the very word of the Lord God.

Then the cherubim lifted their wings, with the wheels beside them and the glory of the God of Israel above them. The glory of the LORD rose up and left the city, and halted on the mountain to the east of it. And a spirit<sup>a</sup> lifted me up and brought me to the exiles in Chaldaea. All this came in a vision sent by the spirit of God, and houses will be built in the city after awhile, thus giving the lie to Ezekiel's warning in 7.12-13. The key to this allegory is found in 24.3-7, 9-13. 7-9: Those unjustly slain in Jerusalem by the princes are the meat in the stewpot, i.e. their bodies will remain in Palestine, but the nobility will be taken beyond the frontier of Israel for examination: judgment. 13: Pelatiah's death in the presence of the prophesying Ezekiel is considered proof by some interpreters of the prophet's double ministry, first before the destruction of Jerusalem in 587 B.C. and subsequently in Babylon. Those who admit only a Babylonian ministry explain the whole verse either as a vision the prophet had in Babylonia or as one he added when the oracles were gathered together in 563 B.C. See 1.1-2 n. 14-15: The northern tribes having been in captivity since 721 B.C. (2 Kgs.17.6) and a large portion of Judah since 597 B.C., the men who now live in Jerusalem consider the whole people of Israel as at a distance from the LORD, i.e. away from his presence in the Temple. Hence, in their false security, they claim all the land as their exclusive property. 16-17: Though distant from the Temple, the captives have the LORD himself (vv. 22-24) as their sanctuary until he, as their next-of-kin, delivers them from captivity and gives them anew the soil of Palestine. 19-20: Following a new Exodus (vv. 16-17), God will renew his covenant with Israel; by giving them a new spirit and a heart of flesh, he will make them his people. 23: To fulfill the promises made in vv. 16-17, 19-20, the glory of the LORD leaves Jerusalem to be with the exiles in the east.

<sup>z</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds the heart of.    <sup>a</sup> Or wind.

then the vision that I had seen left me.
 25 I told the exiles all that the LORD had revealed to me.

Jerusalem's downfall certain

12 THE WORD OF THE LORD CAME TO ME:

2 Man, you live among a rebellious people. Though they have eyes they will not see, though they have ears they will not hear, because they are a rebellious people. Therefore, man, pack up what you need for a journey into exile, by day before their eyes; then set off on your journey. When you leave home and go off into exile before their eyes, it may be they will see that they are rebels. Bring out your belongings, packed as for exile; do it by day, before their eyes, and then at evening, still before their eyes, leave home, as if you were going into exile. Next, before their eyes, break a hole through the wall, and carry your belongings out through it. When dusk falls, take your pack on your shoulder, before their eyes, and carry it out, with your face covered so that you cannot see the ground. I am making you a warning sign for the Israelites.

7 I did exactly as I had been told. By day I brought out my belongings, packed as for exile, and at evening I broke through the wall with my hands. When dusk fell, I shouldered my pack and carried it out before their eyes.

8 Next morning, the word of the LORD came to me: Man, he said, have not the Israelites, that rebellious people, asked you what you are doing? Tell them that these are the words of the Lord GOD: This oracle concerns the prince in Jerusalem, and all the Israelites therein.<sup>b</sup> Tell them that you are a sign to warn them; what you have done will be done to them; they will go into exile and captivity. Their prince will shoulder his pack in the dusk and go through a hole made to let him out, with his face covered so that he cannot be seen nor himself see the ground. But I will cast my net over him, and he will be caught in the meshes. I will bring him to Babylon, the land of the Chaldeans, though he will not see it; and there he will die. I will scatter his bodyguard and drive all his squadrons to the four winds; I will follow them with drawn sword. Then they shall know that I am the LORD, when I disperse them among the nations and scatter them through many lands. But I will leave a few of them who will escape sword, famine, and pestilence, to tell the whole story of their abominations to the peoples among whom they go; and they shall know that I am the LORD.

And the word of the LORD came to me: Man, he said, as you eat you must tremble, and as you drink you must shudder with dread. Say to the common people. These are the words of the Lord GOD about those who live in Jerusalem and about the land of Israel: They will eat with dread and be filled with horror as they drink; the land shall be filled with horror because it is sated with the violence of all who live there. Inhabited cities shall be deserted, and the land shall become a waste. Thus you shall know that I am the LORD.

The word of the LORD came to me: Man, he said, what is this proverb current in the land of Israel: 'Time runs on, visions die away'? Say to them, <sup>b</sup> therein: prob. rdg.; Heb. among them.

12.1-24.27: Jerusalem's fate predicted. This section contains further prophecies against all whose conduct makes Jerusalem's doom inevitable: the city's rulers and people, priests and prophets.

12.1-20: More symbols of exile. According to some interpreters, the prophet acts out his prediction of exile before the inhabitants of Jerusalem in Palestine; according to others, he is in Babylon before the captives. 6: The face was covered as a sign of grief, or to avoid recognition and thus escape ridicule. 12: Ezekiel's dramatization (vv. 3-7) was already applied to Israel's departure into exile (vv. 10-11). Its reapplication here to the attempted escape of King Zedekiah (2 Kgs.25.4-5) is probably a later addition, but possibly by the prophet himself. 13: There he will die: the words seem to indicate that the writer is in Palestine, not Babylonia.

12.21-13.23: True and false prophecy. Without objective criteria to distinguish true from false prophecy, the common people are left confused. See 1 Kgs.22.1-28; Jer.28.1-15; Mic.3.5. Two oracles (the first, vv. 21-25, and the second, 26-28) reflect both ridicule suffered by the prophet and his own keen sensitivity and hurt. 22: Visions die away: they are not fulfilled.

These are the words of the Lord GOD: I have put an end to this proverb; it shall never be heard in Israel again. Say rather to them, The time, with all the vision means, is near. There will be no more false visions, no specious divination among the Israelites, for I, the LORD, will say what I will, and it shall be done. It shall be put off no longer: in your lifetime, you rebellious people, I will speak, I will act. This is the very word of the Lord GOD.

The word of the LORD came to me: Man, he said, the Israelites say that the vision you now see is not to be fulfilled for many years: you are prophesying of a time far off. Say to them, These are the words of the Lord GOD: No word of mine shall be delayed; even as I speak it shall be done. This is the very word of the Lord GOD.

13<sup>1,2</sup> The LORD said to me, Man, prophesy of the prophets of Israel; prophesy, and say to those who prophesy out of their own hearts, Hear what the LORD says: 3 These are the words of the Lord GOD: Oh, the wicked folly of the prophets! Their inspiration comes from themselves; they have seen no vision. Your prophets, Israel, have been like jackals among ruins. They have not gone up into the breach to repair the broken wall round the Israelites, that they may stand firm in battle on the day of the LORD. Oh, false vision and lying divination! Oh, those prophets who say, 'It is the very word of the LORD', when it is not the LORD who has sent them; yet they expect their words to control the event. Is it not a false vision that you prophets have seen? Is not your divination a lie? You call it the very word of the LORD, but it is not I who have spoken.

8 These, then, are the words of the Lord GOD: Because your words are false and your visions a lie, I am against you, says the Lord GOD. I will raise my hand against the prophets whose visions are false, whose divinations are a lie. They shall have no place in the counsels of my people; they shall not be entered in the roll of Israel nor set foot upon its soil. Thus you shall know that I am the Lord GOD. Rightly, for they have misled my people by saying that all is well when all is not well. It is as if they were building a wall and used whitewash for the daubing. Tell these daubers that it will fall; rain will pour down in torrents, and I will send hailstones hard as rock streaming down and I will unleash a stormy wind. When the building falls, men will ask, 'Where is the plaster you should have used?' So these are the words of the Lord GOD: In my rage I will unleash a stormy wind; rain will come in torrents in my anger, hailstones hard as rock in my fury, until all is destroyed. I will demolish the building which you have daubed with whitewash and level it to the ground, so that its foundations are laid bare. It shall fall, and you shall be destroyed within it; thus you shall know that I am the LORD. I will spend my rage on the building and on those who daubed it with wash; and people<sup>c</sup> will say, 'The building is gone and the men who daubed it are gone, those prophets of Israel who prophesied to Jerusalem, who saw visions of prosperity when there was no prosperity.' This is the very word of the Lord GOD.

Now turn, man, to the women of your people who prophesy out of their own hearts, and prophesy to them. Say to them, These are the words of the Lord GOD: I loathe you, you women

<sup>c</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. I.

25: Ezekiel feels that he speaks what the LORD wishes to say, i.e. that he is the mouth of God. 13.1-5: Those who prophesy out of their own hearts, i.e. make schemes in their minds, are moved by their greed, and, far from exposing the community's weaknesses, conceal and exploit them; thus they live like jackals off the calamity of others. For the ancients the heart was the seat of the intellect. 6: In divination, man, on his own initiative and for his own gain, seeks to discover the will of God; by contrast, the true prophet is moved by God, against his will and to his own danger; see 3.4-10; Jer.1.4-10. Divination, arising out of self-interest, tends easily toward lying. 10-11: Plaster, not whitewash, gives mud-brick walls a hard, water-resistant coat that does not merely hide the faults of the wall. So, too, a true prophet strengthens the community against a day of reckoning by not hiding its evil. 17-23: Certain women seem to have practiced, for payment by handfuls of barley and scraps of bread (v. 19), idolatrous magic, divination, and sorcery of an unknown nature. See 1 Sam.28.7-19; Mic.3.5-11.

who hunt men's lives by sewing magic bands upon the wrists and putting veils over the heads of persons of every age; are you to hunt the lives of my people and keep your own lives safe?

19 You have violated my sanctity before my people with handfuls of barley and scraps of bread. You bring death to those who should not die, and life to those who should not live, by lying to this people of mine who listen to lies.

20 So these are the words of the LORD GOD: I am against your magic bands with which you hunt men's lives for the excitement of it. I will tear them from your arms and set those lives at liberty, lives that you hunt for the excitement

21 of it. I will tear up your long veils and save my people from you; you shall no longer have power to hunt them. Thus you shall know that I am the

22 LORD. You discouraged the righteous man with lies, when I meant him no hurt; you so strengthened the wicked that he would not abandon his evil

23 ways and be saved; and therefore you shall never see your false visions again nor practise your divination any more. I will rescue my people from your power; and thus you shall know that I am the LORD.

14 Some of the elders of Israel came to

2 visit me, and while they sat with me the

3 LORD said to me, Man, these people have set their hearts on their idols and keep their eyes fixed on the sinful things that cause their downfall. Am I to let

4 such men consult me? Speak to them and tell them that these are the words of the LORD GOD: If any Israelite, with his heart set on his idols and his eyes fixed on the sinful things that cause his downfall, comes to a prophet, I, the LORD, in my own person, shall be constrained to answer him, despite his

5 many idols. My answer will grip the hearts of the Israelites, estranged from me as they are, one and all, through

6 their idols. So tell the Israelites that these are the words of the Lord God: Turn away, turn away from your idols; turn your backs on all your abominations. If any man, Israelite or alien,

7 renounces me, sets his heart upon idols and fixes his eyes upon the vile thing that is his downfall—if such a man comes to consult me through a prophet, I, the LORD, in my own person, shall be constrained to answer him. I will set

8 my face against that man; I will make him an example and a byword; I will rid my people of him. Thus you shall know that I am the LORD. If a prophet

9 is seduced into making a prophecy, it is I the LORD who have seduced him; I will stretch out my hand and rid my people Israel of him. Both shall be

10 punished; the prophet and the man who consults him alike are guilty. And 11 never again will the Israelites stray from their allegiance, never again defy my will and bring pollution upon themselves; they will become my people, and I will become their God. This is the very word of the Lord GOD.

These were the words of the LORD

12 to me: Man, when a country sins by 13 breaking faith with me, I will stretch out my hand and cut short its daily bread. I will send famine upon it and destroy both men and cattle. Even if

14 those three men were living there, Noah, Danel<sup>d</sup> and Job, they would save none but themselves by their righteousness. This is the very word of the Lord GOD. If I should turn wild

15 beasts loose in a country to destroy its inhabitants, until it became a waste through which no man would pass for fear of the beasts, then, if those three

16 men were living there, as I live, says the Lord GOD, they would not save even their own sons and daughters; they would save themselves alone, and the country would become a waste. Or

17 if I should bring the sword upon that country and command it to go through

<sup>d</sup> Or, as otherwise read, Daniel.

14.1–23: Duplicity and personal responsibility. 7: If anyone, while still practicing idolatry, comes to consult a prophet he will receive an answer not from the prophet, but from the LORD—in punishment! 9: A prophet who gives an answer to a known idolater is regarded as his accomplice. God, who as LORD of all allowed it, is considered to have seduced him in order to destroy him and rid the community of his influence. 14: Three men were famous in the ancient world for their virtue and intercessory power. Noah (Gen.6.9), Job (Job 42.7–10), and Daniel, a Canaanite hero, or possibly Daniel the biblical hero (Dan.3.22–27). These men were not able to save their wicked contemporaries from God's anger in time of calamity. They

18 the land and should destroy men and cattle, then, if those three men were living there, as I live, says the Lord GOD, they could save neither son nor daughter; they would save themselves 19 alone. Or if I should send pestilence on that land and pour out my fury upon it in blood, to destroy men and cattle, 20 then, if Noah, Danel and Job were living there, as I live, says the Lord GOD, they would save neither son nor daughter; they would save themselves alone by their righteousness.
 21 These were the words of the Lord GOD: How much less hope is there for Jerusalem when I inflict on her these four punishments of mine, sword and famine, wild beasts and pestilence, to 22 destroy both men and cattle! Some will be left in her, some survivors to be brought out, both sons and daughters.
 Look at them as they come out to you, and see how they have behaved and what they have done. This will be some comfort to you for all the harm I have done to Jerusalem and all I have inflicted 23 upon her. It will bring you comfort when you see how they have behaved and what they have done; for you will know that it was not without reason that I dealt thus with her. This is the very word of the Lord GOD.

15 These were the words of the LORD
 to me:

2 Man, how is the vine better than any other tree,
 than a branch from a tree in the forest?
 3 Is wood got from it fit to make anything useful?
 Can men make it into a peg and hang things on it?
 4 If it is put on the fire for fuel, if its two ends are burnt by the fire and the middle is charred, is it fit for anything useful?

 Nothing useful could be made of it 5 even when whole;
 how much less, when it is burnt by the fire and charred,
 can it be made into anything useful!

So these are the words of the Lord 6
 GOD:

I treat the vine, as against forest-trees,
 only as fuel for the fire,
 even so I treat the people of Jerusalem;
 I set my face against them. 7
 Though they escape from the fire, fire shall burn them up.
 Thus you shall know that I am the
 LORD
 when I set my face against them, making the land a waste 8
 because they have broken faith.
 This is the very word of the Lord
 GOD.

The word of the LORD came to me: 16
 Man, he said, make Jerusalem see her 2 abominable conduct. Tell her that these 3 are the words of the Lord GOD to her: Canaan is the land of your ancestry and there you were born; an Amorite was your father and a Hittite your mother. This is how you were treated 4 at birth: when you were born, your navel-string was not tied, you were not bathed in water ready for the rubbing, you were not salted as you should have been nor wrapped in swaddling clothes. 5 No one cared for you enough to do any of these things or, indeed, to have any pity for you; you were thrown out on the bare ground in your own filth on the day of your birth. Then I came 6 by and saw you kicking helplessly in your own blood; I spoke to you, there in your blood, and bade you live. I 7 would not be able to do so in the present situation. 21-23: The survivors of the coming catastrophe will be evidence that God does not punish without reason. That he does not will be a source of hope to the exiles.

15.1-8: Parable of the wood of the vine. Israel is the vine cultivated by God, in contrast to the big trees, the nations. Unlike the big trees, a vine is valued only for its fruit and not for its wood, especially if it has been charred by flames, as Israel has been by sin and her punishment, the Exile. See Judg.9.12-13; Jn.15.1-11.

16.1-63: The marriage allegory of Jerusalem. The city's history is compared, in erotic imagery, to the biography of a woman in distinct stages of her life. 1-7: Unlike other cities, Jerusalem had no epic legend of being founded by some god's commission. Rather, like an illegitimate foundling, she was left as the result of the Amorite and Hittite movements in Palestine, known now as occurring in the second millennium B.C. The LORD bade Jerusalem tended you like an evergreen plant, like something growing in the fields; you throve and grew. You came to full womanhood; your breasts became firm and your hair grew, but still you were naked and exposed.

8 Again I came by and saw that you were ripe for love. I spread the skirt of my robe over you and covered your naked body. Then I plighted my troth and entered into a covenant with you, says the Lord GOD, and you became mine. Then I bathed you in water and washed off the blood and anointed you with oil. I gave you robes of brocade and sandals of stout hide; I fastened a linen girdle round you and dressed you in lawn. For jewellery I put bracelets on your arms and a chain round your neck; I gave you a nose-ring, I put pendants in your ears and a beautiful coronet on your head. You had ornaments of gold and silver, your dresses were of linen, lawn, and brocade. You had flour and honey and olive oil for food, and you grew very beautiful, you grew into a queen. The fame of your beauty went all over the world, for the splendour with which I decked you made it perfect. This is the very word of the Lord GOD.

15 But you trusted to your beauty and prostituted your fame; you committed fornication, offering yourself freely to any passer-by for your beauty to become his. You took some of your clothes and decked a platform for yourself in gay colours and there you committed fornication; you had intercourse with him for your beauty to become his.<sup>e</sup> You took the splendid ornaments of gold and silver which I had given you, and made for yourself male images with which you committed fornication. You covered them with your robes of brocade and offered up my oil and my incense before them. You took the food I had given you, the flour, the oil, and the honey, with which I had fed you, and set it before them as an offering of soothing odour. This is the very word of the Lord GOD.

You took the sons and daughters whom you had borne to me, and sacrificed them to these images for their food. Was this of less account than your fornication? No! you slaughtered my children and handed them over, you surrendered them to your images. With all your abominable fornication you forgot those early days when you lay naked and exposed, kicking helplessly in your own blood.

After all the evil you had done (Oh! the pity of it, says the Lord GOD), you built yourself a couch and constructed a high-stool in every open place. You built up your high-stools at the top of every street and disgraced your beauty, offering your body to any passer-by in countless acts of fornication. You committed fornication with your gross neighbours, the Egyptians, and you provoked me to anger by your countless acts of fornication.

I stretched out my hand against you and cut down your portion. Then I gave you up to women who hated you, Philistine women, who were so disgusted by your lewd ways. Not content with this, you committed fornication with the Assyrians, led them into fornication and still were not content. You committed countless acts of fornication in Chaldaea, the land of commerce, and even with this you were not content.

How you anger me! says the Lord GOD. You have done all this like the imperious whore you are. You have built your couch at the top of every live, by not destroying her during Joshua's conquest; see Josh.15.63. 8-14: The espoused maiden: Jerusalem, being ripe for love when taken by David (2 Sam.5.6-8), became the "spouse" of the Lord when the Ark of the Covenant was moved into it (2 Sam.6.12-19); she was given ornaments when the Temple and the palaces were built by Solomon (1 Kgs.6.1-9.1). 15-19: The flirtatious bride: her head turned by commerce with other nations, Jerusalem committed the double fornication of being unfaithful to God and of adopting the ritualistic prostitution of fertility cults (2 Kgs.21.1-18; Hos.4.13-14). 20-22: An unfeeling mother: even human sacrifices of her children were offered; see 2 Kgs.16.3; 17.17; Jer.7.31. 23-34: The adulterous wife: Jerusalem squandered the wealth of the Lord, her husband, in order to attract partners for her illicit love affairs of commerce and idolatry, thus being worse than a prostitute who offers herself to gain wealth (2 Kgs.16.7-18; 21.1-22). High-stools are the "high places," street and constructed your stool in every open place, but, unlike the common prostitute, you have scorned a fee. An adulterous wife who owes obedience to her husband takes a fee from<sup>f</sup> strangers. The prostitute also takes her fee; but you give presents to all your lovers, you bribe them to come from all quarters to commit fornication with you. You are the very opposite of other women in your fornication: no one runs after you, you do not receive a fee, you give it. You are the very opposite.

<sup>e</sup> you had intercourse . . . his: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.

Listen to the words of the LORD, whore that you are. These are the words of the Lord GOD: You have been prodigal in your excesses, you have exposed your naked body in fornication with your lovers. In return for your abominable idols and for the slaughter of the children you have given them, I will gather all those lovers to whom you made advances,<sup>g</sup> all whom you loved and all whom you hated. I will gather them in from all quarters against you; I will strip you naked before them, and they shall see your whole body naked. I will put you on trial for adultery and murder, and I will charge you with<sup>h</sup> blood shed in jealousy and fury. Then I will hand you over to them. They will demolish your couch and pull down your high-stool; they will strip your clothes off, take away your splendid ornaments, and leave you naked and exposed. They will bring up the mob against you and stone you, they will hack you to pieces with their swords. They will burn down your houses and execute judgement on you, and many women shall see it. I will put an end to your fornication, and you shall never again give a fee to your lovers. Then I will abate my fury, and my jealousy will turn away from you. I will be calm and will no longer be provoked to anger. For you had forgotten the days of your youth and exasperated me with all your doings: so I in my turn brought retribution upon you for your deeds. This is the very word of the Lord GOD.

Did you not commit these obscenities, as well as all your other abominations? Dealers in proverbs will say of you, 'Like mother, like daughter.' You are a true daughter of a mother who loathed her husband and children. You are a true sister of your sisters who loathed their husbands and children. You are all daughters of a Hittite mother and an Amorite father. Your elder sister was Samaria, who lived with her daughters to the north of you; your younger sister, who lived with her daughters to the south of you, was Sodom. Did you not behave as they did and commit the same abominations? You came very near to doing even worse than they. As I live, says the Lord GOD, your sister Sodom and her daughters never behaved as you and your daughters have done. This was the iniquity of your sister Sodom: she and her daughters had pride of wealth and food in plenty, comfort and ease, and yet she never helped the poor and wretched. They grew haughty and did deeds abominable in my sight, and I made away with them, as you have seen. Samaria was never half the sinner you have been; you have committed more abominations than she, abominations which have made your sister seem innocent. You must bear the humiliation which you thought your sisters deserved. Your sins are so much more abominable than theirs that they appear innocent in comparison with you; and now you must bear your shame and humiliation and make your sisters seem innocent.

But I will restore the fortunes of Sodom and her daughters and of Samaria and her daughters, and I will restore yours at the same time. Even though you bring them comfort, you will bear your shame, you will be disgraced for all you have done; but when sanctuaries of illicit worship; see 6.3 n.; 2 Kgs.21.3. 35-43: The castoff and condemned woman: Jerusalem, having lost the concerned jealousy of her husband, gained instead the cruel contempt of her paramours, Egypt and Babylon, nations which despoiled her. 45-52: Jerusalem's sins exceed those of her sister cities Samaria and Sodom, and therefore, so will her shame and humiliation. 53-63: Reconciliation, conversion, and new espousals await Jerusalem when once your sister Sodom and her daughters become what they were of old, and when your sister Samaria and her daughters become what they were of old, then you and your daughters will be restored. Did you not hear and talk much of your sister Sodom in the days of your pride, before your wickedness was exposed, in the days when the daughters of Aram with those about her were disgraced, and the daughters of the Philistines round about, who so despised you? Now you too must bear the consequences of your lewd and abominable conduct. This is the very word of the LORD.

<sup>f</sup> a fee from: prob. rdg.; Heb. om.

<sup>g</sup> to whom . . . advances: or whom you charmed.

<sup>h</sup> charge you with: prob. mng.; Heb. give you.

These are the words of the Lord GOD: I will treat you as you have deserved, because you violated a covenant and made light of a solemn oath. But I will remember the covenant I made with you when you were young, and I will establish with you a covenant which shall last for ever. And you will remember your past ways and feel ashamed when you receive your sisters, the elder and the younger. For I will give them to you as daughters, and they shall not be outside your covenant.<sup>i</sup> Thus I will establish my covenant with you, and you shall know that I am the LORD. You will remember, and will be so ashamed and humiliated that you will never open your mouth again once I have accepted expiation for all you have done. This is the very word of the Lord GOD.

These were the words of the Lord 2 to me: Man, speak to the Israelites in 3 allegory and parable. Tell them that these are the words of the Lord GOD:

A great eagle
with broad wings and long pinions, in full plumage, richly patterned, came to Lebanon.

He took the very top of a cedar-
tree,
he plucked its highest twig; 4 he carried it off to a land of commerce,
and planted it in a city of merchants.
Then he took a native seed 5 and put it in nursery-ground;
he set it like a willow,
a shoot beside abundant water.
It sprouted and became a vine, 6 sprawling low along the ground and bending its trailing boughs towards him<sup>j</sup> with its roots growing beneath him.
So it became a vine, it branched out and put forth shoots.
But there was another great eagle 7 with broad wings and thick plumage; and this vine gave its roots a twist towards him;<sup>j</sup> it pushed out its trailing boughs
towards him,
seeking drink from the bed where it was planted,
though it had been set 8
in good ground beside abundant
water
that it might bear shoots and be fruitful
and become a noble vine.

Tell them that these are the words of 9
the Lord GOD:

Can such a vine flourish?
Will not its roots be broken off and its fruit be stripped,

i and they . . . covenant: or though not on the ground of your covenant. j Or inwards.

she will recognize and return to her original condition. Daughters of Aram: perhaps the Assyrian cities of Asshur and Nineveh destroyed in 614 and 612 respectively. Solemn oath: oath of loyalty to Nebuchadnezzar broken by Zedekiah; see 17.12-18.

17.1-24: Allegory of the cedar and the eagles portrays the drama of Zedekiah, the weak king of Judah, caught between the aggressiveness of the king of Babylon and the king of Egypt. 3-5: Since allegory is an extended metaphor, a narrative with a continuous system of equivalents, the following identifications can possibly be made: great eagle, Nebuchadnezzar; Lebanon, city of Jerusalem; top of a cedar tree, dynasty of David; highest twig, King Jehoiachin; land of commerce, Babylonia; city of merchants, Babylon; native seed, Zedekiah, Jehoiachin's uncle, placed upon the throne by Nebuchadnezzar in 597 B.C. (2 Kgs.24.17). 6: Roots growing beneath him is explained in v. 13, namely, when the king of Babylon put Zedekiah "on his oath." The kingdom was sprawling low, because most of its exalted citizens had been taken into captivity and Zedekiah's power was very limited even over his princes (Jer.38.5). 7: Another great eagle: the Pharaoh Psammetichus II of Egypt (594-588 B.C.). Zedekiah's request for and all its fresh sprouting leaves wither,

until it is uprooted and carried away with little effort and few hands?
10 If it is transplanted, can it flourish?
Will it not be utterly shrivelled, as though by the touch of the east
wind,
on the bed where it ought to sprout?

11 These were the words of the LORD
12 to me: Say to that rebellious people,
Do you not know what this means?
The king of Babylon came to Jerusalem, took its king and its officers and had them brought to him at Babylon.
13 He took a prince of the royal line and made a treaty with him, putting him on his oath. He took away the chief men 14 of the country, so that it should become a humble kingdom unable to raise itself but ready to observe the 15 treaty and keep it in force. But the prince rebelled against him and sent messengers to Egypt, asking for horses and men in plenty. Can such a man prosper? Can he escape destruction if he acts in this way? Can he violate a 16 covenant and escape? As I live, says the Lord GOD, I swear that he shall die in the land of the king who put him on the throne; he made light of his oath and violated the covenant he made with him. He shall die in Babylon.
17 Pharaoh will send no large army, no great host, to protect him in battle; no siege-ramp will be raised, no watchtower put up, nor will the lives of many 18 men be lost. He has violated a covenant and has made light of his oath. He had submitted, and yet he did all these things; he shall not escape.
19 These then are the words of the Lord GOD: As I live, he has made light of the oath he took by me and has violated the covenant I made with him. I will bring retribution upon him; I will cast 20 my net over him, and he shall be caught in its meshes. I will carry him to Babylon and bring him to judgement there, because he has broken faith with me. In all his squadrons every com- 21 mander shall fall by the sword; those who are left will be scattered to the four winds. Thus you shall know that it is I, the LORD, who have spoken.

These are the words of the Lord 22
GOD:

I, too, will take a slip from the lofty crown of the cedar and set it in the soil;
I will pluck a tender shoot from the topmost branch
and plant it.
I will plant it high on a lofty 23 mountain,
the highest mountain in Israel.
It will put out branches, bear its fruit,
and become a noble cedar.
Winged birds of every kind will roost under it,
they will roost in the shelter of its sweeping boughs.
All the trees of the country-side 24 will know that it is I, the LORD, who bring low the tall tree and raise the low tree high, who dry up the green tree and make the dry tree put forth buds.
I, the LORD, have spoken and will do it.

THESE WERE THE WORDS OF THE LORD 18
to me: What do you all mean by 2 repeating this proverb in the land of Israel:

'The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on
edge?'

military aid from Egypt (v. 15) is the twist towards him. 19: Ezekiel considers Zedekiah's breach of his loyalty oath to Nebuchadnezzar a rejection of God's covenant. 22-24: God's action in history—to pluck and to plant—is decisive, not the maneuverings of kings.

18.1-32: The Lord's way is freedom. Maintaining right relations with God frees a man from: (a) the past of his parents, vv. 1-20; (b) the past of his own life, vv. 21-32. Although individual responsibility is asserted by biblical authors before Ezekiel, as in Deut.24.16; 2 Kgs.14.6; Jer.31.29-30, Ezekiel's challenging affirmation here stands in clear contrast to the strong formulations of the inherited doctrine found in Exod.34.7; Lev.26.39-40; Deut.5.9. 2: This proverb, restating, though somewhat cynically, the teaching of Exod.20.5 and 34.7, seems to imply that the nation's recent calamities were an unjust application of the teaching by God.

3 As I live, says the Lord God, this proverb shall never again be used in Israel. Every living soul belongs to me; father and son alike are mine. The soul that sins shall die.

5 Consider the man who is righteous and does what is just and right. He never feasts at mountain-shrines, never lifts his eyes to the idols of Israel, never dishonours another man's wife, never approaches a woman during her periods. He oppresses no man, he returns the debtor's pledge, he never robs. He gives bread to the hungry and clothes to those who have none. He never lends either at discount or at interest. He shuns injustice and deals fairly between man and man. He conforms to my statutes and loyally observes my laws. Such a man is righteous: he shall live, says the Lord GOD.

10 He may have a son who is a man of violence and a cut-throat who turns his back on these rules.<sup>k</sup> He obeys none of them, he feasts at mountain-shrines, he dishonours another man's wife, he oppresses the unfortunate and the poor, he is a robber, he does not return the debtor's pledge, he lifts his eyes to idols and joins in abominable rites; he lends both at discount and at interest. Such a man shall not live. Because he has committed all these abominations he shall die, and his blood will be on his own head.

14 This man in turn may have a son who sees all his father's sins; he sees, but he commits none of them. He never feasts at mountain-shrines, never lifts his eyes to the idols of Israel, never dishonours another man's wife. He oppresses no man, takes no pledge, does not rob. He gives bread to the hungry and clothes to those who have none. He shuns injustice, he never lends either at discount or at interest. He keeps my laws and conforms to my statutes. Such a man shall not die for his father's wrongdoing; he shall live.

18 His father may have been guilty of oppression and robbery and may have lived an evil life among his kinsfolk, and so has died because of his iniquity.

19 You may ask, 'Why is the son not punished for his father's iniquity?' Because he has always done what is just and right and has been careful to obey all my laws, therefore he shall live. It is the soul that sins, and no other, that shall die; a son shall not share a father's guilt, nor a father his son's. The righteous man shall reap the fruit of his own righteousness, and the wicked man the fruit of his own wickedness.

21 It may be that a wicked man gives up his sinful ways and keeps all my laws, doing what is just and right. That man shall live; he shall not die. None of the offences he has committed shall be remembered against him; he shall live because of his righteous deeds. Have I any desire, says the Lord GOD, for the death of a wicked man? Would I not rather that he should mend his ways and live?

24 It may be that a righteous man turns back from his righteous ways and commits every kind of abomination that the wicked practise; shall he do this and live? No, none of his former righteousness will be remembered in his favour; he has broken his faith, he has sinned, and he shall die. You say that the Lord acts without principle? Listen, you Israelites, it is you who act without principle, not I. If a righteous man turns from his righteousness, takes to evil ways and dies,<sup>l</sup> it is because of these evil ways that he dies. Again, if a wicked man turns from his wicked ways and does what is just and right, he will save his life. If he sees his offences as they are and turns his back on them all, then he shall live; he shall not die.

29 'The Lord acts without principle', say the Israelites. No, Israelites, it is you who act without principle, not I. Therefore, Israelites, says the Lord GOD, I will judge every man of you on his deeds. Turn, turn from your offences, or your iniquity will be your downfall. Throw off the load of your past misdeeds; get yourselves a new

<sup>k</sup> who turns . . . rules: prob. rdg.; Heb. unintelligible.
<sup>l</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds because of them.

31-32: After repeated assurances that a man of "righteous deeds" will "surely live" (vv.

32 heart and a new spirit. Why should you die, you men of Israel? I have no desire for any man's death. This is the very word of the Lord GOD.

19 Raise a lament over the princes of 2 Israel and say:

Your mother was a lioness among the lions! She made her lair among the young lions and many were the cubs she bore.

3 One of her cubs she raised, and he grew into a young lion. He learnt to tear his prey, he devoured men.

4 Then the nations shouted at<sup>m</sup> him and he was caught in their pit, and they dragged him with hooks to the land of Egypt.

5 His case, she saw, was desperate, her hope was lost; so she took another of her cubs and made him a young lion.

6 He prowled among the lions and acted like a young lion. He learnt to tear his prey, he devoured men;

7 he broke down their palaces, laid their cities in ruins.

The land and all that was in it was aghast at the noise of his roaring.

8 From the provinces all round the nations raised the hue and cry; they cast their net over him and he was caught in their pit.

9 With hooks they drew him into a cage and brought him to the king of Babylon, who flung him into prison, that his voice might never again be heard on the mountains of Israel.

10 Your mother was a vine in a vineyard<sup>n</sup> planted by the waterside.

It grew fruitful and luxuriant, for there was water in plenty.

It had stout branches, fit to make sceptres for those who bear rule. 11

It grew tall, finding its way through the foliage, and conspicuous for its height and many trailing boughs.

But it was torn up in anger and thrown to the ground; the east wind blighted it, its fruit was blown off, its strong branches were blighted, and fire burnt it. 12

Now it is replanted in the wilderness, 13 in a dry and thirsty land; and fire bursts forth from its own branches 14 and burns up its shoots.<sup>o</sup> It has no strong branch any more to make a sceptre for those who bear rule.

This is the lament and as a lament it passed into use.

ON THE TENTH DAY OF THE FIFTH 20 month in the seventh year, some of the elders of Israel came to consult the LORD and were sitting with me. Then 2 this word came to me from the LORD: Man, say to the elders of Israel, This 3 is the word of the Lord GOD: Do you come to consult me? As I live, I will not be consulted by you. This is the very word of the Lord GOD.

Will you judge them? Will you judge 4 them, O man? Then tell them of the abominations of their forefathers and 5 say to them, These are the words of the Lord GOD: When I chose Israel, with uplifted hand I bound myself by oath to the race of Jacob and revealed myself to them in Egypt; I lifted up my hand and declared: I am the LORD your God.

<sup>m</sup> shouted at; or heard a report about.
<sup>n</sup> in a vineyard; prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure in context.
<sup>o</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds its fruit.

9,17,22), Ezekiel exhorts his reader to get a new heart and a new spirit and so turn and live; the prophet's message seems to have implications beyond the physical life of this world.

19.1-14: Laments on the royal house. The calamities of the Davidic dynasty are depicted allegorically in mournful poetic meter. 2: Lioness: Judah (Gen.49.9). 3: One of her cubs: King Jehoahaz, taken captive by Pharaoh Necho in 609; see 2 Kgs.23.30-34. 10: Vine: Judah. 11: Stout branches: either Zedekiah or Jehoiachin.

20.1-44: Theology of Israel's history. The history of Israel, in the prophet's view, is the history of God's self-revelation, so that Israel might have life. 1: August 14, 591 B.C. Compare

- 6 On that day I swore with hand uplifted that I would bring them out of Egypt into the land I had sought out for them, a land flowing with milk and honey, fairest of all lands. I told them, every one, to cast away the loathsome things on which they feasted their eyes and not to defile themselves with the idols of Egypt. I am the LORD your God, I said.
- 8 But they rebelled against me, they refused to listen to me, and not one of them cast away the loathsome things on which he feasted his eyes or forsook the idols of Egypt. I had thought to pour out my wrath and exhaust my anger on them in Egypt. I acted for the honour of my name, that it might not be profaned in the sight of the nations among whom Israel was living: I revealed myself to them by bringing Israel out of Egypt. I brought them out of Egypt and led them into the wilderness. There I gave my statutes to them and taught them my laws, so that by keeping them men might have life. Further, I gave them my sabbaths as a sign between us, so that they should know that I, the LORD, was hallowing them for myself. But the Israelites rebelled against me in the wilderness; they did not conform to my statutes, they rejected my laws, though by keeping them men might have life, and they utterly desecrated my sabbaths. So again I thought to pour out my wrath on them in the wilderness to destroy them. I acted for the honour of my name, that it might not be profaned in the sight of the nations who had seen me bring them out.
- 15 Further, I swore to them in the wilderness with uplifted hand that I would not bring them into the land I had given them, that land flowing with milk and honey, fairest of all lands. For they had rejected my laws, they would not conform to my statutes and they desecrated my sabbaths, because they loved to follow idols of their own.
- 17 Yet I pitied them too much to destroy them and did not make an end of them in the wilderness. I commanded their sons in the wilderness not to conform to their fathers' statutes, nor observe their laws, nor defile themselves with their idols. I said, I am the LORD your God, you must conform to my statutes; you must observe my laws and act according to them. You must keep my sabbaths holy, and they will become a sign between us; so you will know that I am the LORD your God.
- 21 But the sons too rebelled against me. They did not conform to my statutes or observe my laws, though any who had done so would have had life through them, and they desecrated my sabbaths. Again I thought to pour out my wrath and exhaust my anger on them in the wilderness. I acted for the honour of my name, that it might not be profaned in the sight of the nations who had seen me bring them out. Yes, and in the wilderness I swore to them with uplifted hand that I would disperse them among the nations and scatter them abroad, because they had disobeyed my laws, rejected my statutes, desecrated my sabbaths, and turned longing eyes toward the idols of their forefathers. I did more; I imposed on them statutes that were not good statutes, and laws by which they could not win life. I let them defile themselves with gifts to idols; I made them surrender their eldest sons to them so that I might fill them with horror. Thus they would know that I am the LORD.
- 27 Speak then, O man, to the Israelites and say to them, These are the words of the Lord GOD: Once again your forefathers insulted me and broke faith with me: when I brought them into the land which I had sworn with uplifted hand to give them, they marked down every hill-top and every leafy tree, and there they offered their sacrifices, they made the gifts which roused my anger, they set out their offerings of soothing odour and poured out their drink-offerings. I asked them,

1.1; 8.1; 24.1. 9: Honour of his name: not vain concern for reputation, but acute awareness that Israel's welfare flows from, and is identified with, the name, i.e. the reality, of God. 20: The observance of the sabbaths became at this time, and especially in captivity, a visible sign of fidelity to the covenant. 25-26: The surrender of the eldest sons as gifts to idols is seen as one of the laws from God, inasmuch as he directs even the evil deeds of men to their own good. Sacrifices

What is this hill-shrine to which you are going up? And 'hill-shrine' has been its name ever since.

30 So tell the Israelites, These are the words of the Lord GOD: Are you defiling yourselves as your forefathers did? Are you wantonly giving yourselves to their loathsome gods? When 31 you bring your gifts, when you pass your sons through the fire, you are still defiling yourselves in the service of your crowd of idols. How can I let you consult me, men of Israel? As I live, says the Lord GOD, I will not be consulted by you. When you say to yourselves, 'Let us become like the nations and tribes of other lands and worship wood and stone', you are thinking of 32 something that can never be. As I live, says the Lord GOD, I will reign over you with a strong hand, with arm 33 outstretched and wrath outpoured. I will bring you out from the peoples and gather you from the lands over which you have been scattered by my strong hand, my outstretched arm and out-
34 poured wrath. I will bring you into the wilderness of the peoples; there will I confront you, and there will I state my case against you. Even as I did in the wilderness of Egypt against your fore-35 fathers, so will I state my case against you. This is the very word of the Lord GOD.

37 I will pass you under the rod and bring you within the bond<sup>p</sup> of the covenant. I will rid you of those who revolt and rebel against me. I will take them out of the land where they are now living, but they shall not set foot on the soil of Israel. Thus shall you know that I am the LORD.

39 Now, men of Israel, these are the words of the Lord GOD: Go, sweep away your idols, every man of you. So in days to come you will never be disobedient to me or desecrate my holy name with your gifts and your idol-40 atries. But on my holy hill, the lofty hill of Israel, says the Lord GOD, there shall the Israelites serve me in the land, every one of them. There will I receive them with favour; there will I demand your contribution and the best of your offerings, with all your consecrated gifts. I will receive your offerings of 41 soothing odour, when I have brought you out from the peoples and gathered you from the lands where you have been scattered. I, and only I, will have your worship, for all the nations to see.

You will know that I am the LORD, 42 when I bring you home to the soil of Israel, to the land which I swore with uplifted hand to give your forefathers. There you will remember your past ways 43 and all the wanton deeds with which you have defiled yourselves, and will loathe yourselves for all the evils you have done. You will know that I am 44 the LORD, when I have dealt with you, O men of Israel, not as your wicked ways and your vicious deeds deserve but for the honour of my name. This is the very word of the Lord GOD.

These were the words of the LORD 45 to me: Man, turn and face towards 46 Teman<sup>q</sup> and pour out your words to the south; prophesy to the rough country of the Negeb. Say to it, Listen 47 to the words of the LORD. These are the words of the Lord GOD: I will set fire to you, and the fire will consume all the wood, green and dry alike. Its fiery flame shall not be put out, but from the Negeb northwards every face 48 will be scorched by it. All men will see 49 that it is I, the LORD, who have set it ablaze; it shall not be put out. 'Ah no! O Lord GOD,' I cried; 'they say of me, "He deals only in parables."'

These were the words of the LORD 21 to me: Man, turn and face towards 2 Jerusalem, and pour out your words against her sanctuary;<sup>r</sup> prophesy against the land of Israel. Say to the 3 of human infants are condemned in v. 31 and in 16.20; also in Lev.18.21; Jer.7.31. 34-39: The return from exile through the wilderness of the peoples, i.e. the desert of Syria, will be like the Sinai experience relived.

<sup>p</sup> Or muster.                      <sup>q</sup> Or face southward.
<sup>r</sup> her sanctuary: prob. rdg.; Heb. sanctuaries.

20.45-21.32: Parable of the forest fire is the oracle of doom in vv. 45-48. When the people object that Ezekiel is dealing only in parables (v. 49), he gives an explanation (21.1-7). 46: According to some interpreters, Ezekiel, if in Babylon, could not face south and look toward Judah. See Introduction. Negeb: the southern part of Judah. 21.3: The consuming fire (20.47) is the sword which destroys Israel, both of which are attributed to God as the Lord of history.

land of Israel, These are the words of the LORD: I am against you; I will draw my sword from the scabbard and cut off from you both righteous and wicked. It is because I would cut off your righteous and your wicked equally that my sword will be drawn from the scabbard against all men, from the Negeb northwards. All men shall know that I the LORD have drawn my sword; it shall never again be sheathed. Groan in their presence, man, groan bitterly until your lungs are bursting. When they ask you why you are groaning, say to them, 'I groan at the thing I have heard; when it comes, all hearts melt, all courage fails, all hands fall limp, all men's knees run with urine. It is coming. It is here.' This is the very word of the Lord GOD.

These were the words of the LORD to me: Prophecy, man, and say, This is the word of the Lord:

A sword, a sword is sharpened and burnished, sharpened to kill and kill again, burnished to flash<sup>s</sup> like lightning.
 Ah! the club is brandished, my son,
 to defy all wooden idols!
 The sword is given to be burnished ready for the hand to grasp.
 The sword—it is sharpened,
 it is burnished,
 ready to be put into the slayer's hand.

Cry, man, and howl; for all this falls on my people, it falls on Israel's princes who are delivered over to the sword and are slain with my people. Therefore beat your breast in remorse, for it is the test—and what if it is not in truth the club of defiance? This is the very word of the Lord GOD.

But you, man, prophesy and clap your hands together;
 swing the sword twice, thrice;
 it is the sword of slaughter,
 the great sword of slaughter whirling about them.

That their hearts may be troubled and many stumble and fall,
 I have set the threat of the sword at all their gates, the threat of the sword<sup>t</sup> made to flash like lightning and drawn to kill.
 Be sharpened, turn right; be unsheathed, turn left, wherever your point is aimed.

I, too, will clap my hands together and abate my anger. I, the LORD, have spoken. These were the words of the LORD to me: Man, trace out two roads by which the sword of the king of Babylon may come, starting both of them from the same land. Then carve a signpost, carve it at the point where the highway forks. Mark out a road for the sword to come to the Ammonite city of Rabbah, to Judah, and to Jerusalem at the heart of it. For the king of Babylon halts to take the omens at the parting of the ways, where the road divides. He casts lots with arrows, consults teraphim<sup>u</sup> and inspects the livers of beasts. The augur's arrow marked 'Jerusalem' falls at his right hand: here, then,<sup>v</sup> he must raise a shout and sound the battle-cry, set battering-rams against the gates, pile siege-ramps and build watch-towers. It may well seem to the people that the auguries are false, whereas they will put me in mind of their wrongdoing, and they will fall into the enemies' hand. These therefore are the words of the Lord GOD: Because you have kept me mindful of your wrongdoing by your open rebellion, and your sins have been revealed in all your acts, because you have kept yourselves in my mind, you will fall into the enemies' hand by force.

You, too, you impious and wicked prince of Israel, your fate has come upon you in the hour of final punishment. These are the words of the Lord

<sup>s</sup> to flash: prob. rdg.; Heb. unintelligible.
<sup>t</sup> the threat of the sword: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure in context.
<sup>u</sup> Or household gods.
<sup>v</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds he must set battering-rams.

8-17: This song of the sword is a poetic description of the coming catastrophe. 20: Rabbah is modern Amman, the capital of Jordan. 21: Three forms of divination are used; the result of only one is given: arrows inscribed with alternatives, shaken in a quiver, and then drawn. 23-24: The auguries do not bind the Lord but only put him in mind of Israel's rebellion against him. 25: Wicked prince: Zedekiah. See 7.2, 3, 7; 12.10; 17.19; 35.5; 2 Chr.36.11-13; Jer.52.2.

GOD: Put off your diadem, lay aside your crown. All is changed; raise the low and bring down the high. Ruin! Ruin! I will bring about such ruin as never was before, until the rightful sovereign comes. Then I will give him all. Man, prophesy and say, These are the words of the Lord GOD to the Ammonites and to their shameful god:

A sword, a sword drawn for slaughter, burnished for destruction,<sup>w</sup> to flash like lightning!
 29 Your visions are false, your auguries a lie, which bid you bring it<sup>x</sup> down upon the necks of impious and wicked men, whose fate has come upon them in the hour of final punishment.
 30 Sheathe it again. I will judge you in the place where you were born, the land of your origin.
 31 I will pour out my rage upon you; I will breathe out my blazing wrath over you. I will hand you over to brutal men, skilled in destruction.
 32 You shall become fuel for fire, your blood shall be shed within the land and you shall leave no memory behind.

For I, the LORD, have spoken.

22 These were the words of the LORD to me: Man, will you judge her, will you judge the murderous city and bring home to her all her abominable deeds? Say to her, These are the words of the Lord GOD: Alas for the city that sheds blood within her walls and brings her fate upon herself, the city that makes herself idols and is defiled thereby! The guilt is yours for the blood you have shed, the pollution is on you for the idols you have made. You have shortened your days by this and brought the end of your years nearer. This is why I exposed you to the contempt of the nations and the mockery of every country. Lands far and near will taunt you with your infamy and gross disorder. In you the princes of Israel, one and all, have used their power to shed blood; men have treated their fathers and mothers with contempt, they have oppressed the alien and ill-treated the orphan and the widow. You have disdained what is sacred to me and desecrated my sabbaths. In you, Jerusalem, informers have worked to procure bloodshed; in you are men who have feasted at mountain-shrines and have committed lewdness. In you men have exposed their fathers' nakedness; they have violated women during their periods; they have committed an outrage with their neighbours' wives and have lewdly defiled their daughters-in-law; they have ravished their sisters, their own fathers' daughters. In you men have accepted bribes to shed blood, and they have exacted discount and interest on their loans. You have oppressed your fellows for gain, and you have forgotten me. This is the very word of the Lord GOD.

See, I strike with my clenched fist in anger at your ill-gotten gains and at the bloodshed within your walls. Will your strength or courage stand when I deal with you? I, the LORD, have spoken and I will act. I will disperse you among the nations and scatter you abroad; thus will I rid you altogether of your defilement. I will sift you in the sight of the nations, and you will know that I am the LORD.

<sup>w</sup> for destruction: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.

<sup>x</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. you.

<sup>y</sup> I will sift you: or You will be profaned.

28-32: The song of the sword depicts for Ammon the same fate as for Judah in vv. 8-17.

22.1-31: The docket of crimes committed by the city and by various classes of citizens. Three indictments are given, in legal form, each followed by an appropriate sentence: vv. 1-12, against the population of Jerusalem in general, vv. 13-16 being the sentence; 17-18, against other Israelites who took refuge in the city, with the sentence in 19-22; 23-30, against specific classes for their various abuses of civic, religious and social authority or responsibility, with v. 31 as the sentence. 3: Sheds blood: bloody violence, or sins which demand the death penalty as in vv. 10-11. 10-11: These acts, according to Lev. 18.6-30, are prohibited. 12: Two forms of exacting interest were apparently in use: discount (Heb. "bite"), taking a cut at the time of loan; and interest (Heb. "increase"), demanding at time of payment more than was lent.

17 These were the words of the LORD 18 to me: Man, to me all Israelites are an alloy, their silver alloyed with copper, 19 tin, iron, and lead.<sup>z</sup> Therefore, these are the words of the Lord GOD:
 because you have all become alloyed,
 I will gather you together into Jeru-20 salem, as a mass of silver, copper, iron, lead, and tin is gathered into a crucible for the fire to be blown to full heat to melt them. So will I gather you in my anger and wrath, set you there and 21 melt you; I will collect you and blow up the fire of my anger until you are melted 22 within it. You will be melted as silver is melted in a crucible, and you will know that I, the LORD, have poured out my anger upon you.

23 These were the words of the LORD 24 to me: Man, say to Jerusalem, You are like a land on which no rain has fallen;
 no shower has come down upon you<sup>a</sup> 25 in the days of indignation. The princes within her are like lions growling as they tear their prey. They have devoured men, and seized their treasure and all their wealth; they have widowed many women within her 26 walls. Her priests have done violence to my law<sup>b</sup> and profaned what is sacred to me. They make no distinction between sacred and common, and lead men to see no difference between clean and unclean. They have disregarded my sabbaths, and I am dishonoured 27 among them. Her officers within her are like wolves tearing their prey, shedding blood and destroying men's 28 lives to acquire ill-gotten gain. Her prophets use whitewash instead of plaster;<sup>c</sup> their vision is false and their divination a lie. They say, 'This is the word of the Lord GOD', when the LORD 29 has not spoken. The common people are bullies and robbers; they ill-treat the unfortunate and the poor, they are unjust and cruel to the alien. I looked 30 for a man among them who could build up a barricade, who could stand before me in the breach to defend the land from ruin; but I found no such man.

 I poured out my indignation upon them 31 and utterly destroyed them in the fire of my wrath. Thus I brought on them the punishment they had deserved.
 This is the very word of the Lord GOD.

The word of the LORD came to me: 23
 Man, he said, there were once two 2 women, daughters of the same mother.
 They played the whore in Egypt, 3 played the whore while they were still girls; for there they let their breasts be fondled and their virgin bosoms pressed. The elder was named 4 Oholah, her sister Oholibah. They became mine and bore me sons and daughters. 'Oholah' is Samaria, 'Oholi-bah' Jerusalem. While she owed me 5 obedience Oholah played the whore and was infatuated with her Assyrian lovers, staff officers in blue,<sup>d</sup> viceroy 6 and governors, handsome young cavaliers all of them, riding on horseback.
 She played the whore with all of them, 7 the flower of the Assyrian youth; and she let herself be defiled with all their idols, wherever her lust led her. She 8 never gave up the whorish ways she had learnt in Egypt, where men had lain with her when young, had pressed her virgin bosom and overwhelmed her with their fornication. So I abandoned 9 her to her lovers, the Assyrians, with whom she was infatuated. They rav-10 ished her, they took her sons and daughters, and they killed her with the sword. She became a byword among

<sup>z</sup> their silver . . . lead: prob. rdg.: Heb. copper, tin, iron, and lead inside a crucible; they are an alloy, silver. <sup>a</sup> Prob. rdg.: Heb. it. <sup>b</sup> Or instruction. <sup>c</sup> Cp. 13. 8-16. <sup>d</sup> Or violet.

20: Into Jerusalem: possibly an allusion to refugees fleeing before the advancing Babylonian army.

23.1-49: Allegorical tale of two cities. Similar in literary form to ch. 16, but there the emphasis is on cultic infidelity, here on political instability. 1-3: The two women are the two capital cities: Samaria standing for the Northern Kingdom Israel, and Jerusalem for the Southern Kingdom Judah. Played the whore in Egypt as girls: the patriarchs, ancestors of the two kingdoms, descended into Egypt in search of food. Their progeny, making use of Egypt's power and wealth (see Gen. chs. 40-50), presumably fell into idolatry and were subsequently enslaved (Exod. 1.1-14). Such events set the pattern, allegorically, of the two women's adult life. 4: Oholah: lit. "she who has a tent" (or: "her [own] tent"), that is, the Northern Kingdom; Oholibah: lit. "my tent [is] in her," is the Southern. "Tent" probably means the place of worship, Oholah having her own schismatic worship (see 1 Kgs. 12.25-33), and Oholibah being the sanctuary in Jerusalem where the Ark was kept (2 Sam. 6.17). 5-10: Because political women, and judgement was passed upon her.

11 Oholibah, her sister, had watched her, and she gave herself up to lust and played the whore worse than her sister.
 12 She, too, was infatuated with Assyrians, viceroys, governors and staff officers, all handsome young cavaliers, in full 13 dress, riding on horseback. I found that she too had let herself be defiled; both 14 had gone the same way; but she carried her fornication to greater lengths: she saw male figures carved on the wall, sculptured forms of Chaldaeans, picked 15 out in vermilion. Belts were round their waists, and on their heads turbans with dangling ends. All seemed to be high officers and looked like Babylonians, 16 natives of Chaldea. As she looked she was infatuated with them, so she sent messengers to Chaldea for them. And 17 the Babylonians came to her to share her bed, and defiled her with fornication; she was defiled by them until she 18 was filled with revulsion. She made no secret that she was a whore but let herself be ravished until I was filled with 19 her sister. She played the whore again and again, remembering how in her youth she had played the whore in 20 Egypt. She was infatuated with their male prostitutes, whose members were like those of asses and whose seed came 21 in floods like that of horses. So, Oholibah, you relived the lewdness of your girlhood in Egypt when you let your bosom be pressed and your breasts fondled.<sup>e</sup>

22 Therefore these are the words of the Lord God: I will rouse them against you, Oholibah, those lovers of yours who have filled you with revulsion, and bring them upon you from every side, 23 the Babylonians and all those Chaldaeans, men of Pekod, Shoa, and Koa, and all the Assyrians with them. Handsome young men they are, viceroys and governors, commanders and staff officers,<sup>f</sup> riding on horseback.
 24 They will come against you with war-horses, with chariots and wagons, with a host drawn from the nations, armed with shield, buckler, and helmet; they will beset you on every side. I will give them authority to judge, and they will use that authority to judge you. I will 25 turn my jealous wrath loose on you, and they will make you feel their fury. They will cut off your nose and your ears, and in the end you<sup>g</sup> will fall by the sword.<sup>h</sup> They will strip you of your 26 clothes and take away all your finery. So I will put a stop to your lewdness 27 and the way in which you learnt to play the whore in Egypt. You will never cast longing eyes on such things again, never remember Egypt any more.

These are the words of the Lord
 28 God: I am handing you over to those whom you hate, those who have filled you with revulsion; and they will make 29 you feel their hatred. They will take all you have earned and leave you naked and exposed; that body with which you have played the whore will be ravished. It is your lewdness and your fornication that have brought this upon you, 30 it is because you have followed alien peoples and played the whore and have allowed yourself to be defiled with their idols. You have followed in your sister's 31 footsteps, and I will put her cup into your hand.

These are the words of the Lord
 32 God:

You shall drink from your sister's cup,
 a cup deep and wide,
 charged with mockery and scorn,
 more than ever cup can hold.
 It<sup>i</sup> will be full of drunkenness and 33 grief,
 a cup of ruin and desolation,
 the cup of your sister Samaria;
 and you shall drink it to the dregs. 34

<sup>e</sup> fondled: prob. rdg.; Heb. unintelligible.
<sup>f</sup> staff officers: prob. rdg., cp. verses 5 and 12; Heb. obscure.

<sup>g</sup> in the end you; or your successors.
<sup>h</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds They will take your sons and daughters, and in the end you will be burnt.

<sup>i</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. You.

alliances implied a lack of trust in God's power, the prophets considered reliance on them as playing the whore. God abandoned Samaria in 721 B.C., when she was destroyed by the Assyrians and her people taken into captivity; see 2 Kgs.17.5-6. 12: Oholibah (Judah) was infatuated with Assyrians, when Ahaz, king of Judah (735-715 B.C.), courted their favor (2 Kgs.16.7-9). 32: Samaria's fate (destruction of 721 B.C.) will be Jerusalem's cup in the destruction and Then you will chew<sup>j</sup> it in pieces and tear out your breasts.

This is my verdict, says the Lord GOD.

35 Therefore, these are the words of the Lord GOD: Because you have forgotten me and flung me behind your back, you must bear the guilt of your lewdness and your fornication.

36 The LORD said to me, Man, will you judge Oholah and Oholibah? Then 37 tax them with their vile offences. They have committed adultery, and there is blood on their hands. They have committed adultery with their idols and offered my children to them for food, 38 the children they had borne me. This too they have done to me: they have polluted my sanctuary and desecrated 39 my sabbaths. They came into my sanctuary and desecrated it by slaughtering their sons as an offering to their idols; this they did in my own house.

40 They would send for men from a far-off country; and the men came at the messenger's bidding. You bathed your body for these men, you painted your eyes, decked yourself in your finery, 41 you sat yourself upon a bed of state and had a table put ready before it and laid my own incense and my own oil 42 on it. Loud were the voices of the light-hearted crowd; and besides ordinary folk Sabaeans were there, brought from the wilderness; they put bracelets on the women's hands and beautiful gar-43 lands on their heads. I thought: Ah that woman, grown old in adultery!
Now they will commit fornication with 44 her—with her of all women! They resorted to her as a prostitute; they resorted to Oholah and Oholibah, 45 those lewd women. Upright men will condemn them for their adultery and bloodshed; for adulterous they are, and blood is on their hands.

46 These are the words of the Lord GOD: Summon the invading host;

abandon them to terror and rapine.
Let the host stone them and hack them 47 to pieces with their swords, kill their sons and daughters and burn down their houses. Thus I will put an end 48 to lewdness in the land, and other women shall be taught not to be as lewd as they. You shall pay the penalty 49 for your lewd conduct and be punished for your idolatries, and you will know that I am the Lord GOD.

These were the words of the LORD, 24 spoken to me on the tenth day of the tenth month in the ninth year: Man, write down a name for this day, 2 this very day: This is the day the king of Babylon invested Jerusalem. Sing a 3 song of derision to this people of rebels; say to them, These are the words of the Lord GOD:

Set a cauldron on the fire,
set it on and pour water into it.
Into it collect the pieces, 4
all the choice pieces,
cram it with leg and shoulder and the best of the bones;
take the best of the flock. 5 Pack the logs<sup>k</sup> round it underneath; seethe the stew
and boil the bones in it.

O city running with blood, 6
O pot green with corrosion, corrosion that will never be clean!

Therefore these are the words of the Lord GOD:

Empty it, piece after piece,
though no lot is cast for any of them.
The city had blood in her midst 7 and she poured it out on the gleaming rock,
not on the ground: she did not pour it there
for the dust to cover it.

j Or dash. k Prob. rdg., cp. verse 10; Heb. bones.

captivity of 587 B.C. 40-44: Unknown contemporary political events seem to be indicated. 42: Sabaeans: inhabitants of Sheba, a land of traders in the southwest corner of the Arabian peninsula, probably modern Yemen.

24.1-27: Jerusalem is besieged: Verses 1-14 are an elaboration and interpretation of 11.3-13. 1: The date is probably January 18, 588 B.C.; compare 2 Kgs. 25.1. 3-5: Into the cauldron (Jerusalem) are collected the choice pieces (the nobility); the Babylonians apply the fire (siege), thus fulfilling in a tragic sense the optimistic allegory of 11.3. 6: Their expected security destroyed, the nobles will be taken out piece after piece indiscriminately because the cauldron is full of corrosion. 7: Blood, the source of life, and thus somehow divine, is to be covered by

- 8 But I too have spilt blood on the gleaming white rock so that it cannot be covered, to make anger flare up and to call down vengeance.
- 9 Therefore these are the words of the Lord GOD:

- O city running with blood, I too will make a great fire-pit.
- 10 Fill it with logs, light the fire; make an end of the meat, pour out all the broth<sup>l</sup> and the bones with it.<sup>m</sup>
- 11 Then set the pot empty on the coals so that its copper may be heated red-hot, and then the impurities in it may be melted and its corrosion burnt off.
- 12 Try as you may,<sup>n</sup> the corrosion is so deep that it will not come off; only fire will rid it of corrosion for you.
- 13 Even so, when I cleansed you in your filthy lewdness, you did not become clean from it, and therefore you shall never again be clean until I have satisfied my anger against you.
- 14 I, the LORD, have spoken; the time is coming, I will act. I will not refrain nor pity nor relent; I will judge you for your conduct and for all that you have done. This is the very word of the Lord GOD.

- 15 These were the words of the LORD
- 16 to me: Man, I am taking from you at one blow the dearest thing you have, but you must not wail or weep or give
- 17 way to tears. Keep in good heart; be quiet, and make no mourning for the dead; cover your head as usual and put sandals on your feet. You shall not cover your upper lip in mourning nor eat the bread of despair.

I spoke to the people in the morning; and that very evening my wife died. Next morning I did as I was told. The people asked me to say what meaning my behaviour had for them. I answered, These were the words of the LORD to me: Tell the Israelites, This is the word of the Lord GOD: I will desecrate my sanctuary, which has been the pride of your strength, the delight of your eyes and your heart's desire; and the sons and daughters whom you have left behind shall fall by the sword. But, I said, you shall do as I have done: you shall not cover your upper lip in mourning nor eat the bread of despair. You shall cover your head and put sandals on your feet; you shall not wail nor weep. Because of your wickedness you will pine away and will lament to<sup>o</sup> one another. The LORD says, Ezekiel will be a sign to warn you, and when it happens you will do as he has done, and you will know that I am the Lord GOD.

And now, man, a word for you: I am taking from them that fortress whose beauty so gladdened them, the delight of their eyes, their heart's desire; I am taking their sons and their daughters. Soon fugitives will come and tell you their news by word of mouth. At once you will recover the power of speech and speak with the fugitives; you will no longer be dumb. So will you be a portent to them, and they shall know that I am the LORD.

Prophecies against foreign nations

THESE WERE THE WORDS OF THE LORD 25
to me: Man, look towards the Ammonites and prophesy against them. 2

<sup>l</sup> I pour . . . broth: prob. rdg.; Heb. mix ointment.
<sup>m</sup> with it: prob. rdg.; Heb. will be scorched.
<sup>n</sup> Try as you may: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.
<sup>o</sup> Or for.

dust and forbidden to human contact. See Gen.9.4-6; Lev.17.13-14. Blood poured on gleaming rock shows flagrant disregard for life and its divine origin. 15-24: Ezekiel, at the double tragedy of his wife's death and the impending destruction of the Temple, is so numbed by grief that he cannot perform the ordinary rituals of mourning (v. 17) so important in the Near East. 26: Soon: lit. "on the very day." That fugitives could arrive so quickly again raises the question of where Ezekiel was preaching, in Babylon or in Palestine. See Introduction.

25.1-32.32: Judgment passed against enemy nations. The sin of the nations is twofold: the arrogance of powerful nations like Egypt, Tyre, and Babylon that exalt themselves at the

3 Say to the Ammonites, Listen to the word of the Lord GOD. These are his words: Because you cried 'Aha!' when you saw my holy place desecrated, the soil of Israel laid waste and the people
4 of Judah sent into exile, I will hand you over as a possession to the tribes of the east. They shall pitch their camps and put up their dwellings among you; they shall eat your crops;
5 they shall drink your milk. I will make Rabbah a camel-pasture and Ammon a sheep-walk. Thus you shall know that
6 I am the LORD. These are the words of the Lord GOD: Because you clapped your hands and stamped your feet, and exulted over the land of Israel with 7 single-minded scorn, I will stretch out my hand over you and make you the prey of the nations and cut you off from all other peoples; in every land I will exterminate you and bring you to utter ruin. Thus you shall know that I am the LORD.

8 These are the words of the Lord GOD: Because Moab said, 'Judah is like all the rest', I will expose the flank of Moab and lay open its cities,<sup>p</sup> from one end to the other—the fairest of its cities: Beth-jeshimoth, Baal-meon and 10 Kiriathaim. I will hand over Moab and Ammon together to the tribes of the east to be their possession, so that the Ammonites shall not be remembered 11 among the nations, and so that I may execute judgement upon Moab. Thus they shall know that I am the LORD.

12 These are the words of the Lord

GOD: Because Edom took deliberate revenge on Judah and by so doing incurred lasting guilt, I will stretch my 13 hand out over Edom, says the Lord GOD, and destroy both man and beast in it, laying waste the land from Teman as far as Dedan; they shall fall by the sword. I will wreak my vengeance upon 14 Edom through my people Israel. They will deal with Edom as my anger and fury demand, and it shall feel my vengeance. This is the very word of the Lord GOD.

These are the words of the Lord
15 GOD: Because the Philistines have taken deliberate revenge and have avenged themselves with single-minded scorn, giving vent to their age-long enmity in destruction, I will stretch out 16 my hand over the Philistines, says the Lord GOD, I will wipe out the Kerethites and destroy all the rest of the dwellers by the sea. I will take fearful 17 vengeance upon them and punish them in my fury. When I take my vengeance, they shall know that I am the LORD.

These were the words of the LORD to 26 me on the first day of the first month in the eleventh year: Man, Tyre has 2 said of Jerusalem,

Aha! she that was the gateway of
the nations
is broken,
her gates swing open to me;
I grow rich, she lies in ruins.

<sup>p</sup> and lay . . . cities: prob. rdg.; Heb. from the cities, from its cities.

expense of God; and the meanness of Israel's weak neighbors, Edom and Moab, that exalt themselves by preying on God's people. The first act in the restoration of Israel is the judgment passed upon the nations. See 36.7.

25.1–17: Oracles against Israel's neighbors. Apparently written after the destruction of Jerusalem, these oracles are cast in the form of a lawsuit against the nations, i.e. an indictment and a sentence: "because . . . therefore." 1–7: Ammonites: people inhabiting the east side of the Jordan just north of the Dead Sea. Partners with Judah in the conspiracy against Nebuchadnezzar, they despoiled their prostrate ally; see Jer.49.1–2. 4: Tribes of the east are nomadic Arabs. 8–11: Moab: directly south of Ammon and east of the Dead Sea. Most of its cities were situated on the flank of Moab, the steep but rounded eastern shore of that sea. 12–14: Inhabiting the region south of the Dead Sea before the destruction of Jerusalem, Edom profited from Judah's tragedy by occupying the southern half of her territory. For traditional hostility between Judah and Edom see Gen.27.41; 36.6–8. Teman . . . Dedan: Edomite cities to the southeast of the Dead Sea. 15–17: The Philistines and their kinsmen the Kerethites (both living on the Mediterranean coast, though by then greatly diminished) also plundered prostrate Judah.

26.1–21: Tyre will be swept from the sea. Tyre, an ancient Phoenician port (in modern Lebanon) was the heart of a commercial and cultural empire. Its traditional friendship with Israel (1 Kgs. ch. 5) wins it a fate less harsh. 1: Eleventh year: approximately April 22, 587 B.C. 2: Caravans to

3 Therefore these are the words of the Lord GOD:

I am against you, Tyre, and will bring up many nations
against you
as the sea brings up its waves; 4 they will destroy the walls of Tyre and pull down her towers.

I will scrape the soil off her and make her a gleaming rock, 5 she shall be an islet where men spread their nets;

I have spoken, says the Lord GOD.
She shall become the prey of
nations,
6 and her daughters<sup>q</sup> shall be slain by the sword in the open country.

Thus they shall know that I am the LORD.

7 These are the words of the Lord GOD: I am bringing against Tyre from the north Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon, king of kings. He will come with horses and chariots, with cavalry and a great army.

8 Your daughters in the open country he will put to the sword. He will set up watch-towers against you, pile up siege-ramps against you and raise against you a screen of shields.

9 He will launch his battering-rams on your walls and break down your towers with his axes.

10 He will cover you with dust from the thousands of his cavalry; at the thunder of his horses and of his chariot-wheels your walls will quake when he enters your gates as men enter a city that is breached.

11 He will trample all your streets with the hooves of his horses and put your people to the sword, and your strong pillars will fall to the ground.

Your wealth will become spoil, 12 your merchandise will be plundered, your walls levelled,
your pleasant houses pulled down, your stones, your timber and your rubble will be dumped into the sea.

So I will silence the clamour of 13
your songs,
and the sound of your harps shall be heard no more.

I will make you a gleaming rock, 14
a place for fishermen to spread their nets, and you shall never be rebuilt.

I, the LORD, have spoken.
This is the very word of the Lord GOD.

These are the words of the Lord 15
GOD to Tyre: How the coasts and islands will shake at the sound of your downfall, while the wounded groan, and the slaughter goes on in your midst! Then all the sea-kings will 16 come down from their thrones, and lay aside their cloaks, and strip off their brocaded robes. They will wear coarse loin-cloths; they will sit on the ground, shuddering at every moment, horror-struck at your fate. Then they will raise 17 this dirge over you:

How you are undone, swept from the sea,

O famous city!
You whose strength lay in the sea,
you and your inhabitants, who spread their terror throughout the mainland.<sup>r</sup>

Now the coast-lands tremble on the 18
day of your downfall,
and the isles of the sea are appalled at your passing.

For these are the words of the Lord 19
GOD: When I make you a desolate city, like a city where no man can live, when I bring up the primeval ocean

<sup>q</sup> Or daughter-towns.

<sup>r</sup> the mainland: prob. rdg.; Heb. her inhabitants.

Tyre from Mesopotamia, Arabia, and Egypt had to pay duty to use Israelite territory as a gateway. 3: Tyre, built on an island a half mile from shore, will be overrun by nations, just as it is washed by the sea waves in a storm. 4: Rock: a play on words since "rock" and "Tyre" are identical in Heb. 8: A screen of shields: probably an offensive military technique. 14: Tyre

- 20 against you and the great waters cover you, I will thrust you down with those that descend to the abyss, to the dead of all the ages. I will make you dwell in the underworld as in places long desolate, with those that go down to the abyss. So you will never again be inhabited or take your place in the land of the living. I will bring you to a fearful end, and you shall be no more; men may look for you but will never find you again. This is the very word of the Lord GOD.
- 27 These were the words of the LORD to me: Man, raise a dirge over Tyre and say, Tyre, throned above your harbours, you who carry the trade of the nations to many coasts and islands, these are the words of the Lord GOD:
- men of Pharas,<sup>t</sup> Lud,<sup>u</sup> and Put, 10 served
as warriors in your army;
they hung shield and helmet around you,
and it was they who gave you your glory.
- Men of Arvad and Cilicia manned 11
all your walls,
men of Gammad were posted on your towers and hung their shields around your battlements;
it was they who made your beauty perfect.

- Tarshish was a source of your 12 commerce, from its abundant resources offering silver and iron, tin and lead, as your staple wares. Javan,<sup>v</sup> Tubal, 13 and Meshech dealt with you, offering slaves and vessels of bronze as your imports. Men from Togarmah offered 14 horses, mares, and mules as your staple wares. Rhodians dealt with you, great 15 islands were a source of your commerce, paying what was due to you in ivory and ebony. Edom was a source of 16 your commerce, so many were your undertakings, and offered purple garnets, brocade and fine linen, black coral and red jasper,<sup>w</sup> for your staple wares. Judah and Israel dealt with you, offering 17 wheat from Minnith, and meal, syrup, oil, and balsam, as your imports. Damascus was a source of your 18 commerce, so many were your undertakings, from its abundant resources offering wine of Helbon and wool of Suhar, and casks of wine from Izalla,<sup>x</sup> 19 for your staple wares; wrought iron, cassia, and sweet cane were among your imports. Dedan dealt with you in coarse woollens for saddle-cloths. 20 Arabia and all the chiefs of Kedar were 21 the source of your commerce in lambs, rams, and he-goats; this was your trade
- O Tyre, you said,
'I am perfect in beauty.'
4 Your frontiers are on the high seas, your builders made your beauty perfect;
5 they fashioned all your timbers of pine from Senir;
they took a cedar from Lebanon to raise up a mast over you.
6 They made your oars of oaks from Bashan;
they made your deck strong<sup>s</sup> with box-wood from the coasts of Kittim.
7 Your canvas was linen, patterned linen from Egypt to make your sails;
your awnings were violet and purple from the coasts of Elishah.
8 Men of Sidon and Arvad became your oarsmen;
you had skilled men within you, O Tyre, who served as your helmsmen.
9 You had skilled veterans from Gebal caulking your seams.
You had all sea-going ships and their sailors to market your wares;
- s strong: prob. rdg.; Heb. ivory. t Or Persia.
u Or Lydia. v Or Ionia. w Or and carbuncles.
x casks . . . Izalla: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.

was not rebuilt after its destruction by Alexander in 332 B.C. 20: Abyss: Sheol, the place of the dead; see 31.15-18.

27.1-28.19: Dirge over Tyre. The lament is in traditional dirge meter called the qinah. Tyre is like a stately ship, carrying an expert crew, rich passengers and rare cargo, that founders. 5: Senir: Mount Hermon near Damascus. 6: Bashan: plateau east of the Sea of Galilee mentioned for its oaks in Isa.2.13. Kittim: Cyprus. 10-25a: This section, in which the metaphor shifts from a ship to a fortified city and the language from poetry to prose, is possibly an

22 with them. Dealers from Sheba and Raamah dealt with you, offering the choicest spices, every kind of precious stone and gold, as your staple wares.

23 Harran, Kanneh, and Eden, dealers from Asshur and all Media, dealt with you; they were your dealers in gorgeous stuffs, violet cloths and brocades, in stores of coloured fabric rolled up and tied with cords; your dealings with them were in these.

25 Ships of Tarshish were the caravans for your imports; you were deeply laden with full cargoes on the high seas.

26 Your oarsmen brought you into many waters, but on the high seas an east wind wrecked you.

27 Your wealth, your staple wares, your imports, your sailors and your helmsmen, your caulkers, your merchants, and your warriors, all your ship's company, all who were with you, were flung into the sea on the day of your disaster;

28 at the cries of your helmsmen the troubled waters tossed.

29 When all the rowers disembark from their ships, when the sailors, the helmsmen all together, go ashore,

30 they exclaim over your fate, they cry out bitterly; they throw dust on their heads and sprinkle themselves with ashes.

31 They tear out their hair at your plight and put on sackcloth; they weep bitterly over you, bitterly wailing.

32 In their lamentation they raise a dirge over you, and this is their dirge:
Who was like Tyre,
with her buildings piled<sup>y</sup> off shore?

When your wares were unloaded off the sea 33 you met the needs of many nations; with your vast resources and your imports you enriched the kings of the earth.

Now you are broken by the sea 34
in deep water;
your wares and all your company are gone overboard.

All who dwell on the coasts and islands 35
are aghast at your fate;
horror is written on the faces of their kings and their hair stands on end.

Among the nations the merchants 36
jeer in derision at you;
you have come to a fearful end and shall be no more for ever.

These were the words of the LORD to me: Man, say to the prince of Tyre, This is the word of the Lord God:

In your arrogance you say,
'I am a god;
I sit throned like a god on the high seas.'

Though you are a man and no god, you try to think the thoughts of a god.

What? are you wiser than Danel?<sup>z</sup> Is no secret too dark for you? Clever and shrewd as you are, you have amassed wealth for yourself, you have amassed gold and silver in your treasuries;
by great cleverness in your trading you have heaped up riches, and with your riches your arrogance has grown.

Therefore these are the words of the Lord GOD:

Because you try to think the thoughts of a god

<sup>y</sup> with her buildings piled: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.
<sup>z</sup> Or, as otherwise read, Daniel; cp. 14. 14, 20.

interpolation. 26: The east wind, death-dealing on sea (Ps.48.7) and land (Jer.18.17) alike, probably symbolizes Nebuchadnezzar, as in 17.10. 28.1-3: Blinded by arrogance, the city scorned its national hero Danel, who, a model of true wisdom (14.14 n.), had placed his sagacity at the service of the gods, of widows and orphans. 4-10: Thinking its power and wisdom

- 7 I will bring strangers against you,
the most ruthless of nations, who will draw their swords against your fine wisdom
and lay your pride in the dust, 8 sending you down to the pit<sup>a</sup> to die
a death of disgrace on the high seas.
9 Will you dare to say that you are a god
when you face your assailants, though you are a man and no god in the hands of those who lay you low?
10 You will die strengthless at the hands of strangers.

For I have spoken. This is the very word of the Lord GOD.

- 11 These were the words of the LORD to 12 me: Man, raise this dirge over the king of Tyre, and say to him, This is the word of the Lord GOD:

You set the seal on perfection;
full of wisdom you were and altogether beautiful.

- 13 You were in an Eden, a garden of God,
adorned with gems of every kind:
sardin and chrysolite and jade, topaz, cornelian and green jasper, lapis lazuli,<sup>b</sup> purple garnet and green felspar.

Your jingling beads were of gold, and the spangles you wore were made for you
on the day of your birth.

- 14 I set you with a towering cherub<sup>c</sup>
as guardian;
you were on God's holy hill and you walked proudly among stones that flashed with fire.

- 15 You were blameless in all your ways from the day of your birth until your iniquity came to light.

- 16 Your commerce grew so great, lawlessness filled your heart and you went wrong,

so I brought you down in disgrace
from the mountain of God, and the guardian cherub banished you<sup>d</sup> from among the stones that flashed like fire.

Your beauty made you arrogant, 17 you misused your wisdom to increase your dignity.

I flung you to the ground,
I left you there, a sight for kings to see.

So great was your sin in your wicked 18 trading
that you desecrated your sanctuaries.

So I kindled a fire within you,
and it devoured you.

I left you as ashes on the ground for all to see.

All among the nations who knew 19
you were aghast:
you came to a fearful end and shall be no more for ever.

These were the words of the LORD to 20
me: Man, look towards Sidon and 21 prophesy against her. These are the 22
words of the Lord GOD:

Sidon, I am against you and I will show my glory in your midst.

Men will know that I am the LORD when I execute judgement upon her and thereby prove my holiness.

I will let loose pestilence upon her 23 and bloodshed in her streets;
the slain will fall in her streets, beset on all sides by the sword;
then men will know that I am the
LORD.

No longer shall the Israelites suffer 24

<sup>a</sup> Or to destruction. <sup>b</sup> Or sapphire.
<sup>c</sup> I set . . . cherub; prob. rdg.; Heb. You were a towering cherub whom I set.
<sup>d</sup> and the . . . you: or and I parted you, O guardian cherub, . . .

unlimited, as it amassed wealth for its own glorification, Tyre will find a fool's fate. 11-19: Though Tyre had, like a cherub in the Temple (God's holy hill), enjoyed familiarity with God, he scorned such honor in favor of his own dignity, achieved by wicked trading. Some interpreters see in the passage allusions to unknown creation myths; others, an allegory on Tyre's ancient and long-standing alliance with Israel (1 Kgs.5.1-18), ended when the high priest Jehoiada cast Queen Athaliah—daughter of the Tyrian princess Jezebel—out of the temple. See 2 Kgs.11.13-16. Cut off from God's people, Tyre's doom was sealed.

28.20-24: Sidon denounced. Sidon, a Phoenician city north of Tyre, merits punishment as an accomplice in the fatal rebellion against Babylon; see Jer.27.3.

from the scorn of their neighbours, the pricking of briars and scratching of thorns, and they shall know that I am the Lord GOD.

25 These are the words of the Lord GOD: When I gather the Israelites from the peoples among whom they are scattered, I shall thereby prove my holiness in the sight of all nations. They shall live on their native soil, which I 26 gave to my servant Jacob. They shall live there in peace of mind, build houses and plant vineyards; they shall live there in peace of mind when I execute judgement on all their scornful neighbours. Thus they shall know that I am the LORD their God.

29 These were the words of the LORD to me on the twelfth day of the tenth 2 month in the tenth year: Man, look towards Pharaoh king of Egypt and prophesy against him and all his 3 country. Say, These are the words of the Lord GOD:

I am against you,
Pharaoh king of Egypt,
you great monster,
lurking in the streams of the Nile.
You have said, 'My Nile is my own;
it was I who made it.'

4 I will put hooks in your jaws and make them cling<sup>e</sup> to your scales.
I will hoist you out of its streams with all its fish clinging to your scales.

5 I will fling you into the
wilderness,
you and all the fish in your streams;
you will fall on the bare ground with none to pick you up and bury
you;

I will make you food
for beasts and for birds.

So all who live in Egypt will know 6 that I am the LORD, for the support that you gave to the Israelites
was no better than a reed, which splintered in the hand when 7 they grasped you,
and tore their armpits;
when they leaned upon you, you snapped
and their limbs gave way.

This therefore is the word of the 8 Lord GOD: I am bringing a sword upon you to destroy both man and beast.
The land of Egypt shall become a 9 desolate waste, and they shall know that I am the LORD, because you said,
'The Nile is mine; it was I who made 10 it.' I am against you therefore, you and your Nile, and I will make Egypt desolate, wasted by drought, from Migdol to Syene and up to the very frontier of Cush. No foot of man 11 shall pass through it, no foot of beast;
it shall lie uninhabited for forty years.
I will make the land of Egypt the most 12 desolate of desolate lands; her cities shall lie derelict among the ruined cities. For forty years shall they lie derelict, and I will scatter the Egyptians among the nations and disperse them among the lands.

These are the words of the Lord 13 GOD: At the end of forty years I will gather the Egyptians from the peoples among whom they are scattered. I will 14 turn the fortunes of Egypt and bring them back to Pathros, the land of their origin, where they shall become a petty kingdom. She shall be the most 15 paltry of kingdoms and never again

<sup>e</sup> make them cling: prob. rdg.; Heb. make the fish of your streams cling.

28.25-26: Israel, restored, will experience God's holiness, and will witness it to the nations. 29.1-32.32: Egypt shall become a desolate waste. From Israel's beginning as a nation, Egypt either oppressed it like a slave master or abused it by fickle alliances; see 29.6-7. The reed conveys the latter idea for it was abundant in the Nile and hence a symbol of Egypt. It promised support, but would break and pierce the hand.

29.1-9: Oracle against Pharaoh, the monster and reed of the Nile. 1: January 7, 587 B.C. 3: Streams of the Nile: the Nile's several mouths in the delta. Great monster: the crocodile. 4: Clinging fish: the dependent nations. 6-7: The support no better than a reed given to the Israelites reflects Pharaoh Hophra's failure to drive the Babylonians from Palestine, a little less than a year before this oracle. See Jer.37.1-10. The Babylonians' siege was briefly lifted; see Jer.34.21-22.

29.10-16: Israelites will never trust Egypt again. When finally converted, Israel will have a "new heart" and a "new spirit" from the LORD; it will then depend entirely on him. 10: Migdol: at the northern boundary of Egypt. Syene: modern Aswan on the southern frontiers, near Cush, i.e. Ethiopia. 12: Forty years: a round number.

exalt herself over the nations, for I will make the Egyptians too few to rule over them. The Israelites will never trust Egypt again; this will be a reminder to them of their sin in turning to Egypt for help. They shall know that I am the Lord GOD.

17 These were the words of the LORD to me on the first day of the first month in the twenty-seventh year: Man, long did Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon keep his army in the field against Tyre, until every head was rubbed bare and every shoulder chafed. But neither he nor his army gained anything from Tyre for their long service against her. 19 This, therefore, is the word of the Lord GOD: I am giving the land of Egypt to Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon. He shall carry off its wealth, he shall spoil and plunder it, and so his army will be paid. I have given him the land of Egypt as the wages for his service because they have disregarded me. This is the very word of the Lord GOD.

21 At that time I will make Israel put out fresh shoots, and give you back the power to speak among them, and they will know that I am the LORD.

30 These were the words of the LORD to me: Man, prophesy and say, These are the words of the Lord GOD:

Woe, woe for the day!

3 for a day is near,
a day of the LORD is near,
a day of cloud, a day of reckoning for the nations.

4 Then a sword will come upon Egypt, and there will be anguish in Cush,
when the slain fall in Egypt, when its wealth is taken and its foundations are torn up.

5 Cush and Put and Lud,<sup>f</sup> all the Arabs and Libyans and the peoples of allied lands, shall fall with them by the sword.

These are the words of the LORD: 6

All who support Egypt shall fall and her boasted might be brought low;
from Migdol to Syene men shall fall
by the sword.

This is the very word of the Lord
GOD.

They shall be the most desolate of 7 desolate lands, and their cities shall lie derelict among the ruined cities. When 8 I set Egypt on fire and all her helpers are broken, they will know that I am the LORD. When that time comes 9 messengers shall go out in haste from my presence to alarm Cush, still without a care, and anguish shall come upon her in Egypt's hour. Even now it is on the way.

These are the words of the Lord 10
GOD:

I will make an end of Egypt's hordes

by the hands of Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon.

He and his people with him, the 11
most ruthless of nations, will be brought to ravage the land.
They will draw their swords against Egypt
and fill the land with the slain.

I will make the streams of the Nile 12 dry land

and sell Egypt to evil men; I will lay waste the land and everything in it by foreign hands.

I, the LORD, have spoken.

These are the words of the Lord 13
GOD:

I will make an end of the lordlings<sup>g</sup>

<sup>f</sup> Or Lydia. <sup>g</sup> Or idols.

29.17–21: Egypt as wages for Nebuchadrezzar. 17: The latest date for any oracle is April 26, 571 B.C., this date is also the latest secure one in the book. Since other oracles with earlier dates will follow, this one is placed here because its topic is the same as that of the preceding. 20: In humbling Tyre, Nebuchadrezzar carries out God's purposes in history, and so deserves wages. 21: Fresh shoots are symbols of restoration, either in messianic (Isa. 11.1) or political perspective (17.22).

30.1–19: Day of the LORD for Egypt is near. 3: In the early prophetic writings, the day or the day of the LORD is the time of God's future decisive judgment when he will bring doom either for Israel (Amos 5.18–20) or for the nations (Isa. 2.12). Later it represented the vindication of Israel against the nations (Joel 3.1–3).

and wipe out the princelings<sup>b</sup> of Noph;
 and never again shall a prince arise in Egypt.
 Then I will put fear in that land, 14 I will lay Pathros waste and set fire to Zoan and execute judgement on No.
 15 I will pour out my rage upon Sin, the bastion of Egypt, and destroy the horde of Noph.
 16 I will set Egypt on fire, and Syene shall writhe in anguish;
 the walls of No shall be breached and flood-waters shall burst into it.
 17 The young men of On and Pi-beseth<sup>f</sup> shall fall by the sword and the cities themselves go into captivity.
 18 Daylight shall fail in Tahpanhes when I break the yoke of Egypt there;
 then her boasted might shall be subdued;
 a cloud shall cover her, and her daughters<sup>j</sup> shall go into captivity.
 19 Thus I will execute judgement on Egypt, and they shall know that I am the LORD.
 20 This was the word of the LORD to me on the seventh day of the first month
 21 in the eleventh year: Man, I have broken the arm of Pharaoh king of Egypt. See, it has not been bound up with dressings and bandage to give it 22 strength to wield a sword. These, therefore, are the words of the Lord GOD: I am against Pharaoh king of Egypt; I will break both his arms, the sound and the broken, and make the 23 sword drop from his hand. I will scatter the Egyptians among the nations and disperse them over many lands.
 24 Then I will strengthen the arms of the king of Babylon and put my sword in his hand; but I will break Pharaoh's arms, and he shall lie wounded and groaning before him. I will give 25 strength to the arms of the king of Babylon, but the arms of Pharaoh will fall. Men will know that I am the LORD, when I put my sword in the hand of the king of Babylon, and he stretches it out over the land of Egypt. I will scatter the Egyptians among the 26 nations and disperse them over many lands, and they shall know that I am the LORD.

On the first day of the third month 31 in the eleventh year this word came to me from the LORD: Man, say to 2 Pharaoh king of Egypt and all his horde:

What are you like in your greatness?

Look at Assyria: it was a cedar in 3 Lebanon, whose fair branches overshadowed the forest, towering high with its crown finding a way through the foliage.
 Springs nourished it, underground 4 waters gave it height, their streams washed the soil all round it and sent forth their rills to every tree in the country.
 So it grew taller than every other tree. 5
 Its boughs were many, its branches spread far;
 for water was abundant in the channels.
 In its boughs all the birds of the air 6 had their nests,
 under its branches all wild creatures bore their young,
 and in its shadow all great nations made their home.
 A splendid great tree it was, with 7 its long spreading boughs, for its roots were beside abundant waters.
 No cedar in God's garden 8 overshadowed it,

<sup>a</sup> Or false gods. <sup>i</sup> Or Bubastis. <sup>j</sup> Or daughter-towns.

30.20–26: The sword drops from Pharaoh's arm. 20: April 29, 587 B.C. 21: Pharaoh's sword arm was broken the year before when he was compelled to abandon his effort to lift the siege of Jerusalem. See 29.6–7 n. 22: Both his arms will be broken when Egypt will sink to complete military insignificance. This happened following its conquest by Cambyses in 525 B.C.

31.1–18: Egypt, proud cedar of Lebanon, will be hewed down like Assyria. 8: Many commentators see in God's garden a reference to a mythological earthly paradise; others, a symbol no fir could compare with its boughs, and no plane-tree had such branches;

not a tree in God's garden could rival its beauty.

9 I, the LORD, gave it beauty with its mass of spreading boughs, the envy of all the trees in Eden,
the garden of God.

10 Therefore these are the words of the Lord GOD: Because it grew so high and pushed its crown up through the foliage, and its pride mounted as it 11 grew, therefore I handed it over to a prince of the nations to deal with it;
I made an example of it as its wicked-12 ness deserved. Strangers from the most ruthless of nations hewed it down and flung it away. Its sweeping boughs fell on the mountains and in all the valleys, and its branches lay broken beside all 13 the streams in the land. All nations of the earth came out from under its shade and left it. All the birds of the air settled on its fallen trunk; the wild crea-14 tures all stood by its branches. Never again, therefore, shall the well-watered trees grow so high or push their crowns up through the foliage. Nor shall the strongest of them, well watered though they be, stand erect in their full height; for all have been given over to death, to the world below, to share the common doom and go down to the abyss.

15 These are the words of the Lord
GOD: When he went down to Sheol, I closed the deep over him as a gate, I dammed its rivers, the great waters were held back. I put Lebanon in mourning for him, and all the trees of 16 the country-side wilted. I made nations shake with the crash of his fall, when I brought him down to Sheol with those who go down to the abyss. From this all the trees of Eden, all the choicest and best of Lebanon, all the well-watered trees, drew comfort in the world below. They too like him had gone down to Sheol, to those slain with the sword; and those who had lived in his shadow were scattered among the nations. Which among the trees of Eden was like you in glory and greatness? Yet you will be brought down with the trees of Eden to the world below; you will lie with those who have been slain by the sword, in the company of the strengthless dead. This stands for Pharaoh and all his horde. This is the very word of the Lord GOD.

On the first day of the twelfth month 32 in the twelfth year the word of the LORD came to me: Man, raise a dirge 2 over Pharaoh king of Egypt and say
to him:

Young lion of the nations, you are undone.

You were like a monster in the waters of the Nile

scattering the water with its snout,<sup>k,l</sup> churning the water with its feet and fouling the streams.

These are the words of the Lord 3
GOD: When many nations are gathered together I will spread my net over you, and you will be dragged up in its meshes. I will fling you on land, dashing 4 you down on the bare ground. I will let all the birds of the air settle upon you and all the wild beasts gorge themselves on your flesh. Your flesh I will lay on 5 the mountains, and fill the valleys with the worms that feed on it. I will drench 6 the land with your discharge, drench it with your blood to the very mountaintops, and the watercourses shall be full of you. When I put out your light I will 7

<sup>k</sup> snout: prob. rdg.; Heb. streams.

<sup>l</sup> scattering . . . snout: or heaving itself up in the streams.

of God's care (Isa. 51.3) for the nations in endowing them with material resources. 12: Assyria's far-reaching administration broke down like sweeping branches when the trunk is cut; so too will Egypt's. 15: When Egypt went down to Sheol all the dependent nations shook and wilted. 18: Slain by the sword: those who suffered an untimely death.

32.1-32: A dirge over Egypt. This final prophecy against Egypt contains two oracles: vv. 1-16, a continuation of the monster allegory of ch. 29, and vv. 17-32, a dirge on the descent into Sheol of Pharaoh and his hordes to join the company of the dishonored dead. 1: March 3, 585 B.C. 2: Fouling the streams: doing violence to other nations by its violence. 3-4: The monster Egypt will be dragged out of the Nile onto the bare ground, to be seen and despoiled by the nations, called here beasts that gorge themselves on carrion. 5: To leave the flesh of the dead unburied was a great curse for the ancients. 7: These phenomena suggest the judgment of the veil the sky and blacken its stars; I will veil the sun with a cloud, and the moon shall not give its light. I will darken all the shining lights of the sky above you and bring darkness over your land. This is the very word of the Lord GOD.

I will disquiet many peoples when I bring your broken army among the nations into lands you have never known. I will appal many peoples with your fate; when I brandish my sword in the faces of their kings, their hair shall stand on end. In the day of your downfall each shall tremble for his own fate from moment to moment. For these are the words of the Lord GOD: The sword of the king of Babylon shall come upon you. I will make the whole horde of you fall by the sword of warriors who are of all men the most ruthless. They shall make havoc of the pride of Egypt, and all its horde shall be wiped out. I will destroy all their cattle beside many waters. No foot of man, no hoof of beast, shall ever churn them up again. Then will I let their waters settle and their streams run smooth as oil. This is the very word of the Lord GOD. When I have laid Egypt waste, and the whole land is devastated, when I strike down all who dwell there, they shall know that I am the LORD.

This is a dirge, and the women of the nations shall sing it as a dirge. They shall sing it as a dirge, as a dirge over Egypt and all its horde. This is the very word of the Lord GOD.

On the fifteenth day of the first month in the twelfth year, the word of the LORD came to me:

Man, raise a lament, you and the daughters of the nations, over the hordes of Egypt and her nobles, whom I will bring down<sup>m</sup> to the world below with those that go down to the abyss.

Are you better favoured than others?

Go down and be laid to rest with the strengthless dead.

A sword stands ready. Those who marched with her, and all her horde, shall fall into the midst of those slain by the sword. Warrior chieftains in Sheol speak to Pharaoh and those who aided him:

The strengthless dead, slain by the sword, have come down and are laid to rest. There is Assyria with all her company, her buried around her, all of them slain and fallen by the sword. Her graves are set in the recesses of the abyss, with her company buried around her, all of them slain, fallen by the sword, men who once filled the land of the living with terror. There is Elam, with all her hordes buried around her, all of them slain, fallen by the sword; they have gone down strengthless to the world below, men who struck terror into the land of the living but now share the disgrace of those that go down to the abyss. In the midst of the slain a resting-place has been made for her, with all her hordes buried around her; all of them strengthless, slain by the sword. For they who once struck terror into the land of the living now share the disgrace of those that go down to the abyss; they are assigned a place in the midst of the slain. There are Meshech and Tubal with all their hordes, with their buried around them, all of them strengthless and slain by the sword, men who once struck terror into the land of the living. Do they not rest with warriors fallen strengthless,<sup>n</sup> who have gone down to Sheol with their weapons, their swords under their heads and their shields over their bones,<sup>o</sup> though the terror of their prowess once lay on the land of the living? You also, Pharaoh, shall lie broken in the company of the strengthless dead, resting with those slain by the sword. There is Edom, her kings and all her princes, who, for all their day of the Lord; see Joel 2.1-2. 17: April 27, 586 B.C. 21: Strengthless: lit. "uncircumcised," and therefore excluded from the community of Israel and its God, even after death. The Israelites are not included in this multitude even though two degrees of existence are mentioned: honorable and dishonorable.

<sup>m</sup> her nobles . . . down: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.
<sup>n</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. from strengthless ones.
<sup>o</sup> and . . . bones: prob. rdg.; Heb. unintelligible.

proww, have been lodged with those slain by the sword; they shall rest with the strengthless dead and with those that go down to the abyss. There are all the princes of the North and all the Sidonians, who have gone down in shame with the slain, for all the terror they inspired by their prowess. They rest strengthless with those slain by the sword, and they share the disgrace of those that go down to the abyss.

Pharaoh will see them and will take comfort for his lost hordes—Pharaoh who, with all his army, is slain by the sword, says the Lord GOD; though he spread<sup>p</sup> terror throughout the land of the living, yet he with all his horde is laid to rest with those that are slain by the sword, in the company of the strengthless dead. This is the very word of the Lord GOD.

The remnant of Israel in the land

33 THESE WERE THE WORDS OF THE LORD

2 to me: Man, say to your fellow-countrymen, When I set armies in motion against a land, its people choose one of themselves to be a watchman.

3 When he sees the enemy approaching and blows his trumpet to warn the people, then if anyone does not heed the warning and is overtaken by the enemy, he is responsible for his own fate. He is responsible because, when he heard the alarm, he paid no heed to it; if he had heeded it, he would have escaped. But if the watchman does not blow his trumpet or warn the people when he sees the enemy approaching, then any man who is killed is caught with all his sins upon him; but I will hold the watchman answerable for his death.

7 Man, I have appointed you a watchman for the Israelites. You will take messages from me and carry my warnings to them. It may be that I pronounce sentence of death on a man because he is wicked; if you do not warn him to give up his ways, the guilt is his and because of his wickedness he shall die, but I will hold you answerable for his death. But if you have warned him to give up his ways, and he has not given them up, he will die because of his wickedness, but you will have saved yourself.

Man, say to the Israelites, You complain, 'We are burdened by our sins and offences; we are pining away because of them; we despair of life.' So tell them: As I live, says the Lord GOD, I have no desire for the death of the wicked. I would rather that a wicked man should mend his ways and live. Give up your evil ways, give them up; O Israelites, why should you die?

Man, say to your fellow-countrymen, When a righteous man goes wrong, his righteousness shall not save him. When a wicked man mends his ways, his former wickedness shall not bring him down. When a righteous man sins, all his righteousness cannot save his life. It may be that, when I tell the righteous man that he will save his life, he presumes on his righteousness and does wrong; then none of his righteous acts will be remembered: he will die for the wrong he has done. It may be that when I pronounce sentence of death on the wicked, he mends his ways and does what is just and right: if he then restores the pledges he has taken, repays what he has stolen, and, doing no more wrong, follows the rules that ensure life, he shall live and not die. None of the sins he has committed shall be remembered against him; he shall live, because he does what is just and right.

Your fellow-countrymen are saying, 'The Lord acts without principle', but

p Prob. rdg.; Heb. I have spread.

33.1–37.28: Israel to be restored; the kingdom established. The prophet assures Israel that the Lord will accomplish her redemption.

33.1–20: A prophet's responsibility. Ideas from preceding chapters are paralleled here: With 33.1–6, compare 3.4–11; with 33.7–9, compare 3.16–21; with 33.10–20, compare 18.1–32; with 33.23–29, compare 12.17–20. 1–6: This particular definition of prophetic role is unique to Ezekiel. Nebuchadnezzar's advancing armies (v. 2) probably suggested the oracle; life or death depended possibly on the warning of a watchman. On the watchman's importance in the hills of Palestine, see 2 Kgs.9.17–28. 7–9: Ezekiel is here presumably in Palestine, not in Babylonia. See Introduction. 10–20: Compare with 18.2.–30.

it is their ways that are unprincipled.

18 When a righteous man gives up his righteousness and does wrong, he shall die because of it; and when a wicked man gives up his wickedness and does what is just and right, he shall live.

20 How, Israel, can you say that the Lord acts without principle, when I judge every man of you on his deeds?

21 On the fifth day of the tenth month in the twelfth year of our captivity, fugitives came to me from Jerusalem and told me that the city had fallen.

22 The evening before they arrived, the hand of the LORD had come upon me, and by the time they reached me in the morning the LORD had given me back my speech. My speech was restored and I was no longer dumb.

23 These were the words of the LORD to me: Man, the inhabitants of these wastes on the soil of Israel say, 'When Abraham took possession of the land he was but one; now we are many, and the land has been granted to us in possession.' Tell them, therefore, that these are the words of the Lord GOD: You eat meat with the blood in it, you lift up your eyes to idols, you shed<sup>q</sup> blood; and yet you expect to possess the land! You trust to the sword, you commit abominations, you defile one another's wives; and you expect to possess the land! Tell them that these are the words of the Lord GOD: As I live, among the ruins they shall fall by the sword; in the open country I will give them for food to beasts: in dens and caves they shall die by pestilence.

28 I will make the land a desolate waste; her boasted might shall be brought to nothing, and the mountains of Israel shall be an untrodden desert. When I make the land a desolate waste because of all the abominations they have committed, they will know that I am the LORD.

Man, your fellow-countrymen gather in groups and talk of you under walls and in doorways and say to one another, 'Let us go and see what message there is from the LORD.' So my people will come crowding in, as people do, and sit down in front of you. They will hear what you have to say, but they will not do it. 'Fine words!' they will say, but their hearts are set on selfish gain. You are no more to them than a singer of fine songs<sup>r</sup> with a lovely voice, or a clever harpist; they will listen to what you say but will certainly not do it. But when it comes, as come it will, they will know that there has been a prophet in their midst.

These were the words of the LORD to me: Prophecy, man, against the shepherds of Israel; prophecy and say to them, You shepherds, these are the words of the Lord GOD: How I hate the shepherds of Israel who care only for themselves! Should not the shepherd care for the sheep? You consume the milk, wear the wool, and slaughter the fat beasts, but you do not feed the sheep. You have not encouraged the weary, tended the sick, bandaged the hurt, recovered the straggler, or searched for the lost; and even the strong you have driven with ruthless severity. They are scattered, they have no shepherd, they have become the prey of wild beasts. My sheep go straying over the mountains and on every high hill, my flock is dispersed over the whole country, with no one to ask after them or search for them.

Therefore, you shepherds, hear the words of the LORD. As surely as I live, <sup>q</sup> Or pour out.

<sup>r</sup> Fine words: or Love songs.

<sup>s</sup> fine songs: or love songs.

33.21-22: Jerusalem's fall. The date varies; where the MT reads twelfth year or January 8, 585 B.C., the Syr. and Sept. read "eleventh" or January 19, 586 B.C. See 24.26 n. 22: See 3.26-27 where Ezekiel seems not to be completely mute but only forbidden by the Lord to speak in certain circumstances. Compare 24.18-21, 26-27.

33.28: The desolation. Since the prediction of a desolate waste must be for the future, these words were spoken prior to the destruction of 587 B.C. The dates of v. 21 do not apply to this oracle.

33.30-33: The people listen, but do not heed. Such dubious pietism, blending selfish gain into a search for God's message, seems in vogue after the first capture of Jerusalem in 597 B.C.

34.1-31: The Lord as shepherd of his flock, Israel, is an image which Ezekiel inherited (Isa. 40.10-11; Jer. 23.1-6) and passed on to those who followed him (Zech. 13.7), including Jesus (Mt. 18.12-14; Jn. 10.1-18). 6: Worship at illicit hill shrines was encouraged or tolerated by most kings. See 2 Kgs. 12.3; 21.3; Jer. 50.6. 8: Wild beasts: the hostile neighboring peoples.

says the Lord GOD, because my sheep are ravaged by wild beasts and have become their prey for lack of a shepherd, because my shepherds have not asked after the sheep but have cared only for themselves and not for the sheep—therefore, you shepherds, hear the words of the LORD. These are the words of the Lord GOD: I am against the shepherds and will demand my sheep from them. I will dismiss those shepherds: they shall care only for themselves no longer; I will rescue my sheep from their jaws, and they shall feed on them no more.

For these are the words of the Lord GOD: Now I myself will ask after my sheep and go in search of them. As a shepherd goes in search of his sheep when his flock is dispersed all around him, so I will go in search of my sheep and rescue them, no matter where they were scattered in dark and cloudy days. I will bring them out from every nation, gather them in from other lands, and lead them home to their own soil. I will graze them on the mountains of Israel, by her streams and in all her green fields. I will feed them on good grazing-ground, and their pasture shall be the high mountains of Israel. There they will rest, there in good pasture, and find rich grazing on the mountains of Israel. I myself will tend my flock, I myself pen them in their fold, says the Lord GOD. I will search for the lost, recover the straggler, bandage the hurt, strengthen the sick, leave the healthy and strong to play, and give them their proper food.

As for you, my flock, these are the words of the Lord GOD: I will judge between one sheep and another. You rams and he-goats! Are you not satisfied with grazing on good herbage, that you must trample down the rest with your feet? Or with drinking clear water, that you must churn up the rest with your feet? My flock has to eat what you have trampled and drink what you have churned up. These, therefore, are the words of the Lord GOD to them: Now I myself will judge between the fat sheep and the lean. You hustle the weary with flank and shoulder, you butt them with your horns until you have driven them away and scattered them abroad. Therefore I will save my flock, and they shall be ravaged no more; I will judge between one sheep and another. Then I will set over them one shepherd to take care of them, my servant David; he shall care for them and become their shepherd. I, the LORD, will become their God, and my servant David shall be a prince among them. I, the LORD, have spoken. I will make a covenant with them to ensure prosperity; I will rid the land of wild beasts, and men shall live in peace of mind on the open pastures and sleep in the woods. I will settle them in the neighbourhood of my hill and send them rain in due season, blessed rain. Trees in the country-side shall bear their fruit, the land shall yield its produce, and men shall live in peace of mind on their own soil. They shall know that I am the LORD when I break the bars of their yokes and rescue them from those who have enslaved them. They shall never be ravaged by the nations again nor shall wild beasts devour them; they shall live in peace of mind, with no one to alarm them. I will give prosperity to their plantations; they shall never again be victims of famine in the land nor any longer bear the taunts of the nations. They shall know that I, the LORD their God, am with them, and that they are my people Israel, says the Lord GOD. You are my flock, my people, the flock I feed, and I am your God. This is the very word of the Lord GOD.

10: A play upon ideas; lit.: "I will stop them from feeding the flock so that they may no longer feed themselves [upon it]." 11-14: God will tend his flock: a continuation of his saving action performed in the Exodus from Egypt. Compare Isa.63.7-19. 17: The Lord's judging between one sheep and another is a concrete application of the principle—not found explicit in other prophets—of individual responsibility (see 33.8-9). 18: Churn up: abuse of power by exploiting the weak; see 32.2 for the same indictment of Egypt. 19: The fat sheep are the self-satisfied, hardhearted and insensitive people; see Deut.32.15; Jer.5.28. 23: The one shepherd points to a renewed dynasty of David, uniting the two kingdoms separated after Solomon (see Hos.1.11). 24: Ezekiel envisions a restored Israel politically similar to the period after the Exodus. The ruler will be a prince, not an absolute king with power to dictate (2 Kgs.16.10-18) in matters of worship and conduct as the kings had done. Compare 45.13-17 n.

- 35 These were the words of the LORD to me: Man, look towards the hill-country of Seir and prophesy against it. Say, 3 These are the words of the Lord God;

O hill-country of Seir, I am against you:

I will stretch out my hand over you and make you a desolate waste.

- 4 I will lay your cities in ruins and you shall be made desolate; thus you shall know that I am the LORD.

- 5 For you have maintained an immemorial feud and handed over the Israelites to the sword in the hour of their doom, at the time of their final punishment.

- 6 Therefore, as I live, says the Lord GOD, I make blood your destiny, and blood shall pursue you; you are most surely guilty of blood, and blood shall pursue you.

- 7 I will make the hill-country of Seir a desolate waste and put an end to all in it who pass to and fro;

- 8 I will fill your hills and your valleys with its slain, and those slain by the sword shall fall into your streams.

- 9 I will make you desolate for ever, and your cities shall not be inhabited; thus you shall know that I am the LORD.

- 10 You say, The two nations and the two countries shall be mine and I will take possession of them, though the LORD is' there. Therefore, as I live, 11 says the Lord GOD, your anger and jealousy shall be requited, for I will do to you what you have done in your hatred against them. I shall be known among you when I judge you; you 12 shall know that I am the LORD. I have heard all your blasphemies; you have said, 'The mountains of Israel are desolate and have been given to us to devour.' You have set yourselves up 13 against me and spoken recklessly against me. I myself have heard you. These are the words of the Lord GOD: 14 I will make you so desolate that the whole world will gloat over you. I will do to you as you did to Israel my own possession when you gloated over its desolation. O hill-country of Seir, you will be desolate, and it will be the end of all Edom. Thus men will know that I am the LORD.

And do you, man, prophesy to the 36 mountains of Israel and say, Mountains of Israel, hear the words of the LORD. These are the words of the Lord GOD: 2 The enemy has said, 'Aha! now the everlasting highlands are ours.' Therefore prophesy and say, These are the words of the Lord GOD: You mountains of Israel, all round you men gloated over you and trampled you down when you were seized and occupied by the rest of the nations; your name was bandied about in the common talk of men. Therefore, listen 4 to the words of the Lord GOD when he speaks to the mountains and hills, to the streams and valleys, to the desolate palaces and deserted cities, all plundered and despised by the rest of the nations round you. These are the words 5 of the Lord GOD: In the fire of my jealousy I have spoken plainly against the rest of the nations, and against Edom above all. For Edom, swollen with triumphant scorn, seized on my

<sup>1</sup> Or has been.

35.1-15: The indictment of Edom. 1-5: A lawsuit is prepared for the recovery of the mountains of Israel (ch. 36). The defendant is the hill-country of Seir, which is Edom. The accusation is the oppression of Judah by occupying its lands extensively in its hour of doom, the destruction of 587 B.C. Compare Obad. 1-21. 6: The verdict is: guilty of blood; and the sentence: blood shall pursue you, with the Lord himself as avenger. 10: Shall be mine: second indictment. 11: The verdict: guilty of anger and jealousy; the sentence: exact retaliation; see Exod. 21.23-25.

36.1-38: Mountains of Israel will be like a garden of Eden. 1-11: The mountains of Israel are personified as successful plaintiffs. The verdict is the fire of the Lord's jealousy against the rest of the nations (v. 5); the mountains in compensation are to yield fruit and have the Lord land to hold it up to public contempt.

 6 Therefore prophesy over the soil of Israel and say to the mountains and hills, the streams and valleys, These are the words of the Lord GOD: I have spoken my mind in jealousy and anger because you have had to endure the taunts of all nations. Therefore, says the Lord GOD, I have sworn with uplifted hand that the nations round about shall be punished for<sup>u</sup> their taunts. But you, mountains of Israel, you shall put forth your branches and yield your fruit for my people Israel, for their home-coming is near. See now, I am for you, I will turn to you, and you shall be tilled and sown. I will plant many men upon you—the whole house of Israel. The cities shall again be inhabited and the palaces rebuilt. I will plant many men and beasts upon you; they shall increase and be fruitful. I will make you populous as in days of old and more prosperous than you were at first. Thus you will know that I am the LORD. I will make men—my people Israel—tread your paths again. They shall settle in you, and you shall be their possession; but you shall never again rob them of their children.
 13 These are the words of the Lord GOD: People say that you are a land that devours men and robs your tribes of their children. But you shall never devour men any more nor rob your tribes of their children, says the Lord GOD. I will never let you hear the taunts of the nations again nor shall you have to endure the reproaches of the peoples. This is the very word of the Lord GOD.
 16 These were the words of the LORD to me: Man, when the Israelites lived on their own soil they defiled it with their ways and deeds; their ways were foul and disgusting in my sight. I poured out my fury upon them because of the blood they had poured out upon the land, and the idols with which they had defiled it. I scattered them among the nations, and they were dispersed among different countries; I passed on them the sentence which their ways and deeds deserved. When they came among those nations, they caused my holy name to be profaned wherever they came: men said of them, 'These are the people of the LORD, and it is from his land that they have come.' And I spared them for the sake of my holy name which the Israelites had profaned among the nations to whom they had gone.

Therefore tell the Israelites that these are the words of the Lord GOD: It is not for your sake, you Israelites, that I am acting, but for the sake of my holy name, which you have profaned among the peoples where you have gone. I will hallow my great name, which has been profaned among those nations. When they see that I reveal my holiness through you, the nations will know that I am the LORD, says the Lord GOD. I will take you out of the nations and gather you from every land and bring you to your own soil. I will sprinkle clean water over you, and you shall be cleansed from all that defiles you; I will cleanse you from the taint of all your idols. I will give you a new heart and put a new spirit within you; I will take the heart of stone from your body and give you a heart of flesh. I will put my spirit into you and make you conform to my statutes, keep my laws and live by them. You shall live in the land which I gave to your ancestors; you shall become my people, and I will become your God. I will save you from all that defiles you; I will call to the corn and make it plentiful; I will bring no more famine upon you. I will make the trees bear abundant fruit and the ground yield heavy crops, so that you will never again have to bear the reproach of famine among the nations. You will recall your wicked ways and plant many men on them (v. 10), thus reversing the oracles of Israel's doom pronounced in chs. 6 and 7. 26–27: The heart being for the ancients the seat of the conscious processes of knowing and willing, a heart of stone is imperceptive and one which chooses not to be aware of what the Lord has done, what his demands are, and does not know how to respond; by contrast a heart of flesh is a sensitive human heart fully aware of its relationship with God, and so capable of receiving a new measure of his life-giving activity, a new spirit. 29–31: In other prophets, the process of redemption involved the people's sin, their punishment, and, upon doing penance, their restoration. Ezekiel promises that God will redeem Israel out of his

<sup>u</sup> be punished for: or bear.

- evil deeds, and you will loathe yourselves because of your wickedness and your abominations. It is not for your sake that I am acting; be sure of that, says the Lord GOD. Feel, then, the shame and disgrace of your ways, men of Israel.
- These are the words of the Lord GOD: When I cleanse you of all your wickedness, I will re-people the cities, and the palaces shall be rebuilt. The land now desolate shall be tilled, instead of lying waste for every passer-by to see. Men will say that this same land which was waste has become like a garden of Eden, and people will make their homes in the cities once ruined, wasted, and shattered, but now well fortified. The nations still left around you will know that it is I, the LORD, who have rebuilt the shattered cities and planted anew the waste land; I, the LORD, have spoken and will do it.
- These are the words of the Lord GOD: Yet again will I let the Israelites ask me to act in their behalf. I will make their men numerous as sheep, like the sheep offered as holy-gifts, like the sheep in Jerusalem at times of festival. So shall their ruined cities be filled with human flocks, and they shall know that I am the LORD.
- The hand of the LORD came upon me, and he carried me out by his spirit and put me down in a plain full of bones. He made me go to and fro across them until I had been round them all;<sup>v</sup> they covered the plain, countless numbers of them, and they were very dry. He said to me, 'Man, can these bones live again?' I answered, 'Only thou knowest that, Lord GOD.' He said to me, 'Prophecy over these bones and say to them, O dry bones, hear the word of the LORD. This is the - word of the Lord GOD to these bones: I will put breath<sup>w</sup> into you, and you shall live. I will fasten sinews on you, bring flesh upon you, overlay you with skin, and put breath in you, and you shall live; and you shall know that I am the LORD.' I began to prophesy as he had bidden me, and as I prophesied there was a rustling sound and the bones fitted themselves together. As I looked, sinews appeared upon them, flesh covered them, and they were overlaid with skin, but there was no breath in them. Then he said to me, 'Prophecy to the wind, prophecy, man, and say to it, These are the words of the Lord GOD: Come, O wind, come from every quarter and breathe into these slain, that they may come to life.' I began to prophesy as he had bidden me: breath came into them; they came to life and rose to their feet, a mighty host. He said to me, 'Man, these bones are the whole people of Israel. They say, "Our bones are dry, our thread of life is snapped, our web is severed from the loom."<sup>x</sup> Prophecy, therefore, and say to them, These are the words of the Lord GOD: O my people, I will open your graves and bring you up from them, and restore you to the land of Israel. You shall know that I am the LORD when I open your graves and bring you up from them, O my people. Then I will put my spirit<sup>y</sup> into you and you shall live, and I will settle you on your own soil, and you shall know that I the LORD have spoken and will act. This is the very word of the LORD.'
- These were the words of the LORD to me: Man, take one leaf of a wooden tablet and write on it, 'Judah and his <sup>v</sup> He made . . . all: or He made me pass all round them.

<sup>w</sup> Or wind or spirit.
<sup>x</sup> our web . . . loom: prob. rdg.; Heb. we are completely cut off.
<sup>y</sup> Or breath.

sheer goodness, "for the sake of my holy name" (vv. 21–22), leading the people thereafter to repent.

37.1–14: The dry bones of Israel's hopes will live again. Central to the passage is a remarkable play on the Heb. word ruah, with its basic meaning, "breath," being applied in three contexts: (a) wind, the life-giving breath in nature; (b) the life-supporting breath of the nostrils in animals and man; (c) spirit, the life-creating power of God. Ezekiel does not refer directly to personal resurrection. His emphasis on individual responsibility and a person's continued life with God, which parallels national survival, at least raises the question. 2: Very dry: lifeless a long time. 8–9: The perfect and more enduring new creation of man also occurs in two stages; compare Gen.2.7. 11: Israel's bones are dry, being completely cut off (Tfn. x) from the core of life, the covenant.

37.15–28: One nation (Israel), one king (David), and one God (the Lord). 16: Joseph is a synonym for the Northern Kingdom, Israel, sometimes called Ephraim after its leading tribe.

associates of Israel.' Then take another leaf and write on it, 'Joseph, the leaf of Ephraim and all his associates of Israel.' Now bring the two together to form one tablet; then they will be a folding tablet in your hand. When your fellow-countrymen ask you to tell them what you mean by this, say to them, These are the words of the Lord GOD: I am taking the leaf of Joseph, which belongs to Ephraim and his associate tribes of Israel, and joining<sup>a</sup> to it the leaf of Judah. Thus I shall make them one tablet, and they shall be one in my hand. The leaves on which you write shall be visible in your hand for all to see. Then say to them, These are the words of the Lord GOD: I am gathering up the Israelites from their places of exile among the nations; I will assemble them from every quarter and restore them to their own soil. I will make them one single nation in the land, on the mountains of Israel, and they shall have one king; they shall no longer be two nations or divided into two kingdoms. They shall never again be defiled with their idols, their loathsome ways and all their disloyal acts; I will rescue them from all their sinful backsliding and purify them. Thus they shall become my people, and I will become their God. My servant David shall become king over them, and they shall have one shepherd. They shall conform to my laws, they shall observe and carry out my statutes. They shall live in the land which I gave my servant Jacob, the land where your fathers lived. They and their descendants shall live there for ever, and my servant David shall for ever be their prince. I will make a covenant with them to bring them prosperity; this covenant shall be theirs for ever.<sup>a</sup> I will greatly increase their numbers, and I will put my sanctuary for ever in their midst. They shall live under the shelter of my dwelling; I will become their God and they shall become my people. The nations shall know that I the LORD am keeping Israel sacred to myself, because my sanctuary is in the midst of them for ever.

God's triumph over the world

THESE WERE THE WORDS OF THE LORD to me: Man, look towards Gog, the prince of Rosh, Meshech, and Tubal, in the land of Magog, and prophesy against him. Say, These are the words of the Lord GOD: I am against you, Gog, prince of Rosh, Meshech, and Tubal. I will turn you about, I will put hooks in your jaws. I will lead you out, you and your whole army, horses and horsemen, all fully equipped, a great host with shield and buckler, every man wielding a sword, and with them the men of Pharas, Cush, and Put, all with shield and helmet; Gomer and all its squadrons, Beth-togarmah with its squadrons from the far recesses of the north—a great concourse of peoples with you. Be prepared; make ready, you and all the host which has gathered to join you, and hold yourselves in reserve for me.<sup>b</sup> After many days you will be summoned; in years to come you will enter a land restored from ruin, whose people are gathered from many nations upon the mountains of Israel that have been desolate so long. The Israelites, brought out from the nations, will all be living undisturbed; and you will come up, driving in like a hurricane; you will cover the land like a cloud, you and all your squadrons, a great concourse of peoples.

This is the word of the Lord GOD: 10

<sup>z</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds them.

<sup>a</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds and I will put them.

<sup>b</sup> and hold . . . me: or and you shall be their rallying-point.

21–28: God will unite the two kingdoms to himself by a new covenant. The description of the new land and new Temple (chs. 40–48) should logically follow here.

38.1–39.29: Gog will be destroyed. God's triumph over the world includes primarily the triumph of Israel over all hostile evil forces. Resembling other biblical apocalypses (Isa. chs. 24–27; Dan. chs. 9–14; Zech. chs. 9–14), these verses are an early form of the genre.

38.1–39.7: Universal terror against Gog, who sets in motion against Israel all the forces of evil and hostility. 2: Gog resembles all Israel's persecutors, a symbol of all wickedness menacing it, but neither he nor the land of Magog nor its place names can be identified with certainty.

4–13: The army of Gog is composed of elements from the four corners of the author's world: Gomer, north; Ethiopia, south; Tarshish, west; Dedan, east; it is called out from the far

At that time a thought will enter your 11 head and you will plan evil. You will say, 'I will attack a land of open villages, I will fall upon a people living 12 quiet and undisturbed, undefended by walls, with neither gates nor bars.' You will expect to come plundering, spoiling, and stripping bare the ruins where men now live again, a people gathered out of the nations, a people acquiring cattle and goods, and making their home at the very centre of the world.
 13 Sheba and Dedan, the traders of Tarshish and her leading merchants, will say to you, 'Is it for plunder that you have come? Have you gathered your host to get spoil, to carry off silver and gold, to seize cattle and goods, to collect rich spoil?' 14 Therefore, prophesy, man, and say to Gog, These are the words of the Lord GOD: In that day when my people Israel is living undisturbed, will 15 you not awake and come with many nations from your home in the far recesses of the north, all riding on horses, a great host, a mighty army?
 16 You will come up against my people Israel; and in those future days you will be like a cloud covering the earth.
 I will bring you against my land, that the nations may know me, when they see me prove my holiness at your expense, O Gog.
 17 This is the word of the Lord GOD:
 When I spoke in days of old through my servants the prophets, who prophesied in those days unceasingly, it was you whom I threatened to bring 18 against Israel. On that day, when at length Gog comes against the land of Israel, says the Lord GOD, my wrath 19 will boil over. In my jealousy and in the heat of my anger I swear that on that day there shall be a great earthquake throughout the land of Israel.
 20 The fish in the sea and the birds in the air, the wild animals and all reptiles that move on the ground, all mankind on the face of the earth, all shall be shaken before me. Mountains shall be torn up, the terraced hills collapse, and every wall crash to the ground. I will 21 summon universal terror against Gog, says the Lord GOD, and his men shall turn their swords against one another.

 I will bring him to judgement with 22 pestilence and bloodshed; I will pour down teeming rain, hailstones hard as rock, and fire and brimstone, upon him, upon his squadrons, upon the whole concourse of peoples with him. Thus 23 will I prove myself great and holy and make myself known to many nations;
 they shall know that I am the LORD.

And you, man, prophesy against 39 Gog and say, These are the words of the Lord GOD: I am against you, Gog, prince of Rosh, Meshech, and Tubal.
 I will turn you about and drive you, I 2 will fetch you up from the far recesses of the north and bring you to the mountains of Israel. I will strike the 3 bow from your left hand and dash the arrows from your right hand. There 4 on the mountains of Israel you shall fall, you, all your squadrons, and your allies; I will give you as food to the birds of prey and the wild beasts. You 5 shall fall on the bare ground, for it is I who have spoken. This is the very word of the Lord GOD. I will send fire on 6 Magog and on those who live undisturbed in the coasts and islands, and they shall know that I am the LORD. My holy name I will make known in 7 the midst of my people Israel and will no longer let it be profaned; the nations shall know that in Israel I, the LORD, am holy.

Behold, it comes; it shall be, says the 8 Lord GOD, the day of which I have spoken. The dwellers in the cities of 9 Israel shall come out and gather weapons to light their fires, buckler and shield, bow and arrows, throwing-stick and lance, and they shall kindle fires with them for seven years. They shall 10 take no wood from the fields nor cut it from the forests but shall light their fires with the weapons. Thus they will plunder their plunderers and spoil their spoilers. This is the very word of the Lord GOD.

recesses of the north, the mythological dwelling of good and evil. 12: Centre of the world: Jerusalem; see 5.5. 39.7: To know God or his name is to experience God's reality and to acknowledge it by obedience.

39.8-20: Evil turned to good in the complete slaughter of Gog. 8: The verse hearkens back to 38.17.

11 In that day I will give to Gog, instead of<sup>c</sup> a burial-ground in Israel, the valley of Abarim east of the Sea.<sup>d</sup> There they shall bury Gog and all his horde, and all Abarim will be blocked; and they shall call it the Valley of Gog's

12 Horde. For seven months the Israelites shall bury them and purify the land; 13 all the people shall take their share in the burying. The day that I win myself honour shall be a memorable day for them. This is the very word of the Lord

14 GOD. Men shall be picked for the regular duty of going through the country and searching for<sup>e</sup> any left above ground, to purify the land; they shall begin their search at the end of the 15 seven months. They shall go through the country, and whenever one of them sees a human bone he shall put a marker beside it until it has been buried 16 in the Valley of Gog's Horde. So no more shall be heard of that great horde,<sup>f</sup> and the land will be purified.

17 Man, these are the words of the Lord GOD: Cry to every bird that flies and to all the wild beasts: Come, assemble, gather from every side to my sacrifice, the great sacrifice I am making for you on the mountains of Israel; eat flesh

18 and drink blood, eat the flesh of warriors and drink the blood of princes of the earth; all these are your rams and sheep, he-goats and bulls, and

19 buffaloes of Bashan. You shall cram yourselves with fat and drink yourselves drunk on blood at the sacrifice

20 which I am preparing for you. At my table you shall eat your fill of horses and riders, of warriors and all manner of fighting men. This is the very word of the Lord GOD.

21 I will show my glory among the nations; all shall see the judgement that I execute and the heavy hand that I lay upon them. From that day forwards 22 the Israelites shall know that I am the LORD their God. The nations shall 23 know that the Israelites went into exile for their iniquity, because they were faithless to me. So I hid my face from them and handed them over to their enemies, and they fell, every one of them, by the sword. I dealt with them 24 as they deserved, defiled and rebellious as they were, and hid my face from them.

These, therefore, are the words of the 25 Lord GOD: Now I will restore the fortunes of Jacob and show my affection for all Israel, and I will be jealous for my holy name. They shall forget 26 their shame and all their unfaithfulness to me, when they are at home again on their own soil, undisturbed, with no one to alarm them. When I bring them 27 home out of the nations and gather them from the lands of their enemies, I will make them an example of my holiness, for many nations to see. They 28 will know that I am the LORD their God, because I who sent them into exile among the nations will bring them together again on the soil of their own land and leave none of them behind. No longer will I hide my face 29 from them, I who have poured out my spirit upon Israel. This is the very word of the Lord GOD.

The restored theocracy

AT THE BEGINNING OF THE YEAR, ON 40 the tenth day of the month, in the

c Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds there.

d That is the Dead Sea.

e searching for: prob. rdg.; Heb. burying those who are passing through.

f So . . . horde: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.

11: Abarim: play on words with oberim, Heb. "travelers," who will be blocked and so reminded of God's action. The Sea is the Dead Sea. 15: Unburied bodies make the land unclean. 17-20: An evil army other than Gog's, which has been buried, is slaughtered and then offered as sacrifices for wild beasts, thus reversing the usual practice of animal sacrifices offered for men. The significance of this is not clear.

39.21-29: End of the oracles. The only relation between this passage and Gog is the theme of Israel's exaltation after exile and the vindication of God's holiness in accomplishing it.

40.1-48.35: Revelation of "Utopia." It is described in a vision extending over eight chapters. Containing precise building plans, rubrics for ritual, and legal enactments—none of which was ever realized, and perhaps not meant to be—the passage aims to portray graphically the religious, social and political structures of a society termed "The-Lord-is-there" (Jehovah-shammah, 48.35). It is a religious Utopia, the ideal postexilic Jewish community in its relations with the Lord. Most interpreters agree that some of this material is not Ezekiel's but comes from the postexilic community that developed following his inspiration.

twenty-fifth year of our exile, that is fourteen years after the destruction of the city, on that very day, the hand of the LORD came upon me and he brought me there. In a vision God brought me to the land of Israel and set me on a very high mountain, where I saw what seemed the buildings of a city facing me. He led me towards it, and I saw a man like a figure of bronze holding a cord of linen thread and a measuring-rod, and standing at the gate. 'Man,' he said to me, 'look closely and listen carefully; mark well all that I show you, for this is why you have been brought here. Tell the Israelites all that you see.' Round the outside of the temple ran a wall. The length of the rod which the man was holding was six cubits, reckoning by the long cubit which was one cubit and a hand's breadth. He measured the thickness and the height of the wall; each was one rod. He came to a gate which faced eastwards, went up its steps and measured the threshold of the gateway; its depth was one rod.
 Each cell was one rod long and one rod wide; the space between the cells five cubits, and the threshold of the gateway at the end of the vestibule on the side facing the temple one rod. He measured the vestibule of the gate and found it eight cubits, with pilasters two cubits thick; the vestibule of the gateway lay at the end near the temple. Now the cells of the gateway, looking back eastwards, were three in number on each side; all three of the same size, and their pilasters on each side of the same size also. He measured the entrance into the gateway; it was ten cubits wide, and the gateway itself throughout its length thirteen cubits wide. In front of the cells on each side lay a kerb, one cubit wide; each cell was six cubits by six. He measured the width of the gateway through the cell doors which faced one another, from the back of one cell to the back of the opposite cell; he made it twenty-five cubits, and the vestibule twenty cubits, across; the gateway on every side projected into the court. From the front of the entrance-gate to the outer face of the vestibule of the inner gate the distance was fifty cubits. Both cells and pilasters had loopholes all round inside the gateway, and the vestibule had windows all round within and palms carved on each pilaster.

He brought me to the outer court, and I saw rooms and a pavement all round the court: in all, thirty rooms on the pavement. The pavement ran up to the side of the gateways, as wide as they were long; this was the lower pavement. He measured the width of the court from the front of the lower gateway to the outside of the inner gateway; it was a hundred cubits. He led me round to the north and I saw a gateway facing northwards, belonging to the outer court, and he measured its length and its breadth. Its cells, three on each side, together with its pilasters and its vestibule, were the same size as those of the first gateway, fifty cubits long by twenty-five wide. So too its windows, and those of<sup>g</sup> its vestibule, and its palms were the same size as those of the gateway which faced east;
 it was approached by seven steps with its vestibule facing them. A gate like that on the east side led to the inner court opposite the northern gateway;
 he measured from gateway to gateway, and it was a hundred cubits. Then he led me round to the south, and I found a gateway facing southwards. He measured its cells, its pilasters, and its vestibule, and found it the same size

<sup>g</sup> Prob. rdg.: Heb. adds pilaster.
<sup>h</sup> those of: prob. rdg.: Heb. om.

40.1-47: The new Temple: its enclosure. 1: Beginning of the year: Heb., r'oš haššāna. In modern Judaism this phrase would indicate the Feast of the New Year which is celebrated on the first day of the month of Tishri (September-October). In Ezekiel all dates are derived from the ancient religious calendar in which the year began in the spring. Hence the tenth day of the month is probably April 28, 573 B.C. 5: The length of the rod was about 10 feet 4 inches long. The long cubit, an ancient standard, was seven hands' breadth or 20.60 inches, and the newer cubit was six hands' breadth or 17.5 inches. In choosing the ancient measure, Ezekiel indicates a return to ancient standards (and/or possibly principles) in the new community. 6: Gate: of the new Temple. Built on a high mountain (17.23), the new Temple rose above successive elevations of seven, eight and ten steps; see vv. 22,26,31,34,49. The Temple stood on the last 25 as the others, fifty cubits long by twenty-five wide. Both gateway and vestibule had windows all round like 26 the others. It was approached by seven steps with a vestibule facing them and 27 palms carved on each pilaster. The inner court had a gateway facing south-wards, and he measured from gateway to gateway; it was a hundred cubits.

28 He brought me into the inner court through the southern gateway, measured it and found it the same size as 29 the others. So were its cells, pilasters, and vestibule, fifty cubits long by twenty-five wide. It and its vestibule 31 had windows all round.<sup>i</sup> Its vestibule faced the outer court; it had palms carved on its pilasters, and eight steps led up to it.

32 Then he brought me into the inner court, towards the east, and measured the gateway and found it the same size 33 as the others. So too were its cells, pilasters, and vestibule; it and its vestibule had windows all round, and it was fifty cubits long by twenty-five 34 wide. Its vestibule faced the outer court and had a palm carved on each 35 pilaster; eight steps led up to it. Then he brought me to the north gateway and measured it and found it the same 36 size as the others. So were its cells, pilasters, and vestibule, and it had windows all round; it was fifty cubits 37 long by twenty-five wide. Its vestibule faced the outer court and had palms carved on the pilaster at each side;
eight steps led up to it.

38 There was a room opening out from the vestibule of the gateway;<sup>j</sup> here the 39 whole-offerings were washed. In the vestibule of the gateway were two tables on each side, at which to slaughter the whole-offering, the sin-offering, 40 and the guilt-offering. At the corner on the outside, as one goes up to the opening of the northern gateway, stood two tables, and two more at the other corner of the vestibule of the gateway.

Another four stood on each side at the 41 corner of the gateway, eight tables in all at which slaughtering was done.
Four tables used for the whole-offering 42 were of hewn stone, each a cubit and a half long by a cubit and a half wide and a cubit high; and on them they put the instruments used for the whole-offering and other sacrifices. The flesh 43 of the offerings was on the tables, and ledges a hand's breadth in width were fixed all round facing inwards.

Then he brought me right into the 44 inner court, and I saw two rooms in the inner court, one at the corner of the northern gateway, facing south, and one at the corner of the southern gateway, facing north. This room facing 45 south, he told me, is for the priests who have charge of the temple. The room 46 facing north is for the priests who have charge of the altar; these are the sons of Zadok, who alone of the Levites may come near to serve the LORD. He 47 measured the court; it was square, a hundred cubits each way, and the altar lay in front of the temple.

Then he brought me into the 48 vestibule of the temple, and measured a pilaster of the vestibule; it was five cubits on each side, the width of the gateway fourteen cubits and that of the corners of the gateway three cubits in each direction. The vestibule was 49 twenty cubits long by twelve wide; ten steps led up to it, and by the pilasters rose pillars, one on each side.

Then he brought me into the sanc- 41 tuary and measured the pilasters; they were six cubits wide on each side. The 2 opening was ten cubits wide and its corners five cubits wide in each direction. He measured its length; it was forty cubits, and its width twenty. He 3 went inside and measured the pilasters at the opening; they were two cubits;

<sup>i</sup> So some MSS.; others add (30) It had vestibules all round, and it was twenty-five cubits long by five wide.
<sup>j</sup> the vestibule of the gateway: prob. rdg.: Hcb. pilasters, the gates.

elevation crowning the land as the Lord's throne; see 43.7. 25: The gateway and windows all round enabled guards to keep out any one who might profane the Temple. 39: The emphasis on sin-offering and guilt-offering, expiatory sacrifices, stems from a keener sense of culpability and responsibility following the Exile. 45-46: The Levites are divided into two ranks, those having charge of the temple, performing work formerly done by foreign slaves, and a superior rank in charge of altar sacrifices; see 43.19; 44.10-15.

40.48-42.20: The new Temple, like other ancient temples, had three well defined areas: the vestibule (vv. 48-49); the sanctuary (41.1-2); the Holy of Holies (41.4). 49: Two pillars stood in the opening itself was six cubits, and the corners of the opening were seven cubits in each direction. Then he measured the room at the far end of the sanctuary; its length and its breadth were each twenty cubits. He said to me, 'This is the Holy of Holies.'

He measured the wall of the temple; it was six cubits high, and each arcade all round the house was four cubits wide. The arcades were arranged in three tiers, each tier in thirty sections. In the wall all round the temple there were intakes for the arcades, so that they could be supported without being fastened into the wall of the temple.

The higher up the arcades were, the broader they were all round by the addition of the intakes, one above the other all round the temple; the temple itself had a ramp running upwards on a base, and in this way one went up from the lowest to the highest tier by way of the middle tier.

Then I saw a raised pavement all round the temple, and the foundations of the arcades were flush with it and measured a full rod, six cubits high.

The outer wall of the arcades was five cubits thick. There was an unoccupied area beside the terrace<sup>k</sup> which was adjacent to the temple, and the arcades opened on to this area, one opening facing northwards and one southwards; the unoccupied area was five cubits wide on all sides. There was a free space<sup>m</sup> twenty cubits wide all round the temple. On the western side, at the far end of the free space, stood a building seventy cubits wide; its wall was five cubits thick all round, and its length ninety cubits.

He measured the temple; it was a hundred cubits long; and the free space, the building, and its walls, a hundred cubits in all. The eastern front of the temple and the free space was a hundred cubits wide. He measured the length of the building at the far end of the free space to the west of the temple, and its corridors on each side: a hundred cubits.

The sanctuary, the inner shrine and the outer vestibule were panelled; the embrasures all round the three of them were framed with wood all round. From the ground up to the windows and above the door, both in the inner and outer chambers, round all the walls, inside and out, were carved figures,<sup>n</sup> cherubim and palm-trees, a palm between every pair of cherubim. Each cherub had two faces: one the face of a man, looking towards one palm-tree, and the other the face of a lion, looking towards another palm-tree. Such was the carving round the whole of the temple. The cherubim and the palm-trees were carved from the ground up to the top of the doorway and on the wall of the sanctuary. The door-posts of the sanctuary were square.<sup>o</sup>

In front of<sup>p</sup> the Holy Place was what seemed an altar of wood, three cubits high and two cubits long; it was fitted with cornerposts, and its base and sides also were of wood. He told me that this was the table which stood before the LORD. The sanctuary had a double door, and the Holy Place also had a double door: the double doors had swinging leaves, a pair for each door. Cherubim and palm-trees like those on the walls were carved on them.<sup>q</sup> Outside there was a wooden cornice over the vestibule; on both sides of the vestibule were loopholes, with palm-trees carved at the corners.<sup>r</sup>

Then he took me to the outer court round by the north and brought me to the rooms facing the free space and

<sup>k</sup> beside the terrace: prob. rdg.; Heb. between the arcades.

<sup>l</sup> Verses 10 and 11 transposed.

<sup>m</sup> There . . . space: prob. rdg.; Heb. Between the rooms.

<sup>n</sup> carved figures: prob. rdg.; Heb. measures and carving.

<sup>o</sup> The door-posts . . . square: prob. rdg.; Heb. unintelligible.

<sup>p</sup> In front of: prob. rdg.; Heb. The face of.

<sup>q</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds on the doors of the sanctuary.

<sup>r</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds and the arcades of the temple and the cornices.

front of Solomon's Temple; see 1 Kgs.7.21,41. 41.12: On the western side . . . a building: possibly a place for keeping animals destined for sacrifice. 22: The altar of wood seems to be either the altar of incense or the table of the Presence bearing the twelve cakes of pure wheat flour, a witness to the covenant between the Lord and the twelve tribes; see Lev.24.5-9; 1 Kgs.6.20-22. 42.1-14: Accessory structures provide rooms for priests to eat their share of the sacrifices, for storing vestments and other supplies. The shape and disposition of the buildings are unclear.

2 facing the buildings to the north. The length along the northern side was a hundred cubits, and the breadth fifty.
 3 Facing the free space measuring twenty cubits, which adjoined the inner court, and facing the pavement of the outer court, were corridors at three levels
 4 corresponding to each other. In front of the rooms a passage, ten cubits wide and a hundred cubits long, ran towards the inner court; their entrances faced
 5 northwards. The upper rooms were shorter than the lower and middle rooms, because the corridors took 6 building space from them. For they were all at three levels and had no pillars as the courts had, so that the lower and middle levels were recessed 7 from the ground upwards. An outside wall, fifty cubits long, ran parallel to the rooms and in front of them, on the 8 side of the outer court. The rooms adjacent to the outer court were fifty cubits long, and those facing the 9 sanctuary a hundred cubits. Below these rooms was an entry from the east as one entered them from the outer court
 10 where the wall of the court began.<sup>s</sup> On the south side, passing by the free space and the building, were other 11 rooms with a passage in front of them. These rooms corresponded, in length and breadth and in general character, 12 to those facing north, whose exits and entrances were the same as those of the rooms on the south. As one<sup>t</sup> went eastwards, where the passages began, there was an entrance in the face of the 13 inner<sup>u</sup> wall. Then he said to me, 'The northern and southern rooms facing the free space are the consecrated rooms where the priests who approach the LORD may eat the most sacred offerings. There they shall put these offerings as well as the grain-offering, the sin-offering, and the guilt-offering; for the place is holy.'
 14 When the priests have entered the Holy Place they shall not go into the outer court again without leaving here the garments they have worn while performing their duties, for these are holy. They shall put on other garments when they approach the place assigned to the people.<sup>v</sup>

When he had finished measuring the 15 inner temple, he brought me out towards the gateway which faces eastwards and measured the whole area. He measured the east side with the 16 measuring-rod, and it was five hundred cubits. He turned and measured the 17 north side with his rod, and it was five hundred cubits. He turned to the south 18 side and measured it with his rod; it was five hundred cubits. He turned to the 19 west and measured it with his rod; it was five hundred cubits. So he 20 measured all four sides; in each direction the surrounding wall measured five hundred cubits. This marked off the sacred area from the profane.

He led me to the gate, the gate facing 43 eastwards, and I beheld the glory of 2 the God of Israel coming from the east. His voice was like the sound of a mighty torrent, and the earth shone with his
 3 glory. The form that I saw was the same as that which I had seen when he came to destroy the city, and as that which I had seen by the river Kebar,<sup>v</sup>
 4 and I fell on my face. The glory of the LORD came up to the temple towards the gate which faced eastwards. A 5 spirit<sup>w</sup> lifted me up and brought me into the inner court, and the glory of the LORD filled the temple. Then I heard
 6 one speaking to me from the temple, and the man was standing at my side. He said, Man, do you see the place of 7 my throne, the place where I set my feet, where I will dwell among the Israelites for ever? Neither they nor their kings shall ever defile my holy name again with their wanton disloyalty, and with the corpses<sup>x</sup> of their

<sup>s</sup> began: prob. rdg.; Heb. breadth.

<sup>t</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. they.

<sup>u</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. word unknown.

<sup>v</sup> Or the Kebar canal.
<sup>w</sup> Or wind.    <sup>x</sup> Or effigies.

15-20: The Temple area is holy, 500 cubits square, surrounded by a wall separating it from the profane, secular life.

43.1-12: The glory of the LORD returns to consecrate the new city. This occurrence is the high point of the vision. 1: Glory; see 10.3-4 n. 2: The east: the direction in which he had departed in 11.23. 3: There is here no appearance of a man, no living creatures as in 1.4-28. 7: Now the Lord will set his feet permanently in Jerusalem because it is his, planned and built by him; earlier, since it was Canaanite in origin, he had entered it as a sojourner. See 16.3.

8 kings when they die. They set their threshold by mine and their door-post beside mine, with a wall between me and them, and they defiled my holy name with the abominations they committed, and I destroyed them in my anger. But now they shall abandon their wanton disloyalty and remove the corpses<sup>x</sup> of their kings far from me, and I will dwell among them for ever.

9 So tell the Israelites, man, about this temple, its appearance and proportions, that they may be ashamed of their iniquities. If they are ashamed of all they have done, you shall describe to them the temple and its fittings, its exits and entrances, all the details and particulars of its elevation and plan; explain them and draw them before their eyes, so that they may keep them in mind and carry them out. This is the plan of the temple to be built on the top of the mountain; all its precincts on every side shall be most holy.

10 These were the dimensions of the altar in cubits (the cubit that is a cubit and a hand's breadth). This was the height of the altar: the base was a cubit high<sup>y</sup> and projected a cubit; on its edge was a rim one span deep. From the base to the cubit-wide ridge of the lower pedestal-block was two cubits, and from this shorter pedestal-block to the cubit-wide ridge of the taller pedestal-block was four cubits. The altar-hearth was four cubits high and was surmounted by four horns a cubit high. The hearth was twelve cubits long and twelve cubits wide, being a perfect square. The upper pedestal-block was fourteen cubits long and fourteen cubits wide along its four sides, and the rim round it was half a cubit deep. The base of the altar projected a cubit, and there were steps facing eastwards.

18 He said to me, Man, these are the words of the Lord GOD: These are the regulations for the altar when it has been made, for sacrificing whole-offerings on it and flinging the blood against it. The levitical priests of the family of Zadok, and they alone, may come near to me to serve me, says the Lord GOD. You shall assign them a young bull for a sin-offering; you shall take some of the blood and put it on the four horns of the altar, on the four corners of the upper pedestal and all round the rim, and so purify it and make expiation for it. Then take the bull assigned as the sin-offering, and they shall destroy it by fire in the proper place within the precincts but outside the Holy Place. On the second day you shall present a he-goat without blemish as a sin-offering, and with it they shall purify the altar as they did with the bull. When you have completely purified the altar, you shall present a young bull without blemish and a ram without blemish from the flock. You shall present them before the LORD; the priests shall throw salt on them and sacrifice them as a whole-offering to the LORD. For seven days you shall provide as a daily sin-offering a goat, a young bull, and a ram from the flock; all of them shall be provided free from blemish. For seven days they shall make expiation for the altar, and pronounce it ritually clean, and consecrate it. At the end of that time, on the eighth day and onwards, the priests shall sacrifice on the altar your whole-offerings and your shared-offerings, and I will accept you. This is the very word of the Lord GOD.

<sup>x</sup> Or effigies.

<sup>y</sup> the base . . . high: prob. rdg.; Heb. the base of the cubit.

8: Unlike Solomon's Temple, the new Temple will not be a dependency of the king, surrounded by his buildings; see 1 Kgs. 7.1-12; 2 Kgs. 16.7-20.

43.13-27: Shape of the altar and its consecration. Since in cultic acts the altar represents God (Exod. 24.6-8), it will be a sign of his permanent presence. 13-17: Built in tiers on three platforms—16, 14, and 12 cubits square—the altar resembles the Babylonian ziggurat, or sacred tower (Gen. 11.4 n.); it is 12 cubits or about 20½ ft. high. 15: The significance of the horns, projections from the four corners of the altar, is not known. 18-26: Zadokite priests were the descendants of Zadok, the priest who remained loyal to David (1 Kgs. 1.5-40). They will consecrate the altar—lit. "fill its hands" (with offerings), terminology used in consecrating priests—setting it aside for sacred use. Compare Exod. 29.1-46. 27: Accept you: be pleased with you. Whole offerings: the sacrifice was completely burned. Shared offerings: the offerer received a portion of it back and ate it as a sign of his communion with God.

- 44 He again brought me round to the outer gate of the sanctuary facing eastwards, and it was shut. The LORD said to me, This gate shall be kept shut; it must not be opened. No man may enter by it, for the LORD the God of Israel has entered by it. It shall be kept shut. The prince, however, when he is here as prince, may sit there to eat food in the presence of the LORD; he shall come in and go out by the vestibule of the gate.
- 4 He brought me round to the northern gate facing the temple, and I saw the glory of the LORD filling the LORD's house, and I fell on my face. The LORD said to me, Mark well, man, look closely, and listen carefully to all that I say to you, to all the rules and regulations for the house of the LORD. Mark well the entrance to the house of the LORD and all the exits from the sanctuary. Say to that rebel people of Israel, These are the words of the Lord GOD: Enough of all these abominations of yours, you Israelites! You have added to them by bringing foreigners, uncircumcised in mind and body, to stand in my sanctuary and defile my house when you present my food to me, both fat and blood, and they have made my covenant void. Instead of keeping charge of my holy things yourselves, you have chosen to put these men in charge of my sanctuary.
- 9 These are the words of the Lord GOD: No foreigner, uncircumcised in mind and body, shall enter my sanctuary, not even a foreigner living among the Israelites. But the Levites, though they deserted me when the Israelites went astray after their idols and had to bear the punishment of their iniquity, shall yet do service in my sanctuary. They shall take charge of the gates of the temple and do service there. They shall slaughter the whole-offering and the sacrifice for the people and shall be in attendance to serve them. Because they served them in the presence of their idols and brought Israel to the ground by their iniquity, says the Lord GOD, I have sworn with uplifted hand that they shall bear the punishment of their iniquity. They shall not have access to me, to serve me as priests; they shall not come near to my holy things or to the Holy of Holies; they shall bear the shame of the abominable deeds they have done. I will put them in charge of the temple with all the service which must be performed there.
- But the levitical priests of the family of Zadok remained in charge of my sanctuary when the Israelites went astray from me; these shall approach me to serve me. They shall be in attendance on me, presenting the fat and the blood, says the Lord GOD. It is they who shall enter my sanctuary and approach my table to serve me and observe my charge. When they come to the gates of the inner court they shall dress in linen; they shall wear no wool when they serve me at the gates of the inner court and within. They shall wear linen turbans, and linen drawers on their loins; they shall not fasten their clothes with a belt so that they sweat. When they go out to the people in the outer court, they shall take off the clothes they have worn while serving, leave them in the sacred rooms and put on other clothes; otherwise they will transmit the sacred influence to the people through their clothing.
- They shall neither shave their heads nor let their hair grow long; they shall only clip their hair. No priest shall drink wine when he is to enter the inner court. He may not marry a widow or a divorced woman; he may marry a virgin of Israelite birth. He may, however, marry the widow of a priest.
- They shall teach my people to distinguish the sacred from the profane,

44.1-31: The personnel of the new Temple receive guidelines for a worship free from profanation. 3: The prince could be in the Temple as prince, not for the priestly function of the former kings; see 2 Chr.26.16-19. For sacred meals following a sacrifice see Deut.12.4-7. 7: The Bible notes several instances of foreigners being taken into Temple service; most to the point are Josh.9.23-27; Ezra 2.43,55; 8.20; Neh.7.57,60; 11.3,21. Circumcision of the body is a sign of circumcision of mind: a willingness to love and serve the Lord by keeping his Law (see Deut.10.12-20); foreigners, uncircumcised in both, would profane the new covenant. 10-16: Ezekiel seems to be a transition between Deut. (18.1-8) where all Levites are priests, and the 24 and show them the difference between clean and unclean. When disputes break out, they shall take their place in court, and settle the case according to my rules. At all my appointed seasons they shall observe my laws and statutes. They shall keep my sabbaths holy.

25 They shall not defile themselves by contact with any dead person, except<sup>z</sup> father or mother, son or daughter, 26 brother or unmarried sister. After purification, they shall count seven 27 days and then be clean. When they enter the inner court to serve in the Holy Place, they shall present their sin-offering, says the Lord GOD.

28 They shall own no patrimony in Israel; I am their patrimony. You shall grant them no holding in Israel; I am 29 their holding. The grain-offering, the sin-offering, and the guilt-offering shall be eaten by them, and everything in Israel devoted to God shall be theirs.

30 The first of all the firstfruits and all your contributions of every kind shall belong wholly to the priests. You shall give the first lump of your dough to the priests, that a blessing may rest 31 upon your home. The priests shall eat no carrion, bird or beast, whether it has died naturally or been killed by a wild animal.

45 When you divide the land by lot among the tribes for their possession, you shall set apart from it a sacred reserve for the LORD, twenty-five thousand cubits in length and twenty thousand in width; the whole enclosure shall be sacred. Of this a square plot, five hundred cubits each way, shall be devoted to the sanctuary, with 3 fifty cubits of open land round it. From this area you shall measure out a space twenty-five thousand by ten thousand cubits, in which the sanctuary, the 4 holiest place of all, shall stand. This space is for the priests who serve in the sanctuary and who come nearest in serving the LORD. It shall include space for their houses and a sacred plot for the sanctuary. An area of twenty- 5 five thousand by ten thousand cubits shall belong to the Levites, the temple servants; on this shall stand the towns in which they live. You shall give to 6 each town an area of five thousand by twenty-five thousand cubits alongside the sacred reserve; this shall belong to all Israel. On either side of the sacred 7 reserve and of the city's holding the prince shall have a holding facing the sacred reserve and the city's holding, running westwards on the west and eastwards on the east. It shall run alongside one of the tribal portions, and stretch to the western limit of the land and to the eastern. It shall be his 8 holding in Israel; the princes of Israel shall never oppress my people again but shall give the land to Israel, tribe by tribe.

THESE ARE THE WORDS OF THE LORD 9 GOD: Enough, princes of Israel! Put an end to lawlessness and robbery; maintain law and justice; relieve my people and stop your evictions, says the Lord GOD. Your scales shall be 10 honest, your bushel and your gallon shall be honest. There shall be one 11 standard for each, taking each as the tenth of a homer, and the homer shall have its fixed standard. Your shekel 12 weight shall contain twenty gerahs; your mina shall contain weights of ten<sup>a</sup> and twenty-five and fifteen shekels.

These are the contributions you shall 13 set aside: out of every homer of wheat or of barley, one sixth of an ephah.

<sup>z</sup> any . . . except: or anyone else's dead, but only their own . . .
<sup>a</sup> Prob. rdg.: Heb. twenty.

later Priestly source (Num.3.5-10; 18.2) where they are assistants to the priests. 29: Devoted to God, lit. "under the ban," Heb. herem, is anything strictly reserved for sacred cultic use. 31: Carrion is meat with blood in it; hence forbidden.

45.1-8: The new distribution of the land. Beginning here and ending in ch. 48, there is a graphic portrayal of the ideals of theocracy, a political system in which God is held to be the supreme ruler. 4: Priests held such a position relative to the Tent of the Presence in the desert; see Num.3.38. 7-8: The prince's property is so great because he must provide offerings for the cult; see v. 17. The prince's role in the new nation is ambiguous, no mention being made of a king; see 44.3 n.; 45.13-17 n.

45.9-12: Weights and measures are standardized for use in the new Temple.

45.13-46.24: Sacrifices, feasts, and ritual. The cult outlined in great detail. 13-17: Out of 14 For oil the rule is<sup>b</sup> one tenth of a bath from every kor (at ten bath to the kor); 15 one sheep in every flock of two hundred is to be reserved by every Israelite clan. For a grain-offering, a whole-offering, and a shared-offering, to make expiation for them, says the 16 Lord GOD, all the people of the land shall bring<sup>c</sup> this contribution to the 17 prince in Israel; and the prince shall be responsible for the whole-offering, the grain-offering, and the drink-offering, at pilgrim-feasts, new moons, sabbaths, and every sacred season observed by Israel. He himself is to provide the sin-offering and the grain-offering, the whole-offering and the shared-offering, needed to make expiation for Israel.

18 These are the words of the Lord GOD: On the first day of the first month you shall take a young bull without blemish, and purify the sanctuary. The priest shall take some of the blood from the sin-offering and put it on the door-posts of the temple, on the four corners of the altar pedestal and on the gate-posts of the inner court.
 20 You shall do the same on the seventh day of the month;<sup>d</sup> in this way you shall make expiation for the temple.

21 On the fourteenth day of the first month you shall hold the Passover, the pilgrim-feast of seven days; bread must be eaten unleavened. On that day the prince shall provide a bull as a sin-offering for himself and for all the 23 people. During the seven days of the feast he shall offer daily as a whole-offering to the LORD seven bulls and seven rams without blemish, and a 24 he-goat as a daily sin-offering. With every bull and ram he shall provide a grain-offering of one ephah, together 25 with a hin of oil for each ephah. He shall do the same thing also on the fifteenth day of the seventh month at the pilgrim-feast; this also shall last seven days, and he shall provide the same sin-offering and whole-offering and the same quantity of grain and oil.

These are the words of the Lord
 GOD: The eastern gate of the inner court shall remain closed for the six working days; it may be opened only on the sabbath and at new moon. When the prince comes through the porch of the gate from the outside, he shall halt at the door-post, and the priests shall sacrifice his whole-offering and shared-offerings. On the terrace he shall bow down at the gate and then go out, but the gate shall not be shut till the evening. On sabbaths and at new moons the people also shall bow down before the LORD at the entrance to that gate.

The whole-offering which the prince sacrifices to the LORD shall be as follows: on the sabbath, six sheep without blemish and a ram without blemish; the grain-offering shall be an ephah with the ram and as much as he likes with the sheep, together with a hin of oil for every ephah. At the new moon it shall be a young bull without blemish, six sheep and a ram, all without blemish. He shall provide as the grain-offering to go with the bull one ephah and with the ram one ephah, with the sheep as much as he can afford, adding a hin of oil for every ephah.

When the prince comes in, he shall enter through the porch of the gate and come out by the same way. But on festal days when the people come before the LORD, a man who enters by the northern gate to bow down shall leave by the southern gate, and a man who enters by the southern gate shall leave by the northern gate. He shall not turn back and go out through the gate by which he came in but shall go straight on. The prince shall then be among them, going in when they go in taxes he receives, the prince provides for certain sacrifices; in contrast to the meddling of past kings, this is the only privilege and duty allowed him; see 2 Kgs.16.10-18. 18-20: The rite here for purifying the sanctuary does not accord with Lev.16.1-34. Comparable discrepancies in relation to the prescriptions of the Pentateuch concerning sacrifices created problems about the eligibility of the entire book for the canon, the official list of Judaism's biblical books, as is known from rabbinic literature. 21: Passover: see Exod.23.15; Lev.23.4-8; Deut.16.1-8. 25: Feast of Tabernacles; see Exod.23.16; Lev.23.33-36; Deut.16.13-15. 46.1-2: The prince may enter the inner court to watch the priests offer the sacrifice which he has provided.

<sup>b</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds the bath, the oil.

<sup>c</sup> all . . . bring: prob. rdg.; Heb. unintelligible.

<sup>d</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds This comes from a man who is wrong and foolish. Cp. Lev. 23. 24; Num. 29. 1.

and coming out when they come out.

11 At pilgrim-feasts and on festal days the grain-offering shall be an ephah with a bull, an ephah with a ram and as much as he likes with a sheep, together with a hin of oil for every ephah.

12 When the prince provides a whole-offering or shared-offerings as a voluntary sacrifice to the LORD, the eastern gate shall be opened for him,<sup>e</sup> and he shall make his whole-offering and his shared-offerings as he does on the sabbath; when he goes out the gate shall be closed<sup>f</sup> behind him.

13 You shall provide a yearling sheep without blemish daily as a whole-offering to the LORD; you shall provide it morning by morning. With it every morning you shall provide as a grain-offering one sixth of an ephah with a third of a hin of oil to moisten the flour; the LORD's grain-offering is an observance prescribed for all time. Morning by morning, as a regular whole-offering, they shall offer a sheep with the grain-offering and the oil.

14 These are the words of the Lord GOD: When the prince makes a gift out of his property to any of his sons, it shall belong to his sons, since it is part of the family property. But when he makes such a gift to one of his slaves, it shall be his only till the year of manumission, when it shall revert to the prince; it is the property of his sons and shall belong to them.

15 The prince shall not oppress the people by taking part of their holdings; he shall give his sons an inheritance from his own holding of land, so that my people may not be scattered and separated from their holdings.

16 Then he brought me through the entrance by the side of the gate to the rooms which face north (the sacred rooms reserved for the priests), and, pointing to a place on their western side, he said to me, 'This is the place where the priests shall boil the guilt-offering and the sin-offering and bake the grain-offering; they shall not take it into the outer court for fear they transmit the sacred influence to the people.' Then he brought me into the outer court and took me across to the four corners of the court, at each of which there was a further court. These four courts were vaulted and were the same size, forty cubits long by thirty cubits wide. Round each of the four was a row of stones, with fire-places constructed close up against the rows. He said to me, 'These are the kitchens where the attendants shall boil the people's sacrifices.'

He brought me back to the gate of the temple, and I saw a spring of water issuing from under the terrace of the temple towards the east; for the temple faced east. The water was running down along the right side, to the south of the altar. He took me out through the northern gate and brought me round by an outside path to the eastern gate of the court, and water was trickling from the right side. When the man went out eastwards he had a line in his hand. He measured a thousand cubits and made me walk through the water; it came up to my ankles. He measured another thousand and made me walk through the water; it came up to my knees. He measured another thousand and made me walk through the water; it was up to my waist. Another thousand, and it was a torrent I could not cross, for the water had risen and was now deep enough to swim in; it had become a torrent that could not be crossed. 'Mark this, man', he said, and led me back to the bank of

<sup>e</sup> the eastern . . . him: or he shall open the gate facing east.
<sup>f</sup> the gate . . . closed: or he shall close the gate.

13-15: This daily morning sacrifice was unfaillingly offered in the Temple until the last days of Jerusalem in 70 A.D., when, according to Josephus (B.J. VI,2,1), it was discontinued. In the year of manumission—probably every fiftieth or Jubilee year—all lands reverted to original patrimony; see Lev.25.8-55. 18: Compare 34.5-6. 20: Sacred influence is the Lord's exclusive holiness sometimes attached spatially to places and things connected with the cult, as here, and sometimes attached to the persons totally dedicated to the cult, the priests (Lev.21.6-8).

47.1-48.35: Life in the new land and the new city. Both land and city are to be so arranged that the vitality emanating from God in his Temple may keep the tribes in unity.

47.1-12: Life-giving water flowing from the Temple is a symbolism found in Ps.36.8-9; Joel 3.18; Zech.14.8; Rev.22.1-2. 3-6: In powerful contrast to this visionary stream which increases

7 the torrent. When we came back to the bank I saw a great number of trees on 8 each side. He said to me, 'This water flows out to the region lying east, and down to the Arabah; at last it will reach that sea whose waters are foul, and they 9 will be sweetened. When any one of the living creatures that swarm upon the earth comes where the torrent flows, it shall draw life from it. The fish shall be innumerable; for these waters come here so that the others may be sweetened, and where the torrent flows everything shall live. From En-ge-di as far as En-eglaim fishermen shall stand on its shores, for nets shall be spread there. Every kind of fish shall be there in shoals, like the fish of the Great Sea; but its swamps and pools shall not have their waters sweetened but shall be left as salt-pans. Beside the torrent on either bank all trees good for food shall spring up. Their leaves shall not wither, their fruit shall not cease; they shall bear early every month. For their water comes from the sanctuary; their fruit is for food and their foliage for enjoyment.'

13 These are the words of the Lord GOD: These are the boundary lines within which the twelve tribes of Israel shall enter into possession of the land, 14 Joseph receiving two portions. The land which I swore with hand uplifted to give to your fathers you shall divide with each other; it shall be assigned to you by lot as your patrimony. This is the frontier: on its northern side, from the Great Sea through Hethlon, Lebo-hamath, Zedad, Berutha, and Sibraim, which are between the frontiers of Damascus and Hamath, to Hazar-enan, 17 near the frontier of Hauran. So the frontier shall run from the sea to Hazar-enan on the frontier of Damascus and northwards; this is its northern side. The eastern side runs alongside the territories of Hauran, Damascus, and Gilead, and alongside the territory of Israel; Jordan sets the boundary to the eastern sea, to Tamar. This is the eastern side. The southern side runs from Tamar to the waters of Meribah-by-Kadesh; the region assigned to you reaches the Great Sea. This is the southern side towards the Negeb. The western side is the Great Sea, which forms a boundary as far as a point opposite Lebo-hamath. This is the western side. You shall distribute this land among the tribes of Israel and assign it by lot as a patrimony for yourselves and for any aliens living in your midst who leave sons among you. They shall be treated as native-born in Israel and with you shall receive a patrimony by lot among the tribes of Israel. You shall give the alien his patrimony with the tribe in which he is living. This is the very word of the Lord GOD.

These are the names of the tribes: 48 In the extreme north, in the direction of Hethlon, to Lebo-hamath and Hazar-enan, with Damascus on the northern frontier in the direction of Hamath, and so from the eastern side to the western, shall be Dan: one portion.

Bordering on Dan, from the eastern side to the western, shall be Asher: one portion.

Bordering on Asher, from the eastern side to the western, shall be Naphtali: one portion.

Bordering on Naphtali, from the eastern side to the western, shall be Manasseh: one portion.

Bordering on Manasseh, from the

as it flows from the Temple into the desert is the spring Gihon, which still emerges from the hillside under the Temple area and quickly dries out in the valley of the brook Kidron, which is ordinarily a wadi or a dry wash. 8-9: Arabah is the geological rift forming the Dead Sea and the valley south of it, a barren desert. Even the Dead Sea, in whose foul waters (26 percent salt, besides a high mineral content) no life can survive, will be sweetened and will give life. The image symbol is the whole earth's receiving life and nourishment from the Lord's presence in his Temple. 10: En-ge-di, En-eglaim: oases on the western shore of the Dead Sea at the mouth of the wadi Kidron, just south of Qumran. Great Sea is the Mediterranean.

47.13-48.35. Israel's boundaries and the tribal portions. Except along the River Jordan, these boundaries approximate the greatest extent of the kingdom under David, the ideal king. Since, in the past, the tribes east of the Jordan tended to isolate themselves, no territories are assigned there. See Josh.22.10-29; Judg.5.15-17. 21-23: Other codes provide that aliens be treated like Israelites, but only here are they given a patrimony among the tribes of Israel. 48.1-8: Since they minister in the sanctuary, the portion of priests and Levites is adjacent to it. Judah, the eastern side to the western, shall be Ephraim: one portion.

6 Bordering on Ephraim, from the eastern side to the western, shall be Reuben: one portion.

7 Bordering on Reuben, from the eastern side to the western, shall be Judah: one portion.

8 Bordering on Judah, from the eastern side to the western, shall be the reserve which you shall set apart. Its breadth shall be twenty-five thousand cubits and its length the same as that of the other portions, from the eastern side to the western, and the sanctuary shall be in the middle of it.

9 The reserve which you shall set apart for the LORD shall measure twenty-five thousand cubits by twenty<sup>g</sup> thousand. The reserve shall be apportioned thus: the priests shall have an area measuring twenty-five thousand cubits on the north side, ten thousand on the west, ten thousand on the east, and twenty-five thousand on the south side; the sanctuary of the LORD shall be in the middle of it. It shall be for the consecrated priests, the sons of Zadok, who kept my charge and did not follow the Israelites when they went astray, as the Levites did. The area set apart for the priests from the reserved territory shall be most sacred, reaching the frontier of the Levites.

13 The Levites shall have a portion running parallel to the border of the priests. It shall be twenty-five thousand cubits long by ten thousand wide; altogether, the length shall be twenty-five thousand cubits and the breadth ten thousand. They shall neither sell nor exchange any part of it, nor shall the best of the land be alienated; for it is holy to the LORD.

15 The strip which is left, five thousand cubits in width by twenty-five thousand, is the city's secular land for dwellings and common land, and the city shall be in the middle of it. These shall be its dimensions: on the northern side four thousand five hundred cubits, on the southern side four thousand five hundred cubits, on the eastern side four thousand five hundred cubits, on the western side four thousand five hundred cubits. The common land belonging to the city shall be two hundred and fifty cubits to the north, two hundred and fifty to the south, two hundred and fifty to the east, and two hundred and fifty to the west. What is left parallel to the reserve, ten thousand cubits to the east and ten thousand to the west,<sup>h</sup> shall provide food for those who work in the city. Those who work in the city shall cultivate it; they may be drawn from any of the tribes of Israel.

You shall set apart the whole reserve, twenty-five thousand cubits square, as sacred, as far as the holding of the city. What is left over on each side of the sacred reserve and the holding of the city shall be assigned to the prince. Eastwards, what lies over against the reserved twenty-five thousand cubits, as far as the eastern side, and westwards, what lies over against the twenty-five thousand cubits to the western side, parallel to the tribal portions, shall be assigned to the prince; the sacred reserve and the sanctuary itself shall be in the centre. The<sup>i</sup> holding of the Levites and the<sup>i</sup> holding of the city shall be in the middle of that which is assigned to the prince; it shall be between the frontiers of Judah and Benjamin.

The rest of the tribes: from the eastern side to the western shall be Benjamin: one portion.

Bordering on Benjamin, from the eastern side to the western, shall be Simeon: one portion.

Bordering on Simeon, from the eastern side to the western, shall be Issachar: one portion.

Bordering on Issachar, from the eastern side to the western, shall be Zebulun: one portion.

<sup>g</sup> Prob. rdg.: Heb. ten.

<sup>h</sup> Prob. rdg.: Heb. adds and it shall be parallel to the sacred reserve.

<sup>i</sup> Prob. rdg.: Heb. Some of the.

leading southern tribe, is closest to the sanctuary. It is placed among the northern tribes with whom it had formerly lived in hostile rivalry, to show the harmony in the new nation. 15: Land used for daily existence, i.e. unconnected with the cult, is secular, and so separated from the sanctuary by the priests' land. 16-19: Jerusalem, much larger in extent than at any time in history—5000 cubits or 1.6 miles square—will be a "federal" district, with the names of all

- 27 Bordering on Zebulun, from the eastern side to the western, shall be Gad: one portion.
- 28 Bordering on Gad, on the side of the Negeb, the border on the south stretches from Tamar to the waters of Meribah-by-Kadesh, to the Brook as far as the Great Sea.
- 29 This is the land which you shall allot as a patrimony to the tribes of Israel, and these shall be their lots. This is the very word of the Lord GOD.
- 30-31 These are to be the ways out of the city, and they are to be named after the tribes of Israel. The northern side, four thousand five hundred cubits long, shall have three gates, those of Reuben, Judah, and Levi; the eastern side, four thousand five hundred cubits long, three gates, those of Joseph, Benjamin, and Dan; the southern side, four thousand five hundred cubits long, three gates, those of Simeon, Issachar, and Zebulun; the western side, four thousand five hundred cubits long, three gates, those of Gad, Asher, and Naphtali. The perimeter of the city shall be eighteen thousand cubits, and the city's name for ever after shall be Jehovah-shammah.<sup>j</sup>
- <sup>j</sup> That is the LORD is there.

---

the twelve tribes on its gates (vv. 30-34). 35: Unnamed till now, the city will be called in Heb. Jehovah-shammah, a contrast in assonance to its old Canaanite name Yerushalaim. For other names given Jerusalem by prophets as a sign of future transformation, see Isa. 1.26; 60.14; 62.2-4; Jer. 3.17; Zech. 8.3. The new city with its name expresses the concept of God's absolute transcendence and his intimate closeness.

THE BOOK OF DANIEL

The reports about Daniel in this book may contain elements about an older figure, or figures, with the same name: a king in an Ugaritic legend of the fourteenth century B.C.; the example, along with Noah and Job, of a righteous man in Ezek.14.14; and a wise man who knows secrets in Ezek.28.3; these three Daniels may reflect an ancient tradition about a single figure.

The book divides neatly into two parts. In chs. 1-6, Daniel is a young Jew at a foreign court, who, by his ability to interpret royal dreams, and through divine revelation, becomes a vizier to kings. In chs. 8-12, Daniel himself has the visions, and must turn to angels for interpretation. Chapter 7, belonging with chs. 1-6 in its idea of a succession of kingdoms, but also containing the first of the visions characteristic of the second section, unites the two parts. In language, too, ch. 7 provides a bridge between the two parts: Aramaic, rather than Hebrew, is found in 2.4-7.28; see 2.4 n. In chs. 1-6 Daniel has many of the characteristics of Joseph at the Pharaoh's court in Gen. ch. 41; in chs. 7-12 the author builds on elements from the Book of the Prophet Ezekiel to fashion the most fully developed example of apocalyptic literature in the Old Testament; see 8.17 n., 12.1 n., and the heavenly figures of ch. 7.

The stories and visions are set in the Babylonian and Persian periods (sixth-fourth centuries B.C.), but they reflect a later time, primarily that of the successors to Alexander the Great. Antiochus IV Epiphanes (175-163 B.C.) and his wars with the Egyptians (see 7.8 n.) are especially in view. In chs. 7-12, Antiochus, though anonymous as befits apocalyptic literature, emerges in more and more detail as the oppressor of the Jews. In the face of his intense persecution, the book gives great encouragement to Jews by promising God's ultimate vindication of the righteous.

Additional stories in the Daniel tradition are found in the Sept. expansion of the book, and appear in the Apocrypha in The Song of the Three; Daniel and Susanna; and Daniel, Bel, and the Snake.

---

Jews at the court of Nebuchadnezzar

1 IN THE THIRD YEAR OF THE REIGN OF Jehoiakim king of Judah, Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon came 2 to Jerusalem and laid siege to it. The Lord delivered Jehoiakim king of Judah into his power, together with all that was left of the vessels of the house of God; and he carried them off to the land of Shinar, to the temple of his god, where he deposited the vessels 3 in the treasury. Then the king ordered Ashpenaz, his chief eunuch, to take certain of the Israelite exiles, of the 4 blood royal and of the nobility, who were to be young men of good looks and bodily without fault, at home in all branches of knowledge, well-informed, intelligent, and fit for service in the royal court; and he was to instruct them in the literature and language of the Chaldaeans. The king 5 assigned them a daily allowance of food and wine from the royal table. Their training was to last for three years, and at the end of that time they would<sup>a</sup> enter the royal service.

Among them there were certain 6 young men from Judah called Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael and Azariah; but 7 the master of the eunuchs gave them new names: Daniel he called Belteshazzar, Hananiah Shadrach, Mishael Meshach and Azariah Abed-nego. Now 8 Daniel determined not to contaminate himself by touching the food and wine assigned to him by the king, and he begged the master of the eunuchs not to make him do so. God made the 9 master show kindness and goodwill to

<sup>a</sup> at the end . . . would: or all of them were to.

---

1.1-21: Daniel as a young man at a foreign court. See Introduction. The chronology is uncertain, and dates given are not necessarily precise. 1: Third year of Jehoiakim: 607 or 606 B.C. Nebuchadnezzar became king in 605; but see 2 Kgs.24.1-6. The first deportation took place in 598; see 2 Kgs.24.10-17. 2: Shinar was in southern Mesopotamia. 3: Ashpenaz is otherwise unknown. 6: Hananiah, Mishael and Azariah were common names; Azariah appears in Neh.10.2, and Hananiah in Neh.10.22. 7: This was also the case with Joseph in Gen.41.45. 8: Determined not to contaminate himself: compare 1 Macc.1.62; see Ezek.4.13; Hos.9.3.

10 Daniel, and he said to him, 'I am afraid of my lord the king: he has assigned you your food and drink, and if he sees you looking dejected, unlike the other young men of your own age, 11 it will cost me my head.' Then Daniel said to the guard whom the master of the eunuchs had put in charge of Hananiah, Mishael, Azariah and himself, 'Submit us to this test for ten days. 12 Give us only vegetables to eat and 13 water to drink; then compare our looks with those of the young men who have lived on the food assigned by the king, and be guided in your treatment of us 14 by what you see.'<sup>b</sup> The guard listened to what they said and tested them for 15 ten days. At the end of ten days they looked healthier and were better nourished than all the young men who had lived on the food assigned them by 16 the king. So the guard took away the assignment of food and the wine they were to drink, and gave them only the vegetables.

17 To all four of these young men God had given knowledge and understanding of books and learning of every kind, while Daniel had a gift for interpreting visions and dreams of 18 every kind. The time came which the king had fixed for introducing the young men to court, and the master of the eunuchs brought them into the 19 presence of Nebuchadnezzar. The king talked with them and found none of them to compare with Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael and Azariah; so they 20 entered the royal service. Whenever the king consulted them on any matter calling for insight and judgement, he found them ten times better than all the magicians and exorcists in his 21 whole kingdom. Now Daniel was there till the first year of King Cyrus.

2 In the second year of his reign

Nebuchadnezzar had dreams, and his mind was so troubled that he could not sleep. Then the king gave orders to 2 summon the magicians, exorcists, sorcerers, and Chaldaeans to tell him what he had dreamt. They came in and stood 3 in the royal presence, and the king said to them, 'I have had a dream and my mind has been troubled to know what my dream was.' The Chaldaeans, 4 speaking in Aramaic, said, "Long live the king! Tell us what you dreamt and we will tell you the interpretation." The 5 king answered, "This is my declared intention. If you do not tell me both dream and interpretation, you shall be torn in pieces and your houses shall be forfeit."<sup>d</sup> But if you can tell me the 6 dream and the interpretation, you will be richly rewarded and loaded with honours. Tell me, therefore, the dream and its interpretation.' They answered 7 a second time, "Let the king tell his servants the dream, and we will tell him the interpretation." The king answered, "It is clear to me that you are trying to gain time, because you see that my intention has been declared. 9 If you do not make known to me the dream, there is one law that applies to you, and one only. What is more, you have agreed among yourselves to tell me a pack of lies to my face in the hope that with time things may alter. Tell me the dream, therefore, and I shall know that you can give me the interpretation." The Chaldaeans answered 10 in the presence of the king, "Nobody on earth can tell your majesty what you wish to know; no great king or prince has ever made such a demand of magician, exorcist, or Chaldaean. What your majesty requires of us is too 11

<sup>b</sup> be guided . . . see: or treat us as you see fit.

<sup>c</sup> The Aramaic text begins here and continues to the end of ch. 7.

<sup>d</sup> Or made into a dunghill (mng. of Aram. word uncertain).

12: The total abstinence from meat was a safeguard against eating forbidden meats such as pork. 17: Visions and dreams: the practice of dream interpretation in Mesopotamia, and the special significance attributed to them, goes back to the third millennium. 20: This verse anticipates the plots in chs. 2; 4; 5. Magicians and exorcists: the Heb. terms are borrowed from the ancient Akkadian, meaning, respectively, "interpreters of dreams" and "incantation officials." 21: First years of King Cyrus: 539 B.C., sixty-eight years after the date (607 or 606) in v. 1.

2.1-49: The revelation of the future history of five world kingdoms. 1: Second year: 604 B.C. 2: Chaldaeans: wise men, rather than simply people from Chaldea. Chaldeans were found in great numbers in the Grecian lands, usually as astrologers and magicians. 4: In Aramaic: either the author is deliberately following the format of the Book of Ezra, in which the center chapters are in Aram., or else the stories in this section were handed down in Aram. 11: No one but hard; there is no one but the gods, who dwell remote from mortal men, who can give you the answer.' At this the king lost his temper and in a great rage ordered the death of all the wise men of Babylon. A decree was issued that the wise men were to be executed, and accordingly men were sent to fetch Daniel and his companions for execution.

When Arioch, the captain of the king's bodyguard, was setting out to execute the wise men of Babylon, Daniel approached him cautiously and with discretion and said, 'Sir, you represent the king; why has his majesty issued such a peremptory decree?' Arioch explained everything; so Daniel went in to the king's presence and begged for a certain time by which he would give the king the interpretation. Then Daniel went home and told the whole story to his companions, Hananiah, Mishael and Azariah. They should ask the God of heaven in his mercy, he said, to disclose this secret, so that they and he with the rest of the wise men of Babylon should not be put to death. Then in a vision by night the secret was revealed to Daniel, and he blessed the God of heaven in these words:

Blessed be God's name from age to age, for all wisdom and power are his.
 He changes seasons and times;
 he deposes kings and sets them up;
 he gives wisdom to the wise and all their store of knowledge to the men who know;
 he reveals deep mysteries;
 he knows what lies in darkness,
 and light has its dwelling with him.
 To thee, God of my fathers, I give thanks and praise, for thou hast given me wisdom and power;
 thou hast now revealed to me what we asked,
 and told us what the king is concerned to know.

Daniel therefore went to Arioch who had been charged by the king to put to death the wise men of Babylon and said to him, 'Do not put the wise men of Babylon to death. Take me into the king's presence, and I will now tell him the interpretation of the dream.' Arioch in great trepidation brought Daniel before the king and said to him, 'I have found among the Jewish exiles a man who will make known to your majesty the interpretation of your dream.' Thereupon the king said to Daniel (who was also called Belteshazzar), 'Can you tell me what I saw in my dream and interpret it?' Daniel answered in the king's presence, 'The secret about which your majesty inquires no wise man, exorcist, magician, or diviner can disclose to you. But there is in heaven a god who reveals secrets, and he has told King Nebuchadnezzar what is to be at the end of this age. This is the dream and these the visions that came into your head: the thoughts that came to you, O king, as you lay on your bed, were thoughts of things to come, and the revealer of secrets has made known to you what is to be. This secret has been revealed to me not because I am wise beyond all living men, but because your majesty is to know the interpretation and understand the thoughts which have entered your mind.

'As you watched, O king, you saw a great image. This image, huge and dazzling, towered before you, fearful to behold. The head of the image was of fine gold, its breast and arms of silver, its belly and thighs of bronze,<sup>e</sup> its legs of iron, its feet part iron and part clay. While you looked, a stone was hewn from a mountain, not by human hands; it struck the image on its feet of iron and clay and shattered them. Then the iron, the clay, the bronze, the silver, and the gold, were all shattered to fragments and were swept away like chaff before the wind from a threshing-floor in summer, until no trace of them remained. But the stone which struck

<sup>e</sup> Or copper.

the gods: this anticipates v. 47, in which the king recognizes Daniel's words as divinely given. 28: A god who reveals secrets: see v. 22. 32: The theme of a descending scale of metals representing ages of world history is also found in Greece, in Hesiod's "Works and Days";

the image grew into a great mountain 36 filling the whole earth. That was the dream. We shall now tell your majesty 37 the interpretation. You, O king, king of kings, to whom the God of heaven has given the kingdom with all its 38 power, authority, and honour; in whose hands he has placed men and beasts and birds of the air, wherever they dwell, granting you sovereignty over them all—you are that head of gold.
 39 After you there shall arise another kingdom, inferior to yours, and yet a third kingdom, of bronze, which shall have sovereignty over the whole world.
 40 And there shall be a fourth kingdom, strong as iron; as iron shatters and destroys all things, it shall break and 41 shatter the whole earth.<sup>f</sup> As, in your vision, the feet and toes were part potter's clay and part iron, it shall be a divided kingdom. Its core shall be partly of iron just as you saw iron 42 mixed with the common clay; as the toes were part iron and part clay, the kingdom shall be partly strong and 43 partly brittle. As, in your vision, the iron was mixed with common clay, so shall men mix with each other by intermarriage, but such alliances shall not be stable: iron does not mix with 44 clay. In the period of those kings the God of heaven will establish a kingdom which shall never be destroyed; that kingdom shall never pass to another people; it shall shatter and make an end of all these kingdoms, while it shall 45 itself endure for ever. This is the meaning of your vision of the stone being hewn from a mountain, not by human hands, and then shattering the iron, the bronze, the clay, the silver, and the gold. The mighty God has made known to your majesty what is to be hereafter. The dream is sure and the interpretation to be trusted.<sup>g</sup>

46 Then King Nebuchadnezzar prostrated himself and worshipped Daniel, and gave orders that sacrifices and soothing offerings should be made to him. 'Truly,' he said, 'your god is 47 indeed God of gods and Lord over kings, a revealer of secrets, since you have been able to reveal this secret.'

 Then the king promoted Daniel, 48 bestowed on him many rich gifts, and made him regent over the whole province of Babylon and chief prefect over all the wise men of Babylon.
 Moreover at Daniel's request the king 49 put Shadrach, Meshach and Abed-nego in charge of the administration of the province of Babylon. Daniel himself, however, remained at court.

KING NEBUCHADNEZZAR MADE AN IMAGE 3 of gold, ninety feet high and nine feet broad. He had it set up in the plain of Dura in the province of Babylon. Then 2 he sent out a summons to assemble the satraps, prefects, viceroys, counsellors, treasurers, judges, chief constables, and all governors of provinces to attend the dedication of the image which he had set up. So they assembled—the satraps, 3 prefects, viceroys, counsellors, treasurers, judges, chief constables, and all governors of provinces—for the dedication of the image which King Nebuchadnezzar had set up; and they stood before the image which Nebuchadnezzar had set up. Then the herald 4 loudly proclaimed, 'O peoples and nations of every language, you are 5 commanded, when you hear the sound of horn, pipe, zither, triangle, dulcimer, music, and singing of every kind, to prostrate yourselves and worship the golden image which King Nebuchadnezzar has set up. Whoever does not 6 prostrate himself and worship shall forthwith be thrown into a blazing

<sup>f</sup> the whole earth: prob. rdg.: Aram. and like iron which shatters all these.

in ancient Hindu mythology; and elsewhere. 37–40: The four kingdoms are usually taken to be the Babylonian, the Median, the Persian, and the Macedonian Greek; compare 8.20–21. There is no confirming evidence for the opinion (9.1), found in Jer.51.11,28 as well, that the Medes existed as a world power quite separate from the Persians. 44: The fifth kingdom will bring an end to world history as then known. 47: V. 22, alluded to here and in v. 28, is thereby a key theme of the story. 48: Daniel's appointment is similar to that of Joseph in Gen.41.41.

3.1–30: God delivers the three young men from the fiery furnace. The three are presented here as Daniel-like figures (see ch. 6), but do not appear again after this chapter. 1: An image: the account does not give the exact nature of the statue but indicates that it is a major Babylonian god. Dura: a place name common in ancient Babylonia; the exact location cannot be

7 furnace.' Accordingly, no sooner did all the peoples hear the sound of horn, pipe, zither, triangle, dulcimer, music, and singing of every kind, than all the peoples and nations of every language prostrated themselves and worshipped the golden image which King Nebuchadnezzar had set up.

8 It was then that certain Chaldeans came forward and brought a charge against the Jews. They said to King Nebuchadnezzar, 'Long live the king! 9 Your majesty has issued an order that every man who hears the sound of horn, pipe, zither, triangle, dulcimer, music, and singing of every kind shall fall down and worship the image of gold. Whoever does not do so shall be 10 thrown into a blazing furnace. There are certain Jews, Shadrach, Meshach and Abed-nego, whom you have put in charge of the administration of the province of Babylon. These men, your majesty, have taken no notice of your command; they do not serve your god, nor do they worship the golden image 11 which you have set up.' Then in rage and fury Nebuchadnezzar ordered Shadrach, Meshach and Abed-nego to be fetched, and they were brought into 12 the king's presence. Nebuchadnezzar said to them, 'Is it true, Shadrach, Meshach and Abed-nego, that you do not serve my god or worship the golden image which I have set up? If 13 you are ready at once to prostrate yourselves when you hear the sound of horn, pipe, zither, triangle, dulcimer, music, and singing of every kind, and to worship the image that I have set up, well and good. But if you do not worship it, you shall forthwith be thrown into the blazing furnace; and what god is there that can save you 14 from my power?' Shadrach, Meshach and Abed-nego said to King Nebuchadnezzar, 'We have no need to 15 answer you on this matter. If there is a god who is able to save us from the blazing furnace, it is our God whom we serve, and he will save us from your power, O king; but if not, be it known 16 to your majesty that we will neither serve your god nor worship the golden image that you have set up.'

Then Nebuchadnezzar flew into a 17 rage with Shadrach, Meshach and Abed-nego, and his face was distorted with anger. He gave orders that the furnace should be heated up to seven times its usual heat, and commanded 18 some of the strongest men in his army to bind Shadrach, Meshach and Abed-nego and throw them into the blazing furnace. Then those men in their 19 trousers, their shirts, and their hats and all their other clothes, were bound and thrown into the blazing furnace. Because the king's order was urgent 20 and the furnace exceedingly hot, the men who were carrying Shadrach, Meshach and Abed-nego were killed by the flames that leapt out; and those three 21 men, Shadrach, Meshach and Abed-nego, fell bound into the blazing furnace.

Then King Nebuchadnezzar was 22 amazed and sprang to his feet in great trepidation. He said to his courtiers, 'Was it not three men whom we threw bound into the fire?' They answered the king, 'Assuredly, your majesty.' He answered, 'Yet I see four men 23 walking about in the fire free and unharmed; and the fourth looks like a god.' Nebuchadnezzar approached the 24 door of the blazing furnace and said to the men, 'Shadrach, Meshach and Abed-nego, servants of the Most High God, come out, come here.' Then Shadrach, Meshach and Abed-nego 25 came out from the fire. And the satraps, prefects, viceroys, and the king's courtiers gathered round and saw how the fire had had no power to harm the bodies of these men; the hair of their heads had not been 26 singed, their trousers were untouched, and no smell of fire lingered about them.

Then Nebuchadnezzar spoke out, 28 determined. 17-18: But if not: that is, even if God does not save us. The intention is not to imply that God cannot save, but that they can be saved only by the God they worship. 23: At this point the Sept. introduces Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego. Roman Catholic Bibles retain it here, but Protestant Bibles include it as a separate book of the Apocrypha, in this version called "The Song of the Three." 25: Like a god: in v. 28, this fourth "person" is called an angel. 28-29: The king's acknowledgment here is similar to the endings in 2.47; 4.37; 6.26-7.

'Blessed is the God of Shadrach, Meshach and Abed-nego. He has sent his angel to save his servants who put their trust in him, who disobeyed the royal command and were willing to yield themselves to the fire rather than to serve or worship any god other than their own God. I therefore issue a decree that any man, to whatever people or nation he belongs, whatever his language, if he speaks blasphemy against the God of Shadrach, Meshach and Abed-nego, shall be torn to pieces and his house shall be forfeit;<sup>g</sup> for there is no other god who can save men in this way.' Then the king advanced the fortunes of Shadrach, Meshach and Abed-nego in the province of Babylon.

4 KING NEBUCHADNEZZAR TO ALL PEOPLES and nations of every language living in the whole world: May all prosperity be yours! It is my pleasure to recount the signs and marvels which the Most High God has worked for me:

3 How great are his signs, and his marvels overwhelming!
His kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, his sovereignty stands to all
generations.

4 I, Nebuchadnezzar, was living peacefully at home in the luxury of my palace. As I lay on my bed, I saw a dream which terrified me; and fantasies and visions which came into my head dismayed me. So I issued an order summoning into my presence all the wise men of Babylon to make known to me the interpretation of the dream.
7 Then the magicians, exorcists, Chaldeans, and diviners came in, and in their presence I related my dream. But they could not interpret it. And yet another came into my presence, Daniel, who is called Belteshazzar after the name of my god, a man possessed by the spirit of the holy gods. To him, too, I related the dream: 'Belteshazzar, 9 chief of the magicians, whom I myself know to be possessed by the spirit of the holy gods, and whom no secret baffles, listen to the vision I saw in a dream, and tell me its interpretation.

'Here is the vision which came into my head as I was lying upon my bed:

As I was looking,
I saw a tree of great height at the centre of the earth;
the tree grew and became strong, 11 reaching with its top to the sky and visible to earth's farthest bounds.

Its foliage was lovely, 12
and its fruit abundant;
and it yielded food for all.
Beneath it the wild beasts found shelter,
the birds lodged in its branches, and from it all living creatures fed.

'Here is another vision which came into my head as I was lying upon my bed:

As I was watching, there was a Watcher,
a Holy One coming down from heaven.

He cried aloud and said, 14
"Hew down the tree, lop off the branches, strip away the foliage, scatter the fruit.

Let the wild beasts flee from its shelter and the birds from its branches, but leave the stump with its roots in 15
the ground.

So, tethered with an iron ring, let him eat his fill of the lush grass;
let him be drenched with the dew
of heaven

<sup>g</sup> Or made into a dunghill (mng. of Aram. word uncertain).

4.1-37: Nebuchadnezzar loses and regains the throne. This chapter has the form of a letter; it turns from the first to the third person in vv. 19-33. 3: The king's earlier reverence for Daniel's God (2.47 and 3.28-29) here emerges into full praise. 8: Belteshazzar: the author either mistakenly or according to folk etymology considers Belteshazzar to contain the name of the Babylonian god Bel. Actually it is a shortened form of a simple name, "Balatshuuzur," meaning "guards his life." 13: Watcher, Holy One are synonyms for "angel." The first is not found in the Bible outside this chapter, but appears often in the Book of Enoch (in the "Pseudepigrapha") as a term for archangel. The second is used in Dan.8.13 for angel. 15: The

and share the lot of the beasts in their pasture;
 16 let his mind cease to be a man's
 mind,
 and let him be given the mind of a beast.
 Let seven times pass over him.
 17 The issue has been determined by the Watchers
 and the sentence pronounced by the Holy Ones.

Thereby the living will know that the Most High is sovereign in the kingdom of men: he gives the kingdom to whom he will and he may set over it the humblest of mankind."

18 'This is the dream which I, King Nebuchadnezzar, have dreamed; now, Belteshazzar, tell me its interpretation;
 for, though all the wise men of my kingdom are unable to tell me what it means, you can tell me, since the spirit of the holy gods is in you.'

19 Daniel, who was called Belteshazzar, was dumbfounded for a moment, dismayed by his thoughts; but the king said, 'Do not let the dream and its interpretation dismay you.' Belteshazzar answered, 'My lord, if only the dream were for those who hate you and its interpretation for your enemies!

20 The tree which you saw grow and become strong, reaching with its top to the sky and visible to earth's farthest 21 bounds, its foliage lovely and its fruit abundant, a tree which yielded food for all, beneath which the wild beasts dwelt and in whose branches the birds 22 lodged, that tree, O king, is you. You have grown and become strong. Your power has grown and reaches the sky;
 your sovereignty stretches to the ends 23 of the earth. Also, O king, you saw a Watcher, a Holy One, coming down from heaven and saying, "Hew down the tree and destroy it, but leave its stump with its roots in the ground. So, tethered with an iron ring, let him eat his fill of the lush grass; let him be drenched with the dew of heaven and share the lot of the beasts until seven times pass over him." This is the 24 interpretation, O king—it is a decree of the Most High which touches my lord the king. You will be banished 25 from the society of men; you will have to live with the wild beasts; you will feed on grass like oxen and you will be drenched with the dew of heaven.

 Seven times will pass over you until you have learnt that the Most High is sovereign over the kingdom of men and gives it to whom he will. The 26 command was given to leave the stump of the tree with its roots. By this you may know that from the time you acknowledge the sovereignty of heaven your rule will endure. Be advised by me, 27 O king: redeem your sins by charity and your iniquities by generosity to the wretched. So may you long enjoy peace of mind.'

All this befell King Nebuchadnezzar. 28
 At the end of twelve months the king 29 was walking on the roof of the royal palace at Babylon, and he exclaimed, 30
 'Is not this Babylon the great which I have built as a royal residence by my own mighty power and for the honour of my majesty?' The words were still 31 on his lips, when a voice came down from heaven: 'To you, King Nebuchadnezzar, the word is spoken: the kingdom has passed from you. You are 32 banished from the society of men and you shall live with the wild beasts; you shall feed on grass like oxen, and seven times will pass over you until you have learnt that the Most High is sovereign over the kingdom of men and gives it to whom he will.' At that very moment 33 this judgement came upon Nebuchadnezzar. He was banished from the society of men and ate grass like oxen; his body was drenched by the dew of heaven, until his hair grew long like goats' hair and his nails like eagles' talons.<sup>h</sup>

<sup>h</sup> goats' hair . . . eagles' talons: prob. rdg.: Aram.
 eagles' and his nails like birds'.

metaphor changes from a tree to a beast to a human. 16: Times: years, as in 7.25. 25: The Most High is sovereign: see v. 30 n. 26: Heaven as a "euphemism" for God, common in the Apocrypha, is not found elsewhere in the OT. 30: The sin of pride is here given as the reason for his fall, as in Ezek.31.10; see v. 27. 33: A temporary lapse in the reign of Nebuchadnezzar is unknown, but does fit the last Babylonian king, Nabonidus, who (inexplicably) spent part of 34 At the end of the appointed time, I, Nebuchadnezzar, raised my eyes to heaven and I returned to my right mind. I blessed the Most High, praising and glorifying the Ever-living One:

His sovereignty is never-ending and his rule endures through all generations;

35 all dwellers upon earth count for nothing and he deals as he wishes with the host of heaven;<sup>i</sup> no one may lay hand upon him and ask him what he does.

36 At that very time I returned to my right mind and my majesty and royal splendour were restored to me for the glory of my kingdom. My courtiers and my nobles sought audience of me. I was established in my kingdom and 37 my power was greatly increased. Now I, Nebuchadnezzar, praise and exalt and glorify the King of heaven; for all his acts are right and his ways are just and those whose conduct is arrogant he can bring low.

Belshazzar's feast

5 BELSHAZZAR THE KING GAVE A BANQUET for a thousand of his nobles and was drinking wine in the presence of the 2 thousand. Warmed by the wine, he gave orders to fetch the vessels of gold and silver which his father Nebuchadnezzar had taken from the sanctuary at Jerusalem, that he and his nobles, his concubines and his courtesans, might
3 drink from them. So the vessels of gold and silver from the sanctuary in the house of God at Jerusalem were brought in, and the king and his nobles, his concubines and his courtesans, 4 drank from them. They drank wine and praised the gods of gold and silver, of bronze and iron, and of wood and 5 stone. Suddenly there appeared the fingers of a human hand writing on the plaster of the palace wall opposite the lamp, and the king could see the back of the hand as it wrote. At this the 6 king's mind was filled with dismay and he turned pale, he became limp in every limb and his knees knocked together. He called loudly for the exorcists,

7 Chaldaeans, and diviners to be brought in; then, addressing the wise men of Babylon, he said, 'Whoever can read this writing and tell me its interpretation shall be robed in purple and honoured with a chain of gold round his neck and shall rank as third in the kingdom.' Then all the king's wise men
8 came in, but they could not read the writing or interpret it to the king. King 9 Belshazzar sat there pale and utterly dismayed, while his nobles were perplexed.

The king and his nobles were talking 10 when the queen entered the banqueting-hall: 'Long live the king!' she said. 'Why this dismay, and why do you look 11 so pale? There is a man in your kingdom who has in him the spirit of the holy gods, a man who was known in your father's time to have a clear understanding and godlike wisdom. King Nebuchadnezzar, your father, appointed him chief of the magicians, exorcists, Chaldaeans, and diviners. This same Daniel, whom the king 12 named Belteshazzar, is known to have a notable spirit, with knowledge and understanding, and the gift of interpreting dreams, explaining riddles and unbinding spells;<sup>j</sup> let him be summoned now and he will give the interpretation.' Daniel was then brought into the 13 king's presence and the king said to him, 'So you are Daniel, one of the Jewish exiles whom the king my father brought from Judah. I have heard that 14 you possess the spirit of the holy gods and that you are a man of clear understanding and peculiar wisdom. The wise men, the exorcists, have just 15 been brought into my presence to read this writing and tell me its interpretation.
i Prob. rdg.; Aram. adds and the dwellers upon earth.
j Or and solving problems.

his reign at the north Arabian oasis of Taima. 34b-35: These verses are an expansion of v. 3.

5.1-31: Corruption punished. 1: Belshazzar was the son of Nabonidus, but is never referred to as king in Babylonian texts; he ruled as vice-regent while his father was away from the country; see 4.33 n. 7: Shall rank as third: that is, after the king and crown prince; compare 2.48.

tion, and they have been unable to 16 interpret it. But I have heard it said of you that you are able to give interpretations and to unbind spells.<sup>k</sup> So now, if you are able to read the words and tell me what they mean, you shall be robed in purple and honoured with a chain of gold round your neck and shall rank as third in the kingdom.
 17 Then Daniel answered in the king's presence, 'Your gifts you may keep for yourself; or else give your rewards to another. Nevertheless I will read the writing to your majesty and tell you its 18 interpretation. My lord king, the Most High God gave your father Nebuchadnezzar a kingdom and power and glory and 19 majesty; and, because of this power which he gave him, all peoples and nations of every language trembled before him and were afraid. He put to death whom he would and spared whom he would, he promoted them at 20 will and at will degraded them. But, when he became haughty, stubborn and presumptuous, he was deposed from his royal throne and his glory was taken 21 from him. He was banished from the society of men, his mind became like that of a beast, he had to live with the wild asses and to eat grass like oxen, and his body was drenched with the dew of heaven, until he came to know that the Most High God is sovereign over the kingdom of men and sets up 22 over it whom he will. But you, his son Belshazzar, did not humble your heart, 23 although you knew all this. You have set yourself up against the Lord of heaven. The vessels of his temple have been brought to your table; and you, your nobles, your concubines, and your courtesans have drunk from them. You have praised the gods of silver and gold, of bronze and iron, of wood and stone, which neither see nor hear nor know, and you have not given glory to God, in whose charge is your very breath and in whose hands are all your ways. This is why that hand was sent 24 from his very presence and why it wrote this inscription. And these are the 25 words of the writing which was inscribed: Mene mene tekel u-pharsin.

 Here is the interpretation: mene:<sup>l</sup> God 26 has numbered the days of your kingdom and brought it to an end; tekel:<sup>m</sup> you have been weighed in the 27 balance and found wanting; u-pharsin:<sup>n</sup> 28 and your kingdom has been divided and given to the Medes and Persians.
 Then Belshazzar gave the order and 29 Daniel was robed in purple and honoured with a chain of gold round his neck, and proclamation was made that he should rank as third in the kingdom.

That very night Belshazzar king of 30 the Chaldaeans was slain, and Darius 31 the Mede took the kingdom, being then sixty-two years old.

Daniel in the lions' pit

IT PLEASSED DARIUS TO APPOINT SATRAPS 6 over the kingdom, a hundred and twenty in number in charge of the whole kingdom, and over them three 2 chief ministers, to whom the satraps should send reports so that the king's interests might not suffer; of these three, Daniel was one. In the event Daniel 3 outshone the other ministers and the satraps because of his ability, and the king had it in mind to appoint him over the whole kingdom. Then the 4 chief ministers and the satraps began to look round for some pretext to attack Daniel's administration of the kingdom, but they failed to find any malpractice on his part; for he was faithful to his trust. Since they could 5 discover no neglect of duty or malpractice, they said, 'There will be <sup>k</sup> Or and to solve problems.
<sup>l</sup> That is numbered.
<sup>m</sup> That is shekel or weight.
<sup>n</sup> Prob. rdg.; Aram. pheres. There is a play on three possible meanings halves or divisions or Persians.

18-21: A summary of ch. 4. 25: Mene mene tekel u-pharsin: tekel, Heb. shekel, was a sixtieth of a mene. Heb. mina. U means "and"; pharsin means two pheres, with one pheres being a half-shekel. The weights, or coins, are here in descending value; this is in accord with the comparable descending values of the metals in 2.32. The weights are symbolic of the five kings after Nebuchadnezzar, including Belshazzar. 31: See 2.37-40 n. No Darius is known as king of the Medes. The Persian king Darius ruled 521-486 b.c.

6.1-28: Daniel impresses Darius. The plot is a variant of that of ch. 3. 1: Darius: see 5.31 n. 2: A hundred and twenty: Persian sources refer to numbers of satrapies (province states) only no charge to bring against this Daniel unless we find one in his religion.'

6 These chief ministers and satraps watched for an opportunity to approach the king, and said to him,
7 'Long live King Darius! All we, the ministers of the kingdom, prefects, satraps, courtiers, and viceroys, have taken counsel and agree that the king should issue a decree and bring an ordinance into force, that whoever within the next thirty days shall present a petition to any god or man other than the king shall be thrown
8 into the lions' pit. Now, O king, issue the ordinance and have it put in writing, so that it may be unalterable, for the law of the Medes and Persians 9 stands for ever.' Accordingly King Darius issued the ordinance in written form.

10 When Daniel learnt that this decree had been issued, he went into his house. He had had windows made in his roof-chamber looking towards Jerusalem; and there he knelt down three times a day and offered prayers and praises to his God as his custom had always been.
11 His enemies watched for an opportunity to catch Daniel and found him at his prayers making supplication to his God. Then they came into the king's presence and reminded him of the ordinance. 'Your majesty,' they said, 'have you not issued an ordinance that any person who, within the next thirty days, shall present a petition to any god or man other than your majesty shall be thrown into the lions' pit?' The king answered, 'Yes, it is fixed. The law of the Medes and 13 Persians stands for ever.' So in the king's presence they said, 'Daniel, one of the Jewish exiles, has ignored the ordinance issued by your majesty, and is making petition to his god three 14 times a day.' When the king heard this, he was greatly distressed. He tried to think of a way to save Daniel, and 15 continued his efforts till sunset; then those same men watched for an opportunity to approach the king, and said to him, 'Your majesty must know that by the law of the Medes and Persians no ordinance or decree issued by the king may be altered.' So the king gave 16 orders and Daniel was brought and thrown into the lions' pit; but he said to Daniel, 'Your own God, whom you serve continually, will save you.' A 17 stone was brought and put over the mouth of the pit, and the king sealed it with his signet and with the signets of his nobles, so that no one might intervene to rescue Daniel.

The king went back to his palace
18 and spent the night fasting; no woman was brought to him and sleep eluded him. At dawn, as soon as it was light, 19 he rose and went in fear and trembling to the pit. When the king reached it, 20 he called anxiously to Daniel, 'Daniel, servant of the living God, has your God whom you serve continually been able to save you from the lions?' Then 21 Daniel answered, 'Long live the king! My God sent his angel to shut the 22 lions' mouths so that they have done me no injury, because in his judgement I was found innocent;<sup>o</sup> and moreover,
23 O king, I had done you no injury.' The king was overjoyed and gave orders that Daniel should be lifted out of the pit. So Daniel was lifted out and no trace of injury was found on him, because he had put his faith in his God. By order of the king Daniel's accusers 24 were brought and thrown into the lions' pit with their wives and children, and before they reached the floor of the pit the lions were upon them and crunched them up, bones and all.

Then King Darius wrote to all 25 peoples and nations of every language throughout the whole world: 'May your prosperity increase! I have issued 26 a decree that in all my royal domains men shall fear and reverence the God of Daniel; up to twenty-nine; this text uses a typical biblical round number; compare Esther 8.9. 7: A drastic form of punishment was to be thrown into the lions' pit. 8: The law of the Medes and the Persians: this phrase has passed into our everyday language to mean something unchangeable. 10: Looking towards Jerusalem: the sacred direction for Jewish prayer, as in 1 Kgs.8.44. 14: Darius here knows Daniel immediately, which is in contrast to situations in earlier chapters.

<sup>o</sup> in his judgement . . . innocent: or before him success was granted me.

for he is the living God, the everlasting,
whose kingly power shall not be weakened;
whose sovereignty shall have no
end—

27 a saviour, a deliverer, a worker of signs and wonders
in heaven and on earth, who has delivered Daniel from the power of the lions.<sup>7</sup>

28 So this Daniel prospered during the reigns of Darius and Cyrus the Persian.

Daniel's visions

7 IN THE FIRST YEAR OF BELSHAZZAR KING of Babylon, as Daniel lay on his bed, dreams and visions came into his head.
Then he wrote down the dream, and here his account begins:

2 In my visions of the night I, Daniel, was gazing intently and I saw a great sea churned up by the four winds of 3 heaven, and four huge beasts coming up out of the sea, each one different 4 from the others. The first was like a lion but had an eagle's wings. I watched until its wings were plucked off and it was lifted from the ground and made to stand on two feet like a man; it was also given the mind of a 5 man. Then I saw another, a second beast, like a bear. It was half crouching and had three ribs in its mouth, between its teeth. The command was given: 'Up, gorge yourself with flesh.' 6 After this as I gazed I saw another, a beast like a leopard with four bird's wings on its back; this creature had four heads, and it was invested with 7 sovereign power. Next in my visions of the night I saw a fourth beast, dreadful and grisly, exceedingly strong,

with great iron teeth and bronze claws.<sup>p</sup> It crunched and devoured, and trampled underfoot all that was left.
It differed from all the beasts which preceded it in having ten horns. While 8 I was considering the horns I saw another horn, a little one, springing up among them, and three of the first horns were uprooted to make room for it. And in that horn were eyes like the eyes of a man, and a mouth that spoke proud words. I kept looking, and then 9 thrones were set in place and one ancient in years took his seat, his robe was white as snow and the hair of his head like cleanest

wool.

Flames of fire were his throne and its wheels blazing fire;
a flowing river of fire streamed out 10
before him.<sup>q</sup>

Thousands upon thousands served
him
and myriads upon myriads attended
his presence.
The court sat, and the books were opened.

Then because of the proud words 11 that the horn was speaking, I went on watching until the beast was killed and its carcass destroyed: it was given to the flames. The rest of the beasts, 12 though deprived of their sovereignty, were allowed to remain alive for a time and a season. I was still watching in 13 visions of the night and I saw one like a man coming with the clouds of heaven; he approached the Ancient in Years and was presented to him.

<sup>p</sup> Or it.
<sup>q</sup> and bronze claws: prob. rdg. cp.verse 19; Aram. om.

26b-27: This general hymn, similar to 4.34b-35, ends with a motif taken from the story; this is also the case in 2.23b. 28: See 5.31 n.

7.1-12.13: Final manifestations. These form the second half of the book. Two separate themes—the four beasts and the heavenly visions—become united. 2: A great sea: the ocean was viewed as the chaos dragon, slain by the deity; see e.g. Job 7.12; Isa.27.1; and Ps.89.9-10 n. 4-7: Compare the four creatures in Ezek.1.5-10. According to v. 17, the beasts probably represent kingdoms; see 2.37-40. 8: A little horn: the ten horns would represent a round number of successors of Alexander the Great in the Near East; see v. 24. The little horn would be the contemporaneous persecutor of the Jews, Antiochus IV Epiphanes (see Introduction). See also 1 Macc.1.41-50. 9-10: A vision of heaven. 9: Ancient in years: God. On the scene depicted here, see 1 Kgs.22.19 and Ezek.1.26-28. 10: The court . . . the books: the picture of a courtroom scene is found in other writings, such as Enoch 47.3. 11-12: A continuation of v. 8. 13-14: A continuation of vv. 9-10. 13: One like a man: lit. one like a son of man. The term "son of

- 14 Sovereignty and glory and kingly power were given to him, so that all people and nations of every language should serve him; his sovereignty was to be an everlasting sovereignty which should not pass away, and his kingly power such as should never be impaired.
- 15 My spirit within me was troubled, and, dismayed by the visions which came into my head, I, Daniel, approached one of those who stood there and inquired from him what all this meant; and he told me the interpretation. 'These great beasts, four in number,' he said, 'are four kingdoms which shall rise from the ground. But the saints<sup>r</sup> of the Most High shall receive the kingly power and shall retain it for ever, for ever and ever.'
- 17 Then I desired to know what the fourth beast meant, the beast that was different from all the others, very dreadful with its iron teeth and bronze claws, crunching and devouring and trampling underfoot all that was left. I desired also to know about the ten horns on its head and the other horn which sprang up and at whose coming three of them fell—the horn that had eyes and a mouth speaking proud words and appeared larger than the others. As I still watched, that horn was waging war with the saints and overcoming them until the Ancient in Years came. Then judgement was given in favour of the saints of the Most High, and the time came when the saints gained possession of the kingly power. He gave me this answer: 'The fourth beast signifies a fourth kingdom which shall appear upon earth. It shall differ from the other kingdoms and shall devour the whole earth, tread it down and crush it. The ten horns signify the appearance of
- ten kings in this kingdom, after whom another king shall arise, differing from his predecessors; and he shall bring low three kings. He shall hurl defiance at the Most High and shall wear down the saints of the Most High. He shall plan to alter the customary times and law; and the saints shall be delivered into his power for a time and times and half a time. Then the court shall sit, and he shall be deprived of his sovereignty, so that in the end it may be destroyed and abolished. The kingly power, sovereignty, and greatness of all the kingdoms under heaven shall be given to the people of the saints of the Most High. Their kingly power is an everlasting power and all sovereignties shall serve them and obey them.'
- Here the account ends. As for me, Daniel, my thoughts dismayed me greatly and I turned pale; and I kept these things in my mind.
- <sup>s</sup>In the third year of the reign of King Belshazzar, while I was in Susa, the capital city of the province of Elam, a vision appeared to me, Daniel, similar to my former vision. In this vision I was watching beside the stream of the Ulai. I raised my eyes and there I saw a ram with two horns standing between me and the stream. The two horns were long, the one longer than the other, growing up behind. I watched the ram butting west and north and south. No beasts could stand before it, no one could rescue from its power. It did what it liked, making a display of its strength. While I pondered this, suddenly a he-goat came from the west skimming over the whole earth without touching the ground; it had a prominent horn between its eyes. It approached the man" does not carry here all the levels of meaning it later acquired, such as "messiah." 14: The prerogatives are to be effective forever for the one like a man (v. 13), as anticipated in 2.44. 15: A continuation of v. 12. 18: The saints: the people persecuted by Antiochus Epiphanes; see v. 27. In v. 14 such power was given to "the one like a man." 21: The Ancient in Years: God would save the saints, as he had delivered the young men in chs. 3 and 6. 25: A time and times and half a time: three and a half years. Time means year; times, two years; see 4.16.

<sup>r</sup> Or holy ones.

<sup>s</sup> Here the Hebrew text resumes (see note at 2. 4).

8.1–27: The ram, the goat and the little horn. This chapter (it reverts to Heb.) alludes to the same events as ch. 7, though on a lower level of literary quality. 1: Susa: a royal city in southern Persia, the area being named Elam after the ancient Elamites. My former vision: that of ch. 7. 2: Ulai: a river at or near Susa. 3: Ram and the "goat" of v. 5 were probably signs of the zodiac. 5: Alexander the Great's conquest of the East was remarkably swift, 334–323 B.C.

two-horned ram which I had seen standing between me and the stream and rushed at it with impetuous force.

7 I saw it advance on the ram, working itself into a fury against it, then strike the ram and break its two horns; the ram had no strength to resist. The he-goat flung it to the ground and trampled on it, and there was no one to save the ram.

8 Then the he-goat made a great display of its strength. Powerful as it was, its great horn snapped and in its place there sprang out towards the four quarters of heaven four prominent horns. Out of one of them there issued one small horn, which made a prodigious show of strength south and east and towards the fairest of all lands. It aspired to be as great as the host of heaven, and it cast down to the earth some of the host and some of the stars and trod them underfoot. It aspired to be as great as the Prince of the host, suppressed his regular offering and even threw down his sanctuary.

12 The heavenly hosts were delivered up, and it raised itself<sup>t</sup> impiously against the regular offering and threw true religion to the ground; in all that it did it succeeded. I heard a holy one speaking and another holy one answering him, whoever he was. The one said, 'For how long will the period of this vision last? How long will the regular offering be suppressed, how long will impiety cause desolation,<sup>u</sup> and both the Holy Place and the fairest of all lands<sup>v</sup> be given over to be trodden down?' The answer came, 'For two thousand three hundred evenings and mornings; then the Holy Place shall emerge victorious.'

15 All the while that I, Daniel, was seeing the vision, I was trying to understand it. Suddenly I saw standing before me one with the semblance of a man; at the same time I heard a human voice calling to him across the bend of the Ulai, 'Gabriel, explain the vision to this man.' He came up to where I was standing; I was seized with terror at his approach and threw myself on my face. But he said to me, 'Understand, O man: the vision points to the time of the end.' When he spoke to me, I fell to the ground in a trance; but he grasped me and made me stand up where I was. And he said, 'I shall make known to you what is to happen at the end of the wrath; for there is an end to the appointed time. The two-horned ram which you saw signifies the kings of Media and Persia, the he-goat is the kingdom<sup>w</sup> of the Greeks and the great horn on his forehead is the first king. As for the horn which was snapped off and replaced by four horns: four kingdoms shall rise out of that nation, but not with power comparable to his.

In the last days of those kingdoms, when their sin is at its height, a king shall appear, harsh and grim, a master of stratagem. His power shall be great, he shall work havoc untold; he shall succeed in whatever he does. He shall work havoc among great nations and upon a holy people. His mind shall be ever active, and he shall succeed in his crafty designs; he shall conjure up great plans and, when they least expect it, work havoc on many. He shall challenge even the Prince of princes and be broken, but not by human hands. This revelation which has been <sup>t</sup> and it raised itself: prob. rdg.; Heb. om.

<sup>u</sup> will impiety cause desolation: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.
<sup>v</sup> fairest of all lands: prob. rdg., cp. verse 9; Heb. host.
<sup>w</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. king.

8: Four...horns: the successors to Alexander in Greece, Asia Minor, Syria and points east, and Egypt. 9: Antiochus IV Epiphanes; see 7.8 n. 10-11: See Isa.14.12-16. 13: Regular offering suppressed: as described in 1 Macc.1.45. 14: Evenings and mornings: this amounts to 1,150 days, a little less than the three and a half years of 7.25. 15: Semblance of a man: not to be confused with the figure of 7.13. 16: Gabriel: the name of an archangel; he appears often in the Book of Enoch. 17: The end of time, when God would finally judge the world. A concern with what would happen at the end of time was a major theme of apocalyptic literature. 23-25: See 7.8 n. 23: Last days: see v. 17. 25: Not by human hands: a theme in 7.26.

of the evenings and the mornings is true;

but you must keep the vision secret, for it points to days far ahead.'

27 As for me, Daniel, my strength failed me and I lay sick for a while. Then I rose and attended to the king's business. But I was perplexed by the revelation and no one could explain it.

9 IN THE FIRST YEAR OF THE REIGN OF Darius son of Ahasuerus (a Mede by birth, who was appointed king over the kingdom of the Chaldaeans) I, Daniel, was reading the scriptures and reflecting on the seventy years which, according to the word of the LORD to the prophet Jeremiah, were to pass while Jerusalem lay in ruins. Then I turned to the Lord God in earnest prayer and supplication with fasting and sackcloth and ashes. I prayed to the LORD my God, making confession thus:

'Lord, thou great and terrible God who faithfully keepest the covenant with those who love thee and observe thy commandments, we have sinned, we have done what was wrong and wicked; we have rebelled, we have turned our backs on thy commandments and thy decrees. We have not listened to thy servants the prophets, who spoke in thy name to our kings and princes, to our forefathers and to all the people of the land. O Lord, the right is on thy side; the shame, now as ever, belongs to us, the men of Judah and the citizens of Jerusalem, and to all the Israelites near and far in every land to which thou hast banished them for their treachery towards thee. O LORD, the shame falls on us as on our kings, our princes and our forefathers; we have all sinned against thee. Compassion and forgiveness belong to the Lord our God, though we have rebelled against him. We have not obeyed the LORD our God, we have not conformed to the laws which he laid down for us through his servants the prophets. All Israel has broken thy law and not obeyed thee, so that the curses set out in the law of Moses thy servant in the adjuration and the oath have rained down upon us; for we have sinned against him. He has fulfilled all that he said about us and about our rulers, by bringing upon us and upon Jerusalem a calamity greater than has ever happened in all the world. It was all foreshadowed in the law of Moses, this calamity which has come upon us; yet we have done nothing to propitiate the LORD our God; we have neither repented of our wrongful deeds nor remembered that thou art true to thy word. The LORD has been biding his time and has now brought this calamity upon us. In all that he has done the LORD our God has been right; yet we have not obeyed him.

'And now, O Lord our God who didst bring thy people out of Egypt by a strong hand, winning for thyself a name that lives on to this day, we have sinned, we have done wrong. O Lord, by all thy saving deeds we beg that thy wrath and anger may depart from Jerusalem, thy city, thy holy hill; through our own sins and our fathers' guilty deeds Jerusalem and thy people have become a byword among all our neighbours. And now, our God, listen to thy servant's prayer and supplication; for thy own sake, O Lord, make thy face shine upon thy desolate sanctuary. Lend thy ear, O God, and hear, open thine eyes and look upon our desolation and upon the city that bears thy name; it is not by virtue of our own saving acts but by thy great mercy that we present our supplications before thee. O Lord, hear; O Lord, forgive; O Lord, listen and act; for thy own sake do not delay, O God, for thy city and thy people bear thy name.'

Thus I was speaking and praying, confessing my own sin and my people Israel's sin, and presenting my supplication before the LORD my God on behalf of his holy hill. While I was

9.1-27: Daniel's prayer, and another vision of things to come. 1: Continuing the chronology of ch. 6. 2: The scriptures: this rare example of an interpretation of a scriptural text by another scriptural book apparently alludes to Jer.25.11-12; 29.10. 4-19: This is a prayer of community confession of sins and a plea for forgiveness, formed from a series of biblical phrases; compare praying, the man Gabriel, whom I had already seen in the vision, came close to<sup>x</sup> me at the hour of the evening 22 sacrifice, flying swiftly.<sup>y</sup> He spoke clearly to me and said, 'Daniel, I have now come to enlighten your understanding. As you were beginning your supplications a word went forth; this I have come to pass on to you, for you are a man greatly beloved. Consider well the word, consider the vision:

 24 Seventy weeks are marked out for your people and your holy city; then rebellion shall be stopped,<sup>z</sup> sin brought to an end,<sup>a</sup> iniquity expiated, everlasting right ushered in, vision and prophecy sealed, and the Most Holy Place anointed. Know then and understand: from the time that the word went forth that Jerusalem should be restored and rebuilt, seven weeks shall pass till the appearance of one anointed, a prince; then for sixty-two weeks it shall remain restored, rebuilt with 26 streets and conduits. At the critical time, after the sixty-two weeks, one who is anointed shall be removed with no one to take his part; and the horde of an invading prince shall work havoc on city and sanctuary. The end of it shall be a deluge, inevitable war
 27 with all its horrors. He shall make a firm league with the mighty<sup>b</sup> for one week; and, the week half spent, he shall put a stop to sacrifice and offering. And in the train of these abominations shall come an author of desolation; then, in the end, what has been decreed concerning the desolation will be poured out.'

10 IN THE THIRD YEAR OF CYRUS KING OF Persia a word was revealed to Daniel who had been given the name Belteshazzar. Though this word was true, it cost him<sup>c</sup> much toil to understand it; nevertheless understanding came to him in the course of the vision.

In those days I, Daniel, mourned for 2 three whole weeks. I refrained from all 3 choice food; no meat or wine passed my lips, and I did not anoint myself until the three weeks had gone by. On 4 the twenty-fourth day of the first month, I found myself on the bank of the great river, that is the Tigris; I 5 looked up and saw a man clothed in linen with a belt of gold from Ophir round his waist. His body gleamed like 6 topaz, his face shone like lightning, his eyes flamed like torches, his arms and feet sparkled like a disc of bronze; and when he spoke his voice sounded like the voice of a multitude. I, Daniel, 7 alone saw the vision, while those who were near me did not see it, but great fear fell upon them and they stole away, and I was left alone gazing at this great vision. But my strength left 8 me; I became a sorry figure of a man, and retained no strength. I heard the 9 sound of his words and, when I did so, I fell prone on the ground in a trance. Suddenly a hand grasped me and 10 pulled me up on to my hands and knees. He said to me, 'Daniel, man 11 greatly beloved, attend to the words I am speaking to you and stand up where you are, for I am now sent to you.' When he addressed me, I stood up trembling and he said, 'Do not be 12 afraid, Daniel, for from the very first day that you applied your mind to understand and to mortify yourself before your God, your prayers have been heard, and I have come in answer to them. But the angel prince 13

<sup>x</sup> Or touched.
<sup>y</sup> flying swiftly: prob. rdg.; Heb. thoroughly wearied.
<sup>z</sup> Or restrained.
<sup>a</sup> Or sealed.      <sup>b</sup> Or many
<sup>c</sup> him: prob. rdg.; Heb. om.

Bar.1.15-3.8. 21: See 8.16 n. 24: Seventy weeks: meaning seven times seventy, equaling 490 years, the elapsed time since the destruction of Jerusalem (587 B.C.) mentioned in v. 2. The end will be like that in 7.26-27. 25: One anointed, a prince: the first period of 49 years will be a time of waiting. The second period of 434 years will start with the appearance of one anointed as leader. 27: The third period of 7 years will bring a religious persecution by a leader like the one described in 8.11-13. The week half spent: compare the three and a half years of 7.25. The end: see 8.17 n.

10.1-12.13: A detailed vision of the reigns of Alexander and his successors and of the end. 1: Third year of Cyrus: 536 B.C. 4: Compare Ezek.1.1. 5-6: The passage uses some of the same terms as Ezek.1.15-28. The man is probably the angel Gabriel. 7: Compare Acts 9.7 for a vision seen by one person but not by his companions. 13: Michael, the guardian angel of Israel, came to the aid of Gabriel (vv. 5-6 n.) when the latter was battling the angel prince of the of the kingdom of Persia resisted me for twenty-one days, and then, seeing that I had held out there, Michael, one of the chief princes, came to help me against the prince of the kingdom of Persia. And I have come to explain to you what will happen to your people in days to come; for this too is a vision for those days.<sup>1</sup>

15 While he spoke to me I hung my head and was struck dumb. Suddenly one like a man touched my lips. Then I opened my mouth to speak and addressed him as he stood before me: 'Sir, this has pierced me to the heart, and I retain no strength. How can my lord's servant presume to talk with such as my lord, since my strength has failed me and no breath is left in me?'
18 Then the figure touched me again and restored my strength. He said, 'Do not be afraid, man greatly beloved; all will be well with you. Be strong, be strong.' When he had spoken to me, I recovered strength and said, 'Speak, sir, for you have given me strength.'

20 He said, 'Do you know why I have come to you? I am first going back to fight with the prince of Persia, and, as soon as I have left, the prince of Greece will appear: I have no ally on my side to help and support me, except Michael your prince.<sup>d</sup> However I will tell you what is written in the Book of Truth. Here and now I will tell you what is true:

'Three more kings will appear in Persia, and the fourth will far surpass all the others in wealth; and when he has extended his power through his wealth, he will rouse the whole world against the kingdom of Greece. Then there will appear a warrior king. He will rule a vast kingdom and will do what he chooses. But as soon as he is established, his kingdom will be shattered and split up north, south, east and west. It will not pass to his descendants, nor will any of his successors have an empire like his; his kingdom will be torn up by the roots and given to others as well as to them. Then the king of the south will become strong; but another of the captains will surpass him in strength and win a greater kingdom. In due course the two will enter into a friendly alliance; to redress the balance the daughter of the king of the south will be given in marriage to the king of the north, but she will not maintain her influence and their line will not last. She and her escort, her child, and also her lord and master, will all be the victims of foul play. Then another shoot from the same stock as hers will appear in his father's place, will penetrate the defences of the king of the north and enter his fortress, and will win a decisive victory over his people. He will take back as booty to Egypt even the images of their gods cast in metal and their precious vessels of silver and gold. Then for some years he will refrain from attacking the king of the north. After that the king of the north will overrun the southern kingdom but will retreat to his own land.

'His sons will press on to assemble a great armed horde. One of them will sweep on and on like an irresistible flood. And after that he will press on as far as his enemy's stronghold. The king of the south, his anger roused, will march out to do battle with the king of the north who, in turn, will raise a great horde, but it will be delivered into the hands of his enemy. When this horde has been captured, the victor will be elated and he will slaughter tens of thousands, yet he will not maintain his advantage. Then the king of the north will once more raise a horde even greater than the last and, when the years come round, will advance with a great army and a large

<sup>d</sup> Prob. rdg.: Heb. adds and as for me, in the first year of Darius the Mede.

kingdom of Persia. 20: The battle of the angels reflects the battles of the people; Greece here is probably the kingdom of Antiochus IV Epiphanes, though it may be the empire of Alexander. 10.21–11.2: The Book of Truth revealed. This was apparently an explanation of history and its fulfillment, and not the same as the book of 12.1. 11.2: Since there were more than four kings in Persian history, it is not known which ones the author meant.

11.3–45: Alexander and his successors. 3–4: See Introduction and 8.8. 5–45: The south is the Egyptian Ptolemaic kingdom and the north is the Syrian Seleucid kingdom. The struggles between

14 baggage-train. During these times many will resist the king of the south, but some hotheads among your own people will rashly attempt to give substance to a vision and will come to 15 disaster. Then the king of the north will come and throw up siege-ramps and capture a fortified town, and the forces of the south will not stand up to him; even the flower of their army will
 16 not be able to hold their ground. And so his adversary will do as he pleases and meet with no opposition. He will establish himself in the fairest of all lands and it will come wholly into his 17 power. He will resolve to subjugate all the dominions of the king of the south; and he will come to fair terms with him,<sup>e</sup> and he will give him a young woman in marriage, for the destruction of the kingdom; but she will not persist nor serve his purpose.
 18 Then he will turn to the coasts and islands and take many prisoners, but a foreign commander<sup>f</sup> will put an end to his challenge by wearing him down;<sup>g</sup> thus he will throw back his challenge
 19 on to him. He will fall back upon his own strongholds; there he will come to disaster and be overthrown and be seen no more.
 20 'He will be succeeded by one who will send out an officer with a royal escort to extort tribute; after a short time this king too will meet his end, yet neither openly nor in battle.
 21 'A contemptible creature will succeed but will not be given recognition as king; yet he will seize the kingdom by dissimulation and intrigue in time of 22 peace. He will sweep away all forces of opposition as he advances, and even the Prince of the Covenant will be 23 broken. He will enter into fraudulent alliances and, although the people behind him are but few, he will rise to 24 power and establish himself in time of peace. He will overrun the richest districts of the province and succeed in doing what his fathers and forefathers failed to do, distributing spoil, booty, and property to his followers. He will lay his plans against fortresses, but only for a time.

'He will rouse himself in all his strength and courage and lead a great army against the king of the south, but the king of the south will press the campaign against him with a very great and numerous army; yet the king of the south will not persist, for traitors will lay their plots. Those who eat at his board will be his undoing; his army will be swept away, and many will fall on the field of battle. The two kings will be bent on mischief and, sitting at the same table, they will lie to each other with advantage to neither. Yet there will still be an end to the appointed time. Then one will return home with a long baggage-train, and with anger in his heart against the Holy Covenant; he will work his will and return to his own land.

'At the appointed time he will once more overrun the south, but he will not succeed as he did before. Ships from the west will sail against him, and he will receive a rebuff. He will turn and vent his fury against the Holy Covenant; on his way back he will take due note of those who have forsaken it. Armed forces dispatched by him will desecrate the sanctuary and the citadel and do away with the regular offering. And there they will set up "the abominable thing that causes desolation". He will win over by plausible promises those who are ready to condemn the covenant, but the people who are faithful to their God will hold firm and fight back. Wise leaders of the nation will give guidance to the common people; yet for a while they will fall victims to fire and sword, to captivity and pillage. But these victims will not want for help, though small, even if many who join them are the two countries is fairly accurately described. 21-45: Antiochus IV Epiphanes, as in chs. 7-9, is the great oppressor. 22-23: Prince of the Covenant: the Judean high priest Onias III deposed by Antiochus and supplanted by his brother Jason as part of the fraudulent alliances. 25-35: The two campaigns of Antiochus against Egypt. 30: Ships from the west: the Romans. They compelled Antiochus to withdraw from Egypt. On his return to Syria (168 B.C.), he desecrated the Temple in Jerusalem (v. 31; see 9.27). 32: Fight back: the Maccabean revolt;

<sup>e</sup> and he . . . with him: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.

<sup>f</sup> Or consul or legate.

<sup>g</sup> by wearing him down: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.

35 insincere. Some of these leaders will themselves fall victims for a time so that they may be tested, refined and made shining white. Yet there will still be an end<sup>h</sup> to the appointed time.

36 The king will do what he chooses; he will exalt and magnify himself above every god and against the God of gods he will utter monstrous blasphemies. All will go well for him until the time of wrath ends, for what is determined

37 must be done. He will ignore his ancestral gods, and the god beloved of women; to no god will he pay heed but will exalt himself above them all.

38 Instead he will honour the god of the citadel, a god unknown to his ancestors, with gold and silver, gems and costly gifts. He will garrison his strongest fortresses with aliens, the people of a foreign god. Those whom he favours he will load with honour, putting them in office over the common people and distributing land at a price.

40 'At the time of the end, he and the king of the south will make feints at one another, and the king of the north will come storming against him with chariots and cavalry and many ships. He will overrun land after land, sweeping

41 over them like a flood, amongst them the fairest of all lands, and tens of thousands shall fall victims. Yet all these lands [including Edom and Moab and the remnant of the Ammonites]

42 will survive his attack. He will reach out to land after land, and Egypt will not escape. He will gain control of her hidden stores of gold and silver and of all her treasures; Libyans and Cushites

44 will follow in his train. Then rumours from east and north will alarm him, and he will depart in a great rage to 45 destroy and to exterminate many. He will pitch his royal pavilion between the sea and the holy hill, the fairest of all hills; and he will meet his end with no one to help him.

At that moment Michael shall appear, Michael the great captain,
 who stands guard over your fellow-countrymen;
 and there will be a time of distress such as has never been since they became a nation till that moment.

But at that moment your people will be delivered,<sup>i</sup> every one who is written in the book:
 many of those who sleep in the dust 2
 of the earth will wake, some to everlasting life
 and some to the reproach of eternal abhorrence.

The wise leaders shall shine like the 3 bright vault of heaven, and those who have guided the people in the true path shall be like the stars for ever and ever.

But you, Daniel, keep the words 4 secret and seal the book till the time of the end. Many will be at their wits' end, and punishment will be heavy.'

And I, Daniel, looked and saw two 5 others standing, one on this bank of the river and the other on the opposite bank. And I said to the man clothed 6 in linen who was above the waters of the river, 'How long will it be before these portents cease?' The man clothed 7 in linen above the waters lifted to heaven his right hand and his left, and I heard him swear by him who lives for ever: 'It shall be for a time, times, and a half. When the power of the holy people ceases to be dispersed, all these things shall come to an end.' 8
 I heard but I did not understand, and so I said, 'Sir, what will the issue of these <sup>h</sup> Yet . . . end: prob. rlg.; Heb. has different word order.

<sup>i</sup> Or will escape.

see 1 Macc. ch. 2. 35: End: see 8.17 n. 36-45: Wars to occur as a result of the arrogance of Antiochus. 43: Cushites: the peoples living south of Egypt in Nubia (roughly today's Sudan) and Ethiopia.

12.1-13: Concluding vision. 1: Apocalyptic literature seems to flow directly from historical events (here the wars brought on by Antiochus) to events of the end times. As in 9.26-27, the period before the very end would be the most distressful. The book: containing a list of the names of the saints, as in Ps.69.28; compare 10.21-11.2 n. 2: This is a clear statement of resurrection, and unique in the OT. 4: The book here seems to be that of 11.1, rather than 12.1. 6: Linen: see Ezek.9.2. 7: Time, times, and a half: three and a half years, as it is in 7.25.

- 9 things be?" He replied, "Go your way, Daniel, for the words are kept secret and sealed till the time of the end. abomination of desolation" is set up, there shall be an interval of one thousand two hundred and ninety days.
- 10 Many shall purify themselves and be refined, making themselves shining white, but the wicked shall continue in wickedness and none of them shall understand; only the wise leaders shall understand. From the time when the regular offering is abolished and "the Happy the man who waits and lives to see the completion of one thousand three hundred and thirty-five days! But go your way to the end and rest, and you shall arise to your destiny at the end of the age.'
- 11
12 13

---

11-12: These figures, perhaps representing separate traditions, seem to be related to those of 7.25 and 8.14. 11: See 9.27 n.

THE TWELVE PROPHETS

HOSEA

In the Hebrew Bible, the Minor Prophets (so named because their books are shorter than Isaiah, Jeremiah, and Ezekiel) are called the Book of the Twelve and are treated as a literary unit. The ancients arranged the twelve writings in what they considered chronological order; Hosea is in the first position. While modern scholars see reasons to date some of these writings at times other than the ancient sequence suggests, they regard Hosea as indeed the earliest writing.

The first verse places Hosea in the latter part of the eighth century B.C., when the Assyrians were about to overrun the Northern Kingdom of Israel. That menace gives the book, addressed to the north, its tension. The prophet knows both the people's corruption and Yahweh's love, and the book veers from judgment to love, from threats of destruction to promises of restoration.

A book such as Hosea can pose a problem for the reader in that it does not present a systematic argument. It consists of many poems and prose passages compiled into an anthology; hence there can be a surface impression of bewildering inconsistency. Moreover, Hosea seems to derive his message from his private marital experiences, related in chs. 1-3, which are searing and even bitter, though filled with his love. The portrait of the deity as partaking in man's feelings and agonies makes Hosea one of the most moving of Old Testament books.

1 THE WORD OF THE LORD WHICH came to Hosea son of Beeri during the reigns of Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, kings of Judah, and during the reign of Jeroboam son of Jehoash king of Israel.

Hosea's unfaithful wife

2 THIS IS THE BEGINNING OF THE LORD'S message by Hosea. He said, Go, take a wanton for your wife and get children of her wantonness; for like a wanton
3 this land is unfaithful to the LORD. So he went and took Gomer, a worthless woman;<sup>a</sup> and she conceived and bore
4 him a son. And the LORD said to him,

Call him Jezreel,<sup>b</sup> for in a little while I will punish the line of Jehu for the blood shed in Jezreel and put an end to the kingdom of Israel.

5 On that day

I will break Israel's bow in the Vale of Jezreel.

She conceived again and bore a daughter, and the LORD said to him,

Call her Lo-ruhamah;<sup>c</sup> for I will never again show love to Israel, never again forgive them.<sup>d</sup>

After weaning Lo-ruhamah, she conceived and bore a son; and the LORD said,

Call him Lo-ammi;<sup>e</sup> for you are not my people, and I will not be your God. The Israelites shall become countless as the sands of the sea a a worthless woman: or daughter of Diblaim.

b That is God shall sow.

c That is Not loved.

d Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds (7) Then I will love Judah and will save them. I will save them not by bow or sword or weapon of war, by horses or by horsemen, but by the LORD their God.

e That is Not my people.

1.1: Introduction. Hosea means "rescue." The names of the kings place Hosea in the 740s B.C.

1.2-3.5: Hosea's unfaithful wife. The figure of the unhappy marriage sets forth God's dissatisfaction with Israel.

1.2-9: The three children. 2: Wanton: a harlot. 4: Jehu became king in a bloody revolt at Jezreel in about 842 B.C. (see 2 Kgs.9.1-10.31). Jezreel was the name both of a town and of the valley between Galilee and Samaria. 5: Break Israel's bow: destroy her power. 7: See Tfn. d. This apparently was added so as to apply to the Southern Kingdom Hosea's message addressed to the Northern. 9: You are not my people: the LORD renounces the covenant (compare Exod.6.7).

1.10-2.1: Restoration. 10: The substance of v. 9 is here reversed. See Gen.22.17 and 32.12.

- which can neither be measured nor numbered;
it shall no longer be said, 'They are not my people', they shall be called Sons of the Living God.
- 11 Then the people of Judah and of Israel shall be reunited and shall choose for themselves a single head, and they shall become masters of the earth;
for great shall be the day of Jezreel.
- 2 Then you will say to your brothers, 'You are my people', and to your sisters, 'You are loved.'
- 2 Plead my cause with your mother; is she not my wife and I her husband?<sup>f</sup> Plead with her to forswear those wanton looks, to banish the lovers from her bosom.
- 3 Or I will strip her and expose her naked as the day she was born;
I will make her bare as the wilderness, parched as the desert, and leave her to die of thirst.
- 4 I will show no love for her children;
they are the offspring of wantonness,
- 5 and their mother is a wanton.
She who conceived them is shameless;
she says, 'I will go after my lovers; they give me my food and drink, my wool and flax, my oil and my perfumes.'
- 6 Therefore I will block her road with thorn-bushes and obstruct her path with a wall, so that she can no longer follow her old ways.
- 7 When she pursues her lovers she will not overtake them,
- when she looks for them she will not find them;
then she will say,
'I will go back to my husband again; I was better off with him than I am now.'
- For she does not know that it is I who gave her corn, new wine, and oil, I who lavished upon her silver and gold which they spent on the Baal.
Therefore I will take back my corn at the harvest and my new wine at the vintage, and I will take away the wool and the flax which I gave her to cover her naked body;
so I will show her up for the lewd thing she is,
and no lover will want to steal her from me.
- I will ravage the vines and the fig-trees, which she says are the fee with which her lovers have hired her,
and turn them into jungle where wild beasts shall feed.
- I will put a stop to her merry-making, her pilgrimages and new moons, her sabbaths<sup>h</sup> and festivals.
- I will punish her for the holy days when she burnt sacrifices to the Baalim, when she decked herself with earrings and necklaces, ran after her lovers and forgot me.
This is the very word of the LORD.
- But now listen,
I will woo her, I will go with her into the wilderness

<sup>f</sup> is she . . . husband?: or for she is no longer my wife nor I her husband.

<sup>g</sup> Verses 11 and 12 transposed.

<sup>h</sup> Or her full moons.

11: Reunited: the division into two kingdoms came after Solomon (see 1 Kgs.12.1-20). Jezreel is here the son, standing for God's restoration of Israel.

2.2-17: Israel, the harlot wife. 2: Plead my cause: the phrase comes from the law court. Is she not my wife . . . ?: compare Tfn. f, which implies a divorce proceeding. Lovers can often mean foreign nations (compare Jer.4.30; Ezek. ch. 16); here it may also mean alien gods.

8: Corn: grain in general and not the American corn. Baal: the Canaanite fertility god, whose worship was viewed as disloyalty to Yahweh. 11: The list of rituals covers the various kinds of public worship. Pilgrimages are the feasts commanded in Exod.23.14-17. 13: Baalim: the plural of Baal. 14-17: Wilderness: the place of the first encounter between God and Israel, and comfort her:

 15 there I will restore her vineyards, turning the Vale of Trouble into the Gate of Hope,<sup>i</sup> and there she will answer as in her youth,
 when she came up out of Egypt.
 On that day she shall call me 'My husband'
 16 and shall no more call me 'My Baal';<sup>j</sup> 17 and I will wipe from her lips the very names of the Baalim; never again shall their names be heard.
 This is the very word of the LORD.<sup>k</sup>

18 Then I will make a covenant on behalf of Israel with the wild beasts, the birds of the air, and the things that creep on the earth, and I will break bow and sword and weapon of war and sweep them off the earth, so that all living creatures may lie down 19 without fear. I will betroth you to myself for ever, betroth you in lawful wedlock with unfailing devotion and 20 love; I will betroth you to myself to have and to hold, and you shall know 21 the LORD. At that time I will give answer, says the LORD, I will answer for the heavens and they will answer for 22 the earth, and the earth will answer for the corn, the new wine, and the oil, 23 and they will answer for Jezreel. Israel shall be my new sowing in the land, and I will show love to Lo-ruhamah and say to Lo-ammi, 'You are my people', and he will say, 'Thou art my
 God.'

The LORD said to me, 3
 Go again and love a woman loved by another man, an adulteress, and love her as I, the LORD, love
 the Israelites
 although they resort to other gods and love the raisin-cakes offered to their idols.

So I got her back<sup>l</sup> for fifteen pieces of 2 silver, a homer of barley and a measure of wine; and I said to her, 3

Many a long day you shall live in my house
 and not play the wanton,
 and have no intercourse with a man, nor I with you.

For the Israelites shall live many a 4 long day
 without king or prince,
 without sacrifice or sacred pillar, without image or household gods;
 but after that they will again seek 5
 the LORD their God and David their king, and turn anxiously to the LORD for his bounty in days to come.

God's case against Israel

Hear the word of the LORD, O 4
 Israel;
 for the LORD has a charge to bring against the people of the land:

i turning . . . Hope: or Emek-achor to Pethah-tikvah.
j Also means My husband.
k This . . . LORD: transposed from after On that day in verse 16.
l I got her back: or bought her.

and viewed by the prophet as a time of perfect faith and ideal relations. Compare Jer.2.2-3. 15: Vale of Trouble: the Valley of Achor (see Josh.7.24-26). 16: The word Baal means husband as well as being the name of the god; hence its use is forbidden here.

2.18-23: Restoring Israel's harmony with the earth. Yahweh will resume his relationship with Israel, as shown in the image of the new betrothal and by the new love for the children (compare 1.10-2.1). 23: My new sowing: a play on the word Jezreel, which means "God sows"; see 1.4 Tfn. b. Israel, not Jezreel, is God's sowing.

3.1-5: Redemption of the wife is achieved by love (v. 1) and a high cost (v. 2). Fifteen pieces of silver is about seven ounces, and a homer is nearly 11½ bushels; see p. 1035. Love entails discipline: the wanton (v. 3) and Israel (v. 4) must be kept from further sin before receiving Yahweh's full bounty. 4: Israel's distress arises from corruption caused by kings and from observing Canaanite religious rituals. Sacred pillar: doubtless a phallus, a symbol of Baal, a god of fertility.

4.1-9.17: God's case against Israel. The oracles in this section follow the literary form of a court trial in which God presses charges (4.1), passes a judicial sentence (5.1), and imposes a juridical penalty (5.9).

There is no good faith or mutual trust, no knowledge of God in the land, 2 oaths are imposed and broken, they kill and rob; there is nothing but adultery and licence,<sup>m</sup> one deed of blood after another. 3 Therefore the land shall be dried up, and all who live in it shall pine away, and with them the wild beasts and the birds of the air; even the fish shall be swept from the sea. 4 But it is not for any man to bring a charge, it is not for him to prove a case; the quarrel with you, false priest, is mine. 5 Priest?<sup>n</sup> By day and by night you blunder on, you and the prophet with you. 6 My people are ruined for lack of knowledge; your own countrymen are brought to ruin.<sup>o</sup> You have rejected knowledge, and I will reject you from serving me as priest. You have forgotten the teaching of God, and I, your God, will forget your sons. 7 The more priests there are, the more they sin against me; their dignity I will turn into dishonour. 8 They feed on the sin of my people and batten on their iniquity. 9 But people and priest shall be treated alike. I will punish them for their conduct and repay them for their deeds:	they shall eat but never be satisfied, behave wantonly but their lust will never be overtaxed, for they have forsaken the LORD to give themselves to sacred prostitution. 11 New wine and old steal my people's wits:<sup>p</sup> they ask advice from a block of wood and take their orders from a fetish; for a spirit of wantonness has led them astray and in their lusts they are unfaithful to their God. Your men sacrifice on mountain-tops 13 and burn offerings on the hills, under oak and poplar and the terebinth's pleasant shade. Therefore your daughters play the wanton and your sons' brides commit adultery. I will not punish your daughters 14 for playing the wanton nor your sons' brides for their adultery, because your men resort to wanton women and sacrifice with temple-prostitutes. A people without understanding comes to grief; they are a mother turned wanton. 15 Bring no guilt-offering,<sup>q</sup> Israel; do not come to Gilgal, Judah, m and licence: prob. rdg.; Heb. they exceed.
--	---

n the quarrel . . . Priest?: prob. rdg.; Heb. and your people are like those who quarrel with a priest.
o My people . . . ruin: or Your mother (Israel) is destroyed, my people destroyed for lack of knowledge.
p steal . . . wits: or embolden my people.
q Bring no guilt-offering: prob. rdg.; Heb. Let him not be guilty.

4.1-4: General charge. The nation has broken the covenant. 1: Mutual trust: love between persons growing out of fidelity to a covenant. Knowledge of God: the experience of God in obedience and surrender, resulting in a close personal relationship (see Jer.9.23-24 n.). 2: The crimes are breaches of specific laws. 3: The rupture of the covenant meant the loss of natural vitality. Contrast 2.18-23, the vitality experienced in fidelity to the covenant.

4.5-5.7: Undermining religion. 5: The prophet, like the priest, is here a religious functionary, and unlike the charismatic Hosea. See Jer.23.9-12. 6: Knowledge: see 4.1 n. 11: Sacred prostitution, a fertility rite directed to Baal, was apparently practiced by Israel to gain control over the reproductive powers of nature. 12: New wine and old: an allusion to a pagan vintage festival. 13: Fertility worship (with sacred prostitutes) took place on mountain-tops and under trees. 15: Gilgal: an important shrine town near Jericho. Beth-aven: lit. "house of iniquity," a sarcastic name for Bethel, "house of God," Israel's religious center; Gen.28.16-19;

- do not go up to Beth-aven to swear
by the life of the LORD, 16 since Israel has run wild, wild as a heifer;
and will the LORD now feed this
people
like lambs in a broad meadow?
17 Ephraim, keeping company with
idols,
18 has held a drunken orgy,<sup>r</sup> they have practised sacred prostitution,
they have preferred dishonour to
glory.
19 The wind shall sweep them away, wrapped in its wings,
and they will find their sacrifices
a delusion.
- 5 Hear this, you priests, and listen, all Israel; let the royal house mark my words.
Sentence is passed on you;
for you have been a snare at Mizpah,
and a net spread out on Tabor.
2 The rebels! they have shown base ingratitude,
but I will punish them all.
3 I have cared for Ephraim and I have not neglected Israel; but now Ephraim has played the wanton
and Israel has defiled himself.
4 Their misdeeds have barred their way back to their God;
for a wanton spirit is in them, and they care nothing for the
LORD.
5 Israel's arrogance cries out against
him;
<sup>s</sup>Ephraim's guilt is his undoing,
and Judah no less is undone.
6 They go with sacrifices of sheep and cattle
to seek the LORD, but do not find
him.
- He has withdrawn himself from
them;
for they have been unfaithful to 7
him,
and their sons are bastards.
Now an invader shall devour their fields.
8 Blow the trumpet in Gibeah,
the horn in Ramah,
raise the battle-cry in Beth-aven:
'Benjamin, we are with you!' 9 On the tribes of Israel I have proclaimed this unalterable
doom:
on the day of punishment Ephraim shall be laid waste.
10 The rulers of Judah act like men who move their neighbour's boundary;
on them will I pour out my wrath
like a flood.
11 Ephraim is an oppressor trampling on justice,
doggedly pursuing what is worthless.
12 But I am a festering sore to Ephraim,
a canker to the house of Judah.
13 So when Ephraim found that he was sick,
Judah that he was covered with sores,
Ephraim went to Assyria,
he went in haste to the Great King;
but he has no power to cure you or to heal your sores.
14 Yes indeed, I will be fierce as a panther to Ephraim, fierce as a lion to Judah—
I will maul the prey and go, carry it off beyond hope of rescue—
I, the LORD.
15 I will go away and return to my
place

<sup>r</sup> a drunken orgy; prob. rdg.; Heb. unintelligible.
<sup>s</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. prefixes Israel.

1 Kgs.12.25–30. 17: Ephraim, the main northern tribe, often means the whole Northern Kingdom. 5.1: What events Mizpah and Tabor allude to is not certain. 3–4: Cared: lit. "known"; expressive of God's active concern for Israel's well-being. See 4.1 n. 7: Bastards: because they were born to parents who repudiated covenant with God, but also possibly because of actually being born from fertility cult unions.

5.8–6.6: Divine disappointment. The three parts of the poem are: punishment by political upheavals (5.8–15), Israel's apparent remorse (6.1–3), and Yahweh's response (6.6). 8: Gibeah, Ramah, and Beth-aven (see 4.15 n.) were cities in Benjamin, possibly annexed by the Northern Kingdom, and first targets of an invasion by the Southern Kingdom. 10: The rulers of Judah in calling the Assyrians against their brethren in Israel were, in effect, taking land away from them; see 2 Kgs.16.7–9. 13: Great King was a title assumed by Assyrian kings.

- until in their horror they seek me, and look earnestly for me in their
distress.
- 6 Come, let us return to the LORD;
for he has torn us and will heal us, he has struck us and he will bind up our wounds;
2 after two days he will revive us, on the third day he will restore us,
that in his presence we may live.
- 3 Let us humble ourselves, let us strive to know the LORD, whose justice dawns like morning light,<sup>t</sup>
and its dawning is as sure as the sunrise.
It will come to us like a shower,
like spring rains that water the earth.
- 4 O Ephraim, how shall I deal with
you?
How shall I deal with you, Judah?
Your loyalty to me is like the morning mist,
like dew that vanishes early.
- 5 Therefore have I lashed you through the prophets
and torn you<sup>u</sup> to shreds with my
words;
6 loyalty is my desire, not sacrifice, not whole-offerings but the knowledge of God.
- 7 At Admah<sup>v</sup> they have broken my covenant,
there they have played me false.
- 8 Gilead is a haunt of evildoers, marked by a trail of blood; 9 like robbers lying in wait for a man, priests are banded together to do murder on the road to Shechem;
their deeds are outrageous.
- 10 At Israel's sanctuary I have seen a horrible thing:
- there Ephraim played the wanton and Israel defiled himself.
And for you, too, Judah, comes a harvest of reckoning. 11
- When I would reverse the fortunes of my people,
when I would heal Israel, 7 then the guilt of Ephraim stands
revealed,
and all the wickedness of Samaria;
they have not kept faith.
They are thieves, they break into houses;<sup>w</sup>
they are robbers, they strip people in the street, little thinking that I have their 2 wickedness ever in mind.
Now their misdeeds beset them and stare me in the face.
They win over the king with their 3 wickedness
and princes with their treachery, lecherous all of them, hot as an oven 4 over the fire
which the baker does not stir after kneading the dough until it is proved.
On their king's festal day the 5 officers
begin to be inflamed with wine, and he joins in the orgies of arrogant
men;
for their hearts are heated by it<sup>x</sup> 6
like an oven.
While they are relaxed all night long
their passion slumbers, but in the morning it flares up like a blazing fire;
they all grow feverish, hot as an 7
oven,

<sup>t</sup> Line transposed from end of verse 5.

<sup>u</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. them.

<sup>v</sup> At Admah: prob. rdg.; Heb. Like Adam.

<sup>w</sup> houses: prob. rdg.; Heb. om.

<sup>x</sup> are heated by it: prob. rdg.; Heb. draw near.

6.1-6: Israel's apparent remorse. 1: Torn: the same Heb. word as maul (5.14). 2: Two days, third day: that is, soon; possibly, instead, the days of a pagan ritual observance. 6: Loyalty, knowledge of God: see 4.1 n. The qualities that maintain the covenant are beyond mere ritual, and hence Israel's repentance is unacceptable.

6.7-8.14: Israel's treachery. Influential persons, especially the king, have transgressed.

6.7-11: Murder and recklessness. 7: Admah: a city near the Dead Sea (see 11.8 n.). 8: Gilead: east of the Jordan. 9: Shechem was the ancient central shrine, site of the kingdom's most solemn festivities. 11: The prophecy is now applied here to the Southern Kingdom.

7.1-16: The evils of the kings. 1: Samaria: the capital. 4-6: The people of Israel hide the evil intrigue in their hearts like a baker who banks the fire in the oven after it has reached full intensity until the dough is proved, i.e. fully leavened and ready for baking. 7: The kingdom

- and devour their rulers.
 King after king falls from power,
 but not one of them calls upon me.
 8 Ephraim and his aliens make a sorry mixture;
 Ephraim has become a cake half-baked.
 9 Foreigners fed on his strength,
 but he was unaware;
 even his grey hairs turned white,
 but he was unaware.
 10 So Israel's arrogance cries out
 against them;
 but they do not return to the LORD their God
 nor seek him, in spite of it all.
 11 Ephraim is a silly senseless pigeon, now calling upon Egypt, now turning to Assyria for help.
 12 Wherever they turn, I will cast my net over them
 and will bring them down like birds on the wing;
 I will take them captive as soon as I hear them flocking.
 13 Woe betide them, for they have strayed from me!
 May disaster befall them for rebelling
 against me!
 I long to deliver them,
 but they tell lies about me.
 14 There is no sincerity in their cry
 to me;
 for all their howling on their pallets and gashing of themselves over corn and new wine,
 they are turning away from me.
 15 Though I support them, though I give them strength of arm, they plot evil against me.
 16 Like a bow gone slack, they relapse into the worship of their high god;<sup>y</sup> their talk is all lies,<sup>z</sup> and so their princes shall fall by
 the sword.
- Put the trumpet to your lips!
 A<sup>a</sup> vulture hovers over the sanctuary of the LORD:
- they have broken my covenant and rebelled against my instruction.
 They cry to me for help: 2
 'We know thee, God of Israel.'<sup>b</sup> But Israel is utterly loathsome; 3 and therefore he shall run before
 the enemy.
 They make kings, but not by my 4
 will;
 they set up officers, but without my knowledge;
 they have made themselves idols of their silver and gold.<sup>c</sup>
- Your calf-gods stink, O Samaria; 5 my anger flares up against them.
 Long will it be before they prove innocent.
 For what sort of a god is this 6 bull?
 It is no god,
 a craftsman made it;
 the calf of Samaria will be broken in fragments.
- Israel sows the wind and reaps the 7 whirlwind;
 there are no heads on the standing corn, it yields no grain;
 and, if it yielded any, strangers would swallow it up.
 Israel is now swallowed up, 8 lost among the nations,
 a worthless nothing.
 For, like a wild ass that has left the 9 herd,
 they have run to Assyria.
 Ephraim has bargained for lovers;
 and, because they have bargained 10
 among the nations,
 I will now round them up,
 and then they will soon abandon this setting up of kings and princes.

<sup>y</sup> they relapse . . . god: prob. rdg.; Heb. obscure.

<sup>z</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds that is their stammering speech in Egypt.

<sup>a</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. Like a

<sup>b</sup> We . . . Israel: prob. rdg.; Heb. O my God, we know thee, Israel.

<sup>c</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds so that he may be cut off.

devoured its rulers; three of the six who ruled in the previous twenty years were murdered. See 2 Kgs.15.8–26. 11: Hoshea, the last king of Israel, became a vassal of Assyria but proved disloyal in seeking help from Egypt; see 2 Kgs.17.1–6. 14: Howling and gashing sarcastically describe Canaanite rites (see 1 Kgs.18.25–29). Corn: see 2.8 n.

8.1–14: False religion. Specific missteps are given. 4: Though one strand of the OT tradition sees kingship as Yahweh's gift, another strand of it considers kingship as rebellion against Yahweh. Hosea equates kingship with idolatry. 5: Calf alludes sarcastically to the statue of a

- |   |   |
|---|---|
| 11 For Ephraim in his sin has multipliedaltars,altars have become his sin.12 Though I give him countless rulesin writing,they are treated as invalid.13 Though they sacrifice flesh as offeringsto me and eat them,I,<sup>d</sup> the LORD, will not accept them.Their guilt will be rememberedand their sins punished.They shall go back to Egypt,or in Assyria they shall eat uncleanfood. 14 Israel has forgotten his Makerand built palaces,Judah has multiplied walled cities;but I will set fire to his cities,and it shall devour his castles. Do not rejoice, Israel, do not exultlike other peoples;9 for like a wanton you have forsakenyour God,you have loved an idol<sup>e</sup>on every threshing-floor heapedwith corn. 2 Threshing-floor and winepressshall know them no more,new wine shall disown<sup>f</sup> them. 3 They shall not dwell in the LORD'sland;Ephraim shall go back to Egypt,or in Assyria they shall eat uncleanfood. 4 They shall pour out no wine tothe LORD,they shall not bring their sacrificesto him;that would be mourners' fare forthem,and all who ate it would be polluted.For their food shall only staytheir hunger; | it shall not be offered in thehouse of the LORD.What will you do for the festal day, 5the day of the LORD's pilgrim-feast?For look, they have fled from a 6scene of devastation:Egypt shall receive them,Memphis shall be their grave;the sands of Syrtes shall wreckthem,weeds shall inherit their land,thorns shall grow in theirdwellings.The days of punishment are 7come,the days of vengeance are comewhen Israel shall be humbled.Then the prophet shall be madea fooland the inspired seer a madmanby your great guilt.With great enmity Ephraim lies in 8wait for God's peoplewhile the prophet is a fowler's trapby all their paths,a snare in the very temple of God.They lead them deep into sin as 9at the time of Gibeah.Their guilt will be remembered andtheir sins punished. I came upon Israel like grapes in 10the wilderness,I looked on their forefatherswith joy like the first ripe figs;but they resorted to Baal-peorand consecrated themselves to athing of shame,and Ephraim became as loathsome 11as the thing he loved.Their honour shall fly away like abird: |
|---|---|

d Prob. rdg.; Heb. he.
e an idol; or a harlot's fee.
f Or fail.

bull (see 1 Kgs.12.28-30). 13: In captivity it will be impossible to observe laws of ritual cleanliness because of contact with pagans, hence unclean food.

9.1-13.16: Prosperity contrasted with exile. The poems use metaphors of agricultural plenty. 9.1-9: Untoward results of false worship. 1: Rejoice and exult are cultic acts. Threshing-floor: the place of pagan fertility worship at harvest time. 3: Egypt: see 8.13 n. 5: Pilgrim-feast: see 2.11 n. 6: Memphis, Syrtes: Egyptian cities. 7-8: A prophet attached to a temple was a snare to the people in being concerned only with worship and in not warning people about their guilt which would bring calamity, thereby making the prophet into a fool. See Ezek.13.1-16. 9: The allusion to Gibeah may mean Saul, whose throne was also there (1 Sam.10.26). See also Judg. ch. 19.

9.10-17: Israel's degeneration. 10: To find grapes in the wilderness was wondrous. Baal-Peor: see Judg.2.11-13; Num.25.1-5; Ps.106.28; Jer.11.13. 11: Childlessness was a dishonor.

- no childbirth, no fruitful womb, no conceiving;
12 even if they rear their children,
I will make them childless, without posterity.
Woe to them indeed when I turn away from them!
- 13 As lion-cubs emerge only to be hunted,<sup>g</sup> so must Ephraim bring out his children for slaughter.
14 Give them, O LORD—what wilt thou give them?
Give them a womb that miscarries and dry breasts.
- 15 All their wickedness was seen at Gilgal; there did I hate them.
For their evil deeds I will drive them from my house,
I will love them no more: all their princes are in revolt.
16 Ephraim is struck down:
their root is withered, and they yield
no fruit;
if ever they give birth,
I will slay the dearest offspring of their womb.
- 17 My God shall reject them, because they have not listened
to him,
and they shall become wanderers
among the nations.
- God's judgement on Israel*
- 10 Israel is like a rank vine ripening its fruit:
his fruit grows more and more, and more and more his altars;
the fairer his land becomes, the fairer he makes his sacred pillars.
2 They are crazy now, they are mad.
God himself will hack down their altars
and wreck their sacred pillars.
- Well may they say, 'We have no
king,
for we do not fear the LORD;
and what can the king do for us?'
There is nothing but talk, 4 imposing of oaths and making of treaties, all to no purpose; and litigation spreads like a poisonous weed
along the furrows of the fields.
The inhabitants of Samaria tremble 5 for the calf-god of Beth-aven;
the people mourn over it<sup>h</sup> and its priestlings howl, distressed for their image, their
glory,
which is carried away into exile.
It shall be carried to Assyria 6 as tribute to the Great King; disgrace shall overtake Ephraim and Israel shall feel the shame of their disobedience.
Samaria and her king are swept
7 away
like flotsam on the water;
the hill-shrines of Aven are 8 wiped out,
the shrines where Israel sinned;
thorns and thistles grow over her altars.
So they will say to the mountains,
'Cover us',
and to the hills, 'Fall on us.'
- Since the day of Gibeah Israel has 9 sinned;
there they took their stand in rebellion.
Shall not war overtake them in Gibeah?
I have come against the rebels to 10 chastise them, and the peoples shall mass against
them
in hordes for their two deeds of
shame.

<sup>g</sup> As lion-cubs . . . hunted: prob. rdg.; Heb. unintelligible.

<sup>h</sup> the people mourn over it: or the high god and his people mourn.

15: Gilgal: see 4.15 n; 12.11. Princes in revolt: see 5.2, where they "have shown base ingratitude."

10.1–13.16: Israel's punishment and restoration. The LORD's efforts to redeem Israel have been frustrated.

10.1–8: The fruits of idolatry. Cultic misdeeds produce political disasters. 1: Sacred pillars: see 3.4 n. 5: Calf-god: see 8.5 n. Priestlings: idolatrous priests. 6: Great King: see 5.13 n. 8: Aven: see 4.15 n.

10.9–15: Punishment for rebellion. 9: Gibeah: see 9.9 n. 10: Compare 4.9 and Ezek.5.13.

- 11 Ephraim is like a heifer broken in,
 which loves to thresh corn, across whose fair neck I have laid a yoke;<sup>i</sup>
 I have harnessed Ephraim to the pole that he<sup>j</sup> may plough, that Jacob may harrow his land.
- 12 Sow for yourselves in justice, and you will reap what loyalty deserves.
 Break up your fallow;
 for it is time to seek the LORD, seeking him till he comes and gives you just measure of rain.
- 13 You have ploughed wickedness into your soil,
 and the crop is mischief;
 you have eaten the fruit of treachery.
- Because you have trusted in your chariots,
 in the number of your warriors, 14 the tumult of war shall arise against your people,
 and all your fortresses shall be razed
 as Shalman razed Beth-arbel in the day of battle,
 dashing the mother to the ground with her babes.
- 15 So it shall be done to you, Bethel, because of your evil scheming;
 as sure as day dawns, the king of Israel shall be swept away.
- 11 When Israel was a boy, I loved
 him;
 I called my son out of Egypt;
 2 but the more I called, the further they went from me;
 they must needs sacrifice to the Baalim
 and burn offerings before carved images.
- 3 It was I who taught Ephraim to walk,
 I who had taken them in my arms;
- 4 but they did not know that I harnessed them in leading-strings<sup>k</sup> and led them with bonds of love<sup>l</sup>—
- that I had lifted them like a little child<sup>m</sup> to my cheek, that I had bent down to feed them.
 5 Back they shall go to Egypt, the Assyrian shall be their king;
 for they have refused to return
 to me.
- 6 The sword shall be swung over their blood-spattered altars and put an end to the prattling priests
 and devour my people in return 7 for all their schemings, bent on rebellion as they are.
 Though they call on their high god, even then he will not reinstate
 them.
- 8 How can I give you up, Ephraim, how surrender you, Israel?
 How can I make you like Admah or treat you as Zeboyim?
 My heart is changed within me,
 my remorse kindles already.
- 9 I will not let loose my fury,
 I will not turn round and destroy Ephraim;
 for I am God and not a man,
 the Holy One in your midst; 10 I will not come with threats<sup>n</sup> like a roaring lion.
 No; when I roar, I who am God, my sons shall come with speed out of the west.
- 11 They will come speedily, flying like birds out of Egypt,
 like pigeons from Assyria, and I will settle them in their own homes.
- This is the very word of the LORD.
 12 Ephraim besets me with treachery, the house of Israel besets me with deceit;
 and Judah is still restive under God, still loyal to the idols he counts holy.
- Ephraim is a shepherd whose flock is but<sup>o</sup> wind, 12

i a yoke: prob. rdg.; Heb. om.

j he: prob. rdg.; Heb. Judah.

k leading-strings: or cords of leather.

l bonds of love: or reins of hide.

m I had . . . child: prob. rdg.; Heb. like those who lift up a yoke.

n Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds they shall go after the LORD.
o is a . . . but: or feeds on.

12: Fallow: land uncultivated for a time, and by implication, hardened and unproductive.
 14: The allusion to Shalman's destruction of Beth-arbel is obscure.

11.1-12.1: Fatherhood and ingratitude. 5: Back . . . Egypt: see 8.13 n. 8: Admah and Zeboyim: destroyed with Sodom and Gomorrah (Deut.29.23).

- a hunter chasing the east wind all day;<sup>p</sup> he makes a treaty with Assyria and carries tribute of oil to Egypt.
- 2 The LORD has a charge to bring against Judah and is resolved to punish Jacob for his conduct;
 he will requite him for his misdeeds.
- 3 Even in the womb Jacob overreached his brother, and in manhood he strove with God.
- 4 The divine angel stood firm and held his own;<sup>q</sup>
 Jacob wept and begged favour for himself.
 Then God met him at Bethel and there spoke with him.
- 5 The LORD the God of Hosts, the LORD is his name.
- 6 Turn back all of you by God's help; practise loyalty and justice and wait always upon your God.
- 7 False scales are in merchants' hands, and they love to cheat;
 so Ephraim says,
 'Surely I have become a rich man, I have made my fortune';
 but all his gains will not pay for the guilt<sup>r</sup> of his sins.
- 9 Yet I have been the LORD your God since your days in Egypt;
 I will make you live in tents yet again, as in the old days.
- 10 I spoke to the prophets, it was I who gave vision after vision; I spoke through the prophets in parables.
- 11 Was there idolatry in Gilead? Yes: they were worthless and sacrificed to bull-gods in Gilgal; their altars were common as heaps of stones beside a ploughed field.
- 12 Jacob fled to the land of Aram; Israel did service to win a wife, to win a wife he tended sheep.
- By a prophet the LORD brought up Israel out of Egypt and by a prophet he was tended.
- Ephraim has given bitter provocation; therefore his Lord will make him answerable for his own death and bring down upon his own head the blame for all that he has done.
- When the Ephraimites mumbled their prayers, God himself denounced Israel; they were guilty of Baal-worship and died.
 Yet now they sin more and more; they have made themselves an image of cast metal, they have fashioned their silver into idols, nothing but the work of craftsmen; men say of them, 'Those who kiss calf-images offer human sacrifice.'
- Therefore they shall be like the morning mist or like dew that vanishes early, like chaff blown from the threshing-floor or smoke from a chimney.
- But I have been the LORD your God since your days in Egypt, when you knew no other saviour than me, no god but me.
 I cared for you in the wilderness, in a land of burning heat, as if you were in pasture.
 So they were filled, and, being filled, grew proud;

<sup>p</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds piling up treachery and havoc.
<sup>q</sup> The divine . . . own: or He stood firm against an angel, but flagged.
<sup>r</sup> for the guilt: prob. rdg.; Heb. for me, guilt.

12.2-14: Jacob and Moses. 2-6: Just as Jacob, the tribal father in whom Israel glories, sinned and begged God's favour, so his descendants should turn back and wait on God. See especially Gen.25.21-26; 32.22-32; 35.2-7; or 28.10-22. 7-9: Israel's ill-gotten gains on its land do not have the power to prevent God from reducing her to the poverty and loyalty of tents of the Exodus. 11: In Palestine the soil is so shallow and stony that fields cleared for plowing are hedged with heaps of stones. Idolatry was practiced in the whole land. Gilead was east of the Jordan and Gilgal, west of it. 13: Prophet: Moses.

13.1-16: Yahweh's patience ends. 1: Baal: see 2.8 n. 9-11: See 8.4 n. 12: God's lawsuit and so they forgot me.

 7 So now I will be like a panther to them,
 I will prowl like a leopard by the wayside;
 8 I will meet them like a she-bear robbed of her cubs and tear their ribs apart, like a lioness I will devour them on the spot,
 I will rip them up like a wild beast.
 9 I have destroyed you, O Israel; who is there to help you?
 10 Where now is your king that he may save you, or the rulers in all your cities for whom you asked me, begging for king and princes?
 11 I gave you a king in my anger, and in my fury took him away.
 12 Ephraim's guilt is tied up in a scroll, his sins are kept on record.
 13 When the pangs of his birth came over his mother,
 he showed himself a senseless child;
 for at the proper time he could not present himself at the mouth of the womb.
 14 Shall I redeem him from Sheol?
 Shall I ransom him from death?
 Oh, for your plagues, O death! Oh, for your sting, Sheol!
 I will put compassion out of my sight.
 15 Though he flourishes among the reeds,<sup>a</sup> an east wind shall come, a blast from the LORD, rising over the desert;
 Ephraim's spring will fail and his fountain run dry.
 It will carry away as spoil his whole store of costly treasures.
 16 Samaria will become desolate because she has rebelled against her God;

her babes will fall by the sword and be dashed to the ground,
 her women with child shall be ripped up.

Repentance, forgiveness, and restoration

Return, O Israel, to the LORD your God; 14
 for you have stumbled in your evil courses.
 Come with your words ready, 2
 come back to the LORD;
 say to him, 'Thou dost not endure iniquity.'<sup>f</sup> Accept our plea,
 and we will pay our vows with cattle from our pens.
 Assyria shall not save us, nor will we 3 seek horses to ride;
 what we have made with our own hands
 we will never again call gods;
 for in thee the fatherless find a father's love.'<sup>g</sup>
 I will heal their apostasy; of my own 4 bounty will I love them;
 for my anger is turned away from them.
 I will be as dew to Israel 5
 that he may flower like the lily, strike root like the poplar<sup>u</sup> and put out fresh shoots, 6 that he may be as fair as the olive and fragrant as Lebanon.
 Israel shall again dwell in my<sup>v</sup> 7 shadow
 and grow corn in abundance;
 they shall flourish like a vine and be famous as the wine of Lebanon.

<sup>a</sup> among the reeds: prob. rdg.; Heb. between (or a son of) brothers.
<sup>f</sup> Thou . . . iniquity: or Thou wilt surely take away iniquity.
<sup>u</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. like Lebanon.
<sup>v</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. its.

against Israel ends in a judicial conviction of guilt, sealed officially in a scroll, and entered on record, as was the judiciary custom. See Isa.8.16. 13: The verse seems to be a proverb for congenial awkwardness and ineptitude ending in disaster. 14: Sheol: place of the dead. Oh, for your plagues: quoted in 1 Cor.15.55, though with the meaning altered from a rhetorical question, implying a negative, into a strong affirmation. 15: The east wind is dry and hot.

14.1-9: Repentance, forgiveness, and restoration. In a serenely confident poem, Hosea uses

8 What has Ephraim any more to do with idols?

I have spoken and I affirm it:
I am the pine-tree that shelters you;
to me you owe your fruit.

Let the wise consider these things 9 and let him who considers take note; for the LORD's ways are straight and the righteous walk in them, while sinners stumble.

---

fertility images as signs of God's favor and Israel's restoration and new life. 9: A pious postscript from a later hand.

JOEL

Few books can match Joel for drama. From the opening description of locust plagues, through pictures of ruin and restoration, visions and cosmic omens, and the war of Yahweh against "multitudes in the Valley of Decision," the poetry crackles with energy and stretches the mind with the visionary power of a remarkably gifted prophet.

We know nothing about this astonishing person, not even the date of his book. Some scholars place it as early as 600 B.C., others as late as 350. The references in 3.4-8 to foreign nations are too vague to allow precise dating, nor can the locust plague described in ch. 1 be identified by date. The picture of religious observances in chs. 1-2 leads most scholars to place Joel in the time of the Second Temple, perhaps 450-400 B.C.

Joel concentrates on God's ultimate victory, pursuing the eschatological implications of the locust plague and other contemporary events, and using a visionary, highly symbolic style. In Joel the prophetic manner carries on from the past, as in Ezekiel and Zechariah (chs. 1-6), toward such later apocalyptic books as Daniel and Revelation.

1	The word of the LORD which came to Joel son of Pethuel.	and left my fig-trees broken and leafless, they have plucked them bare and stripped them of their bark; they have left the branches white.
The day of the Lord
2	Listen, you elders; hear me, all you who live in the land: has the like of this happened in all your days or in your fathers' days?	Wail like a virgin wife in sackcloth, wailing over the bridegroom of her youth: the drink-offering and grain-offering are lost to the house of the LORD.	8 9
3	Tell it to your sons and they may tell theirs; let them pass it on from generation to generation.	Mourn, you priests, ministers of the LORD, the fields are ruined, the parched earth mourns;	10
4	What the locust has left the swarm eats, what the swarm has left the hopper eats, and what the hopper has left the grub eats.	for the corn is ruined, the new wine is desperate, the oil has failed. Despair, you husbandmen; you vinedressers, lament, because the wheat and the barley, the harvest of the field, is lost.	11
5	Wake up, you drunkards, and lament your fate; mourn for the fresh wine, all you wine-drinkers, because it is lost to you.	The vintage is desperate, and the fig-tree has failed; pomegranate, palm, and apple, all the trees of the country-side are parched, and none make merry over harvest.	12
6	For a horde has overrun my land, mighty and past counting; their teeth are a lion's teeth; they have the fangs of a lioness.	Priests, put on sackcloth and beat your breasts;	13
7	They have ruined my vines

1.1: Title. The tone of the book may indicate that Joel was a Temple prophet.

1.2-2.17: The Day of the LORD (see 1.14-15 n.). A terrible locust plague seems the end of the world, and the people need to muster all their religious resources to meet it.

1.4-2.17: The locusts ruin the entire country-side, and all elements of the population are summoned to lament and repent. 4: It is disputed whether the Heb. terms for locust, swarm, hopper, and grub mean various kinds of locusts or successive stages of growth of one kind.

6-7: The description of the locusts' ravages is poetically powerful. 9: The gravity of the situation is indicated by the cessation of the regular sacrifices of the drink-offering and grain-offering. 10: Corn: grain; see Hos.2.8 n. 12: The fall harvest was possibly the occasion for a merry

lament, you ministers of the altar;          come, lie in sackcloth all night long,          you ministers of my God;          for grain-offering and drink-offering          are withheld from the house of          your God. 14 Proclaim a solemn fast, appoint a          day of abstinence.          You elders, summon all that live in          the land          to come together in the house of          your God,          and cry to the LORD. 15 Alas! the day is near,          the day of the LORD: it comes,          a mighty destruction from the          Almighty. 16 Look! it stares us in the face;          the house of our God has lost its          food,          lost all its joy and gladness. 17 The soil is parched,          the dykes are dry,          the granaries are deserted,          the barns ruinous;          for the rains have failed. 18 The cattle are exhausted,          the herds of oxen distressed          because they have no pasture;          the flocks of sheep waste away. 19 To thee I cry, O LORD;          for fire has devoured the open          pastures          and the flames have burnt up all the          trees of the country-side. 20 The very cattle in the field look up          to thee;          for the water-channels are dried up,          and fire has devoured the open          pastures. 2 Blow the trumpet in Zion,          sound the alarm upon my holy hill;          let all that live in the land tremble,          for the day of the LORD has come, 2 surely a day of darkness and          gloom is upon us,          a day of cloud and dense fog;	like a blackness spread over the          mountains          a mighty, countless host appears;          their like has never been known,          nor ever shall be in ages to come;          their vanguard a devouring fire, 3          their rearguard leaping flame;          before them the land is a garden          of Eden,          behind them a wasted wilderness;          nothing survives their march.          On they come, like squadrons of 4          horse,          like war-horses they charge;          bounding over the peaks they advance 5          with the rattle of chariots,          like flames of fire burning up the          stubble,          like a countless host in battle array.          Before them nations tremble, 6          every face turns pale.          Like warriors they charge, 7          they mount the walls like men at          arms,          each marching in line,          no confusion in the ranks,          none jostling his neighbour, 8          none breaking line.          They plunge through streams without          halting their advance;          they burst into the city, leap on to 9          the wall,          climb into the houses,          entering like thieves through the          windows.          Before them the earth shakes, 10          the heavens shudder,          sun and moon are darkened,          and the stars forbear to shine.          The LORD thunders before his host; 11          his is a mighty army,          countless are those who do his          bidding.          Great is the day of the LORD and          terrible,          who can endure it?          And yet, the LORD says, even now 12          turn back to me with your whole          heart,
--	--

religious festival. 14-15: The Pentateuch prescribes only one fast a year, the recurring Day of Atonement; see Lev.23.27. The day of the LORD was the future day of final judgment on the nations, and the purification and restoration of Israel as described in chs. 3 and 4. Some see the plague of locusts as part of that future judgment, which is conceived of as already beginning to arrive. 2.1: The trumpet (Heb., shophar) was blown on the most solemn occasions, especially at the new year. 10: The plague of locusts in its density darkens the sun and moon which are the traditional conditions accompanying the day of the LORD in apocalyptic literature. See 2.30-31; Isa.13.10. 12-14: Yahweh himself suggests the proper response, a genuine repentance

- fast, and weep, and beat your breasts.
- 13 Rend your hearts and not your garments;
turn back to the LORD your God;
for he is gracious and compassionate, long-suffering and ever constant,
always ready to repent of the threatened evil.
- 14 It may be he will turn back and repent and leave a blessing behind him, blessing enough for grain-offering and drink-offering for the LORD your God.
- 15 Blow the trumpet in Zion, proclaim a solemn fast, appoint a day of abstinence;
- 16 gather the people together, proclaim a solemn assembly;
summon the elders,
gather the children, yes, babes at the breast;
bid the bridegroom leave his chamber and the bride her bower.
- 17 Let the priests, the ministers of the LORD, stand weeping between the porch and the altar
and say, 'Spare thy people, O LORD, thy own people,
expose them not to reproach, lest other nations make them a byword and everywhere men ask,
"Where is their God?"'
- Israel forgiven and restored*
- 18 Then the LORD's love burned with zeal for his land, and he was moved with compassion for his people.
- 19 He answered their appeal and said,
- I will send you corn, and new wine,
and oil,
and you shall have your fill;
I will expose you no longer to the reproach of other nations.
I will remove the northern peril far away from you and banish them into a land parched and waste,
their vanguard into the eastern sea and their rear into the western,
and the stench shall rise from their rotting corpses because of their proud deeds!
Earth, be not afraid, rejoice and be glad;
for the LORD himself has done a proud deed.
- Be not afraid, you cattle in the field;
for the pastures shall be green,
the trees shall bear fruit,
the fig and the vine yield their harvest.
- O people of Zion,
rejoice and be glad in the LORD
your God,
who gives you good food in due measure<sup>a</sup>
and sends down rain<sup>b</sup> as of old.
The threshing-floors shall be heaped with grain,
the vats shall overflow with new wine and oil.
- So I will make good the years that the swarm has eaten, hopper and grub and locust,
my great army which I sent against you;
and you shall eat, you shall eat your fill
and praise the name of the LORD
your God

<sup>a</sup> Or gives you a sign pointing to prosperity.
<sup>b</sup> Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds spring rain and autumn rain.

(of the heart) and not merely an outward one (garments). For he is gracious: a frequent liturgical formula (compare Pss.86.15; 103.8; 145.8). Repent: God frequently so reverses his intentions; see Gen.6.6. Blessing: usually a tangible evidence of divine favor. 15-17: The solemn ritual is proclaimed again. The altar stood in front of the temple. Byword: mockery (more generally, a sententious saying, like a proverb). If Israel is not spared, the Gentiles will infer that Israel's God is ineffectual.

2.18-3.21: Israel repents and is delivered. The poems in this section are arranged thematically rather than chronologically.

2.18-32: The day of the LORD has a positive side, for it is inaugurated by his love. 20: Danger in Palestine usually came from the north (compare Jer.1.13-14; 4.6); the north is the mythological dwelling of evil (Isa.14.13); the northern peril is a mythological monster, whose carcass

27 who has done wonders for you,<sup>c</sup> and you shall know that I am present in Israel,
 that I and no other am the LORD
 your God;
 and my people shall not again be brought to shame.
 28 Thereafter the day shall come when I will pour out my spirit on all mankind;
 your sons and your daughters shall prophesy,
 your old men shall dream dreams and your young men see visions; 29 I will pour out my spirit in those days
 even upon slaves and slave-girls.
 30 I will show portents in the sky and
 on earth,
 blood and fire and columns of
 smoke;
 31 the sun shall be turned into darkness
 and the moon into blood before the great and terrible day of the LORD comes.
 32 Then everyone who invokes the LORD by name
 shall be saved:
 for when the LORD gives the word there shall yet be survivors on Mount Zion
 and in Jerusalem a remnant<sup>d</sup> whom the LORD will call.<sup>e</sup>

3 When that time comes, on that day when I reverse the fortunes of Judah and Jerusalem,
 2 I will gather all the nations
 together
 and lead them down to the Valley of the LORD's Judgement and there bring them to judgement on behalf of Israel, my own
 possession;
 for they have scattered my people throughout their own countries, have taken each their portion of my land

 and shared out my people by lot, 3 bartered a boy for a whore, and sold a girl for wine and drunk
 it down.

What are you to me, Tyre and Sidon 4 and all the districts of Philistia? Can you pay me back for anything I have done? Is there anything that you can do to me? Swiftly and speedily I will make your deeds recoil upon your own heads; for you have taken my silver 5 and my gold and carried off my costly treasures into your temples; you have 6 sold the people of Judah and Jerusalem to the Greeks, and removed them far beyond their own frontiers. But I will 7 rouse them to leave the places to which you have sold them. I will make your deeds recoil upon your own heads: I 8 will sell your sons and your daughters to the people of Judah, and they shall sell them to the Sabaeans, a nation far away. The LORD has spoken.

Proclaim this amongst the nations: 9-12<sup>f</sup> Declare a holy war, call your troops to arms!
 Beat your mattocks into swords and your pruning-hooks into spears.<sup>g</sup> Rally to each other's help, all you nations round about.
 Let the weakling say, 'I am strong', and let the coward show himself brave.<sup>h</sup>

c Prob. rdg.; Heb. adds and my people shall not again be brought to shame (cp. verse 27).
d a remnant: prob. rdg.; Heb. among the remnant.
e Or when the LORD calls.
f The order of lines in verses 9-12 has been re-arranged in several places.
g Beat . . . spears: cp. Isa. 2. 4; Mic. 4. 3.
h and let . . . brave: prob. rdg.; Heb. O LORD bring down thy warriors.

stretches from east to west; see Ezek.38.6. 28: The LORD's spirit, the animating force behind the prophets, is to come on all Israel; compare Ezek.36.26-27.

3.1-8: Punishment on Judah's oppressors. 1-2: An element in the day of the LORD is the reversal of the condition of the nations, the oppressor, and Israel, the oppressed; the nations will be gathered for judgment, just as they scattered Israel in carrying out God's judgment on them. 2: The Valley of the LORD's Judgement is probably not any actual place but a hypothetical site for the final judgment. 4-8: Merchants from Tyre and Sidon and the region of Philistia came with the Seleucid armies to buy the Jews as slaves in order to sell them. See 1 Macc.3.41; 2 Macc.1.27; 8.11. But the talion (Exod.21.23-24) will operate. Sabaeans: a people in Arabia.

3.9-21: The return of Paradise. 9-12: A battle is expected to precede Yahweh's culminating victory. Beat your mattocks into swords, etc., exactly reverses the familiar saying in Isa.2.4 and

- Let all the nations hear the call to arms and come to the Valley of the LORD's Judgement; let all the warriors come and draw near
and muster there;
for there I will take my seat and judge all the nations round about.
- 13 Ply the sickle, for the harvest is ripe;
come, tread the grapes,
for the press is full and the vats overflow;
great is the wickedness of the nations.
- 14 The roar of multitudes, multitudes,
in the Valley of Decision!
The day of the LORD is at hand
in the Valley of Decision; 15 sun and moon are darkened and the stars forbear to shine.
- 16 The LORD roars from Zion
and thunders from Jerusalem;
heaven and earth shudder, but the LORD is a refuge for his people and the defence of Israel.
- Thus you shall know that I am the LORD your God, dwelling in Zion my holy mountain; Jerusalem shall be holy,
and no one without the right shall pass through her again.
When that day comes, 18 the mountains shall run with fresh wine and the hills flow with milk.
All the streams of Judah shall be full of water, and a fountain shall spring from the LORD's house and water the gorge of Shittim, but Egypt shall become a desert 19 and Edom a deserted waste, because of the violence done to Judah and the innocent blood shed in her land;
and I will spill their blood, 20-21 the blood I have not yet spilt.
Then there shall be people living in Judah for ever,
in Jerusalem generation after generation;
and the LORD will dwell in Zion.

---

Mic.4.3. 13: The image of the vintage for the final day is echoed in Isa.63.1-3. 14: Decision: against the nations and for Jerusalem. 17: The LORD's dwelling in Jerusalem gives the city its holy character. 18: The picture of overflowing nature is the antithesis of the ruin caused by the locusts (1.4-20; 2.3). Shittim: a valley some nineteen miles southwest of Jerusalem. Compare a similar vision elaborated in Ezek.47.1-12. 19: Egypt and Edom will become sterile in contrast to Israel's fertility. Edom and Egypt receive special condemnation, Edom because it despoiled Judah after the latter was laid low by the Babylonians (587 B.C.) and Egypt because it deceived Judah with promised help against the same Babylonians. See Jer.49.7-22; Ezek.25.12-14; Obad.1-11.

AMOS

Amos speaks against the Northern Kingdom of Israel with a severity not exceeded in the stern denunciations delivered by other prophets.

The narrative of his confrontation with Amaziah the priest of Bethel (7.10–17) in the time of Jeroboam II places him in the vicinity of 750 B.C. At that time Israel was in the midst of a prosperity which would end with its devastating conquest by the Assyrians about 722. But along with the high prosperity there had arisen a social and moral corruption which appeared especially abominable to Amos, a native of the poorer Southern Kingdom of Judah and a shepherd and pruner of sycamore figs (7.14). Though in his view other nations were wicked (1.3–2.5), Israel was so deeply guilty of “countless sins” (5.12) that her doom, determined by the deity, was sealed and irrevocable.

Verses or passages here and there soften the unrelieved sternness of the words of Amos (for example, 5.14) by suggesting that a change of heart might still occur in time to save Israel from the divine judgment to come. Other passages (for example, 5.15) hold out at most a forlorn hope for Israel. More optimistically, the latter half of 9.8 and 9.13–15 assert that God’s will to sustain Israel surpasses Israel’s ability to go wrong. Such hopeful passages are often interpreted as additions to the book from a later hand. The “doxologies” in 4.13; 5.8–9; and 9.5–6 are sometimes also considered to be additions.

Although by his own statement (7.14) he was not the usual prophet, a striking series of visions (7.1–9; 8.1–3; 9.1–4) appear to reflect the personal experiences which culminated in his prophetic ministry, and determined the content of his message.

1 THE WORDS OF AMOS, ONE OF THE sheep-farmers of Tekoa, which he received in visions concerning Israel during the reigns of Uzziah king of Judah and Jeroboam son of Jehoash king of Israel, two years before the 2 earthquake. He said,

The LORD roars from Zion
and thunders from Jerusalem;
the shepherds’ pastures are scorched and the top of Carmel<sup>a</sup> is dried up.

The sins of Israel and her neighbours

3 These are the words of the LORD:

For crime after crime of Damascus
I will grant them no reprieve, because they threshed Gilead under
